BIG FIGHT IS IN PROSPECT

Considerable Opposition to Election of Walter Waters, Former Commander, Develops on Convention Floors; Supporters of Waters Predict Harmony Will Follow Fight at Convention

Uniontown, Pa., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Bonus marchers, who were forced from the National Capital sometime ago, prepared today to select new officers and wind up their first national convention.

It was predicted that the fight for the post of National Commander would consume the most of the day, and supporters of former Commander Walter Waters, proposed for re-election, insisted that harmony would follow the fight on convention floors to matter what the outcome.

Another fight on Waters, started at the coming of the convention, was again threatened today. The Waters group pointed out that they had not sent the convention notice that he would accept if elected.

AFRICAN HOGS THRIVE WELL IN GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS

Robinsville, N. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—When G. G. Moore, of Detroit, leased several hundred acres of land here in 1910 to propagate African hogs, bears, elk, buffalo and mule-eared deer, he little dreamed of the result.

Since that time all his game has died or drifted away, except the elk and hogs—mostly hogs. The African swine, imported at much expense, multiplied so fast; friends were called in to hunt them, and parties from several years back up to the present have been unable to make a net decrease in the number of the animals.

LEAF PRICES STRONG HERE

Half Million Pounds of Tobacco Offered Here in Spite of the Heavy Rainfall.

Sales almost as large as yesterday were reported on the Greenville tobacco market today in spite of the heavy rainfall last night and today. Had it not been for the precipitation it was believed one of the largest sales of the season would have been recorded here.

The bulk of tobacco offered on the warehouse floors today was brought in late yesterday afternoon and last night before the heavy rain which retarded the handling of the leaf and prevented later pilgrimages to the city.

The official report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales, indicated the market sold 581,132 pounds of tobacco yesterday for $59,409.41 at a general average of $10.17 per hundred pounds. Prices were higher today on all grades, and especially the superior brands which continued in great demand.

NEW TRIAL IN MOYE CASE

The city of Greenville was granted a new trial by State Supreme Court yesterday in the suit brought by Mrs. Lucy Moye, who was awarded damages for $1,250 by a jury in the spring term of Superior Court here this year.

The suit was the outgrowth of a street run through a piece of Mrs. Moye's property on Dickstein Avenue. She claimed the street damaged the property and asked that she be paid for it.

The city contended the improvement effected by the street were sufficient to offset any damages which Mrs. Moye may have suffered and declined to pay.

When the verdict was rendered by the jury J. G. Lanier, representing the city, filed notice of appeal to the higher court. The action of the higher court was favored with interest by city officials here today in view of the considerable amount of attention attracted by the case.

TREE GROVES ARE UPROOTED

Striking on the Dock Thorne Farm: Seven Miles West of Farmville, Storm Wrecks Virtually Everything in its Mile and Half Path; Many Tobacco Barns and Out-houses Destroyed; No Loss of Life Reported.

A cyclone which devastated everything in its path of 1 1/2 miles and one hundred yards wide spared human lives as it swept over a farming community seven miles west of Farmville early today.

The storm struck the Dock Thorne, Smith and Fields farms, about seven miles west of Farmville about midnight. Dwellings, barns and pack-houses, containing a considerable quantity of cured tobacco were totally or partially demolished, and a large oak and elm grove about the farm house was uprooted. The main road leading to the section was completely blocked by debris, making transportation hazardous.

Stripping down on the Thorne farm, the wind tore away two pack-houses, a tobacco barn and feed barn. The latter was a two-story structure of the town of Farmville.

The dwelling of Mrs. Ray Smith and that of her sister, Mrs. Zeb Smith, who lived across the road, were badly damaged. The former had a mule and cow killed, and all other barns of the latter were destroyed.

The home of Gordon Fields and other buildings on his farm were severely damaged. Rodin Fields, of the Farmville police department, lost all tobacco barns on his farm, as well as a pack house. A tenant house was also partly wrecked.

AIRPORT IS CENTER FOR INCREASED ACTIVITY

Asheville, Oct. 6.—A growing traffic of visiting planes and short connecting-line passenger flights, at the Asheville-Hendersonville airport during the past six months has been accompanied by great improvement in facilities and services offered by the airport. Nearly 100 visiting planes landed at the port during a six-months period ending October first.

DINK JAMES SPEAKS TO CLUB WOMEN

The End of the Century Club held their first meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon at Sheppard Memorial Library.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. J. L. Fleming. The new books were distributed and plans completed for the year's work.

As the political and economical situation seems to be uppermost in the minds of the people today, the club invited all sister clubs of the city to meet with them and hear the issues ably presented and discussed by Dink James.

Before presenting Mr. James to the audience, the president introduced Miss Bessie Brown, who sang two numbers, much to the delight of the audience. Then followed Mr. James, who began his address by reviewing the principles that Thomas Jefferson gave to the nation. Like a light "set upon a hill," undimmed, those principles point the way to progress.

