THREE BANK ROBBERS TAKEN IN RUNNING GUN FIGHT

INCOMES SHOW TREMENDOUS DROP IN U. S.

Only 75 Persons Had Incomes beyond Million Dollar Mark the Past Year.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The sixty-and-a-half million dollars that 1931 took out of the income of Americans reduced to seventy-five the number of persons whose annual income of money passed the $1,000,000 mark.

The peak of prosperity in 1929 saw 513 persons whose income ran to the $7,000,000 mark and beyond.

Of those still in the reduced million dollar income circles only four were in the exclusive five million or more class.

The analysis of income by the Internal Revenue Bureau did not disclose the names of those recorded on this list.

In the lower income class, 260,235 persons who had filed returns in 1930 found that their income had declined below the point requiring to them to report.

More than half of those filing reports showed incomes too low to be taxable.

The number paying tax was 1,455,007.

Individual tax-payers reported net incomes $13,231,352,042, a drop of $4,000,000,000 below the preceding year. Corporations net income were $3,190,642,568, a decrease of two and one-half billion dollars.

So pleased were N. S. Calhoun, president of the bank, and other officials, that they remained in the city Wednesday, after having been guests of the Rotary Club Tuesday night. They all declare that they are much gratified with the early success of their two newest banks and that they are much encouraged over prospects for growth and progress.

Mr. Calhoun paid his first visit to Pamlico County Thursday afternoon and was delighted with the section, he declared. D. C. McCotter introduced him to various leaders of the county and showed him different points of interest, particularly emphasizing the agricultural advantages of the region.

Salary cuts and governmental economy were unanimously favored.

CUPID ATTACKS ON NEW FRONTS

Six More Couples Apply for License To Wed at Court House Here Yesterday.

The irrepressible Dan Cupid carried his operations to new fronts in Pitt County yesterday and a summary of his activities showed that six of his love darts found vulnerable spots in the hearts of the lovers unable to withstand the call of romance during the holiday season.

Records in the office of Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins today carried the names of six couples who applied for licenses to wed yesterday. This brings the total for the last week well above the two-score mark with indications that the numerical strength will show pronounced gain by the time set for the annual visit of Old Saint Nicholas.

The majority of the applicants for license came from the Falkland and Farmville communities this time, a hitherto unexplored front during the recent operations of the mythical god of love. Beaver Dam and Pactious Townships furnished one couple each. Operations previously had been confined to Greenville and townships south and east of the Pitt capital.

If the present trek to the altar continues, it is believed all previous records for the holidays will be shattered. This presumption is based on the fact that the aspirants got an early start and have not permitted any let-up in the unbroken pilgrimage to the altar.

Those applying for licenses to wed yesterday were: Miss Irene Stepps to Robert Beaman, both of Farmville.

Miss Ada Edwards to Clarence Pridgen, both of the Falkland community.

Miss Hula Allen to Noah Robertson, of Farmville.

Miss Blanche Gray to George Knox, both of Pactious Township.

Colored Theodore Phillips to Mattie Blount of Farmville.

Herbert Turnage to Rosa May Dixon, of Beaver Dam.

Late News Flashes

Bencour Launches Negotiation.

Paris, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Premier Paul Bencour suddenly and dramatically virtually launched debt negotiations with America today by calling on Ambassador Edge at the embassy.

He asked Mr. Edge to take the matter up with Washington so that France may reach a solution of the debt situation.

Mr. Edge had let it be known to Mr. Bencour that he would be pleased if the premier could receive him so that he might convey his respects to the new premier and foreign minister.

The foreign office sent no reply to this request during the day.

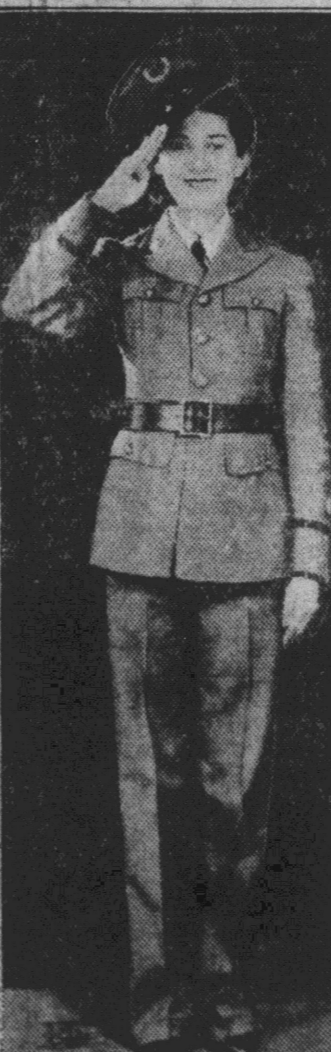

Suddenly and without giving any notice, beforehand, M. Bencour accompanied by Pierre Pourquier, director of the protocol, arrived at the embassy chancery in the Rue Charlot and asked to see Mr. Edge.

