W. C. Braswell Is Given One To Two Year Term In Criminal Court Today

ASKS MERCY OF THE COURT

Former Cashier Hood System Bank Charged with Taking $7,650 Bank's Funds; Admits Guilt Following Finding True Bill by Grand Jury Thursday.

W. C. Braswell, former cashier of Hood System Industrial Bank of Greenville, was sentenced to not less than one nor more than two years in state's prison today for embezzling the bank's funds.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge W. C. Harris of Raleigh, in the criminal term of Superior court about the noon hour today after Braswell had pleaded guilty and thrown himself on the mercy of the court.

The shortage first believed to have been around $3,000 was said by the auditor who conducted a check-up of the bank to be $7,650.

The information was divulged at the time Braswell admitted his guilt and asked for leniency of the court.

Notification of the shortage was made by directors of the bank about two months ago. In a written statement they declared that discrepancy of $3,600 had been found in the accounts of the cashier and that he had been asked to resign.

Braswell declined to make any statement following his dismissal, but when he appeared before the court for trial he admitted his guilt and asked for mercy.

The true bill was returned by the grand jury Thursday, shortly before the former banker was arraigned for hearing.

In the formal statement to the public, directors of the bank said the institution was fully covered by insurance.

Braswell had been cashier of the institution for a number of years and had been associated with business interests of the city sometime prior to accepting the position with the institution.

He is a married man and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends he had been associated with in a business and social way ever since he came to Greenville many years ago.

PLAN LIBRARY MEETING HERE

Several Citizens to be Represented at gathering Here on November 9th.

Librarians, library trustees and members of the Citizens' Library Movement will attend a district meeting of the North Carolina Library Association to be held at the Sheppard Memorial Library here November 9. It was announced today.

Representatives from Elizabeth City, New Bern, Kinston, Goldsboro, Farmville and Tarboro, were expected to attend the session.

Mrs. Lillian Griggs, librarian of the Duke University Woman's College, and president of the State Association, and Miss Marjorie Beal, of Raleigh, secretary and director of the State Library Commission, will direct the discussions.

The address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor R. C. Flanagan. The session will be featured by a luncheon at the Woman's Club at which Mrs. Kemp Battle, of Rocky Mount, will be the principal speaker.

Dr. L. R. Meadows, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College, will speak during the afternoon session.

The session will open at 10:30 o'clock in the Sheppard Memorial Library and consume the major part of the day.

Egypt and Germany Swam Bremen, Germany, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The German nitrogen syndicate has contracted with the Egyptian government to exchange 50,000 tons of fertilizer, worth $1,250,000, for an equal value in cotton which will be sold by the syndicate to mills in this country.

HOOVER WILL SPEAK IN ILL.

President Draws Analogy Between Issues of Civil War Period and Today.

Aboard the Presidential Special En Route West, Nov. 4.—(AP)—In his latest appeal for support of the American people, President Hoover today in a speech prepared for delivery at Springfield where Abraham Lincoln is buried, drew what he called an analogy between issues in his campaign and those when the Civil War President was re-elected.

The speech was made public aboard the train as the President passed through Indiana and Illinois to make the speech at Springfield. The President said that when the country was in gloom and the Democrats were demanding a change in leadership, the nation declined to turn aside to untried policies and experimental leadership and re-elected Lincoln.

"The same alternatives are before the country today that lay before it in that momentous campaign nearly three-fourths of a century ago," the President said.

"The choice that the people made in 1860 was made on November 8," the President declared, "and the choice they will make in 1932 will be made on November 8."

"My fellow-citizens, can we doubt what that choice will be? The turn in the tide of civilization was made at Gettysburg, so the turn in the tide this time was made last winter. Just as the great battle at Gettysburg was required to save the Union in the same manner, we must continue to fight to recover prosperity and preserve the social and political principles for which Lincoln stood."

Gives Democratic Expenses Washington, Nov. 4.—Final preliminary reports of the Democratic National committee showed total campaign receipts of $1,427,118 and the total expenses of $1,261,412.

The report, filed by Frank Walker, treasurer, gave receipts between October 24 and November 2 as $361,464 and disbursements of $339,491.

Contributions during the period totaled $310,563. Other receipts included $45,000 borrowed and $14,711 from the sale of medallions.

Contributions from October 24 to Nov. 2 included $15,000 each from R. W. Morrison and W. H. Goodwin of New York, James W. Gerard of New York, former treasurer of the committee and one-time ambassador to Germany, gave $13,000.

RALLY HELD AT GRIFTON

Congressman Warren is Speaker; Thad Eure to Speak Tonight, Farmville.

Praising the splendid record of the Democratic party and condemning the Republicans for lack of attention to the interests of the general run of people, Congressman Lindsay C. Warren of Washington, spoke at a Democratic rally in the high school building at Grifton last night.

The congressman, who has been widely acclaimed for his knowledge of national affairs, spoke at length on state and national issues and asked his hearers to go to the polls next Tuesday and register their approval of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for President, who has promised the nation a "new deal" if elected.

TALK SCHOOL ISSUES HERE

Conference of Educators Plan to Make College Here Center of Activities.

There was a decided sentiment among the superintendents, principals and supervisors in attendance at the conference at East Carolina Teachers College to make the college a center for various activities of the schools in the eastern part of the State, not only for the officials and teachers, but for the pupils in the schools. The committee in charge of the program for next spring was authorized to make recommendations at the spring meeting.

