FRANCE MAKES HER DEBT PAYMENT CONDITIONAL

Seek Reconsideration Of Debt Structure Before Next Installment Is Due

SAYS CONFAB IMPERATIVE TO UNIVERSE

Committee of Chamber of Deputies Declares that International Conference on Debts Imperative if Catastrophic Consequences are to Be Avoided; Peril of Money Exchange Is Seen.

Paris, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A resolution making payment of the December American debt installment conditional on acceptance that the debt structure will be reconsidered before the next payment is due, was drafted today by a joint sub-committee of the Financial and Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

With emphasis, France contends that an international conference to settle the debt problem is of paramount importance if catastrophic consequences are to be avoided particularly from the standpoint of money exchange.

The resolution reaffirmed the determination of France to respect its obligations and general adherence of this country to the matter of arbitration.

BEAMAN TRIAL NOT HELD YET

Marshal Expected To Appear at any Time for The Preliminary Hearing.

The preliminary hearing for Thos. E. Beaman, United States Commissioner, a former minister and weekly newspaper editor, was not held in Williamston yesterday afternoon as previously stated because of the fact that the United States Marshal did not come to take the prisoner to the Martin County capital for examination before Commissioner Manning.

Officers, however, expected the marshal to arrive at any time in view of the fact that papers in connection with the charges of accepting bribes from bootleggers and conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law were mailed to him by Sheriff Whitehurst immediately after Beaman's arrest.

Beaman continued to hold his peace in the county jail today, but it was understood efforts were being made to obtain counsel for the preliminary hearing.

Beaman was arrested by city and county officers at a negro store here Wednesday night just after his alleged acceptance of a bribe from the proprietor, supposedly a bootlegger but who in reality was being used by officers in an effort to obtain final evidence against Beaman, who it was

Science Seeks the Force in Sun That Shoots Out Fiery Gas

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Astronomers here are trying to discover what causes solar eruptions which send great, hot clouds of gas some of them reaching a size 400 times that of the earth, hurtling into space.

Dr. Edwin Pettit, of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory, is making a close study of these huge and often weirdly shaped "prominences" which appear above the chromosphere, a gas layer about 8,000 miles thick on the normally visible surface of the sun, and shoot off into space. They apparently gain velocity by leaps, he said, as if suddenly pushed by some mighty force.

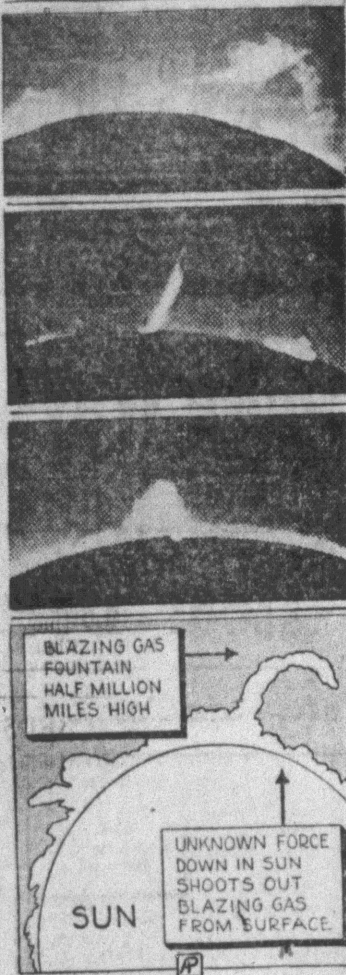

Some Fall Back To Sun
Not all prominences leave the sun. Some spout up and fall like water fountains, others resembling tornadoes whirl about and apparently waste away, while still others shoot up and are torn apart, one portion falling on the other continuing on until it loses its light and is no longer visible.

Few of the 35 eruptive prominences so far photographed, Dr. Pettit said, were shorter than 37,000 miles and the highest rose 577,000 miles above the chromosphere before it became invisible. The largest observed had a volume 400 times that of the earth.

"As possible cause of the eruptions," Dr. Pettit said, "is 'light pressure.' Light exerts a pressure like waves striking the shore. Its force depends upon the amount of light absorbed by the atoms it strikes."

"We have found that sun prominences are composed largely of hydrogen and calcium gases. Hydrogen atoms will absorb more light than calcium atoms. So if we accept light pressure as the force behind the eruptions we shall have to revise our ideas about it."

Velocity Increase Measured
To check the accuracy of his observation that the velocity of prominences increase as they leave the

There's Electricity In Your Tongue; New Instrument Measures It Exactly

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor) New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The philosophers who speculate on life being merely chemical, may revise their ideas into considering it just a tangle of electric currents.

This is suggested by the profusion of electric currents revealed by the electrynx, a novel kind of meter, invented by R. C. Hitchcock of the Westinghouse Company.

An 'Electric Palate'
Fruit, vegetables, meat, drink and even the human tongue, hands and hair register all sorts of electrical currents on this meter. Because some of these currents are found to be associated with acidity, alkalinity and saltiness of foods, the meter is dubbed the "electric palate."

