With the closing date for the bright belt set for December 21, several weeks earlier than in previous years, farmers have been called on to market their tobacco as rapidly as possible during the intervening time. GARNER WILL SUSPEND RULES

Rep. McDuffie Writes Members of House to be Present at The Opening of Congress Ready to Take Action; Two-Thirds Majority Required to Suspend Rules and Obtain Vote on The Amendment.

Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment may be voted on by the House December 5, the opening day of Congress. Leaders have hit upon a plan which they will present to their colleagues today to gain support and steady determination in that branch of Congress.

As discussed by Speaker Garner and Representative Snell of New York, Republican chairman, Garner would recognize a member to move for suspension of rules and for immediate vote on the repeal resolution. With a two-thirds majority required to suspend the rules, and a like majority necessary to pass the Constitutional resolutions, Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, the Democratic whip, has written to members of the party to be present December 5, although ordinarily the opening date is one only of routine business.

Under House rules legislation can be taken under suspension only on the first and third Mondays of each month. December 5 is the first Monday of the month. Debate would be limited to forty minutes.

The remainder of $900 was procured from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of paying for the labor, under the plan of furnishing employment to those who need work. The unskilled labor will be paid 50 to 60 cents per day and skilled labor $2 to $2.50 per day.

Cary, Nov. 26.—Chief of Police Griffith and Deputy Sheriff T. C. Womble found whiskey in the filling station of Ervin Stephens a short distance east of Cary as they made a search on Thanksgiving Day. Only a half-pint was found in the station, but in the back yard the officers saw a suspicious-looking hole of water in the edge of which lay a wire, and when they pulled this up out came a tin sack containing four half-gallon of whiskey. J. A. Stephens, son of the filling station keeper, who admitted that the whiskey belonged to him, was arrested and bound over to the next term of Superior Court under $100 bond.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES Thea F. Clark, Co., Inc., New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City.

ABOUT TOWN

In Georgia for a rest before taking up the serious business of formulating plans for his administration. Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to return to New York in the middle of the tremendous responsibilities ahead of him as President of the United States.

The job of being chief executive of the greatest nation on earth is one of the most profound importance, and realizing this fact, Roosevelt, who won over President Hoover by a virtual landslide, is making the best of his time before assuming his new duties.

The most important thing considered at this time is economy of administration looking to a balanced budget and farm relief. It is the object of the President-elect to get the government out of a hole as soon as practicable and at the same time carry relief to farmers who have been so sorely pressed the last several years.

If he should be able to do these two things, he will have rendered the country a great service—a service that will send him down in history as one of the greatest of leaders—Moses who led the nation back from darkness into the light.

Boy Scouts were attempting to do their bit toward providing for the poor in their annual Bundle Day campaign today. The sole purpose of the drive is to raise clothing for the poor during the cold winter and if they succeed they will feel like they have done their best.

The Scouts have been active in the solicitation of clothing for the poor for a number of years and are to be congratulated upon this desire to render a special service to the people in time of a crisis such as that facing all communities at this time.

The public generally should make an effort to encourage the Scouts in this field of activity by liberal contributions of clothing. It should have a tendency to inspire them to greater heights of achievements in the future.

Lindsay Warren of Washington is being considered by the Democrats as the next speaker of the House of Representatives and is receiving support from party leaders in various parts of the country who are convinced of his ability.

Serving in the stead of Speaker John Garner during the last session of this important body, Warren distinguished himself for his knowledge of parliamentary law. He is a man of considerable acumen, capable of acting decisively in time of emergency, and that is what the House needs more than any one thing.

It is to be assumed that he is supported by Mr. Garner because of the fact that the Texan chose him to act in his place at a time when the reconstruction bill, one of the most important pieces of legislation handled by the last Congress, was being considered. Had not Garner imposed implicit confidence in ability of the Washington man it safe to say he would not have trusted him with such a grave responsibility.

