ARMISTICE DAY

COLORFUL PARADE TO MARK ARMISTICE DAY HERE

U. S. CAPITAL WILL OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

National Legion Commander to Speak at Dedication of Unknown's Grave.

Washington, D. C. Nov. 10.—(AP)—The National Commander of the American Legion, Louis A. Johnson, in charge, impressive ceremonies of dedication, will be held Friday, Armistice Day, at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

The first phase of the program is a parade starting at 9 a. m. which will be reviewed by National Commander Johnson from back of White House, and from there National Commander goes to take full charge of the ceremonies at the amphitheater.

COURT ENDS SITTING HERE

Two Night and Day Sessions Necessary to Dispose of Court Docket.

The regular weekly session of county court, which convened here Wednesday morning, was adjourned last night after disposing of one of the heaviest dockets in many weeks.

Court was forced to work both day and night in order to finish up before Armistice Day. Around 30 cases were disposed of.

The majority of the cases consisted of larceny, driving drunk and violation of the prohibition law. Several defendants were sent to the roads and others were allowed to go free on payment of cost.

Judge W. L. Whedbee announced at conclusion of yesterday afternoon's session that work would have to be continued during the evening because of Armistice Day falling on Friday and asked that lawyers and defendants govern themselves accordingly.

Manassa Atkinson, colored, appearing on charges of abduction and assault on a female was ordered to go to jail for 60 days or support his wife in the first case and was given an additional 60 days should he fail to pay half cost in the latter case.

R. L. Brock, charged with abandonment, received suspended judgment providing he give sufficient support to his wife and children.

Louis Moye, colored, charged with carrying a concealed weapon and assault with a deadly weapon was sentenced to the roads for six months.

BRITON WINS NOBEL PRIZE

John Ealsworthy, the Novelist, Captures Highest Award in Literature.

Stockholm, Russia, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The 1932 Nobel prize for literature was bestowed today upon John Ealsworthy, British novelist. The author has been mentioned in newspaper predictions as the probably recipient of the award.

Last year the prize was won by Erik A. Karlfeldt of Sweden. Sinclair Lewis, who received the prize in 1930, was the first American to be so honored.

Late News flashes

To Pardon Prisoners.—Detroit, Nov. 10.—(AP)—William A. Comstock, Michigan's Democratic governor-elect, tonight declared "if legally possible," he will release all offenders against the state prohibition law serving sentences in Michigan prison.

Records show there are 297 persons serving terms in four Michigan prisons for prohibition law violations. Twenty-three of them are women.

Sixteen Persons Killed.—Reggio Di Calabria, Italy, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Sixteen persons were known to have been killed in this province as a result of a storm which swept the toe of the Italian peninsula.

Most of the victims were caught in the collapse of houses undermined by rains and flood waters.

No Decision Reached.—Albany, N. Y., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, newly elected president, tonight thought to quell for at least two months all speculation over cabinet and other prominent federal appointments.

In a plainly worded statement which he said, came as an answer to "wholly unauthorized rumors," he asserted that no decision had been reached and none would be reached "for at least two months."

Governor Winds Up Finances.—Raleigh, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Governor O. Max Gardner today made arrangements to wind up the financial affairs of his four years in office before turning the reins over to Governor-elect J. C. B. Ehringhaus in January.

His office announced that the governor, who is in New York with Mr. Ehringhaus and State Treasurer John Edman had renewed $5,000,000 of his short term notes maturing Nov. 25, and also arrangements had been made to borrow $5,707,000 from North Carolina banks to meet January 1 bond maturity.

This action, it was explained, eliminated any possibility of Government default.

TALK LIBRARY ACTIVITY HERE

Discussion of Problems Marks Meeting of the District Association.

"We must train people to use the tools of a shop before they can handle satisfactorily the material from which articles are to be made," L. R. Meadows, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College, told the district meeting of the North Carolina Library Association here Wednesday.

The library is a workshop," the speaker said. "The mother tongue is the tool; the books are the material; ignorance is the greatest tool for the library."

The next district meeting will be held at Edenton, an invitation of representatives of that town being accepted by the numbers of librarians, library executives and others interested in this phase of activity in attendance.

JUDGE PATTON IS TO SPEAK

Former Service Men to be Treated to Big Barbecue Dinner at Conclusion of Exercises at College; Football Game At 2:30 Between Ayden and Rich Square; Legion Sponsoring Celebration.

It is Armistice Day again and thousands of people throughout the world turned their attention today to celebrating the ending of the bloodiest carnage in the annals of civilization.

Greenville was to join the remainder of the nation in observance of the occasion, and the Pitt County Post of the American Legion will render a program fully in keeping with the importance of the day to the millions of soldiers in many countries of the world.

The high-light of the celebration here will be an address by Judge James Patton, of Durham, Judge of Durham County Court.

Major L. P. McLendon, of Durham, was scheduled to deliver the address, but pressing court business prevented him from filling the engagement, and Judge Patton was asked to pinch-hit for him.

In addition to the speaking, the program will consist of a parade, exercises at East Carolina Teachers College, dinner to former service men in the basement of the campus building, and a football game in the afternoon.

The parade will form at the Atlantic Coast Line depot on Dickinson Avenue at 10 o'clock and move directly to the college for the main exercises. Taking part in the pageant will be former service men, members of the local unit of North Carolina National Guards, Boy Scouts, High School band and hundreds of school children.

Most of the equipment of the National Guard unit will be used, including tanks, tractors, big guns and other paraphernalia. This will give the pageant an atmosphere reminiscent of the day fourteen years ago when millions of men laid down their arms and returned to baths of peace.

The dinner, which follows the main exercises at the college, will be under the direction of the auxiliary. The football game between Ayden and Rich Square will be played at Third Street school grounds at 2:30 o'clock. Tremendous crowds were expected, and seats have been provided to take care of the rosters. Members of the Highway Patrol and soldiers will take charge of traffic at the athletic field and do everything possible to prevent traffic congestion and enable motorists to find ample parking space. Proceeds from the game will go to the local Post of the American Legion under whose auspices the celebration is being staged.

The American Legion Post of Greenville will join the Pitt County Post in celebration of the ending of the war, and in addition to bringing additional former service men here, participation of the Greenville Post was expected to draw additional crowds from that section of the county.

City schools were to close following the first period to permit the thousands of students and teachers to take part in the celebration. The courthouse will close for the day and some of the business houses in all

PLAN TO BUILD F.W.B. COLLEGE

Greene County Conference Outlines the Plans for Reestablishment at Ayden.

Definite steps looking to the reestablishment of a theological seminary at Ayden were taken at a district conference of the Free Will Baptist Church at Saint Delight Church, in Greene County, today.

