FRANCE WILL ATTEMPT SETTLE WAR DEBT TANGLE

Little Action Expected On Debt Question In U.S. Until Early Part March

NO DECISION FROM HOOVER CONFERENCES

Other International Problems Fail to Be Definitely Settled in Confabs Between President-elect Roosevelt; Informed Circles see Deferment Until 4th of March.

Washington, D. C. Dec. 22.—(AP) Discussion between President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt on war debts and other international problems have failed to produce any substantial agreement between them as to procedure and the probability was thought in informed circles today to be strongly that little action will be taken before March 4 toward final settlement of present difficulties.

JONES' CONDITION REMAINS UNCHANGED

Wilmington, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Earl W. Jones, wife of the Statesville bank receiver who had been missing since December 5 until found here yesterday in a "mental stupor," was expected here today or tomorrow to see her husband whose condition was reported today as unaltered.

The couple's son was expected to arrive here tonight, Miss Anna Herring, Jones' sister-in-law, said.

Jones was found in a hotel room here and apparently failed to recognize friends and relatives. Physicians said after an examination he was suffering from a mental disorder and today they described him as still in a stupor.

The receiver, who disappeared three hours before he was to have turned his affairs over to a successor, registered at the hotel December 16 under the name of "E. W. Jones of Charlotte." He formerly lived here.

He was discovered after he was seen here by friends who said he apparently failed to recognize them when they spoke.

County officers said they had heard nothing from Federal authorities regarding the case and that there was no developments.

Jones was receiver of the Commercial National Bank of Statesville for 2 1/2 years and was to have turned over his affairs to W. H. Spradlin, sent from Washington to relieve him, the day he disappeared.

COLONY OF ARTISTS MAY VISIT EDENTON

Edenton, Dec. 22.—Secretary J. H. McMullan, of the Chowan County Chamber of Commerce, received a letter Monday in which a colony of artists from some Northern town were asking information concerning this section prior to making a visit here in April.

Knowing of the historical interest of Edenton and the vicinity, they wished to come here for a visit and to engage in their profession while here. They stated in the letter that they did not want modern hotel facilities, but instead they wanted to inhabit some colonial home in this section that would provide some of the real atmosphere of the South.

A houseboat in which they could live and cruise up and down the Albemarle and Pamlico sounds was one of their desires.

MECKLENBURG BOARD DEBATES FURTHER CUTS

Charlotte, Dec. 22.—Mecklenburg County's annual payroll will be cut between $20,000 and $25,000 next year if recommended reductions submitted to the new board of commissioners are carried through.

A reduced wage scale, affecting practically every county employee except those whose salaries are fixed by legislative enactment, was discussed at length behind closed doors but the board adjourned without taking definite and final action. A special meeting was arranged for Thursday afternoon when the revised schedule probably will be fixed to become effective January 1.

INSULL TO GET HEARING SOON

Utilities Magnate To Face Extradition Proceedings on Next Tuesday.

Athens, Greece, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Hearings on extradition proceedings against Samuel Insull will begin next Tuesday, it was decided today by Vice-President Alexander Georgopoulos of the Court of Appeals after an interview with Public Attorney Riganous.

This date was fixed after attorneys for Insull had requested time to study the dossier prepared in the case and to perfect defense. Members of the court also were occupied today in reading the Insull document which were submitted to them this morning in Greek translation.

PROBE RECORD OF PRISONERS

Forgotten Man in N. Carolina to be Given Show in Investigation.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A new deal may be at hand for the "forgotten man" who is a prisoner of North Carolina.

Governor Gardner has revealed that a committee here in secret has started investigating records of prisoners singly and without means to press their own cases to determine if they are entitled to clemency.

PLACED UNDEE ARREST ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Franklin, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Columbus Welch, 40, and his nephew, Floyd Welch, 22, farmers of the northern section of Macon County, were placed under arrest on murder charges late today in connection with the mysterious death of Don Anderson, 20, of the lower Burlington section last Friday night.

The two Welchmen were arrested at their homes by Sheriff A. B. Slagle and Deputy Sheriff George Maloney on a warrant sworn out by Mike Anderson, father of Don Anderson.

CUPID STILL BUSY IN PITT

Nine More Couples Sent to The Altar in County Last Two Days

Young Dan Cupid continued to lay siege to the lovers of this immediate section today with the result that increasing numbers are applying for license to marry.

After sending over a score to the altar last week the mythical god of love caused nine others to apply at the register of deeds' office for license to wed Tuesday and Wednesday, and many others were expected to make similar applications between now and the Yuletide.

The old saying that depression usually quickens the hearts of lovers is proving decidedly true in this immediate section, and if the present trend of events continues to hold up Pitt county may set a new record for holiday marriage crops.

Those applying for licenses to wed Tuesday and Wednesday were: W. J. Fleming, Falkland, to Miss Edith Little of Falkland.

William Riss to Miss Lucy Mayo, both of the Greenville community.

William Archie Suggs to Miss Evelyn Hope Wright, both of Greenville.

Joseph William Walston of Walsenburg, to Miss Rosa Holloman of Walsenburg.

Colored John Collins to Mollie Crapman, Ayles; John Beard to Minnie Dupree, Greenville; Willie Wilson to Virginia Ellis Ayden; William Ward of Robersonville, to Mary Newsom, Statesville.

D. M. STRINGFIELD GIVEN DISTRICT ENDORSEMENT

Fayetteville, Dec. 22.—Meeting here yesterday afternoon the Ninth District Bar Association endorsed D. M. Stringfield, prominent Fayetteville lawyer, for presidential appointment as U. S. District Attorney for the Eastern District of North Carolina, and adopted resolutions highly praising the outstanding Judge Walter H. Small in presiding over the courts of the Ninth District. Both actions were unanimous.

Late News Flashes

Farmer Wipes Out Family. Wilson, Dec. 22.—(AP)—A family of four was wiped out early today when Rodney Estman, 28, farmer, hacked to death his wife and two small children with an axe and then killed himself with a shotgun.

Coroner Martin who returned a verdict of murder and suicide in reconstructing the tragedy, said Estman apparently killed his wife, Margaret, 21, Georgia, Maria, 2, and Josephine, 1, as they slept.

The bodies of the mother and Georgia, attired in night clothing, were found on one bed, while the bodies of Estman, who was dressed in his nightgown, and Josephine were in another.

The tragedy was discovered by Claude Wells brother of Mrs. Estman. Wells said he went to the Estman home to see his sister. Un-

DRY LAW FATE IN HANDS OF LEGISLATURE

North Carolina Will Remain Dry Unless General Assembly Brings Change.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Regardless of what changes Congress may make in the national dry laws, North Carolina will remain a "dry" State unless the General Assembly decides to amend the State prohibition laws.

Prohibition, however, is not incorporated in the North Carolina Constitution, and the Legislature may modify or repeal the Turlington and other dry laws at any time it chooses.

