Short Vacation Planned For U. S. Congress For The Christmas Holidays

THREE DAYS NOW LIKELY

Too Much Business And Desire of House Democrats to Put Through Beer Bill Given as Cause for Shortening Vacation From Two Weeks; Probably Adjourn Friday Before Christmas

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Congress is not going to have much of the Christmas vacation this year if plans of party leaders prevail. Three days instead of the usual two weeks' rest appears the most the Senators and Representatives will get. The reason: Too much business to be done, and the House Democrats want to put the beer bill through before the recess. Some rumbling is heard, but most of the members are in general agreement to stay in session until Friday before Christmas Day on Sunday and to reconvene the following Tuesday.

Sound Banking Seen As Remedy For The Present

Asheville, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—"Strict adherence" to the fundamental principles of sound banking as a solution to present-day banking ills was advocated by R. M. Haines, president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company.

Prepare For Press Banquet

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—With food and favors arriving almost hourly, Raleigh news men and women were busy today completing last-minute details for the Live-at-Home dinner of the State North Carolina Press Association at State College. The dinner celebrates three successful years' operation of the Live-at-Home program of Governor Max Gardner, and Mrs. Gardner will be guest of honor.

Gives Rates On Christmas Cards Sent By Mails

In view of the confusion existing relative to the rate of postage on Christmas greeting cards. Postmaster H. R. Mumford today attempted to clarify the situation by issuing the latest ruling of the Postoffice Department.

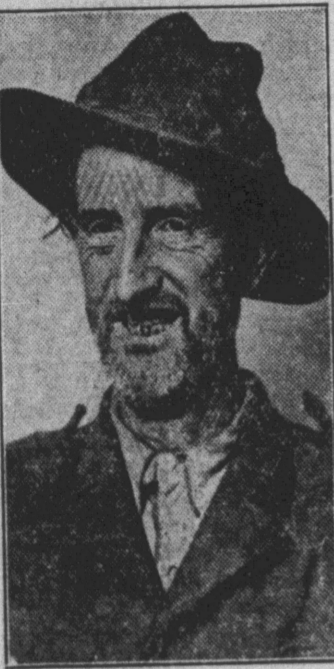

The postmaster said he had received scores of calls recently regarding the amount of postage required for Christmas greetings and that he hoped to speed up the dispatch of mail by making public announcement of the existing rates.

Printed greeting cards mailed under cover of unsealed envelopes, he said, are chargeable with postage at the third-class rate of 1-2 cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces, regardless of whether addressed for delivery through the postoffice boxes or general delivery or by city or mail carrier; the one-cent drop letter rate applicable to non-letter carrier offices does not apply to such cards in unsealed envelopes.

Printed Christmas and other greeting cards in unsealed envelopes may bear a simple write inscription not in the nature of personal correspondence such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," etc., together with the name and address of the sender and of the addressee without subjecting them to more than the third class rate.

Greeting cards, sealed or unsealed, he stated, bearing written messages other than the simple inscriptions above mentioned, as well as all cards sent in sealed envelopes are chargeable with postage at the first-class rate of three cents an ounce or fraction of an ounce except when the one-cent drop letter rate applies.

TWO BLACKS TO DIE FRIDAY

Two White Men are Granted Executive Clemency on Eve of Execution

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Two negroes today were being prepared for electrocution at State Prison tomorrow, while two white men who had been scheduled to die had been granted executive clemency. Warden H. H. Honeycutt said that everything was in readiness for the electrocution of Alec Grier, convicted in Gaston County for the murder of a filling station operator and Harvey Wallace, of Lee County, for the killing of a Cumcock storekeeper. Tyre Taylor, executive counsel, has investigated all capital cases for the governor, said: "I see no reason why I should recommend any change in their cases," when asked about the negroes.

HOMES DOLL UP FOR YULETIDE

Christmas Decorations on Decided Increase in Residential Districts of the City.

The decorating of homes for the Yuletide season got under way in earnest in Greenville the middle of the week and numbers of residences in various parts of the city today presented an entrancing appearance with brightly lighted Christmas trees.

Decorations of this kind were expected to hit their full stride during the last of the week and the first of next week will find scores of homes beautified for the coming of the holiday season.

In the business district, decorating has practically been completed, but some merchants are confining their attention to extending the beautification plans. Many lights were added to store fronts the beginning of the week and many more were expected to appear before next week.

Additional stars have been added to decorations along the streets in the business district, and the thoroughfares from the courthouse to the western end of Dickinson avenue are brightly lighted for the coming of Old Saint Nick. Four enormous stars shine brilliantly from the top of the Christmas tree erected atop the traffic sign at Five Points. This is the most conspicuous of the decorations erected through the Water and Light Commission and has transformed Five Points into a thing of beauty.

People who have not decorated are urged to get busy and do so at once so that the city may present even a more attractive appearance with the coming of visitors for the (Continued on Page Six)

BRITAIN PAYS HER WAR DEBT INSTALLMENT

Installment of $95,550,000 Reported Paid as Date of Expiration Arrives

London, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Great Britain today paid its war debt installment of $95,550,000 to the United States.

FLOOD MENACE LEAVES SOUTH

Rivers in Three States Recede with Abatement of Heavy Rain-fall

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Rivers golden with mud washed over the low lands of Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi today but slackened rainfall promised abatement of the flood menace. The twin streams that went out of the banks into the bottom lands at Rome, in north-west Georgia, were receding, and while rivers still were boisterous in Alabama and Mississippi, the rise was not regarded with apprehension.

LEAF SALES ARE HEAVIER

Offerings Reported Larger on Market Today as Rainfall Ceases.

Rain continued to hold up the marketing of tobacco here yesterday, but sales were reported as heavier today with lack of precipitation last night and today. The market yesterday sold 90,668 pounds of tobacco for $9,244.39 at an average of $10.16 per hundred. It was revealed this morning in the report of sales made by K. W. Cobb, market supervisor. Without further rainfall during the remainder of the week sales were expected to show a pronounced gain over the first part of the week. The offering of scrap tobacco was in the ascendancy here today and will continue to be the remainder of the season. With the markets of the bright leaf belt scheduled to close December 21, growers were expected to attempt to market the remainder of their crop as rapidly as possible between now and the closing date. They have been impressed with the importance of expediting marketing operations since the decision to close before Christmas, and while some results were obtained, rain the last week has cut sharply into their activities. While the bulk of the crop has already been disposed of there yet remains large quantities of scrap tobacco to be sold and with clear weather the pilgrimage to the local market the next several days was expected to show a decided increase.