Foreign debtors, finding that the United States will no longer tolerate delay in the payment of debt installments now want to pay in their own way. In other words they desire to pay in terms of their own currency.

Evidently the United States does not care exactly how they pay, just so the money becoming due December 15 is paid. This seems to be the consensus of opinion among the leading members of Congress and the President also and it looks now as if the disturbing situation is not going to be so difficult after all.

The government should find itself in much better condition financially after the installments have been paid and maybe some of the deficit which has been steadily mounting the last several years will be down to a point where the average citizen can compute it

A PATH TO PARADISE

by Coningsby DAWSON

SYNOPSIS: After a painful session, Clive and Santa reach a point of equilibrium in their shifting matrimonial situation. Clive has taunted his wife with her feeling for her first husband; but in the morning he realizes that in place of being masterful, he merely has been rude.

Chapter 36 A CLEVER GIRL

"And no more bossing." Santa barraged her lips with the sheet. "But darling, you've promised that," said Clive. "You've been awfully bossy," she retorted him.

"C, beg pardon—you're not referring to your own shortcomings." "Well, haven't you?" Her eyes twinkled. "Bossed you? I certainly haven't. The shoe's been on the other foot. If I can't salute your lips, your nose will do."

She forestalled him by pulling the sheet higher. "You can have my lips when you have promised." "Promised what?" "Not to boss me." "I never have—but I promise." The sheet was lowered. "Young devil!" He caught her to him.

He left the apartment grinning. Her ruse had been the revenge of a little capricious girl. "The chill November air was bracing. He was in a mood to count his blessings. A wife who worshipped him. An employer who at one throw had more than doubled his salary. Scarcely more than six months ago he'd been that most desolate of creatures, a bachelor.

Marriage to him had been a vision on the road to Damascus, revealing life in its fullness. He'd lacked faith in his ability till Santa had inspired him. Merely to be her husband had boosted his stock. He was sitting on top of the world. Peaks of triumph!

In the Subway, hurtling downtown, he asked himself what had been the reason for his soreness. It boiled down to this: that Santa had forced him to reach up to a standard which had been a prophecy. She'd presumed his success. Anything, misunderstandings were things of the past. His straight talking, even if it wasn't quite merited, had cleared the atmosphere.

Seated in his office, occupied with a doubt cast a shadow, Cleared the atmosphere. Had it? Not till lunch did he permit himself the leisure to examine. General Foch had achieved victory by a logic wholly feminine: "A battle won is a battle which we will not acknowledge to be lost." Santa had made the same discovery. In the moment of defeat, she had snatched back all her trenches by making him promise never again to be what he never had been—bossy.

With aroused suspicion that amounted almost to alarm, he ran over the progress of their quarrel. Santa had retreated, conceding everything till she had brought him to a halt. She'd employed the same tactics at Stratford. She'd been willing to agree with him till his arguments had grown stale through repetition; then she went her own way, dragging him at her chariot.

It became certain that she contemplated no reforms. She still intended that he should roost in the home of her choosing, sit on her chairs, watched by all the gods who had witnessed her first marriage. A woman who never acknowledged defeat, never acknowledged that she had erred. Were husbands always in the wrong, he wondered.

And yet she seemed to be unaware of her obstinacy. Her subtlety was instinctive. Last night he'd missed his great chance. He should have framed a program before accepting her submission. If he were to reopen the debate in the face of reconciliation, it would be difficult to keep conversation on a friendly basis. On the other hand, if he didn't he might as well not have spoken; affairs would drift placidly into their old channels.

With the half-formed idea of impressing her with his importance, he stuffed a stack of papers into his satchel. "What on earth have you there?" she challenged. "Work, darling." "What a shame!" "No, Santa. A salary of my size requires earning. Give me a pencil and paper. Divide the days of the year into twelve thousand. I'm earning just short of thirty-three dollars a day, including Sundays and holidays. That's two hundred and thirty a week. A thousand a month. Think of it! I don't slouch. It's up to me to prove worthy."