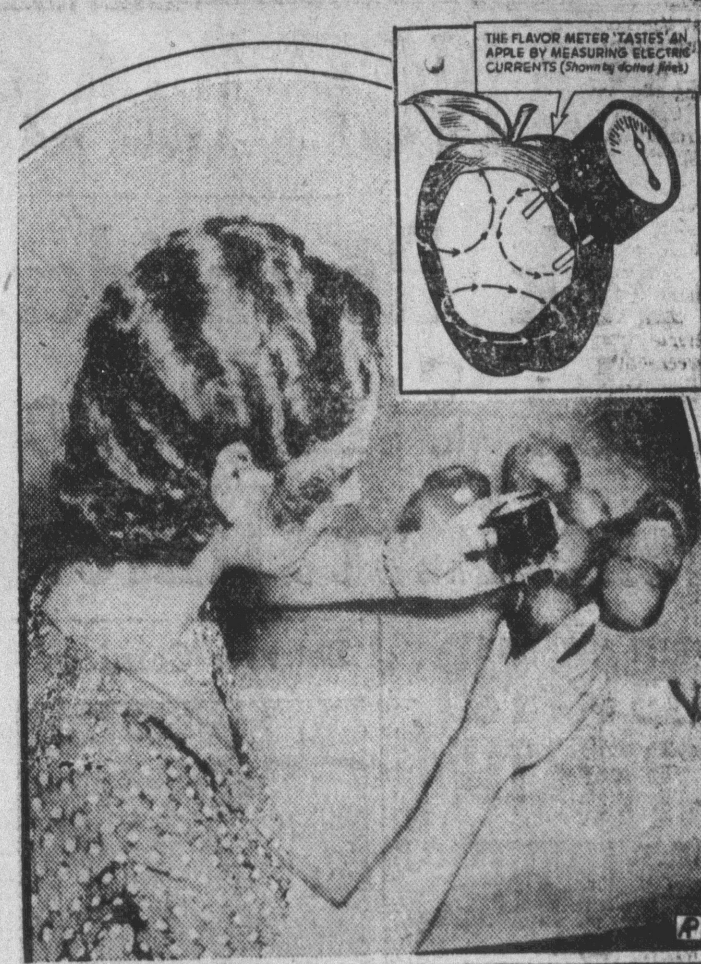

The fact that these electrical charges in all living things exist continuously, and that they vary with changes in health or age, has been known to scientists for a long time. But previously the instruments for measuring the electrical flows were slow or cumbersome.

The "electric palate" shows an endless variety of these currents. It registers the current down to a millionth of an ampere. Its readings are instantaneous at a mere touch.

An apple, for example, shows a different current flowing about its stem end than about its equator. The currents cannot be said to compose the apple, but there are so many different flows in a single apple that the meter gives a more complete picture than hitherto available of the electro-chemical interior forces.

This meter, or refinements of its principles, appears to offer scientific explorers a new craft for navigating the electrical seas supposed to conceal the explanation of how all substance is created.

The signs already found in this electrical ocean pointing to such an explanation are varied. Physicists' instruments' digging up the "ultimate particles" out of which everything is made, have thus far found only three kinds, positive charges of electricity or protons, negative charges or electrons, and combina-

The electrynx, a meter invented by R. C. Hitchcock, measures the electricity in parts of your body, in fruit, vegetables, drink, meat and other objects. It suggests that living may possibly be a tangle of electrical currents. Here the instrument is registering the currents in an apple.

Nerves carry their messages with the aid of an electrical charge which passes rapidly along the fibres like the old cash-carriers in department store.

Recently medical scientists have found increasing evidence that the virulence of bacteria is associated with electrical charges which the germs carry. Electrical attractions between atoms explain their grouping into molecules.

MENTIONED FOR POSTS IN ROOSEVELT CABINET

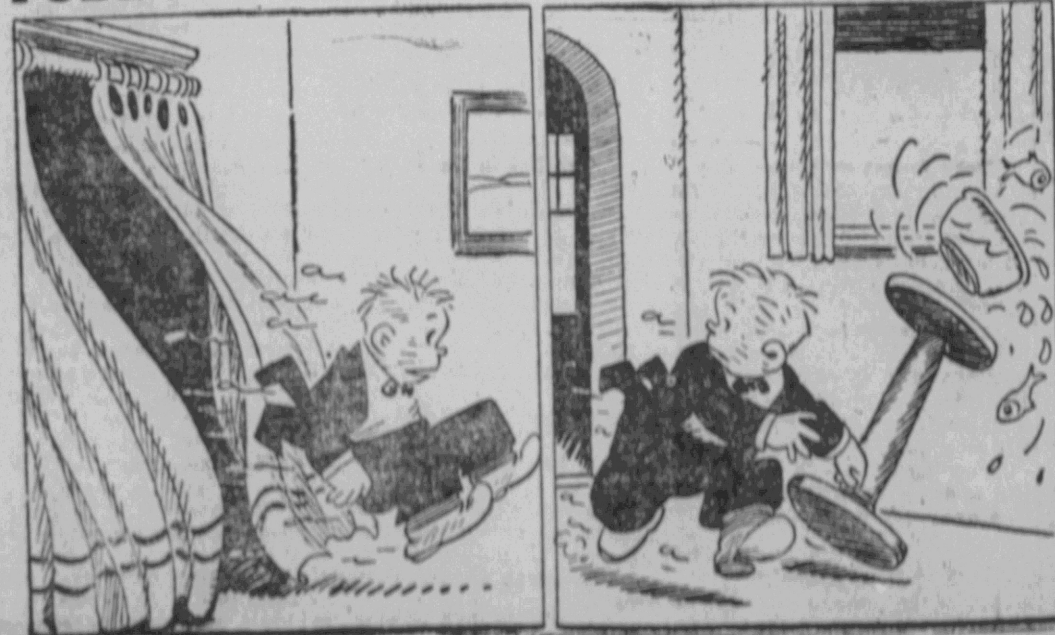

In the opinion of some of those close to President-elect Roosevelt two cabinet posts were being definitely allocated, the treasury portfolio to Senator Glass of Virginia and the postmaster generalship to James A. Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee. Other cabinet possibilities that have been discussed for various posts include Senator Walsh of Montana for attorney general and Governor Dern of Utah, Owen D. Young, and Newton D. Baker for various other positions. (Associated Press Photo)

