REJECT HERRIOT'S PROPOSAL TO PAY U. S. DEBT

Members of Chamber of Deputies Threaten To Resign If Payment Made

ONE GROUP IN INDECISION

French Foreign Affairs and Finance Committee Turn Down Proposal to Pay $19,261,438 Thursday With Reservations; Important Sections of New Group Also Expected to Vote Against Plan

Paris, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Foreign Affairs and Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today rejected Premier Herriot's proposal to pay with reservation the debt installment to the United States on Thursday.

The vote on the Foreign Relations Committee was 29 to 9 and the Finance Committee 32 to 9.

The Premier, with the backing of his council of ministers, had prepared a note for transmission to Washington declaring the intention of his government of paying the $19,261,438, and asking that the payment be counted as part of an eventual record.

The draft of the note asserted that unless a definite settlement of the debt issue can be made France will be unable to support henceforth the burden of a redeemed pledge which can only be justified by payment of reparations.

He submitted it to a joint meeting of the Foreign Affairs and Finance Committees, emphasizing the reservation possessed especially a political character. Then the committees went into session and voted.

Meantime, the Premier's new chamber group, the radical party, met without definitely deciding its attitude on the government's policy.

It was reported, however, that important sections of the group probably will vote against payment.

Several members threatened to resign if the group insisted that all must vote in favor of the government.

FORMER BANKERS TO RECEIVE SENTENCE

Brevard, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Final sentence of four prominent Transylvania County men, convicted of conspiracy in connection with the failure of the Brevard Banking Company, will be passed in Superior Court here Thursday, Judge N. A. Townsend, presiding, said Monday afternoon at the conclusion of pleas of the defendants in their efforts to escape prison terms.

The four defendants, Thomas H. Shipman, former president of the defunct Brevard Banking Company; Ralph R. Fisher, former Transylvania County attorney; J. H. Picklesimer, former chairman of the county board of commissioners, and C. R. McNeely, who was a member of the board of county commissioners and county accountant, will not receive fines, Judge Townsend said.

He also stated that he has made up his mind as to the sentences he will impose when court convenes Thursday.

Passing of sentence was deferred because two defense attorneys have an engagement to appear in the Supreme Court at Raleigh today and cannot return here until Thursday.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC CLOSES W. AND L.

Lexington, Va., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Washington and Lee University will be closed tomorrow on account of the prevalence of influenza.

Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, president of the university, said the move was made as a precautionary measure, and the school would be closed until January 4, the expiration of the Christmas holidays.

Forty-six cases of the malady were reported at the University today. Although the number had increased from eighteen since Saturday, Dr. Gaines said it had not reached an epidemic stage.

Payetteville, Ark., Dec. 13.—(AP)—A fire which threatened two blocks in the downtown business section was brought under control early today after it had destroyed two three-story buildings and damaged a third structure.

MAN KILLED ATOP TRAIN

Hickory Man Knocked From Train Roof By Bridge Near Danville, Va.

Danville, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Bud Bolton of Hickory, N. C., today had been added to the list of people killed by a bridge with an overhead structure so low that it does not permit a man to stand on a box-car of a train passing underneath.

Bolton was killed Sunday and was identified by a slip of paper in his pocket.

He was walking down the train on the roof of cars with his back to the bridge when he was knocked off and thrown between the cars.

Seed Crushing Shows Decline

Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Cotton seed crushed in the four month period August 1 to November 30 was reported today by the Census Bureau to total 2,106,473 tons compared with 2,246,497 tons in the same period a year ago, and cotton seed on hand at mills Nov. 30 totalled 1,432,942 tons compared with 1,553,507 tons a year ago.

NEW EVIDENCE IN SLAYING

District Attorney Claims Progress in Wanderhall Murder At Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 13.—Important new evidence was claimed by District Attorney Burton Pitts today in the Captain Walter Wanderwell's slaying.

Pitts said he would issue a murder complaint against William Dyer, 24-year-old Britisher.

He commented that this would prevent attorneys from seeking the release of Edward Lamm, Indian aviator, and his mechanic, Ralph Dunlap, both of whom have been held as material witnesses in connection with the death of the adventurer.

CITY ALL SET FOR YULETIDE

Thousands of Vari-Colored Lights Transform Streets Into Fairyland

With Christmas less than two weeks away, Greenville merchants were busy today putting in place last minute shipments of toys and other gifts that go to make the Yuletide season complete.

Virtually all leading stores have been decorated in keeping with the spirit of the year, and before the week is over hundreds of additional decorations will spring into being in various parts of the city as home owners join the movement to beautify the city during the holidays.

The final touch has been given to street decorations by the placing of the usual Christmas tree at Five Points. Atop the tree are four tremendous stars facing the intersecting streets, and these have done much to intensify the lighting usually in evidence at this point.

Vari-colored lights swing across every street intersection in the business district and they add joy to the hearts of the hundreds of people who visit the business area at night to gaze into brightly lighted windows to see what Old Saint Nick is offering this year.

Although a few porch decorations have appeared at this time numerous (Continued on Page Four)

LIGHT DOCKET IN COURT HERE

County Court Expected To Complete Work During Late Afternoon

With a comparatively light docket the regular weekly session of county court was in progress here today.

There were slightly over twelve cases awaiting consideration when court delved into the docket this morning and work was expected to be completed during the late afternoon. The charges range all the way from larceny to violation of the prohibition law.

