LAUNDRYMAN HELD UP. COMES OUT CONQUEROR

Lexington, Jan. 6.—Edgar Sheets, joint proprietor and bookkeeper of a local laundry, came out best in a desperate struggle with an unknown negro who attempted to hold him up with a heavy hammer as Mr. Sheets emerged from the laundry office at 11 o'clock Tuesday night. Mr. Sheets told police he grappled with the negro before the latter could strike and the negro threw him. He beat his assailant about the head with a flashlight, drawing blood, then managed to kick him off. The negro ran and Mr. Sheets fired twice with a pistol he had not before been able to bring into action. The hammer was dropped by the fugitive, and appears the only clue except possible wounds made by the flashlight.

CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITY HERE SLOWS DOWN

Only About Half As Much Building in the City Last Year as in Previous Year.

Construction work dropped sharply in Greenville during the past year as compared with the last three years, the annual report of Chief of Police George Clark, who also issues permits for new buildings, showed today.

Total construction work for 1932, including repairs, was given as $52,150 compared with $135,590 the previous year and $100,000 for 1930. Construction activities reached its highest peak here in 1929 when new buildings and repairs went above the $500,000 mark.

Twenty-six permits were issued for the construction of new buildings during the past year. Eighteen of these were for residences, the most expensive costing $8,000 and the least expensive $100.

In the commercial field the erection of a new ice plant in the western section of the city at a cost of $8,000 was among the most important building activities in this phase of industry.

Other buildings consisted of three filling stations in different sections of the city, two small garages and office building and a store. The largest of the filling stations cost $5,000.

Twenty-four permits for repairs on stores, residences and other buildings were issued, the largest costing $7,200. Other jobs ranged all the way from $100 to $1,000.

The rebuilding of a tobacco warehouse destroyed by fire boosted the building program to no little extent.

As an unusually important one this session. ASK TAXES TO RUN SCHOOLS

County Officials Ask Patrons to Pay their Taxes and Help Run Schools Full Term.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, in its session Tuesday, considered the question of supporting the extended term in the thirteen school districts of the county and thought it best to present to the public certain problems that arise in connection with the continued operation of the county schools beyond the constitutional six months' term which will end near the last of March. The financial support of the six months' term is furnished by the State, whereas, current expenses for the operation beyond this term must be provided for by the local agencies. The only source of revenue for running the seventh and eighth months of the county schools is local taxes. Since it is impossible for the Board of Commissioners to borrow funds wherewith to operate schools, it is necessary to depend upon collections of moneys from current tax levies. The county officials, therefore, wish to assure the public of their interest in the schools and to urge patrons and friends to render their support through payment of their taxes during the months of January, February and March. This announcement is being made, approximately, three months before the actual call for local funds will be made. It is a certainty, however, that final decision of the Board of Education and the Board of Commissioners will be based upon the co-operation from the various local districts in contributing their taxes for school support.

LONDON TALKS OF COOLIDGE

Papers Comment On Death of Former President of United States.

London, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The passing of Calvin Coolidge was the outstanding item of the front pages of today's London newspapers which printed several obituaries as several editorialized.

Views were also expressed that Coolidge had not displayed, or had not the opportunity to display, great political capacity.

The London Times remarked editorially that it was a singular misfortune that made him President in a period of unprecedented prosperity.

It continued: "He owed it more to luck than to his wisdom that he did not occupy the White House during the years of misery and ruin."

TAX OFFICE HAS MOVED

County Department Moves from Second Floor to First Floor at Courthouse.

The Pitt County Tax Department which for the last two years has been located on the second floor of the courthouse back of the courtroom, has moved into the auditor's office on the first floor of the building.

The task of moving equipment from the second floor was completed this morning, and members of the department had just about gotten straightened out in preparation for business.

The department is located in that section of the auditor's office known as the commissioners' room. Folding doors separate the room from the auditor's office proper and affords complete privacy for both departments.

Preston Pierce, former assistant tax collector, was named head of the department to succeed R. L. Barnhill, of Bethel, at the initial session of the new Board of Commissioners in December. Barnhill's time was to have expired the first of this month, but he was retained another month because preparations for transfer of the office were not completed by the first of the year.