Chapter V. THE MAGIC MIRROR. Pinocchio wasn't near when the witch coaxed her way in to talk to Inga, or else what happened might never have come to pass.

"It's a witch, put her out!" the doll cried. "No, it's Inga," said Pinocchio, but no one listened to him.

"Poor Inga," said Pinocchio. "We will build a little house of twigs in the woods and live there. I can gather wood for you and bring in food and you can make the meals.

"But we have no plates," said Inga. "All we have is this old mirror the witch gave me. I was so excited I just carried it along."

"Why, it's all fogged. It isn't even good for anything," she said. "Oh, yes, I am," said the mirror. "The witch had her spell on me too, when I spoiled your prettiness. But now it is gone. I have no love for that witch. She stole me from a princess' dressing table. I will help you."

THE PANTRY. By Mary Graham Bonner. Rip went rushing out of the pantry barking as he ran down the stairs of Puddle Muddle.

"Our Jelly is all gone! Every scrap of it has been eaten! The pantry floor is covered with jelly stains, but there's none to eat."

"How could all the jelly have been eaten, quack, quack?" quacked Mrs. Quacko.

"We made enough for the whole winter," said Flotilla Botilla. "Whose face and paws and chest are covered with jelly?" crowed Top Notch, the Rooster.

"What has happened?" they all quacked and crowed and shouted as they gathered around Rip, the dog. "A bear" cried Rip. "A bear is in our pantry, and he has eaten all the jelly."

"A bear, quack, quack, a bear, cock-a-doodle-do, a bear. There has never been a bear in Puddle Muddle."

"Well, there is now," said Rip "and he's in our pantry. Come! We must see what Willy Nilly is doing. The bear may have hurt him, although he looked harmless enough. But come!"

ALL WIN. By Mary Graham Bonner. "Flotilla Botilla, on the morning of election day, 'we must go out to the polls and vote. Mrs. Quacko and I will take care of everything."

"What polls?" asked Old Toad. "Oh," explained Flotilla Botilla, "they are always speaking of going to the polls to vote."

"North and South Pole?" asked Top Notch.

"Oh, no," said Flotilla Botilla, "polls are just any voting place, and I've thought of the old oak tree stump as a good place for us."

"A brown leaf will stand for Willy Nilly for President, a twisted blade of grass will mean that we want Rip for Vice-President. A piece of Old Toad for Governor. A twig will mean that we want Top Notch for Mayor, and a red leaf will mean that we want Mr. Quacko for the Fire Chief."

"So they all went to the old oak tree stump, and each voted with brown leaves, twisted blades of grass, moss, twigs and red leaves."

"We didn't think that would be quite modest," they said after Mrs. Quacko and Flotilla Botilla had counted the votes.

"Well, in an election you want to win so much you're never modest, and you always vote for yourselves," Flotilla said. "But as you've each had all the votes except one for President, Vice-President, Mayor, Governor and Fire Chief, you've certainly all won by an overwhelming majority."

"What that?" asked Old Toad. "That means that lots more people voted for you than against you," Flotilla explained.

ABOUT TOWN

President Hoover has submitted plans to Congress for partial reorganization of the government.

It is strange the President should seek reorganization at such a late date in his administration.

It would be money wasted to go into such rearrangement at this time.

Decorations for the holidays are being pushed forward rapidly here and before the week is over the business district will be transformed into a thing of beauty and splendor.

The Water & Light Commission is to be congratulated upon the interest shown in the movement to beautify the city for the Christmas season.

With co-operation of store operators and home owners the decorating this year should be more extensive than all previous years.

This is one season of the year when everybody should contribute his bit toward spreading Christmas cheer and there is no better way to do it than through decorations such as those being provided at this time.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York and President-elect is wrestling with issues affecting the Empire state at this time.

Among the most important of the questions before the New York Legislature is the plan to relieve the financial strain in the world's greatest city.

How this will be done is yet to be decided upon, but Roosevelt is a man of action and when he gets through the legislature should give a pretty good idea of how to do it.

The American people are awaiting with interest the President-elect's recommendations for improvement of national life and millions of people will peruse the columns of daily newspapers when he goes into office to see what he plans to do.

Growers of this bright leaf belt have again been advised to market the remainder of their crop as rapidly as possible.

The Health Department has again sent fit to warn the public against sending children to school from quarantined homes.

The Health Department is doing everything it can to cope with health conditions in the community but little will be accomplished if parents do not render assistance.

By co-operating with the department at all seasons of the year, parents can do much to improve the public health rating of the city and community.