Keen interest in the problems presented by President Wright was shown by the fact that the visitors were stimulated to ask other questions that the schools would like to have the college help solve. The question of exchange of practice teachers from the colleg with teachers (Continued on Page Six)

PEEPERS ARE SENT TO ROAD

Two Negro "Peeping Toms" Given Six Months Each in Superior Court Here.

Two "Peeping Toms" were given a hearing in the criminal term of Superior Court here yesterday and were sentenced to six months each on the roads by Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh, who is presiding over the court.

Charlie Jenkins and Melvin Lee, colored, were convicted on a charge of peeping through holes which they bored through the floor of the home of G. T. Tyson in the Beaver Dam community and were sent out to the roads to atone for the crime.

Court continued to delve away industriously in the scores of cases set for hearing during the term and succeeded in disposing of quite a number. The majority of them, however, were of a minor nature and required little time in completing.

Mistrial was ordered in the case of Joe Floyd, colored, charged with breaking into the home of Henry Mills in Black Jack, after the jury failed to agree. The case was continued on Page Three.

REVIVAL TO END TONIGHT

Large Crowds Attending Series of Services in Stokes Community.

Thursday night marked a high-water mark in point of interest and attendance at the revival services being conducted at the Stokes Baptist Church. Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, pastor, is preaching. A most helpful influence has gone forth through the services as the members of this congregation and their friends have met in fellowship and worship each evening. The glee club of the local school under the leadership of Miss Barnhill, rendered a special chorus last night. The presence and participation of these young people in the service was deeply appreciated.

Mr. Fleischmann spoke upon the question, "What does it mean to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?" The text which served as a basis for this discussion was Acts 16:31. "And they said, 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.'"

The thought of this statement of Paul and Silas, made to the Philippian jailer is repeated many times in the New Testament. It is of importance to us to know just what is meant by it. There appear to be many misconceptions of its content, therefore we turn to the Bible itself to discover just what it has to say on this matter, and to find its leading to a solution of the question. Three suggestions are to be found. First, believing is synonymous with receiving. John 1:12. To receive the Lord Jesus Christ into the life is to believe on Him. Second, believing is synonymous with trusting. Eph. 1:12-13. In this (Continued on Page Three)

Miss Louise Dixon Has Met Nation's Best Cooks

Preparations for the week's session of cooking classes in the Daily Reflector Cooking School, are practically complete. Two Local Workers Out Front In Paper Contest

With the close of The Daily Reflector subscription and prize campaign just about one week away, the standings at this date in the enterprise show Mrs. R. C. Abee and Miss Grace Geason, both of Greenville, out front in the eight weeks' contest and working hard to earn the leading award of $600.

The leaders at this date show a total vote cast of 450,000, while the three others who seem to be trailing have a slightly lesser number. Miss Lill Wilson follows the two above with 442,000, Mrs. Richard Williams has 430,600, and Miss Mary James Lipscomb has earned 423,000.

These totals are just the approximate standings taken roughly from the records at the campaign office and no attempt has been made to check and recheck the findings or compare the totals with the reserve vote coupons now in the hands of the various workers. The true standings and awarding of prizes will be left to the judges who will take over the ballot box at the close of the drive on November 12, count the votes and make the prize awards. SEVEN HURT IN SMASH-UP

Mule Killed as Auto Hits Car and Overturns Truck Trailer Near Bethel.

Seven persons were injured when an automobile crashed into a mule and cart near Bethel and then overturned a large truck trailer operated by the Lafayette Transfer Company between Norfolk and this section of the State.

The mule was so badly injured that he had to be killed a short time after the accident happened. Leo Brown and Pete Pierce, occupants of the car that caused all the trouble, were painfully injured in the crash, but officers had brought no charge against them up to the present time.

John Cox, Ed. Savage, Leslie Williams, Annie Corbett, and Garland Williams, occupants of the truck, were hurt when they were thrown from the truck by the impact of the car. John Cox and Annie Corbett were probably the most seriously injured. (Continued on Page Six)

PLAN RELIEF ACTIVITY HERE

Tentative Arrangements for Administering Federal Relief Funds Made.

A county-wide meeting was held at the Public Library Auditorium last night and principals of the various high schools and local work relief committees from the various townships were present for effecting a county-wide organization and explaining matters for our Federal assistance. Most all the townships were represented. Mr. Felix A. Grisette from Dr. Fred Morrison's office in Raleigh was present and answered many questions as to the handling of the unemployment and relief problem.

The main purpose of the meeting last night was to inform the various committees as to their responsibility in carrying out the plans for assistance given by the Federal Relief Fund. It was made clear that each community was expected to share its responsibility in making every effort possible to care for its destitute and unemployed people during the late fall and early spring. Each community is to make a complete census immediately of its destitute and unemployed people and send this list to the Welfare office. This is necessary in order to make plans to meet the needs of the various communities.

In the matter of work projects, it was emphasized that only work projects must be created as the needs of the various communities arise to take care of their families. Social history cards and other records for use in this work will be forwarded to the chairman of the local committees but as soon as they are received from Raleigh. Each community is asked to organize and select a committee with whom all matters coming from the various communities in the county may deal with the County Board of Welfare and the Welfare office.

Complete Jury in Lamb Trial

Hartford, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A jury was completed from a second venire today as Ben Lamb went on trial for his life under a charge of the murder of three persons.

