ROOSEVELT IS ELECTED

N. C. GIVES ROOSEVELT OVERWHELMING MAJORITY

STATE AGAIN SWINGS BACK TO DEMOCRATS

Reports From Over Half of The Precincts in The State Indicate Sweeping Victory For President, Senator, Congress And Other State Officials.

Charlotte, Nov. 8—(AP)—North Carolina, which swung from its traditional Democratic moorings in the presidential contest of 1928, returned to the Democratic column by an overwhelming majority on the basis of incomplete returns from today's election tabulated here.

Reports from more than half of the state's precincts indicated sweeping Democratic victory for president, senator, congress and state officials.

James S. Duncan, state Republican chairman, said at Greensboro tonight that available reports indicated success for the Democratic ticket by substantial majorities but declined to concede defeat until more returns were in.

At Raleigh, Governor O. Max Gardner predicted Democratic majority of approximately 200,000, the largest of record.

Washington, Nov. 8—(AP)—Returns late today showed a large number of candidates classified by wet and dry organizations as favoring repeal or retention of the 18th amendment elected to the House and anti-prohibitionists referendum in three states rolling up comfortable majorities.

Six members of the new Senate already elected, five of them Democrats, have been recorded as favoring repeal and one senator, Dale, Republican of Vermont, has not been classified definitely.

Elected to the new House were 55 Democrats and 15 Republicans described in various wet and dry polls as being for repeal, nine Democrats and three Republicans for submission and five Republicans and one Democrat for prohibition.

Representatives from Elizabeth City, New Bern, Kinston, Goldsboro, Farmville and Tarboro were expected to be in attendance.

The visitors will be tendered a luncheon at the Woman's Club. Mayor R. C. Plamagan will extend a cordial welcome to the visitors. The sessions will culminate the major part of the day.

WIN SWEEPING VICTORY IN NATIONAL BALLOTING

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner were victorious at the polls yesterday on their promise of a "new deal" to the voters of the nation, Democrats electing them to the Presidency and Vice-Presidency by an overwhelming majority.

County Gives Democrats Greatest Victory In History

ALL BUT TWO PRECINCTS IN

Returns From Fourteen Precincts Give Roosevelt 7,721, Hoover 253, and Thomas 24; Vote Considerably Heavier Than in The June Primary When 7,500 Votes Were Piled up.

Pitt county went to the polls today and piled up an overwhelming majority for Franklin D. Roosevelt Democratic nominee for the presidency, in addition to other national, state and county offices.

The vote, exceeding even the fondest expectations of party leaders, passed the high mark of 7,500 established in the June primary with a total of fourteen precincts reported, the unofficial vote for Roosevelt was 7,721; Hoover 253 and Thomas 24.

The vote was unusually large in the face of rainfall which started during the morning and continued the greater part of the day. Thousands of voters, unimpaired by the drizzling rain, stood for probably an hour or more in the open awaiting their turn to ballot.

This condition was especially so in Greenville where voting was conducted from two places at the courthouse. A long line of persons waited at the Third street entrance to the court house where the voting was held, but in the afternoon the line thinned out and little delay was experienced by the late ones.

Rallying to the call of their leaders, the loyal voters in every precinct also turned in staggering majorities for Robert Reynolds for the Senate; J. C. B. Ehringhaus for governor, and Lindsay Warren.

John C. B. Ehringhaus had no trouble winning the gubernatorial race in North Carolina yesterday, making a clean sweep of the state.

Big Crowd Present As Cooking School Starts

The Daily Reflector's Cooking School got under way at the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon at two o'clock and nearly 200 women interested in providing more nutritious and wholesome meals for their homes were in attendance.

The school will be conducted each afternoon at two o'clock through Friday and thirty housewives over the territory have been given a cordial invitation to attend.

D. J. Winchard Jr., publisher of The Daily Reflector, threw the school open to the public with a few appropriate remarks and introduced Miss Louise Dixon, daughter of Thomas Dixon, the famous writer, and nationally known home economics expert and lecturer, who provided her audience with considerable information relative to the preparation of palatable dishes.

Miss Dixon is assisted by Miss Erma Willis from a modern kitchen on the stage. Miss Dixon prepared many delicious dishes and her audience was given a careful insight into the latest methods in the treatment of foods.

Her preparation of various recipes was a revelation to the scores of enterprising women, many of whom came from a great distance to be present at the school opening, and who declared the school a pronounced success.

ROOSEVELT IS FOR ECONOMY

The President-Elect promises Nation Rigid Economy for the Next Four Years.

By KIRKE SIMPSON

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8—Franklin D. Roosevelt will enter the White House as thirty-second President next March, committed by party platform and personal pledge to a program of wide retrenchment in the cost of Federal government to taxpayers.

Constantly reiterated, that pledge has been a major theme of the economic discussion which marked his Presidential campaign and early modification of the Volstead Act.

Mr. Roosevelt, during his campaign, made one definite pledge toward carrying out this fundamental step that went beyond the four corners of the Democratic platform. No man would be seated at his cabinet table, he promised, who had not pledged himself to loyal co-operation with his retrenchment policy.

In the course of his swing through the country on the most far-ranging campaign tour of any man elected to the Presidency in years, Mr. Roosevelt filled in the outline of his purposes as President with detailed proposals as to many matters.

This was the foundation stone of his "new deal" program, he made retrenchment at home or with other countries, for curing unemployment and for air-line farm recovery. It was even the basis for his insistence upon repeal of the 18th Amendment and early modification of the Volstead Act.

MANY PARTY LEADERS WIN

Strong Democratic House and Senate Indicated as Election Returns Pour in From All Sections of The Nation; South Returns to Solid Fold By Giving Democrats Largest Vote in History; President Sends Roosevelt Congratulations

Born high upon a towering wave of Democratic votes, Franklin D. Roosevelt's lead assumed such proportions that soon after midnight President Hoover conceded the New York Governor's election to the presidency.

For the first time since Woodrow Wilson laid aside the duties of the highest office twelve years ago, a Democrat will become the land's chief executive.

He will assume office at a time of economic stress which furnished the principal talking point of an unusually intensive and bitter campaign.

To mark him in his effort to lead the nation to better times a "strongly Democratic House and Senate" was clearly indicated as the election returns poured in.

The Roosevelt-Garner ticket was acclaimed on a platform advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead law to legalize the manufacture of beer and wine. How completely or how soon this program might be put into effect, if at all, hung however on the Congressional and Senatorial election.

The returns showed a number of candidates whom wet or dry organizations had classified for repeal or retention had been elected to the new House, which meets thirteen months hence. Five of seven Senators who have been definitely elected are recorded for repeal.

From the outset the vote tabulated all indications pointed toward Roosevelt's election and when New York, with her vital block of 47 electoral votes was lifted into the Democratic column, Republican hopes were shaken.