A PATH TO PARADISE

SYNOPSIS: Santa is surprised by Dicky, her former husband, at her dressmakers, and forced to go to lunch with him. It is his second week; Santa fears Clive, Dicky's successor, may see them, and finally escapes by telling Dicky the insulting truth about himself. But she cannot go home to face Clive, and wanders through the streets.

Chapter 48 UNDER A CLOUD

The hour for dinner had struck, when Santa forced herself back to the apartment.

"Hello, gorgeous!" The man whom she had dreaded was embracing her.

"Where have you been, little wanderer?" "Forgot the time," she excused herself. "Guess you're hungry. I'll sit down as I am."

"On the dressing-table." He could no longer rein himself. She plucked up a little box.

"For me! But why?" "Why not?" He hugged her shoulder. "Don't men give presents to the wives they love?"

"What's there to cry about, my darling?" "Don't deserve it. Don't deserve you. So dear, so kind."

"That evening they were lovers. She could tell him any time now that she was sure of him. At the moment she couldn't bring herself to besmirch her recovered peace with ugliness.

During the next few days she heard nothing from her ex-husband. At first she didn't hope too much from the respite; it might be no more than a deceptive lull.

But even with Dicky removed from the picture, she still uncertain how she stood with Clive. Her conscience scared up ghosts. If he was pre-occupied, she at once suspected that he had heard a rumor.

They had hid themselves of the physical Dicky, but his memory walked in both their minds. Into the quiet room he intruded, dusk lengthening, shaded lamplight flicking.

Clive flung down the paper through which he had been glancing. "One lives and learns. When I look back, I'm amazed that I could have stood for such lunacy. I would not again, whatever it cost."

"It's easy to be wise after the event, darling; but I don't see what else we could have done."

"We dragged Dicky into our home! It wasn't so vastly different."

"I see you're wearing my brooch tonight," he smiled. "Of course I've known right along that a good deal of your jewelry was your other husband's gift to you."

Vacationing

hoped was ended, burst into a new vigor. He bombarded her with letters, telephone calls, even telegrams. Sooner or later, as in the days when her divorce had been pending in Chicago, he would take to way-laying her.

When the encounter happened, it was almost a relief.

"Oh, it's you! she said simply. "If you don't want me, I'll leave."

"You know I don't want you; but you're looking ill, Dicky."

"Rather to be expected." They struck out in the direction of the Metropolitan Museum.

"At last he broke the silence. "I'm heart-broken."

"You ought to be." "They had reached the steps of the Metropolitan. She held out her hand.

"Is this all you had to say that couldn't be written?" "There's more."

"I'm sorry," she murmured, "but to me you're dead."

"Dead!" He groaned as if she had stabbed him.

She tripped up the steps. Before she entered the Museum, she turned. With the disconsolate air of a homeless dog he stood gazing after her.

Clive would have had to have been blind not to notice that there was something far wrong with Santa. She betrayed her condition in surreptitious ways.

When it wasn't, the relief in her voice was apparent.

"For me, I expect."

"Tedious evenings. Futile overtures, trailing off into silence. Santa rose languidly."

"My head aches, darling. I'm off to bed."

"You shouldn't brooder so much. You try your eyes. You never did it but you're a talker."

"Tearing herself from him, with the swiftness of a doe, she disappeared."

With stealth Clive made his escape. As he reached Lou-Lou's room the audience was dispersing.

"What's Dicky been up to lately?" He related all he knew.

"Two and two make four," she nodded. "Dicky's been moaning like a love sick puppy. If you're correct, what won't I do to him?"

"I'll not let Dicky put off marrying me any longer."

"And truly enough, on the morning of the fourth day later a telegram reached Clive's desk."

"This is the happy day. Lou-Lou. He rushed uptown to Santa; the path to paradise was ending; paradise commencing. The telephone rang as he entered. Santa almost ran to it, but Clive was first. Said Dicky's voice:

Commissioner's Sale of Real Estate North Carolina—Pitt County.

At 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, December 21, 1932, subject to the confirmation of the Court the following described tracts of land, lying being and situate in the County of Pitt and State of North Carolina, to-wit:

First Tract: That certain tract of land known as the Anderson land purchased by J. A. Moore, from Bill (W. R.) Moore, containing 150 acres more or less, situated in Swift Creek Township, Pitt County.

Second Tract: Also that certain tract of land purchased by J. A. Moore, from J. D. and E. T. Cox in Swift Creek Township, Pitt County, and containing 88 acres more or less.

Third Tract: Also that tract of land purchased by J. A. Moore from J. B. Hardee, in Swift Creek Township, Pitt County, and containing 100 acres more or less.

Fourth Tract: That certain tract of land known as the Anderson land purchased by J. A. Moore, from Bill (W. R.) Moore, containing 150 acres more or less, situated in Swift Creek Township, Pitt County.

What may or may not be the proper direction to turn, but it is increasingly certain that every effort will meet the most stubborn opposition.

Examined over a period of years, the ratio of veterans' payments to the total expense of the government comes a long way from having kept pace with the relative increases in a good many other directions.

In money actually paid out to former soldiers, some government experts figure the load of veteran relief during the present year at less than 20 per cent of the total cost of the Federal establishment.

Even so, there are powerful organizations, such as the new economy league, which think the present figure far too high.

Looking Ahead Whatever Congress does it will keep an eye directed over its shoulder toward the immediate future.

It will be most interesting to see how far Mr. Roosevelt can go in making the politicians in Capitol Hill see it his way.