For half an hour M. Bencour and Mr. Edge thrashed out the entire debt situation.

HOLIDAY PUSH ON IN EARNEST

Charitable Organizations make Last Minute Appeals for The Indigent.

The big push of the holiday season got under way in earnest here today with hundreds of people seeking to obtain desirable gifts at the last minute and charitable organizations reaching out their hands of mercy in an effort to provide the poor with cheer and comforts during Christmas tide.

The Salvation Army, preparing to deliver hundreds of well-filled baskets to the poor Saturday afternoon and for a Christmas tree Monday, made a last-minute appeal to the public to contribute to the call.

At headquarters on Evans Street the pile of footstuffs and toys continued to mount, and it giving is as liberal during the next day it was believed the organization would be able to meet the demand of the majority of indigent people.

The largest contributor to the food supply was State Theater, which through a food matinee Wednesday, raised a tremendous supply of food for the Christmas baskets.

City firemen hoping to do their bit toward carrying joy to the hearts of the poor, were completing preparations for delivering scores of toys which have been repaired in the firemen's toy shop. The toys were contributed by the public and indications were that the supply would be greater this year than ever before.

Churches and other organizations have been co-operating with the Salvation Army and Welfare Department in attempting to meet the demands of the poor, and the charity movement which has been increasing the last two years, reached new heights of achievement this year.

Through the Federal aid fund relief was also being provided for many jobless people, and this was expected to do its part in making the holidays just a little brighter for families whose main source of support has been cut off by lack of employment this year.

In the business district men, women and children looked one another in a hurried attempt to obtain desirable gifts from the vast goods displayed by various business houses. The rush got under way in real earnest yesterday, and will be continued without diminution until Christmas comes for the arrival of Old Saint Nick.

Numerous Christmas trees appeared both in the business and residential districts, and electrical decorations were more extensive than any other year since this way of observing the Yuletide was adopted.

MAN KILLED IN CAR WRECK

Another Receives A Broken Back When Hit by Automobile in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Everett Buckland, about 23, a fireman of near Petersburg, W. Va., is dead and Bill McCoy, about 40, married, and the father of five children, is in St. Elizabeth Hospital with his back and both legs broken following an automobile accident on the highway at Midway, half-way between Rich Creek and Petersburg, about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Buckland was killed instantly and McCoy was injured when witnesses said they stepped out of a group returning from a dance in front of an automobile driven by Caldwell, about 20, who lives two miles from Petersburg.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Due to a shortage of corn and the present price of hogs, there is more than usual interest in the home curing of meat in North Carolina this winter, says Earl H. Hostetler, in charge of animal husbandry research at N. C. State College.

Experimental work by the North Carolina experiment station proves, he said, that beef and lamb may be cured at home as well as pork and these two will add a variety to the diet and provide edible and appealing food products at little cost.

Hostetler suggested three factors which must be controlled if one expects to be successful in curing meat.

First, all fresh meat must be thoroughly chilled, not frozen, before curing. Second, sufficient salt with or without other ingredients, must be applied to the exposed surfaces of fresh meat. Third, the cured meat must be protected from flies, rats and other pests.

While pork is more generally cured at home than beef and lamb, the two latter may be cured if the "meatier" pieces are used and if these pieces are left in the cure for the proper length of time.

In December and January will be found the most desirable time for curing meat. Cold weather is of course necessary for curing unless some kind of artificial refrigeration can be used.

Manufacturers of guano sold in this state should be required to print on the container or on a tag attached, the exact contents of the fertilizer, Thompson said.

Farmers of North Carolina are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for something that is of no value to them," Thompson said in commenting on the fact that exact information as to the contents is not now required to be attached to each container.

Maryland has a law such as he proposes, Thompson said, and added he has made a personal visit to that state to investigate the matter.

"I am convinced that it is a good law," he said, "and should be in force in this state with a few minor changes."

THINK TRIO INVOLVED IN PITT ROBBERY

Police Attempting To Connect Yeggmen with attempt to Rob Bank of Fountain on December 16; $3300 Taken from Bank of Stanley Recovered by Mecklenburg Officers who Subdued Robbers in Gun Battle.

Charlotte, N. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Three men charged with robbing the Bank of Stanley, Gaston County, of $3,300 last night, were captured and the money recovered by Mecklenburg County police here today.

The officers engaged in a running pistol fight with the three before taking them in charge, but no one was shot.

