DEMOCRATS PREDICT GREAT VICTORY IN THIS STATE

Largest Vote In History Expected In Presidential Election Next Tuesday

SEEK SPEED IN BALLOTING

Voting to be Conducted from Two Entrances to the Court House Next Tuesday; Eure Urges the Support of Democrats in Speech At Farmville; Republicans Put Out Ticket for Senate and Sheriff.

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Thousands of North Carolina people were ready to go to the polls Tuesday to help name the vocations of thousands of persons for the next two to four years.

Political leaders of Democratic, Republican and Socialist parties predicted that the vote would be largest in history of the State. Democratic party estimates ran as high as 700,000. The largest vote previously was 652,000 for all Democratic candidates, Wallace Winborne said today. The majority was 162,000, or a majority of 100,000 plus the vote by which Hoover carried the State in 1928.

At least a majority of 125,000 will be recorded for Democratic candidates, Winborne said, basing his estimate on reports from over fifty counties.

With the Republican party fighting an apparently hopeless battle, and with leaders admitting it looks like the Democrats will make nearly a clean sweep of the State.

The Republicans especially are preaching the doctrine of prohibition since the combined dry forces of the State recently endorsed the candidacy of thirteen members of the party.

The Democratic campaign reaching every section of the State was climaxed with a monster celebration at High Point last night. Leaders said they were "sitting pretty."

Some of the enthusiastic higher ups in the party ranks predicted that not more than one Republican would be elected to sit in the 1933 General Assembly, and that even the Republican stronghold in Mitchell and Avery counties would have Democratic officers.

Says Church Duty Is to Gospel Only

Florence, C. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, Ga. presiding officer at the South Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said in an address today that "the Church has nothing to do with settling political and economic questions."

"The business of the Church," the bishop said, "is to preach the gospel. The Church has nothing to do with settling political and economic questions."

"If the Church does its duty and Christianizes men and women, the great questions that worry the body-politics will take care of themselves."

Miss Pollard to Be Buried, Farmville

Farmville, Nov. 5.—Messages were received here today of the death of Miss Delphia Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Pollard, of Washington, N. C., at 5 o'clock today in a Washington, D. C. hospital. The body is en route to Farmville, and the funeral will be held sometime Monday, although arrangements had not been completed.

Death resulted when the young woman jumped from a bridge in Washington last Tuesday. She suffered two broken legs, broken hips and pelvis.

The family lived in Farmville before moving to Washington, N. C., some years ago.

BIG PROBLEMS FACING NEXT LEGISLATURE

School and Sales Tax Questions Loom As Most Important For Next Assembly.

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—North Carolina will name its 1933 General Assembly in Tuesday's general election, and it will meet here in January to face issues more acute than any question that kept the 1931 Legislature in a five-month "endurance" session.

State-supported schools and a sales tax—two of the principal issues in 1931—again loom as outstanding matters of business for 1933, but on top of these the problem of a $10,000,000 State deficit must be met.

Already agitation has begun to increase the State-supported school term from six months to eight. Both gubernatorial candidates are pledged, if elected, to remove the 15 cent.

W. C. BRASWELL GOES TO PEN

Former Banker Left for State's Prison in Raleigh Today With Sheriff.

W. C. Braswell, former cashier of the Hood System Industrial Bank of this city, who was sentenced to one to two years in State's Prison by Judge W. C. Harris in the criminal term of Superior Court yesterday, was carried to Raleigh this morning to begin serving his term.

The former banker left Greenville about 9 o'clock in the custody of Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst. He spent last night in the custody of the sheriff at the county jail and was very bright and early this morning to begin his trip to Raleigh.

Braswell pleaded guilty to the charge of embezzling funds of the bank and threw himself on the mercy of the court. This followed return of a true bill by the grand jury Thursday. Judge Harris did not pronounce sentence at the time but reserved action until yesterday at the noon hour when he made known the ruling of the court.

Braswell, who was dismissed from the services of the bank about two months ago following discovery of the shortage, had been at liberty under bond of $1,500 pending consideration of the case by the grand jury.

In a statement to the public when the shortage was discovered about two months ago, the board of directors of the institution issued a statement in which it was revealed that a shortage of $3,500 had been found in the accounts of Braswell, but that the bank was covered by insurance.

Following an audit of the bank's books by Frank Chapman, representative of the bonding company, it was discovered that the shortage would total $7,650. This statement was made by the auditor when Braswell was arraigned for hearing.

Braswell was cashier of the bank (Continued on Page Six)

County Prepares For Ballot Fight

Hooks Urges People To Vote In Large Numbers

With one of the most vigorous political campaigns in the history of the county at an end, W. E. Hooks, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, today urged Pitt County voters to turn out in large numbers next Tuesday and elect Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Presidency as well as other party members seeking public office.

The chairman declared he hoped the country would lead the State from the standpoint of votes cast, and predicted victory by the largest majority ever before given party candidates.

"The campaign was concluded in Farmville last night with an address by Thad Eure, Democratic elector of this Congressional District. Mr. Hooks presided and Attorney Martin introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hooks appealed to Democrats to see that every voter had some (Continued on Page Six)

Democrats Making Final Bid For Ballots In All Sections Of The County

FIGHT MANIAC WITH TEAR GAS

Hawthorne, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP)—State troopers were dispatched to Newburgh and Hawthorne today armed with tear gas bombs and rifles on receipt of an alarm that a maniac had barricaded himself in the basement of the Jesus and Mary Convent.

The man was reported to be in possession of a rifle and revolver. He had terrorized inmates of the convent who telephoned police for aid.

A report from the convent at 10:30 to Corporal Quinn here said that the maniac was still "raising hob."

Police expected to dislodge the man with tear gas bombs.

Armed Man Causes Terror to Inmates of Convent at Hawthorne, N. Y.

As Democrats and Republicans made final bids for votes in this county today, the Board of Elections turned its attention to the setting up machinery for the conduct of the election at the courthouse Tuesday.

The same system used in the second primary will be in vogue and none of the congestion experienced in the first primary was anticipated.

Voting places will be located at Third and Evans Streets entrances of the courthouse as tried out in the second primary, and it was expected to do much towards speeding up the handling of the ballots.