The hearing of prohibition law violators is always pronounced at this season of the year and was expected to become more so during the Christmas holidays as increasing numbers of violators fall into the dragnet of the law.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT BURIED AT CHASE CITY

Oxford, Dec. 13.—A large assemblage of friends gathered Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Well to pay a last tribute of love and respect to their little son, Jack Wells, who was accidentally killed by an approaching car on Friday afternoon as he jumped from a wagon at his home. The service was conducted by Dr. R. R. McCulloch, pastor of the First Baptist Church of which the little fellow was a member. The Boy Scouts of Oxford and members of the Sunday school classes to which deceased belonged, served as honorary pallbearers.

NEIGHBORHOOD ROW WINDS UP IN KILLING

Elizabeth City, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Funeral services were held here yesterday for Quint Hewitt, 36, who was shot to death Saturday at South Mills, and Chester Barnes, 14, was held in jail charged with the slaying.

The killing, police said, rose from a quarrel between the two families. Barnes said Hewitt sent a message to the Barnes family asking the members to come to his home and the family complied. The boy said the Hewitt family had been "telling lies" about his mother and that "everybody got mad."

As his family started home, he said, Hewitt "kicked me out of the door."

He said he went home, got a shotgun, came back and, as Hewitt came out a door with a stick in his hand, shot him in the chest. The man died instantly.

Swine Work This year 6,266 hogs have been immunized against cholera for 379 farmers. During the past six years 36,660 hogs have been immunized against cholera for 2,357 farmers. This has meant a savings of more than $11,785 in professional fees alone to the farmers, not to speak of the benefits from preventing death among the hogs of these owners and of the possible spread of the disease to other hogs had no work of this kind been done. Hog cholera epidemics, or outbreaks as it is commonly called, is a thing of the past in Pitt County. Swine work in Pitt County does not stop with vaccinating. Six feeding demonstrations were conducted this year for six farmers. In these feeding demonstrations 119 hogs were involved that weighed 7,966 pounds when placed on feed. After being on feed 63 days they weighed 19,919 pounds, making a gain of 11,953 pounds. In making this gain the hogs consumed 43,754 pounds at a total cost of $318.73. The cost per 100 pounds was $2.76 based on present low prices of feed.

In addition to assisting farmers with their feeding and disease problems with hogs, we helped them to market thirty-three cars of hogs this (Continued on Page Four)

WINTER IN NEW ASSAULT ON AMERICA

Mercury Drop Forecast For South as Other Areas Suffer From Cold

Unrelenting except in spots, winter set up an assault on the nation today.

Temperatures in the east sagged and a mercury drop was forecast for States below the Mason-Dixon line.

The Mid-West, already blanketed by snow, was promised more, and with the mercury higher than yesterday the sub-zero reading brought suffering to the homeless.

Chicago was slightly over two degrees above zero, claimed the coldest period on record.

For the first time in history Sacramento, Calif., had ice skating on the natural lakes of the city parks, and snow fell in Brawley where there was no record of such weather before.

Snow also covered the grounds of Yuma, Arizona.

Raleigh, Dec. 13.—(AP)—J. L. Peak of Winston-Salem, who was sent to state prison in July, 1922, to serve 30 years for second degree murder, and who then escaped on October 29, 1928, was captured yesterday in Haughton, Michigan. Officers were sent to Michigan to return him here.

RAT CAMPAIGN ON IN COUNTY

Concerted Movement Is Now Underway To Exterminate Pests

By E. F. ARNOLD County Agent

More than one-half ton of poisoned rat bait is being distributed to 500 farmers this week. Farmers who did not get their packages Saturday should call for same at once or else they may be sold to someone else. Farmers who did not order any bait and would like to have some may secure same by calling at the county agent's office. A few surplus packages were ordered for those who overlooked placing their order or who might not have had an opportunity to place an order.

RAIN CAUSES LIGHT SALES

Marketing of Tobacco Here Slowed Up By Continuous Rainfall

With steady rainfall overnight light sales were in evidence on the Greenville tobacco market today. It was indicated that work would be completed during the morning hours.

The market yesterday sold 188,722 pounds of leaf for $21,355.32 at an average of $11.32 per hundred pounds. The bulk of the offerings consisted mainly of scraps.

With the bright leaf belt scheduled to close December 21, Greenville apparently was set to recapture the honor of the largest bright leaf tobacco market in the world. The market was nearly two million pounds in the lead of its nearest competitor the end of last week, and this was expected to be increased by the end of the season.

With the crop cut in half in this part of the country, Greenville has been able to outdistance all other rivals by drawing from a greater territory than ever before. Farmers from as far as Canada and Union County in the extreme western section of this State have sold their offerings here this season, augmenting millions of pounds brought in by growers from outside of this area.

The present rain was expected to enable growers to prepare the remainder of their crop for marketing between now and the closing date and sales here were expected to be fairly heavy for this season of the year.

Late News Flashes

Asks Hoover's Impeachment. Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The House of Representatives by a 361 to 8 vote today rejected a move by Representative McFadden for the impeachment of President Hoover on the grounds that he had betrayed the country on war debts.

The resolution charged the President had failed to obey and uphold the law passed by Congress forbidding cancellation in whole or part of war debts due the United States from foreign nations and has endeavored to nullify contracts existing between the United States and foreign debtors.

It was tabled on motion of Democratic House Leader Poy of North Carolina, with opposition coming only from Blanton (D) Texas; Griffin (N) New York; Patman, Sweeney of Ohio; Black, New York; Hancock, North Carolina, and McFadden himself.

The House had been stumped for a time by the suddenness of the

MAN ATTEMPTS TO SEE KAISER

Mentally Delinquent Arrested at Doorn And Sent Back to Germany

Doorn, Netherlands, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A well-dressed stranger caught in the former Kaiser's castle with a long dagger and pistol on his person was identified today by castle guards as a man who slipped into the castle grounds Sunday, but was ejected.

