ROOSEVELT PROPOSES 6-POINT FARM RELIEF PLAN

Political Leaders Scan Election Returns From Eight States Of Nation

MOSES WINS SEAT AGAIN

Dale of Vermont Also Renamed by Republicans in Yesterday's Battle of Ballots; Overton Victorious in Senatorial Fight in Louisiana; Jones Leading in the State of Washington; Barnett Returned by Colorado Democrats.

Nearly complete returns from yesterday's primaries in eight States showed today that despite unusually heavy voting, most of the nationally known figures came through with flying colors.

As the final returns drifted in, Georgia was voting to choose candidates for a number of offices with chief interest centered in the race between thirty-four-year-old Governor Richard B. Russell, Jr., and representative Charles R. Crisp, for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Among the well-known candidates successful in yesterday's voting were: Senator H. Moses, New Hampshire Republican; Senator Porter Dale, Vermont Republican; and Senator Ellison D. Smith, South Carolina Democrat. Senator Wesley L. Jones, Washington Republican, also appeared a winner.

Karl C. Schuyler, Denver attorney, was outdistancing his opponent, Nate C. Warren, for the Republican senatorial nomination from Colorado, but the Democratic race was close. Alva B. Adams, Pueblo banker, held a narrow lead over John T. Barnett, Denver oil man.

For signs of November trends political leaders scanned results of eight state primaries today, watched Georgia Democrats go to the polls, and still pondered Monday's Democratic victory in Maine's off-season election.

In the absence of inter-party clashes, prohibition's influence as an issue was receiving attention from party chieftains in checking yesterday's primary ballots. In other sections they saw veteran office-holders fighting to hold their jobs.

In the East, Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, and Senator Proter Dale, of Vermont, were renamed by Republicans for the Senate. Senator Ellison D. Smith, four-term veteran, again was named by Democrats in South Carolina over former Senator Cole L. Blease.

Michigan's incomplete returns indicated the renomination of all present incumbents in the House of Representatives.

Representatives Jesse P. Wolcott and Seymour H. Person, Republicans, apparently had won renomination over Louis E. Cramton and Grant M. Hudson, former members and once leading prohibitionists in the House.

With the backing of Senator Huey P. Long, Representative John H. Overton was victorious in winning the Democratic senatorial nomination in Louisiana from Senator Edwin B. Broussard. Long's slate led throughout most of the State.

FLARES SAVED OCEAN FLIERS

By Capt. Thomas Watson (Master of the Trawler Lord Talbot). Trawler Lord Talbot, Sept. 14.—(By Radio)—(AP)—The red light of a flare, winking out a message in Morse code over a Greenland ice field, led me yesterday to the spot where the flying family of George R. Hutchinson was stranded, and made possible their rescue.

CIRCUS SHOWS IN CITY TODAY

Barnett Bros., Motorized Show to Give Two Exhibitions At Winslow's Field.

It was circus day in Greenville today, and children and grown-ups alike bounced out of bed early this morning to greet the arrival of Barnett Brothers, known as the greatest motorized circus on earth.

The great caravan of trucks, loaded to the top with all the paraphernalia, personnel and animals that go into the making of a circus, arrived at Winslow's show grounds about 6 o'clock and immediately started work on erecting the big top and side show tents. Hundreds of townspeople were gathered on the grounds to get a glimpse of the animals and to watch with eager anticipation the erection of the tented city.

The show was scheduled to give two exhibitions in the city, one this afternoon and tonight, and people from several surrounding communities were expected to be in attendance.

The parade at the noon hour, winding over the principal streets of the city, was witnessed by uncounted thousands in the business district, and the life and color of (Continued on Page Six)

SMITH BEATS COLE BLEASE

United States Senator Scores Heavily in the Biennial South Carolina Election.

Ellison Durant Smith, who has been in the United States Senate longer than any other South Carolinian, today bore the stamp of approval of the Democrats of this State in the form of his fifth nomination to that body.

Senator Smith scored a smashing victory over Cole L. Blease, former senator and veteran political leader, on the basis of nearly complete unofficial returns from yesterday's run-off Democratic primary. His majority of more than 34,000 was the greatest ever piled up on Blease in a state-wide race.

The vote from 1,395 of the state's 1,444 precincts was: Smith 146,538; Blease 112,345.

The tabulated vote included 28 of the state's 46 counties complete and a great majority of the vote in every other county. Unreported precincts (Continued on Page Six)

TAKE BALLOT CASE TO COURT

Communists to Get A Hearing on Charges Against the Election Board.