ADOPT NEW FOREST PLAN

Program Designed to Meet Requirements of State Outlined by Committee.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—A forestry program designed to meet the needs of the eight Southeastern States in the Southeastern Council has been adopted by the organization's forestry committee. It was announced here today by Col. J. W. Fernelson, North Carolina Forestry Chairman. The program covers such subjects as the Extension of Forestry Education, Land Utilization Surveys, Tax Equalization, Fire Protection and Control, and Federal Recognition of Landowners engaged in the practice of forestry as entitled to the same loans and assistance as are accorded those engaged in other branches of agriculture. The program follows: (1) Extension of the teaching (Continued on Page Six)

SANTA CLAUS COMING HERE

Patron Saint to Appear on Streets of City on Wednesday, December 21

Santa Claus himself is coming to Greenville—he is leaving his gigantic workshop up near the North Pole in charge of his chief assistant, Jacky Claus, in order to make this trip to Greenville. On the afternoon of Wednesday, December 21, at 1 p. m. he will appear on the streets in the downtown district. Yes, sir, the real Santa Claus himself is coming to Greenville—and he is as fat and rosy cheeked and as jolly as you ever imagined.

Santa Claus has asked that the children of the neighboring towns and countryside be especially invited to come in and see him and march with him. Certainly, Santa Claus will have some presents to give away. At 2 p. m. Santa Claus will be at the State Theater and have a "food matinee." Those bringing food will be admitted free to the theater by Santa Claus. All the food collected by Santa Claus will be turned over to the Salvation Army by the manager of the State Theater for distribution to the needy.

Former Mayor a Suicide

Fayetteville, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Bert Jones, 40, clerk of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway depot at Hope Mills, seven miles from here, was found shot to death in a warehouse there today. Officials said he had committed suicide. Jones walked through a store at Hope Mills and into a warehouse. A shot was heard, and when bystanders investigated he was found dead. He had taken off his clothes and placed them on his bed nearby. He left also in a neat pile by his side a letter addressed to his wife and relatives. His widow and two children survive. He was formerly mayor of Hope Mills. (Continued on Page Six)

J. F. BARWICK DIES IN AYDEN

Prominent Business Man Succumbs to Stroke of Paralysis Last Night

J. F. Barwick, one of the most prominent business men of Ayden died at his home there last night after suffering a stroke of paralysis yesterday morning. He was 59 years of age. Funeral services were conducted from his late home this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. W. H. Brunson, pastor of the Christian Church and burial was made in the Ayden cemetery. Mr. Barwick had been associated with the business life of the community for many years and news of his death was received with profound shock. He was universally liked because of his genial manner, and his loss to the community which he served with such devotion over a long period of years will be very pronounced. He is survived by his wife and several children.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC SWEEPS OVER MARION

Marion, Dec. 15.—More than two hundred people have been stricken by an epidemic of influenza that has been sweeping over Marion during the past few days, according to Dr. Guy S. Kirby, county health officer. It started lightly more than a week ago, but was not considered very serious until a few days ago when it rapidly began to assume grave proportions. Cases are being reported from all over town and parts of the county.

Supply Bill Reported

Washington, Dec. 15.—(AP)—An order drastically cut supply bill carrying only $43,192,000 for the Department of Interior next year was reported to the House today by the appropriations committee. This year that department had $67,183,000. The slash was contributed to both by the House and the committee, the former recommending $46,083,000 and the latter cutting $2,831,000 off of that. Supplying treasury, post office supply measure pending before the House, expenditures recommended for the 1934 fiscal year are $218,822,000 less than the current year and that cut of two bills carrying (Continued on Page Six)

New York Bandits Employ Tear Gas Bombs In Staging $15,000 Robbery Of Bank

SOLONS GIVE NEW YORK AID

Legislature Passes Bill Enabling City to Lop $40,000,000 Off Budget

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The State Legislature put out a steady hand to keep New York City on its financial feet. An extraordinary session acting swiftly in early hours of the morning passed bills enabling the city to lop $40,000,000 off its 1933 budget. Earlier it had acted on Governor Roosevelt's request for a move toward re-organizing the government of the metropolis to obtain greater efficiency and economy, a suggestion also advanced by Alfred Smith. The Legislature created a bi-partisan committee to examine the proposal.

TOSS BOMBS AT PURSUERS

Five Men Hotly Pursued by Automobile Policemen after Robbing Manhattan Bank Early Today; Police Cars Careen Madly Through Crowded Bronx On Trail of Criminals

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Five robbers held up a branch of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company at 169 Street and St. Nicholas Avenue shortly after the bank had opened for business today and fled with $15,000 in cash. They covered their retreat by throwing tear gas bombs into the bank as they left and drove away in an automobile. An hour later the police radio cars reported they were close on the fugitives' trail. The cars careened madly through the crowded Bronx as police fired at the fleeing robbers.

SHAW SAYS PAY WAR DEBT

Also Recommends Giving Ireland to U. S. in Parting Jest to London

London, Eng., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Bernard Shaw's farewell jest to London as he left today with Mrs. Shaw en route to south France to join around the world liner, was "give Ireland to the United States and liquidate all war debts."

SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE FRIDAY

City Institutions To Have Over 2 Weeks for Observance of Christmas.

City schools will close for the Christmas holidays with completion of Friday's session and will re-open January 2.

Members of the faculty who live in other parts of the country will leave during the afternoon for their homes to spend the holidays with relatives and will return in time for resumption of work the beginning of the new year.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the schools will observe the holidays with presentation of the pageant, "Wondrous Story," under direction of Miss Ona Shindler and Miss Moezelle Jones, assisted by teachers of the sixth and seventh grades of intermediate schools. One hundred and twenty-five children will take part in the pageant which is expected to be one of the most elaborate given by the schools in recent years.

The production will be presented in the high school auditorium and hundreds of patrons of the schools were expected to be in attendance. One of the most prominent features in connection with the closing from sports standpoint will be the basketball game tomorrow night between high and Raleigh. With Raleigh boasting one of the most powerful quints in this part of the State, Coach Porter and his proteges were anticipated one of the most stiffly contested games of the year.

Greenville has captured the two games played so far this season and all power will be thrown on the court in an effort to capture the victory from the capital city lads.

Henderson, Dec. 15.—The Henderson Merchants' Association has been appealed to by Willard L. Dowell, of Raleigh, secretary of the State Merchants' Association to enlist with other similar groups over the State in the fight against enactment of a sales tax, general or luxury, in the 1933 General Assembly. Mr. Dowell advised the local association that without doubt the two measures will be introduced to the Legislature and that in all probability they will be passed unless the merchants of the State present an united front in the opposition.

AUTO TAGS GO ON SALE TODAY

No Extension of Time Will Be Allowed State Motors This Year

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Hundreds of thousand of North Carolina motorists today began buying 1933 automobile license tags from the fifty offices scattered over the State. Under the law no extension in the time for the purchasing of plates may be granted, and all machines operating after midnight of the December 31 must have new blue and white licenses, except that no arrests will be made until January 10.

Sunday School To Present Pageant

St. Paul's Sunday school will present a pageant of the Holy Nativity Sunday night, December 18, at 7:30 p. m.

The pageant will close with the beautiful service of lights showing Christ's light spreading from life to life. The choir of St. Paul's Church, under Mrs. Elizabeth Hinds, will render music for the pageant, and Mrs. P. W. Pirklesimer is directing the presentation.

