CHINA TURNS DEAF EAR TO LYTTON COMMISSION

Government Refuses To Accept Proposals For Negotiations With Japs

WANG SEES WORLD WAR

Chinese Foreign Minister Says if League of Nations Fails To Find Solution for the Manchurian Dispute the "Seeds of a New World War Will Be Sown; Four Separate Instruments are Sought.

Nanking, China, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Proposals announced by the Lytton commission and others for direct negotiations with Japan to find a solution for the Manchurian dispute are absolutely unacceptable to China, the government announced today.

The Lytton commission recommended an advisory conference between China and Japan with the object of outlining four separate instruments.

1. A declaration by the Chinese government of a constitutional special administration for Manchurian provinces.

2. A treaty between China and Japan dealing with Japanese interests.

3. Another treaty for conciliation, arbitration, non-aggression and mutual assistance.

4. A commercial treaty between the two countries.

If the League of Nations fails to find a solution for this dispute, B. T. Wang, the Chinese foreign minister, said today, "The seed of a new world war will be sown."

Burgaw Merchant Hurt in Accident

Burgaw, Nov. 25.—(AP)—B. J. Farrior, Burgaw merchant and a member of the Pender County Board of Education, was critically injured and two others less seriously hurt in an auto crash here near noon today.

The others injured were Andrew Smith and an Italian known only as "Big John."

Police said Farrior's car sideswiped an apple truck driven by Smith and that both machines were wrecked.

The three were given medical attention here and then taken to a hospital at Wilmington, twenty-five miles away.

Suffers Injury

New York, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Mrs. Lillian Marquarts, thirty-six, of 835 C Street, Quincy, Mass., was injured today when an automobile driven by her husband collided with another car at Bowery and Fourth Streets. Mrs. Marquarts was removed to Bellevue Hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture.

HUSKIES IN WHITE SPATS FORM RIO'S RIOT SQUAD

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Two hundred huskies who wear white spats with their dress uniforms have been formed into a special police riot squad.

These picked fighters have been trained in boxing, wrestling, jiu-jitsu and capoeira, a Brazilian method of fighting with the feet. Some of them carry machine guns, too.

Parading upon their inauguration, the big fellows were coruscous in red and blue jackets and trousers with red stripes, white spats and white gloves. But on active duty they wear khaki.

Private Fliers Subsidized Wellington, N. Z., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The New Zealand government has bought three airplanes for flying clubs and is subsidizing such organizations to provide for the training of one hundred pilots this year, an increase of ten over the previous year.

TO PAY DEBTS IN THEIR WAY

Foreign Debtors Move to Pay Installments to U. S. in Their Own Currency.

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—With the ease offered them by President Hoover, some foreign debtors denied suspension of December 15 payments, will move to pay their installments in their own currency.

Generally Congressional leaders are opposed to a new moratorium or the agency to re-examine the debt question, were inclined to favor payment in native currency and will support such a proposal if any debtor applies.

Foreign exchange is a complicated affair but payments really become a simple matter of transfer of credit when all is said and done. No gold or goods crossed the ocean when the loans were made.

GRID PLAYER FATALLY HURT

Howard Sutton Dies of Injuries Received in Football Game at Charlotte.

Charlotte, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Howard Sutton, former Charlotte Central High school football player, died today from injuries received yesterday in a football game between the Fideles and the North Charlotte All-Stars, an independent non-professional team.

His injuries at first were not considered serious but he was carried to the hospital here where he died suddenly in less than twenty hours after being hurt.

Sutton was one of the star performers on last year's Central High school team here. After graduating he worked in New York and had recently returned home. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sutton.

FEW TALKS TO METHODISTS

Nashville Minister Also Speaks at Second Day of Conference at Rocky Mount.

Rocky Mount, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Addresses by Dr. W. P. Few, of Duke University, and Dr. G. E. Morelock, of Nashville, Tenn., were the highlights on today's program of the 96th annual North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The conference settled down to a full day of hearing reports and handling of other business after Thanksgiving Day was devoted to exhortations to greater activity.

Bishop Edwin Mounzer delivered a brief and inspirational address at the morning devotional and the conference turned its attention to the reading of pastoral reports.

On motion of Rev. M. T. Plyler, of Greensboro, Bishop Mounzer was instructed to appoint a committee for the celebration of Methodism in Baltimore October 10-14 1934.

SCOUTS READY FOR BUNDLES

Local Organization to Collect Bundles for the Poor Here Tomorrow.

Bundle Day, an occasion set aside for the Boy Scouts to collect clothing for the poor, will be observed in Greenville tomorrow and the public has been called upon to give as liberally as possible to the cause.

The campaign was to have been staged last Saturday, but was deferred until this week on account of rain.

The activities of the Scouts will be directed by Ensign Joseph Willett, director of the Salvation Army, and every effort will be made to raise as much clothing as possible for the hundreds of people suffering from lack of employment in this immediate area.

Boy Scouts have conducted Bundle Days here for the last several years, and while considerable clothing was raised each year, hope was expressed by Ensign Willett that the offering would be far greater this year because of the acuteness of the situation prevailing among the poor.

Mayor Flanagan said several days ago conditions were more accentuated at this time than any time since the abnormality was first recorded, and called on the people to give liberally to the cause.

Others in intimate touch with the poor believe the best the community can do will be to little when the winter sets in and the wolf begins howling at the doors of the poor.

People desiring to contribute to Bundle Days have been asked to place their bundles on front porches early tomorrow morning so the Scouts may complete the canvass as soon as they can and turn their attention to other duties.

Paris, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The government has accepted the gift of the "Nungesser-Coll," the plane in which Costes and LeBrix made their flight around the world. It will be placed in the Aeronautical Museum.

Elevators Put On Mileage

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 25.—(AP)—It is not necessary to ride with F. A. Auguste Piccard to travel ten or twelve miles skyward. Statisticians have figured that an elevator in Toledo's tallest building travels 24 miles daily, half of that distance going up.

FRANKLIN ORGANIZED FOR WORK OF RELIEF

Louisburg, Nov. 25.—With the exception of Youngsville and Franklin townships which have a separate Red Cross chapter, an organization has been formed in each of the townships of Franklin county to work under the supervision of the central relief committee of the county.

The central relief committee of the county chapter in administering Red Cross relief, announced Dr. H. G. Perry, chairman of the Louisburg Red Cross chapter.

To obtain flour and clothing it is necessary to file application. An investigation is then made by the local township relief committee which may recommend or refuse the application according to the merits of the case.

Roosevelt Takes Rest In Georgia

Democrats Troubled By Organization of House; Speaker Is In Limelight

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Organization of the Democratic House in the new Congress from selection of a successor to Speaker John N. Garner down to the last committee already is troubling holdover members in view of their large majority.

Activity in the drive for the Speakership nomination—tantamount to election—is reaching a feverish pitch. A deluge of letters has gone to the 313 Democratic members in behalf of election of announced and unannounced candidates.

Rep. Rainey, of Illinois, floor leader, and Rep. Rankin, of Mississippi, are now in the field, but formal announcement in behalf of Rep. McDuffie, the party whip, soon is predicted by his friends.