Registration books closed last Saturday, but the registrar was at the courthouse today accepting challenges. None had been received at the noon hour, and if any more were pending, they had not been indicated at the time. One hundred and twenty-three new people who did not vote in the June primary were registered for the Presidential election during the four weeks the books were open, and this brings the total for Greenville Township well above the figure registered in the primary.

Confident of victory, Democrats were making their last bids for ballots in all sections of the county. Thad Eure, of Winton, presidential elector for this district, addressed the voters of Farmville last night, virtually winding up the speaking campaign in this county.

He told his hearers of the splendid service rendered the State and nation by members of the Democratic party, and compared their wise administration with the recklessness of the Republicans at Washington.

He urged the voters to go to the polls in large numbers next Tuesday and registrar their approval for a "new deal" as promised by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

Although many prominent speakers have been to the county during the campaign, the most important was Campaigner O. Max Gardner, who addressed the voters of five counties at a rally here last Tuesday night.

One of the outstanding features of the campaign is the interest manifested by women who were expected to go to the polls in increasing numbers.

Although Republican contest in this county has never been very pronounced, the party is putting out candidates for the Senate and sheriff in opposition to the Democratic nominees selected in the June primary.

Mr. Jor interest here as elsewhere centers about the battle for presidency, and the national spotlight will be turned on this phase of the battle of ballots as millions go to the polls Tuesday to express their preference. Pitt County is anticipating one of the largest votes in its history and that it will be in favor of Roosevelt by a big majority, in the consensus of opinion of political leaders.

Democrat Victory Drive

The National Executive Committee of the Democratic Party has just issued an urgent appeal to the voters of Pitt County to help ensure the election of Roosevelt and Garner by contributing to the campaign fund. J. C. Lanier has been designated as chairman of this fund, and he will give a bronze medalion of Roosevelt and Garner, designed by Gutzon Borglum, to anyone contributing a dollar or more to the campaign.

Mail or send your contribution at once to J. C. Lanier, Greenville, thereby doing your bit to get a new deal in National Administration.

SEVERAL HURT IN JAIL RIOT

St. Vincent, Quebec, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Nine guards and four convicts were nursing injuries today and several work-shop buildings were in embers—the aftermath of a fierce but short-lived riot within the walls of the St. Vincent penitentiary yesterday.

More than one hundred of the one thousand convicts participated in the third outbreak in recent months. The disturbance was not quelled until a detachment of Royal Mounted Canadian police and the Montreal fire department, nine miles away, had been called out.

Prison authorities fought it out with the convicts until they were stopped by roaring flames.

OPPOSES NEW AMENDMENT

M. K. Blount, former member of the Senate from this county, today voted opposition to Amendment 2 to be voted on in the election next Tuesday.

The proposed amendment would permit the Legislature to submit the amendments either at the next general election or at special elections to be called for that purpose.

"To pass this amendment," Mr. Blount stated, "would mean the further centralization of power in the hands of the few, and in our Democratic form of government the masses should participate in any move to change or alter our Constitution."

"The statement in detail follows: 'Amendment No. 2 relates to the method of amending the Constitution. At the present time all proposed amendments, after passed by three-fifths majority of each House of the General Assembly, must be submitted to the voters at the next general election. The proposed change would permit the Legislature to submit amendments either at the next general election following the passage of such amendment by the General Assembly, or at a special election to be called for that purpose. In most every session of the General Assembly, many proposed changes in the Constitution are made, and if this amendment should pass, it would mean frequent submission of amendments to the voters of the State. It is obvious that in these special elections would be called at an enormous expense to the State, and at great inconvenience and expense to the voters. We can all recall the disastrous results from special elections. Much of the bonded indebtedness of the counties and cities is the result of the organized minority in these special elections. To pass this amendment would merely mean further centralization of power in the hands of the few and under our Democratic form of government the masses should participate in any move to change or alter our Constitution.'"

Five Killed In Accidents

Highways Claim The Heaviest Toll In This Patrol Division In Years.

Five persons were killed in this highway patrol district during the month of October, it was revealed today in the report of Lester Jones, patrol lieutenant.

The report also indicated that eighteen persons were injured in a total of twenty-five accidents occurring in various parts of the district. This is the highest death toll reported in the division in months.

The average runs around two deaths a month out of fifteen or more serious accidents.

One hundred and three persons were found guilty and four not guilty as result of charges brought by the highway patrolmen.

They were given sentences of one hundred and ninety-one months. Twenty-three drunken and eight reckless drivers were arrested during the month and four hundred and (Continued on Page Six)

MILL STRIKE COMES TO END

Manchester, England, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The cotton spinners' strike ended today and work will be resumed Monday. The decision was made after a vote had been taken by union members.

Eighty per cent of spindles in the Lancashire mills were stopped October 21 when the spinners rejected wage cuts of from 5 to 8 per cent. The strike affected 150,000 workmen. This was the second walkout in recent months.

Weavers struck in July and were out four weeks before the conflict was settled. Manchester had just settled down to peace when the spinners decided to strike.

ROB ALABAMA BANK TODAY

Columbiana, Ala., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A bandit forced the bookkeeper to open the vault of the Bank of Columbiana this morning, robbed it of between $12,000 and $15,000 and escaped.

Sidney Bird, bookkeeper, said he arrived at the bank at about seven o'clock and found a white man calmly sitting inside.

"I told him I was the janitor and did not know the combination of the vault," Bird told officers. "He grabbed me by the throat, saying 'unless you open the vault you will never open another vault.'"

Bird said he opened the vault and that the man slugged him from behind. He was found at 7:40 by the cashier and the vault had been cleaned of all cash.

Seventy-Five or More Cases Disposed Of in Week Term of Criminal Court.

After disposing of approximately seventy-five cases, the one week criminal term of Superior Court came to a close yesterday afternoon. Four or five cases were completed during the final day's session. The majority of the actions consisted of larceny, breaking and entering, embezzlement, and one case of rape.

The charges of murder and manufacturing of whiskey against T. H. Barnhill, Bethel Township farmer, which was set for Tuesday, was continued until the January term of court to give investigating officers a chance to complete work on a new aspect of the case.