They said he had stayed at a local hotel since Saturday under the name of Hilsmink, but that the real name was supposed to be Eder.

The man said he was German and had a message for the former Kaiser from Adolf Hitler, Nationalist Socialist leader in Germany.

The police refused to say whether they found such a letter. The prisoner was taken by the police guard to the provincial capital of Utrecht from where it was believed he would be escorted to the frontier.

GIVEN HEARING IN MARTIN CO.

Local Federal Officer Charged With Accepting Bribe From Bootleggers, Remains in Martin County Jail; Will Face Hearing in Washington Probably at Next Term of Federal Court

Charged with accepting bribes from bootleggers and violation of the national prohibition law, Thos. E. Beaman, United States Commissioner and former minister, was bound over to the next term of Federal court at Washington under bond of $5,000 in a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner W. C. Manning at Williamston yesterday afternoon.

He was unable to provide bond and was remanded to jail at Williamston after expressing a desire to remain in the Martin county jail instead of being returned to Greenville.

Beaman was arrested by city and county officers here last Wednesday night after being caught in the act of accepting a bribe at a negro store and was lodged in the county jail under $10,000 bond to await hearing.

His arrest followed over a month of investigation by city and county officers after complaints had reached them that the federal officer had been accepting bribes from members of the illicit whiskey traffic for sometime with promise to protect them from city and county authorities.

Beaman waived preliminary hearing when arrested before the federal officer at Williamston and objected to examination of witnesses. Commissioner Manning, however, held that it was necessary for the witnesses to testify so that he might be able to determine the amount of bond.

A number of men from Greenville, including Sheriff Sam White, George Clark, chief of Greenville police, told an amazing story of Beaman's life history in this community within the last year involving him, they asserted, as the leader in one of the most daring efforts to thwart the law ever recited in this section.

The warrant was procured upon complaints made by Sheriff White, himself. It appeared that up until about three years ago Beaman was pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville at which time some trouble arose and he resigned. He was appointed United States Commissioner in 1929, and since that time and until recently, had the entire confidence of the officers of the law in Pitt county. Some six months ago the sheriff testified he and others became suspicious of Beaman and noticed that they were receiving less and less co-operation from him, and that they were falling down on too many attempts to round up the bootleggers in this area. The sheriff stated here today that something was paralyzing the results of law enforcement here and building a lawless organization.

After months the common suspicion seemed to the Pitt county officers to be well-founded, and then began a well-laid plan that was eventually to result in Beaman's arrest. The officers gained the confidence of a certain supposed law violator with whom Beaman was known to be making contact and secured themselves where they could see and hear the men when they met. After they had heard the conversations between Beaman and the man and had seen Beaman receive money which the sheriff had asked them to come out from hiding, asked Beaman what he was doing and was told he was collecting for insurance. His gun was taken by officers and he was lodged in the Pitt county jail. (Continued on Page Four)

BABE PLANS TO GO HOME

Yankee Slugger and Wife to Return to New York on Thursday

New Bern, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, Yankee slugger, and Mrs. Ruth, will leave tonight for their home in New York, cutting short by four days their annual ten-day hunting trip at Camp Bryan near here. Mrs. Ruth joined the Babe at camp Sunday and they had planned to remain until Saturday.

Yesterday they received a telegraphic call to return home Thursday.

The extreme wet weather which has made hunting out of the question caused them to decide to leave tonight.

Says Churches Against Liquor

Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Dees Pickett research secretary of the Board of Temperance and Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, today told the ways and means committee that his church was opposed to "the licensed liquor traffic whether that consists of beer, wine or stronger liquors."

Nearly every member of the House was on the floor when he introduced the resolution. The remainder rushed to the floor while the long document was being read. McFadden has long been a foe of Mr. Hoover, President of the United States, for high crime and misdemeanor and offer the following resolution.

Buying Barbara
 by Julia Cleff-Adams • Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: The law firm of Quentin, Lodely & Cane is about to crash. Lodely is a typical English "country gentleman," Quentin a bookish and retiring man of good breeding, Cane the office boy who has worked up to a partnership. It is Cane who has done the work of the firm. He and Lodely quarrel; he stormily orders Lodely out of his apartment, which is above the firm's offices, on the old Yarn Market of the town of Kings Mallard. Then he asks his mouse-like wife to call their nine-year-old daughter Lela.

Chapter 2
ANNIE TAKES A MESSAGE
 "Like to come up to Mrs. Quentin's with me?" asked Mr. Cane. "You can play with little Barbara while I'm busy with her father." "They said at school yesterday that Mr. Quentin was dead," returned the child pertly. "Well, he isn't, not yet. Don't you try and teach me my business, miss." It seemed to him, in his sour anger, that he would do anything, take