PUSH MERGER FARM AGENCY

Democratic Leaders Attempt to Consolidate Loan Departments.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., representing President-elect Roosevelt, met with House and Senate Democratic leaders today to frame a program for consolidating Federal agencies connected with loans to farmers.

Morgenthau, New York State Conservation Commissioner and a close friend of Roosevelt, met with Speaker Garner, Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, and other Democratic spokesmen on the farm question.

Several other Senators, Representatives and farm leaders were in the conference for the prime purpose of which was said to be to carry out Roosevelt's campaign pledges for consolidation of farm loan agencies.

The purpose is to merge eight governmental agencies which have been created to make loans to farmers in to closely knit organizations with a single policy.

Shopping Picks Up Today as People Make Last Minute Bids For Gifts

The last minute rush to obtain Christmas gifts got under way in the Greenville business district today and was expected to continue until stores close Christmas Eve night.

Although hundreds of people have visited the city the last several days, it was apparent from the volume of business reported that the majority are putting off their shopping to the last minute. Hopping to be able to take care of the last minute rush merchants started keeping open-house at night last Monday and this will be done each night this week.

Santa Claus officially set the Christmas season in motion when he arrived by airplane here yesterday afternoon. From now on he will hold supreme sway in the various stores of the city and hundreds of kiddies will be thrilled by his cheery smiles and assurances of a visit Christmas Eve night.

With the city brilliantly decorated for the holidays, charitable organizations were pushing forward their plans to carry cheer into the homes of the poor. The Salvation Army was preparing to provide basket dinners along with a giant Christmas tree for children of the indigent.

Funds for this purpose were being contributed by various benevolent organizations and the citizenship generally and leaders of the movement were hopeful of being able to take care of the needs of every person in the community.

Assisting in the movement, city firemen were putting finishing touches today to toys which had been turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution on Christmas Eve.

The German Club ushered in the social season with a dance at the Country Club Tuesday night and today.

New Cabinet Planning To Bend Every Effort Toward Solution Of Vexing Issue

WHITE HOUSE IN YULE DRESS

President and Mrs. Hoover Expected to Leave for Holiday Trip Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The White House today assumed a Yuletide air of holly and fir trees despite the prospective absence of the President and Mrs. Hoover over the Christmas holidays.

Wreaths were placed in lower windows of the Mansion and the row of box trees at the other edge of the huge pillared portico was wired with electric light bulbs.

Christmas cards addressed to the Chief Executive and the First Lady were pouring in.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover laid plans to leave the capital tomorrow night for Savannah, Ga., from where they propose to cruise along the Georgia and Florida coast.

White House aides continued to maintain today, however, that plans for the trip were not yet definite.

J. M. TURNAGE PASSES AWAY

One of Few Remaining Veterans of Civil War Dies at Winterville Home

One of the few remaining members of the army who fought with Lee and Jackson in the memorable War Between the States has asundered the final bugle call.

James Mallison Turnage, 89, died at his home at Winterville this morning at 2 o'clock after illness due to infirmities of old age.

Funeral services will be conducted from his late home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in the Winterville cemetery.

Mr. Turnage, who served through the Civil War, was a member of Company I, Regiment 44 of the Army of the Confederacy. He was wounded three times in the terrific engagements preceding surrender of southern soldiers to the hosts of the north, and was one of those who served here at each annual reunion of Confederate soldiers to pay tribute to their dead.

The deceased was a native of Greene county but spent the last 19 years of his life in Winterville where he was held in the highest esteem by a host of friends.

His narratives concerning the stirring days of the Civil War were a source of much entertainment to those who knew him and his death was received with profound sorrow.

Mr. Turnage was a cancer specialist and was known throughout the community as Doctor Turnage, although he never obtained a medical degree.

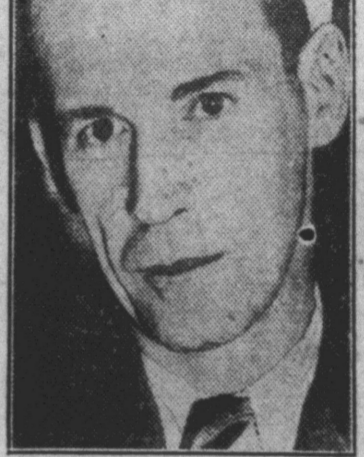

He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Priscilla Beppard. One son from this union, J. W. Turnage of Greenville survives in addition to his second wife, formerly Mrs. Sophia Mobley.

Three Times at Welfare Offices. Tarboro, Dec. 22.—There are busy scenes at the headquarters of the county welfare officer, Mrs. Ashby Wiggins. There are more applications for aid than ever before. Mrs. Wiggins has a number of assistants to aid in distributing garments and other things to the needy people of the community.

Services at Primitive Baptist Church. There will be services at the Primitive Baptist Church Saturday and Sunday by the pastor, Elder B. B. Denny of Wilson.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

GOVERNMENT PLANS MOVE CAUTIOUSLY

In View of the Political Situation in United States Extreme Prudence Will Be used in Negotiations; Action Comes on the Heels of Recent Ministerial Declaration.

Paris, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The ministerial declaration prepared by the new cabinet says the Paul Boncour government will bend every effort to a general settlement of the war debt problem.

But in view of the political situation in the United States the declaration warned the negotiations must be conducted with extreme prudence.

Earth Shocks Occur in Greece

Athens, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Earthquake shocks were experienced yesterday in Macedonia. No loss of life was reported, but considerable damage was done to houses in Chalcidice.

IMITATING TURKEY IS FOUND TO BE RISKY

Hertford, Dec. 22.—Fleming Sutton, Hertford negro, imitated a turkey too well on a hunting trip near Hertford Tuesday morning and as a result, is in the hospital in Elizabeth City suffering from gunshot wounds inflicted by Judson Bass, also colored, who mistook his victim for a gobbler.

Sutton was out turkey hunting. He concealed himself in the bushes and began turkey calling. Whether his call was good enough to deceive the turkeys or not, it fooled Judson Bass, who was also turkey hunting in the Bethel section woods.

Bass heard the call and fired into the bushes. He heard Sutton cry out with pain as the shots took effect, but was afraid to go to him, lest Sutton shoot. He hit it for the road and there, very much excited, told everybody that he met that he had "shot some one." Sutton was found and quickly rushed to the hospital in Elizabeth City.

PRIZES AWARDED ON BRIDGE TOLL ESSAYS

Edenton, Dec. 22.—P. L. Baumgardner, history teacher in the Edenton high school, was awarded first prize for the best essay written on the subject of removing the tolls from the Chowan river bridge. David Warren, son of D. M. Warren and member of the senior class of Edenton high school, was awarded second prize.

