Townpeople of Vacaville Break up Parade of Strikers, take Leaders to Woods, Paint, Beat Them; Police Say Men Released by Captors and Told to "Go Home."

Vacaville, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Six reputed leaders of a strike which disrupted fruit packing in Vacaville were kidnapped from the Vacaville jail today and whisked away in automobiles, reported painted red, but never to return to this vicinity.

The men were among fifteen persons arrested during a fight in front of the public library here Sunday. Police estimated that one thousand persons engaged in a fight when townspeople broke up a parade of 150 striking workers demanding a wage of $1.50 a day.

The six were taken from the jail by a group of men who drove rapidly into the country in automobiles and warned others not to follow them.

After prolonged search for the party, which was made up of irate townspeople and farmers, Police Chief W. E. Allen said he understood the erstwhile prisoners were turned loose by their captors and told to return home.

LAME DUCKS SHOW HANDS

Many Members of Congress to Go Out After this Session Voted Against Resolution to Do Away With Prohibition Garner Will Push Move to Legalize Beer for Taxes.

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—By narrow margin the House today defeated the Garner prohibition repeal resolution. The vote was 211 in its favor to 144 against.

A two-thirds vote was needed to approve the resolution since it was for an amendment of the constitution. "Two-thirds not having been voted the resolution is lost," gravely announced Speaker Garner, once the House was completed.

Chiefs from drys greeted the while proponents evinced disappointment in depressed expression. Many lame duck representatives defeated for election opposed the resolution. Action by the House usually spelled the death knell of prohibition repeal during the short session.

Garner indicated it would go over to the new Democratic Congress which is pledged to the platform. Nevertheless Democrats planned to go ahead with the program to legalize beer for raising new tax.

Garner was severely scored by drys in forty minutes of debate by evoking suspension of rules to force the resolution to a vote. No amendments were permitted and the vote was for and against.

Democrats voting for the resolution included Bulwinkle, Dougherty, Hancock, Carr, Lambert, Pugh, Warren, Weaver, Clark, Abernethy, absent.

ABOUT TOWN

The public should make it a point to attend the Institute of Government meeting to be held at the court house tonight. The object of the session will be to organize a unit in the county.

County officers will be inducted at the same time and those in attendance will be given an opportunity of coming in contact with the men who will have the responsibility of running the government of the various county and city offices during the next year.

The purpose of the Institute of Government is to inform the various officers of their respective duties at any time it may be called on for such information.

Incoming officers usually have considerable trouble in the dispatch of business, and in such cases they may get straightened out by conferring with Institute heads.

Leading officials of the county have expressed belief that the organization would prove instimable value to the county and are looking forward to the meeting tonight with more than usual interest.

The necessity of the rapid handling of the remainder of the tobacco crop has been stressed by members of the industry in this city and farmers would do well to do everything in their power to help speed up marketing.

The speeding up of marketing has been caused by the closing of the warehouses of the bright leaf belt on December 21, several weeks earlier than in previous years.

With prices reported as the best in three or four years the growers would do well to heed the appeal of the marketmen and dispose of the remainder of the crop as early as possible.

A distinct honor is to be paid to the farmers of Pitt and surrounding counties Wednesday when the North Carolina Bankers Association will bestow certificates upon those who passed the Grade A test.

Pitt county was chosen as the center for the awarding of the certificates because of the fact that it has produced more Grade A farmers than any other county in the state.

This is an honor which everybody should be proud of and one that will cause the county to receive greater recognition among the agricultural world.

Pitt county is proud of the fine record made by its growers and hopes they will continue to lead the way toward higher achievement in this realm of industry.

Communism threatens to destroy the foundation of government in China, in the opinion of Dr. Wellington Koo, member of the Geneva conference committee on China.

Communism, he said, has been responsible for the killing of thousands of people in the country in addition to the destroying of millions of dollars worth of property.

China has a tremendous problem in finding a solution for eliminating the teaching of Communism and she cannot hope to do so until the people realize their plight and begin to improve the condition of their country, although not as badly affected as China, face the danger of Communism and should profit by the condition now reported existing in the Orient.