"Which means working the old head over-time in the evenings?" "Fraid so—at least at the start." "Can't I help?" without resorting to old rules of mathematics.

China probably wants to settle the Manchurian dispute but she doesn't want to do it like the Lytton commission proposed. This attitude was expressed in a report received from Nanking yesterday. Just what will follow the decision is a matter of conjecture at this time, but everybody will hope that some basis of settlement may yet follow. Turmoil has prevailed over the Manchurian situation for two years or more and further bloodshed is bound to follow if the League of Nations finds it impossible to deal with the situation.

Here is a question involving the peace of the entire world and it is the hope of the people of all nations that definite and concerted action may be taken by the league

"Old funny!" Left to himself, he stared at the tablecloth. The old situation was beginning. Despite their overwhelming affection, it seemed impossible for them to see eye to eye. She complained that her life was artificial. He suggested a means of making it natural. She hardly listened. Was it that she didn't credit him with a grain of common-sense? She was calling. He found her at the telephone, one hand muffling the mouthpiece. At sound of his approach she turned breathlessly. (Copyright 1931-1932, Coningsby Dawson)

One more tangie snarls the matrimonial affairs of Clive and Santa, Monday.

Successful Football Season—The Greenville High School football team of '32 has enjoyed the most successful year of any Greenville team for the past several years. This team has won six games—lost two and tied one. One reason for this was the fact that the conference teams have been more evenly matched than have the teams for many years.

Not only in games won, but in spirit manifested, can this year's record be boosted. More school spirit and support has been shown the team of 1932 than any team of G. H. S. for the past five years. By the high school students. The townspeople, particularly members of the civic clubs, have given the team more backing than usual.

Below follows the list of games of the season with score and captain for each game: Greenville 6; LaGrange 0; captain, Tom Wilson; Greenville 13; Kingston 0; captain, Joe Gaston; Greenville 0; New Bern 0; captain, Roger Taylor; Greenville 0; Wilson 2; captain, Tom Rivers; Greenville 14; Washington 0; captain, J. T. Windham; Greenville 0; Roanoke Rapids 26; captain, Graham McAdams; Greenville 40; Tarboro 7; captain, Roger Taylor; Greenville 13; Washington 12; captain, Jack Kittrell; Greenville 6; Kingston 0; captain, Moye Dail.

Reconstruction Work—For the last two weeks work has been under way in two sections of the high school. The smaller office of the principal has been remodelled and a dressing room for visiting boys' athletic teams has been constructed. The secondary office of the principal has been re-arranged into a rest room which has already been appropriately furnished, and into a room in which office records and supplies are kept. The fitting out of the rest room accomplishes a long desired need among the faculty and students.

The much needed dressing room was formed by partitioning off the north hall in the basement. From now on visiting teams will need not feel cramped because of inadequate facilities. Part of the money for these changes was furnished by the government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. CHARLES SHUFF.

Pictures On Display—One of the most helpful bits of supplementary material used in the English classes this year has been a series of pictures on the Holy Grail which have been on display in the three junior English classes. The series is composed of fourteen colored pictures which are framed and range in size from very small ones to several which are 24 by 30 inches. These pictures are duplicates of the Abbey paintings in the Boston Public Library, and were lent to the high school by East Carolina Teachers College through the courtesy of Dr. Lucile Turner. Girls Held Chapel Program—The chapel program on Tuesday morning at the regular assembly period was given by the Home Economics classes of the high school to the mothers and daughters of the school. The program given consisted of a Thanksgiving though, a fashion show displaying articles made in the home economics classes, and a talk by Mrs. Bessie Picklesimer on "Ideal Girls". Mrs. Picklesimer's talk sent an arrow straight to the heart of every girl and around a desire to improve her home and school life. It was one of the most impressive talks the girls of the high school have had in recent years.