The Board of Commissioners in conjunction with the Department of Education has called upon the public to pay up their taxes during the next few months to enable the county to go through with its extended eight months' school term. The State supports the schools for six months, but the county two months are paid for by the county.

With financial conditions more straitened at this time than they have been in years, the two boards at a conference last Tuesday decided to call on patrons of the schools to pay their taxes as early as possible and help defray expenses of the extended term.

The winner of the fourteenth annual state high school music contest in the violin event at Greensboro, N. C., next April will receive a handmade violin as a trophy.

HOPE TO AVOID EXTRA MEET OF BODY IN SPRING

Plan Calls for Increase in Income Taxes, Enactment of Levy on Beer, Continuation of Gasoline Tax and $100,000,000 Slash in Appropriations; President-Elect Declines Comment.

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A Democratic program to balance the budget now without the necessity of an extra session of the new Congress this spring have been evolved here at a conference between President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt and Congressional leaders.

It calls for increase in income taxes; enactment of the proposed levy of 3.2 per cent beer; continuation of gasoline taxes and a $100,000,000 slash in appropriations.

The new tax plan provides for a boost in the normal income tax rate from 4 per cent on incomes under $4,000 and 8 per cent in incomes above that.

Mr. Roosevelt, who has banned the sales tax recommended by President Hoover, made the proposals at a conference last night.

In a formal talk with newspapermen he declined to comment except to say he did not disagree with the suggestions for legislation of Democrats who said the Hoover estimate of the Federal deficit was $492,000,000, and that they accepted it and would base their calculations accordingly.

SEES EARLY APPROVAL OF REPEAL PLAN

Leaders Predict The Measure will Pass at This Session of Congress.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Forecast of early Senate approval of the resolution to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment came from leaders today as sharp division of opinion developed among friends of prohibition.

Senator McNairy predicted the measure, which was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, would pass at this session of Congress, and his view as echoed by others.

The full committee will consider the proposal Monday.

The split among former leading dry supporters in that branch was emphasized by a statement from Senator Fess, of Ohio, intimating he would vote for the resolution.

"That does not differ in the main from the Republican position which I shall support," Fess said.

Others indicating they would vote for the resolution included Senator Hastings and Senator Ashurst.

Shift In Crime Expected If Whiskey Is Legalized

By HERBERT YAHRAES, Jr.

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—What would happen in the field of crime if the sale of liquor should be legalized?

The report of the President's Research Committee on Social Trends, published after three years of work by more than 500 investigators, many of them eminent sociologists, has this to say:

"If the huge sum acquired by organized criminals from the illegal liquor traffic are shut off, two immediate effects may be expected.

"(1) Organized criminals will pursue their professions more vigorously in other fields of crime, such as the drug traffic, burglary, racketeering and kidnaping and, in addition, they will develop new types of organized crime.

"(2) They will probably secure less profit than they do from the liquor traffic, and because of lack of funds will be less successful in recruiting munitions from the police and the courts. Consequently, the large scale organizations will tend to break down."

The section of the report dealing with crime and punishment was written by Edwin H. Sutherland, of the University of Chicago, and C. E. Gehlke, of Western Reserve University. The whole study was under the direction of a committee named by President Hoover in 1929.

The committee's main conclusions were that the varied directions and forces of the social trends now affecting American life must be integrated or else the nation will face greater difficulties with the possibility of a dictatorship.

"Organized crime," the authors state, "will probably continue."

"No reduction is in sight in the number of crimes, either major or minor," they say, "but the fact that the major crimes reached an approximate level in 1925 which has been maintained since that time indicates that we need expect no great increase in them in the immediate future."

The report finds no support "for the belief that an immense crime wave has engulfed the United States."

Talks to Parents

THE GREATEST FEAR

By Alice Judson Peas
The greatest fear of childhood is that of losing parental love—for in infancy that love means food, warmth, comfort, safety. Its withdrawal is, therefore, a threat to existence itself.

The fear which the child experiences after he has done wrong is more than a fear of punishment, for punishment today is seldom really physically painful. Rather it is a fear that his fault will cause his parents to cease loving him. This he feels simply but profoundly would be catastrophic.

Since then the child's great fear is that his parents will not love him if he behaves other than they wish, he comes to fear not only the consequences of his acts, but of such of his own impulses as he knows would meet with their disapproval.