A PATH TO PARADISE
 by Coningsby DAWSON

SYNOPSIS: Goaded beyond bearing by his wife Santa's attempt to "reform" her former husband, Dicky, Clive conspires with a show-girl friend of Dicky's to break up the situation. Lou-Lou is eager to help. Then Clive goes home, and does not, to his surprise, find Dicky there.

Chapter 43
BEAUTY IN TEARS

Clive reached home prepared for anything. He was agreeing surprised. One light was burning to welcome him in the hall; the rest of the apartment was in darkness. Glancing into the drawing-room, he guessed the length of Licky's stay by the mound of cigarettes.

He felt the handle of his bedroom door yielded. He was tiptoeing to the bathroom where he planned to undress, when Santa stirred.

"I'm awake. You're not disturbing me."

Without waiting for him to switch on the light, she pulled the chain of her lamp.

"My dearest," he exclaimed, "you eyes are red. You've been crying."

"Dicky's been so rotten." She began to weep.

Clive gathered her to him.

"What did you expect? You're the last person in the world to be able to change him. A woman who had not been married to him might."

"Come here—you!" Lou-Lou commanded.

"But no nice woman would want him the way he is, Clive," she wailed. "That's the tragedy."

"If you're asking my advice, you must place your cards on the table," she hesitated.

"He's been lying to me. I'm certain he hasn't broken away from his bad habits. He's been pretending, because it amuses him to have me preach to him. I accused him this evening."

"How could you accuse him, old girl, if you have no proofs?"

"You don't need proofs to accuse anybody. I mentioned Lou-Lou and chorus girls. I told him that if he refused to become decent, I was through with him."

"To which he replied?" Clive questioned.

"Nothing." She began to weep again. "That's what's so dreadful. Perhaps he has been trying and I've misjudged him."

"You've not misjudged him," Clive comforted her. "If you gave him his choice to be decent or to get out, we're rid of him. Dicky's the kind who can't be decent."

Next evening Dicky presented himself with the solemn expression of one who had hit the saw-dust trail. He begged the favor of a conference with Clive and Santa.

"I'm humble." He hung his head.

"Santa's instinct was right. I have had dealings with one woman—Lou-Lou. Today I've sinned here. I've raised card, virtuous eyes. 'At last I'm worthy of your friendship.' Clive excused himself.

From his library he telephoned the theater and left a message. Then pretended to work, consulting his watch from time to time, while the murmur of earnestly conversing voices drifted to him from the drawing-room.

At some minutes past eleven the door-bell rang.

"I'll answer it," he called.

As Lou-Lou entered, he whispered: "They're all set. Make the showdown convincing. Don't spare me."

She pressed his hand as she swept by him.

"Hello, you bums!" She peered into the drawing-room.

Then focusing on Santa, "Get baby-face, you're a fake one! Didn't want him when he was yours and now won't let me have him. One husband isn't enough. You're pure." For the sake of dramatic effect Clive checked her.

"Excuse me. You're speaking to my wife."

"Is that so?" Lou-Lou swung round and surveyed him. "You're a dandy husband—a regular prizefighter. How much does my man pay you to keep your fists off him?" Dicky was the last to catch her attention.

"Come here—you," she commanded.

"My dear Lou-Lou," he protested. As he approached she caught him a resounding smack across his handsome face.

"That's how dear I am to you. Thought you could gyp me, did you,

MOVE FOR SWEDISH REPUBLIC MAY MARK KING'S JUBILEE

By ELMER W. PETERSON
 Stockholm, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Working on governmental problems with a new social-democrat administration which, theoretically at least, would like to have Sweden a republic, King Gustav V will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his reign on December 8 with his popularity undiminished.

It is not unlikely that the left wing of the riksdag will this year, as it has done before, introduced a resolution to change Sweden to a republic. It is more than likely, as has happened before, that the resolution will be voted down and that with the aid of the social democrats, King's Personality Counts.

In the continuance of this paradoxical situation, King Gustav has unconsciously played a dominant role. His personal popularity, his entire accord with changing political trends, and his valuable services to his country, have given Sweden little reason to dispense with its royal family.

The human side of the king has helped to establish this feeling. The Swedes like to boast of his agility on the tennis court where he figures in tournaments on the Riviera as "Mr. G." They like to see him ride by a parade, sitting as erect as the youngest officer. They appreciate his prowess as a fisherman and a hunter and his skill at bridge.

