Drive For Relief Funds To Begin Monday

J. S. Ficklen Will Head Two Day Canvass of City To Raise Money For Poor

NO GOAL SET FOR THE YEAR

Every Effort Will Be Made to Collect As Much as Possible To Take Care of Most Serious Situation in History of the City; Mayor Flanagan Says Demand of the Poor More Severe Than ever Before.

The general relief campaign for taking care of the poor during the winter months will be launched in Greenville Monday, November 21, and will extend through Tuesday.

Along with selecting the date for the drive, the committee in session yesterday afternoon named members of the soliciting committee to make a thorough canvass of the community during the two days the campaign is in progress.

J. S. Ficklen, prominent tobaccoist, who for years has been prominently identified with relief activities, was named chairman of the soliciting committee, and has requested the following members of his committee to meet him at the Ficklen tobacco factory Monday morning to begin the canvass:

M. Swartz, J. K. Brown, J. B. Kittrell, J. H. Rose, E. G. Flanagan, J. H. Blount, Howard McGinnis, A. E. Hobgood, F. C. Harding, J. T. Clifton, A. E. Hobgood, C. W. Shuff, C. W. Howard, John Mitchell, B. E. Sugg, R. M. Garrett, J. J. White, and J. H. Waldrop.

No definite goal was set for the soliciting committee, but it was said that every effort would be made to collect as much as possible because of the seriousness of the situation confronting the community this year.

Mayor R. C. Flanagan said today the demand on the relief forces of the city would be greater this winter than any other period in history, and called upon the people to give as liberally as they can to prevent suffering among hundreds of people without jobs and no means of keeping the wolf from their doors.

The soliciting committee was instructed to accept commodities from people unable to donate cash, it being pointed out that non-perishable foodstuffs would play an important part in the attempt to relieve hunger and sufferings while the chill blasts of winter sweep across the countryside.

The committee was impressed with the fact that the effort put forward by local relief forces would be reflected in allotments which the government will make to the community through the Reconstruction Corporation and urged them to put their best foot forward during the solicitation of funds.

LEAF SALES STILL LARGE

Greenville Market Handled Over Half Million Pounds Leaf Yesterday.

Sales on the Greenville tobacco market have passed the thirty-five million pound mark. It was revealed today in the report of sales by K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales.

To be exact, the market during the present season has handled 35,087,696 pounds of tobacco for which the farmers have been paid well over four million dollars.

Sales yesterday were among the heaviest of the week, the report showed. A total of 631,968 pounds of leaf was handled for $84,144.11 at an average of $13.32 per hundred pound.

The price situation which reflected an upward trend during the early part of the week held up well throughout the entire week, and this situation was expected to continue.

With the markets of this belt to close December 21, farmers were expected to market the remainder of their crop rapidly during the intervening period.

SEEK RETURN OF HILLMAN

Methodists to Ask the Conference to Send Minister Back to His 'Flock' Here.