Rep. Bryns, of Tennessee, chairman of the appropriations committee, Bankhead of Alabama, Warren, of North Carolina; O'Connor, of New York, and Greenwood, of Indiana, also have been urged to enter the race.

TWO STORES ROBBED HERE

Thieves Make Considerable Haul Clothing from Saieed and Smith Stores.

Robbers entered two adjoining stores on Dockinson Avenue Wednesday night and obtained considerable clothing and dress goods, it was revealed at police headquarters today.

The stores entered are operated by John Saieed and H. T. Smith. Saieed reported the loss of a dozen suits of clothes and other men's wearing apparel. Smith said his loss consisted mainly of women's dress goods.

Entrance to both buildings was made from rear doors after the locks had been battered off.

Aysecue's store also was reported to have been entered the same night but nothing was reported as missing.

Police immediately investigated the robberies, but no information leading to apprehension of the robbers had been obtained up to the noon hour today.

Tentative Date Set for Bank Reopen

Durham, Nov. 25.—Tuesday, December 20, has been set as the tentative date for opening the new bank to replace the old First National, the re-organization committee announced yesterday as they signified intention of setting about this week to recover the ground lost by the recent setback caused by failure to wind up the re-organization within the time allotted originally by the Comptroller of the Currency.

The committee yesterday expressed gratification at the Comptroller's action in extending the time for opening and stated that the work of resigning the depositors to agreements would be speeded up as much as possible.

Moving South

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 25.—(AP)—General offices of the Armour Fertilizer Works will be moved from Chicago to Atlanta, Ga., about January 1, President John E. Sanford said today. "The bulk of our business and most of our plants are in the South," he said.

Late News Flashes

France Informed Of Debt Action Paris, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The American executive now has power to grant postponement of the two hundred million dollar debt installment due from France December 15, the State Department of the United States informed this government here today.

"The American government and the people," said the note "give to the maintenance of an existing accord of such importance that it is greater than all reasons considered in favor of convention." If payment is made chances of favorable examination in its entirety in my own opinion would be greatly increased."

He suffered with heart trouble sometimes, and although his ailment was known to be of a serious nature, for the last several months it was considered satisfactory and he had been as his desk each day.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Duhlin Keener, of Durham; mother, Mrs. E. W. Keener, of Lincoln; three sons, Walter, Jack and Bruce.

BIG CROWDS AT SERVICES THANKSGIVING

Three Services Mark Observance of Season in the City Yesterday.

Thanksgiving was appropriately observed in Greenville yesterday. While hundreds of people made their annual pilgrimage to the woods in quest of game, and others bled away to some other parts of the country to attend football games and visit relatives, those who remained at home joined in one of the largest outpourings to religious services probably in the history of the city.

In addition to this turkey predominated over most of the meals served in the city during the day, and hash will be the general order. (Continued on Page Six)

COUNTY COURT FINISHES WORK

Sentence Passed In Two Cases During Second Day Session Wednesday.

County court completed its second day session last Wednesday. Several cases were disposed of during the sitting and the remainder were continued until next Tuesday.

The second day's session was brief, and while no cases were actually disposed of, Judge Wheelock passed sentence in two cases heard the day before.

Jim Allen, colored, charged with possession of whiskey, was fined $25 and cost of action.

J. F. Hall, charged with transporting whiskey, was adjudged not guilty.

Has Liquor Camphor Already Fixed Up

Lenoir, Nov. 25.—Sheriff John W. Wash has been bothered no little in recent days by folks begging for liquor.

"Gimme a pint of liquor to use as camphor," they would say in making the request.

About one person a day would come after the essence of corn, and while officers weren't looking, would sneak behind a closed door and gulp a portion of the liquor.

That became obnoxious to Sheriff Walsh. Something had to be done about it. He hit upon a scheme to put a stop to the practice and now, if anyone thinks he'll get holiday liquor from Caldwell's sheriff he's badly mistaken.

The sheriff bought a quantity of camphor and mixed it with the liquor and his pleading friends will find that he is very courteous in handing out the mixed dose of camphor and liquor.

A regular customer is said to have obtained a pint of the mixed fluid the other day without knowledge of the mixture with camphor. Someone heard him gassing as he downed one of the fluid, thinking it was confiscated liquor.

Attendance at Missouri State parks during the 1932 season showed a decline of nearly 100,000 from the previous year's 331,786.

THANKSGIVING QUIET IN PITT

Only Few Minor Arrests Made by Officers in Various Parts of the County.

The lawless element remained inactive in Pitt County yesterday and Thanksgiving passed off quietly for law enforcement officers in all parts of the county.

Although there were a couple of robberies here the night before Thanksgiving, these constituted the major part of the trouble which officers experienced.

In Greenville officers early today picked up a negro giving his name as Theodore Roosevelt, who stole an automobile from Judge Bailey in Williamston last night. Williamston officers came over this morning and took the negro into custody and returned him to Martin County to face court action.

Chief George Clark said one or two other arrests were made last night. These were of a minor nature consisting of charges of taking on too much booze.

County officers were able to spend the day in a restful Thanksgiving style. Disorders throughout the county were conspicuous for their paucity and the sheriff's office this morning had nothing of any consequence to report.

Some of the surrounding towns passed through the season of thanksgiving like Greenville, and while a few arrests were made for minor violations, infringement of the law was at a minimum and nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

While there were the usual number of minor automobile wrecks, none of any consequence were reported by the highway patrol today.

President-Elect Will Soon Tackle Program of His Party In Congress

Enactment of Measures Looking toward Governmental Economy to Balance the Budget and Farm Relief Hold Attention; To Follow Outlines Suggested by Roosevelt in Campaign Speeches.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 25.—In the quiet of his little white cottage under the pines, Franklin D. Roosevelt, president-elect, settled down today to a period of rest before tackling the job of working out with Democratic Congressional leaders a program to be supported in Congress.

The broad outlines of the program already have been talked over with numerous members of the party in the round of conference the president-elect held while he was in Washington early this week. They called for enactment of measures looking toward governmental economy to balance the budget and farm relief following the general outlines enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt in his campaign speeches.

Among the first of the leaders expected to call upon Mr. Roosevelt early in the week is Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader.

BIG QUESTIONS IN THE OFFING

Woolly Roads in Australia Sydney, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The council of Morse, New South Wales, is testing a road pavement made of chemically-treated wool which is said to set as hard as concrete. Wool of inferior market grade is used.

Musicians Beats Dutch Tax Amsterdam, Nov. 25.—(AP)—F. W. Willem Meugelberg, conductor of Amsterdam's orchestra, has closed his home and moved to a hotel to demonstrate to Dutch officials that he really resides in Switzerland. He is only "staying" here and therefore cannot be taxed in Holland.

Births Worry Portugal Lisbon, Nov. 25.—(AP)—While Italy and France worry over a declining birth rate, Portugal takes the opposite tack. Latest annual figures reveal 204,120 births against 115,225 deaths, and the government is trying to encourage emigration to its colonies in Africa.

INSTANTLY KILLED AS TRUCK OVERTURNS

Weldon, Nov. 25.—Cary Alston, reserve truck driver for Darden Lumber Company of Littleton, was instantly killed Monday afternoon at 2:40 on the Weldon-Roseboro highway at Alhman's Crossroads when the truck which he was driving skidded and overturned on a curve. Another negro in the cab with him was unhurt.