He emphasized our purpose of government as a most sacred duty to do equal and impartial justice to all its citizens.

Mr. James also told of the origin of the two parties, this was particularly interesting to the women, especially when the Democratic party was mentioned, as we know that a Democratic President, Woodrow Wilson, broke all precedents to appear before the Senate to plead for the passage of the Woman Suffrage Amendment, and followed that action by urging governors of states to call special legislative sessions to ratify it after its passage by Congress.

We also know that the Democratic party is responsible, to a conspicuous degree, for the modern development that has given women increasing recognition in commanding positions in government. This party has also taken the lead in placing women in state, county and city positions all over the country and by doing this has simply applied the basic Jeffersonian principle, which is equal rights to all the human family.

At the close of this enlightening talk and which everyone present thoroughly enjoyed, Mrs. Knott Proctor sang two favorite numbers.—Reported.

THE DRENCHED SHOP

By Mary Graham Bonner

It indeed was fortunate that the sun came out, for the peals of water were filled to overflowing, the papers and rags spread over everything were soaked, and even the Ducks and Toads looked as though they had stood all the water they could.

The Ducks began to shake the water out of their wings, while Rip shook himself so hard that everyone shouted:

"We've had all the water we want, quack, quack. Do stop!"

But none of them really minded, for they all knew how they had kept Will Nilly from his work and had made him do things for them. He had not had the time to mend his leaky roof.

The sun was shining brightly now and they all helped take off the wet papers and rags, and dry off the tools.

"Quack, quack," the Ducks said before they had finished the work they had started doing, "we must be off now. We must see that the pond isn't full of overflowing." They went waddling off.

"I'll have to go and change my wet things," Flotilla Botilla said. She really was shivering dreadfully.

"Oh, yes," Willy Nilly urged, "please rush home and change at once. Then take a good hot bath and a good rub so you won't catch cold."

"I feel miserable that all my friends have gotten soaked for my sake," Willy Nilly told Rip. "The Ducks and Toads could stand it, but it was almost too much for Flotilla Botilla."

"She'll be all right," said Rip as he went to take a nap in the sunshine, while Willy Nilly put on a dry pair of overalls and put everything to rights.

DREDGING IS NEW TRADE OF FORMER MUMAN FLY

Columbus, O., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Thomas Yeager is never satisfied with an "in between" existence.

Formerly he was known as the "human fly." Among his exploits was the scaling of the Woolworth Building in New York. Down on the ground now, he is foreman with the city water division and is engaged in dredging out the Scioto River.

Yeager says he gets as much of a thrill from digging up lost automobiles, guns, handbags and other articles from the bottom of the river as he did in climbing the world's tallest buildings.

DECLARE WAR ON N. C. RATS

State-wide Campaign to be Pushed Thru Farmers in all Parts of State.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—A war on rats, conducted on a State-wide basis through farmers, has been declared for North Carolina.

With a very short corn crop this season the war on the rodent will have as its major objective the preservation of as much of the corn as possible. Reports show that annually thousands of bushels of corn produced in North Carolina are destroyed by rats.

A. E. Oman, rodent control specialist attached to N. C. State College by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, will direct the extermination campaign, to be launched November 17 for the eastern half of the State and December 10 for the western half.

The new canned bait prepared under the direction of the Agriculture Department will be used in the war on the rodents and Oman will seek to secure as wide distribution of the poison as possible.

County agents in fifty counties will take part in the campaign. The agents will ask the farmers to place the bait on their places to kill rats. Sample poisonings will be made in various sections and then the canned bait will be used extensively. Each half-can of the bait will slay fifty or more of the vermin, Oman said, and there are three of the half-pound cans of bait in each standard farm package.

The bait is red squill mixed in the ratio of 1 to 16 with meat, fish and cereals. The material is relatively harmless to domestic animals, but is toxic to rodents. It is show eating, which means that rats eating it can leave the premises before dying and also that all rats will get a portion of it before the alarm spreads, Oman said.

"This is a war against filth and waste," the Federal expert said. "We want to start the practice of cleanliness, which is equal rights to all the human family."

At the close of this enlightening talk and which everyone present thoroughly enjoyed, Mrs. Knott Proctor sang two favorite numbers.—Reported.

PUSH WORK ON STATE PARK

New Land and Highway Mark Progress of Development in Western Carolina

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 6.—New tracts of land, which have been recently acquired for the area, and new highways for tourist travel now being planned and survey into the region, mark the progress which is being made in the opening of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park to visitors and forecast the early completion of the acreage, which will be included under Federal supervision, in the new national playground.

The acquisition of 33,000 acres of virgin forest lands in one tract and the promise of early completion of negotiations for two other large tracts aggregating more than 50,000 acres, marks progress being made in the buying of lands for the North Carolina portion of park. The tract recently acquired was that of the Suncrest Lumber Company, one of the most beautiful virgin timber regions in the mountains. The 20,000 acres in the Byrd estate and the 32,000 acres of the Ravenscroft Lumber Company, are the remaining two tracts to be acquired for the park in North Carolina.