Several persons were sent to State's Prison and many others were given terms on the county roads by Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh, who presided over the mixed term.

In the final day's session Ernest Carr, colored, charged with carrying a concealed weapon, was sentenced to sixty days on the roads. Moses Hill, charged with threatening to kill some of his folks, was found not guilty.

George McRoy had judgment suspended upon payment of cost.

Zeno Speed, colored, had judgment suspended upon payment of cost on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

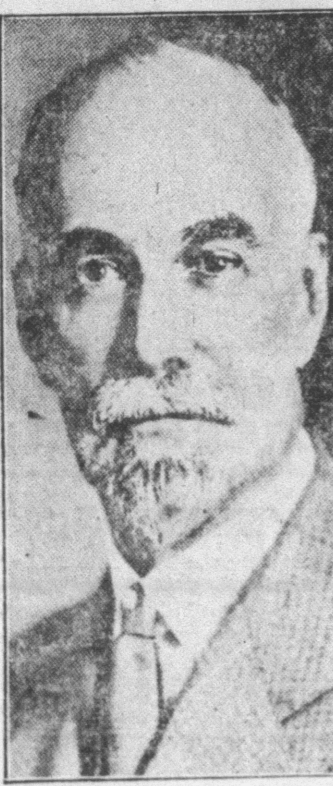

There were about one hundred and thirty-five cases on the calendar and the majority of those which the court failed to reach were of a minor nature.

The grand jury which returned a number of true bills during the week presented its report to Judge Harris Thursday afternoon. In addition to making several recommendations regarding the sanitary condition of the jail, the jurors called attention to the fact that several magistrates in the county had failed to file their reports as provided by law.

The question was precipitated at a previous session of court, and the jury instructed that all reports be in the hands of the clerk of this term of court. Presentments were returned in each case and are to be considered at the next term of court.

ON SLOW MAN GIVES ROAST

Fred Hargett Entertains Tobacco Buying Interests at Person-Garrett Factory.

Fred Hargett, prominent tobacco grower of Onslow County, tendered buying interests of the Greenville tobacco market and several prominent citizens of the community a delightful oyster roast at Person-Garrett tobacco factory here last night. The occasion was described as one of the most delightful of the year and Mr. Hargett was the recipient of many expressions of appreciation.

Among the distinguished citizens from this and other parts of the State attending were Hon. O. B. Moss, Rocky Mount; Hon. E. G. Flanagan, member of the Legislature from Pitt County and R. C. Flanagan, mayor of Greenville.

After a liberal oyster of oysters, J. B. Sugg, prominent Greenville tobacco warehouseman and banker tendered the company of teamster, the presence of R. M. Garrett, who in turn presented Mr. Hargett. Mr. Hargett expressed delight over the large attendance, and gave some of the reasons why he sold his tobacco on the local market.

He boasted the facilities of the market and declared that he had always been able to get the best of service here, both in price and speed in the disposition of his offerings.

Other speakers were O. B. Moss, J. J. Boyd of Richlands, and others. (Continued on Page Six)

Late News Flashes

Girl Kills Herself

Washington, N. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Miss Annie May Smith, 16 orphan child of the George Hildebrand community of Burke county was shot to death last night on the Laurel road and two companions told authorities she committed suicide.

Dr. G. M. Billings, Burke coroner, ordered a probe for this afternoon. Mull, married man of Ridgeport community, and a cousin of the dead girl who was with her when she was shot, was ordered to appear as a witness.

It was said the girls asked Mull for his pistol as they walked along the road and he gave it to her thinking she wanted to examine it. She shot herself and died instantly.

Man Arrested

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Police and railroad detectives questioned Henry Batts, negro arrested today by railroad operatives on a charge of tampering with tracks over which President Hoover's train was scheduled to pass.

The man carried a pinch bar of the type used in ciling tracks. He was picked up by Melvin Peterson, special agent of the road, who was patrolling the tracks in advance of the President's train.

Man Shot—Fayetteville, N. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Thurman Simpson, 25, farmer of the Roseboro section of Sampson County, is in a hospital in a critical condition today from gunshot wounds inflicted by Cecil Johnson, also of Roseboro.

Mania Killed

Monroe, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP)—State police were forced to kill a maniac who had barricaded himself in a convent near Highland Falls with the body of a man he had slain.

FINDING OF JEKYLL-HYDE GERM HINTS SAME MICROBE MAY BE CAUSE OF DIFFERENT DISEASES

By F. B. COULTON (Associated Press Science Writer)

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" germ that can change into three different "disguises" has been found by the Public Health Service.

The germ may appear as a streptococcus, or chain of cells such as causes pneumonia; a rod-like sausage shape bacillus, or it may be a filterable virus like that which causes infantile paralysis, in which case it is invisible.

The form that it takes depends on conditions under which it is grown, the kind of nourishment available, and other unknown influences—Dr. Alice C. Evans, research worker of the Public Health Service's National Institute of Health, found.

and then to the form of a filterable virus. The next step will be to determine whether the different forms of the germs cause different diseases or perhaps different forms of the same disease. If that is the case the whole science of bacteriology which deals with germs, may have to be revised.

HER HUSBAND'S GRIDIRON STAR, BUT CO-ED WINS OWN HONORS

Winifred Flint Berry is the wife of Gil Berry, University of Illinois football star, but that isn't her only claim to campus fame. She's a beauty contest winner, and has one of the leading roles in a student dramatic society play.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Sometimes wives of football heroes bask in their husband's glory—but not Winifred Flint Berry.

She has won campus fame in her own right—as a beauty and as an actress.

Her husband is Gil Berry, captain and star halfback of this year's University of Illinois eleven. But his comedy blond wife finds more to do than cheer him from the sidelines. Twice she has been elected winner of campus beauty contests, and this fall she won one of the leading roles in "A Church Mouse," a production of Mack and Haubie, student dramatic society. Both Halfback Berry and Mrs. Berry are seniors.

Miss Louise Dixon, accompanied by her assistant, Miss Emma Willis, have arrived in Greenville to make ready for The Daily Reflector Free Cooking School which will open at the high school auditorium next Tuesday.

