POLICE ROUND UP BAND OF THIEVES OVER WEEK-END

H. V. Langley Released In Death of Man on Road Near City Saturday Night

EXONERATED AFTER PROBE

Pactolus Man Given Freedom on Charge of Running Over and Killing Frank Bryant, Injuring Miss Lucy Scott Near Fleming's X Roads; Funeral for Bryant Held this Afternoon

H. V. Langley, held by police for running over and killing Frank Bryant and breaking the leg of Miss Lucy Scott on Greenville-Bethel highway at Fleming's Cross-Roads Saturday night, was exonerated today by a coroner's jury following an investigation conducted under direction of Coroner A. A. Elwanger.

Bryant was instantly killed while walking along the highway with Miss Scott when they were struck by the automobile driven by Langley and which was going in the direction of Pactolus. The young woman received a broken leg, but was reported to be getting along nicely today at the local hospital where both were rushed immediately following the tragedy.

Langley was released under bond of $500 until the coroner's jury could complete the investigation this morning. He said he did not see the couple walking along the highway because he was blinded by the lights of an automobile approaching from an opposite direction.

Bryant lived on the King farm between Greenville and Farmville and Miss Scott lived on the Tucker farm, a short distance from the scene of the accident.

Langley, a native of the Pactolus community, is employed by the government at Norfolk and is spending his vacation in this community, he told police.

Funeral services for Bryant, who was 21 years of age, were conducted from his former home in Hobgood this afternoon and interment was made in the family burying ground a short distance from the town.

BLASE YOUNG BRITONS SCORN PARENTS' BOOKS

London, Nov. 28.—(AP)—English children today are more sophisticated in their reading than past generations, says a report by a children's book club.

"The Last of the Mohicans," "Treasure Island," and other thrill-producers of the 80's are scarcely wanted by sons and daughters of earlier readers.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHILE OUT HUNTING

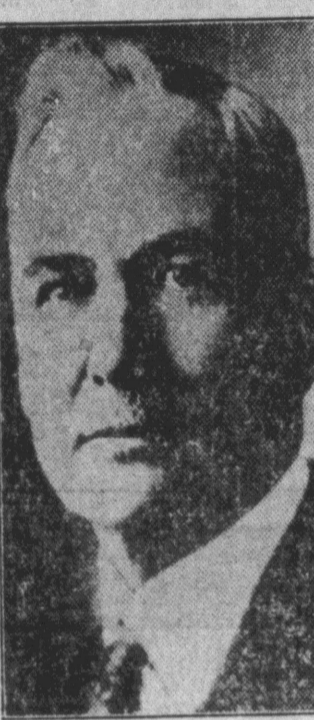

Sanford, Nov. 28.—While hunting on Thursday afternoon about three miles north of Sanford, Cliff Nevels, age about 21, was accidentally shot when his gun was discharged. The lead entered his right leg below the knee, making a serious wound.

Nevels and a companion, Woodrow Richardson, were about half a mile north of Federal Highway No. 1 when the accident occurred. Richardson went to the highway and endeavored to stop several motorists to secure help, but as he had his gun in his hand the motorists would not stop.

CAUSE OF SHOOTING IS STILL A MYSTERY

Winston-Salem, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Robert S. Critz, member of a prominent Winston-Salem family, who has been in a local hospital since he was seriously wounded by a pistol shot in the bathroom of his home about 6:30 o'clock Friday night, had a "good day" yesterday, it was learned from the hospital.

PITT REDUCES SCHOOL COSTS

Raleigh, Nov. 28.—Pitt County has reduced the current expense item of its school expenditures $82,103 in the past three years, or from $468,010 for the school year 1928-1929 to $385,907 budgeted for the year 1931-1932, according to figures compiled in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Total cost of operation of schools in this county has been reduced from $711,040 in 1928-1929 to $482,502 in 1931-1932, a reduction of $228,538. This total cost is divided into current expense, the reduction in which is shown above; capital outlay, which is the erection of new buildings and permanent improvements, reduced from $189,228 for 1928-1929 to $30,152 for 1931-1932, and debt service, payment of interest and retiring bonds, which was $78,801 in 1928-1929, as compared with $85,441 for 1931-1932.

For the State as a whole, the total expenses reached the peak of $50,135,928 in 1928-1929, which figure has been cut to a budgeted $32,463,074 for 1931-1932, a reduction of $17,672,854, or 35 per cent in the period of three years. The current expense item, which includes teachers' salaries and salaries of school officials, has been reduced from $31,959,830 to $24,887,196 in the same period, a decrease of $7,072,634, or 21.2 per cent.

Since the State has reached the peak of school building construction and has a fairly well rounded program, the capital outlay item has been reduced from $9,236,299 four years ago to $1,380,720 last year, a reduction of $7,855,579, or 85 per cent. Debt service is also gradually lessening, the cost of $8,959,833 four years ago having been reduced to $6,195,157 last year, a drop of $2,764,676, or 31 per cent.