Agitation for the creation of a National Park in Western North Carolina was begun in 1900. The campaign to raise funds for purchase of park lands in the Great Smoky Mountains was conducted in 1923 and 1928. State appropriations by North Carolina and Tennessee and a donation of $5,000,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation amassed in 1928 a total fund of $10,000,000 for the park. The completion of land purchases in North Carolina is now believed to be in sight with negotiations being speeded toward the acquiring of the last two tracts.

That's the reason for its amazing success. It's Nature's own way to health.

OUR WONDERFUL BODIES
Strange as it may seem, these wonderful bodies of ours consist of a very limited list of fundamental chemical elements. It is now known that only eleven minerals and five gases are needed by Nature in building the strongest man or the most beautiful woman.

OUR BODIES ARE ROBBED
All of these essential Minerals and gases are present in natural foods but improper cooking and an unbalanced diet rob us of these vital elements. The system becomes charged with acid, indigestion and Constipation follow. We become nervous and irritable; subject to headaches, fail to get the proper rest at night, become weak and listless and good health deserts us.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 6.—(AP)—George Walsh at last is getting what he has been seeking these past half dozen years—a chance to act again. His is one of the strangest stories in this town.

He hopes, modestly, that there are still fans who remember him, and there should be. As a star he had a big following. Big, athletic, roughly handsome, he was an idol of the boys and girls of ten years ago, the hero of many a harum-scarum, action-crammed comedy drama which piled up grosses for the producers and made George one of Hollywood's most famous.

Suddenly he toppled in the oddest way, just when ten years of climbing seemed to be bringing real reward.

The old Goldwyn Company (from which Samuel Goldwyn, its founder, had retired before these things happened), made ambitious plans to film "Ben-Hur." It searched high and low for an actor to play the lead, and one day George Walsh found himself with the part, bound with the troupe for Italy where the film was to be made.

It is movie history now that things went wrong on the trip and money ran short, while in Hollywood the Goldwyn Company, was acquired by Marcus Loew and a new company Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, emerged with ideas of its own about "Ben-Hur."

A new troupe was sent over to make the film. It was a great break for Ramon Novarro, but tough for George Walsh. He came back to Hollywood and there wasn't a job open to him.

Back to Screen

He tried to get a position directing, but failed. Then he turned to vaudeville. Now he's coming back to the screen in "Pier 13," with Joan Bennett.

Walsh's brother, Raoul, is directing. It was Raoul, older than he, who first suggested to George that he come to Hollywood after college.

The years have made little difference in George's appearance. His weight and measurements today, he says, are exactly what they were when he was a college athlete, for he keeps in training. Walsh says he still wants to be a director.

Mark Moss, a Texas ranchman, has caught 40,000 buzzards in the past ten years by means of a specially designed trap.

ABOUT TOWN

Speaker Garner thinks the sincerity of President Hoover should be doubted in the face of unfulfilled promises to the people made in past years.

The reference was made following the President's criticism of a recent address made by Governor Roosevelt on his tour of the west. Garner is following the line of argument decided upon by the Democratic party in its attack on the President and probably will not have much trouble convincing the people of the truth of his statements.

The head of the Republican party has failed miserably to live up to his promises offered so freely during the early days of his campaign, and now that he has gotten to that place where he must again appeal to the people for votes, he expects them to believe he will be capable of doing in the future what he failed to do in the past.

The President finds himself in one of the tightest places of his political career and must pay the full price for doing so much at the expense of the public.

The storm-torn areas of Porto Rico are faced by an epidemic of diseases at this time and relief agencies are doing something in their power to save it. Millions of dollars in property damage was suffered in sections of the island and this threatened toll of life may be further increased.

The high school football team will play its first conference game here Friday and lovers of the national pastime are urged to go out and support this attempt to give Greenville a brand of ball to be proud of.

Although the aggression didn't measure up to expectations last year, Coach Porter is of the opinion his team will be able to make a better showing this year and will wind up the season with a long string of victories to their credit.

The high school athletic organization has been handicapped by lack of funds in recent years. So severe was the shortage during last baseball season that clubs raised sufficient money to buy new uniforms for the players who appeared almost in rags.

This is a condition that would not prevail if the people attended the games as they should and it is hoped they will do so during the remainder of the season and show the boys they are with them.

The Board of Commissioners has extended the time for advertising 1931 delinquent taxes and people who have been wondering how they were going to make proper settlement the first of this month can breathe easier in the face of the month's extension.

The commissioners are making an effort to deal leniently as possible with the taxpayers. This fact is reflected in the constant extension of time made since the first of the year, and should inspire the people to pay as early as possible.

It is impossible for a city or county to operate long without settlement of taxes, and hard as times have been in past months, those behind with payments ought to make an effort to settle as quickly as they can.

Every county in the state is hard hit by lack of money, and this condition will continue until financial conditions improve and the taxpayers are able to settle with their governments.