This program was arranged by Miss Mary York, home economics critic in the high school. LOUISE TADLOCK. Visit High School—Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock the high school had the good fortune of having the Venetian glass blowers give their interesting and educational performance. Mr. Noon explained the process of glass blowing and many other interesting things about glass and its history. Mr. Hammond did the blowing and proved to be an artist; by the many useful and ornamental things which he blew. He made a glass ship, a Venetian glass vase, a magnifying glass, glass thread and many other things. Much amusement was created by his trick birds which shot water into the eyes of persons who attempted to blow the water out of them. The articles which he made were presented to the high school as gifts. A doll with a dress of woven glass thread and a wig of spun glass was also shown. This treat was arranged through the junior class and 25 per cent will go to the class funds. Souvenirs were given to the students present. MATT PHILLIPS.

Questions—Just Questions—After waiting for "Mac" to make an appearance, we submit the following with due apologies to Mac: Whom does Joe Gaston really love? What is Greenville's attraction for J. T.? Whos is the girl McAdams takes for a ride every Sunday? Do we miss our ex-seniors? Is "Mac" in school this year? Why did Charles Shuff cut his hair? Who is the boy that keeps Mattie Moye so quiet this year? Does Elsie Windham make more breaks than Margaret Bostic? Does Roger like pearl hunting or bird hunting best? Did Maria Garrett leave Lynette her "it"? Will Charles ever shut up about Duke? Does Carolyn like the balcony scene in the opera?

Why is Helen McGinnis called a "promising" sophomore? Why are the freshmen so small? Why do the seniors pick on us sophomores? Why did Billy Morton recently fix his parking lights? Is Ed Whitehurst really bashful? Why is V. C. Fleming called beautiful? Why does Pearl Lauteser still ride by every day? Why do we have home room period? Why can't we talk in the library? What would be a good name for G. H. S. teams? Is Isabel Whitehurst the famous "perfect 36"? "ANN."

High School Cafeteria—In spite of the fact that students are no longer compelled to eat their lunches at school, the high school cafeteria is still functioning successfully. It is open to students two times each day; once at the eight minute recess when candies, fruits and sandwiches are sold and again at the lunch hour when hot dishes, sandwiches, salads and desserts are served. Any dish may be had for five cents and for the past month the excellent foods and moderate prices have brought many new customers to the cafeteria, particularly from the out-of-town college students.

Mrs. L. L. Rives has charge of this department and she, with the help of several home economics students, has served several banquets and dinners in addition to the regular high school lunches. TOM RIVERS.

Very likely Lawrence's interest in the Etruscan towns and tombs flowered into a book because he felt himself one with the ancient philosophers of their builders. The frankness of their physical lives, the freedom with which they translated their emotional attitudes into the arts could scarcely fail to fascinate the author of "Lady Chatterley's Lover" and "Sons and Lovers."

Queen of Scots A new and (in the future) indispensable biography of Mary Stuart comes from Herbert Gorman in time to give the many who are fascinated by Elizabethan England a happy Christmas. There are dozens of points in "The Scottish Queen" deserving mention; of them one is most important.

Mr. Gorman has abjured the temptation to take a stand on the letters of the "Silver Casket," preferring to put the case for and against Mary from parallel documents out of other fields. He is frank enough to declare his "emotional" belief that Mary was innocent of Elizabeth's charges, that Elizabeth was essentially malevolent and that John Knox was a monomaniac and therefore insane.

By ROBBIN COONS. Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 26—(AP)—Among the pitifully amusing sights restored to filmland with the timorous return of single-dance movies is the daily comedy of chorus girls working hard at 9 o'clock in the morning.

To music emitted by a yawning orchestra and at the command of a still sleepy-eyed and perhaps grouchy assistant director, the girls in bizarre if scantily garb must kick their heels and register vivacity and pep, swallow yawns and flash their best smiles at the camera which knows no time nor hour. In short, they must "put over" their numbers as though performing at a midnight cabaret in front of a merry crowd.