The men gave their names as George Jones, Frank Williams and Jack Rogers.

Police said the Stanley bank vault was opened with the aid of an acetylene torch. They said they were trying to connect the trio with the attempt to rob the Bank of Fountain December 16, which was frustrated by Policeman J. O. Bryant, who surprised the yeggmen and was shot in the leg in a gun fight.

HOME CURED MEAT PUSHED

Much Interest Manifested in Curing Process on the State Farms.

FOUR IN RACE ALREADY

Others Expected to Enter Fight for Speakership

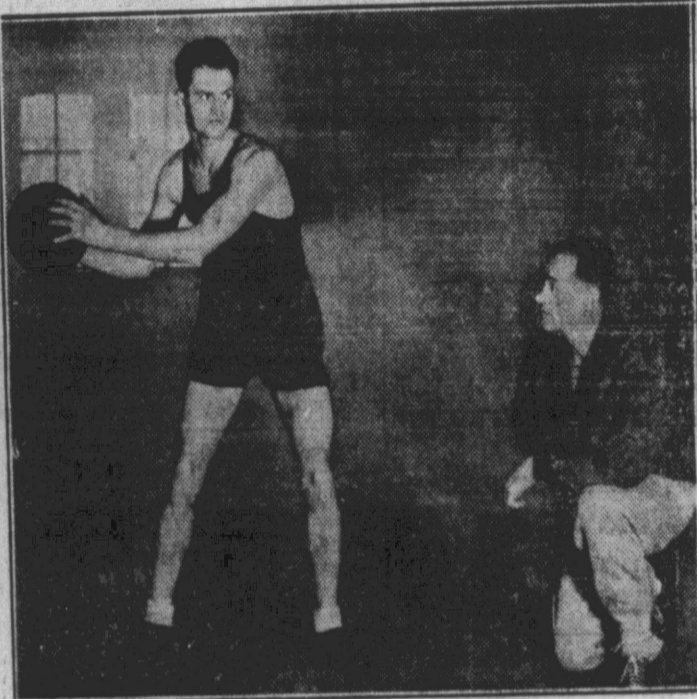

Despite the crush of important legislation facing the short session of Congress, the race for Speakership of the new House is commanding a tention. Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois; Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee; John McDuffie, of Alabama, and John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, are a closely seeking the post while others are being mentioned. The selection probably will not be made until March.

By CECIL DICKSON
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 20.—

(AP)—The powerful post of Speaker in the new or 73rd Congress is being actively sought by four leading Democrats or varying views.

Another quartet of possible contenders may enter the field before a selection is made at a Democratic caucus probably in March. Despite the time remaining before the actual selection, the importance of the post is such that it probably will command much attention at the present short session.

The office will be vacated by Speaker John N. Garner on March 4 when he becomes Vice-President and presiding officer of the Senate. Candidates already in the race are Representatives Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader; Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, chairman of the important Appropriations Committee; John McDuffie, of Alabama, party whip, and John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, chairman of the veterans' committee.

Others May Seek Post
The possible contenders are Representatives Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; John J. O'Conner, of New York, and Arthur H. Greenwood, of Indiana, both members of the rules group.

Garner was elected Speaker a year ago when the Democrats seized the House from twelve years of Republican control. The Texan was the first Democratic Speaker since the late Champ Clark, of Missouri, who wielded the gavel during the Wilson administrations.

All Are Veterans
Both Rainey and Byrns are veterans of a quarter of a century of service in the House. McDuffie, Rankin and other contenders are all of long time service, but entered Congress after the World War period.

Coming to Congress twenty-eight years ago, Rainey became leader in the present House after establishing a reputation as a student of domestic and international affairs. A large energetic man of 73 years, he is distinguished by his shock of snowy white hair, his ability as a debater and knowledge of tariff and revenue legislation.

Byrns has been elected for his thirteenth term from the Sixth Tennessee District. Besides heading the biggest committee in Congress, he has been chairman of Democratic National Congressional Committee for four years.

The Tennessean, tall and quiet spoken, is reputed to have the best knowledge of governmental expenditures of any member of Congress. In debate, he handles himself ably.

McDuffie, representing the First Alabama District, has been in Congress fourteen years. He has been an ardent advocate and vigorous defender of Democratic principles. Because of his close acquaintance with legislative problems, he was made whip several years ago.

Rankin has been a doughty supporter of cash payment of his soldiers' bonus and inflation of currency. He has fought the sales tax. The Mississippian has support in the liberal wing of the party.

Warren has been mentioned as Speakership timber because of the manner in which he has presided over the House during trying times in the last session.

O'Conner has been boomed by friends from Eastern States. A new England group has suggested McCormack, and several in the Indiana delegation are espousing the cause of Greenwood.