An "er month of grace will mean the paying out of hundreds of thou-

Nothing Venture

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

SYNOPSIS: Nan Weare, investigating with Ferdinand Francis the disappearance of Jervis Weare, her husband, again runs against a stone wall. She has learned only that Rosamund Carew and Robert Leonard, both of whom would gain by Jervis' death, each have good alibis. Fear for Jervis' life tortures Nan.

Chapter 40

Nan had braced herself against the possible ringing of the telephone bell so long she had lost account of time. It might have been half an hour, or three hours that she had been pacing unceasingly from end to end of the great drawing-room at Weare—she had even persuaded herself that if the telephone did ring, it must be Jervis on the other end.

A prolonged and acute strain such as Nan was undergoing has the effect of etching out thoughts, fixing them as frost does a landscape sometimes, with an unnatural rigidity. The thoughts tended to separate from each other, and might bob up anywhere.

Nan had walked perhaps fifty times from the door to the table, from the table to the window, from the window to the table, and from the table back to the door, when she became aware of such an impression among her frozen thoughts. At first her awareness of it was vague and inattentive, but gradually her attention began to focus itself. It puzzled her, and her attention once focused, she felt a slight relief in having something definite to think about.

The impression was that of Mrs. Mellich looking at her with eyes like windows with the blinds pulled down. She had asked Mrs. Mellich whether she had seen or heard anything between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Mrs. Mellich had said no.

The very thorn of that dry "No, ma'am" beat at Nan's ears. She had asked Mrs. Mellich to find out whether the maids had seen or heard anything; and it was while Mrs. Mellich was out of the room that the impression had been made—a slammed door, eyes with the blinds drawn down—something to hide. Mrs. Mellich came back, and reported that nobody had noticed anything.

Between two and half-past seven Jervis had walked out of the house. No one had seen or heard him go—no one had seen anything—no one had heard anything. Then why had Mrs. Mellich slammed her door and pulled down her blinds? The impression that she had done so was clearer now than it had been at the time. The ice had set and defined it sharply.

Nan walked quickly to the heart and rang the bell. Then she faced toward the door and waited until Alfred appeared.

"Will you ask Mrs. Mellich to come and speak to me here, please." She would see Mrs. Mellich here in the hour-keeper's room, with its photograph enlargements of Mrs. Mellich's husband and Mrs. Mellich's ancestral and respectable parents with Mrs. Mellich's sweet-cream work-box and Mrs. Mellich's photograph album on a small rose-wood table, and a large illuminated text hanging over the mantelpiece. Nan had been made to feel an alien and an intruder.

The very china dogs, white porcelains with baskets in their mouths, had stood at her elbow from either end of the mantelpiece. The old-fashioned wall-clock had a disconcerting tick. Here she could meet Mrs. Mellich upon neutral ground. That was Jervis' room.

Alfred went away, and presently came back again. Mrs. Mellich had just stepped out.

"I would like to see her when she comes in."

Nan went back to her packing. At 6 o'clock the telephone bell rang with a startling loudness and set her heart thumping. She was by the door. She turned and looked at the receiver.

"What is it?" "Yes?"

"Look here, Nan, there's something I want to follow up. I'm leaving in a hired car. It's seven o'clock at all, but I feel bound to follow it up."

"What is it?" "It doesn't amount to much. There is a new garage the far side of Croyston. Well, the man says a little black car stopped to fill up at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was about because he was doing a job on his own car. He says there were two men in the car, and from the description one of them might be Jervis, but it's very vague.

"It was the other man who did the talking. He was the driver, and he'd red hair, so it oughtn't to be hard to trace him. He talked about going to New York, so I'm off looking for him. Don't you worry."

Nan felt dazed and weak. The receiver was heavy in her hand. She said:

"Jervis hasn't a small black car." "The car was the other man's—he was driving. They may have met by appointment, or Jervis might simply be getting a lift—or it mayn't have been Jervis at all. The garage man only said, 'a gentleman with black hair.' That's about all he no-tied—his first name isn't Sherlock."

Ferdinand rang off, and Nan began walking up and down again. She walked for a long while, and then sat down by the window and let time flow past her like a sluggish stream, so slow that thought it moved, the movement was imperceptible.

At seven the dressing-bell rang, and Alfred came in. He hovered for a moment by the door and then came nearer. Mrs. Mellich had missed her bus from Croyston—and would it be convenient for Mrs. Weare to see her after dinner?

Nan said, "Yes—it doesn't matter." and Alfred withdrew. When the dinner-bell rang, she realized that she had not changed. She went upstairs, washed her hands and came down again, to sit alone at the big table in the dining-room and take a spoonful from each dish that was offered to her.

New York, Oct. 6.—Considering the borough president's official count of the number of trees that dot the streets of Manhattan, it's easily seen we city slickers are far removed from the aboreal state.