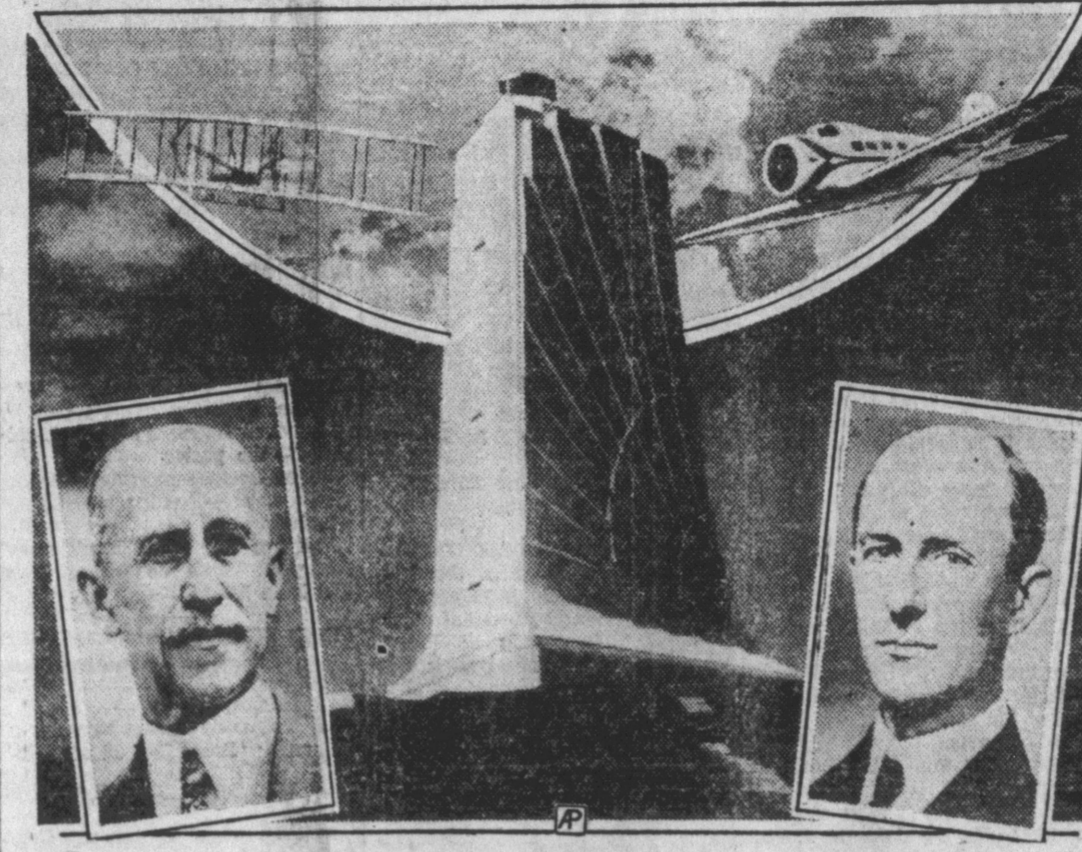

The close of the current conference year in the local Methodist Episcopal Church finds the congregation working zealously to round out the year's work so that its pastor, Rev. E. L. Hillman may be able to present a flattering report of the year's work at the annual conference at Rocky Mount next week.

The membership of the local church has been highly pleased with the ministry of Mr. Hillman during the past four years. Very gratifying progress has been made under his stimulation toward discharging the small amount of indebtedness that remains on the church property.

The work among the young people of the church in the city and among the college students of Methodist membership attending East Carolina Teachers College has been most gratifying, and the spiritual leadership of the pastor, assisted by his wife and the church secretary, Miss Ruth Henderson, has been such as to give the church unusual impetus during the past four years.

A vigorous effort is being made to have Mr. Hillman returned to this church by the forthcoming conference. A resolution to this effect was adopted recently by the Board of Stewards of Jarvis Memorial Church and forwarded to Bishop (Continued on Page Four)

Towering Pylon Dedicated Today Stands as The Nation's Belated Tribute To Air Pioneering Wrights

The towering granite monument (above) erected atop Kill Devil Hill near Kitty Hawk, N. C., to mark the site of the first successful flight in a power-driven airplane was dedicated today. The shaft stands as a tribute to the Wright brothers, Orville (left) and the late Wilbur (right), who conquered the air December 17th, 1903.

Secretary Hurley Pays Tribute to Brothers Who Made First Plane Trip

ROOSEVELT ON WAY, ALBANY

President-Elect Preparing for Conference with President Hoover.

Albany, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt left today to be gone two or three weeks during which he will turn his attention from State affairs to war debts and other problems of the national government. He goes to his home at Hyde Park preparatory to calling upon President Hoover at Washington next Tuesday.

Motoring from the capital, the President-elect before he returns will hold a conference with Democratic leaders of Congress besides the conference on administration problems with President Hoover.

Leaving Washington Tuesday night, he plans to go by train to Warm Springs, Ga., for a vacation. There as the nominal chief to whom Democratic leaders in Congress will look, he will go over legislative questions with Vice-President Garner and members of Congress.

RUTH NICHOLS IN UNVEILING

Orville Wright, One Of Brothers Who Made First Airplane Flight at Kill Devil Hill, Hears Himself Praised as One of America's Greatest Sons; Ehringhaus And Warren Among Speakers.

Kitty Hawk, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Secretary Hurley, dedicating the memorial in commemoration of the first trip through space in a heavier-than-air plane, today described aviation as merely in its infancy.

Hurley paid tribute to the wizardry of the two mechanics, Wilbur and Orville Wright, whose ingenuity and perseverance on Kitty Hawk sand dunes 29 years ago brought them into everlasting fame, before he accepted the granite pylon on behalf of the Federal Government.