American wool, a cotton fabric, is marketed in sixty foreign countries, says the Department of Commerce.

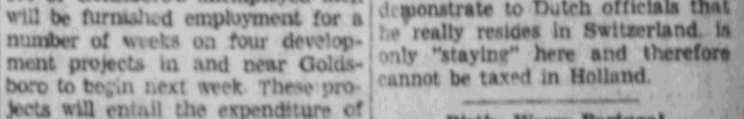

OVER HUNDRED MEN TO GET EMPLOYMENT

Goldsboro, Nov. 25.—More than 100 of Goldsboro's unemployed men will be furnished employment for a number of weeks on four development projects in and near Goldsboro to begin next week. These projects will entail the expenditure of around $2,500 in Federal relief funds. The projects were approved at a meeting of the county relief council, the Community building Tuesday night. Rev. A. J. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Goldsboro, was elected chairman of the work.

School News

Value Of Practice Teaching.

The fact that Greenville High School is outstanding in scholarship and in low expenditures is directly or indirectly due, we assert, to our system of practice teaching. For the East Carolina Teachers College pays the critic teachers a salary other than that which is paid by the state. Thus the school can stay within the budget and yet employ extraordinarily competent teachers. For example, all but four of our high school instructors hold M. A. degrees. Furthermore, because of the present relation to the college, the school is enabled to borrow of it various apparatus. Without this privilege, physics, we may safely say, could not be taught in this high school. The chemistry, biology, and general science classes would be retarded; and our English, French and history classes would be less interesting because of the lack of illustrative materials.

In these days of Republican prosperity, regular teachers are having to teach more and larger classes than ever before; and it naturally results that their pupils can be taught only as a group. Under the critic and practice teachers to give individual help to the students. Incidentally, someone has said that the greatest defect of the American public school system is the lack of individual instruction. The slower students must have it if they keep up with their classes and the brighter pupils must have it if they are to take advantage of their keener minds.

Without practice teachers, our instructors would be rushed, overworked to prepare five lessons each day, and some of these would be obviously hastily done. But with student teachers, the work is divided among them, thus giving each teacher ample time to carefully compare her lessons—lessons that appeal to the pupils' interest.

Then too, there is the fact that the critic teachers constantly supervise their practice teachers, guiding them in the proved channels and checking statements. Many teachers are apt to let a mis-statement upon their part pass without correction, but the critic and the practice teachers continually check one another.

Of course there are disadvantages in the system: Sometimes the discipline under a practice teacher is more lax or more erratic than under the regular teacher; the practice teacher is often too verbose; and her delivery of the lesson is sometimes below par. The opposite is often true, and all in all, the advantages of our present system—money, equipment, and superior instructors—vastly overbalance its faults.

CHARLES SHUFF.

Mere Giving, Less Thanks.

In the third year of depression, with millions still unemployed, we turn to the Thanksgiving season with somewhat doubtful feelings. This holiday has been celebrated in the past in the sense of accomplishment, and we wonder if we can celebrate this day when hunger, desperation and poverty lurk in each town. We believe it a shame and sheer mockery to celebrate this as a day of Thanksgiving.

Rather would we draw our lesson from the heavey and hardships of the P'grams and resolve to follow them in our present crisis. Then when we've won the battle, given people employment, reduced poverty, we would have the President set forth a new day of thanksgiving and sit down before our turkey and even enjoy the hash. Until then—

This year's thanksgiving should be attended by a resolve to give until it hurts. Give clothing, good clothing to the Boy Scouts tomorrow and give food and money to other organizations of charity. And after falling in with the relief plans of the national government we will be working toward an HONEST Thanksgiving.

HAROLD SUGG.

Sponsor Thanksgiving Party.

A thanksgiving party was given by the Junior class Wednesday evening from 8:30 to 12 o'clock in the high school gymnasium. A large crowd attended and everyone seemed to have a delightful time. Many of the college set here for Thanksgiving attended the party. Dancing was the main entertainment throughout the evening. Music was furnished by Don Blackman and his Roosevelt Serenaders.

Chaperones for the occasion included several teachers and several parents.

The money taken will be used to entertain the seniors at the Junior-Senior banquet in the spring.

Cobb Succeeds Willard

At the last meeting of the Rotary Club Charles Cobb, prominent senior, was chosen as Junior Rotarian for the coming month, because of his athletic ability and succeeds another outstanding senior, George Willard, who was chosen to represent the school because of his unusual scholastic standing. Cobb will attend all meetings of the club for the next month as Willard did for the past month.

The local club this year adopted a plan which has proved very successful in other towns. Each month a representative is chosen from the senior class who attends the meetings of the club. Students are chosen on the basis of scholastic and athletic ability alternately. The athletes who will represent the class every other month are Charles Cobb, Roger Taylor, Tom Rivers and Moby Dall. A drawing of straws placed these four boys in the order named and they will attend the club meetings in that order. Those who will represent the school because of their excellence in regular work have not yet been announced.

WILBUR MAYO

POLITICS

By BRYON PEICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The Democrats conference at Warm Springs have a political interest far out-reaching the immediate public issues involved. Their real significance is measured by the degree to which they develop a working understanding—or lack of it—between the next President and the leaders of the next Congress.

To appreciate the complexities and the importance of this first step toward inaugurating the "new deal" at Washington, it is necessary only to ask two questions:

Who is to be elected to the Democratic House Speakership which Mr. Garner will vacate on March 5 to become Vice President, and for which a half-dozen candidates are contending? What measure of recognition is the new Democratic Senate to give to those insurgent Republican Senators who supported the Democratic national ticket in 1932?

Answers Important

In terms of legislative accomplishment—always a most important consideration for any administration—the answer to each of these two questions means very much indeed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Such problems as these, moreover, are the sort of thing a President or President-elect must handle with gloves; for the legislative branch of the government is jealous of its constitutional independence.

All Mr. Roosevelt can do openly is to say that what the Senate and House do is their own business. Yet if he wants the kind of leadership every President aspires to, and if he hopes to have the way smooth for his legislative program, it will be of highest concern to him who sits in the places of authority on Capitol Hill.

Whatever he may do must be done with the greatest political finesse of which he is capable if it is to produce real results.

He Knows Politics

For this part of his new duties, Mr. Roosevelt is equipped by a long experience in practical politics. The word "politician" has no especially pleasant odor, but the successful Presidents have been, almost without exception, men deeply versed in the intricacies of this great American pastime.

Not only does a chief executive find seasoned politicians in the important committee posts in Congress, but he learns that even in his own cabinet the men who can do most to build up popular esteem for the administration are the men who have political influence.

That may not be as it should be, yet it is the fact. The whole tenor of history is that a President, to get what he wants, must know how to handle the politicians. It is that job the President-elect now is undertaking.

A Test

Doubtless Mr. Roosevelt has in mind the hazards as well as the advantages of close relations between White House and Capitol.

President Taft was much criticized for yielding too often to the opinions of his party leaders in Congress, just as President Hoover has been much criticized for making major decisions without consulting Congress.