While these reductions of more than one-third of the annual cost of the schools were being made in three years, the teachers of the State have been reduced in number by 215, taught 14 1/2 days longer in the average term and taught 47,420 more children in daily average attendance, in 1930-1931, as compared with two years before. While in 1931-1932 figures are not complete, it is certain that the enrollment and average attendance have again increased, thus heavily increasing the work of the teachers and at lower teaching cost.

The highest and lowest daily temperature readings in Texas are often recorded at the same point—Amarillo, in the Panhandle.

BRUMMITT IS SPEAKER AT BIG REUNION

Attorney General Addresses Gathering of Tysons and Mays at Farmville.

Farmville, Nov. 26.—More than three hundred descendants and friends of the Tyson and May families, gathered in a joint reunion on Friday in the Farmville High School auditorium to celebrate the 167th anniversary of the union of these two families, in the marriage of Mary Tyson, daughter of Cornelius Tyson and Benjamin May.

This was not the first time that these descendants had assembled together. On November 2, 1926, they met to unveil a memorial honoring the memory of Aaron Tyson, a distinguished fighter in the Tuscarora War and Cornelius Tyson, Revolutionary hero.

The invocation was offered by Rev. Jack Tyson, the history of the May family given by John B. Lewis and that of the Tysons by Walter G. Sheppard, of Snow Hill, a former citizen of Farmville.

The romance and marriage scene of Mary Tyson and Benjamin May were depicted by Mrs. Charles F. Baucom, during which the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was softly played and a page brought in a huge wedding cake, along with thirty-five candles, indicating their years of wedlock, Mrs. May passing in 1890 and her husband eight years later. Rev. E. L. Hillman, for the past four years pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville, was returned to that church for his fifth year.

WILEY BROWN LAID TO REST

Final Rites for Beloved Citizen held from Methodist Church Sunday.

Funeral services for Wiley Brown, 67, well-known churchman, Masonic leader and retired business man, who died at his home on Dickinson Avenue early Saturday morning, were conducted from Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial was made in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

The service at the church was conducted by Rev. E. L. Hillman, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Master of Masons acted as an honorary escort, and at the graveside members of Bethlehem Commandery, Knights Templar, were in charge of the final rites.

A large floral tribute expressed in a mute way the high esteem in which the deceased was held, and a large crowd of sorrowing friends and relatives attended the funeral despite the coldest weather of the winter.

In addition to being a member of the board of stewards of the Methodist Church for a number of years Mr. Brown was a staunch member of all Masonic bodies of the city. It was largely through his unremitting efforts to the cause of the various organizations that they were able to make such pronounced progress.

Prior to his retirement some year ago, Mr. Brown was prominent in the business life of the city. He was engaged in the mercantile business for a number of years, and after giving up active life in this field confined his efforts to personal matters, including the operation of farms in his immediate territory.

He was beloved for his genial manner, and hundreds of friends in this and other parts of the country re-ceived intelligence of his death with pronounced sorrow.

SCHOOLS GET DOWN TO WORK

City schools re-opened today following observance of the Thanksgiving holidays.

All members of the faculty and the majority of students were in place for the opening this morning in spite of the severe cold wave which swept howling across the countryside bringing the most frigid temperatures of the season.

Numbers of members of the faculty spent the holidays with relatives and friends in other parts of the country and returned yesterday to be in readiness for the resumption of work today.

The schools made considerable progress up until the closing last Wednesday for observing the season of Thanksgiving, and this condition was expected to prevail during the remainder of the session. There is one more holiday period to one before school settles down to its last long stretched toward ending of the session, and that will be the 'tule-tide' season. While four days were taken off for Thanksgiving, it was expected the usual two weeks would be observed for Christmas.

Superintendent J. H. Rose expressed himself as highly pleased with progress so far made on increased appropriations and was hopeful the splendid showing made by the schools in previous years would be maintained during the remainder of the term.

Late News Flashes

Severe Storm at Ocracoke. Ocracoke, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Wind had whipped high tides during the week-end, flooding much of this village, killing animals and destroying communication, brought this is and the worst November storm since 1886.

North winds reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour since the storm began Saturday. Fishermen were unable to reach their nets and expected them to be lost.

Tides from the sound and ocean flooded much of Ocracoke village, held up transportation and crippled communication.

An automobile was destroyed when it stuck in sand along the surf.

FEW BUNDLES GIVEN TO POOR

Thirty-Three Packages Contributed During Boy Scout Canvass Saturday

Only a small amount of clothing to be used in the relief campaign last Saturday, it was revealed today by Ensign Joseph Willett, director of the Salvation Army, who was in charge of the canvass.

The report of the canvass made today by Ensign Willett showed that only thirty-three bundles were collected. It was hoped the offerings would be the largest of the year because of the severity of the situation prevailing among hundreds of unemployed people of the community.