Royal Power Limited

In the constitutional government which Sweden enjoys the king is neither figure-head nor dictator. In the exercise of authority he works with, and is limited by, his cabinet. Conduct of foreign policy is constitutionally in his hands, but the riksdag exercises an effective control over it. He may declare war or conclude peace, but only after consulting the cabinet.

King Gustaf is, in effect, a "regulator" in what can be termed a democratic monarchy. He serves much as a permanent president would serve in a modern republic, as a balance wheel removed from politics, as a personality representing the idea of the Swedish state.

His reign has been both peaceful and troubled. When he ascended the throne on December 8, 1907, the union between Sweden and Norway had just been ended, creating a lively political situation. Two years later Sweden experienced a general strike which threatened to develop into a revolution.

During the World War with Sweden pressed hard in the matter of neutrality and with some disagreement on the subject in the country, King Gustaf made good use of his calm patience.

His reign has been characterized by political democratization, by extension of the franchise to women, by the up movement of social democrats and left wing groups by marked social reforms, tremendous industrialization and modernization along all lines, and a radical change in the whole international situation in northern Europe.

SARGON SOFT MASS PILLS ARE THE IDEAL LAXATIVE FOR OLD FOLKS. THEY ARE MILD AND GENTLE, YET THOROUGH IN ACTION.

Unlike ordinary cathartics Sargon Soft Mass Pills do not shock or upset the system. They do their work by gently stimulating the liver to cleanse itself by increasing its production of bile—a more natural and thorough laxative than can ever be devised by man.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills are not like any laxative you have ever taken. They are so gentle and thorough in action that there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and most remarkable of all, their directions call for a gradual reduction of the dose until the point is reached where you no longer require a laxative of any kind.

Woman's Club Meets

The Woman's Club met on Thursday afternoon, December 1st in the club house.

The Welfare department, of which Mrs. Hugh Ragsdale in chairman, presented the program. K. T. Futrell discussed how the Reconstruction Finance Corporation money could be used locally in relief work. He said that four-fifths of the money allotted to us could be used for unemployment relief in one-fifth direct relief as for tubercular patients. This fund is now taking care of six tubercular patients and five hundred and eighty heads of families in Pitt county are now receiving relief from this fund. None of the heads of the families are able to get a full week's work.

Mr. Futrell impressed upon us the absolute necessity of pushing earnestly the Tuberculosis Seal campaign, for the money allotted to Pitt county from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be exhausted by April and the money made from the sale of Tuberculosis Seals would be the only accessible money after that time for tubercular patients and indigent children.—Reported

MRS. HILTON PRESIDENT JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB

The Junior Woman's Club had a most enthusiastic meeting last Friday afternoon at the Woman's Club building. Mrs. C. G. Hilton was elected president of the Junior Woman's Club, succeeding Mrs. W. F. Young, resigned.

Mrs. Walter Harrington, chairman of the program committee, in her most charming way, introduced Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, state president of the North Carolina Federation of Woman's Clubs. Mrs. Hobgood then gave the club an interesting account of her recent trip to Cuba, and spoke of the Cuba Junior Work. Speaking for Mrs. E. M. Land, head of the National Junior Work, Mrs. Hobgood emphasized the fact that each club should have a special project such as one club taking care of a family. Mrs. Hobgood said that each Junior Club should do this this year and cited the Children's Home in Greensboro as a possibility for carrying out this work.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Thomas Clifton, vice-president, and the regular business followed. The bridge tournament that was to be sponsored by the club will be postponed until sometime after Christmas. Mr. Keendy, food demonstrator, then was told would be at the Home Grocery Stores on Saturday, December 17, for the purpose of advertising the qualities of Swans Down cake flour. This will be sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club with the following committee appointed to help carry out the work: Misses Frances Norman and Rose Hadley.

The club will also have their annual Christmas tree this year for the poor children of the community and Miss Jesse Moye and Mrs. Thomas Clifton were appointed as a committee to look after this. The milk fund on December 10th will be in charge of the public health committee.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Walter Harrington, Mrs. Sam Allen and Mrs. James Patterson.