Under and by virtue of that certain authority contained in that certain deed of trust executed by Mary B. Dall and husband, W. H. Dall Jr., to William Montgomery and J. Harry Cunningham, Trustees, on the 16th day of September, 1929, as appears of record in Book D-18 at page 226 of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, and pursuant to an order of the Superior Court of Pitt County entered on the 13th day of October, 1932, by His Honor J. Paul Frazelle, as appears of record in Minute Book No. 30 at page 57, of the office of the Clerk of Pitt Superior Court; default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured in said deed of trust, and the terms and conditions thereof, violated, and demand having been made upon the undersigned trustees to advertise and foreclose, and the Court having directed said trustees to advertise and foreclose, as contained in said order, the undersigned trustees, pursuant to said order and terms of said deed of trust, will offer for sale upon terms of cash, before the Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, at twelve o'clock noon, on Monday, the 2nd day of Jan. 1933, the following described piece or parcel of land, with improvements thereon, lying and being in the town of Greenville, County of Pitt and State of North Carolina, immediately on the North side of Jarvis Street and the West side of Jarvis Street and more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at the northwest corner of the intersection of Fifth and Jarvis Streets at the point where the northern property line of Fifth Street intersects the western property line of Jarvis Street, and running thence with the western property line of Jarvis Street, which is the inside edge of the cement sidewalk, North 30 degrees 15 mins. East 251.72 feet to R. S. Neal's corner on Jarvis Street, thence with the said R. S. Neal's southern boundary line North 59 degrees 45 mins. West 146.88 feet to a stake in A. B. Millington's line; thence South 30 degrees 15 mins. East 251.72 feet to J. Knott Proctor's southeast corner on Fifth Street; thence with the northern property line of Fifth Street (which is the inside edge of the cement sidewalk) South 59 degrees 45 mins. East 146.88 feet to the northwest corner of the intersection of Fifth and Jarvis Streets, the point of beginning, and being lots numbered 2, 3, 4, 5 and the Eastern end of lots numbered 9 and 10 in Block "B" of the College View property, a plat of which is recorded in Map Book No. 1 at page 84, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County.

This sale is made by reason of the default in said deed of trust and violation of the terms and conditions thereof and by virtue of an order of the Superior Court of Pitt County directing a foreclosure pursuant to the terms of said deed of trust. The purchaser at said sale will be required to make a deposit of ten per cent of the purchase price to show good faith awaiting confirmation of said sale, and in the event the successful bidder at said sale shall fail to make said deposit immediately following the sale, the property will be immediately re-offered for sale at said time and place. The purchaser will be required to assume and pay taxes for the year 1932 upon confirmation of said sale.

THIS the 2nd day of Dec. 1932. William Montgomery, J. Harry Cunningham, Trustees.

HIGH SPLITS DOUBLE BILL WITH VISITORS

The basketball teams of Greenville High School opened their season yesterday afternoon when they engaged in a double header with the boys' and girls' teams from Grimsland. Both games showed the lack of practice by the local teams and the boys were lucky to emerge with a 27 to 20 victory in an overtime game while the local girls were on the short end of a 21-17 score.

Gibbs local forward opened the scoring after about two minutes of play with a nice shot from the side. Taylor followed with another before Grimsland could score from the foul line on a free throw. Three throws in succession gave the locals a 1-0 lead just before the half closed but J. Proctor sank two long ones to bring the score to 10-5.

The second half was nip and tuck throughout with each team showing poorly on both offense and defense. Greenville managed to hold the lead throughout the half until just before the whistle for the end of the game. A Proctor shot from behind the center of the floor to even the count and force the game into an extra period. With the score standing at 20-20 the locals got going for the first time during the game with a sustained offense that netted 7 points in the three minute period. During this period the visitors were held scoreless and the game ended with the score 27-20 in Greenville's favor.

The locals will play again Monday when they take on Winston-Salem in the high school gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

Cobb May Return to State College

Raleigh, Dec. 10—Charlie Cobb, one of the greatest tackles ever to play football at N. C. State College, has notified his close friend, Milo Stroupe, a member of this year's varsity, of his intentions to return to school in 1933.

Cobb was one of the south's outstanding tackles in 1930 and 1931. He was all-state both years and was also named on a number of all-southern selections. In addition, he received honorable mention for all-American.

The Wolfpack was without the services of Cobb this fall. He failed to return to school after securing a job with the New York State police force. Cobb captained the Wolfpack in 1931.

Three new schools will probably appear on the 1933 N. C. State College football schedule.

The Wolfpack has a tentative schedule calling for a game with Georgia on September 30 at Athens. The opening game on September 23 at Raleigh will probably be played by either Catawba or Lenoir-Rhyne.

State College athletic officials are also seeking to arrange a game with either Auburn or V. P. I. An inter-sectional game with some New York team, probably Manhattan, is also sought.

SPORT SLANTS

"No brief need be held for Southern Football supremacy in quite a few seasons antedating 1932," writes P. B. Williamson of Purvis, Miss., and a graduate of Auburn, "if we are concerned about the attempts this year to minimize Auburn's comeback or under-rate the general strength of Southern Conference teams.