ASK TO FIGHT BOTH FORMS OF SALES TAX

Henderson, Dec. 15.—The Henderson Merchants' Association has been appealed to by Willard L. Dowell, of Raleigh, secretary of the State Merchants' Association to enlist with other similar groups over the State in the fight against enactment of a sales tax, general or luxury, in the 1933 General Assembly. Mr. Dowell advised the local association that without doubt the two measures will be introduced to the Legislature and that in all probability they will be passed unless the merchants of the State present an united front in the opposition.

FILE BRIEFS ON RAIL RATES

Carolina Textile Association Seek Uniform Rates in Two States.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The brief of North Carolina and South Carolina textile manufacturers in their cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission involving transportation rates on cotton piece goods and related articles charged by railroads has just been filed in Washington. Though North Carolina manufacturers launched the fight they have been joined by the North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association, the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of South Carolina. Hearings in the cases started April 5 and were concluded July 27. Much evidence was introduced on behalf of North Carolina cotton mill interests in support of their contention for uniform rates throughout the eastern portion of the United States for cotton piece goods and related articles. The brief sets forth that this position is opposed by the carriers in "official territory" and by New England cotton manufacturers. I. M. Bailey, formerly general counsel of the North Carolina Corporation Commission and representative of the cotton associations before the Interstate Commerce Commission, prepared the voluminous brief. The document reviews the history of the textile industry and analyzes 3,000 pages of evidence given at the hearings. The brief points out that since the beginning of the industry the carriers have accorded the cotton manufacturers almost equal rates, the principle North Carolina manufacturers contend for in the brief in opposition to proposed changes.

DRESS REHEARSAL FOR "THE CHARM SCHOOL"

Dress rehearsal for "The Charm School" the play to be presented by the senior class of East Carolina Teachers College, showed promise for a most successful performance both this evening and Friday evening.

Mrs. J. H. Rose of Greenville, has coached the play. She has had a great deal of experience in dramatics and is turning out a well interpreted performance.

This is the first year that boys have taken all the masculine roles in one of the college plays. This makes the play more realistic and interesting.

End Of Century Club Meets. Mrs. J. L. Fleming and Mrs. J. B. Spilman were joint hostesses to the End of the Century Club Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 at the home of Mrs. Fleming. This being the only meeting held in December, it was designated as the Christmas meeting. The home was lovely with its Christmas greens, wreaths in the windows and soft glow of red candles.

A very short business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, who then introduced Rev. A. W. Fleischmann who gave a most interesting paper on the "Celebration of Christmas," beginning with the first Christmas in Bethlehem and coming on down to the present time. He gave a most graphic description of the journey of Joseph and Mary from their home in Nazareth to Bethlehem, where the Christ Child was born, according to the prophecies long foretold in the Old Testament. As he finished this lovely story, Miss Bessie Brown sang "The Birthday of the King." Mr. Fleischmann told of how the celebration of the birth of Christ originated in the East but spread westward—and how our celebration of Christmas today is a combination of pagan and heathen ideas. He told how the season was celebrated in Italy, Russia, Spain, Germany and England. In none of these countries is the season more generally celebrated than in Germany. On Christmas eve there is a candle lighting service in the church—and when this service is over, the celebration begins. In no other country is the Christmas tree more popular. 10,000 households having trees filled with gifts, which are accompanied by verses. In France, where the people are generally regarded as pleasure-loving people, the season is least observed. In Russia, Christmas is celebrated in various ways, similar in many respects to other countries. In Spain, Christmas is a day for the exchanging of gifts, the singing of carols and the homes and buildings are brilliantly illuminated for the occasion. There is a mid-night mass and everyone tries to do a good deed before the bell rings announcing the birth of Christ. The Spanish children do not have a Christmas tree, but in each home is erected a miniature manger scene, using tiny figures to represent the characters. In England, the people enter most beautifully into the celebration of Christmas, having the Yule log and a long table filled with good things to eat, including boar's head and peacock pie. On Christmas eve Christmas carols are sung under the windows. During Mr. Fleischmann's talk, Miss Bessie Brown very beautifully sang a carol peculiar to each country, ending with the most beautiful of all, "Bethlehem's Lullaby." This most interesting talk was concluded with two poems, one "Christmas Everywhere," by Phelps Brooks, and the other, "Three Wise Men," by John Findlay.

At the close of this lovely program the hostess, assisted by Miss Margaret Flemming and Miss Helen Gray Jones, served a delicious turkey luncheon. In the dining room, where evergreens were used as decorations, the dining table was lovely with a miniature manger scene as its centerpiece, showing the stable, the shepherds, Mary and Joseph and the Wise Men. The table was presided over by Mrs. R. H. Wright and Mrs. A. W. Fleischmann.

The guests for the afternoon were Mrs. M. L. Wright, who will be a guest the remainder of the year; Mrs. Judson Blount, Mrs. D. M. Clark, Miss Kate Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Fleischmann, Miss Bessie Brown and Miss Cleo Rainwater.—Reported.

JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB TO MEET FRIDAY
The Junior Woman's Club will meet in the Woman's Club Friday afternoon at 3:30. Mrs. R. L. Smith will be in charge of the Christmas program. Mrs. C. W. Porter, Mrs. Jack Spain and Miss Evelyn Hart will be hostesses.

PROGRAM OF FOLK DANCING AT COLLEGE

The folk dancing section of the department of Physical Education at East Carolina Teachers College gave a program of classroom dances yesterday afternoon. Miss Sumnerville, director of physical education, was in charge of the program and explained the dances which approximately seventy students interpreted.

The program included "Blekking," a Swedish dance; "Bohemian Folk Dance," "Polka," "Combination;" "Knybarspolska;" "Russian Snow-storm;" "When I Rode to Prague;" and "Picking Up Sticks." One of the feature numbers was a group of singing games for primary grades. This included "Little Miss Muffet," "Hot Cross Buns;" "Hickory Dickory Dock" and "Two Little Blackbirds." A number of students and faculty members enjoyed the program.

Wesley Philathea Class Meets. The Wesley Philathea Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held a most interesting meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. E. Winslow on Fifth street. Mesdames Charles O'H. Laughlin, house and Milton White were assisting hostesses.

The president opened the meeting by reading a selection from Henry Vandyke's "Keeping Christmas;" and then lead the class in prayer. Thirty-one members responded to the roll call and the class was delighted to have the following visitors present: Mesdames Hart, Harris, Oakley and Miss Jessie Bullock. Mrs. C. E. Scott was welcomed as a new member.

After the reading of the minutes the business session was held. Matters of importance disposed of: Miss Addie Johnston led the devotions, bringing a beautiful Christmas message from the 8th chapter of St. Luke. The class was then turned over to the entertainment committee and a delightful social hour followed. Beautiful Christmas stories were told by Mesdames Harris and Oakley.