Mrs. Quentin and Mrs. Lodely endured each other.
 "How many times have I told you, Annie, to bring in letters on a tray? And if it's a telegram—yes, I see it is—you'll simply have to get on your things and take it after Mr. Cane. He's told me that he wants all telegrams brought to him at once, wherever he is."
 "And where be master to, then, ma'am?"
 "Gone up to see Mr. Quentin on Upper Mallard hill. He'll be walking slowly, he has Miss Lela with him. If you hurry, you may overtake him yet."
 In a garden full of late roses, Mrs. Quentin and Mrs. Lodely sat enduring each other.
 Mrs. Lodely endured Mrs. Quentin as the wife of her husband's senior partner, as an unsociable neighbor and as a bookish, reserved woman whom in years Mrs. Quentin never learned to know. Mrs. Quentin endured Mrs. Lodely simply as a noise; a maddening noise that persisted somewhere beyond the circle of her dedicated thoughts.
 "Do change places with me," urged Mrs. Lodely for the third time. "You ought to be relaxin' comfortably after not sleepin' at all for two nights."
 "Thank you, but I would rather not move," refused Mrs. Quentin also for the third time. "I can see Lionel's window from here and as soon as the nurse draws up the blind it will mean he is awake and wanting me and I must run in. If you will excuse me."
 Mrs. Lodely muttered sympathetically and lit another cigarette. She wished she could remember that this was a house lying under the shadow of death, but Lionel Quentin had been so many months dying and the disaster of the firm's collapse seemed so much more actual. In spite of herself she burst out with—
 "What I want to know is, what are we goin' to do? I mean, all Sam and I have got is my little income that I've been spendin' on myself. It won't go anywhere. Why isn't three hundred a year and Mark's doctor's fees have come to nearly that before now!"
 "Still, you are fortunate in having it," said Mrs. Quentin, her eyes upon the distant window.
 "Haven't you—you don't mind my askin'—haven't you anything at all of your own?"
 "Nothing. Less, even, than Lionel thinks."
 "How'd you mean?"
 "I mean that I lied to him the other day," explained Mrs. Quentin, her dark head still motionless any chance that remained to him, to build up again the fortune that had been snatched from his eager grasp. "I'm ready, daddy."
 He followed the child down the stairs and out of the house.
 Mrs. Cane began to cry as the door of her house closed upon them. She remembered her pride at having married a solicitor. Even if he wasn't in the Kings Mallard sense of the word, a gentleman. If only he would consent to hide with her in some big city where nobody knew them! She sat sniffing damply for nearly half an hour and was about to

SANTA CLAUS A BUSY TOWN—CHRISTMAS NEAR!

Santa Claus Ind., Dec. 13—(AP)—My, my, but Santa Claus is busy these days!
 There are so many children's letters to be read, so many visitors to be entertained, and so many gifts to be prepared, that all in all, there's not a minute to be wasted.
 And if it weren't for J. F. Martin, Santa Claus Postmaster, and help from the 60 persons in this village, Santa Claus would hardly get all the work done before Christmas eve.

Of course, you understand, this Santa Claus is only a town nestled in the southern Indiana hills. But it does a good share of the work for old Saint Nick for children from all parts of the nation write to Santa and the letters are delivered here.
 Many of their parents and even business firms send packages to this village and have them mailed just before Christmas so they will bear the "Santa Claus" postmark.
 Every day a bewhiskered Santa Claus in a red suit may be seen at work in the headquarters here wrapping toys and gifts and reading mail. He is Perry Ballou of Philadelphia, who came to Santa Claus in September to assist Postmaster Martin with the work that must be done before Christmas.

 Santa Claus however, is feeling the depression this year. Postmaster Martin says a bit sadly.
 Both Postmaster Martin and his assistants have read more sorrowful letters from the kiddies than usual. A little girl has written asking that she be sent some bed clothing for Christmas. That is all she wants. Other children will be satisfied if they get clothing and a little candy, they write.

Years of experience enabled Postmaster Martin to tell whether a child's letter contains its own thoughts, or has been dictated by parents.
 Santa Claus Ind., gained worldwide fame less than ten years ago. It all started when a California stamp collector suggested to Postmaster Martin, who has been on the job thirty years, that the name of the village be changed from the one word "Santaclaus," to "Santa Claus." The place is almost 90 years old.
 Last year, so much mail was sent here for re-mailing that a movement was started in Washington for re-naming the postoffice. So many protests were made, however, with newspapers writing editorials about it and people writing letters, that the effort was abandoned.
 Santa Claus is still on the map.

ABOUT TOWN

With the city decorated in keeping with the spirit of Christmas, people are beginning to turn their thoughts to what to give for Christmas presents.
 Already the important business of shopping early has gotten under way and this will continue unintermittedly until the Christmas holidays come.
 Greenville merchants have one of the most elaborate showings of Yuletide gifts in years and those who come from afar will not go wrong by making their selections here. Always on the alert to maintain the distinction of being the largest shopping center in this part of the country, local merchants will do everything in their power to meet public demands both from the standpoint of prices and quality.
 Santa Claus truly has invaded the city and the thousands of persons who with the business district only will be assured of getting the best, to be had.
 Finance charges America with being responsible for the serious situation prevailing among debtor nations at this time.
 Specifically, Premier Herriot lays the blame at the door of President Hoover's advocacy of the debt moratorium last year. He thinks the President encouraged hope of continued leniency and when the nations found they had to pay, they had to discard many policies which had been set up during the holiday.
 The situation is one of the most complicated that has faced the nations of the world since the ending of the war, but it is an honest debt, and must be paid if this nation's demands remain as they are at this time.
 The campaign to sell Tuberculosis Christmas Seals was being carried into every home and business house of the city today and it is hoped everybody will buy as freely as they can.
 The annual sale of Christmas Seals is of vital importance to thousands of men and women suffering from the dread disease of tuberculosis and money raised each year helps to pay for their treatment in the best hospitals of the country.
 People who buy seals use their money in the cause of suffering humanity—one of the greatest causes to which anybody can give of their resources.
 Shows in this city have always been above the average and the youth who are giving so freely of their time in an effort to dispose of the city's consignment hope the public will give as liberally of their means.
 The football season has opened with Greenville High and people appreciating this kind of sport are expected to attend the games and help the high school athletic association get off the red side of the ledger.
 The school has had a hard struggle in athletics for the last several years and had it not been for the liberality of business organizations in providing equipment to carry on play could not have been procured.
 The teams have rendered a good account of themselves in spite of the financial difficulty but they cannot be expected to render the type of service desired until they are given better support. Basketball is one of the finest kinds of sport and those who attend may be assured of spirited playing with many victories.
 The Salvation Army has started a stocking fund to raise money for a Christmas dinner and tree to be given in behalf of the poor and people have been asked to give as much as one dollar to the success of the project.
 The organization served a dinner to over seven hundred people on Thanksgiving and was heartily commended by the public for the splendid way the dinner was handled.
 Through the stocking fund Army workers hope to be able to carry joy to too many fireless that would