Extreme difficulty was incurred in making the canvass, Mr. Willett said because of unfavorable weather, but in spite of the handicap every section of the city was covered.

It was thought another canvass would be made at a later date, but this idea was abandoned and an appeal will be made to the public to get in touch with either the Welfare Department or the Salvation Army and contribute whatever they can to the cause.

The Salvation Army head expressed appreciation for the bundles received and also to members of the Scout organization whose activities in past years have made the canvass possible.

PREPARE FOR BUDGET DRIVE

Final Arrangements To Be made Tonight For Salvation Army Campaign.

Tonight at the Salvation Army headquarters on Main Street plans for this year's Army appeal will be made in order that the Army may continue to function in Greenville and meet all the demands which will be made upon it during the coming twelve-month period.

The directors of the local Salvation Army board want the general public to know that the work which is being done by the Salvation Army is not being done by any other organization in the city and, furthermore, that this work cannot be done by any organization save the Salvation Army.

The mayor of the city, R. C. Flanagan, and the Welfare Director, K. T. Futrell, are both members of the board of directors of the Salvation Army, both these officers of the city and county thoroughly approve of the effort now being made to raise funds for the Salvation Army.

Guy V. Smith is the chairman of this appeal, and Mr. Smith is calling for volunteer workers to help put the appeal over. Heretofore, there has been a paid organizer and responsibility for putting over this appeal. This year there will be no outside paid promoter.

The meeting tonight will be held at 7:45 o'clock at the Salvation Army headquarters.

ABOUT TOWN

Members of the American Federation of Labor apparently can't decide what they want in the way of working hours judging by the unsuccessful attempt to put through the five day week and six hour day plan.

Although it is believed shorter hours would afford more employment for the millions of unemployed people throughout the nation, the Federation can't see its way to actual adoption.

However, the general increase in the use of machinery will force shorter working hours and the sooner the labor heads realize the fact and provide a plan to meet the situation the sooner the condition of the workingman will be improved.

The effort to raise a budget of $6,000 for the Salvation Army will get under way tomorrow, and people will be called on to give as freely as they can to the cause.

The work of the organization has been more outstanding than ever during the past year and Ensign Joseph Willett and wife are to be congratulated upon their fine work.

The Salvation Army is armed in the cause of improving the condition of the poor and at the same time providing sufficient spiritual uplift to decrease crime and lead people to the churches as unable to reach back to God.

The organization has had a difficult struggle here for many years but the desire of Ensign Willett to render a higher type of service to the community has captured the support of men and women who previously were not aware of the power of the work done by that body.

City schools resumed operation today after observance of Thanksgiving holidays. There will be one more vacation season before the long grind until summer and that will be Christmas.

After celebration of the Yuletide the children will settle down to the most difficult part of the school year and those who join the army of promoted will have to put out some actual work.

The school has made fine progress the last two years in spite of reduction of operating expenses, and authorities are hopeful of being able to maintain the recognition gained two years ago as the highest rated school scholastically in the state.

That distinction may not sound like anything out of the ordinary to the average run of people but to members of the faculty and student body it is an achievement they wish to cling steadfastly to as long as they can.

The Greenville tobacco market resumed operation today after celebration of the Thanksgiving holidays and from now on the market is going to be a scene of great activity as the farmers market the remainder of their crop.

With the market closing for the season December 21, growers from a radius of many miles will speed up the marketing of the rest of the crop and by the closing date tobaccoists believe the crop will have been sold completely.

With the end of the season drawing near Greenville is about two million pounds ahead of any other market in the belt and this probably means the market will end the season further ahead of its nearest competitor than last year.

The distinction of being the largest bright leaf market in the world is no small one, and the fight to snatch the honor which Greenville gained last year is one of the most pronounced in the history of the industry.

With the market drawing from a larger territory than ever before, inductions point to a greater lead than last year and the honor will be even more significant of the leadership of this capital of the finest bright leaf tobacco producing county in the world.

Athletics in the Greenville High School are conducted on a high type of service.

A PATH TO PARADISE

A PATH TO PARADISE SNOPSIS: Clive begins to suspect that Santa has not capitulated wholeheartedly to his desire for a simpler married life, free of the presence of Santa's husband, Dicky Dak. But he suggests, while preparing to spend the evening working at home, that they leave their New York apartment and take a house in the country. The telephone rings.

Chapter 37 BAD PENNY BACK

"It's Dicky," said Santa. "Tell him to buzz off." "But Clive, after dining with him we can't..." "Don't see it. Besides, you've not told me what he wants..." "Seems to think he's become one of the family—that he's taken us under his wing, as it were..."

standing who would show such leniency. You ought to regard me as an untouchable. Instead of which you shake my hand—welcome me into your home. I'm overcome by your generosity."