"As a direct result of their successful flight at Kill Devil Hill December 17, 1903," Secretary Hurley said, "the conquest of the air is to be achieved."

"I use the future tense advisedly. Great as has been the progress since the intrepid men achieved their first flight in a power-stricken plane, flight in a power-driven plane, aviation is still in its infancy."

Orville Wright, who has come from Dayton, O., for the ceremony, heard himself praised as one of two of America's greatest immortal sons.

Kitty Hawk, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A memorial dedicated to two brothers who made modern-day aviation possible stood on the top of a sand dune here today around which representatives of the nation gathered for exercises in honor of Wilbur and Orville Wright.

Scores of airplanes flew over the granite pylon erected as a tribute to the brothers who made modern-day aviation possible in 1903—a symbol of the giant stride made since the beginning of aviation 29 years ago.

J. Patrick Hurley, Secretary of War; Governor-Elect J. C. B. Ehringhaus and Congressman Lindsay Warren were on the program as principal speakers.

To Orville Wright, whose brother died several years ago, and Ruth Nichols, famous aviatrix, fell the honor of unveiling the monument.

For three years the Wright brothers experimented with a glider on Kill Devil Hill, and it was news for the world when their efforts were (Continued on Page Four)

PLAN DINNER FOR THE POOR

Salvation Army Will Feed 700 People Here Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving Day dinner for the poor, one of the greatest of the kind in history of the city, will be given by the Salvation Army at Johnson's Warehouse next Thursday, it was announced today by Ensign Willett, director of the local Salvation Army organization.

The ensign said dinner would be provided for approximately seven hundred people, the largest number since inauguration of the free Thanksgiving meal several years ago.

Churches and other organizations of the city are co-operating with the Salvation Army to make the dinner a great success, it was said. (Continued on Page Four)

Pitt To Form Unit Of Institute of Government

It is the purpose of the Institute of Government recently organized at the University of North Carolina to soon organize county units in every county in North Carolina. Every office-holder within the State is expected to give his full co-operation in the organization of the various units throughout the State. Under our system of government we have frequent elections, and in the past our newly elected officers take office without experience and with no place to obtain information as to the duties incumbent upon them.

Every officer in Pitt County, from constable on up, is expected to give his full co-operation in the formation of the Pitt County unit. The plans and purposes of the Institute of Government are as follows: (1) In the preparation of governmental guide-books which will bring to every governmental officer a clear and concise statement of (1) the powers and duties of his office, (2) the methods and practices developed by his predecessors in the exercise of these powers and the performance (Continued on Page Four)

FLIER TAKES TO PARACHUTE

Airmail Pilot Jumps to Safety in Fog In South Carolina; mail is Saved.

Rock Hill, S. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—J. C. Buckman, piloting the eastern airmail transport from Richmond, Va., to Jacksonville, Fla., took to his parachute sixteen miles south of here today when he became lost in a heavy fog, leaving his plane to crash in the same vicinity.

Buckman landed safely. Buckman telephoned A. T. officials in Charlotte and started out to search for his plane which was found wrecked but with the mail safe about two miles from where he jumped.

He said he drained the gasoline from the engine to prevent the possibility of fire and then landed four miles from Edgemore, near the farm of A. E. Wesethbrook, from whose home he sent word to Charlotte. The mail was taken from the plane and sent to Chester by automobile.

Buckman said he became lost in lower South Carolina, and made his (Continued on Page Four)

BUNDLE DAY IS POSTPONED

Annual Scout Drive for Clothing Deferred Until Next Saturday.

Owing to the rainfall which visited this community today, the annual Boy Scout Bundle Day, set for this morning, was deferred until next Saturday morning, it was announced by Ensign Joseph Willett, director of the Salvation Army, who is in charge of the Bundle Day movement here.

Although several Scouts were on hand to begin their canvass of the city this morning, Ensign Willett decided it would be advisable to postpone the campaign until next Saturday. He said the health of the youths might be impaired by making the canvass in the rain, and thought it could be done just as good next Saturday.

REBARKER TO TALK SUNDAY

College Professor To Address Congregation of the Christian Church; Ryan III.

Due to the illness of Rev. W. A. Ryan, the Eighth Street Christian Church will have as guest speaker tomorrow morning, Dr. Herbert Rebarber of E. C. T. C. Dr. Rebarber's ability as a speaker and teacher assure both a splendid message and a good attendance.