Eleven men were questioned from today's venire of thirty and the twelve and thirteen jurors were chosen. From the two venires eighty-three men were questioned. Lamb is charged with the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ellis, who were shot from ambush near here July 30 and the later shooting of Linford Chappel.

FACES RETURN TO CHICAGO IN LARCENY CASE

Order for Arrest Of Chicago Utilities Executive in Connection with Collapse of His Concern Granted by Court of Appeals; Court Battle Over Question Now Pending.

Athens, Ga., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, former Chicago utility magnate, was arrested today at the request of American authorities. He was taken into custody by Athens police just after noon in compliance with an order of the Court of Appeals which held the application from Leland Morris, American Minister, for the extradition of Insull to Chicago to face charges of larceny in connection with the collapse of the giant Middle West utilities interests.

It was understood that the legal battle over the question would begin in a few days before the Court of Appeals.

HIGH POINT TO HAVE 'RALLY'

Georgia Governor to Speak at Gathering of Party Leaders Tonight.

Raleigh, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Seeking to make High Point the "high point" in a Democratic victory in North Carolina this year, Democratic party leaders focused their strength on Guilford County today as Republicans continued to battle for votes.

Governor Richard Russell, of Georgia, youngest chief executive in the country, arrived here this morning and after a breakfast at the executive mansion with Governor O. Max Gardner, the two left by motor for High Point.

Governor Gardner told newspapermen that High Point had never voted a majority for a Democratic Presidential candidate, but that this year "we have got it."

"This afternoon the Governor will speak at High Point at a ward rally and then tonight he will introduce Governor Russell at a meeting sponsored by Young Democrats of Guilford County.

Summon Venire for Lenoir Case in Pitt County

Two hundred and fifty men were being rounded up in Pitt County today to serve as a venire in the Herman Casey trial now holding attention at Kinston. After several futile attempts to get a jury, the court decided to come to Pitt County in an effort to obtain the desired number of men to hear the murder charge.

Judge E. H. Cranmer, of Southport, one of the most popular jurists in this section, is presiding over the Kinston court, and came over with court officials today to summon the venire.

Casey is charged with the slaying of J. H. Causey, wealthy lumberman of Suffolk, Va., and this is the second time he has been given a hearing. He was granted a new trial by the Supreme Court.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York, Oct. 31.—The familiar touch of the old home town is found in some of New York's neighborhood delicatessens.

Natives of the hinterland, cooped up in apartments here, established a trade intimacy with the delicatessen man which brings back memories of the corner grocery back in Podunk or Gatus City.

The neighborhood delicatessen is a small shop where the boss himself—usually an affable but eagle-eyed Italian, German or Jew—is on duty himself most of the time from morning till midnight, or later. In many cases the members of his family are his clerical force; the sons and daughters helping with the business after school hours.

It is good business for the boss and his wife to learn the names of the neighborhood folks who telephone for canned goods or drop in for a date sandwich. On the third or fourth visit the customer is apt to be saluted: "How are you tonight, Mr. So-and-So?" The customer grins and likes it, and buys a hunk of choice cheese that he might otherwise have done without.

There is a Jewish delicatessen man in my neighborhood who not only knows all of the members of the families who live in nearby apartment buildings, but also of their dogs and cats as well. He always inquires after their health and appetite. He is particularly interested in their appetite. I've got a sale on smoked salmon tonight," he says. "Don't you think Pluff (the cat) might like some?"

Swind in his place for rawhide and "you'll hear him call three out of four customers by their names. He asks how little Johnny's bad cold is today; another how her husband liked that Camembert cheese he sold her yesterday; another if the decorator did a good job on his living room.

He is the nearest thing in town to old man Jones, the grocer back home, who can recall your family history before the day of your birth.

Filling a Hole
The meaning of all the depression talk has been minimized by that gigantic enterprise, Rockefeller center, going on right through it all.

Day and night, week in and week out, the vast venture has been going ahead—towering office buildings and great theaters rising in the heart of New York. It contradicted all who called the future hopeless. If so hopeless, why all this preparation for the future?

A brief year ago Rockefeller center was a great, gaping hole in the ground. Already it is a mass of stone and steel, a monument to business hope and enterprise—even if you can't agree it's a monument to beauty.

Models' Worry
Models are more than ever worried this fall by the intrusion of debutantes and matryons into their professional field.

Society women go into the business these days not so much for thrills, and just to be doing something, as for the actual cash. Of course their names mean something to the stylists who employ them. The girls and their mammas are perfectly willing to pose for pictures for the press and grant interviews.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 4.—For a very lazy candidate for movie honors, the job of being a voice is just about the last word this side of being an off stage football.

I found the call sheet for "Prisco Jones" (the new title tacked on Ruth Chatterton's "Common Ground"), prescribing: "Stage 4—first voice—second voice—9 a. m." There was something almost uncanry about that order. Just a couple of voices needed—not the faces. Almost touching in its pathos, the business of being a voice. Just a voice.

But investigation reveals the other side of the picture, and it has its points.

In the first place, a voice doesn't have to get up early and rush out to the studio to be interviewed by the casting director. His age, height, weight and color of eyes make no difference. He can see about the job over the telephone. If he has a bedside phone, he can stay comfortable while calling, and if rejected, can recline again with that easy feeling of "well, at least I've tied."