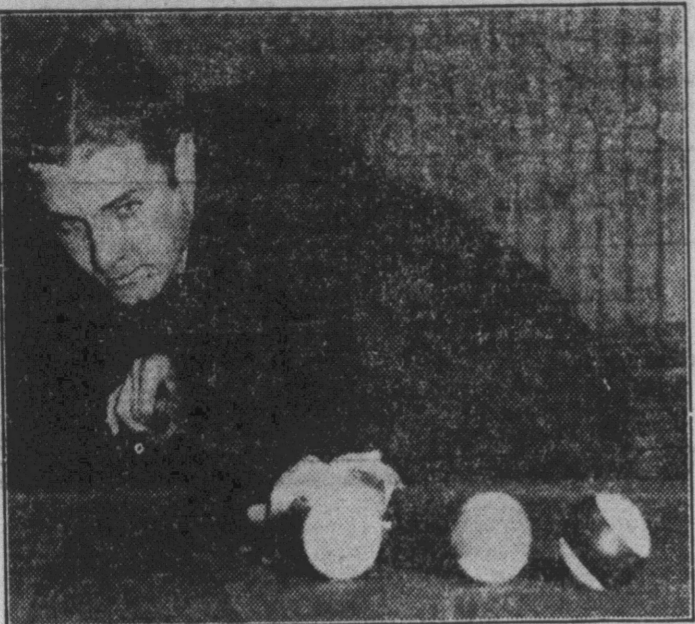

By comparison he shows that Auburn's great team played a tougher schedule than Colgate's unscathed outfit. He deprecates the tendency among bigger schools of the East and Middle West to fight shy of the top-notch Southern teams, adding:

"If a few more of the leaders outside of the South would discontinue putting as a regular thing minor college, Millsaps, Richmond, etc., on their annual schedule and would enter into the same sort of competition with the Southern Conference as that between the Middle West and East, there probably in time such spectacles as Rentner making All-American when Northwestern mopped up and not even All Big Ten when Northwestern was not so hot, would not be the order of the day—nor would it seem to be a necessity amongst our so-called leading authorities to place men on the All-American team chiefly because they played on Notre Dame or Pittsburgh or Ohio State, regardless of the consistency of those teams' schedules or their record for the whole season."

Six Unbeaten Teams
As for Auburn, her "Plainsmen" have been in the rarefied heights of football often enough and over a sufficient length of time to take her 1932 honors in becoming fashion. So far as I am aware, no one disputes the high ranking of the team this season or the class of its captain and ball-carrying star, Jimmie Hitchcock.

Auburn had no less than six underfeather teams before the war. Two of these teams, in 1908 and 1914, coached by Mike Donahue of Yale, were not even scored upon, although the 1914 outfit was held to two scoreless ties. Over a stretch that included three seasons, 1913 to 1915, Auburn's goal line and uprights were uncrossed.

Auburn in 1918 played a scoreless tie with Ohio State, which had Chick Harley as its outstanding star and inspired this doggerel, as furnished by Mr. Williamson:

"Eleven men on Harley's chest—
"Yo ho! and a bottle of rum.
"He was the best in all the West,
"He was as good as they come.
"But Tiger meat
"Is tough to eat;
"As they know who have nibbled at some."

Traffic Rules
The traffic regulations determined by the senior class went into effect last Monday. The object of the rules—to keep inter-class traffic moving smoothly—is being achieved in an admirable way with very few tardies or objections to the regulations. The monitors Nacmi Gaskins, Harold Sugg, George Willard and Tom Wilson believe that the early success of the new traffic system is due to the splendid cooperation evinced by practically all the students of the school.

An Essential Step
We are working toward Cooperative Student Government, in spite of a few cynics, whose efforts may be found elsewhere in this column, and some of us feel fairly near to the goal. However, there is one more situation we must overcome before we can truly be called self-governing. That is the conduct of our assemblies where sometimes the inattention and crude applause becomes obnoxious.

The situation is familiar—someone gets up to speak and is welcomed by boos and calls from certain individuals and as he speaks the inattention is sometimes deplorable. Some solution to this must be found by the students themselves. We submit the following suggestions:

First: That the student body be asked to smother such individuals by personal contact.

Second: That if this attempt fails a committee be formed with power to stop the disturbances. If both these methods fail then it is evident that student cooperative government in our school must fail. In view of the excellent co-operation exhibited toward the traffic rules however, we believe that a concentrated effort by the students will remedy the trouble.

Wins Contest
For the second time in succession Miss Rachel Scarborough's sophomore assembly won the attendance and punctuality contest. This assembly rated first among those of the high school with an average of 99.32 per cent for the last four weeks. As a reward the members will be guests at State Theatre to some specified picture. Mr. Porter's freshman assembly came second with attendance of 99.28, and Mrs. Picklesimer's senior home room, was third with an average of 99.97 per cent.

At Third street school Miss Green's seventh grade won the contest with an average of 98.08. Miss Hart's sixth grade had a high average of 97.83 at the West Greenville school; and in the Training school Miss McGee's third grade won with the unusually high percentage of 99.45.

This contest in attendance and punctuality closes every four weeks and the winners in each school are given passes to a show at the State Interest continues to be manifest in these contests and Supt. Ross and Mr. Walker are delighted with the co-operation and results.

Once a Baker, called James Johnson, of no Moore Size than a Herring, was in a Forrest, walking over Hill and Dail. He saw a Gully with Brooks running through it so he Tucker short cut across some Fields. He then saw some sights Whichard.