The club house was beautifully decorated with Christmas holly carrying out the spirit of the holidays. Tea and sandwiches with plate pointers were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Thomas Clifton, vice-president of the club, welcomed Mrs. C. G. Hilton as the new president, in her most charming manner.—Reported

REPRESENTATIVES OF TWO COLLEGES HOLD SERVICES

A deputation from Wake Forest College and a representative from State College were in charge of the regular Sunday evening vesper service at East Carolina Teachers College yesterday evening. Prayer was offered by Mr. Hoyle of N. C. State College and a quartet composed of Messrs. Wilks, Hasty, Barnes and Griggs rendered several selections including the Wake Forest song and a Christmas carol.

Mr. Reavis, pastor at Henderson, and a student at Wake Forest College, addressed the students here on the topic of "Come Unto Me and I Will Give Thee Rest, all ye who labor and are heavy laden."

Mr. Reavis brought out forcefully the point that though the lessons of great men as Socrates and Plato are not the same today as they were when uttered, the message and the lesson of Jesus is still the same.

HINTS TO THE FARMERS

(Stokes Voc. Agr. Dept.)
Meat can be saved even though the weather may not be right.

Obtain a molasses barrel or some similar container. Wash the barrel until it is clean and odorless and scald with boiling water. Dress the hog as soon as possible after it is slaughtered and divide the carcass into different cuts. Rub each cut with salt especially around the ends of the bones, and place the meat inside the barrel, skin side down. Apply chipped ice at the rate of 200 pounds of ice to each 100 pounds of meat. Use a layer of ice around and a layer of meat. When the ice melts a brine will be formed in sufficient quantity to cover the meat.

Make a curing mixture of 40 lbs. of salt, 10 pounds of sugar and 9 ounces of saltpeter for each 100 pounds of meat to be cured. At the end of 24 hours take the meat out, rub each piece thoroughly with the curing mixture, and place back in the ice brine. Pour into the barrel any of the curing mixture which remains after the meat is treated. Weight the meat down with clean bricks or stones. Leave the meat in the brine for 25 days. If the live weight of the hog is more than 200 pounds, leave in the brine for 30 to 35 days. A scum of mold will probably form on top of the brine but will not necessarily injure the meat. At the end of the curing period take the meat out of the barrel and wash thoroughly in warm water, then the next step is the smoking and storage process.

The farmers and their wives boys and girls of the Stokes community came together this past Thursday night to hear a discussion of the Grange and what it meant in a community. After listening to a discussion led by Mr. Holmes, the district representative of the Grange, a call was made for an attempt to form a local chapter of the Grange. Those appearing in behalf of some sound organization for the farmers were: E. F. Arnold, county agent; Miss Nice, home agent; Mark H. Smith and friend of Bell Arthur community, and A. W. Woolard of Stokes community. After hearing interesting talks by those mentioned a canvass for membership was begun.

A subordinate order of the Grange was organized with the following charter members and officers: A. W. Woolard, master; G. M. Britt, lecturer; Mrs. Coy Forbes, secretary; with R. L. Whichard and wife, J. K. Barnhill and wife, Coy Forbes and wife, J. L. Perkins and wife, A. W. Woolard and wife, G. M. Britt and wife, Roy Worthington, Richard Barnhill, Clifford Whichard, C. G. Little, Miss Nice, Mary Louise Woolard, Edna Mae Barnhill, Virginia Dare Barnhill, W. D. Bailey, Elmer Nelson, Paul Nelson as members.

The name chosen for the local organization was "The Carolina Subordinate Grange."

Tuesday night, December 6, was set for the next meeting night. Let's have a grange in every community of Pitt county.

SANTA and the MAGIC DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

THE UGLY PINOCCHIO

Once upon a time long ago there was a very lazy, young Gnome who worked in Santa Claus' Toyshop up near the North Pole.

He was supposed to carve out beautiful wooden soldiers and then paint their pretty red suits. But instead he played all day with the soldiers' tiny guns and swords.

One day he had been particularly lazy. He hadn't carved out one single soldier. And then he suddenly saw Santa coming toward him.