Most of all does he fear his impulses of hate and aggression, especially when they are directed toward the parents themselves which they have checked or punished or frustrated him. For these desires he rightly feels that only the most terrible retribution is possible.

Many of the bad dreams which cause children to wake screaming in the night, much of what merely looks like physical timidity, are discovered upon close examinations to be an expression of the child's fear of his own bad wishes.

Children who are subjected to especially rigorous discipline are likely to suffer the most from this kind of fear. Not only do they see that much that they would like to do is considered wicked, but their own resentment at being so frequently balked gives rise to an extra amount of hate which in turn increases the element of fear.

Fluctuations in Royalties for Oil Basis of Persian-British Dispute

But it was a fluctuating revenue and the Shah's government sought greater and more stable benefit from the underground wealth. The payments have ranged from around $2,000,000 to more than $7,000,000 each, the top figure being reached in 1927 and 1928. In 1930 it was about $6,000,000, but last June Persia was told that the indicated figure for 1931 was about $1,000,000.

Persia refused to accept this, and several months of dispute culminated in the November cancellation.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York, Jan. 5.—Visitors to Chinatown who stop to think at all about what they see and don't see always ask the same question: "Aren't there any women down here?"

There are very few Chinese women in Chinatown. A liberal estimate of their number is 250, and the chances are 50-50 that the visitor won't get a glimpse of a single one of them in his sight-seeing rush.

Most out-of-towners make a night dash through the few blocks that constitute New York's Chinatown. And the women are not to be seen until recently they were seldom seen on the streets by day.

Modern influences have brought the activities of Chinatown's women into the daylight—but only to a limited extent. As a group they have taken some part in the work to relieve victims of clashes with Japanese troops. As individuals they have come out of their seclusion to do the family marketing—hitherto left to their husbands. But it's a rare sight to find a Chinese woman so much as dining in one of the restaurants of the area after nightfall.

It is doubtful that a thousand Chinese women could be counted in all of the city. In the census of 1930, only 8,414 Chinese of both sexes could be accounted for in all New York. The men prevail in about an eight to one ratio.

Chinatown Today

That part of our little Chinatown which is open to the stranger offers some novelty but small chance for thrills. The novelty is confined to a few shops dealing in curios and strange foods, the bulletin board of a Chinese-language newspaper, Joss houses and restaurants which, after all, are pretty much like Chinese restaurants uptown.

RETURN FROM TOUR OF RUSSIA

Alva Christensen (left) and Mary L. De Givie of Atlanta are shown as they arrived in New York after an adventurous automobile tour of Soviet Russia. As for thrills there's always a faint—very faint—possibility that a long war might break out under the visitor's nose. Nobody can tell when these infrequent bloody parties are coming off, or whether they'll ever come off any more.

Then there are some forbidding doorways that seem to hold some promise of a move version of Chinatown inside—but, stranger, I'll lay you one hundred to one that you won't see behind those doors.

The denizens you'll see are content to mind their own affairs and have you mind yours—unless, of course, you want to buy a back-scratcher or a package of tea.

Leading citizens cherish their respectability and are quick to resent an affront upon it. Not so long ago a motion picture was being made, showing different phases of New York police work. The mistake was made of including a raid on a Chinatown dope den, and New York officials had to apologize to Chinatown for suggesting that such things happen.

Redress For Debt? All I know about it is what I hear from Kiviette, the costumier, but she is convinced that the war debt situation has done something to the women who pay big money for their clothes.

Some of those who preferred the output of Paris salons are not so much inclined that way since all the uproar about the debts, says Kiviette. She finds ritzy New York women giving more patronage to American designers.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 5.—When a writer of the distinction of G. B. Stern arrives in Hollywood to work on pictures, the town's dormant inferiority complex where all true literary celebrity is concerned stirs uneasily.

Hollywood has met distinguished novelists before, often to its discomfort. From some of them recently Ernest Hemingway joined the list with his refusal to look at the film version of "A Farewell to Arms". It has taken heavy slaps.

Miss Stern, however, promises to be different.

In the first place she is interested in talking pictures and not merely in seeing her own novels transferred to the screen, although arrangements may be made to that end before she leaves four months hence to return to Europe, novel-writing, and collaboration on a play with Michael Arlen.