The school will replace Eureka College, operated by the denomination at Ayden and which was destroyed by fire several years ago.

R. F. Pittman, prominent pastor of the denomination, was moderator of the conference. The principal address was delivered by F. L. Walston, of Snow Hill, president of the Free Will Baptist League of the Free Union Church of Greene County. An orchestra was present from New Bern and took part in a young peoples' program under direction of D. A. Windham. The largest attendance in the history of the conference was recorded today.

FINISH COUNT OF PITT VOTES

Election Board Completed Tabulation of Pitt Ballots Yesterday Afternoon.

J. C. Gaskins, register of deeds of Pitt county, received the highest vote of any county officer taking part in the national election last Tuesday in which Democrats piled up one of the greatest majorities in history of the county. It was revealed late yesterday in the official canvass of returns made by the Pitt County Board of Elections.

F. C. Harding, chairman of the board, immediately after completing the account sent a record of the vote to the State Board of Elections at Raleigh, and filed another copy in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court here.

The canvass varied only slightly from the report compiled from the various precincts by the Daily Reflector last Tuesday night. There were several changes of course, but they did not detract from the general trend of the election which showed pronounced victory for each man running on the Democratic ticket, and complete defeat for Republicans seeking the office of sheriff seats on the Board of County Commissioners and other offices.

Only one of the Constitutional amendments carried, that seeking to throw a protection around insurance for widows. The others were defeated by big majorities.

The official tabulation of the entire county vote follows: For President—Franklin Roosevelt; 8,124; Hoover 255. For U. S. Senate—Reynolds 7,539 long term and 7,346 for the short term; Newell (R) 246 for the long term and 276 for the short term. For Governor—Ehringhaus 7,603; Frazier (R) 221. For Lieutenant Governor—Graham 7,509; Tillet (R) 192. For Secretary of State—Wads 7,496; Brady (R) 180. For State Auditor—Durham 7,592; Jennings (R) 180. For State Treasurer—Stedman 7,579; Gayton (R) 191.

U. N. C. GETS READY TO HIT BLOW AT CATS

Chapel Hill, Nov. 10.—Chuck Collins and his coaching partners are grooming three separate Carolina backfields for Saturday's decisive Big Five game at Davidson.

They expect the Tar Heels to generate the maximum punch and drive of the season to date and are anxiously looking forward to this chance to test the team's power against a strong line like Davidson has.

All the backfield heroes of the State and Florida victories are in top shape and raring to go, including Burnett and Woolen, long distance kickers; Phillips and Cromb, feature passers; Daniel, broken field ace who ran that wickoff back 85 yards; McCaskill and Thompson, battering drivers; and Stuart Chandler, the all-around star who calls signals from fullback.

In addition the ball carrying, blocking and all-around work of the sophomore Charlie Shaffer, has been the big and pleasant surprise of this week.

Coach Collins has even said that he might start Shaffer against the 'Cats, so pleased has he been with his improvement and his brilliant running.

The Carolina line has also regained its old form and the guards and tackles have completely reversed the form showed in their noticeable slump in the close win over Florida.

DR DANIEL A. PENICK - PROFESSOR OF ROMANCE LANGUAGES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS

STATE IS BIG OBSTACLE IN WAY OF DUKE

Durham, Nov. 10.—Running thru their final workout here this afternoon, the Blue Devils of Duke were looking forward to the N. C. State game in Raleigh Saturday with determination mixed with a certain degree of uneasiness.

The Blue Devils have in State a big obstacle in their part to the best Duke season since 1891 and expect the toughest battle they have had this season realizing State's habit of rising to the height against them and knowing that in Greason, Wolfpack end, they face another punter like those had by the two teams that have beaten them this season. They are depending on Harry Rossiter to kick on even terms with him.

However, there is determination among the Blue Devils—determination to erase the humiliation of the 14-0 defeat State handed them last year. The stinging whipping of last year should inspire the Blue Devils to turn in their best game of the season.

There are many individual battles slated with the punting duel between the two ends leading the parade. Freddie Crawford, Duke's mighty tackle, will lead the Duke forwards into a battle with the State line, led by Red Espey, Wolfpack center. They are expected to be big shots in the play of the forwards.

Kiwanians To Elect Officers

Annual election of officers and directors will take place at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Woman's Club tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

The session will also be marked by a report of delegates to the twelfth annual convention of Carolina Kiwanis district of Columbia, S. C., last week.

The program will be confined to observance of Armistice Day and American Education Week.

Austrian Wives May Pry. Vienna, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A suspicious wife has a right to pry open her husband's desk, said Austrian courts in the case of a colonel who sued for divorce on the ground his wife had meddled with his private mail. At the same time the wife got a decree on evidence found in the desk.

Tiny Birds Test Zoo Skill. Berlin, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The diet of the smallest inmates of the Berlin zoo kolibri birds from Brazil about the size of a man's thumb taxed the ingenuity of the management until a small test tube was fitted with a long spout permitting the birds to dip their long bills into honey.

Royal Romance Rumors Persisting In Stockholm

Stockholm, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Rumors of a royal romance between Princess Ingrid, pretty 22 year old daughter of Sweden's crown prince, and Prince George, fourth son of the King of England, will not down.

Not even the discounts given out by court circles in London nor the departure of the princess from the British capital unattended save by her holiday host, the Duke of Athlone, served to stifle talk here.

Sweden remembers the many appearances of the two in public when Prince George accompanied his oldest brother, the Prince of Wales, on the latter's visit to Sweden in October.

He was constantly at her side at the opera, the race track, the lunch on table and on promenade. It was even related that they were seen walking hand-in-hand and in Sweden that is a sign of betrothal, either announced or imminent.

When the British visitors arrived rumors had it that Ingrid might become the bride of the heir to the British throne and hence almost sure future queen of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. But from railroad station greetings to railroad station farewells it was the 29-year-old George who appeared alongside Sweden's royal daughter when the news photographers developed their plates.

There was of course, a logical reason for this—but romantic gossip is seldom logical. The Prince of Wales as honored guest of the nation, had to devote most of his time to his royal host, King Gustaf and to Ingrid's father, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf.

There were opportunities, however, when the British heir might have helped fix rumor on himself. There was, for example, the first dancing party given for the visitors. But Wales languished most of the time with Mrs. Clark Kerr, wife of the British minister. It was George who was the partner of Ingrid.

MISSOURI REFORMATORIES MAY INSTALL ATHLETICS

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Inmates of Missouri's three reformatory institutions may enjoy a program of corrective and recreational athletics, financed by the $70,000 surplus in the treasury of the State Athletic Commission.

Plans are under way to ask the next legislature for authority to use the fund, accumulated from fees paid the commission, for this purpose. Members of the commission were reported favorable to the scheme.