Raleigh, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The State Board of Elections prepared today for a court test of its authority to stipulate certain requirements before the names of candidates for presidential elector from minor parties may be placed on the official ballot.

The board's recent ruling that candidates, except those of the Democratic and Republican parties, should not have their names placed on the ballot until after the filing of petitions bearing at least (Continued on Page Six)

COURT STILL BUSY HERE

Colored Woman Tries to Recover $325 Of Insurance Company in Civil Action.

Superior court continued hammering away today in the case of Edna Banks, colored, executrix of the estate of her husband, the late A. L. Banks, against National Accident Insurance Company. The plaintiff is attempting to recover $325 which she claimed due the estate by reason of the bad health of her husband prior to his death.

The case occupied the attention of court all day yesterday, and argument, started during the late afternoon, was continued this morning. The case was due to be completed during the late morning or early afternoon.

Court opened for a one-week sitting last Monday morning with between forty and fifty cases and the bulk were expected to be disposed of by the end of the week.

G. O. P. URGES HARDER WORK

White House Sees the Need of More Intensive Campaigning in Maine Election.

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Eight weeks of renewed and more intense campaigning was today's Republican program after Democratic successes in Maine.

President Hoover's own caution to party workers from the top down was:

"The result of the election in Maine imposes need for renewed and stronger effort that the people may fully understand the issues at stake."

His running-mate, Vice-President Curtis, said:

"We are greatly disappointed. It will only make us work the harder and we will carry the State (Maine) in November."

Mr. Hoover's views on the Maine results which saw a Democratic governor elected for the first time in eighteen years, were given in a telegram to Chairman Sanders of the Republican National Committee.

This message was made public at the White House after extensive conferences between the President and two of his chief advisors, Secretary Mills and Postmaster-General Brown who later joined in predicting a high-speed campaign for the next two months.

STRIKE PEACE PLANS FLOP

Intermediaries Seek New Conferences at Thomasville After Failure of First.

Thomasville, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A decision by T. Austin Finch, president of the Thomasville Chamber of Commerce, was expected today on a proposal to end a strike of employees of the company and strikers who submitted the terms were confident of success.

Early today the idle operatives held a mass meeting and drew up a proposal which stipulated that they would return to work at a wage reduction of about half that order, called several weeks ago.

The terms also asked recognition of the local workers union and was presented by five representatives of the strikers who said they believed Finch would accept the desires of the mass meeting.

Representatives of the idle workmen asked Finch to reserve his decision until after another conference to be held later today.

By an overwhelming vote strikers at a mass meeting last night decided not to change their demands previously given to the mill management but the later meeting nullified this action.

WOULD HELP HOLD HOMES

Speaking from Steps of State Capitol At Topeka, Democratic Presidential Nominee Scores Former Administrations For Lack of Attention to Problems of Farm; Seeks Tariff Benefit Over World Prices Equivalent to Benefit Given to Industrial Products; Asks Equality with Tariff Produced Industry.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Declaring that the "present administration and the two previous administrations, in all of which the President was an important member, failed utterly to understand the farm problem as a whole, or to plan for its relief, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking today in the heart of the "farm belt," proposed a six-fold relief program.

He called for a "definite policy of giving those who have lost title to the farms, now held by institutions seeking credit from the governmental agencies, the Presidential opportunity of getting their property back."

The Democratic Presidential nominee spoke from the steps of the State Capitol, where a few weeks ago Vice-President Charles Curtis accepted the nomination for a re-election to his office.

Near at hand, as he enunciated his agricultural doctrine, Mr. Roosevelt's "team-mate," Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, the Democratic Vice-Presidential aspirant.

Roosevelt's speech here was the first prepared address of his 8,900-mile swing through the West, which began on Monday night when he left Albany.

Leading up to his six-point plan, the Democratic nominee declared: "I want now to state what seems to me the specifications upon which most of the reasonable leaders of agriculture have agreed, and to express here and now my whole-hearted accord with these specifications."

The specifications were: (1) The plan must provide for the producer of staple surplus commodities, such as wheat, cotton, corn (in the form of hogs), and tobacco, a tariff benefit over world prices which is equivalent to the benefit given by the tariff to industrial product. This differential benefit must be so applied that the increase in farm income, purchasing and best paying power will not stimulate further production.