Film Work Appeals

In the second place, she admits that one of the reasons she is in Hollywood is to make some money. Then again, she says that for a long time she has wanted to see America, and she came not only because the work appealed to her, but also because

ABOUT TOWN

The legislature didn't lose much time getting started on the state-wide demand for reduction of expenses of the operation of government.

Naming a committee yesterday, the solons instructed its members to determine what departments could be eliminated or consolidated. The committee is to report in February and its findings will largely influence action of the legislature.

It is generally believed that there are too many commissions in Raleigh but whether that is so remains to be seen. The committee certainly will not fail to report any overlapping of departments, and will do with other plans looking to balancing of the budget. One of the most monumental problems to be considered this term.

The special sub-committee named by the house to study the resolution to repeal the dry law has reported favorably and the measure will now go before congress for action.

While the Democratic party is pledged to bring about a change of the prohibition laws there will be many who will be reluctant to vote repeal although they might vote for some minor changes looking to modification.

The problem is one of the most mooted before congress and probably will appreciate many bitter battles before a definite decision has finally been reached.

Congressional action barring a repeal of the saloon will be sought if the measure passes, but that will be a little good. A renaissance of the old-time saloon would be impossible anyway with changing conditions in the business world, but improved methods of selling the beverage could be able to do for the country exactly what the saloon did.

The plan of William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, to bring about acceptance of the five-day week and six-hour day seems to be rather too drastic for the country, confronted as it is with one of the worst employment situations in history.

The calling of strikes to force the hand down the throats of employers may have its effect on certain classes of labor, but others it will be unable to touch.

First convince the employers that it is absolute necessity for a man of this kind and he will accept it much quicker than trying to force it on him.

Strikes are the last thing in the world we would call for at this time and the head of the American Federation of Labor should be the last to even propose such action. A better way of approaching the situation could be found.

The government is looking around for new ways to reduce expenses of operation and another cut in salaries of federal employees is being sought.

This comes in addition to the reductions decided upon at the last session of Congress and no doubt will arouse much opposition from one affected.

Salaries, however, certainly must be kept with income of the government, and employees who received good pay in times of prosperity can't expect to receive as much in times of deflation.

It is impossible to say what will be the outcome of the present movement but that it will hit some departments of the government is not to be doubted as congressmen are struggling for ways and means to balance the budget.

Deaths in this highway patrol division decreased slightly the past month compared with November, a report of the head of the department reported yesterday. Deaths were listed as five in November and four in December. Although injuries were about seven more than the previous month, the record is better than expected in view of the holiday season.

Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: Mark Lodely arranges to faint just as he arrives at Farrell Armitage's house. He and an actress, Patsy Raoul, quarrel vehemently, and then Mark, again faint, appropriates Farrell's own bedroom. Farrell endures all, having promised to establish Mark as an artist if Barbara Quentin, Mark's fiancée, will postpone their wedding a year. Farrell hopes to win Barbara's love; Leila Cane and Patsy have a plan of their own—as yet a mystery.

Chapter 24 UNPREDICTABLE PATSY

Miss Raoul's fury was short-lived. Before she had crossed Brandish Place she was laughing. "Whose fur flew first?" she demanded in perfectly easy English. "His, I think, but I can't be sure. The catering little ape!"

"Mark—or you," "Mark, of course! I may have the face of a monkey but he has the soul of one, and it was our souls we were discussing."

"It is a great pity I lost my temper in front of the other man."

"But I'm not paying you to work up an affair with him," pointed out Leila sweetly. "In my case—he wants to marry someone who doesn't want to marry him, and nothing makes a man more blind and deaf to every other specimen of exquisite young womanhood. . . . No, not meaning me. I intended to marry him; but I never thought I cared about him. Neither did he. So we're friends, instead."

"What is the girl of his like? Beautiful?"

"Yes," admitted Leila. "She's the most beautiful girl I've ever seen. And clever. And good. And a fool."

"Any clever woman is a fool to be good," declared Miss Raoul, turning briskly into the Park. "Why won't she take Armitage?"

"She loves Mark Lodely," Miss Raoul emitted a screech of laughter.

"And whom does Mark love?" "Mark."

"I heard you."