There are, says Mr. Samuel Levy, 6,955 trees about all the thoroughfares of this borough. That doesn't include the number in public parks or on private property, of course. I can't give you any figures on how many you may find so situated. I know there are quite a few in Central Park and two in my backyard, yard.

But even if the park and private trees were included in our consideration, the total scarcely would afford accommodations for a race of tree dwellers on Manhattan Island. Not even for Manhattanites who can adapt themselves to two-by-four apartments and tenements.

By the census of 1930, there were 1,897,322 residents of this crowded of the five boroughs of New York. Roughly speaking, that means there is a street tree for every 355 people.

It's a difficult thing to get 355 people to lay on the line. One double seven Tammany could do it.

Why a mere 25 would be comfortable in most of the apartment buildings to be seen around Manhattan.

Movie Day

New York literally turns itself inside out each October 1.

Thousands of families are moving. Piles of furniture block the walks. Race vans block the streets. Traffic is tied up. Trampers are stranded. Movie day is no fun for anybody.

Just about all leaves are arranged to expire on September 30. Despite the convention, car stickers allowed to expire for a month or two before October 1 without charge, most of the lights from one address to another are made on this day.

Some writers find a grievance in this wholesale October upheaval. It results in a great deal of painting and repainting at one period of the year. Keeping many men tied up. Their stretchers are left when necessary have little or no work to do. Furthermore, many vans stand idle throughout the rest of the year.

But not many real estate men are to be seen here during the other months. They did not think of the matter in the present general scheme. Adding prices in real estate can be kept up until after October 1 because no tenant wants to risk being left out in the cold by the shift.

This year that advance guard had been so prepared. The many tenants were treated during the slump for a high price range to be sustained.

Personality Puff

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, and Franklin D. Roosevelt have at least one thing in common: they both love the water, swim and so sailing.

Fred Stone was born in Lenoir, N. C., but he speaks of Wellmont, N. C., as his home town. His family moved there when Stone was just a pebb.

Martin Johnson, big game hunter, once was a ballhop in a Chicago hotel.

Herpo Marx, the clowning harpist, carries a spare sum of insurance on each of his fingers.

Edwin Markham, "the poet of the poor" didn't have electric lights in his Boston Island home until five years ago.

Florida's State bird is the mockingbird. The orange blossom is the state flower.

The most common family name of registered voters in Alaska is Johnson, with Smith a poor third.

The route of the ferry linking the two vertices of the Florida Overseas highway, the road which literally goes to sea over the Florida Keys, can be to be lighted by the federal government.

Talks to Parents

TRIPLE HOSTILITY

By Alice Judson Peale

Probably one of the most complicated of human relationships is that of a daughter to her mother. In the first place the girl baby loves her mother with that dependent love which all babies feel toward the author of their daily care and comfort.

But very soon, if there are brothers, the little girl without perhaps thinking of it at all senses that her mother prefers them to her and that, in general, they may hope for more responses from her than she.

She knows too, even if she is an only child, that daddy rates first with mother and that she can not hope to compete with him for her love. She then is jealous of her brothers and of her father and she is angry with her mother for preferring them.

Normally then the little girl turns to her father. Although he may show that he loves her dearly, it yet becomes painfully clear that first place in his affections also is not possible. Mother obviously is more important to daddy than she may hope to be.

Doubtly then does the girl child suffer disappointment through her mother. And mother still has something else to account for. Nearly every little girl wishes she had been born a boy. Obviously the fault that she is not must be her mother's.

The unaccountable difficulties which mothers often experience with their little girls at certain stages of development may well originate from one or all of these sources.

Patience, affection, fair treatment and sufficient opportunity to feel important all help to counteract the influence of these unconscious antagonisms in the girl child's relationship to her mother.

Conferences with constituents must be held in the presence of these employes or out in the corridor. There is little privacy and complaints frequently have been made that there is no place where a man can do constructive work.

In the future, each of the members of the House will have at least two rooms—one for his private use and the other for his clerical help. The two buildings will be connected by underground tunnels leading to the capital proper.

Another Advantage

But perhaps what the representative sees of most value in the addition of more space will be that from now on he will be able to shield himself from those who have no particular desire to see.

The office seeker, for instance—now he can open the door and come in upon the congressman without notice. There's no way of stopping him.

STATE READY FOR CLEMSON ON SATURDAY

Raleigh, Oct. 6.—The powerful running attack of State College which has swept the Wellpack to two victories this fall will receive its biggest and hardest test Saturday in the Southern Conference clash with Clemson College on Riddick Field here at 2:30 o'clock.

Coach Jess Neely will start a big end fast charging line against the "Pack"—one which will average 186 pounds per man—the heaviest line State has faced this year.

State's scoring drives against Appalachian and Richmond University were led chiefly by Ray Re, 210 pound fullback; Roscoe Roy, 145 pounds and Robert McAdams, 165 pound, all sophomores. Roy and McAdams are halfbacks. Working together with Don Wilson as quarterback, this combination will enter Saturday's game as a unit.