Clive searched the handsome, self-indulgent face to make certain that it wasn't mocking him. "You've sized me up wrongly. I'm anything but a New Testament character."

Santa tugged on Clive's sleeve. "I can explain what Dicky's trying to tell you. You might have forbidden me to acknowledge that he existed." She turned to her first husband. "You're right; Clive is generous."

"Seems to me you're both conspiring to make a fool of me," Clive shifted self-consciously. "Here's the position as I piece it together. You both made a terrible mess. You did the honest thing when you got divorced. I ought to be the last person to throw stones; without your divorce I couldn't have won Santa. At the same time, I'm not going to play the hypocrite. Till last night I could cheerfully have brained you."

Unruffled, Dak inquired: "And how did last night change your murderous ambitions?" "I'd imagined you as a monster."

There in the passage stood Dak.

help him; but— Well, you know how it is—you've been married; no husband believes his wife has brains. All right. Only for a minute. Glad to see you."

"What on earth made you say that?" Clive rested a hand on her shoulder.

She smiled up. "What else could I say? You welcomed him so heartily yesterday. Just because we can't use him is no reason for being rude."

In the drawing room, while they waited moodily for Dak's appearance, Santa renewed the interrupted conversation.

"Let's hear more about the dream cottage. I love listening to you when you enthuse."

"But you treat the idea so frivolously, Santa. There's nothing ridiculous about owning a home where one can see green things growing. Living at a distance has one great advantage. You can't be trespassed on by every Tom, Dick and Harry."

"Don't worry over Dicky," she soothed him. "Plead your work. I'll get rid of him."

"Getting rid of the first husband!" Clive shot her a satiric glance. "We have been trying to do it since the day we married."

The door-bell rang. She placed her hands on his shoulders. "Always you and I, my lover. Make him see that you value me if he couldn't."

There in the passage stood Dak, blond and imposing. No man could have looked more frank.

"It's raining," he announced, shaking a dripping umbrella as evidence. "It never rains but it pours." Clive relieved him of the umbrella, carrying it off to the pantry where it could do no damage.

On his return, his guest greeted him: "That remark of yours could be applied to my visits."

"Oh, I don't know!" Clive mumbled.

Santa, with more social adroitness, protested: "Don't be silly, Dicky. You tried to do Clive a good turn. Why shouldn't you call?"

"No good beating about the bush," Dak settled himself comfortably. "I've been thinking about you two a lot. Been thinking how decent you've been to me."

"So you're going to hand us a tip on the stock market," Clive suggested facetiously.

"You're a great chap," Dak sank deeper, crossing his legs. "There aren't many husbands of your sort."

suspicion from being pointed at the plane and this prevents the finger of school at any season of the year. While some schools attempt to attract athletes regardless of whether they are eligible or not, Greenville High continues to adhere to the policy of clean sports and is ready to sacrifice its position in this field rather than resort to questionable methods.

The association has been highly complimented recently for the fine spirit prevailing among the boys and another season will see the club more completely supported than in former years because of this desire to render a high type of service.

MR. AND MRS. THOS. B. REED

"Sargon has brought health, strength and happiness to both my wife and me and I would not take all the money in the world for the good it has done us," declared Thomas B. Reed, well-to-do farmer and lumberman, residing at 919 Holmes street, Kansas City, Mo. "Five years ago when on the train going from Bonanza, Canada, to Calgary, I had a severe attack of acute indigestion and body thought I would live to reach my destination. When I came to Calgary, I had suffered so long from bilious attacks and splitting headaches that I was nearly dead. Everything I ate disagreed with me. I had smothered myself with spells that made me think I would die. I would get so dizzy I could hardly stand up, and I was constipated all the time. I was nervous and did not get a good night's sleep for years. Many nights I would get up and sit in a chair for hours. My nerves are steady as a die and I sleep like a boy. My old-time strength has returned and I have gained 15 pounds. I feel fine all the time." "Sargon helped my wife, who is the mother of 13 children, the same way. She has actually gained 15 pounds in weight and feels better stronger than in many years." "Sargon was formerly a world-famous master in the Masonic order and Mrs. Reed is a beloved wife of the Methodist Church. Sargon may be obtained at

MASTER CRAFTSMEN

Account For Dependable and Expert Workmanship We have in our employ men who have devoted their entire lives to a special vocation, our painting, upholstery and wood working departments are each headed by such men. No job in their line is too difficult and their skill is not limited to automobiles or any particular phase of operations, but covers the entire field.