The wedding vows were spoken before an improvised altar of trailing ivy and myrtle interspersed with snuggly and cathedral candles.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Dink James of Greenville, sang "Serenade" by Franz Schubert, and "All For You" by Bertrand Brown. She was accompanied by Miss Eugenia Thomas, also of Greenville.

As the bride and groom entered, Miss Thomas played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and during the ceremony McDowell's "To a Wild Rose."

JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS CHRISTMAS MEETING

On Tuesday afternoon the Junior Woman's Club held a delightful meeting at the Woman's Club, with Mrs. C. W. Porter, Mrs. Jack Spain and Miss Evelyn Hart as hostesses.

In the assembly room a festive scene was created by its appointments of Christmas decorations.

The club was happy to have as guests for the afternoon, Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. James Kirkpatrick, Mrs. James Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick and Mrs. W. E. Padgett of Greensboro.

At the beginning of the program Mrs. Kirkpatrick beautifully sang two Christmas songs, "Under the Stars" and "Silent Night."

Mrs. Porter then introduced Mrs. B. L. Smith, guest speaker for the afternoon, who gave a delightfully interesting talk on "Dolls." She traced the origin of dolls and cited many unusual instances concerning their use in religious customs in the theatre of marionettes, and in business as models for clothes. She had on exhibit a large number of dolls, many of which she had collected while touring abroad and in the United States and about which she told us some very amusing details.

Another feature of principal interest and most appropriate to this occasion was the scene of the "Nativity" arranged by Mrs. Smith. These exquisite figurines came from Germany. This little tableau so deep in its spiritual meaning reflected in the hearts of all who viewed it the wonder of that ageless story of the first Christmas.

At the conclusion of this lovely program, the hostesses served delectable refreshments.

Mrs. C. C. Hilton presided over a short business session. Mrs. George Hadley, chairman of the campaign to raise milk for the undernourished school children of the city schools, reported $69.10 collected to date. Another report will be made at the next meeting.

The club voted to sponsor a Junior Woman's Club Day at Blount-Harvey Co. on Saturday, Dec. 31st, Mrs. Thomas Clifton and Mrs. Jesse Moye volunteered to act as chairman and assistant chairman.

The members decided to sell Christmas seals at the post office during Christmas week. The money made from this sale will help to pay a Pitt county charity patient's expenses at the State Sanatorium. Mrs. James Patterson was appointed chairman of this sale.

Thirty-five members attended this meeting of the club.

Birthday Party. Thursday, December 22, the home of Mrs. S. R. Ross on Olanche street was the scene of much merriment, the occasion being the third birthday of little Margaret Willis, who entertained a few of her friends. She received lots of nice presents and all had a nice time playing around a lovely Christmas tree. After the games the children were served ice cream and cake by Misses Kathleen Whitehead and Leah Mildred Ross. Each one declared they had had a good time and were given souvenirs of the party to take home with them.

PARTY AND CHRISTMAS TREE AT PARISH HOUSE

St. Paul's Episcopal Church will have a Christmas tree and party for the children of the parish tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

$35 For Empty Stocking Fund

Thirty-five dollars is the total amount raised up to the present to care for many families appealing to the Salvation Army headquarters on Evans street for a Christmas basket. The Christmas tree will be at the church on Dickinson avenue next Monday night at 7 o'clock.

Back From Conference

T. Y. Walker, manager of State Theatre, returned last night from Charlotte, where he attended a conference of theatre owners of the Carolinas. He reported a fine trip and said much interest was manifested in the further development of the moving picture business in the two states.

STATE WILL GIVE KIDDIES CHRISTMAS PARTY TOMORROW

Get ready boys and girls! Tomorrow is the day for the State Theatre's annual Christmas party, given especially for you. The time is 10:30 and every youngster from five to fifteen is invited to be on hand for the fun. You won't have to have a ticket. Just show a great big smile on your face and walk right in when the doors open.

"Sooky" featuring Jackie Cooper, will be the main screen attraction. Jackie Cooper plays a role in "Sooky" that every child will love, and for that reason it was selected to be shown at your party. Besides the picture there will be stunts and singing of Christmas songs. You're certain of a good time, so don't fail to be present when the fun begins!

At a food matinee Wednesday State Theatre raised a considerable amount of food to be distributed among the poor during the holidays. The building was packed to capacity by children who were admitted free of charge upon presenting some article of food.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Quietly and without show, in the short space of a year, a newcomer to the Senate has forged ahead to such a place of prominence among the Democratic leadership "on the hill" that nearly everybody is watching him and speculating.

He is James Francis Byrnes, of South Carolina, the short slender and very earnest man who sits in the seat formerly occupied by the colorful and picturesque "Coley" Blease.