(2) The plan must finance itself. Agriculture has at no time sought, and does not now seek, such access to the public treasury as was provided by the futile and costly attempts at price stabilization by the Federal Farm Board. It seeks only equality of opportunity with tariff-protected industry.

(3) It must not make use of any mechanism which would cause our European customers to retaliate on the grounds of dumping. It must be based upon making the tariff effective and direct in its operation.

(4) It must make use of existing agencies and so far as possible be decentralized in its administration so that the chief responsibility for its operation will rest with the locality rather than with newly-created bureaucratic machinery in Washington.

(5) It must operate as nearly as possible on a co-operative basis as its effect must be to enhance a strength the co-operative movement. It should moreover, be constituted so that it can be withdrawn whenever the emergency has passed, and normal foreign markets have been re-established.

(6) The plan must be, insofar as possible, voluntary. I like the idea that the plan should not be put into operation unless it has the (Continued on page three)

New President Of Chile Tenders His Resignation

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 14.—(AP)—General Bartolome Blanche, installed yesterday as acting president of Chile submitted his resignation this morning.

The presidential palace from which Provisional President Carlos Davila was ousted to make way for Blanche, was left in the hands of under-officials.

Colonel Arturo Merino Benitez, chief of the air service and leader of the movement which ousted Davila, fled the city and barricaded himself at the El Bosque airport.

A committee of army leaders gathered hastily in an effort to stabilize the situation, but it appeared that Davila might try to regain the power. Meantime the city remained quiet.

Gardner Speaks At Wake Forest

Wake Forest, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Praising the record of graduates of Wake Forest College in years past, Gov. O. Max Gardner today coun- selled the students of the institution to "not turn soft now" but instead to "do our part or recover the lost radiance of our democracy."

"It would be a poor North Carolina indeed without Wake Forest College," the governor said as he spoke at formal opening exercises of the school. "The sons of this college have contended mightily in political parliaments for the rights of man and have been leaders in ecclesiastical conferences for the freedom of the soul."

Complete Revision Of Light Rates

Raleigh, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Tentative downward revisions of electric- ity rates of the four major public utilities companies operating in North Carolina have been completed by the State Corporation Commission but are awaiting the study of C. E. Waddell, employed this week as an expert to assist the commission.

Stanley Winborne of the commission said today the new rate sched- ules were ready for action if they meet with the approval of Waddell, who is expected here the latter part of this week.

Mr. Winborne declined to reveal what the reduction approximated, but both he and the other members of the commission, Chairman W. T. Lee and Judge George P. Bell, have said or intimated they hoped to afford "substantial" savings to electrical consumers.

Mr. Winborne reiterated that it was his belief the commission will have forwarded its rate revisions to one or more of the affected com- panies before October 1.

Had it not been for the open win- dow in the front of the building it was believed the flames would have gained sufficient headway to have destroyed the building and probably others in the same block.

The building is located next to the police station which is in the same building with the fire department, and this fact enabled the firemen to reach the scene of the fire much more quickly than under ordinary circumstances, and to bring into play all chemicals and emergency equip- ment of the department.

The building is owned by W. J. Hooker, and is one of the finest structures in the city. Although it was impossible to estimate the total loss to building and stock, it was expected this would be determined today when insurance adjusters visit the scene of fire.

(Continued from Page One) Strikers, explaining their action in refusing to accept proposals sub- mitted after conferences between their committees, Waynick, T. Austin Finch, the company's president, and Colonel J. W. Harrelson, "ob- server" for the Governor, said no "material concessions" were offered them.

They are demanding re-establish- ment of the wage scale in effect prior to the reduction which brought about the walkout, while promising to consider the condition of the mar- ket, an d to give a week's notice be- fore striking, should another cut seem necessary.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 14.—

(AP)—Breaks in the ranks of strik- ers, several hundred of whom have signified their desire to return to work, today brought the first indica- tion of a possible early re-opening of the Hanes Hosiery Mill here.

Mill officials had no comment to make pending formal notification of the action of 300 employees, said to represent all departments of the plant, in voting to petition for re- sumption of operations.

The employees wishing to return to work announced another meeting would be held Thursday afternoon, when a committee to present their proposal to the management will be appointed.

In the meantime a separate meet- ing of all loopers wishing to return to their jobs has been called for to- day.

The committee representing the main group of strikers numbering some 700 or 800, they claim, took no notice of the declarations in the ranks. A meeting was called for this morning at which the leaders announced all who wished would be allowed to join the Industrial Work- ers' Association which they have formed in an attempt to solidify their ranks.