The South, successfully invaded by Hoover in 1928, was once more solidly Democratic. In addition Roosevelt had a commanding lead in many chief cities and "back-up" by a narrow margin in others.

When the President conceded that the day was lost, Governor Roosevelt was leading in all but eight states with an electoral count of 438. The Hoover votes at the time were Michigan, which has been swerving back and forth through the campaign, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maine, Idaho and Delaware.

Kentucky does not seem counting until tomorrow but its vote has been conceded to the Democrats. Barring upsets it would raise the total to 499 or two more than the record Hoover set in 1928.

NO DISORDER IN BALLOTING

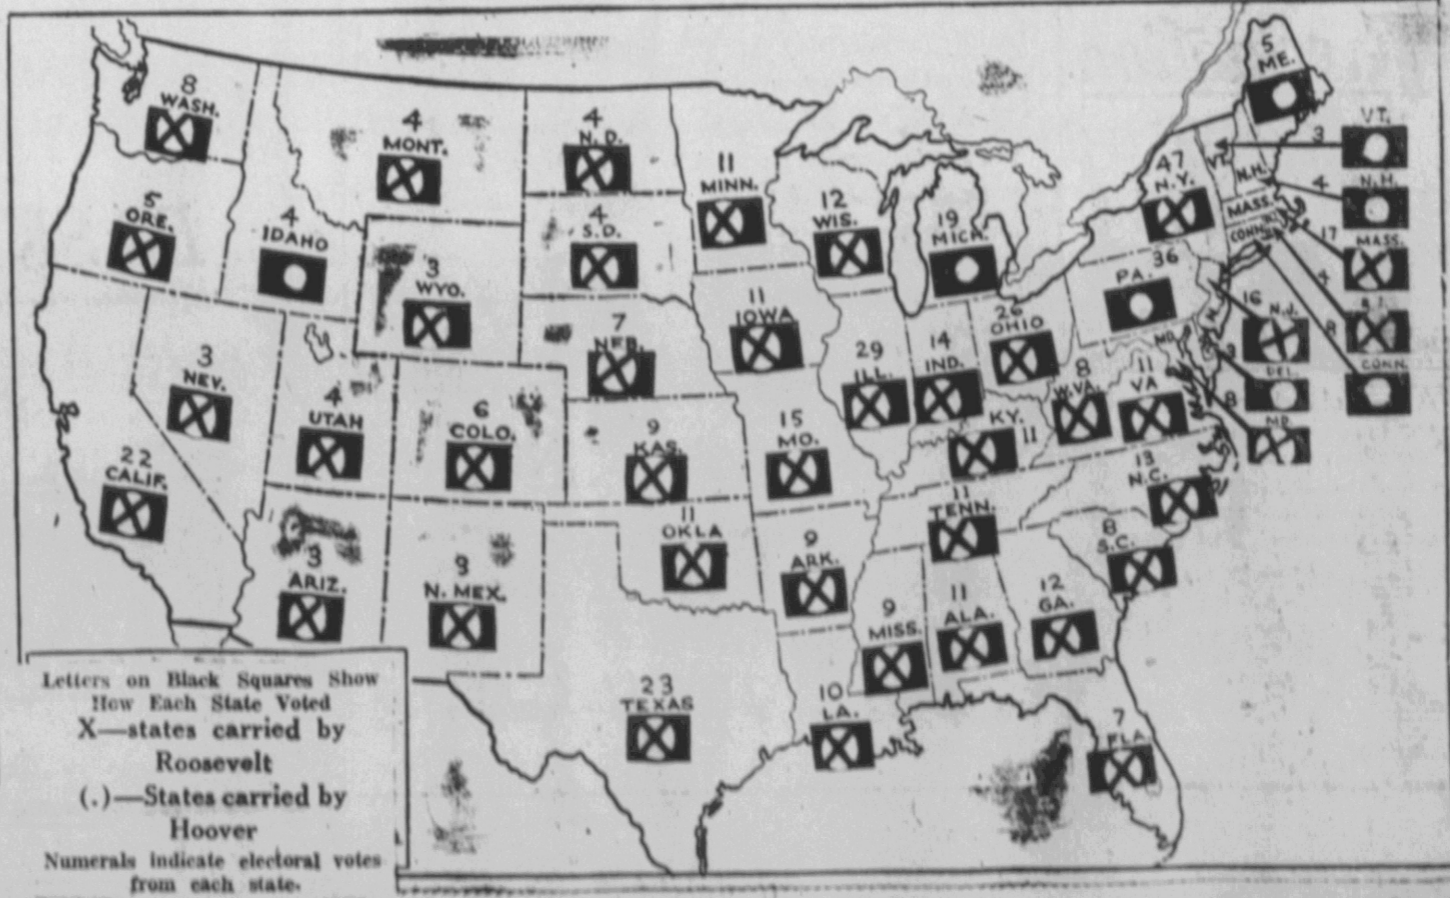

Pitt County Comes Through Election Unscarred and Elated Over Results.

One of the most orderly elections ever held in this county, it is the way people from different sections of the county told of the balloting in various precincts yesterday.

Numbers of eminent political leaders from different parts of the county came to Greenville last night to hear election reports sent out over The Daily Reflector's special broadcasting system, and they were highly pleased over the tremendous majority returned for Franklin D. Roosevelt Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

Although drizzling rain throughout the morning hours and late afternoon probably cut down the vote considerably in some precincts, it did not dampen the ardor of Roosevelt.

Earth to Meet Leonid Meteors During Month

By ROBERT H. BAKER
(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 1.—(AP)—November 14 is a red letter on the astronomer's calendar. On this date the earth passes near or across the orbit of the swarm of Leonid meteors.

If the swarm is at the crossing point when the earth arrives, we shall plunge through it and collide with multitudes of these meteors. Here are no traffic regulations at celestial intersections. The consequence of such collisions would be a fine display of shooting stars.

Moderate Shower Last Year
It must be understood that astronomers are not definitely predicting a spectacular meteoric shower on this date. No one can say in advance whether the earth shall encounter a congested region of the swarm or merely some of the stragglers. That remains to be seen.

The Leonid swarm travels around the sun once in 33 years in an elongated orbit. At intervals of 33 years the earth passes near or through this rather long swarm for two or three years in succession. Last year in the middle of November, the earth with enough of it to produce a moderate shower of meteors.

Leonid showers have occurred over more than a thousand years. A record of one of the early displays reports that "the stars fell like rain." The meteoric showers in November, 1833 and 1866, were so brilliant that superstitious persons feared the world was about to end. Yet only a few meteors fell at the next encounter, in 1899 and 1900.

Most Meteors Small
The Leonids are so named because they seem to spread in all directions from a region in the constellation Leo. The bright streaks really are parallel. We notice the same effect in the case of the parallel rails of a track; they seem to diverge from a point in the distance.