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—Governor Roosevelt's reference to his cottage at Warm Springs, Ga., as "the little White House" upon his arrival there for a short vacation has aroused speculation here as to just what extent he will use that place in the future to escape the cares of the Presidency.

During the period from 1922 to 1928, the President-elect spent practically half of his time in the little frame house he bought there.

After he was elected governor of New York he continued his visits, spending at least three weeks there in the spring and fall and stopping over at other seasons whenever he had the opportunity.

When he moves to Washington next March, Warm Springs will be only about twenty hours away.

A "Little White House"

It may turn out that his newly-built cottage, erected last year in a quiet spot on a hillside, will be a "little White House" in reality.

Other Presidents had such retreats. Woodrow Wilson was fond of retiring to Shadow Lawn, his home in New Jersey, to get away from the worries of the capital.

Mr. Hoover had his Rapidan camp for week-end trips and he carried on so much business there that it in fact became a "little White House."

However, those who know the President-elect intimately believe that his home in Hyde Park will be used as his principal retreat.

His known love for the sea, too, doubtless will prompt him to make many week-end excursions down the Potomac and out into near Chesapeake Bay. He turned to the water for his first recreation after he was nominated at Chicago last June.

Something New?

There have been suggestions that "F. D. R." might do something entirely new for Presidents and make use of a navy seaplane for visits to Hyde Park, which is near the Hudson River.

This suggestion was occasioned by the governor's flying to Chicago to accept his nomination for the Presidency.

The chances of his doing such a thing, however, would seem remote for the risk is too great for a President, and the difficulties are too many.

Hints on Contract Bridge Up-to-Date

A DOUBLE PSYCHIC By Tom O'Neill. Whatever the demerits of psychics, they give a great thrill when successful. When a vulnerable opening bidder offers something he doesn't have and his partner, not realizing that the start of the auction was deception, puts in another psychic, there is likely to be a heavy penalty.

Bridge score table with columns for NORTH, WEST, EAST, SOUTH and various card counts.

Woods lacked the quick trick strength for an opening bid, vulnerable or non-vulnerable, but he feared the opponents might have a game in hearts. Having a club suit for refuge in case spades should develop, he boldly bid one heart.

West doubled, having more than the necessary strength for the purpose. A double was the best thing for him to employ at the time, since he had no long suit. It would have resulted in a game contract or a strength pass by east but for north leaping into battle with two spades, one more than necessary.

North reasoned from the double and the looks of his own cards that west and east had game possibilities. He thought if he made a forcing take-out over the double, east would be deterred from bidding. East was scared into a pass.

South was delighted at the force and promptly assisted the spades to three. After a pass by west, north was a bit fearful of his bluff force and bid four hearts, not suspecting the opening psychic. East passed as usual and south went to four spades. West doubled and north and east passed. After due consideration of the distributional strength of his hand south redoubled.

East led a heart, and it was trumped in the south hand. The ace of spades was then forced out. West here could have taken his ace of diamonds, but decided, rather than to set up the king, to force dummy's trumps. He led another heart. After ruffing it in the south hand the declarer led to the ace of clubs and back to the king of clubs. After the enemies' last trump was taken out three diamonds were discarded from the north hand on South's clubs.

No possible defense could have prevented west and east from an easy game in hearts. It would have taken more nerve than what was required for the psychics for north and south to have started bidding spades had the opposition opened the auction with hearts.

HIGH POINT FACTORY GOES ON FULL TIME

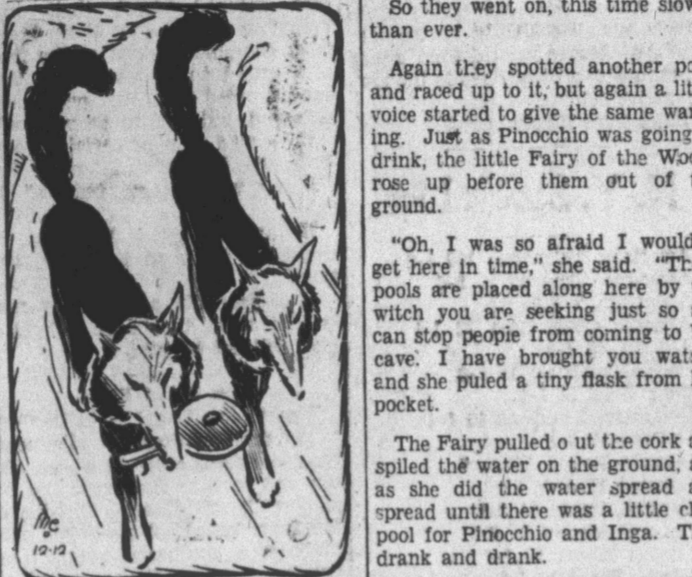

High Point, Dec. 13.—The Hillcrest Silk Mill today inaugurated operations on its full-time schedule and will add from 50 to 75 weavers during the week. Other help will be added as the various departments reach their capacity schedule after operations heretofore somewhat curtailed. The mill normally employs 400 to 500 workers.