G. O. P. URGES HARDER WORK

(Continued from Page One) saved the country during the last twelve months from all manner of destructive panaceas. This adherence and the measures and policies we have adopted have preserved these principles and laid the founda- tions for recovery.

"My chief concern now is that the work of reconstruction shall be for- ward steadily and that the forces we have mobilized to that end and which are beginning to prove effec- tive, shall continue. This transcends all personal and partisan considera- tions."

The President's telegram was in reply to one from Sanders on the main election which said he was "disappointed in the vote but not greatly disturbed." Curtis' state- ment was made to newspapermen.

"I firmly expect to carry that State," Sanders wired Hoover. "Since 1880 Maine has five times in Presi- dential years elected a governor. State ticket and Congressional dele- gation in September of opposite po- litical faith to the President elected sixty days later."

The main theme of the declara- tion was in exhortation of prohibi- tion supporters to "see to it that the men they vote for to represent us in Washington and Raleigh, Sen- ators, Congressmen and members of the Legislature, are loyal, upstand- ing, courageous defenders of the Eighteenth Amendment."

It continued to say that it is also important "that men of dry record and convictions be elected to ad- ministrative offices of our State. For example, it would be an unfortunate day for North Carolina ever to have a governor who was out of sympathy with the aspirations of those who have made the fight against liquor. As to the candidates for President, our advice is to carefully study their respective records and their utter- ances from time to time and for each citizen to vote for the man in whose hands he believes the cause of prohibition will be safest."

For the permanent adjustment of agriculture, Roosevelt suggested a re-organization of the Department of Agriculture; a "planned use of the land" and "national leadership in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes."

The Democratic standard-bearer said "the present administration and the two previous administra- tions, in all of which the President was an important member, failed utterly to understand the farm prob- lem as a national whole, or to plan for its relief."

He added "they destroyed the for- eign markets for our exportable farm surplus, beginning with the Fordney-McCumber tariff, and end- ing with the Grundy tariff, and end- ing with the simplest principles of international trade, and forcing the inevitable retaliation of foreign countries."

Uncover Japanese Plot to Establish a New State in China

Shanghai, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Chi- nese press dispatches said today a Japanese plot had been uncovered to establish an independent North China Republic as a sister state to Manchukuo.

The dispatches said the Japanese were organizing a separatist move- ment in the vicinity of Peiping and Tientsin.

"The purpose of the plot is not only to detach North China from the Chinese Republic but also to divert world attention from Japane- se activities in Manchuria," said one dispatch.

The Chinese reports were that the Japanese planned to inaugu- rate the movement by organizing a rebellion of bandits and political malcontents, using Peiping and Tientsin as bases.

Young Democrats have played an important part in the political life of the State and nation and the or- ganization here was expected to do much toward crystallizing sentiment for the party in the forthcoming election.

The coping of Congressman War- ren was anticipated with interest. It will be his second visit to the county during the last two weeks. He recently told members of the Rotary Club about the operation of Con- gress, and warned against influences seeking to put all the power in the White House.

appearance of a sweetheart of his past, the elusive Dorothy Millette.

Authorities who had pinned much on a sealed safety deposit box found when they opened it yesterday, hardly more than two simple papers bequeathing annuities to Miss Millette, and cash gifts to relatives and friends.

They failed to find a recently ex- ecuted will in which the 42-year- old film executive presumably made his widow the blonde screen beau- ty, Jean Harlow, his chief bene- ficiary. Miss Irene Harrison, for six years secretary to Bern, said she might have been "mistaken in where the document was placed."

Dr. Edward B. Jones, personal physician to the film director, ar- riving from a hurried trip to Hon- olulu, repeated the generally accept- ed theory Bern was subject to "fits of depression" and probably ended his life because of a "melancholia" which induced a "suicide mania."

Meanwhile no trace had been found of Miss Millette, who dis- appeared from a San Francisco to Sacramento steamer after Bern's body was found in his Beverly Hills home on the morning of Sept. 5.

Divorce Epidemic Prevalent Among Federal Workers

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Warnings of an impending divorce epidemic among couples working for the federal government were given today at national woman's party headquarters.

If the expected divorce outbreak occurs, the feminists will blame it on the economy act.