As a student of politics, Mr. Roosevelt has observed both of these things in his life. Warm Springs and the events flowing therefrom during the coming weeks should afford some measure of his ability to translate his training into results.

The events of the next few weeks, growing out of the conference between President Hoover and President-Elect Roosevelt, may easily determine whether the war debts are to become and remain for a generation an issue in American politics.

If, on the other hand, any stop-gap arrangement is substituted for a definite solution, the outlook will be for political uncertainty leading, in turn, to long-continuing bickering and dispute in the realm of partisan politics.

No Party Issue Now

It is rather remarkable that things have been permitted to go as far as they have without either party trying to make capital of the war debt problem. The temptation to do so in the future will be exactly in proportion to the degree with which Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt and their supporters temporize and leave positive decision for the future.

In this recent campaign, neither party platform and neither nominee said very much about these debts. The consensus of it was a general agreement all around against cancellation, but cancellation never has been proposed seriously by any considerable number of responsible public men. Politically, to oppose cancellation was about as meaningful as to oppose the return of the saloon.

A Bigger Question

The question, as public opinion presents it to the government at Washington, goes beyond that. It asks what steps short of cancellation—whether by further moratoriums or revision of the principal due—are advisable in view of conditions in said instrument violated, and the owner of said indebtedness having requested this foreclosure, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash before the Court House door in Greenville, N. C. on government was a resolution declaring against reductions, passed by the unanimous vote of Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill. The separation of this important question from politics is the more noteworthy because it continues at a time when the financial condition of the government, related directly to war debt conditions, is a subject of increasing political concern.

Up To Roosevelt

How much longer can the war obligations be kept out of the widening circle of partisan discussion over the deficit, taxation, and foreign commercial relations?

The answer depends partly on Mr. Hoover, partly on Congress, and largely on Mr. Roosevelt. To face the situation squarely now, and forewarn the world what the policy of the American government will be for the next four years, would go a long way toward insuring that the war debt situation will not become hereafter a football of politics.

He is one of a great army of smokers who have learned that Chesterfield's claim... "They're milder and they taste better"... means just exactly what it says.

Chesterfields are milder for the simple reason that they are made of milder, riper tobaccos, blended and cross-blended, and seasoned with just enough Turkish to make them taste right.

One more thing. Chesterfields are pure... just as pure as the water you drink.

All along the line Chesterfield's mildness and better taste are clicking.

Hillman, who is away at the annual conference. Old favorite Methodist hymns will be sung, and the Apostles Creed will be recited. The pastor will preach with these friends in mind, and it is the hope of the Presbyterians that the invitation will be accepted by the entire membership.

End of Century Club Meets. The End of the Century Club met Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 with Mrs. C. W. Hearne on Third street.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, and after a short business meeting, the program was turned over to Mrs. R. H. Wright who introduced to the club Mr. Marvin Blount, who spoke on "The Merger of North Carolina Colleges." Mr. Blount told of the action of the last General Assembly in proposing the consolidation of the State University at Chapel Hill, State College at Raleigh and the N. C. College for Women in Greensboro. This action was taken for the sake of economy and after experts had carefully gone into the question and decided that this could be done and save the state a great deal of money. The three schools are to have one president and then a vice-president for each institution. The board of trustees consists of one hundred persons, ten of whom must be women.

Mr. Blount told something of the history of the three colleges, stating that the University of North Carolina is the oldest in the country, having been founded in 1783; A. & M. College in Raleigh was founded in 1867 and the N. C. College for Women in 1891. For the past ten years the state has been most liberal in appropriating money to the three institutions but owing to economic conditions it was necessary to reduce the appropriations. Rather than have the college suffer because of this it was decided to combine the three as there were too many duplications in the different departments that could be worked out satisfactorily if all three institutions were consolidated. Dr. Frank Graham has been elected president of the combined colleges; Dr. Brooks, vice-president of State; and Dr. Faust, vice-president of N. C. College for Women.

At the close of Mr. Blount's most interesting talk, Miss Edith Morton, student of East Carolina Teachers College, gave a humorous reading entitled "High Culture in Dixie." This was most enjoyed by the members of the club.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Hearne served a salad course. The next meeting will be the Christmas meeting on December 15 with Mrs. J. L. Fleming and Mrs. J. B. Spilman as hostesses.

Jitney Players Please Audience. The performance of "Arms and the Man," the clever "pleasant play" satirizing militarism and provincialism by the Jitney Players at East Carolina Teachers College Tuesday night was excellent in every way. The players departed in their "jitneys," leaving behind them such a favorable impression that the audience would like to see the other three plays in the repertoire this season, if they are as well done as this one was.

The acting was of very high order, and there were no minor parts in the sense of parts played by inferior actors leaving all the acting to the so-called "stars." These players seem to have caught the spirit of the Russians in their repertory plays in which the minutest details were given careful attention.

Allice Cheney and Douglass Rowland were very fine indeed in the leading roles. The girls in the audience found themselves following her example and falling in love with him at the very start. Mrs. Cheney brought out well the subtleties of the part, the repressed young woman standing by the conventions and pretences and the girl who is revealing her true self.

Barbara Benedict as Catherine Petkoff, the proud but anxious mother of the daughter engaged to a hero, played her part with genuine appreciation of its importance. Major Petkoff, as played by John Marjory, was a delightfully natural figure.

Ellen Love as Louka, the maid, was dramatic and added pep and life, while Harrison Dowd as Nicola, the manservant, with his cool calculating wisdom, was an excellent foil for her. Charles Kradoska played the part of Major Sergius Saranoff convincingly.