Appearance Doesn't Count
And if he gets the job, and hauls out of the feather, there are further compensations. You don't have to put grease paint on your vocal chords to be a voice, you don't have to worry about whether your hair is oiled and slicked, and you don't have to decide whether this certain tie or that special suit will best set off that certain something about you which you know some day will be "discovered."

You can dress for the beach, for a hike, for golf, or riding, or for anything or nothing. It doesn't matter.

No Fan Mail
As such, you won't have to bother about fan mail, won't have to spend money for photographs for adoring fans, won't have to be nice to the cameraman so he'll notice your "best angles"—and, in fact, you don't bother about anything except—just being a voice.

On the other hand, of course, you get little money and absolutely no acclaim. But it's a job—and something to sing about.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, O. C. Nov. 4.—One of the interesting things of this Presidential campaign, now so near the close, is the attitude of Mr. Hoover toward the actual matter of campaigning.

The President during the last month not only has knocked into a cocked hat the belief that he would remain aloof, but before election day rolls around he may have upset some long-standing precedents in regard to Presidential campaign speech-making.

At this writing he has done just about twice as much as was expected of him, and if he follows through with his plans, by November 8 he will have done about three times as much.

Plans Changed
It was generally agreed at the start of the intensive period of the campaign that the President would make only three speeches. These were to be delivered in highly strategic cities.

In following this principle Mr. Hoover was on solid and traditionally good political ground—especially Republican. It long has been the G. O. P. theory when trying to elect its candidate that his place is at home.

Few Speeches in 1928
Four years ago the President made comparatively few speeches and there was little of the fire and give and take in them he has displayed in the present campaign.

Soosevelt, after his nominating at Chicago, planned no such wide swings around the country as he has since made. He, too, thought in the beginning that he would confine his efforts to the strategic parts of the nation. But once started he became convinced that personal appearances was the most effective method of getting himself and his ideas before the people.

The President also came to that realization. Pressure from his advisers that he alone could plead his cause and his reception at Des Moines changed his mind and sent him crusading to other cities.

What is Cross Blending?

an Artist might explain it this way...

"Let's say you're painting clouds. You've got your primary colors here on the palette. But you haven't the clouds until you blend certain colors into the special tone you want."

"This is very much what happens in making a good cigarette. And I gather that what Chesterfield means by Cross-Blending is what an artist does with colors. Their Domestic and Turkish tobaccos—many varieties of each—are the primary colors.

They blend and cross-blend these tobaccos until they get the special tone they want—in other words, the Chesterfield flavor.

"And just as each color you use acts on the others to change and enrich them, so each Chesterfield tobacco partakes of the fine qualities of every other.

"You 'weld' different kinds to get a better kind. That's Cross-Blending!"

Auto - Engine Gets Interest

The "Publix-Kinsey Special," automobile made in the shape of a train engine, is being used in an advertising campaign of the theater in this community today.

The machine is being driven by Leslie Smith, who is engineer, conductor and general superintendent of the affair. The engine has created much interest among children and grown-ups alike, and many a school child has had the thrill of his life by being given a free ride.

Through an oil burning process, smoke emanates from the smoke-stack of the machine as it makes it rounds of the city, and it looks like a sure-enough railway engine running up and down the streets.

The engine is being used in a general publicity campaign conducted by the theater concern and is proving very popular.

The smashup, officers said, caused the truck and another automobile to run together only a short distance away. The other truck was owned by C. W. Roberts Co., of Kingston, and the automobile was driven by Kinsey Smith, employe of a filling station at the intersection.

Officers said they had established that Johnson suffered from poor vision and was not capable of driving a car. This was held responsible for the wreck.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salt, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in lumps. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

LET'S EVERYBODY VOTE

With the election just a few days away it seems that already there has been a full discussion of the issues and while a Democratic victory apparently is assured the signs also point to the largest vote in the history of our country.

A general election should be a definite indication of the wishes, desires and thoughts of the American people and it is hoped that the voters of Pitt County on next Tuesday will, in unmistakable terms, denounce the Republican administration, for the benefit of a privileged few, by casting the biggest Democratic vote ever polled in this county.

Carousels Are Sovietized

Moscow, Nov. 5. (AP)—Soviet Russia has applied symbols of its machine age to merry-go-rounds, substituting miniature tractors, automobiles and motorcycles for the traditional horses and boats.

ABOUT TOWN

A hundred thousand majority for Roosevelt in this state is seen by Governor O. Max Gardner, commenting on the outlook for victory next Tuesday.

The governor said the people of the state were anxious to go to the polls and express their preference. They want a change in government and realize that the only way to get it is to go to the polls and vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the presidency.

North Carolina, one of the greatest agricultural centers of the nation, has suffered severely during the Hoover administration. Hundreds of its farmers have seen their homes sold from under them in the most severe economic disturbance the nation has ever seen.

Hoover is no longer believe President Hoover is the "miracle man" he would have them to believe, and will do their part toward a change of government next Tuesday.

A bet is a bet in politics as in anything else, and one of the other of two Griffin men is going to have to push the winner to Greenville in a wheelbarrow shortly after the election.

A Democrat is betting a Republican that Roosevelt will win in the forthcoming election and the Republican is betting that President Hoover will win. The loser will have to push the winner from Griffin to Greenville in a wheelbarrow, a distance of about twenty miles.

It is an unusual bet but one that is bound to capture the imagination of the people, and hundreds probably will gather along the highway to see the attraction.