In bringing to the women of Greenville such a noted instructor as Miss Dixon, The Daily Reflector feels sure that every housewife or prospective housewife will avail themselves of these interesting and instructive lectures. Every one is invited to attend. Lectures start promptly at 2 p. m. Don't forget the place—Greenville high school auditorium and the starting day—Tuesday.

"The Saga of Alice Blue Gown." "The Saga of Alice Blue Gown," a sketch in which the costumes of several periods, from the 16th century down to the present time, was attractively presented this morning in a chapel program by the Home Economics Club of East Carolina Teachers College, under the direction of Miss Katherine Holtzclaw, teacher of clothing.

Miss Lucille Pait of Hamlet, read a verse descriptive of each costume as the seven girls, in turn, walked across the stage to the tune of "Alice Blue Gown," which Miss Katie Lee Johnson of Fuquay Springs, played on the piano.

All of the costumes were made by members of the Home Economics Club. Blue was the color predominating.

Miss Hilda Thompson of Windsor, was Queen Elizabeth in her voluminous blue gown with a ruff; Miss Margaret Smith of Kinston, was Martha Washington in her colonial dress; Miss Katherine Blacklock of Jonesboro, looked like a portrait of Marie Antoinette; Miss Loree Cagle of Rutherfordton as a belle of the Civil War days, managed her hoop-skirted costume well; the Empress Josephine brought the days of Napoleon to life; Miss Clara Vann of Fremont looked as if one of the first students of the college had stepped upon the stage, as she was dated 1910. As the capstone of all the acts, Miss Alice Blue Gown herself, Miss Mildred Dixon, stepped forth in a lovely graceful, solid blue gown of the latest model.

Friday morning at the assembly hour the students had the football boys and coach presented to them and the cheer leaders turned it into a pep meeting. R. C. Deal was master of ceremonies and in his familiar happy manner introduced the friends of the school are invited to boys one by one and paid high tribute to the coach.

Foods and Nutrition For the past two years the home demonstration women have been studying foods and nutrition. Considerable stress has been placed on the need for serving food essentials and the entire course has been based around the subject. All women who have met the requirements will receive a certificate of merit on Achievement Day. Each club is urged to report its members who are eligible by Thursday, November 10, in order that the certificates may be here for Nov. 15.

Merit Award Requirements 1. Follow the courses under the direction of the County Home Demonstration Agent as outlined in the Foods and Nutrition Project.

2. Attend at least six of the meetings in the Major Project each year, complete the assigned work and carry out home practices taught.

3. Keep the Food Selection and Health Records and return them to the leader when requested.

4. Make a canning budget for the family.

5. Take part in Achievement Day. Enter any contest planned to show improvement in own food and health habits or the habits of your family, community, or county.

6. Meet requirements in Food Conservation. They are as follows: A knowledge of the principles underlying food conservation and ability to:

(a) Can standard products of fruits and vegetables in tin or glass by the hot water method suitable for home, market, or exhibition.

(b) Can standard products of vegetables and meats in tin or glass by steam pressure suitable for home market or exhibition.

(c) Prepare standard products of jellies, jams, preserves, marmalades, fruit juices and pickles.

Achievement Program The home demonstration women will hold their annual achievement program in the Greenville Woman's Club building on Tuesday, Nov. 15. Prizes will be awarded the club having the highest percentage of members in attendance. The program for the day follows:

10:00 a. m.—Meeting called to order—Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker. Song—In charge of Miss Alma Stokes and Mrs. P. H. Cannon. Invocation. Minutes of last meeting—Mrs. Wardell Worthington. Business. Ayden Woman's Club Meets. Ayden, Nov. 4.—Housewives had a treat in store for them on Tuesday afternoon when Miss Alva Ray Taylor's class in Home Economics furnished such an interesting program for the meeting of the Woman's Club. The tables were illustrated by clippings from magazines which made an impression on the eye as well as the ear. The girls making talks were: Gladys Best Tripp, painting and prosperity; Jean Turnage, a home-made nurse; Eleanor Jackson, how to give our home a present; Frances Turnage, kitchen ranges; Eleanor Burney, recreating old furniture; Mary Dennis, draping old tables; Jean Cannon, how to hang pictures.

Mrs. Sam Pierce gave several vocal selections accompanied at the piano by Miss Virginia Bell Cooper. The program was arranged and refreshments furnished by the American Home Department with Mrs. A. F. Rowe chairman.

CONVOCATION OF WILMINGTON MEETS Ayden, Nov. 4.—After hearing Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, Bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina, address the annual meeting of the Convocation of Wilmington, Thursday, November 3, at Holy Innocents Church, Seven Springs, the large audience seemed to be lifted from the valley of depression and discouragement to the mountain top of life.

The Convocation representing half of the Diocese opened with a celebration of the Holy Communion by Rev. E. W. W. W. Wilmington and Rev. A. C. D. Noe of Ayden. Following this the Woman's Auxiliary held a business session in the church presided over by Mrs. J. Q. Beckwith of Lumberton, the new convocation president. At the same time the clergy and laity held their business session on a hill top near the open air chapel, Dean E. W. Halleck presiding.

At the Auxiliary meeting Mrs. Fred Outland, diocesan president of the Woman's Auxiliary told of the Auxiliary program and field projects; Mrs. Victor Shebourne, chairman of Christian Social Service department, told of the many worthwhile things being accomplished by the organization in East Carolina. Other speakers among their special lines made very interesting talks: Rev. W. R. Noe, Church Publicity; Miss Caroline Myers, United Thank Offering; Mrs. P. T. Anthony, Supply Work; Mrs. John B. Cramer, Field Department; Rev. Alexander Miller, Fall Program; Miss Jessie Peace, Church Periodical Club; Mrs. Jennie Howard, Student Work at East Carolina Teacher's College.

During the men's session officers were elected: Rev. E. L. Halleck, dean; and Rev. B. H. Clifton, secretary and treasurer, and many business matters disposed of. Mr. Oscar Hardy made the address of welcome and Rev. B. F. Huske responded.