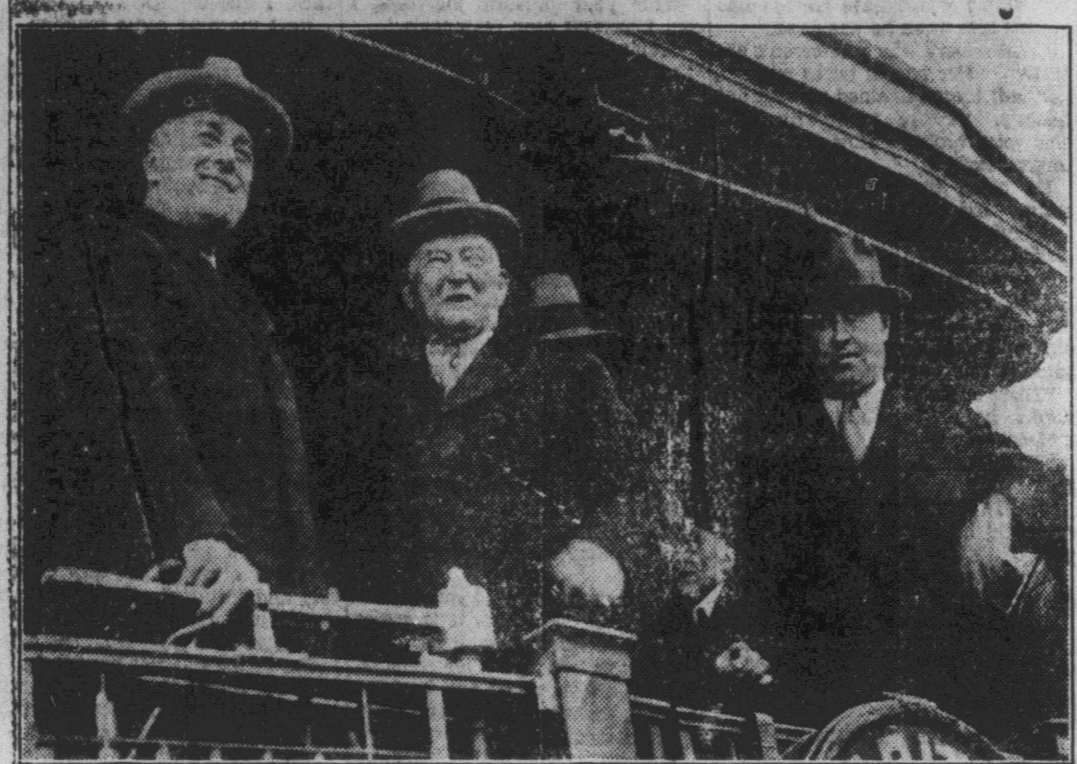

None of the finer shadings were lost by the quick response of the audience to the witticisms and the suggestions given in the acting. Especially enjoyable were the bits of humor at the expense of the soldiers and soldier life and at the pretentious would-be cultured provincial family.

ABOUT TOWN

Greenville did her best to express thanks for the blessings of the year in appropriate Thanksgiving services at Immanuel Baptist Church Friday.

The service was well attended and those who felt deeply grateful for the things which they had received during the year were inspired by the message.

The custom of observing this day as a day of thanksgiving is a country itself and should be perpetuated each year as long as the nation stands.

By giving due recognition to the blessings received during the year the people prepare themselves to receive even greater blessings in the future. It is when we begin to stop appreciating these things that we are brought to a keen realization that we owe allegiance to a power higher than those on earth and due recognition must be paid to Him.

Tomorrow is Bundle Day in Greenville and Boy Scouts will visit various parts of the city and collect bundles of clothing for the poor. The movement was to have been held last week but was deferred until this week because it was believed the boys could do more effective work without rain to retard their efforts.

People are urged to continue ready to this cause and help the boys realize their ambition to do their best in behalf of those who have not been fortunate in the past. The best we can do will be too little and it is the hope of the committee that everybody will try to contribute just a little bit to the splendid cause.

Franklin D. Roosevelt evidently does not wish to make his ideas concerning the debt situation known until he takes his position as chief of the White House.

While he is ready and willing to do his best for the people at large, he does not feel it his duty to advise the present administration what to do in such a complicated matter.

President Hoover and members of Congress will have to make the decision without any suggestion from the President-elect. He has left responsibility on the shoulders of the Republican party now in power and will not lay himself open to criticism until he becomes absolutely responsible for the conduct of the national government. And nobody will blame him for his resistance.

Greenville high school football team concluded the season yesterday with a Thanksgiving game with Mars Hill. The club made a great showing this year against some of the strongest teams in the conference and is to be congratulated.

The athletic association has been running behind in a financial way for years and had it not been for the eleemosynary spirit of some of the clubs of the city it would have been impossible for the team to have obtained sufficient equipment.

Attendance at games and other sports of the school will be boosted from the account books. Football season will open up now in a short while and it is hoped each game here will be marked by large attendance. It is the only way the school has to meet expenses in this field of endeavor and they can't make the progress desired until the people realize the fact and contribute through their attendance at games from time to time.

From now on the familiar phrase "Do your Christmas shopping early" will be heard on all sides.

Stores have already started to display their Christmas goods and in a few days now shop windows will be chock full of the things containing messages from Santa Claus. This is always one of the happy seasons of the year and while money isn't as plentiful as it once

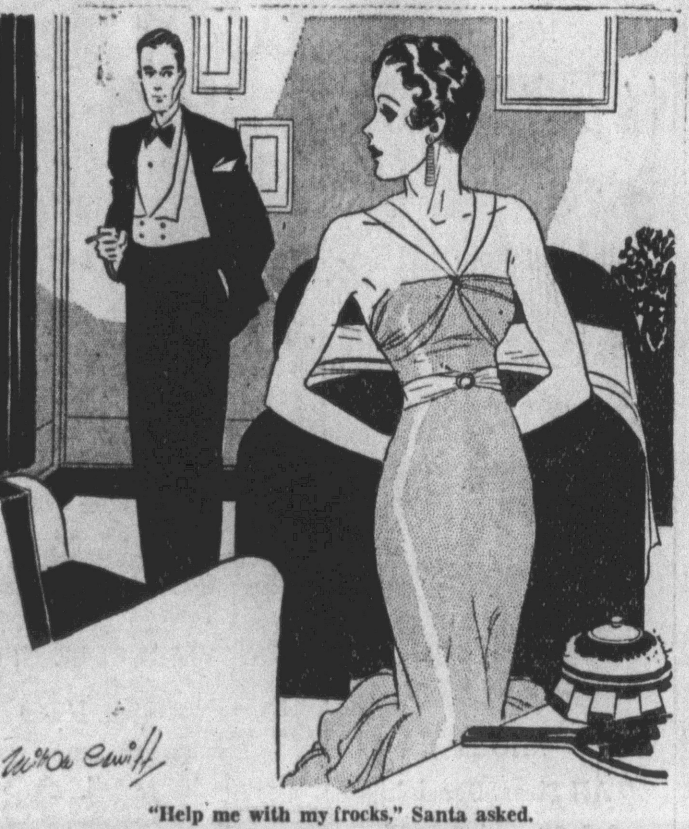

A PATH TO PARADISE

by Coningsby DAWSON

A PATH TO PARADISE SYNOPSIS: Santa is conspiring with her first husband, Dicky Dak, to put Clive, husband No. Two, into a highly paid position with Dak's firm. Santa and Clive quarrel; next morning Clive goes back to his former employer for more salary than Dicky offered. His success makes him magnanimous; he consents to a celebration at Dicky's expense.

Chapter 34 PET-SHOP HUSBAND

Between her two husbands, past and present, Santa sat in a state of nervous tension. It was like waiting for a bomb to burst. They were behaving beautifully. The so-called club at which they were dining had been one which she and Dicky had frequented during their engagement. Had Dicky chosen it to remind her? The head-waiter had immediately recognized them and led the way to what had once been their favorite table.

"Help me with my frocks," Santa asked.

"Not asleep?" "Waiting for you." He entered, standing just inside the threshold. "Close the door, old man. A kind of silly evening, wasn't it?" Without raising her head, she set to work removing her complexion. "I found it educational." "Seemed silly to me, I was bored." "Do you object if I smoke?" She glanced up. "You always do—so why the politeness?" He sank into a chair from which he could gain a full view of her. "What kind of an evening would you have preferred?" "We two, together." She drifted to her feet. "Help me with my frock."

"Madame has my congratulations." Like an actress who had forgotten her part, Santa disguised her silence with radiant smiling. Clive, quick to sense her danger, played the gracious host, toasting Clive's success and keeping the ball of conversation rolling.

At the theater Santa's own drama eclipsed the drama behind the footlights. The saying about sleeping dogs applies to divorce husbands. Clive was probably quite convinced that she still harbored a weakness for him. But were that the case, why had he accepted Dicky's offer to celebrate? Was it in order that he might watch them or to prove to her that he was broad-minded?