In a Park was a Gaylord standing by a Cannon. "What hot" cried the Lord James wished himself in Holland, where Rivers are streets. He was a Hardie lad but he could only Stuff his feet. "Have you any Nicholas?" Sailed the Lord.

"Wooten you like to know," Sailed our James as he picked up a corn Cobb to Pierce the Savage heart of the Coward and Slay him.

He carried the Cannon with him just in Kasey saw something to Keel. "This Evans things up," he Sailed.

Among the bearded selections for the N. C. State Conference this year, we find Harold Sugg, star debater, varsity traffic cop and clarinet player of our school, chosen as All-Conference Manager. So outstanding was he, that a second team manager was not even picked. His reliability, financial integrity, scholarship, wit, and versatility in the opinion of all the football squad make him almost, if not actually, a perfect manager.

No one knows who chose him, but it's not difficult at all to understand why such a boy as he was chosen.

Work On Opera Progressing
For the last two weeks much progress has been noted in the opera Practices which have been held each night in the high school auditorium. Under the direction of Miss Ona Shindler, who directs the songs and music; Mrs. Picklesimer, who directs the dancing and expression on the stage; ad Miss Powell, who prompts and arranges the acts; the choruses and cast of "The Marriage of Figaro" have been practicing together for several nights.

Besides the leads two choruses are in the opera whose songs and dances contribute a large share of interest and beauty to the performance. This chorus includes Louise Clark, Mildred Clark, Julia Foley, Helen Moore, Minnie Bell Craft, Eoline Sawyer, Helen Foley, Neta Turnage, Mary Belle Fleming, Joe Gaston, Eugene Hamric, James Simpson, Billy Staton, Ernest Lee Clark, Sam Dees, Walter Willard, William Adams, Douglas Butner and J. A. Joyner.

The Gypsy chorus is composed of the following: Ada Hearne, Ross Gurganus, Elizabeth Carico, Lucille Hill, Mary Rachel Teel, Lillie Williamson, Mable Ruth Williams, Tolle Williams, Robert Dixon, Glenn Brooks, William Brewer and John Bedinbaugh.

Besides the choruses four high-waymen are grouped in the opera. These are Carey Warren, Robert Dixon, V. C. Fleming and Fred Baggs.

Hot-cha-cha! Five more school days 'til Christmas holidays. Let's lend the library's red "Beard!" (Basketball to Football); "Seyam!" (From now on I'm the big chess). Some of the principals of the opera will be put in the spot; and later "put on the spot."
Instructor: "Give the electromotive series."
Chemistry Student: "Lincoln Pontiac Ford Dodge."
Football (in chorus): "Well, I guess we'll be among the unemployed until next fall."
Seniors pronounce the words: dynamometer, gasteropodous, hendecasyllable, kriegspiel, sanscul-littene, zumborok, sarcophagous. (year, that's right).

Why people use the expression "in the dead of winter": Because it is usually shortly after the holidays when everyone is dead broke.

OFFER MILK TAGS TODAY

Junior Woman's Club Sponsors Drive to Raise Money For Hungry

Today was "milk tag" day among members of the Junior Woman's Club of the city, and effort was being made to raise as much money as possible for the undernourished children of the city schools.

The tiny tags, reading "milk for starving children," were being offered at the price of ten cents each in every part of the city and people were urged to buy freely.

Some members of the club conducted sales yesterday, but the main drive was to be made today.

While the tags are being sold for ten cents, any amount of money will be accepted by the young women in behalf of the cause. Children of the poor, those who do not get sufficient food to maintain normal development, are given milk at the various schools each day, and much improvement in the life of the children has been noted in past years as a result of the movement to provide milk.

Although it was impossible to say how much money had been raised up to the noon hour today, it was believed the sum would probably exceed recent years in view of the serious situation prevailing in homes where men have been unable to strike a lick of work for months.

Members of the club were hopeful of making the campaign more outstanding than all others, and everybody has been called on to contribute as much as he possibly can.

Baldwin to Play Again Sunday

A large and appreciative audience at the Immanuel Baptist Church last night were thrilled and delighted with the charming organ recital by Dr. Minor C. Baldwin. Dr. Baldwin will also play a vesper recital at the Immanuel Church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This hour has been chosen so as not to interfere with the other churches, and it is hoped that the church will be filled.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Those political minded ones in the capital who are still surveying the Republican debacle of November 8 that saw the crash of so many old timers are asking themselves if Jim Watson of Indiana really means that he is through campaigning.

He said so after it became known that he had lost his seat in the Senate by more than 200,000 votes to Fred Van Nuys.

Many who know "Sunny Jim" as they call him on Capitol Hill, find it hard to believe that he's through with active politics. He has known defeat before, but he has always staged a comeback.

Ever since he first came to Congress in 1894 as a member of the House from the old sixth Indiana district he has been in the eyes of many persons a perfect picture of Old Guard Republicanism. He looks the part and acts the part.

His pursuit of the political game has had too much fascination and zest for him to give it up now. True, he has just passed his 68th birthday, but those who know him intimately believe that he has a long time before him yet.

Even if Watson does say he is through with campaigning he might change his mind in 1934. Indiana's other senator—Arthur R. Robinson—comes up for reelection then. He might find it hard to resist the temptation of making a bid for Robinson's seat.