Mrs. J. W. Swain proved to be the most skillful thrower of Christmas wreaths and was presented a Santa Claus with his pack filled with minths. Refreshments carrying out the Christmas idea were served and very much enjoyed.—Reported.

ABOUT TOWN

The administration evidently is in favor of the beer bill if we are to take Secretary Mills' word for it. The beer measure to help relieve the nation's deficit is practicable, the secretary said yesterday, but the wine section is impossible.

Neither, however, will be sufficient to relieve the deficit, but that revenue derived from the sale of beer will go a long way toward doing so is not to be questioned.

If relief is not accomplished the first year it will come either the next year or the year after that.

Something must be done to relieve the situation and it must be done without imposing further tax on the hard-pressed men and women who have borne the brunt of taxation for the last several years.

Popular opinion is "let the man that wants beer pay for it," and don't inflict further burden upon that great mass of people whose shoulders since time immemorial have been bent under the burden of taxes.

Organization of a Chamber of Commerce here will be received with interest by the citizenship generally.

It has been many years since the city has had an organization of this kind, although the former Merchants Association did the work a chamber should have done.

The need for such an institution is felt keenly at this time and if the business men of the community lend proper support and cooperation it is believed great things will be accomplished.

The canvass in behalf of tuberculosis Christmas seals has not been made yet but members of the Woman's Club are planning to start the drive as soon as weather conditions improve.

Club members will be in prominent buildings of the business district this week and the first of next and it is hoped they will be able to dispose of thousands of the tiny seals.

Money paid for the seals goes to the support of tubercular men and women in hospitals of the country, and they will be deeply appreciative of anything done in their behalf.

Greenville has never failed to measure up to expectation in a case of this kind and it is believed the bulk of seals consigned to the club will be disposed of.

The High School is going to engage in one of the hardest fought games of the season with Raleigh Friday night and the public has been urged to attend in large numbers and let the boys know they are being given the best of support.

Greenville High after two victories this season, has the chance of winning most of the games played this year, and if the boys receive the kind of support of which they are so deserving there is every reason to believe they will come out at the end of the season with the best record of years.

Raleigh High has a team of unquestioned strength, and if we win it is going to require the best the locals are able to put into the conflict.

The rain has done much to handicap shopping this week but when the weather clears the business district is expected to be crowded with bargain seekers.

The business of providing Christmas gifts is one of the most important of the year, and while there are lots of complaining about hard times, shopping is expected to be in proportion to last year if not better. Greenville merchants have laid in one of the best stocks they have had in many a day and people who come here to select their gifts will not go astray.

The Salvation Army "stocking fund" is not meeting with ready response from the public as yet but when the people realize what the Army plans to do with funds derived from this source it is to be hoped

MARK IN A MAZE

There was electric light in Kings Mallard, twenty years later, but it had not come to the Bank. The Bank was still lit by gas, which flared and made dirty patches upon the ceiling. Under the badly placed globes, the clerks sat and inscribed rows of figures endlessly in their ledgers.

To the eccentric perception of Mark Lodely, the long rows of figures were ladders, lifting people to wealth—which he summarized as freedom—or forcing them downwards to poverty.

Mark met the horn-rimmed gaze of Miss Roop.

erty, which he designated quite briefly as hell. . . . Mark sat under the last gas-globe, furthest away from the door, furthest away from the girl and—by the final tally—furthest away from the manager's room.

Of three advantages, Mark counted this third the greatest and best; for the business of getting him into the sanctum to receive complaints in person was a lengthy one. So lengthy and so pious—by the time Mark had dragged himself to his feet and found and dropped his crutch and nearly slipped going round the head clerk's desk and finally sunk exhausted into the visitor's chair by the fire—that even the manager tried to ignore the, incomprehensible mess Mark sometimes made of both the ascending and the descending ladders.

Instead, the head clerk had instructions that that poor young beggar, Lodely, should be given tasks monotonous in their simplicity.

"Near through with it, Lodely?" asked the head clerk in his not-unfriendly way. He stopped behind Mark's chair and scrutinized a total. "Why you're just fooling—look at here now, how can—" His pencil went from entry to entry and finally drew as sure a line through the whole page as Mark had ever seen. Presently, he moved on, grumbling, and Mark resumed his contemplation of the values of the upward-flung light. He began assentively to place the curve of a snow on paper.

"Mr. Lodely, I'll finish off those totals for you." Mark met the horn-rimmed gaze of Miss Roop. "I'd like to, I would, really. I've cleared up all mine and you look properly tired. I always think you should be excused the overtime work, you should, really—you can't stand it."

"Besides," added Miss Roop archly, "Miss Tanner is sitting over by the window this evening and she says a certain young lady has been walking up and down on the opposite side of the Market from before the gas was lit. And these autumn nights aren't any too warm."

Mark's feelings for Miss Roop at once rose from contempt to pure loathing. She babbled on, unknowingly.

"Doesn't she look fascinating, too, in those new furs?"

"I didn't know Miss Tanner had any furs at all, new or old," said Mark coldly. It was characteristic of him that, although prepared to snub Miss Roop as savagely as social custom would let him, he did not anticipate for one moment that she would withdraw her offer to finish his totals. He reached for his crutch and, as the head clerk disappeared into the manager's room, slid off his stool.

"Now you know quite well what I meant—that it's the young lady waiting for you that has got the they will give liberally.

From this source the organization hopes to provide gifts for children who would know little of the joy of the Yuletide without public benevolence. Think of the inexpressible joy in the homes of the poor on Christmas morning when they find the stockings of tiny tots loaded with gifts.

The Salvation Army is helpless to complete the task without public aid and those who give will receive not only the appreciation of organization workers, but the hundreds of people who will receive the gifts.

new furs," smirked Miss Roop, walking straight into the snub. "One of these days I shall be coming to your wedding, I expect."

"Not in any capacity," dissented Mark, and made his way with surprising agility between the lines of desks to the door behind which waited his coat and hat.

The manager looked up from his work as Mark's crutch tapped on and fro in the adjoining lobby. "Is that Lodely going home?"

"Yes, sir, I believe so. Found someone to finish off for him. I shouldn't wonder."

"It just occurs to me," said the manager, looking up again, "that there was some orange peel on the steps when I came in this afternoon. Go after him, will you?—and make sure that he gets past it all right."

The head clerk left the room with-out rejoinder. He went, unwillingly into the lobby and still more unwillingly into the hall. Mark had already closed the main doors behind him, and the clerk, fumbling irritably with his sheaf of papers and disinclined to go out into the rawness of the October evening,

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 14.—It's uncanny, sometimes, the way chance reaches out and puts individuals before the camera, opening the doors to fame and laying velvet carpets on the path.

Heather Angel is coming from England with a Hollywood contract. In a way, she can credit it to the first place to the fact that she is a brunette. Had she been a blond—well, maybe she'd be coming anyway.