Hotcha in the morning—the sleepless spirit of jazz expressed by a bunch of sleepy kids. Cracked masks of gaiety. Hotcha in the morning—there's something shuddery about it. Quick—let's get away from here.

No Fruit For Baxter. Ordinarily it strikes us as of little interest whether movie stars prefer their herring kippers or plain, but this gastronomic weakness—its Warner Baxter's—is different.

If you want to become a heavy to the sturdy Warner, simply send him a barrel of apples or a crate of oranges for Christmas. From earliest childhood Baxter has had what amounts to a phobia against fruit of any kind, and for a long time the mere sight of a banana or an apple made him ill.

He has mastered the complex now until it only makes him squemish. But irony of ironies! his physician orders fresh fruit into his diet. The compromise is grapefruit—taken as juice only, and as medicine.

Of course there's one consolation. He's probably the only actor who can't be "red-applied."

Thanks to Cohan. Ruth Donnelly—Lee Tracy's secretary in "Blessed Event"—owes something to George M. Cohan, and she doesn't know whether it's gratitude or something else.

For five years Ruth worked in Cohan's stage company. Being rather a mimic, Ruth found herself imitating the Irish comedian—talking out the side of her mouth, wise-cracking, acting happy and flippant.

The act made her a bit in "Blessed Event," but its effect on Ruth when she saw herself on the screen was to make her a little ill. She doesn't want to imitate anybody. So she is trying to forget George M. Cohan.

DUKE MEETS GENERALS AT HOME TODAY

Durham, N. C., Nov. 26.—Meeting in the only college football game in the Middle Atlantic States, Duke University and Washington and Lee clash in the Duke stadium this afternoon.

Rounding into shape, the Generals will be able to trot out on the field Saturday a team which will be in the best physical condition this season. The Washington and Lee gridders have been hampered all this season with injuries. Some of their best men have been out, but they will have their full roster with them at Durham and be able to "shoot the works" against the Blue Devils Saturday.

The Devils remember that they were favorites to cop the game in 1927, but the Generals beat them. Last year Duke was heavily on odds to win, but the Blue Devils eked out a 6 to 0 victory when Mason ran a kick-off 88 yards for the only score of the game.

Duke will not go into the game over confident, and is expecting a real battle. On the other hand the Generals evidently have their minds on upsetting the Devils and hope to thereby end their season successfully.

Washington and Lee will present several individual stars. In the backfield is a triple-threat in the 165-pound foz, Sawyers, who has been a main cog in their offensive attacks. Bill Seaton, quarterback who has been out with injuries will return to the line-up against Duke. He is considered a heady field general who does part of the passing and from the port side. Washington and Lee has another of the famous family of Mattox this year. He is a sophomore and plays a half back. The Generals' line is strengthened with Bolen, 182-pound guard, Grive 200-pound center, and Dyer, 198-pound tackle, all of whom have been outstanding.

STATE WINDS UP BEST YEAR ON GRIDIRON

Raleigh, Nov. 26.—State College completed one of its best football seasons in history Thanksgiving when it fought to a 7-7 tie with the University of South Carolina on Riddick field.

The tie gave the Wolfpack a record of six games won, two tied and one lost. It is the best record since 1927 when State won the Southern Conference title and lost but one game. Furman defeated the Wolves that year in their second game.

State's six wins have been over Appalachian, Richmond University, Clemson, Florida, Davidson and Duke. The other tie in addition to South Carolina was with Wake Forest. The Deacons fought the Wolves to a scoreless result on Friday of State Fair week. The lone loss was to the University of North Carolina.

The Wolfpack tied Carolina for second place in the Big Five standing and will finish near the top in the Southern Conference.

The biggest victory of the season was the 6-0 win over the powerful Duke team. State played its best ball game that afternoon and Duke never got further than mid-field and that for only once. After that game, Coach Wallace Wade of Duke said State had one of the best teams to face the Blue Devils this fall. He said the Park's backfield was the best to play Duke.