Meteors are pieces of stone or metal. The majority are scarcely larger than the head of a common pin. When we collide with them, they plunge through the atmosphere with terrific speed and usually are entirely consumed by the friction of the air. While they are being consumed they leave bright streaks in the sky, which we call shooting stars.

Few meteors are large enough to partly survive the intense heat of their flight through the air, so that they fall to the ground. And a few of these meteorites are large indeed. For instance, there are two great masses of nickel-iron in Africa each weighing about fifty tons, which fell out of the sky. Thousands of meteorites rained in weight from many tons down to a few ounces are preserved in museums.

These are exceptions. Probably not one in a million is large enough to reach the ground. There is nothing to fear from the Leonid shower of November 14, even if it should prove to be a spectacular one.

Hints on Contract Bridge Up-to-Date

TRIUMPHANT SHUT-OUT
By Tom O'Neil

A pre-emptive overbid often is used successfully by a player who senses that vulnerable opponents have game or slam possibilities. Because of vulnerability and the danger that partner may have no aid, an opponent of the pre-emptive bidder will hesitate to overcall even with a strong hand.

From Lewis Osborne, tournament referee and player and managing director of the Deschappelles Club, New York, comes a hand with which he made four spades doubled when his opponents had a lay-down grand slam in hearts. He had Charles O. Wood as partner.

The hand on which Osborne bid was entirely lacking in quick tricks, primary tricks, honor tricks or any other trick method of valuating holdings. Here it is:

NORTH
OSBORNE	♠	J 10 9 8 6 4 2
	♥	NONE
	♦	J 10 9 7 6
	♣	10
WEST		EAST
	♠	NONE	♠	Q 7 5
	♥	Q 9 8 3	♥	A K 10 7 6 4
	♦	K 5 4 3 2	♦	A
	♣	A 8 6 3	♣	K Q J
SOUTH		WOOD (DEALER)
	♠	A K 3
	♥	9 8 2
	♦	Q 8
	♣	9 7 5 4 2

After south and west correctly passed, it occurred to Osborne that the freakish distribution of his hand indicated that east hand had plenty of tickets. So he bid four spades, reconciling himself to being set with the consolation that game and rubber would be saved perhaps.

East doubled. The only thing he could do other than double would be to bid five hearts, which would have been quite risky ordinarily in view of silence on his partner's part. A new convention provides for a four no trump bid over a pre-emptive opening four of a major by an opponent. Such a convention requires partner to bid his longest suit. But one who makes such a no trump bid must positively be prepared for a response in any suit other than the one bid, and east of course was not ready for a diamond response.

Against Osborne's four-spade contract east led a high heart, which

Christmas? Sure, Toys are Ready; AND they do New Tricks this Year

New York Nov. 8.—(AP)—Christmas is still two months away, but Santa Claus has his pack of toys ready.

And they're trickier than ever this year. Mechanical ingenuity has been stretched to such a point that the new playthings shown at a recent exhibit here not only amused the youngsters, but also made their elders marvel.

For instance, even such a scientific term as "remote control" has found a place in toy making. The very latest thing is a little truck which moves forward, reverses and dumps its load in response to a button 15 feet away. This electrical contraption may sound expensive. But the fact is its price is relatively reasonable.

More complex gimcracks cost less this year than the less imaginative toys of a few seasons back. There is a miniature firehouse with a spring winding attachment. The alarm sounds the doors fly open and the truck speeds out. There is a tiny telephone which says "hello" in a squeaky voice when the earpiece is taken from the hook.

For young sister there is an electric stove which really will bake mud pies (that is if young ladies of 1932 will play with mud pies) and there is a diminutive vacuum cleaner which actually cleans.

The toy trains are finer than ever and their systems of trackage so complicated that their fascination is irresistible to the adult. The autos are as elaborately equipped as the costly gasoline engines after which they're modeled. And the trains and autos likewise are cheaper. Aviation does not inspire so many toys this year, but the ones on display are far superior. Dolls are more versatile and an interesting experiment is being made with rubber bodies. This makes them more life-like, the markers explaining they don't break. Doll wardrobes are as extensive as the 1932 debutantes.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBIN COONS

Hollywood, Nov. 8.—To those who still think a movie contract is the open door to wealth there is Gwili Andre to deny it.

Gwili made more money, she says, as a model in New York than she does under her present contract, which doesn't mean, of course, that she isn't well paid in Hollywood. Posing for commercial photographers, she began at $10 an hour and when established as a model in demand she exacted $25 for the first hour, and $50 an hour after that.

"But there is more future in pictures, and that's why I'm here," she says.

Gwili is the slim bond who arrived eight months ago to receive personally exploitation campaign No. 6346 from Radio pictures—or, in other words, aloof Dane on whom a certain other Scandinavian named Garbo had nothing whatever when it came to mystery.

Not So Mysterious

She was denied to interviewers and pictured as an ethereal creature who might float away at any minute. She does look that way, very blond, very delicate, very slender. But she went to parties, and mingled freely, and never looked sad and forlorn, so what was the use?

According to Gwili, the no-interview rule was simply to avoid an excess of publicity before she had done anything on the screen. After all, she hadn't acted a day in her life when she was signed.

Gwili was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, she says, and came to this country with an aunt who frequently visited in Florida. Back in Denmark, where she went to school, she was Gurli Andres—pronounced "Gurli."

Three or four years ago she had a screen test and came to Hollywood, but gave it up after looking around a bit and finding all the studios excited about the talkies. She had a heavy accent—and besides, she was making money in New York. She came out the second time, when she was "discovered" there.

Likes Danish Food

Gwili plays solitaire, likes to read on a swim at the beach, and craves Danish food. She has taken a house in Beverly Hills and plans to employ a Danish cook.

"I get so tired of thin sauces and plain foods," she complains. "I like food rich and seasoned—and oh! for some good schnapps! But I do like American steak and potatoes. . . . It'll be quite all right with the American figure, which is inclined to thinness, when she does get that cook."

"It's almost as bad to be thin as to worry about reducing," she sighs. "And I'm too nervous ever to put on weight."

The Minnesota Historical Society, which recently celebrated its eighty-third birthday, is nearly nine years older than the State whose lore it preserves.

The 1932 city directory of Milwaukee contains a Hug, a Kiss and a Goodby.

was ruffled in the dealer's hand. Osborne led a low spade to the king, west showing out.

North ruffled a heart and finessed a spade, then caught east's queen of spades and led a diamond from the south hand. West played low and east took the trick with the ace, leading a club.

After that west and east made only another diamond and north's diamond suit was set up for the rest of the tricks, contract and game.

PULCHRITUDE REVUE WILL BE PRESENTED FRIDAY EVENING

Each girl taking part in the pageant will be sponsored by a local merchant. About 35 young women are expected to take part in the contest. Out-of-town judges will be used, thereby eliminating the "popularity" element from this choice, since the young women are to be judged for their beauty alone.