SANTA and the MAGIC DOLL by SIGRID ARNE

SNOPSIS: Iga and Pinocchio, two dolls from Toyland, are directed by a gold mirror to the cave of a witch who has changed Iga into an old doll. A woods fairy changes them into red foxes to help them in the search.

Chapter VII THE BEWITCHED POOLS

The trip became much easier for Iga and Pinocchio after they had been changed into red foxes. They loped along rapidly. But all the while Iga wouldn't let go of the tiny gold mirror. She carried it now in her teeth. As first they raced as fast as they could go, up and down hills and across fields in just the path the little mirror had shown. But the farther they went the thirstier they became. And they never saw a river or a lake or even a little pond. Finally Pinocchio stopped.

Iga and Pinocchio, changed now into red foxes, loped along rapidly up the trail to the cave of the witch.

"Iga, I'm so thirsty I can't go any farther," he said. And just then they saw a little pool of water. Pinocchio rushed up to it, but just as he touched the water with his red tongue a little voice said:

"Who drinks of me Will henceforth be A prisoner here For many a year."

"Stop, stop," cried Iga. "That's (Tomorrow—The Witch's Cave)

Scanning New Books

By JOHN SELBY. New York, Dec. 13.—Technically, of course, Mary Austin's "Earth Horizon" is an autobiography. And it is difficult to say what additional it is, although it is obvious that few autobiographies are so overflowing with richness as this. The facts of the Austin life are interesting enough, but quite outside the value of the book. Perhaps the value lies chiefly in the writer's uncanny ability to assimilate the essence of nearly everything with which she had contact, to digest everything intellectually and emotionally, and to return it to the world clothed in words that no one can misunderstand.

The flavor of this book may only be suggested. This, for example, about the post-boom days in Los Angeles: "The unwatered palms had a hurt but courageous look, as of young wives when they first suspect that their marriages may be turning out badly." Or this: "In San Diego, in those days... if you took a handful of the top soil, half of it hopped out and the rest of it ran through your fingers."

About Mary Lincoln. Carl Sandburg, with his biography of Abraham Lincoln behind him, now sets forth to tell the truth as he sees it about Mary Todd Lincoln. "Mary Lincoln, Wife and Widow," is one of the few intelligible stories about this character. Sandburg makes no attempt to gloss over the behavior of his unfortunate subject. Rather, he describes her as she was, and then tells why she was so.

TWO ARRESTED IN CIGARETTE THEFTS

Henderson, Dec. 13.—Jim Hill is at liberty under $3,500 bond and Lee Wall is in jail in default of $2,000 bond following their arrest over the week-end in connection with cigarette theft. Both are white men. He case was called for a preliminary hearing before Recorder R. E. Clements in county court today, but was deferred until next week when Sheriff J. E. Hamlett asked a continuance to obtain further evidence. He said today he expected additional arrests.

The sheriff said the two men are suspected in connection with the recent robbery of some thousands of cigarettes from the State Grocery Company's wholesale store here.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES. New York, Dec. 13.—Whatever market conditions may be, Christmas shop windows were never more alluring. Perhaps because the harder it is to get customers, the more fetching the bait must be.

The artistry of the window decorators continues to grow. Some of them achieve fame in commercial circles, and it seems inevitable that some day their work will cease to be anonymous so far as the public is concerned. Then we shall see placards announcing: "Window by Robert El Urban."

The art owes much to Norman Bel Geddes, by the way. Some years back the scenic designer sold a Fifth Avenue shop on the idea that he could give their displays more appeal by proper settings. He employed stage principles, and the goods took on character against backgrounds atmospherically appropriate as well as beautiful.

Other shops were quick to take advantage of his lessons.

Lady Luck Grins

With some friends who sought those delightful German Christmas cards, I went into a Yorkville shop. They fell to admiring some impressive steins while I, aimlessly waiting, stuck a coin into a slot machine and pulled the lever. Astonishingly, merchandise checks poured from the machine like bounty from the horn of Amalthea.

One of the checks went back in (machines which yield only merchandise checks are not outlawed here, if you have scruples about such things) and there came another rain of winnings. Again and again—a half dozen straight hits!

There must have been something wrong with the machine. Only one thing to do—load the crowd with steins, much to the disgust of the old fellow and his frau who run the shop. He had no money coming. Mournfully he inquired of his wife, so we could hear:

"How many Christmas cards did they buy?"

"Two," she said meekly.

With a snort he handed us our steins and let loose a flood of vehement German which I'm still glad none of us could understand.

Gotham Glimpses

Ear-grawling wind sweeps the streets at 4 of a bitterly cold Sunday morning. The few taxi drivers on Madison Avenue corners shiver in their cabs. Here and there a fleeting pedestrian edges close to the buildings. From around a corner a weakly pleading voice is almost lost in the whistle of the wind—"Paper, mister?"

Huddled close to the wall is the woman selling papers. Her thin face is ashen gray from cold. She has just a worn shawl to guard against this weather. What is she doing out on such a morning? She can't sell any more papers?

She hopes she can. She tries a laugh but it cracks like brittle glass. The people who let her stay with them on Second Avenue have only two beds in one room, she explains. The children are in one. The man gets up to go to work at 5:30; then she goes "home" to get some rest. "Thanks, mister, thanks." "Paper, mister?"