As it happened, a British film company was setting forth for an Italian location, and suddenly needed to replace its ingenue. The heroine was Italian, and a brunette was needed. The company was leaving immediately, and there was no time to search for an actress. Calls to agencies brought one blond. The blond had a brunette room-mate, who she said was pretty. "Very well, we'll take her—send for her," the blond was told.

So Heather Angel was signed without a screen test, and made the picture. It might have been, of course, the end of her career, but all she needed was one boost from chance. She made good.

Getting the 'Breaks'

Being in the right place at the right time—how many movie actors credit their opportunities to such mere coincidence!

There's Nancy Carroll, who happened to be arguing with a gate-man, trying to get into a studio, at the moment when a writer looked out a window. The writer visualized the redhead in a role, and there began the real rise of Nancy Carroll.

And Betty Compton. Out of pictures for a year, she was driving along and a traffic signal stopped her at a corner. George Fitzmaurice, director, happened to be standing there. Before the light changed Fitzmaurice had Betty's promise she would "come back." The picture was "The Barker." When they added dialogue to certain scenes of this, Betty Compton became a talkie star. But suppose she had made the "go" sign that day. . . .

Sometimes—and this is the dream of many hopefuls—would-be actors break into their "right place at the right time." Frank Melton climbed the fence at Fox studios and got into Henry King's office. Instead of being thrown out as is usually the fate of intruders, he talked himself into a role in "State Fair." He plays the farm boy.

Not So With All

But how many others have tried fruitlessly to climb studio fences how many others have had their chance and failed?

For the "breaks" often win in careers as in football games, but it takes a good actor, like a good team, to follow them up.

Einstein, Heading For Princeton Post, Own Ideas On Effective Teaching

Prof. Albert Einstein of relativity fame is expected soon to take up his duties as head of mathematics in a new institute of advanced learning at Princeton. He sailed from Germany Dec. 10 and traveling via the Panama Canal goes first to Mt. Wilson observatory in California.

By TOM WILHELM

Berlin, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Children who blame the teacher when school grades bring reproaches at home, have a stout defender in Herr Professor Doctor Albert Einstein. German physicist and mathematician. The renowned author of the theories of relativity and the unified field, as he was preparing to sail for America December 10, was revealed as one having his own ideas about teaching.

He may put them into effect in classes at Princeton where he is to become head of the school of mathematics in a new institute for advanced learning after he has completed some work at Mt. Wilson observatory in California.

For example, he agrees with the children that sometimes the teacher is to blame; he thinks too much of the present day school curricula are clogged with driftwood; he favors vocational training as a fundamental basis for building future instruction.

And what's more he thinks four hours a day is long enough to keep pupils in school—provided they spend two hours more doing homework.

"I don't think it's so unfortunate," he said, "if the pupils know nothing of Alexander the Great, or a dozen other plunderers. 'World history' it is called, but the largest part of the teacher's work is little else than a minute, detailed recitation, compressed into a wearisome table."

"As soon as the pupil learns a little of the gray past, he is spared Cyrus and Artaxerxes and given a smattering of Archimedes' inventions and discoveries in order to avoid winding up the course as a

INJURY PROBLEM IS SOLVED WITH NEW 'TOUCH FOOTBALL'

KEOKUK, Iowa, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The regulation playing field, 300 feet long, was believed too large for immature youngsters, so Purcell reduced it to 150 feet by 75 feet.

To encourage goal kicking the cross bars were placed 8 feet from the ground, with a spread of 12 feet between the posts. A ball suitable for small hands in passing was used.

Junior high school boys were named coaches, and problems were settled at bi-weekly meetings of teachers, boy coaches and boy officials.

Any system of play used in regulation football was found practicable and youthful coaches spent the season teaching their proteges the double and single wingback formations, and all accepted offenses of large schools. Lateral and forward passes were used frequently with success.

PANTS TOO EXPENSIVE AS SOUTH SEAS GARB

Auckland, N. Z., Dec. 14.—(AP)—South Sea Islanders are finding that pants are now too expensive, because prices of copra, trochus and pearl shell have slumped.

They are restoring the use of the lava. Only the dandies continue to wear pants.

Many of the women are discarding the loose calico gowns introduced by the missionaries and re-adopting the leaf skirts of their grandmothers.

Soft Berths in Spanish Army

Madrid, Dec. 14.—(AP)—"You're in the army now" has a less foreboding sound for Spain's recruits. The war ministry has decreed that soldiers' bedding be made of soft cotton wool instead of the traditional yard esparto grass matting on which old-timers grunted.

Cool Trip For Nile Fish

Alexandria, Egypt, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Thousands of fish have been carried across the burning Sahara in cooled railway tanks in a second attempt to stock the upper reaches of the Nile. Last year 70,000 fish were started across the desert, but so many died en route that the experiment was a failure.

GLAD RALEIGH DREW 'BIG 5' TOURNAMENT

Chapel Hill, Dec. 15.—All the basketball coaches in the Big Five have expressed keen delight that the conference tournament is coming to Raleigh this year. Coach Bo Shepard, who tutors the Tar Heel quint reported today.

The sentiment was overwhelmingly that way at the interpretation of rules meeting at Duke University Tuesday night he said.

Coach Shepard doesn't think that the new rules will have as great an effect as expected on the game as played in this section.