The Democrat is so confident of winning that he has already started to make preparations for his free ride, and feels sure his Republican friend will be the cynosure of all eyes.

Governor O. Max Gardner was highly pleased with the splendid reception accorded him in Pitt county Tuesday night.

In a letter to W. E. Hooks, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, the governor said he appreciated the large gathering attending the speaking at the court house. It was a tribute to his administration and the part which it has played in cutting down expenses of government.

The governor pointed out the tremendous reduction of crops under the Republican administration and held out hope of no relief until there has been a change of government at Washington.

The same opinion has been expressed by hundreds of other prominent men and women of the country and the Democrats stand the best chance in history of regaining control of government.

The Pitt County Post of the American Legion has just about completed plans for the celebration of Armistice Day here November 11th and indications point to one of the best celebrations in years.

The speaker of the occasion is Major L. P. McLendon, prominent lawyer and manager of the Ehringhaus gubernatorial campaign. In addition to the address the former service men will be treated to a barbecue dinner, football game and last, but not least by any means, a colorful parade.

Armistice Day will always play an important part in the lives of the American people. It symbolizes that day fourteen years ago when the guns of all nations engaged in the deadly conflict in Europe were silenced and men were permitted to return to their homes to carry on in peace.

It was a great day in the lives of many nations of the world and they will not soon forget it. Many of the boys who engaged in that awful carnage never returned and it is the object of Armistice Day to pay tribute to the deeds of heroism which enabled the saving of the world for Democracy.

dom. "But look here, Santa, don't let's try to be too marvelous." "Certainly not. This is the last time we'll refer to Dicky. We've been placing flowers on the grave of the dear departed."

Chapter 17 MARRIED AGAIN

Clive glanced at the closed door of their compartment, then at Santa's hat-box and suitcase, labelled Mrs. Clive Doncaster. Santa seated opposite to him, followed his glance. She had been secretly amused and touched by him all day, but hadn't dared show it. What a puzzled, eager boy he was beneath the surly face! Such a relief from Dicky. She was going to be young again.

"It's true, Clive," she nodded. "I really belong to you."

"I'm kind of stunned" he smiled. "It takes a bit of getting used to."

"For me, too." She was wondering whether she might powder her nose. "I won't tomorrow."

"Of course it won't. Everything past will be forgotten."

"As though this were the first time I had been married." She read his thoughts.

He shifted to her side and slipped an arm about her. She waited pulseless as a doll.

"I'm the only husband you ever had," he burst out. "Say so."

She took his face between her hands. "I can never thank God enough for having given you to me."

That satisfied him for the moment. He twisted the wedding-ring on her finger—the one he had bestowed on her.

His mind was in a ferment. So many thoughts—so few of them to utter. Scarcely more than a week ago had he been caught in a sleeping compartment with her, he could have been dragged into her divorce.

The conductor tapped and entered to collect tickets. Clive betrayed the customary nervousness of the newly-wedded. Santa watching, found his confusion adorable. Evidently he feared that the legality of their relationship might be doubted. She'd experienced the same pangs on her first honeymoon.

When they were alone again, Clive re-seated himself beside her. "You're awfully quiet," she challenged.

"I feel such an amateur," he laughed.

"I shall love living with you in New York." She smuggled.

Till now Dicky had afforded almost the sole topic of their conversations. Would he bring counter-charges at the last moment? Then, after her release from him, would he cease to annoy her?

Things had moved too fast. Clive had judged rightly that after her ordeal, Santa wouldn't be safe to conduct her own affairs. When he'd surprised her that morning two weeks ago, she had cultivated the complex that all her friends were ashamed of her—that nobody would ever want to be seen with her.

The best cure had seemed to be to restore her without waste of time to a recognized niche in society. He had urged immediate remarriage. She'd permitted herself to be persuaded on the condition that they involved nobody in their rashness save themselves. Hence there had been no guests, no wedding presents. Not even her parents had been notified. Their plans for the future had yet to be formulated.

The first minister they had approached, on learning that Santa was a divorcee, had refused to officiate. The second—this was a few hours ago—and urged them as perfunctorily as if he'd been issuing a dog-license.

Now that his goal had been attained and they were man and wife, had come the reaction. Her remarks as they had stepped aboard the train had started it: "Married again; I adore it." In their marriage was everything to be again for her? He had approached this day with so much reverence, which nothing external had reflected. At the back of his mind was the account he had read of the social importance which had been attached to her first nuptials.

Santa routed his reflections. "A penny for your thoughts, old boy. We might as well be honest."

"I should hope so," he humored her.

She squeezed his arm. "Then stop thinking about Dicky." His restraint melted.

"I hate the sound of his name. I can't bear to hear you mention him. But he keeps bobbing up like a 'kick-in-the-box'."

"He won't presently." She petted him. "Talk him out of your system. How does he bob up?"

"As though he were taking his revenge. As though he were determined to spoil—"

"He can't."

She slipped a cool hand over his mouth. Kissed each separate finger. "But Santa, dear, he has so far. We've been married like outcasts; as though we had no right to be married. That first minister who refused to perform the ceremony, treated us as if we'd asked him to bless a liaison."

"He was a back-number," she soothed him. "You wanted me. I wanted you. We want each other more than anything in the world. Here we are, with our wish granted. Does anything else matter?"

"Not really."

"I can't tell you, Clive, she cooed. "How I've longed for you. During all the time that I was married to Dicky. Wicked of me, wasn't it? I would imagine he was you. Close my eyes and imagine."