The young women will appear in various costumes ranging from bathing suits, sports wear to evening dress. It will be one of the most dazzling spectacles presented here in many a day and hundreds were expected to be present to witness the display of loveliness.

"Miss Greenville" will be awarded a loving cup bearing the inscription "Miss Greenville—1932" and will be entitled to entrance to a state show to be held in Raleigh the third week in December. There she will compete for the title of "Miss North Carolina" along with winners from 35 other towns of the state.

"Miss Wilson" who was chosen last week will be presented on the stage that night wearing the same costume in which she won the Wilson cup.

Someone has said a person should keep his troubles from his neighbors—and quietly go to a garden and enjoy the beauty of the flowers and stones. There they would dissolve.

"Scarlet Bunny" To Be Presented By Local Talent
"The Adventures of Betty and Scarlet Bunny," a series of stories written by Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, were published in the Daily Reflector some months ago.

The stories were so interesting to children that they were later published in several papers in North Carolina, and also in book form.

In addition to this the stories were dramatized by Mrs. Anne Glenn Robeson of Greenville. This dramatized form is soon to be released from the press under the title, "Betty and Scarlet Bunny, a Three-Act Fairy Play for Children."

The play is described by the publishers as being one of the most attractive children's plays ever produced. It contains several attractive songs written by Mr. Lillycrop, and lovely fairy dances composed by Mrs. E. T. Robeson of the Greenville Public Schools.

Of interest to Greenville people is the fact that this play, which is entirely a Greenville product, is to be given its initial presentation in Greenville on December 2nd.

The Junior Guild of St. Paul's Church, assisted by more than one hundred Greenville children, is hard at work preparing a very beautiful production of the play.

Earth to Meet Leonid Meteors During Month

By ROBERT H. BAKER
(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 1.—(AP)—November 14 is a red letter on the astronomer's calendar. On this date the earth passes near or across the orbit of the swarm of Leonid meteors.

If the swarm is at the crossing point when the earth arrives, we shall plunge through it and collide with multitudes of these meteors. Here are no traffic regulations at celestial intersections. The consequence of such collisions would be a fine display of shooting stars.

Moderate Shower Last Year
It must be understood that astronomers are not definitely predicting a spectacular meteoric shower on this date. No one can say in advance whether the earth shall encounter a congested region of the swarm or merely some of the stragglers. That remains to be seen.

The Leonid swarm travels around the sun once in 33 years in an elongated orbit. At intervals of 33 years the earth passes near or through this rather long swarm for two or three years in succession. Last year in the middle of November, the earth with enough of it to produce a moderate shower of meteors.

Leonid showers have occurred over more than a thousand years. A record of one of the early displays reports that "the stars fell like rain." The meteoric showers in November, 1833 and 1868, were so brilliant that superstitious persons feared the world was about to end. Yet only a few meteors fell at the next encounter, in 1899 and 1900.

Most Meteors Small
The Leonids are so named because they seem to spread in all directions from a region in the constellation Leo. The bright streaks really are parallel. We notice the same effect in the case of the parallel rails of a track: they seem to diverge from a point in the distance.

Meteors are pieces of stone or metal. The majority are scarcely larger than the head of a common pin. When we collide with them, they plunge through the atmosphere with terrific speed and usually are entirely consumed by the friction of the air. While they are being consumed they leave bright streaks in the sky, which we call shooting stars.

Some meteors are large enough to partly survive the intense heat of their flight through the air, so that they fall to the ground. And a few of these meteorites are large indeed. For instance, there are two great masses of nickel-iron in Africa each weighing about fifty tons, which fell out of the sky. Thousands of meteorites ranging in weight from many tons down to a few ounces are preserved in museums.

These are exceptions. Probably not one in a million is large enough to reach the ground. There is nothing to fear from the Leonid shower of November 14, even if it should prove to be a spectacular one.

Hints on Contract Bridge Up-to-Date

TRUMPHANT SHUT-OUT
By Tom O'Neil

A pre-emptive overbid often is used successfully by a player who senses that vulnerable opponents have game or slam possibilities. Because of vulnerability and the danger that partner may have no aid, an opponent of the pre-emptive bidder will hesitate to overcall even with a strong hand.

From Lewis Osborne, tournament referee and player and managing director of the Deschappelles Club, New York, comes a hand with which he made four spades doubled when his opponents had a lay-down grand slam in hearts. He had Charles O. Wood as partner.

The hand on which Osborne bid was entirely lacking in quick tricks, primary tricks, honor tricks or any other trick method of valuating holdings. Here it is:

NORTH
OSBORNE	♠ J 10 9 8 4 2	♥ NONE	♦ J 10 9 7 6
	♣ 10
WEST		EAST
♠ NONE	♠ Q 7 5	♥ A K 10 7 4	♥ A
♥ Q J 9 3	♥ A K 10 7 4	♦ A	♦ A
♦ K 5 4 3 2	♦ A	♣ K Q J	♣ K Q J
♣ A 8 6 3	♣ K Q J
SOUTH
WOOD (MULLER)	♠ A K 3	♥ 9 8 2	♦ Q 8
	♣ 9 7 5 4 2

After south and west correctly passed, it occurred to Osborne that the freakish distribution of his hand indicated that east hand had plenty of tickets. So he bid four spades, reconciling himself to being set with the consolation that game and rubber would be saved perhaps.

East doubled. The only thing he could do other than double would be to bid five hearts, which would have been quite risky ordinarily in view of silence on his partner's part. A new convention provides for a four no trump bid over a pre-emptive opening four of a major by an opponent. Such a convention requires partner to bid his longest suit. But one who makes such a no trump bid must positively be prepared for a response in any suit other than the one bid, and east of course was not ready for a diamond response.

Against Osborne's four-spade contract east led a high heart, which

Christmas? Sure, Toys are Ready; AND they do New Tricks this Year

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Christmas is still two months away, but Santa Claus has his pack of toys ready. And they're trickier than ever this year. Mechanical ingenuity has been stretched to such a point that the new playthings shown at a recent exhibit here not only amused the youngsters but also made their elders marvel.

For instance, even such a scientific term as "remote control" has found a place in toy making. The very latest thing is a little truck which moves forward, reverses and dumps its load in response to a button 15 feet away. This electrical contraption may sound expensive. But the fact is its price is relatively reasonable.

More complex gimcracks cost less this year than the less imaginative toys of a few seasons back.

There is a miniature firehouse with a spring winding attachment. The alarm sounds, the doors fly open and the truck speeds out. There is a tiny telephone which says "hello" in a squeaky voice when the earpiece is taken from the hook.

For young sister there is an electric stove which really will bake mud pies (that is if young ladies of 1932 will play with mud pies) and there is a diminutive vacuum cleaner which actually cleans.