This contest was originated and the prizes were given by Mayor J. L. Wiggins of this city. This was one of his personal donations toward creating interest in the present movement of the Chowan Chamber of Commerce which is to encourage such legislation in both the state and national law-making bodies as would remove the tolls over the Chowan bridge.

KINSTON AREA POOR FIELD FOR ROBBERS

Kinston, Dec. 22.—Authorities believe bank robbers will pass up this section when they learn how difficult it is to make a haul.

Three bungled attempts in Greene and Pitt counties recently are attributed to the same gang. At Hockerton a police dog gave warning, arousing its owner and other citizens, and the bandits fled. At Pountain a police chief and six men foiled an attempt, engaging the gang in a gun battle in which the officer was wounded and one or more of the bandits may have been injured. At Stantonburg as in the other places the attempt was frustrated and the gang was chased out of town.

WOMAN CABINETEER? MAYBE!

A WOMAN CABINETEER? MAYBE
New York, Dec. 21.—(AP)—An energetic, alert-looking woman with a flair for statistics may be the nation's first feminine Cabinet member.

Widespread reports say that Miss Frances Perkins, industrial commissioner of New York State, may be chosen Secretary of Labor by President-Elect Roosevelt, although no announcements have been made.

Miss Perkins, known to all who deal with labor statistics as sponsor of New York State's elaborate figures on employment and other important labor matters, is generally identified as a liberal.

She has worked diligently for social welfare projects, notably of late in encouraging responses to nationwide pleas for unemployment relief. She has been insistent in her demands in New York State for adequate care of the workers and has cited her statistics frequently in proof of the need.

Investigations of the New York State Factory Commission, which enabled much legislation of social character, were directed by her.

A graduate of Mount Holyoke College in 1902, Miss Perkins also studied at the University of Pennsylvania and obtained a master of arts degree at Columbia University. She was executive secretary of the Consumers' League in New York from 1910 to 1912 and lectured in sociology during that period.

Recently Miss Perkins was named by a group of Massachusetts progressives under leadership of Professor Felix Frankfurter of Harvard a the type which the group would like to see chosen for the Roosevelt Cabinet.

Miss Perkins, 50, is the wife of Paul C. Wilson, but she has used her maiden name in her professional career. They have one daughter, Susanna.

Possessing a ready smile and flashing eyes, she impresses listeners with her desire to explain subjects under discussion, and she is frank in answering questions.

Revamped French Army Sought To Stiffen Defenses Of Borders

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY

Paris, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Joseph Paul-Boncour, Minister of War, wants to re-organize the French army so that it may be more mighty in defending the country's frontiers against attack.

He indicated that he is going to do this irrespective of the fate of the French plan of disarmament at the Geneva Conference.

Emphasize Defense
"We French," said the Minister, "wish to live in an atmosphere of national security and to feel at all times that our borders are proof against assault."

"We have no aggressive designs, but I have become convinced after conferences with high military officers, that we must fortify our defensive strength. And," he added emphatically, "I want to emphasize the word 'defensive.'"

M. Paul-Boncour already has convoked several sessions of the supreme council of war to study the re-organization plans.

Man Power Decreasing
He is thinking too of 1935 when France will have fewer young men to call to the ranks. In that year the boys born during the World War are due to perform their military service of one year. The full effect of the great war upon the birth rate of France will be in evidence when that call comes.

The War Minister is convinced that he can re-organize the army without increasing either the number of soldiers or the cost of maintaining the big military machine.

"In fact," he said, "we may produce an organization essentially defensive with fewer soldiers and at less cost."

"What I am aiming at is a covering army which would assure the inviolability of our national borders. A short-term army furnished with automatic weapons of a power unknown in the great war, would be immensely powerful in protecting France against attack."

Beyond emphasizing the significance of automatic quick-firing weapons the Minister said he was

Would Strengthen Military Machine

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French Minister of War, is working on plans to increase the boundary defense effectiveness of France's armies. This photograph was taken as he watched recent field maneuvers in which "poilus" of the type shown marching took part.

"This system implies, however, a thorough instruction both of conscripts and reservists. "It means minute attention to the problem of mobilization because necessarily the period of mobilization will be longer under a system of short term conscript service."

MATCH YOUR SHOES AND BAG, SAYS PARIS, IF YOU'D BE IN FRONT OF STYLE PARADE

By RITA FERRIS

(Associated Press Fashion Editor)
Paris, France, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A new "hand and foot" fad has swept the ranks of the Army of Chic.

Smart Paris women are wearing shoes made of the same fabric and color as their handbags—whether they are leather, velvet or crepe.

The fad began when one young designer answered complaints of her clients that "good bags and shoes were hard to find" by producing sets of her own. Now the fad has spread until even milady's mules match the cigarette case she uses in her boudoir.

First Made of Pin Seal

The first hand and foot sets were made of pin seal—unusual fabric for shoes. Their designs were plain and their colors subdued. Their biggest news lady in the heels of the shoes—always of a different fabric or shade from the body of the shoe and always were matching a flip or trim on the bag.

Now they are a little gayer. A brown wool ensemble goes to lunch with a smart pump of dull brown pin seal having a heel of brilliant finish and a brown pin seal bag trimmed the same way.

A Red and Black Ensemble
A slim black patent leather pump banded with red lizard goes out to tea with a red and black bag which sets off a black crepe ensemble.

Velvet slippers—the newest thing in evening wear—are accompanied by little velvet bags o' nights, and both are of the same color and texture as the flower tinted velvet frock which goes with them.

The hours when the smart Parisian stays at home are brightened by a Chinese lounging suit and mules of jade satin embroidered in the lotus motif which have a slender cigarette case to match them.

Shoes themselves have taken on new lines and leathers this year. Brilliant brown lizard with a leather heel, carpincho (wild South American pig) sports oxfords which lace with things and slim velvet slippers trimmed with enamelled kid are contributing new ideas to shoe chic.

Shoes and bags that match each other and in turn match the color of the costume are Paris' latest style offering. Here Borela designs the two ensembles shown. The matching bag and shoe at upper left feature a white enamel clasp. They are made of brown sea. The bag and shoes in the other ensemble are fashioned of black pin seal trimmed with black antelope and are worn with a black wool suit.

SUGG-WRIGHT.

Lovely Afternoon Wedding In Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin LeRoy Wright announce the marriage of their daughter Evelyn Hope to Mr. William Archie Sugg on Thursday, the twenty-second of December

Nineteen hundred and thirty-two Greenville, North Carolina

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church was the scene of a lovely wedding this afternoon at three o'clock when Miss Evelyn Wright was married to Archie Sugg. The church was beautifully decorated. The altar was banked with ferns and interspersed with graceful floral baskets of Aspidistra lilies and yellow snapdragons.