This sort of service involves four exchanges which if developed by the church, would ultimately revolutionize its character and its work. In occupying the pulpit of the Eighth Street Church, Dr. Rebarber, a layman, shares in the work ordinarily conceived of as being more or less exclusively the work of the clergy. When this sharing becomes both mutual and general, the understanding of lay and clerical (Continued on Page Four)

Sees Bi-partism Plan For Unity In America

(By BYRON PRICE) Few developments in latter-day politics have hinted at such interesting possibilities as the present overtures at Washington for bi-partisan consideration of major questions of national policy.

President Hoover's request for a conference with President-Elect Roosevelt is only one of several signs of a growing willingness on both sides to bury the harsh enmities of the campaign and get together on a continuing program.

This tendency becomes more significant when it is examined along with various lesser steps in the same direction previously taken by Mr. Hoover and certain ideas on the subject attributed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Repeatedly, during the trying hours of his administration, the President has summoned both Republicans and Democrats to united action for reconstruction. He has picked Democrats for important posts.

As governor of New York the President-elect has put Republicans into office over the protest of the old guard Democratic leaders of the state. As a presidential nominee he said little about the Democratic party and much about the need for a "liberal" party, embracing Republicans, Democrats and Independents. Few men of presidential rank since the present party system took form have gone further than these two in their bids for united support.

Projected forward through the remaining months of President Hoover's administration, this tendency would seem to indicate at least sufficient cooperation so that the change next March will not be too sweeping or abrupt.

Projected into the administration of President Roosevelt it may mean a great deal more than this. Elected as he was by the support of the members of all parties and all sections, the new chief executive certainly will find himself far more free to act independent of party than most of his predecessors.

Late News Flashes

Budget Figures Reduced.

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—After an extraordinary meeting of the cabinet called by President Hoover to discuss the federal budget, Secretary Mills today told newspapermen that budget figures would be forwarded to Congress "considerably lower than the former $4,135,000,000 submitted last year."

After conferring for nearly two hours members of the official family left the executive offices saying that reductions in their particular expenditures could be expected.

Secretary Mills said he had today informed Chairman Byrns of the House appropriations committee that the administration and subsequent activities by Democratic House committees last year and since have caused repeated squabbles in the political arena.

Sixty-Seven Die On Roads. Raleigh, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Automobile accidents took 67 lives on North Carolina highways during October and caused injuries to 455 persons. L. S. Harris, head of the state automobile bureau, said today.

Of those killed 32 were pedestrians and eight were children playing in the streets. Hit and run drivers, accounted for seven deaths and injuries to 22 persons.

Will Certify Davis Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, intimated here today he would issue a certificate of election to Senator Davis, Republican of Pennsylvania, but might accompany it with a separate letter of his own to the Senate.

The Pennsylvania governor during the recent campaign urged the Republican State Committee to replace Senator Davis as the Republican nominee. Davis is under Federal indictment. (Continued on Page Four)

JAPS READY FOR LEAGUE

To Inform Council That Manchukuo Is Not First State Given Independence.

Tokyo, Nov. 19.—(AP)—It was unofficially learned today that Japan will remind the council of the League of Nations next week that Manchukuo was not the first state separated from its parent state and given independence through action of another power.

The argument will be contained in Japan's answer to the Lytton report on Manchuria which will be made public tomorrow night officials told The Associated Press today.

ABOUT TOWN

A warning against the indiscriminate purchase of milk and oysters was issued yesterday by the County Department of Health...

The people were urged not to buy either of the two foods only from authorized dealers, eliminating the danger of illness resulting from the eating of impure foods.

The two departments are eternally on the alert to safeguard the health of the populace and those who adhere to the warning and buy with discrimination will always be on the safe side.

Harmony is being sought at the disarmament conference to be held in November 21, in the hope that some definite action may be obtained toward reduction of armaments.

This is one of the biggest problems confronting the nations of the world at this time, excepting of course, the troublesome debt question, and something must be done to reach an agreement satisfactory to all nations.

By the reduction of armaments all nations would save millions of dollars annually, and after a certain period of time debtors of this nation should be able to pay their war debts through saving on armaments.

With financial conditions more serious than they have been in years it is going to be necessary for the world to get down to strict economy and if they do not find it possible to cut arms at the next conference it will not be long before conditions will force them to it whether they want it or not.