ABSOLVED OF BLAME IN DEATH OF YOUTH

New Bern, Dec. 13.—At an inquest held here by Coroner G. M. Henderson during the week-end into the death of James Green, nine-year-old negro boy, who died at a local hospital of injuries sustained several hours previously when he ran into an automobile driven by G. M. Ford, a traveling salesman, on the Kingston highway near the Jasper colored school, a coroner's jury rendered the verdict that the accident was unavoidable and Mr. Ford was exonerated of all blame.

Mr. Ford testified that he was driving from Kingston to New Bern. In passing the colored school he noticed that the school was being dismissed for the day and he asserted he used the customary precautions in slowing up. However, Green is said to have jumped into the side of the car, apparently not noticing its approach.

THOMPSONS TO LEAD DUKE CAGE JAUNT

Durham, N. C., Dec. 13.—On the Thompson brothers, Jim and Herb, the only two regular members of Duke's 1932 cage team who are back this season, will depend the Blue Devils' chances for a favorable showing in the three-game pre-season trip they will take to Baltimore and Washington this week.

The Thompson boys, who will be invading familiar ground when they go with the team this week, having formerly starred as members of the Western high team of Washington, are the nucleus around which Coach Eddie Cameron is building his quint this fall. Jim, the All-Southern second team forward last season, has been shifted to center and will be seen at that post this season. Herb, completely recovered from an ankle injury that handicapped him last year, is back at his old guard post. Reserves for most year's team are favored for the other positions on the team and, with all sophomores ousted from a chance on the starting crew, are having a merry battle among themselves. The two forwards jobs are a three-cornered fight between Wendell Horne and Henry Lewis, lettermen reserves from last year, and Charlie (Squee) Hayes, non-letterman reserve from the 1932 team. The three are alternating at the posts.

To pair with Herb Thompson at guards are Fred Lewis, non-letterman reserve of last year, and Phil Weaver, who saw plenty of action as a sub last season. With Jim Thompson at center, this crew will form Duke's starters on the trip this week. It will be a quintet of accurate-shooting, fast-working scrappers.

The most likely sophomore bets are Frank Pargoe, six-foot four-inch center, and Sam Bell, mid-forward. Polack forward; Keown, May, Clark, and Bowen, guards, other sophs, are still in the race and are making determined bids for places.

The Devils will leave here Wednesday night. Their first game is with Baltimore Thursday night, and on Friday and Saturday they will be in Washington meeting Georgetown and George Washington respectively.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

After a game in Ann Arbor this season, writes Harry Salsinger, who covers plenty of sporting territory for the Detroit News, a young reporter sat in the press box pounding out his story. He stopped and engaged in thought for a few minutes then turned to a writer sitting near him and asked:

"What else can I call this team? I've called 'em 'Wolverines' and 'Maize and Blue' and 'Kipkeners' a hundred times in this story that I don't want to repeat. What other name is here?"

"Why don't you do something unique and original, something that would knock your readers cold?" responded the other writer.

"What's that?"

"Call 'em Michigan."

"I guess I'll have to," sighed the key-pounder.

Appropos of which Mr. Salsinger cites the wide as well as wild range of nicknames fastened upon football teams the country over, to such an extent that it often takes a detective to find out just who are the "Horned Frogs" or the "Wildcats" or "The Golden Avalanche."

Whereupon Mr. Salsinger is quite "thankful for one thing," namely, "that The Associated Press continues using the correct names of teams in sending broadcast football scores week."

But without these characteristics of the jungles, or the elements of the rainbow, would it still be college football? There has been enough de-emphasis this season, sufficient pain and suffering in the region of the collegiate box-offices without depriving the boys of their nicknames.

Money In Mat Game

There is nothing obscure about the reason impelling a number of star college players, where possible to take up professional football. They make more money in the mat game, says George (Wildcat) Wilson, former University of Washington All-America halfback, who has tried both sports.

Wrestling, George points out, is an all-year round sport, whereas the pro gridiron season is a hot and more hazardous. Wilson has so far engaged in more than 300 mat bouts and made a tour of New Zealand. He weighs an even 200 pounds now, twenty-five more than when he was running wild for the Huskies, and wears a No. 18 collar.

Sweet On Sonnenberg

If anyone wants another nomination for all-time tackle, Wilson is willing to put forward Gus Sonnenberg, the robust former Dartmouth star who spent some time on the professional gridiron before becoming a syndicate enough rasher to be a "syndicate" champion.

Sonnenberg's flying tackle was a factor in popularizing the circus stunts which featured the revival of the grappling business. When

U. N. C. FROSH PLAN TO PLAY '13' GAMES

Chapel Hill, Dec. 13.—The Carolina freshman quint will play 13 games with leading high prep and frosh teams, opening with the Wake Forest freshmen here January 12, according to a schedule released today by Assistant Graduate Manager George E. Shepard.

Seven games will be played at home, including all the Big Five freshmen teams. Mount Pleasant Collegiate Institute, Oak Ridge Institute and Central High of Washington. The Tar Babies will have one good trip meeting the Virginia Frosh, Woodberry Forest and Augusta Military Academy.

Coach Crayton Rowe of the Carolina boxing team is expecting Furches Raymer back in college after Christmas, but Peyton Brown has written that he will be unable to return on account of lack of funds.

Raymer's return will further strengthen the Tar Heels in the lighter weights for he is light enough to make the 125-pound class, yet heavy enough to go at 135, and he showed a real promise in his first season with the varsity. He has been staying at home in Statesville, and is reported to have kept good training.