At present there are no facilities for athletics at the three institutions, two for boys and one for girls.

THIRTEENTH WORLD TRIP BEST FOR CHARLESTON MNA

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The number "13" holds no fears for Julius Brittlebank, Charleston globe trotter.

He has turned to his home here after completing his thirteenth world tour and says it was the cheapest, quickest and most comfortable journey of them all.

"This talk of depression is greatly exaggerated," Brittlebank declared. "I found people in better homes, riding in better automobiles on finer roads and wearing better clothes everywhere I went."

To Halt Raids On Sattle

Perth, Australia, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Ranchers in northern Australia are using airplanes with huge eyes painted under the wings to frighten away trespassmen who spear cattle in preference to native game.

Recently air force machines which have a bull's eye marker toured the cattle-country and the blacks, thinking they were eyes watching them, discontinued their cattle thefts.

So the ranchers are sending up "eyed" planes of their own.

BIERMAN SHIFTS TO 'STEAM 'EM UP' COACHING PLAN

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Bernie Bierman, noted as one of the most soft-spoken football coaches in the business, is changing his tactics as he gets deeper into his first campaign as coach of the University of Minnesota "Thundering Herd."

After starting the season using the mild methods he found so successful at Tulane, persuading players to run faster, start quicker and block harder, he now has adopted the system of being louder, stricter and generally more hard-boiled.

Bierman says he found his Southern-born players at Tulane more keyed up, and he interprets it as reflecting a more emotional temperament than possessed by the Northerners now under his command.

"I've got to steam them up," he says, "at least for awhile, though I don't personally care much for that system."

End of The Century Club Meets.
The End of The Century Club met Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 with Mrs. M. K. Fort on Holly street. After a short business session, presided over by Mrs. J. L. Fleming, the president, the books were exchanged. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Mrs. L. R. Meadows read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. J. L. Little, a member of the program committee, then introduced Miss Loraine Hunter, a member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College, who gave a most interesting paper on Edison, the great inventor. Miss Hunter told of his childhood during which time he was very delicate and finally was taken out of school and taught by his mother at home. Besides being delicate, he became deaf early in life. He was very fond of reading and got a place as newsboy on the train in order to make money to buy books. He studied telegraphy at an early age and became the operator at Port Huron, his home. He became interested in experimenting and inventing, and in 1878 invented the phonograph. He began experimenting with electricity in 1877 and in 1879 invented the incandescent light. He also invented the motion picture, which became and still is most popular. He made many helpful inventions during the World War.

At the suggestion of Henry Ford, he began experimenting with plants with a view of obtaining rubber from them. He found 1500 plants that yielded milk from which rubber could be made and became associated with Mr. Ford and Mr. Firestone in this great industry.

Miss Hunter, in conclusion, told of his happy domestic life with his wife and children. He cared little for society, clothes or amusements of any kind. His greatest recreation was auto riding. He was an ideal husband and father, and the influence of his life and work will be felt for years to come throughout the entire world.

At the close of Miss Hunter's paper, Mrs. Fort assisted by Mrs. D. M. Clark, served a salad course.

The guests for the afternoon were Mrs. N. S. Beard, Miss Annie Morton of the college, and Mrs. M. L. Wright.—Reported.

SUSTAINS INJURIES IN AUTOMOBILE WRECK

Farmville, Nov. 10.—Rennie Jones of Nashville, tobacco auctioneer, employed by Knott's warehouse, is recovering from injuries and shock sustained in an automobile accident occurring on the morning of election day, and in which he and Ben Lewis, who was driving, narrowly escaped death.

Lewis and Jones were enroute for Greenville and were about a mile from the limits of Farmville when a car, driven by negroes, coming in the opposite direction, hit the 1930 model Ford of Lewis amidships, as the negroes attempted to turn in front of him, turning the Lewis car over and pinning the occupants underneath.

Jones suffered painful injuries to his legs. Lewis escaping unhurt. The car was almost demolished.

Honor Bride-Elect.

Farmville, Nov. 10.—A lovely affair of the week was that of Wednesday afternoon when Miss Elizabeth Davis entertained at bridge in compliment to Miss Allie Louise Fountain of Fountains, whose marriage to William Roderic this month.

A color scheme of yellow and green was effectively carried in the floral arrangements of chrysanthemums and in the refreshments. Table appointments bore wedding motifs. Miss Edna Foust Harris was winner of high score prize, silhouettes of George and Martha Washington and lovely linen towels were presented to the honor guest.

Spanish-American Auxiliary.
Farmville, Nov. 10.—On Wednesday afternoon of this week, Mrs. Annie Anderson and Mrs. Pearl Johnston delightfully entertained the Spanish-American Auxiliary at the home of the former. Following the regular routine of business, a social hour was enjoyed during which the hostesses served delicious refreshments. Wait Parker, commander of the James Thomas Smith Camp, and Miss Annie Tyler, were special guests of the Auxiliary.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school building Friday, Nov. 4. After the business session a very interesting program on reading was rendered. Miss Coates of E. C. T. C., gave a splendid talk on "How To Interest the Child in Reading." Mrs. Vincent gave a talk on the advantages of a library, stating that the Sheppard Memorial Library was not for Greenville alone, but for Pitt county.

MRS. T. C. TURNAGE ADDRESSES JUNIOR WOMEN

Farmville, Nov. 10.—Presenting the Spirit of North Carolina in the American Revolution with her usual fresh enthusiasm and in her unimpaired manner, Mrs. T. C. Turnage regent of the local D. A. R. chapter, stirred the Junior Woman's Club to eagerness in their study of North Carolina history, at their meeting Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Turnage took as an outline North Carolina in the battles of Alamance, Moore's Creek, Elizabethtown and Valley Forge, pointing out that their state of mind rather than mere physical force had been the weapon that makes North Carolina soldiers unconquerable.

Mrs. Harold Suggs Askew and Miss Lurline Bass were joint hostesses to this group, entertaining at the home of Mrs. Plato-Monk, in which fall flowers were artistically arranged. Miss Edna Foust Harris presided over a business session, appointing committee to assist in the Red Cross roll call on Monday, Nov. 14, a drive for books for the library and a "Wax It" sale.

Rugged apples topped with cream and nuts were served with cinnamon toast and hot tea.

Merry Matrons.
Farmville, Nov. 10.—Mrs. B. S. Smith was hostess on Thursday afternoon at a delightful meeting of the Merry Matrons. Many lovely flowers graced the living room where the meeting was held.

Following the business session, a splendid literary program was enjoyed. Mrs. J. W. Parker giving a sketch of the life of Napoleon A. Jennings and Mrs. J. I. Morgan talking on the subject of "Some Western Bad Men" in continuation of a study of "Law and Order on the Frontier." Mrs. Parker, president of the club, spoke interestingly of a recent trip to Kentucky.