While Byrnes is a newcomer to the Senate, he is not new in Congress, for he had served fourteen years as a member of the House.

Senator Byrnes' feet were solidly on legislative ground before he began his Senate duties in December, 1931. A place was found for him immediately on the Appropriations Committee, because he had served on that committee as a member of the House.

In Salary Cut Fight

Last session during the hectic battle in Congress over salary cuts for Federal employees, Byrnes was out in front carrying the brunt of the fight for the Democrats.

He impressed the Senate, particularly the members of his own party. They came to see him as an expert in effecting compromises on legislation, and recognized his ability to bring warring factions into line.

When the short session began political observers began to notice that Byrnes was always around when important conferences on policy and procedure were being discussed by the Democrats. They noticed that when Joe Robinson, the Democratic leader, gave a conference to newspapermen he was there sitting alongside Robinson. They heard rumors that when the Democrats held their caucus early in the session, Byrnes sat at the head of the table with Robinson.

They saw Governor Roosevelt's adviser, Professor Moley, seek him out when the President-elect's train stopped here en route to Albany from Warm Springs and confer with him for a long time. And they remembered that Byrnes himself had been to Roosevelt's Georgia retreat to confer with the Governor.

SANTA and the MAGIC DOLL by SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: Inga and Pincocchio bring back Santa's keys which had been stolen by a dwarf who is sorry and becomes one of Santa's workmen. Meanwhile Pincocchio is worried that no little child will want him on Christmas.

Chapter XVII SANTA READS HIS MAIL. By that time it had grown so close to Christmas—just as it is today—that all the toys were very excited thinking about the children they would shortly belong to.

Mail was coming to Santa from children so fast that he had to give over one big room just to opening the letters.

You should see how he handled the letters. Each night his reindeers and sleighs flash down over our cities and towns, and some of his assistants jump out and pick up letters to Santa.

When Santa gets them he sorts them all out.

"Ho, there!" he shouts, as he opens each letter "A baby doll and a story book for a little girl! And a toyshop elf rushes off to the huge shelves and gets down the toys for the little girl.

"Ho, there!" shouts Santa again, "roller skates and a baseball for a little boy who I know has been very good to his small sister this year. Find a very good pair of skates."

And another elf rushes off to get into the order.

But through all the hustle-bustle of this particular year, there was one letter that was sad.

It was Pincocchio who had curled up on top of a pile of toy beds where he sat locking morosely out on the scene.

Not a single letter Santa received asked for a toy clown. Pincocchio listened hard and long, but never once did there seem to be any little children who wanted such a homely, good-natured little toy as a clown.

His little face with its long nose that was ordinarily so happy was pulled into long lines, and sometimes a big tear rolled down his cheeks. He looked so hurt when the handsome tin soldiers had their daily drill. And worse, there were so many letters asking for soldiers.

"Ho, hum," Pincocchio said to the hill "in the future remains to be seen.

Some are inclined to believe that Robinson may rely on Byrnes heavily from now on; that while he will remain titular head of the party in the Senate, much of the actual work will be shifted to the South Carolinian.

The Republicans have an arrangement like that now. Jim Watson is the floor leader, but Charles McNary, of Oregon, is the man to whom many turn for the "lowdown" on what is going on. Watson leaves the greater part of the detail of procedure to the Oregonian.

Storm Starts 15 Forest Fires

Yosemite, Calif., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Forest fires caused less damage this season than last, but thirteen of the twenty-four fires started by lightning during the year in this park were started by a single storm, within eighteen hours. Careless smokers started only nine.

GLOOMY PROSPECT FOR KERR AS FOURTEEN LETTERMEN LEAVE

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Now that all the hub-bub about Colgate's Red Raiders has died down and their record of going through the season unbeaten, untied and unscathed on is a matter of history, Coach Andy Kerr is going some plain and fancy thinking as he contemplates the loss of fourteen lettermen, including seven first team players.

Of course, Kerr's immediate objective is preparing the "All-East" team to meet an "All-West" team on the coast, but that doesn't prevent his looking forward to next fall and wondering what the record will be this time next year.

MOTOR COMPANY SUED FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

Goldboro, N. C., Dec. 23.—Suit for $10,000 against the Matthews Motor Company has been filed in Wayne Superior Court by George Thomas for injuries alleged to have been received in an automobile accident on September 21 of this year.

The plaintiff alleges that the car in which he was riding with Mrs. Josephine Kaleel, Raymond Kaleel, and Mike Gaymon, and a truck belonging to the defendant company and driven by Stanley Moore, employee of the company, collided on Highway No. 40 a few miles south of Goldboro. He charges that the truck was on the wrong side of the road and was being driven in a careless and reckless manner. Mrs. Kaleel and Raymond Kaleel have already entered suit against the same company.