A soft glow was shed from cathedral candles arranged in tiers. Mrs. Marvin Sugg furnished the wedding music. She wore a blue suit with gray fur and gray accessories with a shoulderette of pink roses. As the guests were assembling she played "Kiss Me Again," and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," by Herbert; "Lebstrraum," by Frank Listz; and "A Christmas Offertory" by Hauser. Lohegrin's Wedding March was played as the bridal party entered and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as a recessional. "The Melody of Love" was softly played during the ceremony.

The ushers were first to enter the church. They were, William Wright, Charles Woodward, Dan Wright, brother of the bride, and Frank Parrott of Kinston.

Next to enter was little Miss Elizabeth Sugg, sister of the groom, as flower girl. She wore an old-fashioned dress of peach taffeta trimmed with green velvet ribbons and a pink taffeta bonnet and carried a nose-gay of roses and sweet peas. The little ring bearer, Master Paul Campbell, Jr., of Wilmington, cousin of the bride, entered at the same time in the opposite aisle. He wore a cream flannel English suit with white shoes and carried the ring on a silver tray.

Then came the maid of honor, Miss Louisa Hooker, wearing a gray crepe dress with brown accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow Pernet roses tied with yellow ribbon.

The bride entered with her father. Her striking brunette beauty was emphasized in her imported gown of green crepe trimmed with brown fur. All her accessories were brown and she wore a shoulder corsage of Tailsman roses. Her only ornament was a pearl pin worn by her mother on her wedding day.

The groom entered from the study with his brother, Marvin Sugg, as best man, and joined the bride at the altar. Rev. E. L. Hillman performed the impressive ceremony, using the ever beautiful ring service.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin LeRoy Wright. She is a graduate of the city schools and received an A. B. degree from East Carolina Teachers College. Her father is a member of the college faculty.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Sugg. He is a graduate of the city schools and the University of North Carolina. He is a member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. He is associated with his father in the automobile business.

The popularity of the young couple has been attested by a large number of social functions, which have been given since their engagement was announced some weeks ago and by a large number of wedding gifts. They left immediately after the ceremony for a northern trip and will be at home here after January first.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Campbell, Miss Nancy Campbell, Paul Campbell, Jr., Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Eure, Mrs. W. B. Morton, Beaufort; Mrs. C. W. E. Pittman, Aurora; Frank Parrott, Kinston; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Dixon, Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. S. Dixon, Walstonburg; Mrs. F. S. Langley, Miss Emily Langley, Frank Langley, Jr., Wilson; Mrs. Yancey Aycock, Black Creek; and Mrs. A. D. McLawhorn, Winterville.

Miss Smith in Hospital. Friends will be glad to know that Miss Ella Tucker Smith is getting on nicely following an appendix operation which she underwent yesterday in Pitt Community Hospital.

Dinner For Archie Sugg. Marvin D. Sugg was host last evening at a very delightful stag dinner, complimenting his brother, Archie Sugg, who was married to Miss Evelyn Wright this afternoon.

The home was attractively decorated in keeping with the Yuletide season. The dining table was very pretty, centered with a Christmas tree and glowing Christmas candles.

A tempting course dinner was served. Guests were men taking part in the wedding.

After dinner, Mr. Sugg and his guests were invited to the home of Miss Louisa Hooker.

Kiwanis Club To Meet.

The regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club will be held tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Wright Honored At Dinner.

Outstanding among the many attractive affairs in honor of Miss Evelyn Wright was the dinner last evening given by Miss Louisa Hooker at her home on East Fifth street.

The spirit of Christmas was evident in the decorations, with holly wreaths, Christmas trees and twinkling lights making a festive scene. Dinner was served at attractively appointed tables. Each table was centered with a frosted Christmas tree. On the central table was a miniature Christmas tree, flanked by green rollers with glowing red candles tied with red maline. On one end of the table was placed a lovely wedding cake decorated with red roses, bearing the names of "Evelyn and Archie."

Covers were laid for Miss Evelyn Wright, Miss Carlotta Waters of Washington, Miss Mary Walker of Durham, house guest of the hostess; Miss Mary Banks McPherson of Durham; Miss Elizabeth Skinner; Miss Cotten Skinner; Miss Frances Morton; Miss Eloise Garrett; Miss Zelle Foley; Mrs. Marvin Sugg; Miss Helen White; Miss Mary James Lipscomb; Miss Lucy James; Miss Mary Langston and Miss Annie Lee Hooker.

At nine o'clock the young men arrived, and much merriment was caused by cutting the cake. According to the symbols found in the cake, Miss Mary Langston will be the next one to announce her engagement. Miss Helen White the next one to be married. Mrs. Marvin Sugg, the wealthiest one, and Glenn Robeson is to remain a bachelor.

Pistachio cream and decorated cakes were served on green plates. On each plate was a red rose, holding salted nuts. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

JELLY LEFTWICK TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Tonight at ten o'clock members of the Greenville Cotillion Club will entertain out-of-town visitors at their annual Christmas dance. All efforts centered on this affair to make it the outstanding social event of the year for the young folk.

Jelly Leftwick will be an attractive attraction with his famous Duke University orchestra. The gymnasium will be extensively decorated with colored lights and decorations suggestive to the Yuletide.

Any interested parties are urged to come down and spectate. Ample seating space is provided in the balcony and all spectators are asked to be seated there in order that as much dancing space as possible might be available. It is our desire that onlookers co-operate with us in this respect.

Many out-of-town people will be present and an enjoyable time is forecast for all. Mrs. E. J. Garrett, Mrs. Will Hooker, Mrs. James Ficklen and Mrs. Louis Skinner will act as chaperones for the evening.

FILES COMPLAINT ON CONDITION OF ROADS

Manteo, Dec. 22.—Returning Saturday from Hatteras, Sheriff D. V. Meekins filed a complaint on behalf of the lower banks people because of the condition of their roads.

At Hatteras, according to Sheriff Meekins, the bridges are broken or washed down, and in some instances people have to travel three miles to go a straight distance of about 300 yards. The school yard is under water and all roads leading to it are in a very bad condition. "Much protesting," says Sheriff Meekins, "is being done by those good people there, who never have had a square deal from the state in the form of equitable distribution of road funds."

On his visit here Monday, Mr. Roper, district engineer, went over the Hatteras and Rodanthe situation and promised Chairman D. B. Peering that new bridges were to be given at Hatteras right away, and that the general road condition of the lower banks was to have immediate attention.

FIND LIQUOR CARGO IN ABANDONED TRUCK

Greensboro, Dec. 22.—Two negroes drove a truck into a farmer's yard near Colfax in Western Guilford County last Friday and asked permission to leave it there while they went to Greensboro for repairs. The truck remained there until today without any investigation, but finally notice was given to Sheriff Joe Phipps and search this morning disclosed fifty gallons of liquor hidden under a load of peanuts, forty gallons of it prime brandy. The truck was found to be one reported stolen from a Hertford County farmer last Thursday night.

SENATE PASSES BILL TO ADJUST FARM DEBTS

Washington, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill by Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to adjust debts owed the government for seeds, feed and crop production loans.