"Well now, my name isn't Raoul. It isn't even Patsy. I don't go for London when I'm in New York and for Paris when I'm in Berlin—I'm at home nowhere except on the boards and I've been pelted off them, twice, and shall be again."

Miss Raoul seized the door of a taxi which happened to be cruising past, and hurried herself inside. Before Leila could move away, her scarlet-helmeted head was thrust out again.

"Don't forget to write to that girl!"

"Patsy, I didn't mean—"

But the taxi swung off and Leila had to walk on alone. Odd—odd—odd—clicked her heels on the pavement. She envied Patsy, and Patsy, or a part of Patsy—envied her. Envied her security. Security?

Leila wondered whether Miss Raoul considered the friendship at an end. Probably, so Leila would have to move. "Well, now Mrs. Lodely's there, I can stay at Farrell's."

She turned and retraced her steps, telling herself that she would phone Farrell. Though she shouldn't do that, either; she could just stroll in. Better return to Patsy's house, first and pack. She continued to tell herself that she would do better to go away and pack—and she walked steadily back to Armitage's house.

Through the Park, over the bridge, down Brandish Place.

And all the time she knew well enough that she would not invite herself to stay in any house that sheltered Mark.

She walked up to the house and put her foot on the step. She had better go in and see Armitage and tell him she couldn't after all, earn that emerald. She was inevitably and eternally on Mark's side—because between her and Mark there lay an emerald, too. . . . She might be a provincial and a date-crasher and an accessory after the fact, but she could be straight in just this one respect—Mark.

She stood there, her hands damp, her chin trembling.

Then the mood was lifted from her. The whole chaotic misery lightened and passed. . . . She breathed freely and sauntered away.

No loyalty to Mark, no such nonsense. She could grin at the thought. No loyalty to Armitage except for the sake of an emerald. Finish with Patsy Raoul, if Patsy desired it. And the dust-heap at Kings Mallard? Rather fun to blackmail father about that. Why has that never occurred to me before? She lit a cigarette.

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On. Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

"Just think of any one medicine that is so strengthening and invigorating that even my dear old mother, who will be 93 years old next August, owes her present good state of health to Sargon and Sargon Pills, and says that she hopes by their continued use to see her 100th birthday," said Mrs. J. "In fact," continued Mrs. Posey, "our whole family are great boosters for this wonderful treatment, and I can't find words to express my deepfelt pride and sincere gratitude. Sargon has transferred me from suffering and despair, to health and happiness, and I have now more strength, energy and enthusiasm than I've known in years, as I at times suffered terribly with indigestion, and I would have those dizzy blind spells, and my heart would palpitate so wildly I thought I had serious heart trou-

I took all kinds of medicines and treatments, without getting any benefit or results and lost all hope of ever being well again, but thanks to Sargon and Sargon Pills I now feel and look like a different person, and my bowels have been regulated perfectly by Sargon Pills, and as I said before we are all great believers and boosters for this great remedy and will never miss an opportunity to praise it wherever we go."

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Can't Find Words to Express Their Unstinted Praise and Thanks

For the Wonderful Results This Happy Family Received By Using Sargon and the Sargon Soft Mass Pills. All Five Generations Didn't Believe Any Medicine on Earth Could Do So Much For Them Says Mrs. J. F. Posey.

"Just think of any one medicine that is so strengthening and invigorating that even my dear old mother, who will be 93 years old next August, owes her present good state of health to Sargon and Sargon Pills, and says that she hopes by their continued use to see her 100th birthday," said Mrs. J. F. Posey of No. 110 5th Avenue, Phenix City, Ala., in a recent statement.

"In fact," continued Mrs. Posey, "our whole family are great boosters for this wonderful treatment, and I can't find words to express my deepfelt pride and sincere gratitude. Sargon has transferred me from suffering and despair, to health and happiness, and I have now more strength, energy and enthusiasm than I've known in years, as I at times suffered terribly with indigestion, and I would have those dizzy blind spells, and my heart would palpitate so wildly I thought I had serious heart trouble. I took all kinds of medicines and treatments, without getting any benefit or results and lost all hope of ever being well again, but thanks to Sargon and Sargon Pills I now feel and look like a different person, and my bowels have been regulated perfectly by Sargon Pills, and as I said before we are all great believers and boosters for this great remedy and will never miss an opportunity to praise it wherever we go."