Glancing down, she could see was her dark head against his shoulder. Fields rushing by, grew vague in twilight.

"So you see, Clive, if it makes you feel better, even when I seemed to be Dicky's I was yours."

"Makes me feel glorious," he whispered.

"And yet things that oughtn't to matter often matter terribly," she continued. "Dicky had had heaps of women friends. Something he let out on one became afraid of what you're fearing now. But you're not an old story, Clive. You're excitingly new. Always will be. I swear it."

He gathered her to him. "That's all right, little woman."

"It isn't all right." She twisted. "I've got to make you certain. You are the gainer by my first marriage. Draw it mild." He was thankful the compartment was nearly dark so that she couldn't see his expression.

"I mean it. I've learned the mistakes to avoid. I'm trained to be a wife. I wasn't when you first asked me."

A flock of retorts winged across his mind. "But I'm not trained to be a husband, Santa."

"Everything's happened for the best," she urged; "in the only best way it could have happened. All the faults weren't on Dicky's side. I was unyielding. I'm not any longer. You have Dicky to thank."

"You'll never catch me thanking him."

"Then you'll at least acknowledge that without intending to, he taught me to realize your value?"

"If that's the case, I wish you'd found some other way to learn my value."

She laughed, her lips alab but touching his. Her laughter was startling, bubbling from the darkness without warning.

"I'm so free—so happy. The happiness has gone to my head. I was in prison. Despairing. Then a key turning and you."

"Poor angel!" She clasped him tremblingly. "We're both rich."

Later, across the table in the dining-car, she beamed at him. "Isn't it marvelous how we can say absolutely anything?"

He crumbed bread. "I guess you thought I'd got cold feet."

"Didn't," she contradicted. "I thought that I'd had practice and you hadn't."

"Like learning to ride a bicycle?" He appealed to her superior wisdom.

Clive grinned whimsically. (Copyright 1931-1932, Coningsby Dawson) Santa wins a battle, tomorrow, that has an important bearing on her future happiness. Greenville is leading all other markets because we are paying more for every grade of tobacco. Competition has never been keener, and some of the markets are getting frantic offering all kinds of wild inducements, even to hauling tobacco free if they will bring their tobacco to them. Every thinking farmer knows he pays the bill if he takes up with these wildcat schemes.

We believe the farmers of Pitt county will stand by their market, which has proven to be the best and largest bright tobacco market in the state.

Grade carefully, keep your tobacco dry and "drive in" early in order to avoid any rush.

CAROLINA TO FACE 'CATS' REAL WARPLY

Chapel Hill, Nov. 5.—With a good chance to carry off top honors in the Big Five and so alone for its early season reverses, the Carolina football team is facing its game at Davidson next Saturday very warily.

The Wildcats can always be counted on to upset one or two powerful but over-confident teams a year. Duke felt the bit of their fangs, the tear of their claws last year, and Carolina the year before. The Tar Heel seniors remember that 7-6 loss of 1930 very vividly, and the Carolina squad is expecting and will prepare for a hard game next Saturday.

The record books show Carolina 20 victories and four ties for the 28 Carolina-Davidson games since 1898, but the scores have been close and the rivalry intense at all times. Four of the games were scoreless ties, and nine others were won by margins of one touchdown or less, seven by Carolina and two by Davidson.

The Wildcats also have a reputation for stopping Carolina's greatest machines. The undefeated team of 1898 which scored 187 points to all opponents' 8, only beat Davidson 11-0. The great 1914 team that won 10 games and lost 1, scoring 259 points to 49, was held to 16-0, and the 1929 or 30, whose 346 points gave it second high scoring honors in the country, was played to 2-7, the smallest score Carolina had against any Big Five opponent.

PACK TO MEET DAVIDSON IN QUEEN CITY

Raleigh, Nov. 4.—North Carolina State's Wolfpack will take its last workout in Concord this afternoon before it plays Davidson College in a Big Five football game tomorrow at Central Stadium in Charlotte.

Coach Clipper Smith took two bus loads of Wolves with him to Concord, leaving Raleigh early this morning. The contingent will spend the night in the Cabarrus county seat.

The Wolfpack ended its home-work here yesterday afternoon with another spirited two hour drill. Smith worked two teams against freshman eleven equipped with Davidson plays, brushed up the Tee's passing game, went through a dummy practice and ran signals before sending the men to the showers.

This afternoon's drill will be light consisting chiefly of a calisthenic drill and signal practice.

During practice this week Smith has been using two teams, substituting each as a unit in scrimmage drills. He will probably follow the Junior League of Charlotte is sponsoring tomorrow's Big Five game which is the second such test for Davidson and the third for State. The ladies have carried on a rather extensive advertising program and are expecting a record attendance.

BLUE GRASS TEAM SEEKS DUKE' HIDE

Durham, Nov. 4. — Kentucky's Blue Grass Wildcats invaded this city today vowing to get vengeance tomorrow for the eleven straight defeats they have been handed by Wallace Wade-coached grid teams and their two likings by the Blue Devils at Duke. Tomorrow's game, expected to be one of the bitterest battles seen in the state this season will start at 2 o'clock.

The Wildcats have another reason for being anxious to dig their claws deep into the Blue Devils. After winning four straight southern conference games, they have lost the past two Saturdays by one touchdown margin to V. P. I. and Alabama. They claim to smell a victory over Duke.