As explained by Norbeck, the measure would authorize the Secretary to "collect, extend, adjust or compromise" any of these debts.

The purpose would be to permit small payments on account by those unable to make a full payment on their obligations, and to permit extensions at the discretion of the Secretary.

Depositors Receive Dividend.

Kinston, Dec. 22.—Depositors in the Farmers and Merchants Bank, State institution here which closed in April, 1931, are receiving dividend checks totaling $18,689.

It is the first payment, and is for 5 per cent. The checks were mailed last evening by Ronald E. Newborn, in charge of the liquidation.

SANTA and the MAGIC DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: A dwarf who has stolen all of Santa's keys is imprisoned in a cave by two dolls, Inga and Pincocchio, helped by fairies. They want the whistle the dwarf uses to call together his toads who are hiding the keys, which he stole after the dolls burned his sister, the witch.

Chapter XVI
GETTING THE KEYS
Letting the dwarf out of his prison was harder than locking him in. The elves wove hundreds of ropes of long grass and made little hoppers for Inga's tiny donkeys. Then they wound the long grass ropes about the rock and all the little donkeys pulled hard.

Finally the rock moved a few inches and the dwarf squeezed out as fast as he could.

"You're nothing but thieves!" he cried, shaking his fists at Inga and Pincocchio.

"Well, it does get lonesome around here now that my sister is gone," admitted the dwarf. "Would you ask Santa about me?" "Would you ask Santa about me?" "Would you come back with us and ask him yourself?" "Now we must hurry," said Pincocchio.

So the two dolls got into their little coach and amid loud cheers from everybody, they were off with the dwarf riding in the high coachman's seat.

It wasn't long before the dolls again spotted the roofs of Toyland, and it seemed just a minute before they were bursting in through the Toyshop door.

"Santa, Santa, all your trouble's over!" cried pretty little Inga. "Oh here are the wanderers," cried Santa, running up and picking up the two dolls with his big hands. "I'm so glad you're safe." "And the keys are out in my coach," said Pincocchio. "We have them all for you, and we have another surprise."

"What can that be?" asked Santa. So Pincocchio and Inga ran out and brought in the dwarf.

"I thought maybe you'd let me live here if I give up doing the things my sister, the witch, taught me," said the dwarf to Santa. "You bet we will," said Santa. "How would you like to work in my blacksmith shop? You have big, strong shoulders."

So that's where the dwarf is today. And he's become Santa's best blacksmith.

New Plan
High Point, Dec. 22.—Pioneering work in the field of rehabilitating juvenile wanderers will be undertaken here with a special case worker made available through Federal relief funds being designated to handle the transients not yet hardened in the ways of the road.

It will be the task of the case worker to sift out of the floaters dropping in here at the rate of 25 to 30 a day those who have families to which they may be sent back or a legal residence to which they may be restored, thereby giving the individual to a place where he has some inducement to remain.

postoffice hill, two stickup men robbed his place and person of approximately $40 early Monday night. One was short, rather stocky, wore a cap and blue suit. The other was slim, of average height, fair skinned, smooth-shaven and dressed in a blue overcoat with suit and hat light in color.

THREE IN HOSPITAL—RESULT OF ACCIDENT
Sanford, Dec. 22.—Mrs. W. F. Smallwood and two children, W. F. Jr. 6 and Ann Ruth, 14 months of Route 1, Zebulon, are in Lee County Hospital with injuries as a result of an automobile wreck.

The accident occurred about 5:30 this morning, when the car in which they were riding ran into the rear end of a truck on highway No. 1 about ten miles north of Sanford. Mr. Smallwood and Luther Minter who were also in the car, received slight injuries.

Mr. Smallwood claims the truck, owned by the Buchan Transfer Company of Raleigh, was parked on the highway with no lights, hence the accident. The automobile was badly damaged. While the injuries of the three in the hospital are painful they are not regarded as serious.

The party were en route to Dublin, Ga., to spend the holidays.

INSTRUCTED TO HOLD LONG MISSING RECEIVER
Wilmington, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Sheriff C. David Jones, of New Hanover County, said tonight he had been instructed by Frank C. Patton, U. S. Attorney for the Western District of North Carolina, to hold Earl W. Jones, Statesville's long-missing bank receiver.

The sheriff and Patton did not tell him what charges were to be preferred against the man, who remained in a semi-stupor here following his discovery in a local hotel yesterday.

Sheriff Jones said Patton merely promised to forward the necessary papers immediately.

Jones continued today to show no signs of recognition of friends and relatives here, although his condition was described by physicians as "somewhat brighter."

His son was expected to arrive here from Statesville at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

ABOUT TOWN

With two more shopping days to go before Christmas, the Salvation Army was making a final effort today to obtain food and money to provide for the poor during the holiday season.

The food is to be placed in baskets to be distributed among the poor for Christmas dinner, and the money will be used in buying toys and confectionaries for the Christmas tree to be given the children of the poor.

This is a great undertaking, one that should appeal to men and women in all walks of life, and if contributions are liberal between now and Saturday, the ambition of the organization to provide for every needy person will have been realized.

The best the community can do for the relief of the poor this year may be too little, in the opinion of well informed men and women, and it is hoped contributions will be unusually liberal.

Senators Robinson was perfectly right in defending veterans of the world war in the implication made in Congress that they are receiving nothing more than a dole from the government.

The money these men receive is nothing more than compensation for services which they rendered overseas, and the man who made the dole charge would not have dared suggest such a thing back in the stirring days of 1917 when the fate of the world hung in the balance.

Nothing the nation can do for these men will be too much. They offered their lives a sacrifice on the altar of war and certainly the nation should be appreciative enough of their action to support them in time of dire necessity.

The House is working on a farm bill at this time and if it will have the slightest bearing on the rescue of the farmer from his present plight, may it have god-speed in its passage.

Gov. Roosevelt believes he will be able to provide relief for the growers through a plan which he is now considering, and the sooner he gets it in motion the better off the growers of the nation will be.

Low prices for farm products at this time will not enable the farms to be operated successfully, and it is impossible to say what the outcome will be if there isn't a change in the near future.

The promise of the Democrats to give the farmer the same tariff protection enjoyed by manufacturers should have a tendency to improve the situation, but just how much it is impossible to say. However, any plan worth trying out in the face of existing conditions and the nation will look forward gladly to the day when some of the Democratic plans are put into effect.

Only two more shopping days to Christmas. People who have been delaying making their purchases for the holidays must get busy at once if they wish to obtain some of the splendid values which local merchants have to offer at this time.

Never has the city offered a more complete line of Christmas goods, and never has it prepared to entertain customers in such an elaborate manner. Windows and store fronts have been completely transformed by vari-colored lights and streets also have been converted into things of beauty by the Christmas lighting system.