A salad course was served during the social hour.

Goes For Wheelbarrow Airing.
Farmville, Nov. 9.—One of the results of the Roosevelt election, realized here, was a wheelbarrow airing taken by Eugene Hobgood under the power of Bill Whitley, Monk & Hobgood's auctioneer, who lost his election bet.

Hobgood and Whitley were both Democratic supporters but Whitley's pessimistic outlook on his candidate's chances for election cost him a bit of labor, for his friend carries a lot of avoidpous.

The joy ride to Saratoga, 12 miles distant, the half way line between Farmville and Wilson on highway No. 12 began at 2:00 Wednesday afternoon and was regarded with great interest by friends here and in Saratoga, the home of Whitley.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 10.—The new fashion trend toward womanly curves is not trending fast enough to suit some of the movie directors, whose problem is to find in the modern crop of diet-starved bodies enough figures to look natural in costumes built for curves.

The costumes are cropping out of wardrobes in numbers for such period films as "The Conquerors," "Cavalcade," "Sweepings," and others laid wholly or in part in the sedate seventies, the elegant eighties and the gay if neuroathetic nineties.

But the toothpick figures of much too recent date are not well adapted to such voluptuous garb, and it looks as if there's much padding in store.

Who Started It?
In a sense of Hollywood, thus demanding curves and poundage, is playing a dirty trick on actresses who subsisted on lettuce in order to realize the screen's ideal of the real slenderness.

Gregory LaCava, who sometimes talks about trends and things when he isn't directing, holds that Hollywood is responsible for the beginning as well as the exaggerated ultimate in the craze for the "boyish" figure. Twenty years ago he pointed out Lillian Russell's beauty and the voluptuous type.

A few early screen heroines were similarly modeled, but Slim Lillian Gish and little Mary Pickford changed all that. Whether or not Lillian and Mary were responsible for the popularity of dieting in the first place is a moot question, but in later days Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett, Garbo and other priestesses of thinness certainly have served as models to inspire dieting among girls who paid them the tribute of fan worship.

Period Pictures
Speaking of costumes and such—some of the minor problems of the day seems to be "Little Women" which Radio plans to film with Katharine Hepburn as Jo. The widely read book is land in the sixties and threabouts, but Radio is seriously considering "modernizing" it. Why? Some day some scenarist will solve a problem like that and have a corking good mystery play. It's a changer still because the long-faded Hollywood fear of period pictures seems to have been dispelled.

WE MUST FIGHT ON

At eleven o'clock on the morning of this day fourteen years ago, firing ceased in the world's greatest mortal conflict bringing to an end a war fought for the ideal of making the world a better place in which to live. Throughout the world there arose shouts of joy that peace had come, but while men in arms had completed their war-time portion of the task, real peace in the world was still a far way off, and today, fourteen years later, we find the world in the midst of economic strife presenting problems equally as important for the welfare of the world as that of defeating the enemy on the field of battle. While on this Armistice Day as we review the brave deeds of those of our sons who went forward to battle, and bless the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice, let memory of these brave deeds goad each and every one of us on to a display of such bravery and valor in carrying out our part in today's battle for recovery of the world to normalcy. There can be no real peace so long as there is a surplus of every necessity of life and yet half the people facing starvation. Today's peacetime battle that confronts, not only our own land but the entire world, is one that calls for true patriotism and unparalleled effort in the exercise of brotherly love in a true Christian spirit if we are to keep faith with those who gave their lives in battle to make the world a better place in which to live.

ABOUT TOWN

Greenville joined the nation today in paying tribute to the men who played such an important part in winning the World War. The occasion is Armistice Day, one of the most important of the year, signifying as it does the ending of the great conflict fourteen years ago that enabled millions of men to return to the path of peace. The sufferings of the heartaches and fears which the nation bore during that memorable period is indescribable. Never before in the annals of the world has such a bloody carnage been recorded, and no wonder the American people turn out today to help the returned soldiers celebrate. The observance brings back a keen reminder of the men who did not return—those stalwart heroes who lay beyond the flowers on Flanders field. How dear to the nation is the memory of those boys who marched away so jauntily to the war never to return. Many a tear will be shed on this day as speakers pay tribute to the heroes and attempt to express in a measure some of the gratitude of the nation for their deeds of valor. The years are fleeting indeed but time has not diminished the grateful appreciation of America for her heroes. Time will come when the men who march in the parade today will be no more, but the luster of their achievements will cause them to live in human hearts forever. Their place is indelibly stamped upon the hearts of the nation and they will never be forgotten as long as civilization continues its stride toward higher goals of achievement—the wiping out of war for all time.

With indications that the tobacco market of this belt will close before Christmas, growers should make an effort to market the remainder of their crop as rapidly as possible. By rapid marketing the market will be able to close and the season will not be prolonged necessitating continued heavy expenses to the warehouses and buying companies. It is said that favorable prices of this time justify the farmers in the marketing of their tobacco. There is no indication that delay will cause the farmers to receive more for their offerings. The crop is about half of that last year, and there is no reason why the market should remain open the full length of time just to handle scattering offerings. Farmers who market their tobacco quickly will not only get the good prices prevailing now but will enable the market to carry out their early closing plan.

It is hoped the people will keep in mind the Bicentennial celebration to be held at the college November 17. This is one of the most important events of the kind in this part of the state. It has been many a day since a lone celebration has been held in behalf of Washington's birthday, and it is the duty of the people to do their bit toward making the Bicentennial meeting what it should be. The committee is working diligently on plans at this time and if it is given proper co-operation there is every reason to believe the day will be a great one.

The state and nation also are turning their attention to the making of the next government in view of the landslide of the Democrats at the polls last Tuesday. This is a phase of the election outcome that will be watched with interest by members of both parties and especially in view of the avowed intention of Roosevelt to name his cabinet before his inauguration. Speculation will run rife until his cabinet is complete. Roosevelt has lots of friends—thousands of political cohorts who helped him to win the great honor to which he aspired, and from among them the stalwarts will be named. What this section is interested in more than any other thing is the movement on foot to make Lindsay Warren of Washington, Speaker of the House of Representatives, a position relinquished by John Garner to take up duties in the Senate. Warren has rendered the party distinguished service, and his knowledge of the conduct of the business of the House, along with his experience as Speaker, eminently qualify him for the important post.

Team Has No Coach Eagle Rock, Calif., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Occidental College, which is a member of the South California conference, does not have a football coach. Instead a board of strategy functions. It includes Instructor William Anderson, two assistants and two players. The board dictate the system of play and names the line-up.