ABOUT TOWN

President Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt don't think alike on questions of paramount importance to the nation at this time and they will probably be delayed until the new president goes into office.

The most important of these issues is the war debt. Some hoped the matter might be settled to the satisfaction of the nation immediately but the divergence of opinion existing between the leaders has caused the prospect of definite action to fade immediately.

Probably this is as it should be. The Democrats have been empowered to run the country for another four years and Mr. Roosevelt should be free hand without having to change some of the things done by the Hoover administration at the last moment.

Democratic leaders even at this time are busy formulating plans for administration activities and when they get some of them into action it is likely there will be a pronounced change in conditions affecting this and other nations also.

Greenville can be counted upon to do its bit by the poor on Christmas as well as other parts of the year.

Hundreds of packages will be turned over to poor families during the week-end. The major part of them are being collected by the Salvation Army and when they have been distributed it is hoped every needy person in the country will be provided for temporarily. Children especially will be made happy by activities of the fire department working in conjunction with the Salvation Army.

The spirit of Christmas will permeate many cheerless firesides as a result of the work of benevolent organizations and their leaders should be congratulated for what they have been able to accomplish.

The new County Board of Commissioners is to be congratulated for its efforts to improve conditions at the poor house.

The hiring of a matron to help preserve the health of the inmates through greater sanitation is a very commendable move and should be backed up by any other improvements which the commissioners may deem necessary.

The life of dependents of the public is not anything to brag about at the best and the commissioners would continue their effort to make them as comfortable as possible.

Money may be tight but it carries no terror for those who have been struck by one of Cupid's darts. Operating extensively in this section at this time, Cupid has sent the altar one of the largest crops of couples in sometime and if this is an indicator of what is to come, it could be something of record for marriages during the holidays.

This spirit of courage should be applied to those who have been driving back because of lack of gas. The pioneering spirit evidently has struck the country in its field as well as in others and results to be obtained should be reaching in every sense of the word.

Roads will be congested with traffic during the approaching holiday season and people who travel from one part of the country to the other should drive with unusual care.

Numbers of accidents have occurred recently and more will happen unless we realize the danger of too much speed and slow down when traffic is heavy or there is a chance of getting through safely.

Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Adams Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: With Lela Cane helping from the background, Farrell Armitage persuades Barbara Quentin to go to a dance with him a few hours after he accidentally meets her. Farrell has told Lela, who had expected him to propose to her, that even though Barbara is engaged to marry the cruel and crippled Mark Lodely in five days, she will marry Farrell instead! Twenty years before Farrell's fortune had been badly invested by the law firm of Quentin, Lodely and Cane; restoring it ruined the firm and caused the death of Barbara's and Mark's fathers, although James Cane prospered. All this is in the aid as Mark shows Farrell some of his sketches, and Barbara dresses for the dance.

Chapter 11 HELPING MARK

"Yes," said Armitage. "This is good. That isn't. I mean, I don't care for it; its sentiment seems to me false. I'm no critic, of course, any my philistine judgments will probably get me thrown out of your house; but, in the meantime, I'll buy what I like."

He had let the word fall with great negligence. "Buy!" His eyes rested on one of Mark's thin hands and he saw the muscles stiffen for a second. Then he passed to his next point.

"You must forgive my curiosity, but why in the world does one find you in Kings Mallard when there are Paris and London? Or Rome?" The thin hand, still a little unsteady, indicated the crutch propped against a wall.

"It's not forbidden to use a crutch in Paris or Rome or even in London," reasoned Armitage pleasantly, putting aside the three small landscapes on which his choice had fallen.

"Ah, but here in Kings Mallard we have a house to garage the crutch in," explained the artist. "In London, we shouldn't even have the traditional garret. Traditional garrets, in London, come very expensive."

"Also," his fair eyes gleamed in the freelight as he made one of his baffled movements—"I knew pretty accurately how good I am; which is to say that I know how good I might have become if there had been money enough to take me and my crutch out of Kings Mallard. Those landscapes—" he touched Armitage's selection—"are quite nice; quite distinguished. But they don't quite begin to represent my real work."

"Do you do any portraits?" Mark smiled. "I've tried some portraits."

Armitage, quietly opening his check-book, was remembering Lela's answer to the same query. "Portraits—yes. When he feels cruel enough." There was, however, no cruelty for the moment visible in the curve of Mark's pale, rather pouting lips. He seemed, at the most, amused by his recollections. Armitage made out a check that was neither charitably large nor timidly small.