Home owners are to be congratulated upon the way they are assisting in the decorating movement launched by the merchants, and they may rest assured they are doing their part toward interesting people from the outside in the greatest shopping center in this part of the state.

The Greenville tobacco market closed for the season yesterday with the record of the largest bright leaf tobacco market in the world.

This distinction was captured by the market last year and it was a

Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: The failure of Quentin, Lodely and Cane was so long ago that now only Leila Cane and Mrs. Lodely think much of how it impoverished and led to the death of the senior partners, and how James Cane immediately seemed to prosper. Cane, now Sir James, planned to marry Leila to Farrell Armitage, restoring whose fortune caused the crash. B at Farrell meets Barbara Quentin accidentally, and at once tells Leila he will marry Barbara in spite of the fact that Barbara plans to marry the cruel and crippled Mark Lodely in five days. Leila agrees to help, and sends Farrell to take Barbara to a dance.

Chapter 10 THE CHARMING MARK

"Babs—Mark—this is Mr. Armitage. Mark, you remember Farrell Armitage who used to come to our parties from Upper Mallard vicarage? That would be while you were in France, Babs. You weren't there. Mark, show Mr. Armitage—" "I'm glad you're not seriously the worse for your accident," said Farrell, sitting down near the couch. He kept his attention upon Mark. He had bowed to the girl and received a welcoming murmur that was not echoed by her eyes. Then he had ignored her. But he did not need to look at her to be aware of everything about her. The way her hair sprang from her wide, low forehead; the way her hands lay slackly round a dark leather case.

"I'm glad to have the chance of thanking you for your timely aid," said Mark Lodely charmingly. (Armitage admitted the charm. "I do not often fall, but when I do I feel totally unable to get up again.") "Mark, Mr. Armitage is interested in you—" "I remember your coming to play in our garden, Armitage—a great, hulking brute you were, and you put a bigger brute, a cousin of mine, well into the lily-pond. I couldn't sleep that night for joy."

"And I couldn't sleep for—well, I had an interview with the vicar when I got home," Armitage recollected grimly. "Lord, that dear old man had a wonderful streak in those days!" Barbara had turned her face towards him and he allowed himself a casual return of her glance. The darkness was passing from her eyes but her lips still suffered. He felt a great longing to see her smile.

He began to talk easily, entertainingly. He had traveled, worked, watched men and women travel and work—there must be something out of all that to make her smile. He talked through Mrs. Lodely's laugh and presently she stopped laughing and became genuinely amused. Mark's negligent charm quickened to excitement—to admiration. His eager comments begged for more. More life—more fun—more, more! Only the girl at the fire neither laughed nor spoke.

Armitage abruptly turned to her, checking himself in mid- anecdote. Her eyes—and he had been right about them, they were deep hazel—had grown friendly, rather wistful. Unchallenged, her loveliness was like a sudden rush of light and beneath that and beyond it was his feeling that she was his. "This is she—this is she!" He thrust everything from him but his strategy.

"I'm forgetting," he said. "I sit garrulously here while the question remains unsolved as to why my dancing partner has left me in the lurch." The color rose under the white-petal skin. "You mean me, Mr. Armitage? But—I wasn't going to dance to-night, was I?" "No?" Armitage reminded himself to be very gentle and casual. "Miss Cane must have got confused. She brought me along to a dance—very jolly dance—with the promise of a wonderful partner and then told me to cut along and fetch her."

"Oh, those little hops at the Assembly rooms!" cut in Mrs. Lodely. "People—young people, you know, subscribe and bring their own partners. Didn't know you were mixed up in it, Babs?" "I'm a member, certainly; Leila source of genuine pleasure to tobaccoists that they were able to maintain the prestige this year. The local tobacco market has been constantly growing in public favor for many years through its effort to render the highest type of service, and it will continue to enjoy the patronage of a greater trade territory each year. Farmers from as far as Canada sold their offerings here this year. Then also a grower from Union county, in the western part of the state, came down with a load to see what the greatest bright leaf market in the world could do for him. He was pleased with the attention and consideration shown him and probably will be instrumental in more tobacco coming here from his territory in coming years.

The high type of service rendered by the tobacco men here is bound to play an important part in the future life of the market and it is believed the reputation now enjoyed will be held.

train of thought was patent. Armitage thought, behind his permission. With a quick movement the girl swept up the sketches and put them down at Mark's side. "No," she said. "You show them, if you like."

Armitage watched the two of them look at each other. "I'd rather you put them on the fire for me," said Mark. Then, at last, Armitage saw her smile. He became aware that Mrs. Lodely was arranging matters. "Slip along and change your frock, Barbara. Mr. Armitage'll wait twenty minutes or so, I'm sure, and in the meantime Mark can dig out some of his work, can't you, Mark? Not that there's much hope of seein' 'em properly in this light, but p'raps if you like 'em, you could come again some mornin'—"

"In twenty minutes, then, Mr. Armitage?" asked the soft, very clear voice. "But you won't mind if I don't make it late? I have to be at work at 9 o'clock tomorrow." Armitage stood as she and the other woman passed out of the room. Then he let Mark Lodely cover his couch with portfolios. B at it was Mark Lodely he was studying as he bent over the work; for it was from Mark Lodely that he would have to buy Barbara.

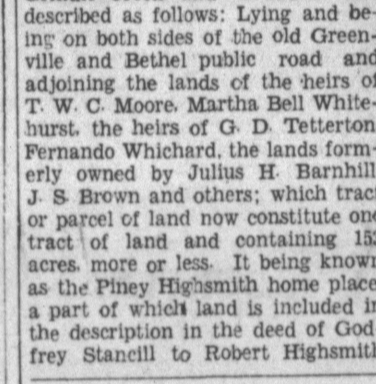

(Copyright, 1932, Julia Cleft-Addams) In an instant, tomorrow, Mark's future is arranged for him.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Don Zimmerman failed by a narrow margin—only two inches—to make the American Olympic team as a pole vaulter, but he wound up the year by making the All-America football team with something to spare.

If there's a better-built or more brilliantly versatile athlete in the college ranks today, I cannot think of his name off-hand. Pole vaulting, which is the nearest thing to acrobatics in a major sport, has developed Zimmerman's unusual strength and endurance, as well as his speed.

An athlete who can't do close to 10 seconds for one hundred yards is seldom able to clear 13 feet, 8 inches, the height the Tulane star reached in the final Olympic tryouts at Palo Alto.

Zimmerman didn't have an easy time getting the football recognition that came to him this year. When he began his varsity career he was tagged as "too brittle." Then he was criticized for fumbling too much as a junior. When he went places with the pizzikin, the experts said it was because he had blockers in front of him like Payne and Felts.

He starred this year pretty much by himself, conducting a series of solo raids around the Southern Conference that clinched his position as one of the greatest all-around backs of the season. Until the "flu" laid him low before Tulane's last game, with Louisiana State he showed no trace of brittleness. In seven games, according to the boys who keep statistics, he handled the ball 315 times. This is a great percentage in any league.