It will be the clashing of the two "junior big shots" of the southern conference. The Blue Devils too, have lost a pair of contests, both to undefeated teams, Auburn and Tennessee, but the two elevens that meet tomorrow have not bowed this season without first handing their foes the hardest of struggles.

North Carolina grid fans have shown much interest in the contest and Duke athletic officials are expecting the season's largest crowd to be on hand for the contest.

Let Road Contracts Raleigh, Nov. 4.—The State Highway commission today awarded contracts to low bidders on all projects on which proposals were opened yesterday.

All contracts must be approved by the Federal Bureau of Roads before work can begin as the projects are being built under federal aid allotment to the state.

Contracts aggregated $622,837 and brought to $3,529,872 the amount involved in contracts since the commission started in the federal aid fund in August.

This leaves about $1,250,000 available for use in further work, said Chairman Jeffress.

Young Killer Confined Bakersville, N. C., Nov. 4.—Eugene Polley, 14, of Spruce Pine, pleaded guilty to manslaughter in connection with the killing of John Young here today, and Judge F. A. McElroy committed him to Stone-wall Jackson Training School at Concord until he reaches the age of 21.

The plea was entered through counsel after the mother, the only defense witness, swore that the boy was only 14 years of age. The trial started yesterday. Young was shot through the head several weeks ago with a rifle in the hands of Polley.

New Bern Man Killed in N. Y. New Bern, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Dwight Winslow McGinnis, 34, killed in New York today after a chase by police was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McGinnis of New Bern.

The dead man's father was formerly an employed mechanic of a local radio shop but has been out of work for some time. Frank McGinnis had been working in New York 12 years. His mother's name was Mattox, which probably accounted for his assumed name of Francis Mattox in New York.

He is survived by a wife, several children, parents, two brothers and a sister.

English Forgive Builders London, Nov. 4.—(AP)—George Howlett, chairman of the Kennel Club, says that entries to bench shows indicate that John Bull has changed his style in dogs, the soft-eyed, flop-eared cocker spaniel taking the place of the underslung bulldog as the country's most popular canine.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, five to seven higher in response to steady Liverpool cables. Fluctuations after the opening were narrow. December sold at 6.04 at the initial demand and was holding around 6.04 at the end of the first half hour with active months showing advance of 3 to 6 points.

Southern buying was not so heavy and trade buying more active in the morning with prices at 6.12 for December and 6.12 for May.

Stock Market

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Bears found themselves down a blind alley today in the stock market and prices rebounded smartly as they retraced their steps. The bears found the market strongly against them. Prices surged easily with trading in a small volume. Gains of two to four points were numerous.

Issued up about two to four included American Can, American Tobacco, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, International Harvester, Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, Union Pacific and others. Alcohol issues and others likely to benefit from prohibition activities showed gains of two points or more, appearing in National Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Sales were about 1,000,000 shares.

Chapel Hill, Nov. 4.—Portraits of John Tredeff, James Shepard and John C. Manly whose distinguished legal careers were closely associated with the history of North Carolina and of John C. Calhoun, noted statesman of South Carolina, have been presented to the law library of the University of North Carolina.

The Tredeff and Shepard portraits have been hung in the classroom of the first year law class and the Calhoun and Manly pictures in the classroom of the second year class.

John Tredeff was Judge of the North Carolina Superior Court in 1777, Attorney General in 1779 and Associate Justice of the first Supreme Court of the United States in 1790.

James Edward Shepard studied law at the University in 1858 and became Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina in 1894. He became a member of the law faculty here and was offered the deanship in 1899 but declined it.

Charles Manly was graduated from the University in 1814 and was an attorney in Chatham county for 30 years following graduation. He was a trustee of the University from 1836 to 1868. In 1849 he was elected Governor of North Carolina and served until 1851.

John C. Calhoun graduated from Litchfield Law School in 1806. He was admitted to the bar of South Carolina in 1807. In 1817 he was made Secretary of War and was elected Vice-president of the United States in 1824. After serving as Vice-President he was elected United States Senator from South Carolina. To complete his career as a statesman he was appointed Secretary of State in 1844.

GRAND JURY MAKES REPORT

(Continued from Page One) term of court respectfully submit herewith the following report: "We have acted upon all bills and other matters which have been brought before our attention.

"We have inspected the jail, the courtrooms, records and buildings, and the various offices of the county. We found each in good shape and commend the various officers for the way the records are kept. We do, however, wish to call attention to the necessity for increased efforts in keeping the jail in as sanitary condition as possible.

We also recommend to the County Commissioners that Map Book No. 2 in the office of the Register of Deeds, be reprinted, as same is in a very bad condition; also that the indexing system used in connection with the vital statistics of the county be put in book form rather than the present card index system.

"We especially wish to commend the work being done by the Welfare Department. During these times of depression, we feel that this office is rendering an invaluable service to the people of the county.

"In compliance with the instructions of the Court, one or more members of this Grand Jury visited each school in the county which operates school buses. We believe that the system used in this county is unsatisfactory, and we commend the Board of Education for its action in maintaining a central garage and mechanics who make inspections of the various buses of the schools throughout county periodically and systematically. Drivers of these various school buses were talked to and asked to report to their superintendent the license number of any vehicle which might pass them while loading or unloading these buses.