Clergy present were: Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, D. D.; Rev. W. R. Noe, Rev. E. L. Halleck, Rev. Alexander Miller, Wilmington; Rev. B. F. Huske, Kinston; Rev. G. S. Gresham and Rev. W. C. Cone, Goldsboro; Rev. I. del Bralshaw, New Bern; Rev. A. C. D. Noe, Ayden; Rev. Hal Wicker, Beaufort; Rev. Fred Turner, Whiteville; Capt. B. H. Clifton, Clinton.

LADIES' NIGHT AT THE FARMVILLE ROTARY CLUB Farmville, Nov. 4.—Enjoyable in every detail was the ladies' night program of the Rotary Club held on Wednesday night of this week when the Rotary Anns and high school faculty were entertained at a feast, consisting of, as Rotarian John Lewis put it, "good singing, good speaking, and good eats."

After invocation by Ford Burns the president Bill Smith turned the meeting over to John Lewis, chairman of the program committee, who acted as toastmaster. Edmund Harding of Washington a special guest and an "accordionist" of local note, played several selections and led the singing of a number of Rotary songs.

Henry Dwire of Durham, a past district governor, who was introduced by Irving Morgan Jr., was the speaker of the occasion. In his address Mr. Dwire compared the work of the teachers and Rotarians in moulding the character of the youth of today, stressing the importance of the development of individuality of making the youth into a good citizen, a patriot, not a militarist, an enthusiastic American but not a fanatic John Dwight Holmes rendered two solos with Haywood Smith at the piano.

The Rotary rooms were elaborately decorated with black and orange festoons, pine trees and autumn foliage, the table being lighted with Jack o' lanterns. Witches, ghosts and goblins received their coats and ushered guests to their places. Several black cats, most life-like in appearance and voice, roamed through the rooms and got into an occasional fight and stunts, all in keeping with the Halloween spirit were enjoyed.

A course diner was served by girls of the Domestic Science class who wore fancy costumes.

Constitutional Amendments.
 Article 1, section 28. Constitution of North Carolina is as follows: "For redress of grievances and for amending and strengthening the laws, elections should be often held." Now come the politicians with two proposed amendments to the Constitution asking the people of the state to so amend the constitution as to elect the sheriff and coroner for four years instead of two. In other words now is the beginning of the effort to perpetuate the politician in office. Not content with that the next proposition is to permit the amendment of the constitution at special elections instead of at general elections as now provided. Again the work for the politician which will permit the amendment of our fundamental law at special elections where the people as a whole are not conversant with the situation.

Both propositions are nothing more nor less than politically engineered efforts to cheat the people as a whole out of their right to elect their officers often and to permit the amendment to our Constitution on any pretext. I take this method to warn the people against these two amendments and the evils thereof before they are lulled into voting for them by political propaganda. They both strike at the very foundation of our inherent rights as voters and should be defeated.

Sincerely,
 S. O. WORTHINGTON.

ABOUT TOWN

President Hoover thinks, or would have the public think, there is nobody capable of taking his place at the helm of government. Owen D.
 Young, financial expert, and father of the Young plan, thinks that when a man takes himself so seriously the people should show him where to get off.

Speaking at a Democratic rally
 in New York, Young said he resented the attitude of the President in this respect, and failed to see any danger of "grass growing in the streets of our cities" if the President is not returned to office.

Thousands of other people think the same way about it and when they go to the polls next Tuesday
 they will probably show the President that no man ever becomes so great that he cannot be defeated
 when the people desire it.

Taking things belonging to other people doesn't pay. North Carolina and the nation generally have seen many charges of embezzlement and larceny of public funds in recent years, and Pitt county was given a view of such a case this week.

The sending of bankers to jail for embezzling a local institution while in a position of confidence shows that the public invariably exacts punishment for such crimes.

Sometimes they slip through the hands of the law but in most cases they have to spend long days behind jail bars to atone for their crime.

It is a temptation not to take other people's property when it is entrusted to our care and especially when we find ourselves in a hole, but the most advisable thing to do is to take our medicine as it comes and try to get along on our own initiative and resources.

Preparations for the national election are being pushed forward rapidly in all parts of the nation and next Tuesday the people will have the privilege of going to the polls and telling the world who they want for the various public offices.

Pitt county has seen one of the most colorful campaigns in history and in the words of W. E. Hooks, county chairman, is "ready to turn in one of the greatest victories in history."

Women who never thought of going to the polls to take part in the political life of their community will be numbered among the millions trekking to thousands of voting places next week, and when they have spoken it will be found that Governor Roosevelt will be the next President of this nation.

They are tired of the ballyhoo of the Republican party about property. What they want to see is real signs of returning better times,
 and since the Hoover administration has proven its inability to improve conditions, they want to see an entire change of government.

The relief committee is making an effort to take care of the poor people this year, and plans looking to handling of the federal appropriations are being pushed forward rapidly.

Through public construction in various communities, the committee is hopeful of furnishing sufficient employment to help the unemployed pass through the winter with a minimum of suffering.

It is impossible to say how much money this county will be able to get from the federal fund. If the government is convinced the need here is more serious than first thought, it will make additional appropriations for this purpose.

The spirit of co-operation shown by the people is another important factor in the campaign. If the government is convinced the community is giving as liberally as formerly to the cause and is then unable to meet the situation, it will provide sufficient funds to take care of the situation.

The condition is far from favorable with this additional help but with intensive organization such as that now being perfected in all parts of the county.

A PATH TO PARADISE
 by Coningsby DAWSON

Santa's first disastrous marriage to Dicky Dak had scarcely been cleared away in the Chicago divorce court before she and her girlhood sweetheart Clive Doncaster are married and take the train for New York.
 Just as the image of the jilted Clive had hung over her marriage with the rotter Dicky, so Dicky's image is in Santa's and Clive's minds now.
 Santa has marriage experience—
 Clive has none.

Chapter 18
THE MONEY QUESTION

Next morning the world seemed radiant. The only change was the warmer confidence with which they faced each other across the breakfast table. Their tenderness made them bold; they didn't care who guessed that they were newly wedded.

"Just you and I— isn't it fun?"
 Santa dimpled.