The toy trains are finer than ever and their systems of trackage so complicated that their fascination is irresistible to the adult. The autos are as elaborately equipped as the costly gasoline engines after which they're modeled. And the trains and autos likewise are cheaper. Aviation does not inspire so

Hollywood, Nov. 3.—To those who still think a movie contract is the open door to wealth there is Gwili Andre to deny it.

Gwili made more money, she says, as a model in New York than she does under her present contract, which doesn't mean, of course, that she isn't well paid in Hollywood. Posing for commercial photographers, she began at $10 an hour and when established as a model in demand she exacted $25 for the first hour, and $50 an hour after that.

For young sister there is an electric stove which really will bake mud pies (that is if young ladies of 1932 will play with mud pies) and there is a diminutive vacuum cleaner which actually cleans.

Not So Mysterious
She was denied to interviewers and pictured as an ethereal creature who might float away at any minute. She does look that way, very blond, very delicate, very slender. But she went to parties, and mingled freely, and never looked sad and forlorn, so what was the use?

According to Gwili, the no-interview rule was simply to avoid an excess of publicity before she had done anything on the screen. After all, she hadn't acted a day in her life when she was signed. Gwili was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, she says, and came to this country with an aunt who frequently visited in Florida. Back in Denmark, where she went to school, she was Guri Andre—pronounced "Gurle."

Three or four years ago she had a screen test and came to Hollywood, but gave it up after looking around a bit and finding all the studios excited about the talkies. She had a heavy accent—and besides, she was making money in New York. She came out the second time, when she was "discovered" there.

Likes Danish Food
Gwili plays solitaire, likes to read and swim at the beach, and craves Danish food. She has taken a house in Beverly Hills and plans to employ a Danish cook. "I get so tired of thin sauces and plain foods," she complains. "I like food rich and seasoned—and oh! for some good schnapps! But I do like American steak and potatoes. . . . It'll be quite all right with the American figure, which is inclined to thinness, when she does get that cook."

"It's almost as bad to be thin as to worry about reducing," she sighs. "And I'm too nervous ever to put on weight."

North ruffled a heart and finessed a spade, then caught east's queen of spades and led a diamond from the south hand. West played low and east took the trick with the ace, leading a club.

After that west and east made only another diamond and north's diamond suit was set up for the rest of the tricks, contract and game.

PULCHRITUDE REVUE WILL BE PRESENTED FRIDAY EVENING

A beauty revue will be staged at the State Theatre Friday night at 8:45 in which the honor of "Miss Greenville" will be conferred upon one of a bevy of young women competing for the high honor.

Each girl taking part in the pageant will be sponsored by local merchant. About 35 young women are expected to take part in the contest. Out-of-town judges will be used, thereby eliminating the "popularity" element from this choice, since the young women are to be judged for their beauty alone.

The young women will appear in various costumes ranging from bathing suits, sports wear to evening dress. It will be one of the most dazzling spectacles presented here in many a day and hundreds were expected to be present to witness the display of loveliness.

"Miss Greenville" will be awarded a loving cup bearing the inscription "Miss Greenville—1932" and will be entitled to entrance to a state show to be held in Raleigh the third week in December. There she will compete for the title of "Miss North Carolina" along with winners from 35 other towns of the state.

"Miss Wilson" who was chosen last week will be presented on the stage that night wearing the same costume in which she won the Wilson cup.

Despite the high percentage of German names in Milwaukee, the 1932 city directory shows fifty-four John Smiths to fifty-three John Schmidts.

MY BEAUTY HINT
By Norma Shearer
Someone has said a person should keep his troubles from his neighbors—and quietly go to a garden and enjoy the beauty of the flowers and stones. There they would dissolve.

The same results, I have found, can be obtained by gathering together harmonious articles for one's surroundings. Priceless pictures or rare pieces of art are not needed to get this effect.

Simply find what colors are most pleasing for drapes and decorations and choose such things as are restful. Restfulness, serenity, bring you poise and charm.

"Scarlet Bunny" To Be Presented By Local Talent

"The Adventures of Betty and Scarlet Bunny," a series of stories written by Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, were published in The Daily Reflector some months ago.

The stories were so interesting to children that they were later published in several papers in North Carolina, and also in book form.

In addition to these stories were dramatized by Mrs. Anne Glenn Robeson of Greenville. This dramatized form is soon to be released from the press under the title, "Betty and Scarlet Bunny, a Three-Act Fairy Play for Children."

The play is described by the publishers as being one of the most attractive children's plays ever produced. It contains several attractive songs written by Mr. Lillycrop, and lovely fairy dances composed by Mr. E. T. Robeson of the Greenville Public Schools.

Of interest to Greenville people is the fact that this play, which is entirely a Greenville product, is to be given its initial presentation in Greenville on December 2nd.

The Junior Guild of St. Paul's Church, assisted by more than one hundred Greenville children, is hard at work preparing a very beautiful production of the play.

ABOUT TOWN

The election is over, and whether it came out to please everybody or not, the majority will be glad it is history.

It has been many a day since the American people have witnessed such a colorful campaign, and while it was fraught with interest, all of us are grateful for the rest coming in its wake.

There are lots of happy people throughout the nation and there are many who feel that the wheels of government will continue to grind in the past, doing its bit to bring happiness to the millions of people who have faith in its operation every four years.

Elections always have a salutary effect on the country. They prevent government of the operation of it from becoming monotonous and prove that America is continually producing great men of sufficient mental calibre to carry the helm of state safely through the storms which beset it from time to time.

They are testing times for great political powers and cause such political powers to cause such to strive harder than ever to give the people the kind of government necessary to their welfare and happiness.

The power of the vote in this country can never be discounted and many a man in past years who thought he was riding the high tide of popular favor found that he was riding the low tide of disfavor when the people were given a chance to have their say at the polls.

As long as this system of government continues there is no danger of the nation giving away to some of the political prattlings of communism and other teachings tending to tear down the high ideals upon which all great governments are built.

Always traditionally Democratic, Pitt county people proved their political faith to the world yesterday by turning in a splendid majority for Franklin D. Roosevelt and other members of the party seeking high office.

When other parts of the state fell down in 1928, old Pitt county, faithful until the last, turned in a victory which causes the hearts of all true Democrats to swell with pride.

She helped other parts of the State to live down in this election their straying from the fold in 1928 and will forever be found on the job upholding the principles of Democracy when the testing time comes.

The country ran true to the predictions of the Democratic chairman, W. E. Hooks, and voted in a way that caused the chests of leaders to swell with pride. As they surveyed the vote this morning they were bound to have felt that they had fought a good fight indeed.

This is the season of big business in this part of the country and merchants of Greenville have prepared themselves to be able to take care of the wants of their hundreds of patrons.

Stores in keeping with those of other years when money was easier have been stocked this year to show the section that Greenville continues to be the principal shopping center of this section of the state.

Always on the alert to give their patrons the best to be had at all seasons of the year, the merchants are preparing to restock between now and Christmas and be in position to offer the most extensive bargains in history.