Miss Roth Taunton, secretary in charge, said fifteen men and a score of women had come there, declar- ing their intentions to file for divorce, since the Saturday ruling of the Civil Service Commission that maintenance of separate homes by husband and wife, both in the fed- eral employ, would be regarded as an attempt to evade the "husband or wife" section of the economy act.

That section rules that in any reduction of government forces, the first to be dropped shall be men or women whose husbands or wives are also on the federal payroll. "There seems to be nothing left but actual divorce for these people, many of whom are facing loss of their homes or having to take their children out of school. If either husband or wife loses a paying position," said Miss Taunton, "I know of one such divorce action that has been actually filed, and I think many more will follow."

Consumption Of Cotton Picks Up

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Cotton consumed during August was reported today by the Census Bu- reau to have totaled 402,601 bales of lint and 47,620 of linters, com- pared with 278,656 lint and 37,210 linters in July this year and 425,030 and 61,807 in August last year.

Cotton on hand Aug. 31, was held as follows: In consuming establishments 1,909,421 bales of lint and 282,747 of linters, compared with 1,218,863 and 301,869 on July 31 this year and 840,783 and 230,100 on Aug. 31 last year.

In public storage and at com- presses 6,547,563 bales of lint and 56,276 of linters, compared with 6,703,453 and 53,082 on July 31 this year and 4,426,399 and 42,285 Aug. 31 last year.

Imports for August totaled 7,223 bales compared with 8,264 in July this year and 7,236 in August last year.

Exports for August totaled 452,154 bales of lint and 10,606 linters compared with 49,476 and 9,169 in July this year and 211,030 and 5,244 in August last year.

New York—Europe is "wonderful," but Vivian Graham, 14-year-old granddaughter of Mayor Anton Cer- mak of Chicago, could hardly wait to get back. Arriving with the may- or, she indicated her first wish was for a "good American ice cream soda."

ABOUT TOWN

Nothing Venture

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

SYNOPSIS: Nan, trying to save Jervis from an unseen danger which she senses, jumps ahead of her husband to prevent his crossing the bridge over the deep tidal gully.

Chapter 21 DANGEROUS TEA PARTY At lunch Jervis made the sort of polite conversation he would have to a guest, and immediately after turned to her.

Nan took a book to a seat on the shady side of the lawn, but she did not read. The book lay on her lap, while her thoughts moved restlessly about the broken bridge.

She opened her book at random and began to read. The words passed over her mind like water passing over stone; they felt no mark.

"Well—" he said. "I've had the men down at the bridge."

"The wood was rotten. The spray from the fall had rotted it. As a matter of fact, Benham—that's the carpenter—reminded me that I had spoken to him about having it overhauled, but of course I didn't think there was any particular urgency."

"Nan looked down at Bran and stroked his head. She did not speak. She had a picture in her mind of a lightning flash, and of Robert Leonard against a black background of trees."

"Benham made a thorough examination of the broken timbers. I think you suggested that they had been tampered with by Leonard."

"Then I think you ought to withdraw that suggestion. If the timbers have been partly sawn through the marks of the saw would show. There aren't any marks."

"Nan did not speak. She gave him a steady look, and then went back to stroking Bran."

"You made what amounted to an accusation."

"Yes," said Nan. He struck the back of the seat with his hand.

"After Benham's report?" Nan flung up her head.

"That's nonsense. The bridge fell because it was rotten, and I'd put off having it seen to. As a matter of fact it was Leonard who directed my attention to it not a week ago—Benham reminded me. I don't like Leonard—he's not a man I've ever cared about, but he's a family connection, and I think you ought to take heed what you said."

"This is the third time he's tried to kill you," she said.

She saw his face darken and then change. He was looking past her, and she turned involuntarily. Janet Tetterley and Rosamund Carew were coming across the lawn.

Nan braced herself. She felt taken unawares and defenceless, but she called on her courage, and it rose.

Alfred brought chairs, and presently Monk entered upon the imposing stajual of tea.

Janet Tetterley, a ginger-haired woman with pale eyes and magenta lips painted on crooked, shook hands without looking at Nan, and began at once to talk to Jervis about people Nan did not know by name.

Pogo was broke and was going to have a try for the Winkledon girl, but it wasn't likely she'd look at him, because Shorter was in the running too, and naturally he'd have them to become crippled.

Rescue of the "Flying Hutchinsons" on the coast of Greenland was received with profound gratitude throughout the nation.

The daring of this man and wife and two children captured the imagination of the public at the beginning and when it was reported they had been killed in ice floes along the Greenland coast, sorrow filled every household.