There was complaint from various parts of the county on the part of the superintendents of several of the schools that they had reported on several occasions the license numbers of vehicles which did pass school buses while loading and unloading, and that nothing was done about it. We, therefore, wish to urge the authorities to vigorously prosecute these cases.

"We found following defects in school buses: At Bethel, Truck No. 76, insufficient brakes; Truck No. 1, steering gear occasionally locked. At Chocoll, Truck No. 75, insufficient brakes. At Belvoir, truck No. 12, insufficient brakes and horn. At Stokes, Truck No. 46, insufficient horn. At Pactolus, Truck No. 34, insufficient brakes. At Grimesland two trucks, the back doors of which would not stay fastened. At Ayden, Truck No. 84, back door not fastened; Truck No. 83, insufficient brakes; Truck No. 81, part of spring lost, missing body to list. At Fountain, Trucks Nos. 33 and 10 have back door wired which is very dangerous in case of fire; Trucks Nos. 33, 41, 22, 8 and 26 need brakes adjusted, and Trucks Nos. 8 and 10 have big cracks around windshields which should be closed; Truck No. 5 has front door too large and same will not close properly. At Farmville, Trucks Nos. 35 and 13, insufficient brakes, and Truck No. 54 insufficient brakes and motor needs adjustment.

"In practically every one of these cases a mechanic came during the day and received the reports of above defects from the principals of the schools, and began immediately to remedy same.

Next Grand Jury have been drawn: W. B. Barwick, E. W. Braxton, W. C. Cobb, Abner Eason, S. A. Jenkins, Elijah Mills, L. R. Nichols, J. R. Covert, W. C. Spencer, J. R. Vincent, A. G. Walters, and R. E. Willoughby.

"We inspected the State convict camp maintained in this county, and we wish to commend Mr. Sellers for his excellent work in handling the prisoners in sanitation and in general appearance of said camp.

"We regret the necessity of having to call the attention of the Court to certain recommendations made by the Grand Jury at the last term of court in regards to the County Home. It appears to this jury that the prime purpose in the mind of the present management is that of farming, while the jury believes that the first thought of those in charge of said County Home should be of the inmates. In our visit there today we found bad conditions existing in the rooms of several of the inmates, flies were numerous and odors prevalent. In our last report we recommended that the screen doors and windows be repaired, and on our inspection today, we found that very little had been done. Great cracks between the screen doors were in evidence and could have been done away with by very small efforts on the part of those in charge. Rats have been partly eliminated, but much work needs to be done in regards to said rats, flies and bed bugs.

"We feel, and again recommend to the County Commissioners, that a whole-time matron in the County Home building is essential and necessary. It should be the duty of said matron to look after the welfare of the inmates and have charge of their diet, their clothing, the sanitation of the rooms and keep the building clean. We do earnestly request that this be investigated by the Commissioners at once so that the inmates shall be freed of certainly bodily filth which is now existing.

"The steam gauge on the boiler needs repairing or replacing. The cook stove in the kitchen of the County Home is in bad repair, and we ask that repairs for said stove be put in at once or that a new stove be bought. Further use of said stove endangers the life of the inmates.

"We believe that print on the inside of the County Home would be worth much in cleaning same, however, in times like these we do not wish to ask for expenditures of money; however, we recommend that our Commissioners investigate the possibility of securing aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on such objects as painting the interior of the County Home.

"We recommend that the Department have the water at the County Home analyzed and determine its purity; also the cause of the great amount of rust in same. We ask that he take this matter up with the Commissioners.

"We wish to thank Judge W. C. Harris and the other court officers for the courteous extended to us and to commend Judge Harris for the impartial manner in which he conducted his court.

"This report is respectfully submitted by the Grand Jury for October term of court.

"W. J. SMITH, Foreman."

TALK SCHOOL ISSUE HERE

Wells, Johnston County, and Mabel A. Evans, of Northampton County.

MISS LOUISE DIXON HAS MET NATION'S BEST COOKS (Continued from Page One) as many excellent recipe booklets given out by food manufacturers, but they are forever exchanging with a neighbor and asking their bridge partners for still more and more recipes. This speaks glowingly for American cookery in general. I have found these women generous enough everywhere in the country to pass along their favorite dishes to me. Many of the new dishes are to be featured next week and I hope the housekeepers of Greenville like them and add them to their regular repertoire of favorite foods."

The recipes Miss Dixon will give out at the sessions, which begin on next Tuesday at the high school auditorium and continue through Friday, will be printed and distributed free to all present. But to make them perfectly clear, she will read and explain them from her kitchen on the stage. She will demonstrate many of them during the session and in the demonstrations she will show new cooking methods, discuss new nutrition theories on vitamins content of foods, use unusual tested ingredients and give upon achievements of his party in administration of government in this state.

RALLY AT GRIFTON

(Continued from Page One) He scored President Hoover for his lack of attention to the farmers of the nation who have suffered indescribably during the last two years because of low prices for their products.

He lauded the record of the administration in North Carolina. Hence liberal tax reduction had been given the people even in the face of one of the most unusual financial situations the nation has ever known.

The speaker was presented by W. B. Hicks of Ayden, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, who also presided. The campaign will be again carried into the Farmville community tonight when Thad Eure, presidential elector of the First Congressional district, speaks at a rally to be held at the high school at 7:30 o'clock.

This is the first appearance of Mr. Eure in this section since the beginning of the campaign and members of the party were looking forward to his visit to Farmville with interest. He will confine his attention largely to a discussion of national issues, probably touching