A PATH TO PARADISE

by Coningsby DAWSON

Chapter 23 THE MONEY FLIES

"But in marriage, as Clive was to learn, there are no closed chapters. Perhaps with incomes are naturally secretive. Santa had formed the habit through living with Dicky. What the recent of their apartment was Clive discovered from the janitor. The wages they paid their maid he could only guess. The cost of their housekeeping, if Santa knew the exact figure, she never told.

Her extravagance in clothes was terrifying. Every day she raided Fifth Avenue; the result was an avalanche of boxes. She flung away dollars where he would have considered cents. Since she was spending her own money, he had no license to curb her.

Logically, despite her independence, her pretence was that she was utterly his possession. Never more so than when she paraded before him, courting his approval of the latest addition to her wardrobe. Once he attempted a mild protest. "It's stunning, but there aren't enough days in the year to wear the frocks you already own." "I'm gathering my trousseau," she pulled a face at him. "So that's the ideal! But aren't you setting the pace a trifle fast? What I mean is—"

"I'm your slave and you're my sultan. I don't buy them to please myself. I dress for you only."

At the end of the first month when he inquired what he owed, she replied: "Whatever you choose."

"But won't you show me the accounts?" "They aren't made up. You earn how much? About four hundred a month. Give me half of it."

That two hundred wasn't his share he was certain. When he wrote out his check for three hundred, she tore it up. The second time she accepted it, but omitted to cash it.

He took her to task. She placed him under a crushing obligation. "As your husband I'm legally responsible for your debts. What a goat I'd look in a bankruptcy court if I couldn't state—"

She burst out laughing. "It was during these first weeks that he arrived home to find her reading a newspaper. The sight was unusual; she rarely read anything. She was so intent on its contents that she didn't hear his approach. "Something interesting?" he perched on the arm of her chair. "Let's squint at it."

The paragraph was marked. It contained the news that old Mr. Dak was dead and that his only son, Richard, had fallen heir to his millions.

"Dick must have sent it," Santa commented. "As you see, it's a Chicago paper."

Clive rose. "I'm off to do myself up." He glanced back from the doorway. "If he really did send it, he had his nerve."

Would he never be rid of that fellow? While he tubbed and drugged dinner he brooded over he incident.

When the maid had departed and lunacy was permissible, Santa leaned against his knees, squatted on the floor tailor-fashion. Stretching back, she coaxed him. "What's troubling the old head?"

"If you'd been his wife when all this money blew in, would you have divorced him?" "Tickle my throat," she ordered; "be natural." Then, sensing his seriousness: "Who cares about money?"

That night she whispered: "When will you believe that I'd rather starve with you in an attic than travel round the world in a yacht with Dicky?"

But her protestations only assured him while he was alone with her. He noted, or thought he noted, that other people regarded their marriage as catch-as-catch-can—anyway, as lacking in dignity.

concluded, and it shouldn't take long," Mr. Cleasby added, "you can dash off to France, if that suits you, and snatch a brief honeymoon. You kind of slipped up on your honeymoon."

Slips of the tongue forced on his attention that he was no more than her second husband. Though her entire happiness was ravenously bound up with his, nothing could efface the impression. Friends visiting, recognized certain objects. "I gave you that. So glad you're still using it."

Clive didn't require to be hit on the head. He guessed the joyous occasion of the gift's bestowal.

He became so sensitive he suspected that many of her love-names were borrowings from her old vocabulary. "Did you ever call him that?" "Ridiculous old thing, do you expect me to invent a new language for you?"

More than once at dinner-parties she caused him discomfort by referring to places at which he was never present. "When we visited Havana—"

Even when she had provoked a titter, she sailed on gaily, with a bright glance at Clive: "That was before your time."

Tactless of her! No husband is pleased to hear his wife mention a honeymoon in which he was not included.

"I wish you wouldn't, Santa." "But what's the harm. Everyone knows." She failed utterly to comprehend his fastidiousness.

"That's as may be. But why yell it from the house-tops?" With repetition of the offence, she invented an explanation.

"I was paying you a compliment. The few times I was happy with Dicky I fancy that I must have been with you."

And that really seemed to be the case—that her memories of her husbands had blended.

Her other husband! One never saw him. He pattered about like a disembodied spirit. As far as Clive was concerned, he felt that his marriage was haunted. The haunted marriage! Already he had acquired enough data to write a book on it. In his most peaceful moments he was continually blundering on footprints left by Dicky.

Meanwhile all her efforts was to convince him that her past was not remotely banished. She lavished gift on him—stick-plins, cuff-links; whatever suggested itself to her generosity. For his birthday she begged permission to give him a check suit—a black and white one. She chose the tailor.

"You're so handsome. I long to see you in one that's made-to-measure."

Under pressure he consented, to discover that Dicky Dak was one of the tailor's favored clients. "Mr. Dak is a rare one for checks, sir. He's what we call a snappy dresser."

Before the suit came home Clive had taken an aversion to it. When it had been hung in his cupboard he never wore it.

Santa accused him of not caring for it. "Frankly I don't." "But it fits. What's the objection?" "I'm not Dak. I purchase my clothes ready-made. Always rave."

"As you choose," Santa smiled. She was imperturbably pleasant. "The tailor's about your size. Why not give it to him?"

He didn't tell her; to hold up his end he was drawing on his savings. His out-of-pocket expenses for theatre-tickets, automobile hire, general entertainment, amounted to more than his contribution to house-keeping.

Pride demanded that when she showered him with gifts, he should return them with an equal generosity. He was living on a plan, which nothing in his prospects warranted. To increase his nervousness he had a shrewd suspicion that his firm's affairs were going none too prosperously.

Three months after his scatter-brained return from Chicago, Mr. Cleasby called him into his office.

"I've been watching you, Clive. You're all strung up. Ought to take a holiday with your wife. There's a concern we've financed in London. I wish you'd run over and make a report on it."

Clive clinched with the offer. Away from familiar surroundings Santa might readjust herself. "When the affair in London is

"We did, sir. I've sometimes thought—"

Mr. Cleasby finished his sentence. "That a honeymoon might have made all the difference: You're right, my boy. Women expect 'em."

They don't feel married without a honeymoon." When that evening Clive repeated the theory, Santa confirmed it by plopping herself in his lap. "My sultan, that wise old guy said a mouthful." (Copyright, 1931-1932, Coningsby Dawson) A chance meeting in France, tomorrow, makes a great change in Clive's and Santa's future.

GREENVILLE

Leading and Steadily Gaining— Prices Now Highest of Season

Markets will likely close Christmas. Let us urge you to bring your tobacco on.