Boy Scouts of Greenville attempting to do their bit toward providing for the indigent population during the winter, will observe annual Bundle Day next week.

It is impossible to say how successful will be their effort to raise hundreds of old garments for the cause, but it is safe to say they will go beyond the mark set last year.

The Scouts are forever striving to render a high type of service to humanity and the people should do all in their power to encourage them in their work.

Conditions are going to be severe among the poor at the best this winter and the Scouts are to be commended for this effort to carry relief to the destitute families of those unable to provide for themselves.

Special services will be held on Thanksgiving Day at the Immanuel Baptist Church and people are urged to attend and join the community effort to express thanks for the blessings the nation has received.

Probably some may feel like they don't have anything to be thankful for in the face of trying times they are having to make ends meet, but in taking such a position they are looking at the world through glasses colored with indignity.

The nation and Pitt county also have many things for which to be grateful this year, and everybody should join the effort to return thanks.

Among the most important things we have to be thankful for is the good health and peace prevailing throughout most parts of the world at this time.

The National Grange would encourage greater use of cotton in resolutions adopted at the annual convention of the organization in Winston-Salem yesterday.

The same suggestion has been made from time to time for the last several years in fact, since cotton prices hit the toboggan people should give more attention to the matter and wherever possible buy cotton goods in preference to others.

By doing so they boost one of the greatest industries in the south and open up a route to eventual recovery.

A PATH TO PARADISE

SYNOPSIS: At a musical comedy Santa spies the friend of her former husband, Lou-Lou, whom she most detested. Lou-Lou is on the stage; in the audience Santa finds Dicky himself. She thanks him for his elaborate birthday present—but later she quarrels with Clive, her second husband, whom she adores.

SANTA'S PROPOSITION

Next morning Santa was unaccountably gay. Clive, on the contrary, was subdued. He was ashamed that they should have staged a scene on her birthday.

He had fetched her pantoufles and fitted them to her feet. She sat darning her legs over the edge of the bed, regarding him.

"In starch of work, along with the rest of the unemployed," "Help me, Clive." She leaned her head on one side.

"I never realized till last night how bitterly you resent having nothing to do." "It wasn't mentioned," he said.

"For a man marriage isn't a career. Because you have money you seem to think it ought to be. At the moment I may be only a small potato. The little I earn or don't earn mayn't make much difference.

"What is the reason?" "Hand me my comb; it's on the dressing-table. Why wouldn't it be the reason? Your future's mine."

"Stop tugging at your hair," he commanded. "This is the greatest moment of our lives. My future your future! Why the dickens didn't you say it sooner? You've acted as though you wore the trousers and I had no future. I can fight now that I know it's for you I'm fighting."

"Don't need to." She threw him a tricky smile. "Is there a nigger in the woodpile?" "No nigger, little boy. Only that your wife's found you a job while you've been searching."

"Someone asked me if you were free. This somebody estimates your ability very highly. No good asking his name; he doesn't want to figure. You're to go to an address that I'll give you. I don't mind telling you that the salary's twice what you were earning."

"I'm not worth ten thousand, Santa."

"We deal in securities. Work along lines similar to those of your late employers. Handle estates. Examine investments."

"Does that matter? How about walking round to my club?" "It was an impressive lunch that his host ordered. Increasingly Clive suspected that there was a game being connived when the salary was mentioned—ten thousand dollars; the precise sum that Santa had stated.

"Then we may expect you tomorrow?" his host asked at parting. "Let me sleep over it."

"I don't want to appear ungracious," Clive hesitated. "We'll consider no one else till we hear from you."

"But, Clive, you can't afford to be high-hat. Give it today. Everything will be settled."

"Guess I'll wait till tomorrow." He escaped down the passage to the bedroom. High-hat—good heavens! When it came to affording, he couldn't afford to be married. He conjured to himself what ten thousand dollars a year would mean to him: self-respect, if he could earn it honestly.

"But there is. Why so much mystery? Having done me a good turn, you spoil it by treating me as an imbecile."

"Darling, you're nervously exhausted. You see the ghosts that ain't. When you've cinched that job tomorrow we must run down for a change to Atlantic City."

"What is it?" She stood facing him. "This absurd." "I agree. You're too difficult for anything."

"You're the one who's difficult, Santa. You're trying to browbeat me into obeying you as though I were a kid in short pants. You know something you don't dare tell me? She stared back in dumb appeal.