Biff Jones Writes In

Biff Jones, the popular Army captain who coached Louisiana State to a place in the football state again and a victory over Tulane, says tribute to Zimmerman while registering some complaint against a tendency to detract any credit due to L. S. U., merely because Tulane wasn't up to full strength and didn't play Zimmerman in their annual game.

Tulane had capable reserve strength, although it is true that Zimmerman, Seafide, Calkoun and Roberts were absent," writes the captain from Baton Rouge. "I admit that Zimmerman, had he been in the game, may possibly have done some damage offensively, although my staff and I spent most of the season designing the defense for this game. By no stretch of the imagination can I conceive of his running wild.

"Defensively, his presence would not have made any difference; we would have got our two touchdowns anyway. We had a third touchdown with the ball two feet over the goal-line. The referee, by some lapse, asked my halfback if his knee hit the ground. The halfback said that it had, and the referee then decided the ball was dead where the knee had struck. This gave us first down on Tulane's one-foot line and on the first play a third string quarterback fumbled on the six-inch line."

Had Great Guard

Speaking about all-star guards Captain Jones adds: "I have one guard, Roy Wilson, in his senior year, whom I would pick over any guard in the country for my ball team. He is rugged and fast and developed into a great blocker, and I only wish I had him another year."

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES
New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Professional dignity is a precious thing to an actor. Frequently the off-stage postures of some of them give us a laugh, but not infrequently their bombast and rebellion, when they think their dignity has been affronted, is an expression of sound business sense and the very human urge to survive.

In their uncertain field to lose a single point to a manager sometimes means hitting the chutes—a dizzy descent after years of laborious and painful climbing.

The day an actor takes a cut in salary, or permits himself to be under-billed—that day he takes a gamble with his whole future. He has allowed himself to come down one notch; he may find the pole greased the rest of the way.

Probably the most independent hired men and women in the world are the actors who are "in the big money"—who don't have to worry about where tomorrow's dinner is coming from, and who can tell a manager to go peddle his apples if they don't like his propositions.

Herb Williams is a comedian who retains both dignity and money. Being Herbert Schussler Billerbeck off-stage you can see that his dignity has a very elaborate background.

Williams is one of the most mild-mannered of men. He never so much as raises his voice when embattled for what he considers his just dues; but he can be very firm and independent when the need arises.

Lately he was engaged to star in the stage show at one of the biggest movie houses. After the first couple of days the house dropped his name from the advertisements, just recording the fact that a pre-tentious "flesh" show supplemented the feature picture.

Harry Romm, Williams' personal agent, went into action at once, and I heard him tell the theatre management that Williams would walk out if the situation wasn't remedied without delay. His client must have personal billing. After all, such recognition means more than salary and Williams would readily sacrifice his pay for a principle—and go on.

One time he was contracted for a week at the Palace when that house was the big time vaudeville center. Williams didn't want to be spotted earlier than fourth place on the bill, and Romm says he got a verbal agreement from the management of the house to satisfy his client.

When Herb arrived for the first show he found he was scheduled to go on as the third act. His protest went unheeded, so Williams calmly packed his things up and "scram."

"Is there anything in your written contract about your going on later than third?" the management asked him.

"No," the comic admitted. "It was purely a verbal agreement."

"Then it will cost you just $1,750 to break your contract," the management retorted, according to Romm's account.

"Very well," the easy going veteran answered. He took out his checkbook, wrote a check for that amount, handed it to the management and walked.

The management, Romm relates, ran after him, brought him back to the theatre, gave him the position he wanted and returned his check.

Don't be unfair to your stomach Use CRISCO—the fat that's digestible!

It certainly doesn't pay to take chances with your stomach, does it? Be safe. Use Crisco in your cooking, because Crisco is a digestible fat! If you think all fats are pretty much alike, just compare an ordinary shortening with Crisco. Open a sanitary can of Crisco—see how creamy and pure Crisco looks—good enough to eat! And it is good enough to eat, too—Taste it. It's as sweet as new-churned butter.

Crisco is digestible! For your own good and the good of your family, avoid greasy, heavy fats! Keep your can of Crisco out in your kitchen. Use it week in and week out. See how sweet and creamy it keeps. Crisco's own secret process keeps it digestible! How a man loves hot Crisco biscuits! Let your husband have plenty of puffy, flaky Crisco biscuits because they'll agree with him. Crisco is digestible!

THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS

At these 3 danger points, ordinary fats may cause digestive troubles. Crisco digests easily.

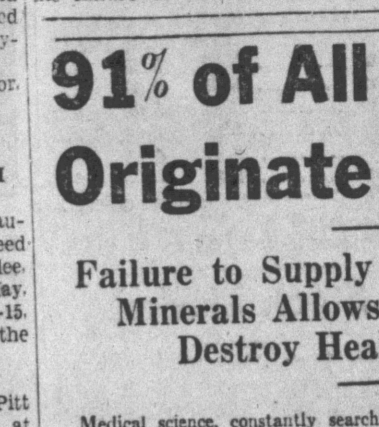

Cheap fats may turn rancid or indigestible CRISCO (IN VACUUM TIGHT CAN) stays fresh and digestible

FLAKY BISCUITS 2 cups flour 4 teaspoons baking powder 1/2 teaspoon salt 3/4 cup milk or water 4 to 6 tablespoons Crisco, the digestible fat Sift dry ingredients. Then cut or work in Crisco, the digestible shortening that will give you flaky digestible biscuits. Crisco is creamy—never tallowy. Crisco is as sweet-tasting as new-churned butter. Then add liquid to make a soft dough. Toss on slightly floured board, pat into shape and cut with biscuit cutter. Place in Criscoed pan and bake in hot oven (450° F.) for 15 minutes. Two variations your husband will like—Cheese Biscuits—Simply stir in 1/2 cup grated cheese before adding the liquid to above mixture. Jam Pocketbiscuits—Roll above mixture 1/4 inch thick. Cut with large cutter. Put a teaspoon of jam in center of each round. Moisten edges. Fold rounds. Bake as usual.

In the cooking school recently conducted under the auspices of the Reflector, Miss Louise Dixon used and recommended Crisco, the Modern shortening that digests easily.

Derling, didn't I say biscuits would agree with your fussy husband—if you stopped using that cheap fat?

I'm so glad you told me that Crisco is digestible!

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—If any of those hundreds lucky enough to get a seat in either Senate or House galleries on the opening day of the "lame duck" session expected to see woe-borne expressions on the faces of last November casualties, they went away disappointed.

They were conspicuously absent.

If the old-timers, even those who have spent virtually their whole careers "on the hill," are downcast at the drubbing they received a month or so ago they manage to conceal it very well indeed.