With their plane practically wrecked by the descent, it is impossible to say what the family will do about continuing the flight, but that they will do their best to complete their journey is not to be doubted.

Jervis preferring Pogo's chances, they became involved in argument until Janet Tetterley produced a red herring in the shape of an extraordinary rumor about somebody named Bonzo and his latest conquest.

Nan poured out tea. If it had not been for Jervis, she would not have minded.

It would have amused her to watch Janet Tetterley, who was so thin that each of her restless movements threatened to break something.

Having achieved a miraculous slenderness by the complete sacrifice of health, color and bloom, she was inordinately pleased with the result.

At intervals of ten minutes, or so she opened a vanity case, and applied powder to her bony features, and another touch of menta to her thin lips.

She talked without ceasing, and had something faintly unpleasant to say about everyone she mentioned. She appeared to amuse Jervis.

Rosamund sat, for the most part, lighting one cigarette from another and talking little. Once when Nan looked up she found herself meeting Rosamund's eyes.

Behind their wonderful dark blue a definitely hostile something met and then instantly evaded her. Nan felt a little shaken; she did not expect Rosamund to do like her.

An armed neutrality was the best that could be hoped for between them.

The two did not make a long visit. As they got up to go, Tetterley made a restless movement towards Nan.

"Oh, by the way, Basher told me to be sure to ask you about your people."

Nan gazed at her. She did not repeat the word Basher, but she contrived to produce the impression or having done so.

Tetterley jerked her emaciated shoulders.

"Basher's my husband. He's got it into his head that you may be related to some Forsyths he used to know. I told him it was most improbable, but he said to ask. I believe he was in love with one of them. They used to live at a place in Connecticut, and one of the sons went off digging up Old Testament places in Chaldea. Basher says he was quite well-known in his own line."

"Nigel Forsyth," said Jervis. Tetterley nodded.

"That's it. He wrote books about it. I don't read them myself, but Basher gloats over them, and he particularly said I was to find out if you were related to these Connecticut Forsyths."

Nan's color rose.

"Yes, I am." "Not really!" Her tone made this an impertinence.

"Nigel Forsyth was my father." Tetterley knocked the ash off her cigarette and said: "Basher will be thrilled."

After which she turned with one of her abrupt movements and declared that they ought to have gone ten minutes ago.

Neither she nor Rosamund took any leave of Nan, who was left uncertain of whether to cross the lawn with them or to remain where she was.

She made a tentative movement to follow them, but they were already some distance away; she would have had to run to catch them, up. No one of the three looked round. She hesitated, stood looking after them for a moment, and then returned to the tea-table with growing certainty that she had done the wrong thing.

A few minutes later, she got up and walked to the house, her cheeks burning and her courage very low.

She met Jervis in the hall, and he looked at her with a cold anger.

"Why didn't you come to see them off?" "You went without me."

"You should have come too." She said, with a simplicity that checked him. "I am sorry. You went off so quickly at the end, and I thought it would look foolish if I ran after you."

He passed on without another word, and she did not see him till dinner.

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT

We must all come together in unity and elect this Democratic nominee that is available; and has all legal adaptation to become an honorable president of the United States of America. We can be sincere and rightfully elect the Governor in which we never had a better opportunity as he is devoting his time to run for the entire nation's interest.

Citizens throughout the land must be and be active now, as well as the day of election so as to give the Governor the office which is due him. We believe that every reader of this newspaper will contemplate and agree with us upon these facts to measure.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened very steady, 18 to 21 points higher in response to higher Liverpool cables and forecast of rains in eastern and central cotton belt.

Cotton continued active after the opening and throughout the first hour prices held most of the early gains. The South was a fairly active seller which served to hold the market within narrow limits, but there was some good buying by the trade and for foreign account as well as by Wall Street.

The weather map showed heavy rains along the Atlantic and East Gulf Coast with light rains in the interior of the Eastern and portions of the Central belts which contributed to the firmness. Reports from the South said that the spot basis was very firm and that cotton was hard to buy in the interior, although the actual spot demand was not active.

Sentiment was still somewhat divided and buyers were inclined to be cautious, although the consensus was that the market's technical position was distinctly stronger. December advanced to 7.74 and at the end of the first hour the market was 20 to 23 points net higher. Liverpool cables that the market there advanced on covering and Bombay buying with a better cloth demand from India.

Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Wheat prices dropped abruptly in the late dealings today, tumbling about 3 cents a bushel from an earlier top level.