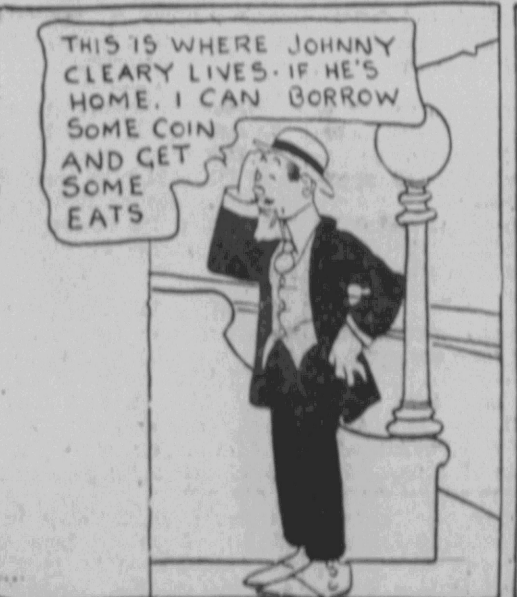

In our garage we employ two master mechanics who are capable of repairing any automobile regardless of its condition, or the extent of the damage. In addition to the two master mechanics we have five men who are factory trained and who are excellent mechanics on any make of car.

To give economical as well as expert service, we have equipped our men with labor and time saving machinery that they may do a job better in considerable less time than it could be done otherwise. When you are paying for your service by the hour it pays to have work done where such time saving equipment is employed.

severed well in front of the heart to prevent internal bleeding. And second the heart should be left uninjured in order that it will continue pumping and drain out all blood from the carcass as rapidly as possible. The only time a hog should be stunned or shot before sticking is when due to wildness, it is impossible to handle him otherwise. To butcher by sticking only is by far the most efficient method and also the most humane. A quick and thorough bleed is one of the foundation factors in putting up good meat.

6. Plenty of hot water at a temperature of about 150 degrees F with a little lye or ashes added makes scalding a quick job. A thermometer should be used to get the correct temperature of the water before the scalding is begun.

7. After the hog is dressed the next important step is the chilling. A quick and thorough job of chilling is a very important part in turning out good meat. With the head removed, the hams faced the head fat fisted loose, and the carcass split down the center of the backbone it can very readily cool out. The air can circulate freely to each part of the carcass, taking full advantage of the weather if it is not quite as cold as it should be. About 24 hours is necessary for proper chilling. A good rule to follow in this section is to kill in the afternoon, then the cool night is just ahead for starting the chill.

8. Let meat thoroughly cool before cutting in pieces. Meat should never be cut into pieces for curing until it has thoroughly cooled and all the animal heat is out. A good job of cutting can not be done on warm meat. Very often home cured meat has been made inferior in quality and actual loss caused by cutting up the meat and salting it while still warm. Salt should not be applied to warm meat.

9. Do not salt warm meat. Salting warm meat often causes bone scouring. Bone or ham scouring is most often the result of meat not being properly cooled or from applying salt to warm meat. Some folks seem to believe that the meat should be cut up and salted as soon as butchering is completed or it won't take salt properly. Nothing could be further from the fact than this, because actual harm could easily be done instead of good. When salt is applied on warm meat

New York, Nov. 28.—In one sense of the phrase, there aren't any "forgotten men" so far as John F. Curry, the boss of Tammany Hall, and John H. McCooey, the Brooklyn Democratic boss, are concerned.

They just don't forget names and faces—certainly not the names and faces of partisans. Any one presumes they have a pretty good memory for the names and faces of antagonists.

When Curry holds open house at his office and Curry meets the line-up at the hall, they have the right sort of faces for the shabbiest and most worn. It's "Hello, Jake" and "Hello, Mike" and "How are you, Izy, with them."

Men of all nationalities, all classes, take their place in the party bosses. They get recognition, a brief hearing, usually sympathy and often action.

Few people anywhere hear more tales of woe than the New York political chieftains—about everything on earth that can cause woe.

East Side Woes. The lower East Side, its population diminished, its insularity largely a thing of the past, began to have its own little private "depression" long before the country at large accepted that polite euphemism to describe its condition.

Nowadays the merchants down there—some of them—report a surprising development: most of their business now is done with persons who formerly lived in the section, but moved away. With a sense for bargains, and perhaps a certain loyalty, those who have moved uptown are going back downtown to do their purchasing. The proprietor of a Division street shop, dealing in all manner of odds and ends in needlework, tells me that more than 80 per cent of his customers are former East Siders who migrated northward. The Allen Street brass and antique dealers, almost to a man, say they could not keep open if they had to depend on the trade of nearby residents.

The section's troubles were attributed in the main to landlords who were deaf to the demands of the times. The East Siders heard of more modern building accommodations to the north, which they could afford, and moved on to such sections as the Bronx.

Then, too, no small number of East Siders made their money down East and moved uptown to splurge. As the area's population shrank, shop prices dropped proportionately.

Personal Notes. William Albert Robinson, explorer, author, is a native of Milwaukee. Nat Karson, artist, boxes to keep his figure. Acting Mayor McKee has trouble with his waistline. He is a hound for candy and all sorts of sweets. Depends on golf to keep down his circumference.