"You don't dare tell me, because if you did I wouldn't accept."

one reason: you hate to place yourself under an obligation to your wife. He fumbled for words. "If a husband's always obeying his wife's orders, he never gets time to be himself."

"You've had two months with nothing to do but be yourself." "Careful, Santa. That's a left-over from your first marriage."

"Again my first marriage!" Tears filled her eyes. Without a backward look he darted for the elevator.

COLORED QUARTETTES TO SING HERE THANKSGIVING

Announcement was made here today that the colored quartettes which put on a singing contest here last year, will appear next Thursday evening at 9:30 o'clock at Gorman's warehouse.

Instead of having a singing contest this year, the three best quartettes from last year's program will give a hour and a half of harmony. The three quartettes which will appear are Raleigh, Greenville and Washington. It is also planned to have one other quartette, but those named will be featured.

The Washington boys won first prize in the contest last year, with Greenville second and Raleigh coming in for third. Over a thousand people from over this section heard these singers here in their last appearance, and provisions have been made at the warehouse to seat an equal number on Thanksgiving.

Comfortable seats will be furnished for both white and colored people. Immediately after the singers appear, a ten-piece orchestra, the Carolina Serenads of Durham, will give a dance program for colored people. White spectators are invited to remain for this program also.

Story of "Arms and the Man"

"Arms and the Man" by George Bernard Shaw, the play that will be presented by the Jinye Players at East Carolina Teachers College on next Tuesday evening, Nov. 22, at 8:30 o'clock, is a rich satire, full of wit and wisdom, with love and romance sprinkled throughout. The theme is militarism.

The time of the play is in 1885-86 during a war between Bulgaria and Servia. The place is Bulgaria, in and around the house of Major Petkoff.

In act one, the Bulgarians have recruited the Servians in battle, and one of the fleeing Servians breaks into Raina's bedroom. Though she is disgusted at his prosaic way of looking at the "glory of war," something in his frankness attracts her enough that she hides him when her countrymen search the house. Raina and her mother then give him an old coat of Major Petkoff's to help him get away.

In act two, the war is over. Raina's father and fiancée return telling of Captain Bluntschli a Swiss officer in the Servian army who claimed that two Bulgarian ladies had hidden him after the great defeat. Captain Bluntschli appears unexpectedly—ostensibly to return the coat but in reality to see Raina again, and because he can help Petkoff dispose of some military business they find hard, is invited by Petkoff against his wife's wishes to pay the family a visit.

In act three, Raina finds Bluntschli more and more interesting in contrast with her lover's heroic posing. Father and fiancée finally discover that Raina and Catherine are the women who saved Bluntschli. Raina rejects Sergius and when Bluntschli asks her hand, accepts him.

Much of the humor in the play comes from the attempts of the Petkoffs, with their barbarian background to appear up to Western ways to a "flight of stairs inside to get up and down by" and to washing the hands "nearly every day," and from the ironic contrast between the romantic ideas of a soldier and the real thing.

STATE GETS IN TRIM FOR GAMECOCKS

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 19.—Entering into the last practice campaign of the current football season, North Carolina State College's Gamecocks is priming itself for the Thanksgiving Day game with the Carolina of the University of South Carolina.

Coach Billy Laval will bring to Raleigh the heaviest line to face State College this season. From end to end, it will average close to 200 pounds per man.

With such an impressive defensive record against some of the best teams of the South, South Carolina will attempt to halt State's contingent of as stepping, hard plunging backs. The State backfield which is most likely to cause the Gamecocks most trouble is composed of Don Wilson, quarter; Robert McAdams and Roscoe Roy, half, and Mope Cumskey, fullback.

It is around these two men that Coach Laval has built his offensive.

ATHLETE'S MOTHER WIFE BOOSTS VALUE OF SPORTS

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. William W. Hinchman is the wife of one athlete and the mother of three others and should know something about the value of athletics.

She married Bill Hinchman when he was right fielder on the home town baseball team at Williamsport, Pa., and followed him to Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, where he now is scout for the Pirates.

She is the mother of William Hinchman, Jr., who received six letters in baseball and basketball at Ohio State; Lew Hinchman, this year's captain of the Ohio State eleven, and Robert Hinchman, star high school football player.

"Sports keep a boy physically fit," she says. "As long as they don't interfere with a boy's education I think they are unsurpassed."