Broadening of commission house selling revealed that the market was without any aggressive support and forced many stop loss orders into execution. In various quarters, some hesitancy as to wheat purchasing was ascribed to uncertainty regarding an address scheduled for today by Gov. Roosevelt in which he was expected to touch on the agricultural situation.

Wheat closed unstead 17-8 to 21.4 under yesterday's finish; corn 1-2 to 1 down; oats unchanged to 1-8 to 1-4 off and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Table with columns: High, Low, Close for various grain contracts.

Stock Market

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The stock market regained its poise today after the convulsions of the past two sessions but bulls appeared chastened, and showed little inclination to resume their campaign.

The market crept up 1 to more than 20 points, presumably reflecting short covering, during the morning, but slid back after midday, losing most of its gain. The list hardened again, however, as it came close to yesterday's closing prices. Trading was in less than half the volume of yesterday.

The mid-week electric power and steel production reports continued mildly favorable, but did not indicate sufficient change to fire the market with any fresh bullish enthusiasm. Usually well-informed brokerage quarters reported that the market had attracted support of an excellent quality around the low levels of the reaction of the past two sessions, but there was a notable tendency among the trading elements to see whether the support levels established would be maintained. The list had lost about a third of its extreme rise from July to September, and could not break away much farther without exceeding the proportions of a mere technical or secondary reaction.

POLITICAL LEADERS SCAN ELECTION RETURNS FROM EIGHT STATES OF UNION

The gubernatorial primary in Michigan gave Governor Wilbur Brucker an increasing margin in the Republican race and William A. Comstock in the Democratic. Michael J. Hart, the State's only Democratic representative in Congress, was renounced without opposition.

Vermont Republicans again named Stanley C. Wilson for the governor's chair and Ernest W. Gibson for Congress. Gibson favored re-submission of the prohibition question against a repealist opponent.

Across the line in New Hampshire Democrats selected Fred H. Brown to oppose Senator Moses in November. Representative William N. Rogers, a Democrat, was renominated and will be opposed by William P. Straw, Republican.

Today in Georgia, Representative Charles P. Crisp, legislative veteran, sought the Democratic senatorial nomination. He was opposed by the youthful Governor Richard B. Russell. Senator Walter F. George was unopposed for re-nomination in this State where the Democratic nomination usually means election.

Ten Georgia congressional seats also were at stake. Half a dozen contestants sought the gubernatorial nomination. A regional primary in Mississippi found Representative Robert S. Hall leading W. M. Colmer for the Democratic congressional nomination in a run-off contest.

HIGHLIGHTS OF ROOSEVELT SPEECH AT TOPEKA, KAS.

"The correction x x x means finding a cure for the condition that compels the farmer to trade in 1932 two wagon loads for the things which in 1914 he traded one wagon load."

"The present administration, and the two previous... destroyed the foreign markets for our exportable farm surplus beginning with the Fordney-McCumber tariff and ending with the Grundy tariff."

"We must have... national planning in agricultural... first, I would reorganize the United States Department of Agriculture, looking toward the administrative machinery needed to build a program of national planning."

"I favor a definite policy looking to the planned use of the land."

"I propose to exert... such influences as I can in favor of a national movement to reorganize local government in the direction of eliminating some of the tax burden which now bears so heavily on the farms."

"There is the necessity of the refinancing of farm mortgages in order to relieve the burden of excessive interest charges and the grim threat of foreclosure."

"I seek to give that portion of the crop consumed in the United States a benefit equivalent to a tariff sufficient to give you farmers adequate price."

MOON ECLIPSE EXPECTED TO HALT PARACHUTE LEAP

He decided that it would be better to have the plane land at Clamping, a military airport nine miles southeast of Rome, because its lighting facilities are better than those of the larger Littorio.

HOLD YOUTH IN ARSON CASE

(Continued from Page One) jail at Marshall, but Dean N. Carr of the college said he was to be submitted to health authorities for examination and not be subjected to criminal prosecution.

All of the three fires which Randall confessed he started, Carr said, were discovered and extinguished before doing any material damage.

Carr said the youth came from the college from Walnut high school with an enviable record for diligence in his classes and good habits and said he believed the acts were committed during a period of nervous disorder.

He said Randall wept as he confessed the acts, and could give no reason for them except that he had been "worrying a lot." Carr said Randall's parents were unable to throw any light on the youth's strange actions.