LOCAL CAGERS WILL PLAY IN RALEIGH SAT.

Under the direction of Coach C. K. Beatty, the E. C. T. C. cagers have been trying out several new combinations in an attempt to find one that will prove successful against the State Freshmen's team Saturday in Raleigh.

The frosh cagers, who are under the direction of Coach Bob Warren, will present a full-rangy aggregation. But if the Teachers can smooth out a couple of rough spots they will probably be able to take them.

The locals' next home game will be on Tuesday with the strong Atlantic Christian College team from Wilson. Later in the season the State Frosh will travel down here from Raleigh. The date will be announced later.

SPORT SLANTS

Out on a big farm in Harrah, Oklahoma, a dozen or so years ago, lived the Warner family. Pa and Ma, and the little 'uns, including the boys, Paul and Lloyd.

They're great ball players today. Paul and Lloyd, the charter members of the great Pittsburgh outfit that just acquired the finishing touch in Freddy Lindstrom from the Oklahoms. But back in those days in Oklahoma, the farm was the thing, and at the season in particular, the most important thing in life was watermelons.

Father Warner had given the two boys a tiny patch of ground for the cultivation, co-operatively, of these melons, to be eaten by them alone, at their own discretion, and according to their own good judgment, when their mutual efforts had produced the ripened fruit. Paul was 13 years old, Lloyd 9.

That Prize Melon

Each day, at dawn, Paul was out in that patch with Lloyd, watching the melons grow, snapping bugs off the plants, piling dirt around them to keep the sun from burning them to death.

One melon in particular was blessed with all the advantages sun and earth could bestow upon plant life, and that melon thrived as none other in the patch.

It was nearly ready, nearly ripe. But one day, at dawn, Paul hurried out to the path. The melon was gone.

Paul raved and ranted. He looked across the fields to the Hinkle farm, a mile away. The Hinkle boys—none other could be the culprits.

"Look," said Paul, "there's footprints, leading right to that fence yonder. Then Hinkles got our melon."

Why Lloyd Is Fast

Paul got his father's gun, a huge, ten-gauge weapon he could scarcely lift, and he waited for the darkness.

"They'll be back," he assured little Lloyd, "and I'll be waiting. I'll burn the seat right out of their pants sure enough."

But they didn't come back. Paul waited long into the night in vain. The next day he investigated warily, Lloyd at his heels. The footprints led to the Hinkle fence. There was the remains of the prize melon, the heart eaten out, but there, too, were the footprints leading not to the Hinkle farm, but back to the Warner house.

Soon there were two sets of tracks, side by side, and suddenly the horrible realization hit Paul that they were identical.

Paul loosed one wild bellow, and Lloyd lit out across the field. Over his shoulder Lloyd left but one defense.

"If I hadn't a got it, you would." "I never caught him, least not soon enough," said Paul, "but I always take great credit, just the same. There's just one reason why Lloyd's faster than me shagging them balls out there. I taught him to be fast."

CONFLICT OF LAWS IN FEES OF MAGISTRATES

Lexington, Jan. 6.—State law passed by the 1931 Legislature says one thing and the law under the local recorder's court was established and operates says another about State fees in cases of justice of peace jurisdiction. The county commissioners have been following the State law until about $3,500 in such fees are due Judge A. J. Newton of the recorder's court under the local law. The board has named Chairman G. W. Smith and County Manager J. L. Gordon to advise with the court official and legal authorities and see if the conflict cannot be remedied without litigation.

THAT TECHNOCRACY QUESTION

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of six articles giving a new insight into Technocracy whose prediction of possible economic collapse started a farflung controversy. The article also presents other statistics pertaining to points raised by Technocracy.

By J. R. BRACKETT
(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Man-hours is another phrase, long a friend of the engineer, that Technocracy has placed in America's mind with new emphasis.

It is in the reduction of the number of hours per man needed to produce a unit of product that Technocracy envisages much of today's troubles, and perhaps even greater clues only a small part of the men who actually were required to produce the whole automobile, since it omits parts an accessory-makers and others who had a share in making the finished machine.