The Toads had gathered the acorns and Toodles Toad had made mud pictures of all those for whom they were going to vote. Willy Nilly had lettered the names under the pictures and now every one fastened the buttons along strings and carried them as best they could.

Under the mud pictures of Willy Nilly it said, "Willy Nilly for President," and Toodles had not made Willy Nilly's ears stick out so very far in the mud pictures. Under Rip's dog pictures were the words "Rip for Vice-President."

Mr. Quacko's pictures showed that he was wearing a fireman's helmet, and it said, "Mr. Quacko for Fire Chief." The other buttons were "Toad for Mayor," and "Old Toad for Governor."

"I may not be a very good governor," Old Toad said, "as I sleep all winter."

"Oh, that won't matter," said Fio-tilla Botilla, "we're not hard to govern and Willy Nilly can attend to your duties when you're asleep."

Now they all started out on their election parade with banners, drums, tin cans and torches. The Puddle Middle Band played too. It was warm as Indian summer, so a great many lightning bugs had agreed to come out and sit on top of sticks, to act as living torches for the great Puddle Middle election parade.

Mrs. Quacko drove her one-and-a-half cylinder Duck coupe, and the Toads' roadster-toaster was behaving well. Only poor Willy Nilly could go in his car Two-Ways as it had not been mended. But it was a marvelous parade. The lightning bugs made fine torches and the noise could not have been any greater.

MISS WRIGHT HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Miss Evelyn Wright, bride-elect of December, was honor guest at an attractively appointed bridge luncheon Saturday morning, when Miss Elizabeth Deal was hostess at her home on East Eighth street. Profusions of pink and white chrysanthemums were effectively used to decorate the home.

Concluding a number of rubbers of contract bridge, Miss Frances Morton was awarded an attractive prize for high score. The honoree, Miss Wright, was remembered with a piece of pottery.

Miss Deal, assisted by her mother Mrs. R. C. Deal, Mrs. M. L. Wright and Mrs. M. K. Fort, served a tempting four-course luncheon.

Mrs. Sigmon Hostess To Club. Wednesday afternoon at her home on Eighth street, Mrs. Bryce Sigmon was a gracious hostess to her bridge club, honoring the former Miss Lillian Hardee who was married to William Stuart East last Saturday morning. Chrysanthemums were used throughout the home for decorations.

Mrs. Jesse Moye was winner of a bon bon dish for high score, which she presented Miss Hardee.

The hostess served a delectable salad course with coffee.

Master Bryce Sigmon, Jr. presented the honor guest with an attractively decorated tray holding a shower of miscellaneous gifts from the guests and club members.

Mrs. W. R. Minshew and Mrs. Eli Bloncn were also guests of the club.

Christian Science Service. "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism Denounced," was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ. Scientist, Sunday Nov. 27.

The Golden Text was from I. Cor. 16:13: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quiet ye like men, be strong."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following passage from the Bible: "Beware of false prophets; which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves"—Matt. 7:15.

The lesson-sermon also included the following from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Willing the sinner to recover is not the metaphysical practice of Christian Science, but is sheer animal magnetism. Human will-power may infringe the rights of man. It produced evil continually, and is not a factor in the realm of being. Truth and not corporal will is the divine power which says to disease, 'Peace be still.'"—(Christian Science Committee on Publication).

HINTS TO THE FARMERS

5. The method of killing hogs is very important in turning out good meat. Sticking is the best method of killing hogs. If a block and tackle arrangement is handy, loop a chain around one hind leg and draw the hog clear of the ground before sticking. If it is not convenient to swing the hog, then stick on the ground. One man stands straddle of the hog and holds the forefeet while the other one holds the chin down and sticks.

Very often when sticking hogs some one will make a special effort to try and stick the heart. This should never be done as in the first place the vein and artery should be

TWO LOCAL PLAYERS GET STAR PLACES

Two Greenville High School football players were picked on Bill Allgood's annual all-conference team and two more rated the second team and one received honorable mention. Allgood has picked this team for the past four years and his pick has been regarded as official by the conference.

Tom Wilson and Graham MacAdams were the two boys gaining recognition as the best in the conference at their positions. Wilson has played a bang-up game at center and has not missed a minute of play during the entire season. Graham MacAdams at fullback has been one of the outstanding stars of the conference this year and his hard driving offensive work is only surpassed by his superb work on the defense.

Roger Taylor and Joe Gaston were picked on the second team and David Hardee received honorable mention. Taylor has been one of the offensive mainstays of the local team this year and rival coaches said that he was the best back in the conference. Why he was not named for the first team will remain a mystery for he was the only real triple threat man in the entire conference. Gaston has played a mighty good game at end and very little ground has been gained about him this year. Hardee is one of the fastest men in the state and time after time has circled the opposing ends for long gains or touchdowns.