SPORT SLANTS

The several explanations surrounding the surprise pulled by the St. Louis Cardinals in hiring Rogers Hornsby again, for playing purposes, may be summed up something like this:

(1) Messrs. Bredon and Rickey actually felt convinced the Rajah has some good playing days left after eighteen seasons under the big top (one less than Babe Ruth) and that, in particular, he still will move up to the plate with that bat to drive in some of the runs that Chick Hafey used to produce.

(2) The possibilities of Hornsby meaning something at the "gate" back with his old club and forced, by circumstances, to make the most aggressive kind of a come-back for purely personal reasons, apart from any others involved.

(3) The willingness of the Cardinals to gamble with the veterans, who may have one or two more big seasons left, at the same time they are making the most out of the young, talent produced under their farm system.

It's Up to Rajah
The Cardinals cut Grimes and Hafey loose at a time when they not only wanted to begin re-organizing but felt that these two athletes had just about outlived their usefulness in St. Louis. The 1932 records of what Grimes didn't do for the Cubs and Hafey failed to produce for the Reds adds to the record of the Cardinal executives for far-sightedness.

readily than Hornsby will step into the one-time Fordham Flash's shoes at second base. But it will be an interesting experiment, at least, for an outfit that specializes in the unusual.

Fun For Street
Meanwhile the old sergeant, Gabby Street, can spend the winter months wondering just how much fun he will have bossing two former managers of the Cardinals, Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell, recently pulled back to St. Louis in a trade with the Giants. Branch Rickey could make it a quartette, if the demand for harmonizing arose.

HIGH TRIMS STRONG TEAM FROM KINSTON

In a football game played in a downpour of rain yesterday, Greenville High defeated the Kinston High team by a 6-0 score. The rain and mud made anything but straight football plays impossible and the game was slow and uninteresting.

All of the game was played in Kinston territory with Kinston not getting into Greenville territory during the entire game. The nearest the visitors got to scoring territory was on the kick-off to open the second half when they returned the kick to their own 40-yard strip only to be held for downs.

The defensive work of the whole Greenville team was outstanding. This is proved by the fact that Kinston was not able to register a single first down while the locals ran up a total of ten. Tom Wilson, Moyer Dal and Tom Rivers were powers in the line and Graham MacAdams was the backfield luminary.

MANY GREAT TILTS IN DUKE UNC RIVALRY

Chesul Hill, Nov. 19.—Carolina and Duke's State championship meeting here today at 2 o'clock has a background of ten games since the old rivalry was revived in 1922, which include several classic battles and which supplement the teams' 1932 records in guaranteeing another great game this year.

The 6-0 games of the last two years have been among the most hotly contested games the State has seen. Kid Brewer dashed around end for an apparent Duke touchdown in the first quarter last year, but Laney held Walker and the play was called back. Tom White did the same things for Carolina in the next period, but the officials ruled he stepped out on the 8-yard line.

Brewer, Laney, Sink, Adkins and others wrought beautifully for Duke, and Phipps, White, Chandler, Thompson, Strickland, Fyral, Hodger and Gilbreath for Carolina. But drive and fight as they might, it seemed the gods of fortune were unwilling to pick between the two gallant foes.

The 1930 tie was the epochal and famous "battle of the mud" and "naval engagement" at Lake Kenan, which held a crowd of 15,000 to the last play despite the pouring rain and chilly winds. Murray and Brewer's straight line-jamming kept Carolina on the run much of the time. Duke apparently headed for a touchdown once, but a fumble was inevitable with that wet, slippery ball, and Magner, Nash, Lipscomb and the other Tar Heels redoubled their defensive efforts after that.

Carolina's 6-0 victory of 1926 was a great one. The 98 seconds Gus McPherson, who only weighed 117 pounds, literally high-dived over the goal line for the one score. A minute later a Duke back broke completely loose, but MacGray ran him down from behind.

Jimmy DeHart's eleven were favored to beat Carolina in both 1927 and 1929, but the Tar Heels won 19-0 and 14-7 upsets. Tom Young, Jimmy Ward and Steve Purchess literally dazzled Duke in '27, and a great Tar Heels line silenced every threat before it started. In 1929, both teams scored, with Buie and Jankowski leading Duke's charge, and Magner, Erickson and House driving Carolina down. Jimmy Maus threw one of his bullet passes to Julian Fenner, passing directly through the raised arms of a Duke defender, for the winning touchdown.