Hay says the implications of such a figure are that the automobile furnished employment to but 210,000 men whereas the total figure was in the millions when it is considered that huge numbers were required to man the service stations, rubber tire factories and so on.

Hay adds that a composite figure for a whole industry cannot be fairly given due to the variation from plant to plant in efficiency.

Productivity Varies

The figures of L. P. Alford and J. E. Hannum, who have done much research into man-hours, show wide

IN 1904 IT TOOK A MAN 1300 HOURS TO FABRICATE AN AUTOMOBILE. TODAY IT TAKES A MAN 90 HOURS TO FABRICATE A BETTER MODEL.

Machines have reduced the number of hours men must work to produce a unit of goods, and, according to Technocracy, have reduced them more than production has gained. While the country was growing and before the machine reached its present efficiency more and more hours were needed to produce enough goods, but with efficiency, hours went down—and, says Technocracy, so did employment because fewer hours of work mean fewer men.

ones in the future—troubles in the form of growing unemployment.

At Columbia University, where the group of engineers who call their studies Technocracy are at work under the direction of Howard Scott, are several dozen charts, showing principally two lines—one of production, the other of man-hours.

The production line on this chart goes upward, the man-hour line downward. For instance, Technocracy says it took 1300 man-hours, or one man 182 1/2 eight-hour days, to fabricate an automobile in 1904, whereas today it requires only 90 hours, or 11 1/4 eight-hour days.

Employment Decrease Cited

In 1920, Scott says, it actually required 210,000 workmen to fabricate all the automobiles produced. If the methods of 1904 had been used to produce the same number of automobiles, the industry would have needed 2,940,000 men instead of the 210,000. These figures are given to show the astonishing advance in mechanization, and Scott says similar statistics are true of most industries.

W. W. Hay, engineer and consultant with the Mayflower Consolidated Company, says such a calculation in-

TAR HEELS MEET 'CATS' SATURDAY

Chapel Hill, Jan. 6.—The Carolina basketball team will make its only appearance in Charlotte Saturday night, opening its Big Five season with the strong and speedy Davidson Wildcats.

The Tar Heels will feature two Charlotte boys at the guard posts, Dave McCachren and Stuart Aitken, and two all-Southern forwards, Virgil Weathers, who made the first team last year, and Captain Wilmer Hines, who made the second. George Brandt star end in football, will round out the club at center.

The White Phantoms as the team has come to be known in other years, are heirs to Dixie's greatest court tradition. Carolina is the only institution that has won the conference tourney more than once, and the Tar Heels turned the trick four times in addition to last year they were runners-up.

With Hines, Weathers, and McCachren back from last year's regulars and with five other lettermen on hand, Coach B. Sheppard has hopes for another strong team this year. It will take the Davidson game and the hard schedule to follow, however, to tell if he can find the proper replacements at center and one guard and to show if the team is going to click machine-like.

The Tar Heels played only fair ball and showed flashes of their old-time form in the opening contest with Guilford Thursday night, and the game with Davidson is regarded as the big test. Captain Bruce Peabody is reported to be leading a stronger than usual Presbyterian team this year, and the Tar Heels are definitely expecting a hard night's work and maybe worse.

Coach Sheppard's sincerest wish is that Davidson will be good enough to let him try out and get line on

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—Mothers who have ambitions to see their sons grow up to become President or something like that might well consider trying to get them jobs as pages at the Capitol.

There are three men "on the hill" now who have, or shortly will have, attained high positions in three different branches of the government who started their careers as pages.

In the House of Representatives there is a man who has grown to be almost as much a fixture around the Capitol as the dome itself—William Tyler Page. Fifty-one years ago this December Page came to Washington to serve as a page in the office of the clerk of the House.

He has been in the employ of the House ever since in all sorts of jobs, reaching the highest position—clerk of the House—and serving in that capacity during six Congresses.

If the Republicans ever control the House again, then Page will go back as clerk. Until then he is serving as clerk to the minority.

Up To Court Clerk
In the Supreme Court there is another man holding a high position who, too, started out as a page. He is Charles E. Cropley, Clerk of the Court.

It was not so many years ago that Cropley was running errands for the dignified Justice of the Supreme Court. He came up the line to his present job and still a young man he has the distinction of being the youngest clerk of this court in history.