The naming of these five boys as being among the best in the North-eastern Conference is proof of the fact that Greenville was considered by no rival that she played this year as being an easy team to beat. The team won six games, lost three and tied one scoring a total of 85 points against their opponents' 51, and ended the season predestined by football fans to be the best team representing Greenville High in several years.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

"Slip" Madigan can take a joke as well as the next fellow, but he'll argue long and loud that he did not pull the prize coaching bone of the season by sending one of his St. Mary's backs into the California twice in one period.

"I may not be as smart as I should be, but I'll swear I'm no too dumb that I don't know how many times my fullback has been in one quarter of a ball game," he declared.

"As a matter of fact, this is what happened:

"My regular fullback, Partee, had a torn ligament in his leg. Any kind of a hard knock might put him out for the season. I started Dodson against California, with no intent at all of using Partee.

"But on the very first play Dodson messed up a play down near our own goal line. He started to bring his hands and show signs that he was greatly disturbed. I saw that and immediately got frightened over the possibility of his getting so upset that he'd miss a signal, or a pass, or something, and get us in a hole.

"So I rushed in Partee, ordering him to do as little as possible, so that I could get Dodson on to the bench and calm him down. Dodson responded nicely to treatment. But I was terribly anxious to get Partee out of there at the first possible moment, which would be the end of the period, and get Dodson, the sound player, back in the game.

Watched the Referee

"The referee was handling his first major assignment. When it got close to the end of the period, I kept my eyes on him. He blew his whistle.

"Now, when a referee does that, and the ball is not in play, it can be only one of two things—time out or the end of the period. If it's time out, the referee points to the side taking the time, or to himself, so that the timer will know who is to be charged with the rest.

"The referee blew his whistle and pointed nowhere. I thought it was the end of the period. Dodson then was eligible to relieve Partee, starting a new quarter. I rushed him out on the field.

"As a matter of fact, the quarter wasn't over at all. The referee was calling time out, and it was still the first period. Immediately I knew what had happened, but I couldn't make an outcry without being penalized myself. The referee did not ask the St. Mary's captain, as the rules require, whether he accepted the substitute.

Bears Caught It

"Instead a play was called, and the smart California boys, waiting until the game was legally on again, massed on the referee and demanded we be penalized for putting Dodson in twice in the same quarter. The official had no other choice than to grant that request.

"And I looked like the prize bone-head of the season."

One of Madigan's listeners had a consoling word for him.

"Oh! Meelan, at Manhattan sent the same player in twice in one period, and it wasn't discovered until the next Monday," he said.

BRUMMITT IS SPEAKER AT BIG FAMILY REUNION

The musical program, rendered by the Farmville Oratorio Society and directed by F. R. Hurty, of Wilson, with accompaniment by Mrs. Haywood Smith, included a number from the opera, "The Bohemian Girl," "Coming Thru the Rye," "Annie Laurie," and "Auld Lang Syne." A group of poems by Ann Arrington, of Montgomery, Ala., a descendant of the Pitt County Tysons, was read by Mrs. A. C. Hodges.

The principal speaker of the occasion was Attorney General D. G. Brummitt, who was introduced by Andrew Joyner, also of Raleigh. Mr. Joyner pointing him out as "a statesman who thinks of the next generation rather than a politician who thinks only of the next election," and concluded his remarks by declaring fervently: "I thank God for Brummitt."

The Attorney General expressed himself as favoring family reunions and traced the ancestry of the Prince of Wales, proving that a family must have lusty vigor by his great plantagenet line, which goes back to a woodcutter, the Tudor strain to a butler in a royal house, another to a steward and other of as humble origin.

He mentioned the luxuries which the present generation counts as mere necessities and stated that Benjamin May lived nearer to Adam industrially as far as his method of transportation, the same as that of Pharaoh, and of communication, which was that of the savage, who spoke through a spiral of smoke on the hillside, comparing the solidity of the character of those pioneers with those of the present day.

"When we change the mode of our living, we change our character, we have grown soft, we must turn about and go back. This terrifyingly rapid pace, at this present tempo of ours, gives us no time for constructive thinking, for laying that foundation of character, which lies in our inner self or to work hard and long, directing ourselves to the pursuit of a definite and worthy object. In this new life we are constantly devising a new economic system by which to cut down the hours of labor, we must shorten and speed up everything," he said. "The philosophers of today declare, that 'what you do today is caused by what you do tomorrow and not by what you did yesterday.' They have reversed the law of cause and effect.

We are at present dealing with terrible economic problems. Patriotism has lifted our standards of living, upon patriotism men's souls soar, but after passions droop and our standards are lowered. We must stand by fundamentals in government. Communism would tear our institutions up by the roots, cast them aside and recreate America in the image of Russia, but there are those who are far more dangerous than the Communist in America and that is our own State today, those who change the entire structure of government for the purpose of rendering it more usable for their own selfish interests, and to obtaining special privileges.

Mr. Brummitt appealed to the citizenship to maintain the fundamental instrument of this State and Republic, the Constitution, and suggested as a slogan to bewildered America, "Back to the Constitution."