He snatched up a knife and a piece of wood and carved so fast that he almost had a complete soldier in a twinkling. But just then his knife slipped. He was making the poor soldier's face. He made a tiny little head and great big nose, and the poor little soldier doll looked so terrible that the Gnome just knew Santa wouldn't permit him in any infantry at all.

And there was nothing he could do about it. Once a doll is made, he can't be broken or remodeled. So there he was. And the minute the Gnome had finished him, the doll jumped up on the workshop table and began to shout:

"Look what you've done! You've made me so homely nobody will want me. Look at that nose. I can hardly see over it." And the poor little fellow covered his face with bony, little hands and wept so that Santa came running down the toyshop room.

When Santa saw what the Gnome had done he shook his head gravely. But Santa has a remedy for everything. He knew how to make the weeping doll dry his tears.

"But you will mean more to us than a whole company of handsome soldiers," said Santa to the doll.

"How do you mean," asked the doll so surprised that he stopped crying. Really, he did look funny. His little body was so thin, his knees and elbows looked bumpy and his nose was longer than his head.

"Call my Funny Man," cried Santa. And soon the merriest looking little fellow came hippy-hop across the tables and stopped right next to the long-nosed doll.

"Funny Man, have you got one of those little luck coins in your pocket?" asked Santa.

Tomorrow: The Beautiful Doll.

The poor little soldier doll looked so terrible.

"Yes, s-i-r Here it is," said the Funny Man.

"Give it to this doll. We will call him Pinocchio, the Clown, and it will be his good luck to make everyone laugh, even the saddest."

So the Funny Man handed the weeping doll the coin, and Pinocchio—because that's what we will call him now—put it in his little coat pocket.

"Now do a dance," Santa commanded.

And Pinocchio took a few fancy steps. But he was so thin that he looked as though he were tying himself in a knot.

"Ho-ho-ho and ha-ha-ha" shouted the whole toy-shop. The dolls and the fairies all crowded around just shouting with laughter.

Pinocchio liked that and he laughed and laughed and danced faster until he couldn't dance any more.

"Now," said Santa, turning to the Gnome. "You have made a mistake. In payment you must create the most beautiful doll in the shop or I will banish you to the Ice Kingdom."

So the Gnome set to work.

School News

Why Home Room Period?
In answer to this question that appeared in last week's scandal column, we wish to be very definite in proving that this period is absolutely essential and submit the following data for consideration.

Three weeks ago when failure slips were issued it was found out that 152 failure slips were given out for that period with 106 pupils of the 402 in school receiving same. Of these, 30 received failure slips on two subjects and seven students received as many as three or four notices of failure. It may be noted that 23.8 per cent of above mentioned pupils being their grades up to passing such a period as home room period is needed for study.

With these facts at hand, our defense of the home room period is well under way. Besides showing that this extra study period is needed it can be easily seen that without the home room period the glee club, band, orchestra, freshmen athletics and class activities could never function.

After three years of high school experience it is our personal observation that without the home room period it would be almost impossible to keep up with the lessons. Also we believe that the extra curricula activities are an essential part of our program and without the home room period these activities could not exist.

Just Between You And Me.
There are a few students in school who are letting their popularity and ability go to their heads, and it is destroying their natural manner and charm.

Conceit is one of the most objectionable features a person can have. It is all right to be proud, but to have conceit for something with which nature has favored you instead of someone else is cowardly; it is taking an unfair advantage of elements, which the individual has no control over and leaves no comeback for one less fortunate.

There is nothing so disliked about one as conceit; so wash out; little bodies don't look well with large heads.

Our entire football team has done wonderful work this year, but this particular paragraph is just for the line. Our splendid line has battled courageously with much faster and heavier lines.

Traffic Regulation

Since the return of President Carl Joyner to high school, the senior class has begun to function properly, and to accomplish something worthwhile.

At a recent meeting of a committee of which Joyner was chairman, a set of rules for traffic regulation was drawn up. The purpose of these rules is to prevent, if possible, traffic confection in the halls and on the stairs during the changing of classes.