Conches Collins, Cerney, and Fetzer brought on their great team in 1929, and its 48-7 victory over a great, valiant and willing but outclassed Duke eleven was nothing short of brilliant. Jimmy Ward and Strud Nash literally ran wild that day, such as "Rabbit Bonner, Jack Cobb and Billy Devin did in Carolina's other big victory over Duke back in 1925. That was the last year Bill and Bob Fet-zer coached the Tar Heels and Carolina won '41-0.

The three games before that were hard and close. Captain Grady Pritchard, "Poison Ivy" Johnston and all the rest of Carolina's 1922 South Atlantic champions could only beat Trinity 20-0, and the Tar Heels only won 16-6 in 1923 and 6-0 in 1924. Roy Morris captained the 1925 eleven and Pierce Matthews the 1924 eleven.

PLAN DINNER FOR POOR

(Continued from page one) and the layout will be the most extensive ever staged in this section. In order to do its bit toward helping to raise food for the dinner, State Theater will give a matinee next Wednesday afternoon. Persons attending the show are requested to bring some article of food which will be accepted as the price of admission.

Poor persons desiring to take advantage of the dinner will be required to obtain tickets from the Salvation Army home on Greene Street, it was said, and that will insure them of a place at the festive board.

Brigadier Casler will be speaking before a number of the Civic Clubs, both men and women, in the near future; also addressing the ladies of the church circles and auxiliary. It is planned to have a residential canvass. The city will be divided into small districts and each woman's committee will cover their respective districts.

Never in the history of the Army's work has there been greater need for the organization than at the present time. Through co-operation is the spirit of the Army and its workers.
Ensign and Mrs. Willet have become very valuable assets to Greenville, and never one during the nine months they have been in charge has anyone called upon them and been refused. It is hoped that the good citizens will get back of the Army again this year and help them raise the budget, which will be named next Monday.

BUNDLE DAY IS POSTPONED

(Continued from page one) raise as much clothing as possible to assist in the campaign to take care of the indigent population during the cold winter months. The drive this year assumed additional significance in view of the fact that all collections of clothing would be given a value and included in the total community relief program.

Ensign Willet said he hoped the people would consider the serious situation prevailing among the poor this year and contribute as liberally as possible to the cause. All bundles should be placed on front porches in the early morning so that the Scouts will have no trouble in finding them.

NAB STILL IN SWIFT CREEK

From now until the Christmas holidays will be perilous times for the whiskey-making elements as officers in all cities and towns throw out a dragnet to ensnare members of the illicit traffic.

Scores of run runners from adjoining counties operate in an out of Greenville from time to time, it was said, and it is probable quite a number will find their way into the county before the holidays to answer to charges of violating the national prohibition laws.

REBARKER TALKS SUNDAY

When Dr. ReBarker, a Baptist, occupies the pulpit of a Disciple Church, he is by his presence voicing a prophecy of a coming generation which shall care less and less about the denominational differences and more and more about the greater ties which should bind them into a great Christian Communion with but one great objective—to serve God.

We comment on this service for tomorrow, not because it is unique but because it is representative of a widespread and ever-increasing sharing in the work of the church which is inevitably bringing together into closer bonds of fellowship, the laity and the clergy and the various denominational divisions of the church.

The flight demonstrated that flying in such a plane was possible. Authorized by an act of Congress, the pylon was built under supervision of Capt. John A. Gilman. The design was by Robert P. Rogers and Alfred E. Poor, New York architects.

The foundation of the monument is in the shape of a star. The granite shaft is triangular, facing northward toward the spot a short distance away where Orville Wright made the first flight.

The monument resembles a pylon with a folder wing motif. Around the base is the inscription: "In commemoration of the conquest of the air by the brothers, Wilbur and Orville Wright. Conceived by genius, achieved by dauntless resolution and unconquerable faith."

Stock Market

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The stock market again found it a little lower to advance than to decline today, but speculators' enthusiasm was at low ebb.

The list drifted in a narrow range during the earlier trading, but stiffened in the last hour with several issues rising about one to more than two points. The turnover for the two-hour session however was only 400,000 shares. Closing tone was firm.

Such stocks as American Can, American Telephone, Santa Fe, and Union Pacific pushed up about two points and Case made an exceptional gain of about three points.