The first arson attempt came on Sunday night, when students found a pile of papers burning in the coal bin at Melrose dormitory. It was promptly extinguished and no damage was done. Then Tuesday morning trash was plugged into an unfinished place in the wall of Brown dormitory and ignited, but this blaze was also discovered immediately and extinguished.

The situation was brought to a climax a few hours later when Carr and Alexis Vinckuroff, a monitor, were investigating the earlier blaze. Passing Randall's room, they felt the wall hot and entering, found papers had been shoved through broken plastering into the hollow wall and set fire.

This time also the blaze was quickly extinguished with the aid of the Mars Hill fire truck.

Randall, confronted by Carr and Vinckuroff, readily admitted he set the blazes, and expressed great contrition, Carr said.

Almost immediately we picked up the SOS from the plane, the City of Richmond. The signals gave us the plane's position as about 25 miles off the coast. I gave orders to steam there immediately under full pressure. Shortly after 6 p. m. we reached the spot but could find no trace of the plane.

We continued our search after dark but the icebergs made night navigation difficult and we were compelled to steam at "dead slow." We sent up rockets at intervals but received no reply.

Shortly after nightfall Monday night we sighted a flare ahead. I again ordered full speed ahead and we kept right on, working our searchlight continually.

We entered Ikersauk Fjord, south of Angmagssalik at 1 a. m., and noticed that the flares were coming from the lower end of the fjord. We sent out light signals in Morse code which were answered by the Hutchinsons. The mate landed and talked with Hutchinson, who told him everybody was well.

At 2:15 the boat returned to the trawler and the mate said Hutchinson and himself had decided the swell was too heavy to permit an embarkation attempt during the darkness. The airplane, he said, was a total wreck.

At 7 a. m., soon after dawn, we sent out the boat again and began bringing the Hutchinsons and their crew aboard. It took three hours. We then proceeded to Finbu where we put them ashore at 3 p. m. They all seemed to have stood up well under the exposure.

One of the features of the circus this year is the stupendous production known as "Patriotic America." It is a spectacle in keeping with the national-wide observance of the bi-centennial celebration of the birth of Washington and has all the life and color that goes with the life of early America.

In addition, there will be aerialists, dancing horses, acrobats, wire walking elephants, clowns galore, several bands including the Ira Hynes military musical organization.

The circus provides three rings of elaborate entertainment, including many new features never presented here before.

(Continued from Page One) circles were widely scattered, all of them rural boxes in more or less isolated sections. They could not possibly alter the standing of the candidates.

The Democratic nomination in this state is equivalent to election, which means that Senator Smith will have the opportunity to add six more years to his 24-year record in the Senate. The late Ben Tillman served 23 years for the former record.

J. Frank Flowers, who said he was attorney for Communist electoral candidates, obtained from Judge A. M. Stack, in Forsyth Superior court yesterday, an order directing the board to show cause why it should not be required to place the Communist ticket on the ballot.

By agreement, the hearing was set for Wake county Superior court on Friday. Judge Stack had previously made the order returnable Sept. 24. Attorney General Dennis Brummit was designated to represent the board.

Representatives of the Socialist party, saying they would not associate themselves with the Communists in the legal proceedings, obtained from the board an eight day extension of time for the filing of petitions with 10,000 signatures in behalf of their party's ticket.

Petitions have been circulated in various parts of the state recently. The board was informed, however, that the necessary number of signatures had not been obtained. The period for filing was extended to September 20.

SPEED RELIEF REPORTS HERE

(Continued from page one) be returned to Mr. Futrell as early as possible. Speed in compilation of the reports is necessary because government relief funds will not be available until the complete consolidated state report is in the hands of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Heads of community relief organizations are holding meetings at this time in an attempt to determine all possible information concerning relief operations and these will be jotted down on the questionnaire and returned to the Welfare Department here which will send them on to Raleigh to be placed with the state report.

A group meeting was held at the courthouse last night and conditions throughout the county were given consideration. K. T. Futrell, who has more knowledge about relief needs than any man in the county, led the discussions. A similar meeting will be held Friday night at which time reports from the various townships will be considered.

Mr. Futrell has impressed upon the agencies the importance of speeding up their reports and expressed hope that all would be in his hands by Friday night.

London—It seems the "okay" folks outnumber the "rather, old dear" people Lloyd James, phonetics expert, says more people talk American English than British English in the world today. He foresees radical changes in the language, making it "a strange compromise between future British English and future American English."