The speed is the fastest on the Tech squad. Neither the Mountaineers nor the Spiders were able to stop them. Roy has averaged six and one-half yards every time he has carried the ball this fall and leads Big Five scoring with three touchdowns. Roy is about the most elusive back seen here since Jack McDowell romped up and down Southern gridirons.

Shot into the backfield after the line market led the captain, Wilson, Roy, McAdams and have shown a more consistent line attack than any backfield combination assembled at State in years.

The Pack's starting backfield of McQuane, quarter; Bailey and Bohannon, halfs, and Cumiskey, fullback, finds the weak spots and are then replaced by the second set of backs. When the second set has worn itself out, the starting team goes back and thus far this season has picked up the running attack when the second outfit left it when removed from the game.

While possessing a strong line, the Tigers also have a well balanced backfield—one which can run, punt and pass. The Tigers plan to use Gordon "Mountain Goat" Lynn in most of its "in the open" plays.

He was one of the fastest dash men on Southern cinder tracks last year as well as a sophomore grid star.

early season injuries is solely a matter of personal opinion. E. R. Bradley's Burgoon King won the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, then went wrong; Samuel Riddle's Boatswain came along to take the Withers and Moton L. Schwartz's busto won the American Derby and rich Arlington Cl. assage.

Faireno Consistent In choosing Faireno, this column backs a horse from William Woodward's stable which stood training from the running of the Wood Memorial to end of the Belmont meet.

Although second to Gusto on the money winning list, Faireno defeated the Schwartz colt, a grandson of Man o' War in the Belmont Stakes, again in the Dwyer and took his measure for the last time in the Lawrence Realization. In between Faireno won the Hawthorne Handicap, the Saratoga Handicap and finished second in the Hawthorne Gold Cup, a race in which Gusto was far to the rear.

If any of the present crop of thoroughbreds stand out above their rivals, it is Top Flight, the trim little filly from young Whitney's stable which went through 1931 without tasting defeat.

Although unable to show her heels to colts of her age, the daughter of Dis Done has done everything asked of her in races limited to fillies of her age. She probably has run her last race of the year, but in two years she has won nearly $300,000—a new mark for fillies and mares.

Ladyman Right At Spa At Saratoga, Ladyman, a son of Pompey, sporting W. R. Cee's silks, appeared unbeatable, losing only one race and that to Happy Gal, the best of the two-year-old fillies. He piled up earnings of $101,135. Then came the $100,000 Belmont Futurity—a race in which Kerry Patch, quoted at 30 to 1, led the highly regarded Coe colt home.

Although defeated, if Ladyman had been retired at the end of the Belmont season he would have been declared the juvenile champion without much argument. But his owner chose to start him in the Eastern Shore Handicap at Havre de Grace, Maryland.

Caterwaul, a Whitney flash which dominated the picture early in the season, led the parade home with Ladyman and Kerry Patch far back. It probably will take the $40,000 Pimlico Futurity to decide the issue, but we still have a liking for the Coe representative.

He has worked in a coal mine for 58 years, without experiencing a disabling accident, and recently was declared the "safest man in the state."

His record is to be recognized by presentation of an honor certificate by the Joseph A. Holmes Safety Association.

Although he has worked in the mines virtually all his life, he expects to live to celebrate his golden wedding anniversary this fall.

EXPECT U.N.C. TO PULL UPSET AGAINST VOLS

Chapel Hill, Oct. 6.—The incomparable Bobby Dodd has predicted another undefeated season for Tennessee, but the prophecy even of Georgia Tech's coach and Tennessee's former All-American might never have been uttered so far as it affects the Carolina football squad which is revamping its backfields to run with a line that has already won its spurs while laying complete plans to give the Vols the battle of the year out at Knoxville Saturday.

The Tar Heels d'd that very thing last year. Tennessee's unbeaten Vols cruised Alabama, Vandy and New York University among other powerful foes last year, but barely beat Carolina 7-0 and there was a fumble involved then. And the year

Charlotte, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Woodrow Lovless, of Imman, S. C., successfully hitch-hiked a ride today but it costs him his life.

Shortly after Lovless was picked up an automobile driven by J. C. Bowling, of Shelby, the car collided with a truck on West 6th Street here and Lovless was fatally injured.

Officers who investigated said J. K. Ziegler, Gastonia, driver of the powerful truck, suddenly applied his brakes to avoid striking a Piedmont and Northern freight train and that the truck swerved into the middle of the road, striking Bowling's car. Neither Bowling nor King was seriously hurt.

The Campaign Puzzle

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecast

Massachusetts Vote in 1928

Smith 792,758; Hoover 775,566

Massachusetts' vote for Alfred E. Smith in 1928 was its first vote for a Democratic candidate since 1912, and ran counter to a Republicanism which had been almost unquestioned until recent years.

Smith and his views on prohibition appealed to large elements in the state and were credited with an important part in the result.