"I'll say it's fun. But has it occurred to you Mrs. Doncaster, that we'll be in New York within the next few hours? I can't take you to my bachelor quarters. We'll have to perch in a hotel till we've found an apartment. Before we move in, we will have to purchase furniture."

"That's easy." She corrected her loveliness in a pocket-mirror. "We'll order my furniture to be forwarded from Chicago."

"And sit on chairs on which he sat?"

"But beloved dumbbell, why waste money? I sat on them, too. They were wedding presents."

"We promised never to mention his name." Clive lowered his voice.

"You and I received no wedding presents. I couldn't live with you in his setting. It wouldn't be well, it wouldn't be decent. It would mean eating off the same plates, using the same knives and forks."

"Don't you think you're a bit squeamish?" she coaxed him. "To replace the things I've left in storage would cost—I haven't an idea how much. At any rate, a small fortune."

"I'm not proposing to replace them." Now was the time to take the bull by the horns. "We'll accumulate as we go along. We'll start simply. Which brings me to finances."

"You are a joke," she twitted him.
 "My income," he ploughed on,
 "doesn't run to antiques and Crown Derby."

"Who cares?" She stuck out the tip of her pink tongue. "I didn't marry you to be a gold-digger. With what Grandfather Summers settled on me and Daddy's allowance for pin money, I have the best part of twenty thousand. Since yesterday
 it's ours."

Clive's face fell.

"We should have had this talk earlier. I'm afraid you'll be disappointed. For a year's work I only earn a quarter of what you receive for nothing."

"Only five thousand!" Across the table she stroked his hand sympathetically. "How old Cleasby grind-you!"

"He doesn't. There aren't many fellows of my age—"

"You're clever. She glowed on him. "We'll be all right with me helping. Why spoil a perfectly good marriage morning?"

"Because, you adorable absurdity
 I happen to be honorable. I married you to support you."

"As though you needed to tell me.
 But let's postpone banking till our honeymoon's ended."

He stared at her.

"Sorry Santa."

"What's the next misery?"

"The only honeymoon I can afford is the trip from Chicago."

"O. I see!" Quite evidently that that moment's a point. "The more reason for enjoying every moment of it."

He was shaken by intensity.

"You're as generous as you're sweet. So if you say, let's be impractical."

"She rattled his hair."

"That afternoon when they had in New York she was the new girl who'd decided the better judgment."

"You can see me as far as the hotel. While I'm unpacking, you're going to report back at the office."

He objected that the day was nearly over—that she would find nothing to do at the office.

"You took French leave," she insisted. "You mustn't postpone a second in making your peace with your bread and butter."

The moment he had named "Mr and Mrs. Doncaster" on the register she hustled him off.

IN the room to which she was shown, having changed into a negligee, she threw herself on the bed smiling up at the ceiling. So far so good. As an expert on marriages, she was sure this one was fated to prove a huge success. If it didn't the fault would be hers. A husband revealed exactly what he was going to be within the first twenty-four hours.

Clive would require managing though in a totally different fashion
 from the way she'd managed Dicky.
 She'd have to mind her p's and q's;
 his awkwardness was that he was over-scrupulous. His attitude toward possessions inherited from her first marriage was ridiculous, as was his idea that their scale of living must be kept within the limits of his income.

Very dear of him to be so anxious to pay for everything! Unfortunately she'd been accustomed to more luxuries than he could afford. And then she longed to do things for him. The first glimpse of her dressmaker's bill would cure his independence.

Her thoughts turned to the more urgent topic of her parents. Should she telephone them? Shame prevented. Not her shame—theirs.
 She'd re-married for love—to please nobody, but herself. She couldn't expect them to credit her with lofty motives.

Divorced a week ago and married again! To them her second marriage after so short a lapse of time would seem indelicate. It would seem indelicately experimental to most people—as though she were the kind of girl who couldn't get along without a man; to whom any man was acceptable.

Meanwhile Clive, speeding down town in a taxi, was facing his own problem. What to say to Mr. Cleasby? He'd breezed off without a word. The only satisfactory answer would be an explanation of the compelling circumstances.

After the customary formalities he was ushered into his employer's den.
 Mr. Cleasby pushed back his chair and eyed him over the top of his spectacles.

"I've behaved badly," Clive forestalled reproaches. "The reasons were exceptional. I've been away getting married."

"Marriage isn't exceptional." The old man spoke grimly.

Clive repeated for Mr. Cleasby the story of his continuing love for Santa, his discouragement when she married Dicky, the tragedy of that failure.

"Then she's a widow?"

Clive shook his head.

"On my return from Europe I discovered that she was considering a divorce. That was why, against your wishes, I was so strong for remaining in America."

"Two weeks ago I learned that she was on the point of going back to him. She was in a panic. He'd shown signs of wanting her at a crisis when she was persuaded that no one ever again would want her.
 He would only have dragged her down. To prevent that I proved to her that I wanted her."

"This man's for rescuing forlorn maidens," he smiled crookedly. "We have all had it. It reads very romantically. Unfortunately knight-errants are out-of-date. This is the day of enlightened selfishness. I presume you looked ahead to what will be said?"

"I'm not sure that I care."

"You will—if not for your own sake, for hers. She's young, I gather."

"The loveliest girl in the world."

Mr. Cleasby looked away at the blanked clock, touched and drummled as usual.

"They tell me," he checked. "If they're not now, they were." He stroked. "To prevent her will require all your wits."

"I'm prepared for that," Clive rose. "By the way, air is there any change of my being sent to Europe?"
 They would be easier in an environment where no one knew that the worst was behind his marriage.

"I'm afraid not."

Mr. Cleasby recommended him to the door. At parting he grasped his hand.

"You had things should have happened this way. I'm sorry."

"What was there to be sorry about?"
 The spring evening was gliding the "grey length of lower Broadway
 Clive brushed with resentment.
 He was sorry for him was a reflection on Santa. He had hoped to hear himself congratulated.

But the old man was always envious of the young. Mr. Cleasby was a bachelor. He mistrusted risks that

DEVILS FACE CRUCIAL BIG FIVE GAMES

Durham, Nov. 5.—Perched at the top of the race, the Blue Devils of Duke, meeting Kentucky today, will turn their attention to Big Five Kettle, being slated to meet State in Raleigh next Saturday and Carolina in Chapel Hill the following week.