People who have not traded here in recent years should join the crowd visiting the city from time to time and share some of the excellent bargains on the shelves of the various business houses.

President Hoover made the last speech of his campaign in California yesterday afternoon. It was heard all over the country by those people who were not too occupied with the important business of casting their ballots.

A PATH TO PARADISE

by Coningsby DAWSON

SYNOPSIS: Clive uses the curiosity of a friend of Santa's about his and Santa's affairs as an argument that they announce their marriage, even though it was contracted immediately after Santa's divorce from Dicky. Meanwhile, Santa, unknown to Clive, has rented an apartment so expensive she must help pay for it, and ordered the furniture she and Dicky used sent on.

Chapter 21 THE SECRET OUT

Clive told Santa what had happened. "This can't go on!" He rumbled his hair wildly. "If she fancied things there may be dozens of others who'd do the same."

"But darling," Santa mocked him, "let them fancy. To me this is all screamingly funny."

Her lack of sensitiveness staggered him. "I feel like killing anyone who doesn't regard you reverently, Santa."

She crossed the room and butted him. "Who wants to be regarded reverently? With you I don't care a cent what anybody thinks about me. We know we're respectable. And if we weren't, since we're happy, would it matter?—I'm afraid it would to you."

"Why earn a reputation which you don't deserve?" he asked patiently. "We earn nothing by letting friends who happen to see us together believe we're playing hooky."

Her giggle halted him. "You are a cure, Clive. What do you want me to do? Have hand-bills printed, announce the date of my divorce and re-marriage? Of course, if you're really big—"

He slipped his hand over her mouth. "Don't say it!" Her mood of mischief faded to penitence.

"But give me time," she clutched him. "To hide here with you is so restful!" He reached for the telephone.

"We ought at least to tell your parents!" She snatched the receiver from him. "No"—and fell to weeping.

That last minute address did not do the President any good. People had already made up their minds how they were going to vote and it is not likely anything he said swayed them from their purpose.

Last minute speeches of this kind should be abandoned. The people certainly had plenty of time to make up their minds before election day, and those who had not didn't think much about voting anyway.

Friday is Armistice Day and the Pitt County post of the American Legion, assisted by the Auxiliary is going to put on a celebration in keeping with the importance of the occasion.

This is one of the most important days observed by the nation and everybody appreciative of what has been accomplished against Germany should go out and help the boys pay honor to those who gave their all for the great cause.

Always traditionally Democratic, Pitt county people proved their political faith to the world yesterday by turning in a splendid majority for Franklin D. Roosevelt and other members of the party seeking high office.

When other parts of the state fell down in 1928, old Pitt county, faithful until the last, turned in a victory which causes the hearts of all true Democrats to swell with pride.

She helped other parts of the State to live down in this election their straying from the fold in 1928 and will forever be found on the job upholding the principles of Democracy when the testing time comes.

The country ran true to the predictions of the Democratic chairman, W. E. Hooks, and voted in a way that caused the chests of leaders to swell with pride. As they surveyed the vote this morning they were bound to have felt that they had fought a good fight indeed.

This is the season of big business in this part of the country and merchants of Greenville have prepared themselves to be able to take care of the wants of their hundreds of patrons.

Stores in keeping with those of other years when money was easier have been stocked this year to show the section that Greenville continues to be the principal shopping center of this section of the state.

Always on the alert to give their patrons the best to be had at all seasons of the year, the merchants are preparing to restock between now and Christmas and be in position to offer the most extensive bargains in history.

People who have not traded here in recent years should join the crowd visiting the city from time to time and share some of the excellent bargains on the shelves of the various business houses.

her across the table. "On what?" She wriggled. "Oh, the apartment! If you are. But no descriptions. I refuse to prejudice you in its favor."

"Through lunch he tried to wheedle information. "How many rooms? What's the rent? In what part of town?" She rapped his fingers.

"Be patient!" Hevi g strolled up Fifth Avenue and entered the Park, he confided to him would spot everything. The date she set for telling her parents was when the apartment was ready for occupancy. To break the news when they had a home, impressed her as more seemly.

At last on a Saturday morning very breakfast she ended his suspense. "I've found a wonderful apartment."

"That's good, if you think I can afford it." "Well, here's what I propose: this afternoon, instead of attending a matinee, let's take a look at it."

"I'd love to," he consented eagerly. "We've seen all the best places and, to tell the truth, I'm tired of theaters."

"It's to rent furnished," she volunteered the none too truthful information. "We can move in this evening if you approve. How about meeting me up town at the Angouleme for lunch? From there it's only a step and we can inspect it."

The moment he had departed she set to work packing. A lkd the office, surrendered the room and paid the bill. Long before lunch-time, his clothes were hanging in a garage cupboard; and his shirts were lying orderly in drawers which once had belonged to his predecessor.

From the new apartment, before setting out to keep her rendezvous with Clive, Santa held a mysterious telephone conversation. "That you, Mummy? It's no news to me that I didn't write. Had my reasons. I'm in New York. Is Father free this afternoon? I want both of you to come to tea. Have a surprise. Will you stop talking long enough to take down the address? That's right—Central Park West."

At the Angouleme she arrived flushed and brilliant-eyed minutes ahead of time. She tried to pick out the girls in the room who were married or engaged or maiden. She couldn't. That was comforting. Clive never said it, but he always seemed to see a sylvan two branched on her forehead.

A pair of young women came next to her were talking confidentially in smoke-cracked voices. Clive retted dripped from their mouths, their knees were crossed, their skirts tilted.

"But don't you rent a egg. A egg learns nothing from experience; it just grows stale." Santa took courage from the philosophy. Because she wasn't a egg, she'd come behind Clive's back in the matter of the apartment. She'd learned from experience that to hold a man you must make a background. Hadn't she lost one husband? Nevertheless, she scarcely knew how to face him. She felt empty.

Her head bowed as in prayer, she was futively listless, when her car was pinched. "He lo, sight for sore eyes!" Would he see things like that when he learned how she'd managed and out-manoeuvred him? She'd followed Machiave's principle—don't let that good might come of it. Could she trust him to credit her with the good?

"Still keen on it?" he grinned at her across the table.

thing at the wrong moment, Mrs. Dawn perpetrated another break. "I must say, darling, the furniture we gave you and Dick fits in very nicely—and your other wedding presents look nice."

How will Clive take the knowledge that he is living among the relics of his predecessor?

GREENVILLE

Leading and Steadily Gaining—

Prices Now Highest of Season

Greenville Continues to be World's Largest Bright Tobacco Market! One week ago Greenville's lead was 903,077 pounds. This week we find the record to be—

Greenville Has Sold 30,104,810 Pounds Next Nearest Market Has Sold 28,897,100 Pounds

Greenville's Lead 1,207,710 Pounds

Greenville is leading all other markets because we are paying more for every grade of tobacco. Competition has never been keener, and some of the markets are getting frantic offering all kinds of wild inducements, even to hauling tobacco free if they will bring their tobacco to them. Every thinking farmer knows he pays the bill if he takes up with these wildcat schemes.