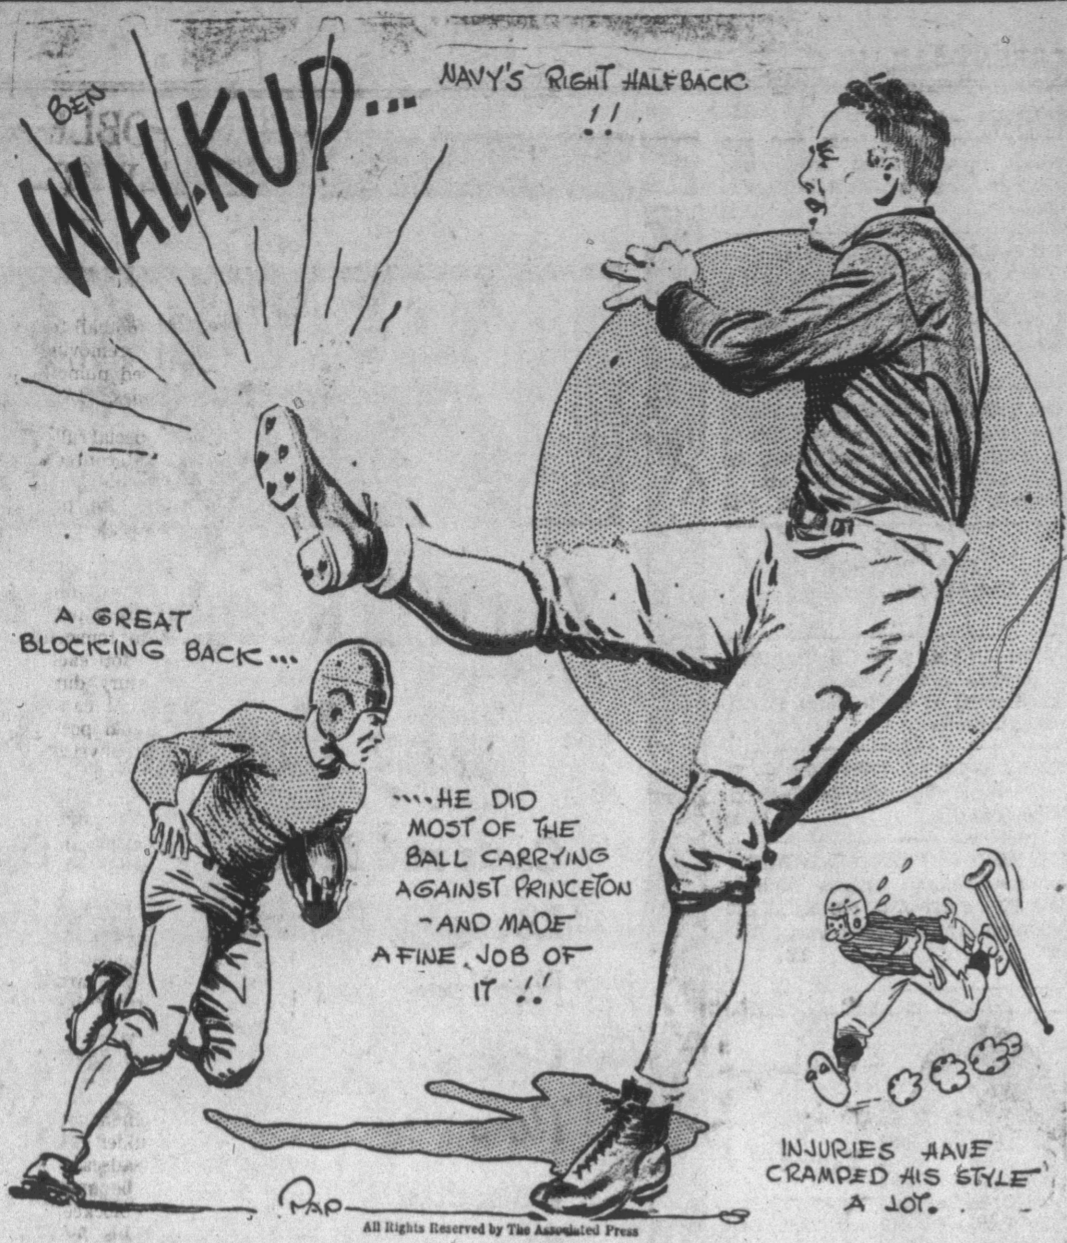

Most teams, he says, already work the ball across the middle of the court in the required ten seconds, and there is little of the "slow-break" type play seen.

The rule requiring the center to get rid of the ball in three seconds when standing with his back to the goal in the "out line" territory won't affect Carolina at all, he says, because the Tar Heels don't use that type of offense.

An interesting schedule of six meets was announced for the University of North Carolina wrestling team today by George E. Shepard, assistant graduate manager.

The Tar Heels have dropped their intercollegiate meets with Army and Brooklyn Poly this year, but will have a half dozen hand meets in this section, five of which will be with Southern Conference foes and three with Big Five outfits.

Coach Chuck Quinlan is grooming a large squad in preparation for the hard season expected and prospects are for a good team.

About NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 15.—Of all the politicians who spouted from the stump through the long national campaign, not a handful of them would draw paying customers in the commercial lecture field.

That is the opinion of Louis J. Alber, who has been managing the lecture tours of celebrities from all over the world for almost thirty years.

Those who would make the hiring of a hall most worth while are not available, Alber says. After the 1928 campaign he thought Al Smith was the best bet in the political circus.

But he couldn't get Smith. Alber thought well of the possibilities of Calvin Coolidge when he left the White House. Not that the ex-President makes any pretensions as an orator, but great numbers of people lend him their ears when he has anything to say on any subject.

The reply to Alber's "feeler" was a paraphrase of the single line in which Coolidge refused to stand for re-election.

"I do not choose to lecture." The sharp-tongued Jim Reed, former Senator from Missouri; the grandiloquent Senator Borah; Newton D. Baker, of Ohio—Alber thinks highly of the platform personalities of these, but can't get them.

Of the men who have come into greater prominence through the campaign of 1932 he says Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, is "the most promising new figure." But Ritchie has other things to do.

Taft "Took the Veil" The only ex-President Alber was able to lure into the field was Taft. But Taft quit when he became Chief Justice of the United States, writing Alber.

"I am returning to a monastery and, to change the sex of the metaphor, I am taking the veil." But Alber sent a Vice-President out over the lecture route while he was in office—the late Mr. Marshall of the Wilson regime.

The shortage of Americans whose personalities appeal to the lecture-going public, and its personality more than anything else that counts, Alber says, is not confined to the political crop. American celebrities in general are poor bait.

Few of our authors are of the necessary pattern. Sinclair Lewis, he says, is one good speaker, and "there's stuff in what Lewis says." The Nobel prize winner probably is the only American writer who could invade European halls with a degree of success corresponding to that enjoyed by outstanding foreign writers over here.

If he could have his pick of all the world's famous figures he would choose Mussolini.

Churchill's Top Pay The highest offer Alber ever made to get a foreigner to these shores brought Winston Churchill last season. He guaranteed Churchill $50,000 for 45 lectures, plus traveling expenses for himself, his valet and his secretary from England and back.

Churchill had an absent-minded moment when he arrived, stepped into the street and looked to the right for oncoming traffic—a la London. A motor car bumped him. As a consequence he could only fill 38 engagements.

Incidentally, on the Saturday before the accident, Churchill and Alber discussed insurance to cover them against losses on dates the Britisher might not fill. It was Churchill who suggested they let the matter rest until the following Monday. On the intervening Sunday the motor got him.

White House physicians in the past have been a rather important part of Presidential retinues. The present one, Comm. Joel T. Boone, a navy medic, has been one of the most prominent members of Mr. Hoover's personal staff.

During the campaign, on all official visits away from the capital, on the few of his pleasure trips and on week-end excursions to the Rapidan, Dr. Boone has been along always.

Friend and Physician President Wilson's personal physician, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, not only looked after his health but became his close personal friend as well. And it was a friendship that the Admiral to this day cherishes.

Locked in his mind are many incidents of those last tragic days of the War President in the White House. They'll never be known to the public if Grayson must tell them. Repeatedly he has refused to talk about his close association with Wilson. He holds that he was there first as a physician and next as a friend.

Coolidges Never Ill Calvin Coolidge probably would have done the same thing Governor Roosevelt is said to think of doing if he had thought of it. Dr. Boone who was at the White House during Coolidge's stay, is found of telling the public his president all but told him once that he thought his job was superfluous.

"We're never sick," Coolidge told him dryly. And so true was his statement that when he came to the end of his administration he was able to write to a friend:

"Whatever else may be said about me, I have been a healthy President."