The Blue Devils will have a double mission when they meet State next week. In addition to keeping the Big Five lead which they have had since the first game of the season, they have not forgotten the surprises they were handed when a rejuvenated Wolfpack handed them a 14-0 defeat in Duke stadium last season just after they had defeated Kentucky.

State-Duke games have an eight-year-old history of being decided by close margins. Their clash for the State championship in 1927 is always referred to as the most thrilling contest ever seen in the State. The Pack won 23 to 13.

The following year the two teams met in another battle-royal. The place-kicks from the trusty toe of State gave the Devils a 14 to 12 victory. In 1926, at Raleigh, State won a free-scoring contest, 25 to 19 after the lead had changed hands several times. In the eight years of games between them, there has been about the Devils out three times, 1924, 14 to 0; 1925, 10 to 0 and 1931, 14 to 0. Duke blanked the Pack in 1930, 18 to 0, the largest difference ever recorded in games between the two institutions.

This year's contest is expected to be another thriller. State will be anxious to be the first to meet the State record after having seen their own stained by Carolina while the Blue Devils will be attempting to continue the campaign that lead to the North Carolina championship.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Fall winds fall to chill the ardor of your stylish sun tan devotee.

A friend in a Sutton Place hotel asked me to go up on the roof of the city day to get the view from there. It was about three in the afternoon. A brisk breeze whipped across the roof, carrying an almost wintry nip. The sun was rather pale through a hazy sky. But there sprawled out in the open in their bathing suits, were about a dozen men and women—pretenders to the Sutton Place smartness—shoulder straps down, trying to insure retention of their summer brown.

If they must have tan, you may ask why don't they get themselves some ultra-violet lamps, and stay inside? I don't know, but these roof beaches in New York carry on just about all the year through.

Will Osborne, the crooner, is another one of the entertaining folk who go in for elephant collecting. Small elephants of course, of ivory jade and what not.

Osborne has a curious little superstition. All of his carved pachyderms must have upraised trunks. If some one gives him an elephant with a drooping trunk he gets rid of it immediately.

November 25 is the crooner's birthday by the way. This one is his 28th. He was born in Toronto, Ont., and by the time he was eight he was muddling around at keyboard of a piano. He is fond of crooning, he gets a big kick out of leading his orchestra, and on the side he likes a good bit of golf, poker and reading.

The straw vote craze has taken the town by the ears. With the newspaper and magazine polls going full swing, incoming ships began to poll their passengers on their presidential preferences, churches took ballots and teachers tried them on their pupils—to encourage them to "think."

One of the big mid-town hotels passed out a ballot to every registered guest and proudly announced each totaling as "a cross section of the political mind of the country."

One hundred dollars proved to be the deadline in the October apartment scramble. Just about everything half way desirable under that figure was grabbed up and in the rush the price levels on the cheaper apartments were sustained fairly well. But many "elegant" abodes priced at more than $100 a month were passed up, and now landlords are anxious to have them occupied at any figure.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Nov. 5.—As far as the Senate is concerned, aside from the political aspects, it probably doesn't matter a great deal who is chosen vice-president on November 8.

For in either Charles Curtis or John N. Garner they'll have a strict bipartisan as their presiding officer. Garner may not be as well versed in Senate etiquette as Curtis, but he shares with the Vice-President in insistence on strict order when business is at hand.

The number of gavels "Cactus Jack" has broken since he became Speaker of the House is not a matter of record. But they have been plenty. In the first days of the present Congress he broke one almost daily. Even those sent up by admirers from Texas, made of that State's strongest wood, failed to withstand the whacks he gave them.

In many respects Garner probably has been the most strict presiding officer the House has had in years. Neither Gillette nor Nick Longworth was as severe as he.

Curtis Keeps Order

But should he move across the hill next March to preside over the Senate he would find his task much easier. Aside from the fact that he would have only ninety-six men instead of 434 to hold in line, Garner would find the Senate a well ordered body. Curtis has seen to that.

If Garner has been severe with the House so has Curtis with the Senate since he became presiding officer.

Senators had become a little lax in their parliamentary deportment when Curtis became their president. While Daves was in the chair he was inclined to let them have a good time when debate became heated. "Hell 'n' Maria" tried to reform them without success, so he let them go to it at times.

It was a different story, however, when Curtis took hold of the Senate. He had been a Senator too long himself to attempt methods that Daves used, but he got results.

Now, when he pounds the gavel, not only the Senators who at times are disposed to regard the rules lightly, but the galleries sit up and take notice.

Both ex-Floor Leaders

Probably the reason for the stern demeanor of both Curtis and Garner as presiding officers lies in the fact that both were their party's floor leader before. Years of service on the floor have convinced them of the necessity for some semblance of order when important business is at hand.

In so far as Curtis is concerned, there's another reason for this severity. It is his belief and conviction, after a period of almost a half-century in Congress, that nine-tenths of the legislation considered by the Senate and passed is non-partisan.

Faith and strict adherence to parliamentary procedure are therefore necessary.

Talks to Parents

A LITTLE RUNAWAY

By Alice Judson Peale

Helen, 5, began running away from home after her parents moved into a new house, far out of town at the end of the street-car line. She would stay away for hours, sometimes going incredible distances, to be picked up at last by the police and brought home.

At such times she showed no fear or conviction and greeted all questions with a calm and stolid countenance. Scoldings and punishments, the sight of her parents' distress—nothing moved her. At least twice a week she would go on her unlicensed travels.

Help came at last from an unexpected quarter. Helen's cousin came to visit and all day long the children played happily in the sunny yard and there was an end to her running away.

And so it appeared that Helen had run away because she was bored. At the new home there were no neighbors, no playmates, and being an enterprising child, she had undertaken to find adventure. To be sure she, herself, never gave this explanation (but to a lot of excited grown-ups?), but the change in her conduct proved that this was so.

It is always sensible to try to find out why a child has done something naughty before he is punished. We will never discover what we want to know if we approach him in an excited, accusing manner. For he then quite rightly feels that whatever he says will be used against him and he keeps his secret.