"What are you going to do with the landscapes?" asked Mark, accepting the check with examination. "You may not be no critic, but you know enough not to hang them near your others."

"I'll take your advice on the matter."

"How can I give it when I haven't seen—"

"But of course, I hoped you would come and see. If you and Mrs. Lodely would stay with me in town for a bit, I should be delighted. My house is in Brandish Place—I'm going back there tomorrow. Would next Thursday suit you?"

He rose, his purchase under his arm. His attitude was now at its most negligent, but he was immensely alert. Mark, so far so easily handled, might suddenly from some unaccountable instinct sense a purpose behind this friendliness. He held his breath. He wondered, blatedly, if outspokenness would, after all, have been better. "I want to take your girl from you—your Barbara. I warn you, I'm going to try." Something like that? He gazed steadily at the thin figure upon the couch.

"No," said Mark, sighing. "I'm afraid next Thursday isn't possible."

"Too bad! Well, we must fix up something else—some other time—"

Armitage became amiably vague. "I'm leaving the country for the winter months, but no doubt we shall meet again." He looked at his watch. "I say, Miss Quentin's been waiting four minutes already!"

"She won't mind if you tell her you've been buying my pictures." Mark's lids had fallen again, and he was tearing a dingy thread from the rug that covered him. "She has the business head of the family. As a matter of fact, next Thursday—"

He paused for so long that Armitage was on the verge of some saving commonplace.

"As a matter of fact," insisted Mark suddenly and violently throwing aside the rug. "I can come up on Thursday, if you're still kind enough to ask me. God knows when I shall ever get the chance of a holiday from Toxeter, once I'm there! . . . It's most extraordinarily decent of you to be willing to put up with me."

Armitage took a deep breath. He drew away from the fire, which seemed to be making the room far too hot and took another breath, even deeper. It meant such a lot, this postponement of Thursday's ceremony! It meant, among other things, that one need never, whatever happened, feel any compunction towards Mark Lodely.

"I'll send a car down, then," he said cheerfully. "You'll prefer to travel by road; less fatiguing. By the way, what do you consider your 'real work'?"

"Caricature," answered Mark. He had drawn himself up to a sitting position and pitched the rug to the floor. His pale eyes glittered, his hair straggled over his forehead, his shoulders twitched. He looked Armitage thought, as though he had been hurled earthwards from some distant star and had fallen crumpled. "Caricature," he repeated. "I suppose it'll sicken you, but I'm good at savaging people. I like it, it's meat and drink to me. There's something in my psychology—"

"Then you must meet McLoughlin," suggested Armitage, dodging discussion of the artistic psyche. "You know his work, of course. I'm fortunate in possessing two of his most slashing efforts at myself; also, his friendship. . . . We must arrange something."

"Till Thursday, then."

Making his way gingerly down the ill-lit, cluttered staircase, Armitage began to lose his sense of success. Barbara's smile, the smile she had given Mark, was before his eyes. It shut him out completely. Of what significance was it to cause the marriage to be postponed, so long as Mark alone could call that sweetness to her eyes and lips? . . . He turned the last corner and saw Barbara below him in the hall.

Traveling Salesman Was Almost Ruined

Greenville, Miss.—W. A. Huber, recently said: "Traveling day and night and eating in cafes and hotels had a lot to do with my case I know, but I was in mighty bad shape. Constipation had practically ruined me. I took every kind of laxative I ever heard of, but they only aggravated my trouble. When I started taking Sargon Soft Mass Pills I just had to drag myself out of bed and through the day. The treatment not only relieved me but I have actually gained 35 pounds in weight."

STATE QUINT TO TIGHTEN IT'S DEFENSE

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 23.—Tighten the defense will be Coach Ray B. Sermon's big objective when he meets the N. C. State College basketball quint on December 27 to renew training for the seventeen game schedule just ahead.

Coach Sermon was pleased with the fast-breaking offense shown by the Red Terrors in their opening game with Atlantic Christian College, but said the players showed a laxity and slowness in guarding near the free-throw line.

State roled up 50 points to the 39 made by Atlantic Christian. The majority of the visitors points were the result of long shots from near the free-throw line as it is a Terror defense was air-tight near the basket.

Sermon has indicated he will hold two drills a day until the opening of school on January 3. The holiday drills will be Sermon's only opportunity to work with the squad before the Red Terrors open the 1933 season with George Washington University's court quint in Washington on January 4. The next day the Terrors will play Catholic University also in Washington.

Returning home, State will meet Furman University on January 7 in the first of seven home games scheduled for the winter.

Seven of the Terrors this year are members of the Southern Conference. They are: Duke, North Carolina, V. P. I., Washington and Lee, V. M. I., University of Virginia and South Carolina. Two games will be played with Duke, Carolina and V. P. I.