We believe the farmers of Pitt county will stand by their market, which has proven to be the best and largest bright tobacco market in the state.

Grade carefully, keep your tobacco dry and "drive in" early in order to avoid any rush.

DUKE DEVILS WILL TACKLE STATE SOON

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—State College and Duke University North Carolina's two most colorful football elevens play here Saturday in the Old North State's most colorful football attraction.

State and Duke were victorious over two excellent gridiron machines this past Saturday. The Wolfpack defeated Davidson 7-3 and the Blue Devils hammered out a 13-0 win over Kentucky.

The two wins have set State College athletic officials to worrying over how to take care of the 15,000 spectators expected to witness the battle at Kenan Field to watch the battle.

Dr. Ray R. Sermon, athletic director at State, says additional temporary bleachers will be erected if possible. The game is sure to break the attendance record of 12,000 set by the State-Wake Forest game in October.

The Wolfpack and the Blue Devil machines are packed with a goodly number of possible thrills and Saturday's game should see a number on display.

Coach Wallace Wade will bring his team to Raleigh seeking revenge for the unexpected 14-9 the Wolfpack handed it in Durham last fall. The Devils will also seek to keep their state record clean.

State invariably plays its best football game against Duke and this the Blue Devils know. Coach C. C. Smith of State has the most powerful and perhaps the highest backfield in the state. The first string backfield is built around Mope Cunniskey, fullback Cunniskey was running at top form against Davidson. He carried the ball sixteen times and averaged close to four yards a trip, never failing to gain.

CAROLINA IS GETTING SET FOR THE CATS

Chapel Hill, Nov. 8.—The Carolina line is due for considerable overhauling this week and chances are that the Tar Heels may show a new face or so in the front ranks at Davidson Saturday.

Some of the ranking guards tackle have shown a let-down in their play, while Bill Collins and Mac Caldwell with the rookies have been stepping in and sealing the linelight.

Brother Chueff is overhauling and retooling Carolina's whole front wall this week. Davidson looms a tough foe since the 7-3 State-Davidson game, and a shakeup or two in the Carolina line wouldn't be a complete surprise, for the coaches weren't at all pleased with the guard and tackle play in Carolina's close 12-13 victory over Florida.

The Carolina backfields may also have to be realigned to make room for Bill Croon. The galloping half-back returned to competition in the Florida game with a bang, passing for one touchdown and dashing 45 yards for another and featuring with Kay Thompson in Carolina's secondary defenses.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

It may be open to debate just how much of it has been fostered by the new rules, but I have not known a football season since 1925 in which more and longer forward passing has been so conspicuous.

Passing offensives such as Southern California, Michigan, Colgate, Pittsburgh, Auburn, Columbia, Purdue and other powerful teams have generated this year surpass anything since that original season when Princeton and Dartmouth, with Swede Oberkeller starring for the Indians, filled the air with footballs and the enemy with consternation.

Possibly coaches have concentrated more upon the development of aerial attacks because of the effect of the new "dead ball" rule upon running attacks. Ground no longer can be gained through the line or around the wings of the type of ball-carrier who would still be moving forward after being knocked off his feet or temporarily upset. Under the new rules the runner is stopped, whether he is tackled, knocked down or stumbles.

Consequently the percentage of possible gains, with a pass, is increased in proportion to the loss in potential running advance.

The big gamble is still there in any kind of an aerial offense, but an increasing number of our stars have shown ability to put a "touch-down pass" out of the bag.

No Baseball For Feal

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Dick Feal, Northwestern University end, once had ambitions to be a big league baseball player, but a football injury necessitated removal of a bone from his wrist, which ruined his batting swing.

... Do you know WHICH BAKING POWDER is an actual aid to HEALTH

ALL good baking powders leaven, some better than others. All have ingredients sanctioned by law, and must maintain certain standards in manufacture. But RUMFORD the pure all-phosphate BAKING POWDER has certain definite characteristics which only a pure all-phosphate baking powder can have. One of the most important is that Rumford adds real food value wherever it is used, either in baking or in general cooking. As all housewife-cooks know, this is very important, especially in the diet of young children.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

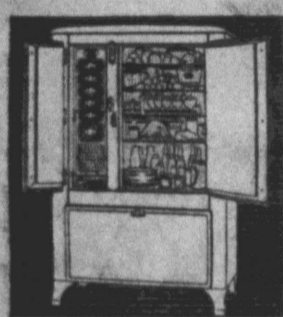

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

KELVINATOR

Kelvinator is the only fully automatic electric refrigerator. No danger of freezing foods—no forgetting to turn dials on or off when in a hurry.

Iso-Thermic Tubes—Kelvinator's own development and exclusive property—make this automatic operation possible.

There are four temperature zones—each automatic and constant: (1) Food preservation, constantly below 50°; (2) Frost Chest for fish, meats and game, constantly below freezing; (3) Ice cube trays, fast freezing; (4) World's Record Fast Freezing Speed, for making frozen desserts or ice cubes in a hurry.

In addition to being fully automatic, Kelvinator complies with all the requirements of the Standard Rating Scale, a copy of which is yours for the asking.

Fiery Garner In Novel Role As Head Of Sedate Senate

From Texas cowboy to second highest official in the nation runs the career of John Nance Garner, vice-president-elect. He is shown at left above in a typical pose, at right in formal attire. Below as he will appear, presiding over the senate.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—(AP)—A novel role awaits John Nance Garner when he takes up his duties as Vice-President of the United States.

It's the role of presiding officer of the Senate, a part far different from the one he played as Speaker of the House of Representatives last spring. Then Garner guided the House with its 435 members through a seething session.

As President of the more sedate Senate, the fiery Texan will rule over a body of only ninety-six men, who are governed by bans on parliamentary ferocity that may make their deliberations seem quite tame to him.

Garner, like Theodore Roosevelt, and General Charles Gates Dawes, is a bit more dynamic than the conventional Vice-Presidential type. Strife-hardened, the one-time cowboy is reputed to be at his best and happiest in the give-and-take of congressional combat.

Although he has evinced an apparent distaste for putting on "front" and has taken particular pride in being considered one of the "plain people," the Texan possesses a simple dignity and the capacity to command the attention of legislative bodies.

It is believed unlikely that he will attempt, as did Vice-President Dawes, to cut much of the so-called red tape of Senate procedure.

While on occasions he has been as explosive as the brusque Dawes, who flabbergasted the Senate by his unorthodox manner of presiding. Garner has shown that he can be a patient conformist.

The social duties of the Vice-Presidency probably will present the biggest problem for Garner who for years has almost invariably been in bed every night by 9:30 o'clock. He is a pleasant companion, a good story teller and a capital bridge player, but neither he nor Mrs. Garner has gone in for the Washington society that is spelled with a capital S.