Greenville Has Sold 30,104,810 Pounds
Next Nearest Market Has Sold 28,897,100 Pounds

Greenville's Lead 1,207,710 Pounds

Greenville is leading all other markets because we are paying more for every grade of tobacco. Competition has never been keener, and some of the markets are getting frantic offering all kinds of wild inducements, even to hauling tobacco free if they will bring their tobacco to them. Every thinking farmer knows he pays the bill if he takes up with these wildcat schemes.

We believe the farmers of Pitt county will stand by their market, which has proven to be the best and largest bright tobacco market in the state.

Grade carefully, keep your tobacco dry and "drive in" early in order to avoid any rush.

W. S. MOYE—CENTRE BRICK

Recipes Given by Miss Louise Dixon at Daily Reflector Cooking School

POTATOES BAKED IN CHEESE SAUCE

2 tablespoons crumbed cheese
 3 tablespoons butter or shortening
 2 tablespoons flour
 1-4 teaspoon paprika
 1-4 teaspoon tabasco sauce
 1 1-2 cups milk
 6 large potatoes
 1 green pepper

Make a smooth cream sauce with the shortening, flour, salt and milk. Add tobacco sauce, paprika. Stir in cheese until melted. Slice peeled potatoes thin, chop pepper. Put layer of potatoes in greased casserole, sprinkle with chopped pepper, add another layer of potatoes and so on until dish is filled. Dot with bits of butter. Bake in oven 350 degrees F. 45 minutes or till potatoes are done.

CREAMED TOMATO WITH BACON

6 slices toast
 1 can drained tomatoes or
 4 fresh tomatoes, sliced
 2 cups cream sauce
 4 to 6 slices crisp bacon

Use thin toast with crusts removed. Place in bottoms of baking dish, then tomatoes and minced crisp bacon in alternating layers. Cover with cream sauce and bake in hot oven 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes. Garnish with parsley.

BRIDGE SUPPER PLATE

This may be prepared before ready to serve
 Fish
 Peas and Prune Salad
 Broccoli and Mock Hollandaise Sauce
 Puffed Crackers

Necessary directions given from platform.

MARTY'S MEAT ROLL

2 cups flour
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1-2 teaspoon salt
 3-4 cup milk
 4 tablespoons shortening
 Meat filling: 1 1-2 cups chopped left-over meat

1-4 teaspoon salt
 1 tablespoon salt
 1 tablespoon minced onion
 1-8 teaspoon pepper
 3 tablespoons left-over gravy

Sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening, and milk to make a soft dough. Roll to 1-4 inch thickness. Spread with meat filling. Roll up like a jelly roll. Cut slices 1 inch thick and place in greased baking pan. Dot with shortening. Bake in oven 450 degrees F. for about 15 minutes. Serve with additional left over gravy.

BANANA MOUSSE

Yolks of 3 eggs
 1 cup milk
 4 tablespoons sugar
 1 cup whipped cream
 1 tablespoon flour
 1-4 teaspoon salt
 2 large bananas pressed through a colander

1 tablespoon lemon juice

Make a soft custard of the egg yolks, milk and sugar mixed with flour and salt. When thick, let cool and add the bananas mixed with lemon juice and whipped cream. Place in freezing tray for about three hours. Serve in meringue or in Tambale cases, garnish with fruit or serve plain.

SPINACH AND CHEESE BALLS

1 cup cooked spinach
 1 cup soft bread crumbs
 1-4 teaspoon pepper
 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 Dash allspice
 1 beaten egg
 1 teaspoon salt
 1-2 teaspoon sugar
 1-4 grated Parmesan or plain cheese

Chop spinach and press free from moisture; add other ingredients. Form into balls, dip in crumbs, then in beaten egg; back into crumbs and fry in deep fat 375 degrees F.

COFFEE SPANISH CREAM

3 cups milk
 1 cup strong coffee
 2 tablespoons plain gelatine
 Whipped cream
 5 egg yolks
 1 cup sugar
 3 egg whites
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Almond flavoring

Dissolve gelatine in 1-2 cup cold milk. Scald 2 1-2 cups milk with coffee. Beat egg yolks with sugar, add scalded mixture gradually. Cook 10 minutes in double boiler till creamy; add gelatine and fold in 3 egg whites beaten stiff and vanilla. Chill until set. Serve in mold or individual cups topped with whipped cream flavored with almonds.

FOUR DESSERTS IN ONE BAKING

1 1-2 cups sifted sugar
 1-3 cup hot water
 1-4 teaspoon salt
 1 1-2 cups flour
 5 eggs
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 2 teaspoons baking powder

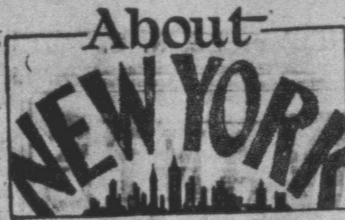

Dissolve sugar in the hot water. Beat egg yolks thick and lemon colored; add vanilla, then part of the sugar; then part of the flour that has been sifted with salt and baking powder. Beat egg whites till stiff and fold into batter. Grease and line shallow pan with oiled paper. Pour batter in 1-4 inch thick for jelly roll. Fill 8 small round and 8 small square baking cups and 4 shell pans. Bake in oven at 325 degrees F. for 25 minutes.

SUGGESTIONS

Fill roll with peach or apricot and sprinkle with powdered sugar.
 Fill shells with fruit and whipped cream, custard or Bavarian Cream and turn upside down and ice whole with Chocolate Frosting.
 Ice round cakes with uncooked white frosting with nut meats on top.
 Add melted chocolate to white icing for square cakes and sprinkle with cocoanut.

THE BEST TEA BREWED

Use a teaspoon of tea for each cup and an extra spoonful for the pot. Have the water "mad boiling hot." Scald the pot. Pour the water on the tea and allow to draw for at least five minutes. Strain off into another teapot ready to serve.

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 10.—Buster Crabbe, the swimming champion, is serious about the movie business.

"I've had my eye on a chance like this for some time," he says, "but swimming took too much time to allow for anything else except working my way through school. If I make a go of this first chance, I want to stay in pictures."

This first chance is the "Lion Man" role of the "King of the Jungle." A whole flock of athletes were disappointed when Crabbe won out in the contest. It's a story on the Tarzan order, with Frances Dee in the leading feminine role. Crabbe, third swimming star to crash pictures—Eleanor Holm and Johnny Weissmuller are the others—is husky in build and stands a chance of garnering some of the feminine adulation Weissmuller attracted.

Serious Business

Serious about it, too, is John Davis Lodge, tall dark recruit to leading man ranks from Eastern society—son of the Massachusetts Lodges, although he delicately shies clear of publicity on that score.

"I always liked the theater," he says, "but I took a law course in the knowledge that the training it would give would be helpful to me no matter what I decided to do later. Having taken it, I practiced law—but still hoped to act."