The rules decided upon are: (1) That between classes all upgoing traffic should go up the steps toward the ravine and all downgoing traffic go down steps facing the street. (2) Coming in at 8:25 in the morning, at lunch and at 3:25 in the afternoon, there will be no regulations as to the proper stairs to be used. However, during the lunch period, senior and junior officers will be on hand to see that no unnecessary confusion is caused. (3) Officers regulating traffic will be given proper and necessary authority to enforce rules. At the end of the first week detention hall may be given to those who insist upon breaking the regulations.

If these regulations are put into effect a great improvement in traffic in school is expected to follow. GEO. WILLARD

Basketball Practice Begins

Basketball season has come at last and many girls that have been looking forward to this event are now satisfied. For the last two weeks the girls interested in basketball, about 30 in number, have been coming out every afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30. The coach, Miss Langston graduate of Duke University, who coached in the West Durham high school last year, seems to be delighted with the prospects for a good varsity team. All the girls are working hard for a place on the varsity team and their hopes are soaring high. One of the most interesting things to the basketball girls is the news saying there are to be new suits and sweat suits this year. Everyone is looking forward to the first game and a large crowd is expected to attend.

Seniors Hold Meeting

Wednesday, the senior class held a class meeting to discuss the important matter of senior privileges as well as other matters. President Carl Joyner presided over this meeting and it proved one of the most orderly and successful meetings of the class history.

Various privileges were suggested from the floor, which after a lively debate, were referred to a committee appointed by the president. This committee is to draw up the resolutions passed, perhaps add a few, and submit the report to the class for approval. The president was also instructed to appoint a committee for the Christmas program, to be planned and executed by the senior class.

After a brief discussion of the traffic rules, the enforcement of which is in the hands of the junior and senior classes, the class adjourned.

YOUNG DESPERADORS ARE PLACED IN JAIL

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 5.—(UP)—Two youthful desperadors who were quoted as confessing two murders, sat in jail cells last night and calmly puffed cigarettes while they confessed, police said, to the recent sensational theft of $9,000 worth of jewels from the fashionable Philadelphia home of Harrison Frazier, Jr.

A few hours earlier the two bandits, Frank Stabinski and Anthony Etrosky had directed police to a dumping ground where police uncovered a tin can in which about 6,000 worth of pearls, diamonds and other missing jewels had been concealed, police said. Search for the remainder of the gems continued late last night in the nearby dumping ground.

U. N. C. QUINT BOOSTS EIGHT FORMER VETS

Chapel Hill, Dec. 5.—With eight lettersmen, two of whom earned All-southern honors last winter, and a number of better than average reserves and freshmen of last year on hand, basketball prospects at the University of North Carolina this year seem fairly good.

But the Tar Heels, who surprised the depesters a year ago by winning over Kentucky and Auburn in the Southern Conference tournament only to lose out 26-24 to Georgia in the finals, will suffer no little by the loss through graduation of Tom Alexander, all-southern guard and Paul Edwards, center.

Captain Wilmer Hines and Vergil Weathers, a pair of all-southern selections will be at the forward berth and there will be two lettermen, Stuart Chandler and Billy Markham, and Aitken and Kaveny, sophomores as reserves.

George Brandt, a letter man, has the inside track for Edwards' old position at center, but he is getting stiff competition from Ike Minor and Glace, a soph.

The guard berths offer the chief worry for the problem of replacing Alexander is a large one. Dave McCacheron, a regular last winter, is sure of one spot, but Henry and Jones, three freshmen, Harris, a reserve, and three freshmen Zaiser, Jacobs and Heiderich, are waging a merry fight for the other.

Coach Eo Shepard, who piloted the White Phantoms through their best season in quite a while last year, is first as a varsity coach, will again be at the helm.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The background on all this hysteria concerning the prolate spheroid is out at last, thanks to the diligence of Lou Boover of Cornell.

Lou gets the "assist" but the "put-out" goes to Professor Emeritus Louis M. Dennis, long the head of Cornell's department of chemistry, former president of the Cornell Athletic Council and an original member of the Eastern football rules committee.

Professor Dennis was chairman of the rules committee at the time he was asked to codify the football rules and to write proper definitions. From there, Boover takes up the story of the prolate spheroid.

"He decided to start at the beginning and state what sort of an implement should be used in playing the game. The only definition of the ball to be used was Walter Camp's. It read: 'The ball is an oval leather containing a rubber inner, which is inflated by means of a small air pump or the lungs.'