There's another reason why Watson might be reluctant to retire from politics. If he quits it probably will mean the passing of an era in Indiana politics—an era in Indiana politics—an era that extends over a period of some 20 years and of which he was such a definite part. He is the last of the old guard Republicans in Indiana politics, the last of that one-time powerful group that seemed to make Indiana's Republicanism a certainty on election day.

The Republican organization in that state must build anew.

Supply Bill Reported

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Knocking $32,912,304 off the total asked by the budget bureau the House appropriations committee today reported the first supply bill for the session recommending that $961,416,597 be allowed the treasury and postoffice departments for the fiscal year.

The committee suggested continuation of 8-12 pay cut put into effect in the economy furlough plan but made no reference to President Hoover's request in the budget message for further 11 per cent reduction.

Besides being far under estimates the bill which was to be taken up immediately proposed allocation to two big departments of $194,831,233 less than they got for the current year.

These decreases from the total set forth in the body of the budget are not calculated after further reduction by the President.

The appropriations committee recommended $717,033,378 for the postoffice against $905,939,675 last year and $724,188,161 asked by the budget.

For the treasury it approved $244,383,219 against $350,308,158 this year and $270,200,740 estimated by the budget bureau.

Hines Before Committee

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—F. T. Hines, veterans' administrator, today informed the joint congressional committee studying veterans' legislation that adoption of a new national policy on ex-soldiers' benefit would bring concerted objection from many groups.

His testimony today was a continuation of the statement he gave the committee yesterday, and dealt mainly with analyzing the structure of the administration.

He pointed out that of $841,000,000 spent by administration in 1932 was only 37.8 per cent, or $317,410,000 given to operating expenses while 86.04 per cent went out in direct payments to veterans and 10.16 per cent constituted indirect benefits.

Carriers Must Post Bond

Raleigh, Dec. 10.—(AP)—T. B. State Corporation commission today ordered all motor vehicle property carriers operating under state franchises which handle C. O. D. shipments to post bond of $1,000 to insure proper accounting of collections on such shipments. The order is effective with sale of 1933 licenses to the transportation concerns.

At the same time R. O. Self, clerk of the commission and director of the motor vehicle department, called all motor vehicle carriers of the state to meet here for a conference Dec. 16 regarding supplement of their uniform tariff and also sent out notices of instructions as to how to file license applications for 1933.

Politics To Stir If Moses Writes G.O.P. Publicity

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Were the Republicans to decide, and it is rumored they might, to put Senator Moses of New Hampshire in charge of their publicity forces during the coming Democratic era, the game of politics would perhaps take on a new zip the next four years.

For this witty, wisecracking New Englander, defeated last November in his attempt to return to the Senate, could be expected to let loose in lively fashion.

He was a newspaperman before he became a Senator and knows all the tricks of the game.

For many years Moses has been a recognized wit and satirist in the Senate. He has in turn delighted, infuriated and cowed those on Capitol Hill with his sharp tongue and repartee.

What he could do in a job where these things count for much, anyone familiar with politics at all can guess.

Job To His Liking

And there's some very good evidence, perhaps, that Moses would find such a job very much to his liking at the moment.

His defeat at the hands of the baseball, sports-loving Fred H. Brown, a Democrat—although it was by the comparatively slim margin of 2,117 votes—left the Senator smarting.

He is not the kind of man who takes defeat easily. He had his heart set on another term in the Senate and worked hard to realize that ambition.

That he doesn't feel altogether resigned and philosophical about it, perhaps, is evidenced by his intimation that he was a victim of "concerted treachery."

A Good Opportunity

Considering all this then, and also keeping in mind that Moses is the man who described his insuring Republican brethren in the Senate as "sons of the wild jackass" and has at other times lashed out with his tongue in telling fashion, what could he do in a job where he could employ his talents at will?

He is on record as having said that he expects to be active "much more active than I ever thought in the near future."

Stock Market

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The stock market appeared somewhat wearied today by the effort of the advance late yesterday. Prices drifted irresolutely, little selling here and there and some of the leading shares lost moderately, but changes at the finish were mostly of negligible proportions, with few issues showing gains of fractions of points.

The closing tone was about steady.

Turnover for the short session was about 500,000 shares.

United States Steel, which has been under some pressure recently, dropped two points more.

Among the issues losing about a point were U. S. Steel, American Telephone, New York Central, Consolidated Gas and American Tobacco. Industrial rayon and Illinois Glass were among the few specialties to advance, closing nearly two higher.

"THE SCENE OF THE NATIVITY"

Throughout the passing centuries men have celebrated the Nativity of Christ in a variety of ways.

Among the Pennsylvania Dutch near the city of Philadelphia, there grew up a custom connected with the Christmas season of reconstructing the "Scene of the Nativity" in miniature. These Dutch people would carve out little houses representative of the Bethlehem homes, and the inn, and make the stable in which Christ was born, beneath it; little figures of the sheep, camels, horses, donkeys and cattle; the shepherds, figures of the angelic visitors, Joseph and Mary, and the Judean hill-side where abode "the shepherds watching their flocks by night." These scenes were placed in some room in their homes in connection with the Christmas tree, and their giving gifts to one another found rootage in God's gift to men.

An illustration of this manner of depicting the "Scene of the Nativity" transferred from a home among the Pennsylvania Dutch to a living room of another American home may be seen in the window of Quinn-Miller Co., East Fifth Street.

Citizens of Greenville and vicinity will wish to avail themselves of the opportunity of viewing this interesting representation of the "First Christmas."