She longed and dreaded to be alone with him. Twenty-four hours had gone by since she was alone with him. What a fool she'd been to lock her door against him!

During the intervals when they strolled out to puff a cigarette, she refused their invitation to accompany them. It was a relief to be free to repair her complexion. Her thoughts followed them. She was the only topic they had in common. Were they discussing her?

On the drive home she slipped her hand into Clive's; he received it as though it were a package. When the taxi halted, both her escorts hopped out to assist her to the pavement. "Come up," Clive invited. "Too late." Dicky removed his opera-hat. "I'm most grateful to have had this opportunity to know you better."

"The delight's on our side," Clive shook his hand cordially. "So long, Santa." Dicky included her. Such magnificent amiability! To the girl who had honeymooned with each in turn, it seemed that she belonged to neither.

Meanwhile Clive possessed himself of her arm, hurrying her to the elevator. Not still they were in their apartment did he utter a word. "Let's look at you." "But you've seen me so often." Santa strove to make a jest of his intimacy. He surveyed her from head to heel.

"What's the verdict?" She forced a laugh. "I feel sorry for Dak." "Dicky's a good enough egg when he's on his best behavior," she feigned flippancy. Clive frowned. "I'm sorry for any man who's loved you."

His words caught her by the throat. "Loved and lost you," he added. "Well, you've not lost me; so let's shuffle to bed." Gathering her cloak was the spirit of Old Saint Nick will live in millions of hearts and his benevolence will be felt in myriad homes throughout the country. People should shop early this year and in addition to getting the best of the bargains do their bit toward relieving the shop workers from the terrific rush always accompanying the closing days of the holiday season.

worse. "To have been attentive in the way you simply would have seemed like kicking him when he was down." "That wasn't why you weren't attentive." Her bag of tricks was exhausted; there remained nothing but honesty. "You're mad with me." Her voice broke. "How can I win forgiveness?"

He stood transfixed—still as a statue. His words came slowly. "Forgiveness is up to you, Santa," said Clive. "To kiss and cuddle isn't forgiveness. Before one can forgive, one needs to understand. If one doesn't uproot the causes of the disaster, he walks straight out and tumbles into the same traps."

"There oughtn't to be traps on the road to heaven," she whispered. "Don't get you." "Your road to heaven you call me?" "Did I? My steep ascent to heaven would be closer to facts. I expect that's how I appear to you."

"No, Clive. Every day you grow dearer." "Can't we stop exaggerating?" He bit his lip. "There are things we ought to learn about each other." She became wide-eyed and panicky. "On my honor, I've never kept any secrets."

"Only the ones that I've prevented you from telling. On what grounds did you obtain your divorce from Dak?" "You could have learned that any time. You would never allow me to mention him. The grounds were cruelty." "What constitutes cruelty?"

"The phrase is elastic. It can include anything from yawning to feeding vitriol to babies." "It could include, for instance, the scene we're now enacting?" She flung herself at him, heedless of whether her embraces were ignored. "The fool I've been to kill your affection!"

For the first time he ceased to look through her. Her soft arms were about him. The weight of her body dragging on him. Her head was thrown back, her face imporing. She was no longer the masterful young matron who'd sailed ahead, shaping both their lives. She was yielding, adorable, adorning. Stopping to her long, white throat, he met her half way in forgiveness.

Not a word spoken. He laughed, and snatched his dressing-gown from the bed and wrapped it around her. "And now where shall I seat you?" "I'll flop." Collapsing cross-legged on the carpet, she grimaced up at him. "It smells of you—I mean the dressing-gown. It smells of forgiveness. I won't bleat. Let's have what's coming to me."

"Coming to us both," he corrected. "I wish you'd snake—do something natural. Here!" He handed her his lighted cigarette. Seizing his fingers, she drew her lips across them. "I aren't tender." He patted her head and dived for the chair he had vacated.

Having retained it, he crouched shaking a finger at her as though she were a puppy. "I mean business—so let's cut out the pathos and the comedy. Yesterday you walked out on me and I didn't find it a bit funny. Today your guilty conscience has made you afraid that I'll do the same by you. If you were only trying to throw a scare into me, you were idiotic. I might have taken your distaste for me at face value."

"That's how divorces start, by one party taking the other's actions at face value. Perhaps I haven't been easy to live with. At first I didn't earn enough to contribute my proper share. Then losing my job. As regards your previous marriage, I own I haven't been reasonable." "You've been a lamb," she purled; "I'm the one who's been unreasonable. But why did you ask me on what grounds I got rid of Dicky?" "Because..." He interrupted himself. "You're not playing the game, Santa; you're edging nearer. Because I've found him to be an exceedingly pleasant fellow."

"Partly manners." She shook her head. "Try being married to him. Toss me another cigarette." "But the same thing might be said of me dearest—that any pleasantness I possess is partly manners. If I allow my wife to contract the habit of bolting, where do I get off?"

"Get this into your thick head." Surprisingly she shortened the distance that separated them. "You are not Dicky. Dicky and I flew apart because we were never really married."

"As much married as you and I," he insisted. "More so, if it comes to that. Bridesmaids, music. No back history. You're a matrimonial Houdini—that's where you have me at a disadvantage. I married to stay married; you've had experience in escaping. Any time I stick up for my rights, as I did yesterday, you can put me where you want me by threatening to repeat the disappearing act."

"But I won't—never again. I promise." She had wriggled her way to his knees till she leaned against them. His aloofness was melting. He was sinking under her spell. "You think you won't, Santa. But how can I be sure? Your home-training was bad. I'll never become a yes-artist like your father."

She took his hand that was nearest and began to toy with it, folding and unfolding the fingers. "I wouldn't stay with you an hour if you were." He chuckled. "And yet a yes-artist's what you've tried to make me."

"Hiring this apartment," she accused herself. "Furnishing it with things that belonged to me and not to us." "And tagging your divorced husband," he added to the indictment. "Is that fair?" She glanced up quickly. "I didn't tag after him."

"It isn't." He bent over her, pressing his cheek against hers. "He stole back into your life by a series of accidents. If I'd been willing to talk about him—"

She seized the excuse. "Not talking about him made him a guilty secret." "And guilty secrets lead to deception," Clive helped her. "Not to deception," she fumbled; "to something that you construed as deception." When you discovered that he was the person who was anxious to employ you, of course it looked—"

He jerked her. She raised herself, staring at him in fascination. "What do we care how it looked?" His voice was husky. "From tonight everything's going to be not me or you, but us."

Intoxication followed. "So happy!" she sighed. Later in bed, watching him undress, she asked: "Why did you let Dicky entertain us?" He paused in the removal of his studs. "You won't be angry?" "Of course not." "You won't be hurt?" "Honest."

"Because I thought he and I were in the same boat—a pair of discards. It made me sympathetic." She stretched out her arms. "Same here, imbecile."

Nearly suffocated, he spluttered: "Most married couples are imbeciles, I guess." Next morning came reaction. He gazed at the sweet flushed face. It was extraordinary how much younger Santa looked in bed than in her clothes. She became immature—angelic. The artifices she employed to improve her appearance disguised her. Speech spoiled her.