Slain Adventurer

Steve Farrell, however, would bar and boy under eighteen years of age from running any distance over two miles.

We have, also, this noteworthy report from Clarence H. DeMar: "Have completed in some forty-five full marathons in the last twenty-two years and countless smaller ones. Have won seventeen or more of these. I feel better now than when I began. Am 44 years of age. The youngsters have to step to beat me. I have lost just fourteen days from work because of sickness in twenty-eight years of earning my living.

"The doctors told Sidney Hatch when he was running a marathon race that every race took ten years off his life. Sidney was alarmed as he had already run fifty marathons before being warned, thus having wasted 500 years of his life."

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Although our best athletic and medical minds are not entirely agreed on this, it now seems well established that cross-country running, up to and including the six-mile championship distance, is not harmful to the average, well-conditioned college boy.

It seems to me there is far less hazard over the hills and dales than there is on the gridiron, in addition to a great deal less attention and ballyhoo. Boys who go out for cross-country must like to run for what they get out of it.

Meanwhile our good friend, Harry Hillman of Dartmouth, has gone to a great amount of effort to show that long distance running is not injurious to the physically fit, aided by the reports and comments of nine coaches, five physicians, several athletics leaders and one marathon champion.

The emphasis must be put, however, on those words "physically fit." Lawson Robertson, the University of Pennsylvania and Olympic coach, objects to six miles of cross-country running as too far for immature youths and adds the conviction "that a six-mile run of any description is a man's game and not a boy's."

Medical men like Dr. Paul Lowry, of Syracuse, who regard cross-country as one of the most strenuous of intercollegiate sports, point out the necessity of proper conditioning and "more careful medical supervision."

Dr. John Pollard Bowler of Dartmouth, while putting his sanction on properly supervised collegiate activity, thinks "the schoolboy cross-country running is utterly absurd."

Stagg Against It Although not speaking as a cross-country coach, Amos Alonzo Stagg in his report to Hillman cites his recollection of "a boy who participated in the intercollegiate cross-country run in Chicago (who) had dilatation of the heart. I do not know the circumstances, but I have never forgotten how he looked as he came in."

"This, however, appears to have been exceptional. It is the testimony and experience of men like Kneel Fitzpatrick of Princeton, Steve Farrell of Michigan, Jack Moskley of Cornell, Eddie Farrell of Harvard, and Tom Keane of Syracuse, covering a period of 17 to 42 years of coaching, that they have known of no injurious results, such as heart-strain, from long distance or cross-country running.

Steve Farrell, however, would bar and boy under eighteen years of age from running any distance over two miles.

We have, also, this noteworthy report from Clarence H. DeMar: "Have completed in some forty-five full marathons in the last twenty-two years and countless smaller ones. Have won seventeen or more of these. I feel better now than when I began. Am 44 years of age. The youngsters have to step to beat me. I have lost just fourteen days from work because of sickness in twenty-eight years of earning my living.

"The doctors told Sidney Hatch when he was running a marathon race that every race took ten years off his life. Sidney was alarmed as he had already run fifty marathons before being warned, thus having wasted 500 years of his life."

Stagg Against It Although not speaking as a cross-country coach, Amos Alonzo Stagg in his report to Hillman cites his recollection of "a boy who participated in the intercollegiate cross-country run in Chicago (who) had dilatation of the heart. I do not know the circumstances, but I have never forgotten how he looked as he came in."

"This, however, appears to have been exceptional. It is the testimony and experience of men like Kneel Fitzpatrick of Princeton, Steve Farrell of Michigan, Jack Moskley of Cornell, Eddie Farrell of Harvard, and Tom Keane of Syracuse, covering a period of 17 to 42 years of coaching, that they have known of no injurious results, such as heart-strain, from long distance or cross-country running.

Steve Farrell, however, would bar and boy under eighteen years of age from running any distance over two miles.

SUNDOWN STORIES

JELLY BEAR'S PLANS

By Mary Graham Bonner

"As president of Puddle Middle," Willy Nilly said, "I am going to give you the name of Jelly Bear."

"It is the way I have thought of you ever since you first were to be seen in the pantry with jelly all over you and around you and a great, great deal more I knew, was in you."

"That's O. K. with me," said the Bear. "In fact, I think that's a very nice name."

"It was really ever so kind of you not to run me out when I had eaten up all the jelly you had made for the winter."

"But you know I'm careless, like that. I didn't stop to think any Bear thoughts about whether it was fair or not for me to take the jelly."

"Now, if you'll let me be your friend, I'll try to do all I can when the spring comes around. I'll gather berries for your meals—and I won't eat but a few of them as I do the gathering."

"Oh, do stay around here," Flo-tilla Botilla begged. At first she had just hated the Bear for eating up all their jelly, but he was such a lovely roly-poly looking young bear and it would be fun to have him around."

"I can take rides on your back if you stay, can't I?" she asked the Bear.

"That's O. K. with me," answered Jelly Bear.

All the creatures laughed in their quacking, crowing, barking, chuckling way to hear Jelly Bear say, "O. K."—an expression he had picked up from people when he was only a cub.

"I'm sure you could tell us lots of interesting stories," Willy Nilly said.

"I think you'd better stay around. And your plans are to help us in the spring, too." So Jelly Bear stayed.

Tomorrow—"Jelly Bear Explains."

LINOLEUM SHOULD BE WARM BEFORE IT IS PUT DOWN

When laying a linoleum floor covering in cold weather, place it in a warm room for at least 48 hours before it is unrolled. If this precaution is not taken linoleum is likely to crack since cold makes it brittle.

Butte, Neb., Dec. 15.—(AP)—As evidence that drought conditions of 1931 were not at all present this summer, Farmer Roy Kimport exhibits a cucumber 22 1/2 inches in length.

"Horizons" contains hundreds of illustrations of Geddes—designed things. There is a liner that looks like a torpedo topped by two large funnels; a train that would look like a slug to only a slightly inebriated eye. The strain of banishing the old is somewhat heavy one, as in the case of the houses and theaters illustrated. But sometimes the Geddes-new comes quite apt.

The book is "stimulating." It also indicates that although the author is interested in much beside the theater, his mind is essentially a theatrical one.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY

New York, Dec. 13.—"Norman Bel Geddes" said just like that, means to the average person "theater."

Visions of the cardboard-gothic setting for "The Miracle" rise up; hundreds of stage pictures become visible.

But the theater occupies only a part of the Geddes mind, and how small the part is, relatively, may be estimated from his book "Horizons," now decorating the stands.

Mr. Geddes is interested in gas stoves and railway cars, motors and radios, houses and, probably, householders as well. He sees chances for improving everything and with or without invitation, sets about improvement at once.

"Horizons" contains hundreds of illustrations of Geddes—designed things. There is a liner that looks like a torpedo topped by two large funnels; a train that would look like a slug to only a slightly inebriated eye. The strain of banishing the old is somewhat heavy one, as in the case of the houses and theaters illustrated. But sometimes the Geddes-new comes quite apt.