He concluded by expressing the hope that the spirit of the sturdy pioneers may be revived in the hearts of their descendants and that the independence they secured at such a cost may be maintained.

The Family Round Table was conducted by Dr. J. Y. Joyner, eminent educator of Raleigh, who with Andrew Joyner shares the honor of being a great-grandson of Major Benjamin May. Dr. Joyner stressed the need for tying up the threads of family life. "In our mad rush for wealth and pleasure the home has been forgotten and neglected. Ideals, ambitions and inspiration must be put in the hearts of the children in the home. What the home is civilization and government will be, it can be no better." He expressed a justified pride in his heritage of the pure, clean blood of the Nordic race, justifiable he said, "in that it lends power of restraint from acts of dishonor and of inspiration to noble deeds."

A recommendation, submitted by Mrs. T. C. Turnage, under whose administration as regent, the Major Benjamin May Chapter, D. A. R., has succeeded in awakening a new zeal in patriotism throughout the community, read as follows:

"That appeal be made to State and National authorities throughout legislators to stop the devastation of our citizenship brought on by the ruthless foreclosure of farms and homes. Realizing that such procedure is calculated to undermine our entire national structure and bring about a state of chaos and revolt, something can be done, and must, if we expect to survive in decency and order. Believing the family unit to be a logical channel through which to act, we enlist the Tyson-May organization here today to enact some definite overture to be sent to Hon. Lindsay Warren, our Congressman, and Hon. J. B. C. Ehringhaus, our incoming governor, and our representatives of Pitt County."

This recommendation was embodied in resolutions drawn up by a committee composed of John B. Lewis, Walter G. Sheppard, and Mrs. C. T. Tyson, and adopted by the assembly.

The genealogical report given by Miss Tabith DeVisconti was illustrated with a tree and the coats of arms of both families. Mrs. George Jefferson of Fountain exhibited a Bible of the Tyson family in which the first birth was recorded in 1754 and Mrs. Frances May of Sanford displayed a Bible belonging to Major Benjamin May with dates as far back as 1768.

The memorial service was conducted by O. H. Jackson of Winterville, with Robert Smith of Ayden as eulogist. Among those passing within the past few months were John David Cox and Dr. B. T. Cox of Winterville, and Benjamin Hawkins Tyson of Pikeville, all of whom were enthusiastic members of the Tyson reunion organization.

In the annual election of officers, John B. Lewis was elected president to succeed Mrs. J. L. Shackelford, resigned, and Mrs. Josie McArthur of Greenville and Mrs. O. H. Jackson of Winterville were re-elected as vice-president and secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Concluding the program was a play, reviewing historical events of 1775 and 1776, entitled "Benjamin May's Neighbors," written by Mrs. Annie Barrett and Misses Daphne and Irma Caraway of Wilson, in which Mrs. Barrett took the part of the Widow Tyson and Misses Elizabeth Fields, Tabitha DeVisconti and Vivian Parker Harris as her daughters. Mrs. Barrett and Miss DeVisconti are direct descendants of Major May. The tea set used formerly belong to the Major and of the stage properties and many of the garments worn were relics of Revolutionary days.

A minute, directed by Miss Mae Joyner and which brought the play to a fitting close, was danced by Misses Dora De Grace Rountree, Frances Joyner, Mary Elizabeth Smith, Geraldine Gardner, Ruth Hayes Turnage, Mary Louise Rumbley, Doria Flowers Catherine Teel and Etta Grey Caraway, many of whom were descendants of the two families.

The following descendants were in colonial attire and acted as pages: Misses Edna Foust and Vivian Parker Harris, Rosa Lee Lang, Elizabeth Fields, Louise Smith and Mrs. Harold Suggs Askew formerly Miss Hannah Sebasco Wright of Bridgeton, N. J., who is a descendant of the Pennsylvania Tysons whose brother Matthias and Aaron settled in Carolina.

A minute, directed by Miss Mae Joyner, and bringing the play to a fitting close, was danced by Misses Dora De Grace Rountree, Hazel Monk, Geraldine Gardner, Catherine Teel, Doris Flowers, Mary Louise Rumbley, Mary Elizabeth Smith, Ruth Hayes Turnage, Frances Joyner and Etta Grey Caraway.

And so the Tysons and Mays met together again, not in any sense to devote themselves to ancestor worship, but to review and recount the deeds of their forefathers, take fresh courage and renew their faith in God and in themselves.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 28—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady four to eight points decline in response to lower Liverpool cables and under liquidation.

Offerings were taken by trade buying and covering, but the decline extended to 5-8 for December and 5-93 for May for the first half hour or about six to eight net lower.

Weakness of sterling and uncertainty of measures in Congress appeared to have an upsetting effect on sentiment and the decline extended to 5-90 for May later, or about 9 to 11 net lower.