Brown's announced decision to continue at his job in New York City leaves the Tar Heels usually weak in the upper weights. He won all his fights by knockouts in his freshman year, and made a good record as varsity light heavy last year, although he spotted his opponent 10 pounds in practically every bout. He was due for an ever better season in the newly created 165 pound class for that is his natural weight.

CAGERS WILL OPEN PLAY AT STATE FRIDAY

Raleigh, Dec. 13.—Basketball will get its official 1932-33 start at N. C. State College Friday night when the Red Terrors meet Atlantic Christian College in a pre-season game scheduled for the Frank Thompson gym at 7:30.

The game was originally scheduled for Thursday night but, according to Dr. Ray R. Sermon, coach and athletic director at State has been switched to Friday due to examinations being held at the West Raleigh school this week.

State opened its 1932 schedule last winter with the Christian quint and won 32-12.

Following the game Friday, Coach Sermon will dismiss his squad until after the Christmas holidays. He is expected to resume work around December 27.

The Red Terrors will begin their regular schedule January 4 with George Washington University in Washington. The following day the State cagers will play Catholic University also in Washington. Seventeen games are scheduled for the Terrors in 1933.

There will be little practice in the State camp this week on account of examinations. Coach Sermon has been with the cagers for two weeks however, and has drilled them intensively. Gilbert Clark, senior guard and Ralph Johnson, senior forward, have showed unusual form during the two weeks. Both were regulars last winter and are expected to be the big shots on the Terror quint this year.

Teachers Play Goldsboro Tonight

The Teachers will open their basketball season tonight against the Goldsboro Red Shields. The Red Shields will present a strong outfit as an opening test for the locals.

Coach C. K. Beatty will present a well-balanced cage team with whom the basketball fans of this section are familiar. On the squad are former Greenville High School stars, Tucker King, Eason Burnett, Woolard and Deal, while among the newer faces we find Barrett, Lemnace and Jolly.

The game will be called at eight o'clock in the campus building.

BEAMAN IS BOUND OVER TO FEDERAL COURT

It came out that the officers had seen and heard much damaging evidence. They stated they saw him collecting weekly $2 fees from certain patrons of his heard him say 75 men were paying him each week that being a commissioner he was in position to protect his clients and to see that Pitt and Greenville officers did not interfere. They also said they heard him say that men in his organization could not talk that Jesse Barnhill of Bethel and John McLawhorn of Ayden had and were both "bumped off."

Manning asked Beaman after each man's testimony. If he had anything to say. Each time his answer was in the negative, until he was asked if he had any suggestion about his bond and he replied that money being so tight, he would appreciate a bond low enough to enable him to return to his family and a business he has Manning's answer was a bond of $5,000 which Beaman was not able to make at that time, and being given his choice between going to jail in Pitt or Martin county, he chose the latter in jail where he is today.

Commissioner Manning took occasion to say the following to the accused man: "I am sorry for your family. I understand you have an excellent family. But you have already embarrassed them. There is no justification in winking at this offense. You have been a traitor to your country and violated the laws of your state and discredited every good thing, and endangered the lives of Pitt county people and foisted a gain upon its peaceful citizenship. Men have been hanged for treason who haven't violated as many laws as you have.

"You are a man of intelligence. You were chosen by your government for a position of responsibility and have fallen down. It is men like you who have broken down respect for the law. There is no comparison between what an ordinary bootlegger does and what you have done."

Stock Market

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The stock market continued to back and fill listlessly to lay with prices developing a light undertone. Professional traders seemed somewhat discouraged by a lack of response, but brokerage opinion was cheerful.

American Telephone lost about a point and fractional declines appeared in U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, Allied Chemical and others.

In the rails Pennsylvania turned over in some volume at fractional advances. General Electric and Eastman Kodak were moderately firm. Stocks steadied lightly in the late trading. Losses raised from minor fractions to a point or so in the lower active shares.

Sales were 780,000 shares.

Liquor Smugglers Allowed Bail

Wilmington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Nine men, one of them said to be a former British naval officer, were bound over to Federal Court at a hearing today on charges of conspiracy to violate the tariff act of 1890 by landing a cargo of whiskey on a North Carolina beach from the British vessel Zeelandia.

U. S. Commissioner Porter Huffman fixed bail for the men but attorneys said they would not be able to give bond immediately.

Bail for C. C. Holiday, master of the ship said to have served as a lieutenant commander in the world war and chief mate of the British freighter Matura, was fixed at $3,000.

At Wessell and Rallie Mix found on the vessel were also granted bail of $3,000 each.

Bail for J. C. Brooks of Seaside, member of a well known Brunswick county family, was fixed at $1,500, while five Craven county negroes hired to unload the liquor, were granted $300 bail each.

The spring term of Federal court, the next to be held, is scheduled for April.

Cannon Strikes At Wets.

Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Prohibition leaders rallied behind Bishop James Cannon Jr. today to present to the House ways and means committee the argument that Congress is without power to fix alcoholic content of beverages.

Speaking to the committee members grouped about their high horseshoe table the Southern Methodist churchman stood at the front of a crowd that pressed so tightly against the doors that one woman collapsed and had to be removed.

"The mad rush of certain groups to legalize beer reminds one of Nero fiddling while Rome burned," he said.

He argued that if beer was intoxicating it would be unconstitutional. It is generally admitted by men on the street that beer without a kick will not be sold.

New Relief Plans.

Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—tentative draft of domestic allotments for relief plans covering wheat, cotton and tobacco and hogs, and replacing the stabilization division of the Farm Board act was made public today as the basis of farm relief hearings by the House agriculture committee.