Fast-Growing Story When Arnold Zweig did "The Case of Serban Grisca" it was as one volume of a trilogy. He added a fourth volume to the plan before he had completed the second; now there is a fifth. It is probably the fastest-growing story extant.

And the more it grows the better. "Young Woman of 1914" is the second book to be written, and also second in the chronology of the set as at present determined. Those who expect a writer to duplicate forever his first big success will not care for "Young Woman of 1914."

But as a study of the bourgeois mind under the intolerable strain or war (and countless other stresses); particularly as a study of a girl suffering a major calamity under conditions which make normal solutions impossible, the novel is first rate.

Besides its relation to his ambitious scheme, the new book resembles somewhat the short "Letter From an Unknown Woman" Zweig published last June in America, since the "Letter" also is a detailed study of a woman in conflict with the world.

The connection with "Grischa" is slight, being through the person of Werner Berlin, a major character in the new novel; a quite unimportant one in "Grischa."

There is a quality of intrepidity about Emil Lengyel's "The Cauldron Boils" that should endear it to all excepting the Polish. Lengyel states Germany's side of the case against Poland, and does so valiantly. Sometimes he does it brilliantly as well.

But for the millions who have no personal bias between Poles and Germans, the book also has value. Whatever the right or wrong of the Corridor squabble and however one may feel about the partition of Germany at Versailles, no one can finish Mr. Lengyel's book without understanding clearly that he feels the wisecracks of the treaty wrote the certainty of war into the Polish-German "settlement."

M. Lengyel points out that whatever may be the major merits of the "case, the petty annoyances are such that trouble is inescapable.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Another famous White House institution may be scrapped in the near future. It reports coming from Governor Roosevelt's retreat at Warm Springs mean anything.

The government is said to be considering doing away with the position of physician to the President when he takes office on next March 4th. He'll call in a physician from the outside when one is needed, it has been indicated, rather than keep one on duty all the time at the mansion.

White House physicians in the past have been a rather important part of Presidential retinues. The present one, Comm. Joel T. Boone, a navy medic, has been one of the most prominent members of Mr. Hoover's personal staff.

During the campaign, on all official visits away from the capital, on the few of his pleasure trips and on week-end excursions to the Rapidan, Dr. Boone has been along always.

Friend and Physician President Wilson's personal physician, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, not only looked after his health but became his close personal friend as well. And it was a friendship that the Admiral to this day cherishes.

Locked in his mind are many incidents of those last tragic days of the War President in the White House. They'll never be known to the public if Grayson must tell them. Repeatedly he has refused to talk about his close association with Wilson. He holds that he was there first as a physician and next as a friend.

Coolidges Never Ill Calvin Coolidge probably would have done the same thing Governor Roosevelt is said to think of doing if he had thought of it. Dr. Boone who was at the White House during Coolidge's stay, is found of telling the public his president all but told him once that he thought his job was superfluous.

"We're never sick," Coolidge told him dryly. And so true was his statement that when he came to the end of his administration he was able to write to a friend:

"Whatever else may be said about me, I have been a healthy President."

only $1,004,609.000.

The biggest single cut in the interior measure involved Boulder Canyon dam where that new project gets $23,000,000 for this year. The budget recommended $10,000,000 and the House committee approved $8,000,000, the terms on which both must pass.

Among the amount recommended by the committee bill for expenditures in 1934 on parks was the proposed Great Smoky Mountain Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, $28,430.

Herriott Refuses To Form Cabinet

Paris, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Camille Chautemps minister of the interior in Premier Herriott's cabinet, told President Lebrun this evening that he would try to form a new government.

President Lebrun called in Chautemps as his next choice after Premier Herriott had refused a commission to form a new cabinet this afternoon.

"President Lebrun," the Premier told the press, "did me the honor to invite me to form a government. I thank him with the respectful affection which I have for him but I decline this honor for reasons of confidence to which I am determined to remain faithful."

"I will not enter any cabinet."

Rob Oil Company Safe

Fayetteville, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Two unmasked white men early today entered the office of the Southern Oil Company here, bound the bookkeeper and night watchman, set the office fire and then fled with $125 from the company safe.

The bookkeeper, W. E. Hoult, was working late on his books when he said two men entered the office, bound and gagged him and then rolled him outside the office.

The safe was open at the time and the men rifled it, found the money, fired the small office and fled.

The fire was extinguished but Hoult said all records were destroyed.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady one point higher to two points lower with disappointing Liverpool cables offset by a good trade demand.

The demand was supplied at about the initial figures as prices eased off a point or two during the early trading under realizing and scattered selling which included selling projects.

January sold from 6.04 to 6.00 and May from 6.28 to 6.23, with active months showing net losses of about 1/8 to four points at the end of the first half hour.

The early setbacks carried prices off to 5.96 for January and 6.18 for May, or about six to nine points net lower.

The selling tapered off at this decline and the market was quiet later in the morning with prices working up a few points on a moderate scattering demand.

At midday May was holding around 6.23 with the general list showing rallies of three to five points from the lowest.

Stock Market

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The stock market lacked stamina to carry its rally through the second session today.

The advances of the previous session were extended in the first hour with some issues getting up fractions to a point, but by midday most of the advance had been lost and the market was sluggish and irregular.

Among stocks which bought in steady volume than most were Allied Chemicals, Case, Columbia Gas, DuPont and Montgomery Ward, all of which pushed ahead from fractions to a point.

American Telephone, however sagged to show a loss of about a point, as did U. S. Steel common, while Steel preferred dropped two.

Oils held fairly steady in the face of cut in mid-continent crude prices.

Stocks were steady and dull in the late trading.

Sales approximated 100,000,000.

of forestry in public schools and colleges and the development of an appreciation on the part of the general public of the benefits of forest conservation.

(2) Speedy extension of each state's forest fire prevention and control system to include all forest land needing systematic protection.

(3) Promotion of comprehensive economic surveys to provide for land-use zoning and to designate areas best suited to agricultural development, private forestry and public forests.

(4) Development of a co-ordinated system of publicly owned forests, national, state and local, to be used for timber production, demonstration of improved timber growing and fire control methods, wild life conservation, public hunting grounds and recreation.

(5) Equalization of taxes so that forest property will not carry a greater burden, in proportion to its value, than do other classes of property.

(6) State-wide assistance to landowners in the handling of their forestry problems.

(7) Encouragement of reforestation of idle and eroding lands by maintaining State forest tree nurseries to provide planting stock.

(8) Extension of investigations by Federal forest experiment stations and suitable State research agencies upon the various subjects fundamental to economic handling of forest lands.

(9) Speedy extension to the entire southeast of a survey inaugurated under the McNary-McSweeney Act to supply information now woefully lacking as to the present quality and condition of standing timber, etc.

(10) Recognition by the Federal Government of landowners engaged in the practice of forestry as eligible for the same loans, assistance, grants and privileges as are accorded to the producers of other crops that spring from the soil.