Coach Clippert Smith and his assistant, Frank Reese, gave State a great team this fall. It was well coached in all departments of the game. The difficult shift worked perfectly all season. Not once were the backs penalized for failure to pause the required second after taking the shift.

called attention to the high ideals of the club, and the fact that its membership was forever striving to reach a higher plane of achievement. The new members were presented with emblems of the organization.

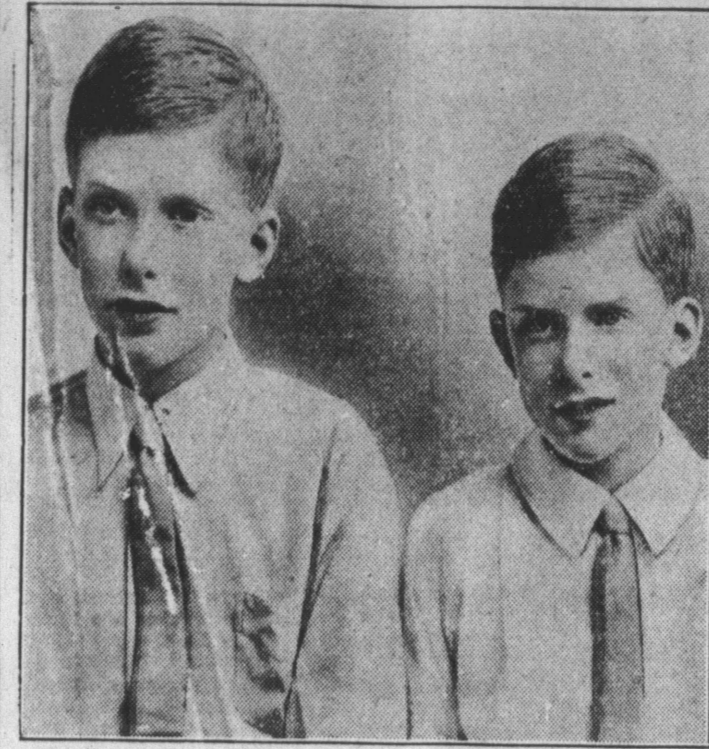

J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools, said the object of the high school was to turn out clean students, and that this fact had been emphasized in athletics as well as in other branches of endeavor. Referring to the tendency to play ineligible men, he stated high preference to play the game straight and would abide by that rule, win or lose.

Ensign Joseph Willett was presented by President Smith. Mr. Willett told of the Salvation Army budget drive to be launched here next week. He said they appreciated the support given by the city in the past and hoped they would be able to continue to minister to those out of reach of the church.

W. H. Woolard announced a meeting of Eastern North Carolina bankers here at an early date at which Grade A farmers of this part of the State will be entertained. He said high officials of the American Bankers' Association would be present to make principal addresses.

President Smith said arrangements had been completed for the club to meet with the Kiwanis Club in New Bern December 6th and urged large attendance.

Rep. Snell, republican leader, told newspapermen after a conference on federal appropriations today that President Hoover's recommendations "are going to cut right to the bone."

Snell said "I think we may have to make some other revenue. Personally I favor a sales tax. A one per cent tax would not hurt anybody and no tax is fairer."

Snell said the government, even after beer is legalized, would not get much revenue from that source this year because, in his opinion, it would go to the high courts for a ruling on alcoholic content.

Utilities Pay For Hospital
Holland, Mich., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Holland, a city of 15,000, makes its electric and water bills help pay the cost of government. The city-owned plants made possible a hospital costing $183,000. Funds contributed by the two utilities to other city departments have totaled $463,000 since 1932.

Ask Debt Cancellation
Paris, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The National council of the French Federation of Ex-Soldiers adopted a resolution today against payment of $20,000,000 interest due in December on debt to the United States.

The resolution urges that "American brothers in arms try to induce Congress to cancel the debt."