Asleep, when she couldn't interfere with herself, she was at her best. And this ethereal creature, fragile, holy, was the antagonist he had chosen with whom to bandy words. Taunts hurled in the heat of combat recolled to wound him. Matrimonial Houdini! His steep ascent to heaven! Any reproach addressed by a man to a woman was at least twice as offensive as the same reproach addressed by a woman to a man.

He heard again his rapier-like thrusts; on what grounds had she won her divorce. He saw himself cold and torturing—the just person, the inquisitor, the French comedy caricature of a husband. His detestation of the role was overwhelming. The ignominy of contending with a woman! And the reward of his harshness had been gentleness. Her eyes opened. "Hello, handsome!" He bent over her. "I'm ashamed."

"Forget." She drew down his head. Over breakfast they framed a constitution. No more suppressions, no more reprisals. Every grievance to be debated. Their future a perpetual Christmas.

Nature's Own Secret of Health Revealed

Science Discovers That Good Health Depends on Supplying the System with Necessary Minerals and Vitamins.

Medical Science has discovered that the human body is made up of a very limited number of essential elements. All of these are found in the Mineral kingdom and in foods in their natural state. To be exact, the healthy human body is composed of eleven Minerals and when these are present, in balanced proportion, we enjoy good health.

PROPER FOODS ESSENTIAL Unfortunately, few of us give any thought to balancing our diets, according to their Mineral content, and therefore we must pay the penalty. A deficiency of these elements brings on Indigestion, Gas, Bloating, Constipation, Headaches, Nervousness and a host of other ills. We soon lose strength, go from bad to worse and become disgusted with life itself.

NEW WAY TO HEALTH For many long years, Physicians and Chemists have been trying to combine, in proper proportion, the eleven essential Minerals with necessary Vitamins. They realized that the preparation must be easily assimilated and supply the system with these elements so necessary to health.

SCIENCE TRIUMPHS AGAIN Fortunately, for all mankind, this tremendous undertaking has met with success! Science has perfected a most remarkable formula, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. This preparation supplies the system with the eleven essential Minerals, in combination with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense of the word, a "patent" medicine but is more in the nature of a FOOD VITALIZER. It assists Nature, by restoring a proper balance of the Mineral Content of the body and good health follows as a natural result.

BIG SURPRISE AWAITS YOU You who are blue, down cast and depressed over your loss of health. You who have tried many medicines and treatments with little or no relief—take new heart and cheer! Prepare yourselves for the most joyous surprise of your lives.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST Convince Yourself! Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Drugist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Warren Drug Store, Greenville, and other good dealers everywhere or, send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 167 Forsyth St., S. W., Atlanta, Ga., for large bottle postage paid.

High Loses Final Game Of Season To Morehead

Greenville High School's football team fought desperately yesterday to overcome a 14 point lead run up by the Morehead City team in the first five minutes of play, but failed by the scant margin of one point. The game ended with the locals on the short end of a 14 to 13 score.

Morehead City presented a smooth working team that grabbed the lead and managed to hold it throughout the whole game. With only about two minutes of the game gone, Macready, elongated Morehead City end, grabbed a pass out of the air and raced 25 yards to a touchdown. Van Horn added the extra point on a line buck. Three minutes later this same lad Macready intercepted a lateral pass by Greenville and this time traveled 33 yards to score. Van Horn again added the extra point.

Early in the second quarter the locals got to going, and after recovering a fumble by Morehead on the 50-yard line, proceeded to march down the field to score their first touchdown when Gibbs carried the pigskin over on a center buck. Taylor's try for extra point was short.

The second half was all Greenville's. Three times the locals were in scoring distance, but only once were they able to push the ball over for much needed points. This one successful play was a forward pass from Taylor to Hodges, who then trotted 10 yards to score. This time Taylor's extra point try was good, but the locals were still one point behind. A desperate passing attack brought no results, although one long pass rolled off Gaston's fingers when he was in an open field.

Greenville outplayed the much vaunted Morehead City Tigers, but Ledy Luck refused to smile on the local lads. Ten first downs were rung by Greenville to only six for the visitors. Five passes were completed by the locals to two by Morehead. Greenville also intercepted two Morehead tosses.

The backfield work of Rex Hodges and Graham MacAdams was outstanding on the offense as was that of Rivers, Dall, Kittrell and Wilson on the defense. For Morehead City, Macready and Brinson were outstanding in the line and Van Horn proved to be one of the fastest backs seen on the local field this season.

This game ended the season for the locals. Out of ten games played the Greenville lads have won six, tied one and lost three. Two of the games lost were by narrow margins; one to Wilson by a 2 to 0 score, and the one yesterday by a 14 to 13 score. Five local lads played their last high school game yesterday, but a good nucleus will be left to build around next year.

Line-up and summary:

| Greenville | Position | Morehead |
|------------|--------------|---------------|
| Gaston | Left End | Macready |
| Rivers | Left Tackle | Nelson |
| Kittrell | Left Guard | Willis |
| Wilson | Center | Roberts |

| Windham | Right End | Guthrie |
| Madrin | Quarterback | Leary |
| Gibbs | Halfback | Wallace |
| Taylor | Halfback | Van Horn |

Scoring: Gibbs, Hodges, Macready 2. Extra points: Van Horn 2, Taylor. Substitutions—Greenville: Hodges, Hardee, Moseley, Morehead: Davis, Royal, Warren, Parker. Officials: Beatty (N. C. S.), referee; Wheabee (U. N. C.), umpire; Dixon (N. C. S.), headlinesman; Rose (Duke), field judge.

U. N. C. GRID MEN BID FOR HIGH HONORS

Chapel Hill, Nov. 25.—Although the University of North Carolina football squad this year, partially on account of its tough schedule, has not made a record "to write home about," Coach Chuck Collins and his assistants, Bob Helzer and Bill Cerny have developed several players who will rank with the best in the conference and who will be given serious consideration by those making all-southern selections.

The three outstanding candidates are June Underwood, center; Stuart Chandler, full back; and Erwin Walker, end. All three are seniors. Chandler has played every position in the backfield and has filled every pos. with great credit. Coach Collins rates him "the outstanding back in this section" and credits him with being the chief factor in keeping up the morale of the team despite its early season reverses and in leading it back to the victory road.

Carolina's peerless line star, June Underwood, has had much the same record. The rugged, charging 190-pounder from Sanford, was one of the best tackles in the south for two years, but Carolina faced the 1932 season without an experienced man at center. Underwood made the shift without even a murmur and his brilliant play there has been a revelation even to Coach Collins. Coach Collins is also proud of Erwin Walker, end. Walker's work this season has been invaluable to Carolina and ranks him among the stars of the team.

Kentucky this year is expected to produce 68,000,000 bushels of corn compared to 80,000,000 bushels last year.

MARKET REPORT

Market closed Wednesday for Thanksgiving and will reopen on Monday, 28th. Greenville continues to lead all other markets by nearly 2,000,000 pounds. We sincerely appreciate the patronage given us this season, enabling us to keep Greenville the World's Largest Bright Tobacco Market.

Let us urge that you market your tobacco as quickly as possible, as prices are now highest of season.