LeRoy Jay with 12 points and George Beaghen with nine, led State's scoring in the Atlantic Christian game. Jay alternated at center and forward, and Beaghen played center. Both are new comers to the varsity. Sermon used fifteen men in the game and eight broke into the scoring column.

North Carolina State's five home football games this fall drew 12,800 more people than the four home games drew in 1931.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 23.—The aerial game that University of North Carolina eleven have featured for the last several years is not without its background.

The Carolina team of 1895 is credited with being the first team in the country to use a forward pass in a regular game, and that pass netted a 6 to 0 victory, over Georgia although the pass was not legalized by the rules committee until 1905.

G. H. Paulsen, "dean of the laundry" and ardent exponent of sports prowess at the University of North Carolina, recalled the story today, and had as his authority no less a sports figure than John W. Heisman, one of America's greatest coaches. Here is Mr. Heisman's own story:

"It was away back in 1895 that I was watching a bitter struggle between Georgia and North Carolina. North Carolina had the ball, her back pressing her own goal. Perhaps she couldn't win, but she could see to it that Georgia didn't. The thing to do, the North Carolina quarterback estimated, was to get that ball far down the field—and hold 'em, hold 'em, hold 'em."

Jack O'P North did it. The North Carolina fullback retreated until the cross-bar of his goal was above his head and from the Georgia stands came the exhortation to "block it, block it, block it."

"And Georgia's forwards, gathering alal their waning strength and riding over North Carolina's tired defense, might have blocked it and even scored had the sturdy boy from North Carolina kicked."

"But, instead of punting straight into the leaping bodies of these on-rushing Georgians, he ran a few steps to the right. Raising the ball to his shoulders he tossed it. Luck was with the boy. The ball was caught by a North Carolinian. Now, as we today know forward passes, it was not much. It traveled a few yards, and laterally as well as forward. It may have appeared to the spectators that it had been knocked from that fullback's hands.

"At any rate, the lad who caught it ran 70 yards for a touchdown.

"Georgia was stunned, not quite realizing what had happened there beneath North Carolina's goal. But Glenn Warner, then coaching Georgia, had not missed a moment of it. And neither had I. I had been standing not more than eight yards from North Carolina's fullback.

"I had seen the first forward pass in football. It was illegal, of course. Already Warner was storming at the referee. But the referee had not seen the North Carolina lad, goaded to desperation, toss the ball. And he refused to recall the ball. A touchdown had been made and a touchdown it remained.

CREDIT HEELS WITH MAKING FIRST PASSES

The boys in Bloomington, Indiana, want to know (1) Why Paul Moss of Purdue should be an All-America end in view of the fact he does the punting, instead of going down under the kicks to do the tackling; and (2) why Notre Dame took advantage of Army by playing two tough games prior to the battle with the soldiers, who had a brace of "breathers" before having the breath knocked out of them altogether by the Ramblers.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

You must study your geography to understand why this critical attitude is not at the same time a species of disloyalty to the home products of the State of Indiana.

Bloomington, where the University of Indiana is located, is some forty or fifty miles south of Indianapolis, in a region of foothills marking the "farthest south" of the ancient glacial movement.

Purdue and Notre Dame are in the northern part of the State, relatively speaking, and come under the heading of natural rivals to the folks who live in Bloomington. The principal movements associated with Purdue and Notre Dame are those of high-powered backfields, lugging the old pigskin.

He Did Very Well

So far as young Mr. Moss is concerned, my scouts report neither he nor Purdue was handicapped by his inability at all times to tackle the receiver under his own punts. At that, Moss was so fast getting down the field that he frequently became involved in the tackling or blocking incident to the play which originated with his own kick.

He performed alal the duties and requirements otherwise to the complete satisfaction of critics throughout the Big Ten, as well as elsewhere. He gave metropolitan football fans a treat with his play against the Biocets of New York University. He caught passes, blocked opposing tackles and tangled up rival interference. Big and ransy his all-around work easily made him the standout end of the year.

Bruises Or Breathers?

The question of whether Notre Dame or Army was to blame for what happened out in front of 90,000 spectators in a freezing day in late November, at the Yankee Stadium, is not for us to settle. Notre Dame certainly was all

"taught-up" up for that game, after playing Northwestern and Navy on preceding Saturdays. Army's regulars had experienced less than five minutes of actual competition during the same preparatory period, but this was calculated to have every one in the soldier line-up in abetted condition, rather than to soften them up.

Perhaps this was a mistake and they should have been worked harder or been given more raw meat beforehand. Certainly, bruises and all, the Cadets did better against Navy than against Notre Dame.