Six Perses Paroled
Raleigh, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Six state prisoners were paroled today by Governor Gardner. Among those paroled were Frank and Tom Shirley, convicted in Wilkes county in September, 1928 of second degree murder and sentenced to six to nine years each.

It was announced that thirty clemency petitions were declined.

Winter Hits Carolina
Charlotte, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Old Man Winter took off his gloves, blew on his hand and started in to make some real cold weather for North Carolina tonight and tomorrow.

The weather bureau here said the mercury would go down to 28 degrees in central and western parts of the state tonight.

That, however, was just a starter because the prediction for Sunday night is "colder with freezing temperatures to the east."

Despite the cold the weather will be fair, the forecast said, except in the mountains, there has been very little cold weather so far. One real cold snap a week ago topped off several chilly days.

Poles Receive Debt Note
Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Castle delivered a reply to the Polish request for a moratorium today to the Chancellor of the Polish embassy.

The reply to the Czechoslovakian note on debts was delivered a short time afterward.

State officials said contents of the communications were similar to those delivered to other countries. In that President Hoover denied the request for suspension of the debt payment due December 15.

Delivery of the note put the next move up to the European countries and interest in their attitudes mingled with that of the reaction of Congress. Among latest developments were those of opposition of the board of foreign relations committee to Hoover suggesting that some of the debts might be paid in currency.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

It seems cruel to recall it, but the bright, optimistic after-dinner talk of the Harvard football staff in October seems to have given way to deep November gloom. Crimson hopes that started out so well were buried by that startling Army charge on Soldiers' Field.

Has the "house system" softened Harvard's resistance? Is this sudden and devastating depression in Crimson fortunes to be capped by the climax of another Yale holiday at New Haven?

Certainly the Elis, themselves so hopelessly in the ruck through the first half of the season, need not concern anything to the Johnnies, now. Albie Booth no longer is around to kick a close game out of the fire for Yale nor is Barry Wood's passing skill any longer a menace to the Blue. After consoling each other, these old rivals can fall to with a single purpose.

Army Blasted 'Em
Princeton's fire-eating 1925 football eleven, featuring Jake Slagle, bewildering passes and a hard-charging line, buried Harvard and Yale in successive games by scores of 36 to 0 and 25 to 12, respectively.

These twin routs have been outdone by Major Ralph Sasse's 1932 Army team, which rolled up 66 points against the Crimson and the Blue without yielding anything close to an opposing score. No other team in football history has ever so completely annihilated Harvard and Yale.

West Point's offensive exhibition against the Crimson entitles it to rank with Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame power-house, the aggregation that rolled up 60 points against Pennsylvania and 27 against Southern California in 1930.

Army scored only one touchdown, only six points altogether, in its first thirteen games against Harvard, although many of the games in the series, begun in 1895, were close. It has been a far different story in the resumption of relations over the past five years after a long lapse. The Cadets, in the last five games, have three victories, a tie and a one-point last year through the all-around prowess of Barry Woo.

He was a native of this community and spent the major part of his life here. He was of an amiable disposition and was beloved by hundreds of people in this and other sections of the country who will receive news of his death with profound sorrow.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mollie Moore Brown; four sons, Rev. A. E. Brown, Robersonville; Bryce B. Brown, Schenectady, N. Y.; Wyatt L. Brown of Philadelphia, and Mack D. Brown of this city; two brothers, James Brown and W. B. Brown of Greenville, and a sister, Mrs. Jennie Morrill of Snow Hill.

Stock Market

STOCKS
New York, Nov. 26.—(AP) The stock market received a crumb or two of comfort from weekly carloadings report today but after a rather feeble rally the list settled back to end the day with unimportant changes.

The closing tone was steady, although some of the leaders had wide declines.

Turnover for the two-hour session was only about 400,000 shares. Appearance of support for sterling exchange was encouraging and save for the silver commodity market acted somewhat better. The British dollar however again was weak and uncertainty of the war debt situation still appeared to dominate financial sentiment.