Settled One Argument
"It doesn't take an Einstein to see that a football is not an oval. For an oval, any high school student will tell you, is a flat surface, whereas a football is a solid.

"The point about the ball being inflated is a good one. Walter Camp's definition, at least on one occasion, stopped a bitter argument in the early years of this century. In a game between Cornell and Princeton, someone punted, someone received, and in the m. ele the ball emerged as flat as a pancake.

"One side wanted to continue the game with the ball 'as is,' the other contended that the ball had to be inflated. The game was stopped until a long limbed individual raced up the famous Ithaca Hills to the camp and brought back the rules book with the above definition. The game then continued with an inflated ball.

Proofs Saved II
"After a diligent search, Professor Dennis could not find a scientific definition. In despair he put the problem up to the mathematics department of the university. They had a long session, and when they came out, the thing that is engrossing our attention today was labeled a 'prolate spheroid.'

"Here is what finally was evolved for the rules book as the official definition:
"The ball shall be made of leather (natural tanned color) enclosing a rubber bladder. It shall be inflated with a pressure of not less than 12 1/2 pounds nor more than 13 1/2 pounds, and shall have the shape of a prolate spheroid, the entire surface to be convex."

The Raleigh program, which will get under way in the Wake County courthouse at 7:45 o'clock, will be broadcast by radio throughout the State from 8 to 9 o'clock to an audience estimated at more than 200,000.

Following the Raleigh program in Wake County unit of the Institute will be host to the newly inducted Wake County officials and to the speakers participating in the program. Similar programs will be held throughout the State.

Speakers on the Raleigh program will outline the governmental program that has grown out of the efforts and activities of the public officers of North Carolina during the past several years and are now being projected through the Institute of Government.

Those up with the central meeting of Raleigh, public meetings will be held at the same time in more than sixty counties of the State, bringing the newly-elected officers and citizens together.

Virtually all the counties, Professor Coates has been informed, have arranged formal installation ceremonies for the new officers, to be held during the morning or afternoon of Monday. Justices of the Supreme Court and of the Superior Courts, wherever they are available, will participate in administering the oaths.

The Raleigh program will be heard by radio parties that are being arranged in every county, and those attending the public meetings will also listen in.

An interesting feature at many Duke University Day meetings this year will be the presence of parents of Duke students now at the institution. Wives and husbands of alumni are also expected to attend the various gatherings.

A statement made from the Alumni office at Duke University is to the effect that there are now in the office files the names of 7,000 located alumni of the institution. GARNER REPEAL RESOLUTION DEFEATED IN HOUSE

sion in twenty minutes and adjourned after disposing of usual formalities.

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Tense and grim under the mass of problems confronting it, the 77th Congress today began its final session. With a minimum of ceremony and an atmosphere of ordliness, the sound of the gavel, rap by Vice President Curtis in the Senate and Speaker Garner in the House, signaled the beginning of the three-month session and almost immediately the House was confronted with the prohibition resolution to submit straight-out repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to state conventions.

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The Republican wet block today unanimously voted to support Speaker Garner's repeal proposal when it is offered today in the House.

Although only about fifty were present in the executive session, the members predicted that the decision would sign over 100 votes. With this support and the estimated 160 Democrats reported available, Speaker Garner's friends believed the repeal will have a fair opportunity of being adopted and sent to the Senate a few hours after Congress convenes.

Speaker Garner said Representative Ripley Democratic floor leader, would offer the resolution based on the Democratic platform calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and submission to state conventions.

Stock Market

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Prices shifted upward on an extremely quiet stock market today.

The convening of Congress produced the traditional uneasiness in Wall Street and was treated with selling and popular trading issues advanced from one to two points.

While gains were limited to appearances advanced of one to two appeared in American Telephone, American Case and C. in Products. Among so-called wet stocks, Owens rose a point. In some brokerage quarters it was said to have been promoted by for casts that the House would adopt the repeal resolution.

Prices turned downward in the late trading, erasing most of the day's earlier gains of one to two points. Trading continued dull.

The turnover was approximately 700,000 shares.