Scrap Tobacco

Beginning at once, we will again sell your scrap tobacco at Auction. For many years the warehouses in Eastern Carolina have not offered scrap for sale. This year some of the markets have resumed selling scrap at a auction and Greenville will do likewise.

Greenville is leading all other markets because we are paying more for every grade of tobacco. Competition has never been keener, and some of the markets are getting frantic offering all kinds of wild inducements, even to hauling tobacco free if they will bring their tobacco to them. Every thinking farmer knows he pays the bill if he takes up with these wildcat schemes.

SPORT SLANTS

As Edward "Slip" Madigan rolled back west with his battered Gaels of St. Mary's, there was just one thing about the Fordham beating in New York he couldn't understand.

Peter Coyle had failed Notre Dame and its traditions for the first time.

Introducing Peter Peter is a slim, dark man who must be somewhere in his forties, an employee of the city of New Haven, Connecticut. He's Notre Dame's two-eyed Connolly.

One day when Knute Rockne and Notre Dame were riding the heights together, Peter managed to attach himself to the great Scandinavian. Once "in" he never could be shaken loose. He became Notre Dame's unofficial mascot in the East, for once Peter arrived, Notre Dame couldn't lose.

Peter took it all very seriously. For days before a big game in New York he would bombard Rockne with messages, assuring the coach he would be there to help, walking if necessary.

This never failed to loosen Knute's heart or pocketbook. Sure enough, Peter would be there, carrying Knute's bags, pulling Rock off into a corner to advise him, winding up always on the Notre Dame bench for the game.

He Meets Madigan In time, Peter broadened his allegiance to include the men who had played under the great coach and now are coaches in their own right. Thus did he come in contact with Madigan.

The first time "Slip" scheduled a game in the East, Knute said to him:

"A fellow will come up to you in New York, put his hand up to shield his mouth, and whisper hoarsely and confidentially into your ear, 'Hello, Slip, old boy, old boy, old boy.'"

"That will be Peter Coyle. Put him on the bench. He's good luck." Everything happened just as Knute predicted. But Peter had trouble getting to the ball park. He arrived between halves with St. Mary's trailing Fordham 12 to 0. St. Mary's promptly came back in the second half to win 20 to 12.

Where Duty Calls

Noble Kiser brought Purdue to New York to play New York University the same day Jimmy Crowley was in the East with his Michigan State team tackling Syracuse. Peter was born tackling two duties.

Finally he wired Crowley his decision.

"I helped you beat Fordham last week. Kiser and Purdue need me this Saturday."

To Kiser he sent this telegram: "Hitch-hiking from New Haven to help with team. Save me some breakfast."

So Madigan, with Peter meeting St. Mary's on arrival at New York this year, had ever reason to believe the Fordham game was as good as won. Peter never had failed.

"Sargon has brought health, strength and happiness to both my wife and me and I would not take all the money in the world for the night's sleep for years. Many good things have done us," declared Thomas B. Reed, well-to-do farmer and lumberman, residing at 919 Holmes street, Kansas City, Mo. "Five years ago when on the train going from Bonnsana, Canada, to Calgary, I had a severe attack of acute indigestion and nobody thought I would live to reach my destination. When I came to myself I was in the hospital at Calgary. "Since then I have suffered constantly from bilious attacks, splitting headaches that lasted 20 days at a time. Everything I ate disagreed with me. I had something like spells that made me think I would die. I would get so dizzy I could hardly stand up, and I was constipated all the time. I was nervous and did not get a good night's sleep for years. Many nights I would get up and sit in a chair for hours. "Sargon made a well man of me. My nerves are steady as a die and I sleep like a boy. My old-time strength has returned and I have gained 15 pounds. I feel fine all the time." "Sargon helped my wife, who is the mother of 13 children, the same way. She has actually gained 15 pounds in weight and feels better and stronger than in many years." Talks to Parents

A MENTAL SLIP
By Alice Judson Peale

Barry's mother was perfectly sure that he taken her camera and lost it.

Had he not only last week asked whether he might borrow it? And had he not, upon her refusal, sulked most unpleasantly? Now it was worse to be found.

She was perfectly certain of his guilt and already had caused his father to penalize him by diminishing his week's allowance until the camera should have been paid for, when a friend dropped in with the camera under his arm.

Barry's mother then remembered, to her chagrin, that she herself had loaned the camera to this friend shortly after she had refused to lend it to Barry.

Is it possible that one can really make such mistakes? The answer is that they occur constantly in daily life, but that we pay little attention to them because they do not frequently lead to dramatic difficulties.

Of course there is always a reason for such mistakes. They do not just "happen."

It is quite plain in this instance that for some obscure reason this mother wanted to accuse her son. Unconsciously she interpreted a situation in such a way that guilt should rest upon him. The human mind has been known over and over again to "forget" facts that at the time are less welcome than an improvisation.

Parents may well remind themselves of this tendency of the mind to play tricks upon its possessor. For this reason a child should never be accused of wrong-doing unless absolute objective proof is at hand. Nor should the child's "forgetting" an unwelcome fact be taken as a sign of moral turpitude. He may not be lying, but only making the kind of slip which is universal in human thinking.

of menus for the next day or so.

The annual union Thanksgiving service was held at Immanuel Baptist Church at 10:30 o'clock, and a sermon by Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, and inspirational congregational singing were the highlights.

At St. Paul's Episcopal Church, a communion service was held and a large crowd was in attendance.

At the noon hour some six hundred or more people heard Rev. W. A. Lillycrop in a special message of Thanksgiving at Johnston's warehouse where the Salvation Army served the largest dinner to the poor in history of the city. It was estimated that some six hundred people heard him by the financial shortage and accompanying unemployment situation sweeping over the nation the last two years enjoyed a beautiful meal.

Rev. W. H. Covert, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, presided over the union service and the prayer of Thanksgiving was made by Rev. S. H. Herden, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. A free will offering was made to the various orphanages supported by the different denominations and a nice sum was raised.

Using as his theme "I Will Rejoice in the Lord," Mr. Fleischmann brought a forceful message to the congregation, showing that despite the seriousness of conditions the people should rejoice in the Lord.

He urged his hearers to have faith in the power of God under all conditions and told them they should rejoice in God in spite of changing conditions.

He compared present day conditions with one of the prophets of the Bible, who said that he would continue to rejoice in God if everything were taken from him.

Mr. Fleischmann stated that faith in Christianity was faith in the supernatural religion and asked the congregation to cling steadfastly to God and that even the blackest of world conditions would hold no terrors for them.

The service at St. Paul's Church was of an inspirational nature. An offering was taken for the Episcopal orphanage at Charlotte and it was described as the largest in three years. In addition to the money given to this fund much food was contributed.

The service preceding the dinner at Johnston's warehouse was opened with prayer by Mayor R. C. Flanagan. Special music was rendered by Ensign and Mrs. Joseph Willett of the Salvation Army. Mr. Lillycrop told his hearers of the spirit of Thanksgiving and said this should always be perpetuated as the nation struggles to new heights of achievement.

Various organizations of the city contributed liberally to the dinner following the sermon and Ensign Willett today expressed his appreciation for the spirit of cooperation which made the affair possible.