Glorifying a Film Actor

Probably for the first time in pictures a movie actor is to be glorified in a film story—that is, an actual movie actor. A story apparently suggested by the doings of the late Harry Houdini, who believed in locks as little as in ghosts, is on schedule. Houdini, among other exploits, took time off to star in a few serials.

Edgar Norton and Olga Bacalanova are movie names returned to the legitimate—with applause—in the current musical, "The Cat and the Fiddle." And from the East come reports of a big hit by Conway Tearle, one-time film idol, who recently has been passed up by the movie studios—even though he made a come-back in talkies.

Pathetic figure: The actor who can't talk about his new role because he plays the monster—and monsters who reveal their identities before a picture is seen spoil the fun.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—The official gardener for Uncle Sam is going to move into his new home within a few months.

At the foot of Capitol Hill, within a stone's throw of the Capitol itself, the government is building for George Hess and his botanic garden a magnificent new home.

His horticultural collection, gathered from all parts of the world, will be moved over to more spacious quarters.

For more than sixteen years Hess, director of the national botanic garden, has scoured the world for plants and flowers.

To China, Japan and the Philippines he has gone in his quest. He has made three trips to the Hawaiian Islands to make a study of plant life there.

The result is, that he has built a bit of countryside at the foot of "the Hill"—a garden of real beauty.

He Likes His Work

Hess' ambition is to make his garden the greatest of its kind in the world. His work to him is a real labor of love.

He seems happier with his plants than any place else. His large hands gently touch green shoots and leaves as he moves among them. He stops to explain how this or that flower was produced through patient crossing and recrossing of mother plants.

Nothing seems to delight him more than to talk of his garden which under his management has become the show-place for the nation. Tourists make it one of their major ports

IT'S BAD BUSINESS

WHAT'S THIS? IT JUST CAN'T BE! NO PERFECT FACES IN FILMLAND

Hollywood, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Believe it or not, but there's a big scarcity of perfect faces in Hollywood. In fact, none has been found so far.

Maybe it's a bit startling but this situation is revealed by a newly invented face measuring device which also tells how to fix faulty noses and eyes and chins so the camera won't know the difference.

The instrument, designed by Perc and Ern Westmore and Max Face, the film make-up men, takes facial measurements and then shows what certain features should be concealed or enhanced.

The device consists of innumerable pieces of flexible tape, held in place by tiny set screws. It is fitted over the entire head and face and is regulated in such a way that the metal strips are pressed to take the form of the face.

For instance, if this scientific aid to beauty correction shows the nose of the subject is ever so slightly crooked, the Westmores know what to do to make it appear straight. They shade one side of the offending organ with brown powder.

If it is disclosed the eyes are too small, they can be enlarged (for the camera) by shaping the eyebrows in a certain fashion. In much the same manner, large eyes can be made to seem smaller.

The correct facial proportions according to beauty experts' standards are:

The nose should be the same length as the depth of the forehead and should equal the distance between the base of the nose and tip of the chin.

The eyes should be separated by a space the width of the eyes.

of call when visiting the capital.

An elf they show enough interest, he'll tell them about his hobby—vegetables.

Next to his garden, vegetables are his hobby.

He acquired his first interest in the subject from a Chinese gardener, an interest that has grown until the information he has would fill a book.

He calls his home—in the garden—Liberty Hall, and makes of it a mecca far gardeners.

Paris, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Despairing of devising a beautiful telephone pole, the ministry of posts, telegraphs and telephones has ordered that no poles be placed so that they "will deface or diminish the beauty of artistic monuments, ruins, sites and picturesque landscapes."

No, this isn't a new hair curling device. It's an instrument used in Hollywood to calibrate beauty. At the moment Shiela Terry is being tested. The device has revealed there are no perfect faces in Hollywood.

The corners of the mouth should not extend beyond the distance of the pupils of the eye.

The revealing pieces of tape have been adjusted around many famous screen beauties but none, say the Westmores, has all the correct proportions.

Hints on Contract Bridge Up-to-Date

By LIEUT. ALFRED M. GUEN-THIER, U. S. A.

(Written for The Associated Press) In my article yesterday on the new contract bridge code which went into effect November 1, I explained the penalties for examining quitted tricks, revokes and insufficient bids and discussed the rule governing reviews of the bidding.

Following are the remaining changes in regulations other than in scoring:

Rights of Dummy
 New Law—Dummy's rights have been restricted so that he is not permitted to call attention to any irregularities committed by opponents. In general, his only right is to warn declarer that he has failed to follow suit, so that a possible revoke may be corrected. He is deprived of this latter right if he has intentionally looked into an opponent's hand.

Old Law—Formerly the Dummy was permitted to call attention to any irregularities committed by opponents.

Comment—Experts have long felt that the Dummy has had too many rights.

Bid Out of Turn
 New Law—(a) If a player makes a bid when it is his partner's or the left-hand opponent's turn to bid, the left-hand opponent may demand a new deal. If he does not demand a new deal the out-of-turn bid is cancelled and bidding starts with correct player. No penalty can then be imposed.

(b) If a player makes a bid when it is the turn of the right-hand opponent to declare, bid is canceled, and bidding starts with the correct player. The partner of offending player is now barred from bidding when it next becomes his turn to declare. After being barred once the partner is permitted to re-enter the next round of bidding.

(c) There is no penalty for a pass out of turn.

Old Law—(a) After a bid out of turn partner of offender was barred from participating in any further bidding during that deal.

(b) The pass out of turn was penalized by requiring the offending player to pass until declaration he had passed had been over-called.

Comment—Many authorities feel that some provision should have been made for an alternate penalty in the event left-hand opponent does not desire a new deal. As it now stands this opponent must either demand a new deal or else completely waive the penalty. It is conceivable that in some cases the demand for a new deal will do great harm to the non-offending side.

It is not clear why the penalty for a pass out of turn has been cancelled. The old penalty was a fair one.

Cards Exposed During Bidding
 New Law—(a) If a card lower than a ten is exposed during auction, Declarer may treat card as an exposed card and subject to call, or prohibit offender's partner from making an opening lead in the same suit.

(b) If exposed card is higher than a nine, or if a lead of any card is made during auction, left-hand opponent may demand a new deal.

Old Law—If card was higher than a nine partner was barred from further participating in bidding. If card was lower than the ten, the card was treated as an exposed card. Moreover, the Declarer could prohibit offender's partner from making an opening lead in the same suit.

Comment—While the (b) section provides a drastic penalty, fortunately the offense is a rare one.

Claiming An Unauthorized Penalty
 New Law—If a player claims an unauthorized penalty it is automatically canceled.

Old Law—Not covered.

Comment—Quite often a player makes a positive claim for an unauthorized penalty and the other players, either through politeness or through ignorance, accede to his request. Under the new laws the player will make certain of his ground before making a hasty claim.