Helen's parents would have saved themselves much anxiety had they been on sufficiently good terms with her to learn that she only wanted to make life interesting.

Makes Bequest For the Wives of U. S. Presidents

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The will of Henry Freeman, Jr., disposing of an estate of two million dollars, provides a "pin money" fund of twelve hundred dollars a year for the wives of Presidents of the United States after the death of other beneficiaries. "Because," Freeman said, "I feel that Presidents receive a miserable pittance for the greatest position on earth."

Relatives were said to be contesting the bequest.

SAYS CRASH WITHOUT INJURY TO MAN POSSIBLE AT 115 MILES HOUR

State College, would design automobiles to prevent injury to driver and passengers in accidents. The passenger might escape unhurt even if the car crashed at 115 miles an hour, Yeagley says.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

State College, Pa., Oct. 24.—(AP)—It is possible for a man, in a properly designed and equipped car, to collide, head-on, while traveling even at the terrific rate of 115 miles per hour, without being injured.

"Yes, that's true," he said, "but there wasn't anything noble about it, no dying-for-my-art or anything like that. It was purely selfish. I knew that drowning was my best scene and I wanted it to be remembered."

Yeagley, physicist, of Pennsylvania State College as the result of calculations and actual measurements on a car which he saw crash head-on at thirty miles an hour into a concrete abutment.

The driver of this car, an elderly man, asleep and lying on the wheel, was unhurt. The car stopped in about thirty inches, its crumpling in that distance accordion-like. Luck gave the driver the advantage of these accordion steps in breaking his impact and saved his life.

Yeagley has calculated a combination of changes in interior design of motor cars which would give any passenger the cushioning that the sleeping driver had. But his figures unexpectedly indicate that the same accordion "deceleration" is practicable for excessive speeds.

He cites an actual 100-mile an hour head-on plane crash where the pilot was unhurt—when fortuitous circumstances cushioned him as science indicates everyone might be safeguarded. This was the crack-up of John Kynndle, mail pilot, against the face of Stone Mountain. Kynndle, serving a one-year term in a reformatory for store-breaking,

Failed to Get Jury Kinston, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Only one juror had been agreed upon today when the first one hundred members of a special Pitt County venire of two hundred and fifty had been questioned in an effort to get a jury to try Herman Casey for killing James Causey, of Suffolk, Va., lumberman.

The Pitt County venire is the fifth panel called. The first 843 veniremen were selected from Lenoir County, but the State and defense agreed on only eleven men out of that number.

Judge Cranmer discharged these men when he ordered the jury selected from another county.

As man after man was called and excused today, court officials said another venire would be necessary. Should exhausted it would make 1,093 persons called without agreement. A majority of those excused told the court they had already formed an opinion in the case.

BIG PROGRESS FACING NEXT N. C. ASSEMBLY

Although the question of a sales tax has not come up lately as a major political question between J. C. B. Ehringhaus, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, and Clifford Frazier, the Republican nominee, a sales tax is expected to crop up before the Legislature shortly after it convenes.

The State's deficit was piled up despite the fact Governor Gardner cut to the bone departmental appropriations and future reduced State salaries below the 10 per cent cut voted by the 1931 Legislature.

Many members of the "endurance" session will return to Raleigh, barring political upsets.

Angus D. MacLean, of Washington, "father of the 1931 school law, is scheduled to return as a Senator. Robert M. Hanes, of Winston-Salem, a House member last year and leader of the faction which opposed a "luxury" sales tax, also is due to be back—this time in the Senate too.

These two were leaders in the 1931 House, but for most of the time were considered heads of rival factions.

Capus Wavnick, of High Point, is scheduled to be elected to the Senate from Guilford. He was in the House in 1931 and one of its most influential members.

John W. Hindsdale, of Raleigh whose "luxury" sales tax bill was the greater part of the long 1931 session is up for re-election and Democratic Wake County is expected to return him.

"Uncle" Joe Garibaldi, colorful 1931 House member from Charlotte, is expected to return, as are Will Neal, sor manufacturer of Marion; E. G. Flanagan, of Greenville; R. G. Underwood, an author of the 1931 Bank bill, and thirty-four others who served in that memorable session.

Five members of the 1931 Senate are up for re-election and five members of the 1931 House are up for election to the Senate.

ATHLETIC SPARKS DISKY GIRL OF BETTY ILLINT

Greenville, N. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—If Betty Illint is a type, is a bit more athletic than her sisters, the University of North Carolina, the other big university campuses, the University of Illinois, highly developed schemes for the promotion of women's sports are being developed.

Conferences are being held not only to learn the latest methods of various sports, but also to encourage participation in health building and recreational activities.

More than 1,000 girls are enrolled in athletic classes either of regular work or as part of the college course, in which there are also several "majoring" in physical education, of which there are also several "majoring" in physical education.

In addition, more than 150 of the girls take part in hockey, soccer, tennis, golf and other sports under direction of the Women's Athletic Association.

Healthful habits, which are being inculcated, are being inculcated, and the girls physical examinations and memorability and endurance tests to determine the most suitable activities for each student.

TURNOUT FOR WASHINGTON CREW SMALL BUT GOOD

Seattle, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Full crew practice at University of Washington indicates Coach Al Whelan's team will have a "small but good" squad from which to build his 1932 varsity eight.

Six letter men, all but one members of last year's crew team, and several likely letter men, are expected to make up the 1932 varsity eight.

Data Lewis, outstanding freshman who was forced out of crew team after his first varsity race, has returned in good health.

Court Confirms Insults Award

Athens, Greece, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Greek Court of Appeals today confirmed the award of 50,000 drachmas to the Greek Olympic committee, which is being held in connection to the Olympic games.

The court's decision means that the member will be applying with a tradition negotiator in the morning.

German Voters To Go To Polls

Berlin, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Germany was confronted with a head-on battle of charges and counter-charges as voters prepared to elect a new Reichstag tomorrow.

It was generally expected that the party would be able to gain a majority in the Reich and this would appear to leave three routes open to the Junker government of Count-seller Franz Papen.

The Reichstag is confronted with a situation making the election necessary.

The government should make peace with parties of the Central and Right Wings and govern them through the Reichstag.