Jim Watson, of Indiana, for instance, on opening day perhaps never lived more up to his title of "Sunny Jim." He was one of the first to arrive on the Senate floor and the typical "Watsonesque" backslapping and shoulder-draping had lost none of its fervor.

Watson took the few sly jibes at him in the best of humor and returned them in the same fashion.

Smoot Cheerful

Reed Smoot, of Utah, dean of the Senate, habitually serious and long-faced, seemed more cheerful than usual. These are the last days of something close to thirty years "on the hill" for Smoot.

Smoot roamed the floor before the Vice-President's gavel fell opening the session cordially shaking hands with his colleagues and exchanging pleasantries.

Vice-President Curtis, humorously dubbed by some colleagues the "lamest duck of them all," because, they explain, he was "retired by the whole country" instead of a State or Congressional district, was in good form. He is presiding over what in all probability is his last Congress—participating in his last session of the Senate in any form.

He met all with a smile, found time to chuckle a bit at the humor of old friends.

House is Army

In the House the kidding was a bit more severe and open, but everybody seemed to have a good time. The Congressmen, for one thing, were so interested in that vote on prohibition which was to come later to think of much else.

But they did do a little joshing in good-natured fashion at their more unfortunate brethren as they milled around before the gavel fell.

Washington, Dec. 22.—(AP)—To that group in the Senate, upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility for the greater part of all financial legislation, will be added the name of another next March 4.

He is the man who will succeed Smith W. Brookhart as Iowa's junior senator—Louis Murphy of Dubuque.

For more than 10 years the gray-haired, bespectacled former newspaper editor has been absent from politics until he ran for the Senate as a Democrat this year.

But Murphy will be no stranger to the capitol. He was collector of internal revenue during the Wilson administration and his knowledge of taxation caused national leaders to seek him out. The many perplexing taxation problems that arose during the world war brought him to Washington repeatedly.

Murphy is credited with devising the forms now in use in income tax collections. He also is responsible for many of the ideas the Democrats employed in financing the war.

He continued as an income tax counselor for some 100 different firms and corporations after his resignation from the government service and retired a few years ago.

Murphy refused to run for the Senate when his friends first approached him, but later changed his mind and entered the primary. He defeated three men to get the nomination, one of whom was former Senator Steck.

In the general election he surprised the rest of the country, if not Iowa, by defeating both Henry Field, seed merchant of Shenandoah, and Brookhart. And one of the principal planks in his platform was repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Just a little while before Murphy himself didn't think Iowa was ready to listen to such an appeal but in the campaign he struck out, always reminding the farmers what prohibition was costing them.

In his campaign for election Murphy stuck close to the issues and avoided personalities. He is considered one of the most forceful political speakers in Iowa.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady one higher to one lower, with trading quiet and mostly in the form of near-month liquidation and on trade buying.

Reaction in the stock market brought in some local selling or liquidation, and by the end of the first half hour January contracts were around 5.82 and May 6.07, or four to five points lower. Prices worked off to 5.75 for January and 6.00 for May, or about 10 to 11 points lower.

The market at midday was fairly steady, although there was more trade buying on the decline.

Stock Market

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The stock market ran into fresh flurry of selling today with depressed prices close to the lower resistance levels of the autumn range.

The list worked a little higher at the opening, but was soon unsettled by selling in the rails.

Several issues in various groups were carried down to three points. Selling abated somewhat by early afternoon and then fractionally recovered from the lowest.

New York Central was a conspicuous soft spot, losing nearly 3 points before getting support. Union Pacific declined as much.

Miscellaneous losing one to two included Allied Chemical, American Telephone, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Case, International Harvester, United Aircraft and U. S. Steel.

Stocks had lightly reduced their losses in the late trading. Sales were 1,100,000 shares.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

White House declined to accept joint responsibility in the appointment of a commission to explore war debts and other industrial problems, telling President Hoover, in effect, that he wished a free hand after he enters office March 4.

McNinch's term on the commission expires in 1934.

As vice-chairman, he succeeds Ralph B. Williamson, of Washington State, who died recently.

There are two vacancies on the commission, which probably will not be filled until Franklin D. Roosevelt takes office.

FIVE-GALLON STILL IS SEIZED IN ALAMANCE

Burlington, Dec. 22.—After he had outdistanced a posse of Alamance County sheriff's deputies who raided his blockade still rendezvous in the loft of a grain house yesterday afternoon, Elmer Long, young white man of Albright's Township, walked into the office of Sheriff H. J. Stokard in Graham today and surrendered.

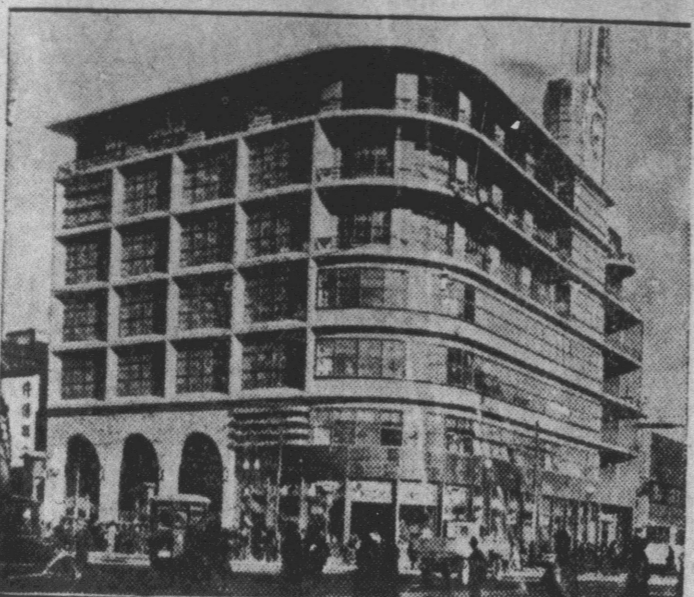

Long, the officers said, was operating one of the small stills ever taken in the country. It was of five gallon capacity, and it had been worked to capacity about five times, as that much of the finished product was found on the first floor of the grain house.

10 DIE IN TOKYO STORE FIRE

Ten persons were killed and about 100 injured in a spectacular fire in Tokyo's big and modern Shirokiya department store shown above. The blaze originated in Christmas tree lights and spread rapidly through large stocks of celluloid toys. When the blaze had been extinguished, the upper five stories of the building were gutted. AMATEUR ARCHERS FIND DEER WON'T STAY PUT Blaney, Mich., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Hunting deer with bow and arrow may be great sport, but it is a poor way to bag deer, four hunters concluded after a season with the weapons.

Four hunters—Frank Mosher, Ed. Pottruff and O. E. Marvel, of Grand Rapids and Monroe Merrill of Pontiac—toured the big preserve set aside here for archers during the deer season. They got no deer, though they reported seeing between 50 to 80 deer apiece.

However, they declared it was more sport than hunting with guns, even if they did not make so many kills.