Garner will be sixty-three, twelve years older than President-elect Roosevelt, when he takes over the Vice-Presidency. He apparently is in good health.

In recent years he has been more alert to conserve his energy, and it may be that he will be content now to become a quasi-spectator of the continuous battle on Capitol Hill.

Talks to Parents

AN UNMANAGEABLE CHILD

By Alice Judson Peale

A mother brought her little daughter to the child guidance clinic because she had become unmanageable.

The trouble had begun, it seemed, at about the time of her younger brother's death a year ago. Ever since then she had been disobedient, destructive, and even vicious towards her mother.

The mother was quite sure that nothing in her own treatment of the child could be at fault. She always had been considered a good mother. She had devoted herself to her children ever since they were born and had tried to make them happy.

The little boy had never given her the least trouble. He had been obedient and devoted.

Here she sighed: "I wonder why it is always the good ones who have to die?"

But she caught herself quickly. "Of course I loved them both the same, but sometimes I can't help but say to Elsie, 'Why did you have to live when your little brother who was so good had to die! I think maybe if I talk that way she will be ashamed and try to mind."

The roots of Elsie's unmanageableness are plain to see. The child sensed what her mother would not admit, although she betrayed herself so plainly—that the boy was her favorite.

How could the little girl fail to feel the brutality of the reproach which was to make her "ashamed and try to mind?"

What child would not react in hate toward a mother who at but wished one dead if it would bring to life the child that she had loved more?

Four Generations In President-Elect's Family; White House to See Much of 'Little Roosevelts'

When the Roosevelts hold family reunions at the White House after next March 4, they will be good-sized gatherings, for it is a four-generation family. On the extreme left and right are the President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt. In the group standing, left to right: Elliott, Franklin, Jr.; James and John, their sons, and Curtis B. B. Dall, son-in-law. Seated are Mrs. Jamps Roosevelt, mother of the President-elect and Mrs. Dall daughter. She is holding Curtis Dall, Jr. At left is the Hyde Park home of the Roosevelts, at right, their new residence, the White House.

Hyde Park, N. Y.—(AP)—It's a four-generation family that will hold the keys to the White House after next March 4. The great-grandmother is Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of Franklin D. Roosevelt; the grandparents are the President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt; the grandchildren are their sons and daughters: James-Elliott, Franklin, Jr.; John and Mrs. Curtis B. Dall; and the great-grandchildren are the daughters and son of Mr. and Mrs. Dall and Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt. All of these may be expected at the White House on holidays because the Roosevelt family makes habit of reunions. The laughter of children probably will be heard often about the White House because the daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Dall, Anna Eleanor, age 5, and Curtis Roosevelt, age 2, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, Sara-ah Delano, 8 months old, are popular members of the family. Mrs. Dall, only daughter of the President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt, was Anna Eleanor Roosevelt before her marriage. She assists her mother in editing a new magazine on children. She spoke during the recent campaign and is active in civic affairs. She looks much like her mother, except for being very blond. She married Mr. Dall, who is in the investment business in 1926. James, 23, is the eldest son of the President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt and was active during the campaign in New England. He is now in the insurance business in Boston. His wife was Beasey Cushing of Boston. They were married in 1930. Elliott Roosevelt is the second son of Mr. Roosevelt. He married Betty Donner, daughter of William Donner, steel manufacturer of Villanova, Pa. He is now in the advertising business. John, 16, and Franklin, Jr., 18, are students at Groton where their father attended before them. They are both interested in athletics.

ROOSEVELT IS ELECTED

(Continued from Page One) candidate a lead of more than six to one; in Virginia he was ahead by more than two to one; his advantage in Florida was three to one and in North Carolina four to one.

In addition the border states of Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky which went to Hoover for years ago were piling up big majorities for Roosevelt.

Returns from Michigan developed a see-saw battle with first Roosevelt then Hoover ahead. In Rhode Island the situation was the same.

President Hoover watching the returns turning with increasing favor to his opponent in forty states sent to Governor Roosevelt shortly after midnight the following message:

"I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to the country. The President-elect shortly before had to workers in New York party headquarters. I hope all of us will do what we can to restore this country to prosperity."

Knots of people were to be seen a short distance from the polls in all sections of the county, and while many a person was the victim of sharp shafts of sarcasm, none of the flaccid epithets as of recent years were in evidence.

In the words of V. E. Staton of Bethel, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, who was numbered among the visitors of the city last night, "it was one of the most orderly elections in Bethel I ever saw."

J. Paul Davenport, of Pactolus, a former chairman of the Board of Commissioners, was also loud in his praise of the splendid way in which voters conducted themselves. He said Pactolus did its bit for the Democratic party as always, and came through for a "new deal" in an inspirational way.

W. E. Stokes, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, was also among the visitors, and he paid tribute to the magnificent style in which the people responded to his appeal to "help Pitt County pile up the greatest majority in years."

The tabulation of votes in all communities was conducted swiftly following the closing of the polls and the world knew how Pitt County "went" much sooner than in some of the other districts where the vote was not handled as rapidly.

All in all, it was one of the most satisfying general elections the county has ever held and thousands of people slept more soundly because of the fact that they had done their bit toward helping their party lift the nation out of the pit of despair resulting from the economic situation which has swept over the country the last two years like a tidal wave of calamity, depressing human misery and suffering.

ROOSEVELT FOR ECONOMY

They constituted the blueprint of the "new deal" to which he pledged himself, in his speech to the Chicago convention accepting the Presidential nomination.

A nine-point program of remedies designed to prevent recurrence of the economic crash marked Mr. Roosevelt's first major address of the campaign, delivered at Columbus, Ohio, in August.

This program called for rigid scrutiny and control by the Federal government of securities based on interstate commerce, and restriction of the use of reserve bank funds in speculative operations. As a principle of executive policy he pledged himself to avoid even implied government approval of private loans abroad.

An eight-point program for control of public utilities supplemented this general outline during Mr. Roosevelt's Western tour.

This program included publicity for security, national investment and industry, ownership of stocks and bonds and intercompany contracts; a plan of holding companies by the Federal Power Commission; criminal statutes to cover false representations, and substitution of the "prudent investment" for the "prudent conduct" theory in rate-making.

A seven-point program for railroads, including extension of Interstate Commerce Commission authority to buses and trucks, also was unfolded during that brief Mr. Roosevelt described it in brief at destined to avoid financial excesses, adjust plant to traffic, coordinate all carrier services, protect the worker and bring about general public prosperity.

Has Farm Aid Plan At another point Mr. Roosevelt outlined six points of a plan for farm recovery, which he could endorse and on which he said he understood "most of the reasons" the leaders of agriculture were agreed.

Federal legislation aspect that he touched upon included the organization of the Agricultural Department to provide machinery for national planning, and reduction in ad valorem equitable tax distribution.