My Beauty Hint.

(By Alime MacMahon)

Gone is the day of the flat chest and the boyish figure. It is no longer smart to resemble a pencil.

In order to build up and fill out a concave chest, try this: Stand two feet away from a wall, facing it and placing the palms of the hands against it. Move head slowly toward wall. Keep chin up until both chin and chest touch the wall. Now return slowly to the former position.

Repeat this exercise and note the improvement within two weeks.

"Inherit" Jersey

University, Va., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Milton Abramson, diminutive half-back on the Virginia eleven, had to wait until another player broke his leg before finding Jersey he could wear. When Bill Edgar's fractured limb put him on the bench for the season, Abramson found a uniform small enough.

Try a piece of this pie.

I wish I could. But pie crust doesn't agree with me.

My pie crust will agree with you. It's made with Crisco—it's a digestible fat.

Oh, maybe I've been using too cheap a fat.

There's nothing like Crisco. It's so sweet and digestible.

Well, your pie crust is certainly light. I'm going to try Crisco.

Cooking School Note

In the cooking school conducted this week under the auspices of the Reflector, Miss Louise Dixon stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern shortening that digests easily.

JAPAN SEEKS U.S. LENIENCY

General Muto Asks a Tolerant Attitude Towards Activities in Manchukuo.

By JAMES A. MILLS

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 10.—(AP)—General Nobuyoshi Muto, Japan's plenipotentiary to the new state of Manchukuo, asks the people of the United States to judge Japan's policy here in "a spirit of tolerance, leniency and generosity."

Japanese, he said in an interview cannot understand why America, which has obtained the fullest measure of wealth, power and influence, should begrudge a small share of the world's goods to Japan.

Moreover, he declared, his country is fighting for its very existence. General Muto, grandfather to the world's youngest nation, is regarded in Tokyo as Japan's "strong, silent man," although he is small of stature and retiring in demeanor.

Sitting in his modest one-room office here, he voiced a fervent hope that America might understand Japan's motives.

"Instead of quibbling over the technical phraseology in academic agreements never intended to cover such a situation as Japan now faces in China," he said, "would it not be nobler for the United States to take into account some of the fundamental elements which affect Japan in this crisis?"

General Muto denied vigorously that Japan would ever annex Manchuria, and insisted that "it is a lie to say that Manchukuo is a 'buffer state'."

"The birth of the new nation," he said, "should be regarded as a zealous national movement to assert Japan's existence. It should not be overlooked that it is also a movement of the oriental races to remodel their destinies with Japan as the central lever and guide."

TALK LIBRARY ACTIVITY

Memorial Library, and the visitors were entertained at lunch at the Woman's Club.

During the morning session, which convened at 10:30 o'clock, a general discussion of library problems and possibilities was held. Helpful suggestions were advanced by Miss Mary F. DeVane, librarian of Goldsboro Public Library, and Miss Ford Worth, member of the Board of Trustees of the Washington Public Library.

The school opens promptly at 2 o'clock and will continue late in the afternoon.

MISS MARJORIE BEAL, OF RALEIGH, SECRETARY AND DIRECTOR OF THE STATE LIBRARY COMMISSION, CONDUCTED AN INTERESTING DISCUSSION OF NEW BOOKS AS AN AID TO BOOK SELECTION FOR LIBRARIES.

Those attending were: Mrs. Helen Tarnage, Ayden, N. C.; Mrs. W. D. Johnson, Ayden, N. C.; Mrs. Donald Williams, Tarboro, N. C.; Miss E. L. Betts, Washington, N. C.; Miss Leslie Hardins, Washington, N. C.; Mrs. R. L. Carr, Greenville, N. C.; Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Greenville, N. C.; R. C. Flanagan, Greenville, N. C.; Margaret K. Gilbert, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Susie Rasdale, Greenville, N. C.; Mrs. W. H. Cobb, Goldsboro, N. C.; and Mrs. D. H. Bland, Goldsboro, N. C.

Mr. Meadows had the following to say: A man who makes his mark for a signature is a poor library patron. This training is being done to a great extent in the schools.

2. We must create a desire for the use of good books. People usually do what pleases them most during their leisure moments.

This taste or desire must be created usually before the age of thirty—the time when people are out of the formative period in life.

We believe the desire is being created in our better schools.

3. We must satisfy the desire when one created. Do not disappoint our readers.

This involves— (1) Money to get books (2) Co-operation with the ones who help create the desire so the needs will be known.

(3) Willingness to let the books leave the library.—Ex of Howard librarian and Ex of Agassiz.

(4) Personality of the librarian.—Ex of A. L. A. representative.

(5) Trained librarian—one who knows her books.

4. We must meet competition if our wares are to be used. That is what other types of business are doing.

Some of the competitors are— (1) Ignorance—we hope to overcome it.

(2) Indolence—largely a question of physical and physical health and should be overcome.

(3) Radio. It takes the time many people once gave to books. N. D. Company has increased its...

FABRICS ARE RICHER, LINES ARE PLAIN IN GOWNS DESIGNED FOR WINTER BRIDES

For the EARLY WINTER BRIDE

Heavy cream lace and soft georgette of the same hue are used for this wedding gown which Molynux designs for the early winter bride. The cream tulle veil is appliqued with patterns of the same lace.

By RITA FERRIS (Associated Press Fashion Editor)

Paris, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The wedding gowns in which early winter brides will sweep to flower decked altars are the most luxurious that fashion has decreed in many seasons.

The fashionable brides who have begun the winter wedding pageant here are choosing gowns as rich and regal as the mellow old cathedrals in which they appear. Their lines are unusually simple and plain, but their fabrics are costly and luxurious and the effect created is one of dignity and elegance. Even the bridal attendants reflect the spirit of regal richness, since the usual matrix and mud of lace or now are augmented at the most fashionable weddings by a train of ten or a dozen little girl bridesmaids.

One smart fall bride created a stir by having 16 little bridesmaids from 3 to 10 years old all wearing exact copies of her bridal gown duplicated in soft gray fabric.

White is the choice of fashionable brides this year, although fabrics show a wider variety of selection. The bride of M. Jean Lebrun, son of the French president, chose a gown of white brocade satin, designed with a long train along the plained lines and trimmed only with a cluster of white gardenias caught in the front of the corsage.

Her cap was of white gardenias, while her long veil fell over her face to the waist and swept the length of her train.

Another fashionable bride chose a gown made entirely of white satin ribbons attached by faggoting, a third has chosen heavy white velvet, and another will be married in cream lace.

This season's wedding gowns generally are designed with plain bodices having semi-high necklines, plain sleeves and simple skirts which sweep into long trains. Veils are long and may not cover the face.