Democrats won their second United States senatorship in 1930 when Marcus A. Coolidge defeated William M. Butler, former national Republican committeeman by a vote of 651,939 to 539,226. In the same year Joseph B. Ely (D) who had the campaign support of Alfred E. Smith defeated Frank G. Allen (R) for governor 606,902 to 590,238.

Massachusetts' delegation to the Democratic national convention this year voted solidly for Smith to the end. Republican leaders have professed a belief that many Democratic votes, disaffected by the outcome, may swing to Hoover.

Prohibition has been a major issue in the current campaign. Economic recovery also has been widely debated.

Massachusetts has 17 electoral votes this year, instead of its former 18.

MURPHY WILL SPEAK HERE

weeks ago, but no date for the gathering was set at the time. It was at first thought Bob Reynolds, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate could be obtained as chief speaker, but since that time it was ascertained that Mr. Reynolds would be busy in some other section of the state and would not be able to be present.

The coming of Mr. Murphy was greeted enthusiastically by members of the party. He is considered one of the most forceful speakers of the state and has played an important part in many presidential campaigns in this state. He has been a prominent figure in the legislature for years and his effort to improve conditions in all parts of the commonwealth gave him a conspicuous place in affairs of government.

Although the speaking will be the main attraction, the committee on arrangements was planning for a "prosperity parade" to be staged on the principal streets of the city. The object of the parade is to attempt to sidetrack attention from the period of depression which has swept over the country under the Republican administration and to forecast what may be expected under Democratic rule.

Just where the rally will be held had not been determined today but efforts are being made to obtain a building with large seating capacity in order to take care of the several thousands of people expected to attend. Information concerning the rally will be given out from time to time by the committee and the public will be kept well informed as to what to expect.

FURSER CASE SET FOR TODAY

ington as expected, but was due for consideration today, it was said by witnesses returning to the city last night.

Furser was indicted by the grand jury the day before.

Delay in hearing the case was caused by consideration of a whiskey conspiracy case which occupied attention of the court practically all day, it was said, but was disposed of at a session last night.

Furser contends he was not responsible for the shortage and that it occurred in the usual dispatch of daily business. He was said to have offered to make the amount good but was immediately dismissed from service. The case had its inception about eight months ago, was partly dropped one time and then revived.

GIVES FACTS ON GERMANY

Spann believes would be unsuitable to the needs of the German people.

Dr. Spann feels that the economic results of the World War are partially to blame for the unrest in Germany but he also believes that the parties in Germany are not merely political but that they have become as religions to the people.

"This may be just as important as the Renaissance and Reformation... Great historic powers, yet shapeless, soon will take form and let us see what course the history of Germany, and with it the history of the west, is taking," he says.

Dr. Spann believes that civil war far from helping the situation, would have ruined Germany.

COUNTY COURTS ENDS

Barnes Sumrell when taken into custody. He was quickly subdued, however, and brought to Greenville to face a double charge instead of a single one.

Guy Langston, charged with abandonment, was given the choice of either supporting his family or going to the roads.

Convicted of possession of whiskey for sale, Richard Leary, colored, was fined $25 and cost.

William Baker was sent to the roads for four months on a charge of possessing liquor for sale.

Chesterfield Peyton, colored, who was charged with disturbing the peace of a school, was sentenced to the roads for sixty days.

Idaho's Vote in 1928

Hoover 97,322; Smith 52,926

Idaho has cast its electoral votes for the Republican presidential candidate five times in the last 10 elections. Twice its votes went to Bryan and twice to Wilson. In 1892 its votes went to the People's party candidate.

In the state elections of 1930 C. Ben Ross (D) was elected over John McMurray (R) by a vote of 73,896 to 58,002. He was the state's first Democratic governor in a decade, but the significance of the result was clouded by the fact that McMurray's nomination in party convention caused wide dissent, friends of Byron Diefenbach, claiming he was the party's real choice.

In the same year Idaho re-elected Senator William E. Borah (R) by a vote of 94,938 to 36,162 for Joseph M. Tyler (D) and re-elected its two Republican representatives by majorities of 16,000 and 19,000 respectively.

Discussion of farm relief and banking programs of the two candidates apparently has overshadowed the prohibition issue in the current campaign.

Idaho has usually been considered strongly dry and Senator Borah announced early in the current campaign his refusal to support the Republican prohibition plank.

Idaho has four electoral votes.

Wisconsin's Vote in 1928

Hoover 544,205; Smith 450,259

Wisconsin generally is regarded as a "normally" Republican state, but since the days of the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette republicanism within the state has been divided between "progressive" or "LaFollette" Republicans and the "conservatives."

The state has not had a Democratic governor since 1931. In recent years Wisconsin has failed but twice to give its vote to Republican presidential candidates, voting for Woodrow Wilson in 1912 and for Senator LaFollette in 1924.

The LaFollette faction has been consistently at odds with Republican national administrations, and in 1928 gave its endorsement to Alfred E. Smith. Prohibition was a leading issue in the campaign of that year, the progressives favoring repeal.

Forecasts of Wisconsin's vote in the coming national election were complicated by the recent primaries, in which former Governor Walter J. Kohler, conservative, defeated Governor Philip F. LaFollette for renomination by a heavy majority.

Senator John J. Blaine, running on LaFollette ticket, was defeated by John B. Chapple, conservative.

Wisconsin has 12 electoral votes.

John Daniels, colored, was adjudged not guilty of abandonment.

Kenly Wilson, colored, charged with larceny, was given 60 days on the roads.

George Carr, colored, was found not guilty of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Charged with assault, Israel Perkins was fined $25 and cost.

Under Manning, colored, was given sixty days for assault.

GOV. MURRAY MAY QUIT IF LEGISLATURE 'BUCKS' HIM

to name legislators friendly to him. "There is no use wasting too many years if the Legislature is organized against me," he said in an address at Okmulgee.

His Measures Beaten

Murray started his spectacular fight when the Senate of the last Legislature defeated many of the measures on his tax program and amended others.

Calling a joint session, the governor angrily shouted he would "call the roll" against those who oppose him.

Before the first primary election this year he published in his weekly campaign newspaper a list of candidates for House and Senate, designating those he thought should be elected. Then he began a personal campaign which took him into virtually every county of the state before the second primary.

"I will have a majority of the House with me," he predicted after the run-off primary, "and I believe I have an edge in the Senate. Of course the general election may change things."

Predict "Independent" Senate

Political observers, however, have stressed the fact that half of the senators are holdover members and have voiced predictions that the Senate will be "independent."

After the second primary the governor launched an even more intensive campaign, asking selection of the Republican nominee in several districts where the Democratic candidate was admittedly anti-Murray.

Dissatisfied with the state income tax bill adopted by the last Legislature, Governor Murray has initiated a new measure providing for higher levies on corporations. Sufficiency of the petition has been attacked in a protest now pending before the State Supreme Court.

Should the bill not be submitted to voters at an election this autumn, the governor has indicated he will place it before the next Legislature and ask that it be passed without amendment.

"If they don't pass it without changing it, I'll submit it to the people of the state every six months until it is made law," he told an audience at Konawa, Okla.

CONTEST REPORTS MADE BY THREE MORE WORKERS

15, one week from this Saturday. While those making a return number only eleven, there are a lot more who have taken receipt books and whose names have appeared in the list of contestants from time to time, but who have not up to the present turned in any renewals or new subscriptions.

For the convenience of those who might be interested in joining the affair and helping The Reflector increase its circulation and thereby become eligible for one of the prizes or a commission, the purpose of the campaign is again stated along with the awards offered and the way the winners will be determined.

The Reflector is offering awards totaling in the neighborhood of $1,500 to ambitious men and women who enter their names and help the paper increase its circulation. Also by working and securing renewals from the already large list of present subscribers. The fall of the year seems to be the opportune time to stage a subscription drive, and in order to accomplish and secure the best results in the shortest possible time, The Reflector has decided on this contest method in which all the rewarded in proportion to the effort put forth. The best worker comes out first, the second highest second, and so on down the list with the non-winners paid for their efforts with a cash commission on the ### amount of work turned in.

Votes are being issued on each subscription from six months on up. The cost of the paper is $2.50 for six months, $5.00 for a year (this is at the rate of ten cents per week), $9.00 for two years, and $12.00 for three years.

The entry list will close on Saturday, October 15, and the first decrease in the number of votes given on subscriptions received will take place on that date also. So send in your name now if interested, or call around to the campaign office for the paper upstairs in The Reflector Building, Telephone No. 43.

WOMEN'S FRATERNITIES TO BEGIN RUSHING SEASON

Chapel Hill, Oct. 6.—Featured by teas, bridge parties and theater parties, the rushing season for the women's fraternities at the University of North Carolina will begin on October 10 and extend over a six-day period.

The season for active rushing has been preceded by a two weeks' period of silence between fraternally and non-fraternally girls, and will be followed by another period lasting from midnight Saturday, Oct. 15 to Monday, Oct. 17, on which day rushes will receive their bids.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady with cables offset by southern selling. December advanced from 6.99 to 7.14. The buying started by opening action of stock market, however, was not maintained. Prices ruled about 8 to 9 points at the end of the first half hour. Fluctuation was irregular after closing to 7.05 for December or within 6 points or yesterday. Prices held fairly steady.

Midway December sold around 7.08 and active months about six points net.

Stock Market

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The stock market tried to recover for a time today but renewed weakness in wheat and fresh selling in the afternoon caused it to fall off.

J. I. Case broke about 3 points in extension of loss of previous session and International Harvester 1 1/2 points.

Miscellaneous issues were pulled down from 1 to 2 points in active trading, notably in Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, American Can, American Telephone and DuPont. Stocks recovered somewhat in late dealing and closing was steady. Sales 2,000,000 shares.