Promotion For Halsey
On next March 4, unless all signs fail, another former page boy is going to be promoted to the No. 1 job in the Senate—that of secretary to the body. He is Colonel Edwin A. Halsey, at present secretary to the Democratic minority.

Halsey came to the Senate as a boy, appointed page by Senator Daniel of Virginia. He has been an employee of the Senate ever since and now that the Democrats will take control on March 4 he will get the prize job.

Incidentally, the lot of a page, particularly those of the Senate, is by no means an unhappy one. The positions are eagerly sought.

LAUNCH MOVE TO ANNEX THE "BAMA" SECTION

The finance committee, sponsored by the board when first launched, but members thought enough of it next night to pass it on to the next meeting, although some opposition developed on the floor.

Alderman Boyd proposed that the section, composed largely of manufacturing plants, white and negro residents, should be taken in as a part of the city so that the residents might contribute their bit to the operation of the city government. He said they enjoyed most of the advantages of people living inside the city limits and that if incorporated as a part of the city would be able to enjoy still more.

Alderman Hearne offered direct opposition to the movement, declaring it would prove too expensive an undertaking in fact costing as much if not more than would be realized through taxes derived from it.

At conclusion of the oratorical fireworks Alderman Boyd made a motion that the question come up for consideration at the next meeting and the board agreed.

Another question receiving more than usual attention was the suggestion by Alderman Hearne that the town ordinance be amended to permit election of aldermen in the First and Fifth wards every two years instead of every one year. The question of increasing representation in these wards also came up for action but both were deferred until the next meeting.

Alderman Hearne said he thought it would be less expensive to the city to elect all members of the board every two years instead of holding annual elections for choosing aldermen for only two wards. There was some doubt as to the sentiment of the constituency, hence it was decided to defer action until this had been settled.

G. V. Smith, member of the advisory committee, and Esauq Joseph Willett, of the Salvation Army, appeared before the board and asked that the usual appropriation to the organization be continued. They emphasized the high type of work being done by the organization and said they were cooperating with the city in every way to take care of the relief problem. The matter was referred to Mayor Flanagan and Chief of Police George Clark for action.

Mayor Flanagan was instructed to continue repairs of broken street pavement in various parts of the city at nominal cost. Much work of this kind has been done recently, the mayor explained, and many jobless people are being used in the program.

The mayor was empowered to draft a bill validating the sale of 1931 taxes at the usual time and the representatives in the legislature will be asked to have it enacted into law.

The clock winder, who has been employed by the city several years at a salary of $5 a month was taken from the payroll when it was reported that the county was looking after the important business of providing accurate time for the city.

An ordinance presented by Judson Blount prohibiting the use by one dairy of bottles belonging to another, and destroying of bottles, was referred to the ordinance committee.

Ted Harris and Gus Critcher were given permission to operate a skating rink in a local warehouse providing they pay $10 license fee in advance.

The request of Henry Payton, colored, to operate a social club in the western section of the city, was referred to the ordinance committee for action.

In 1931. Although two other warehouses entailing loss of over $200,000 occurred in 1932, none were rebuilt to give the city's building record a boost as during the previous year.

States.

"The number of arrests and of court cases per 100,000 population increased moderately from 1900 to 1930," it says, "with a tendency to increase more rapidly after 1920 than before."

"A large part, however, of the increase in the last decade is explained by traffic cases, which increased at approximately the same rate as automobile registrations.

"Arrests and prosecutions for major crimes increased even less rapidly than the rate for minor crimes. . . . Prosecutions in Federal Courts were fairly constant from 1900 to 1917, after which an enormous increase occurred, but this was due principally to the large number of liquor cases."

"The record of crimes known to the police, which is potentially the best index of the number of serious crimes, shows a slightly lower rate in 1931 than in 1930.

"These figures do not indicate that crime has swept over the country like a tidal wave."

"Politics Balks Law Enforcement"

Though there is no expectation of a great increase in crime in the immediate future, neither is there an encouragement prospect "for greater efficiency on the part of the police, the courts and the other agencies for dealing with criminals."

"A principal limitation on the increased efficiency of these institutions is 'politics,'" says the report.

"A second limitation is the unwillingness of the public to pay taxes sufficient to make efficiency possible. And a third limitation is the localistic restrictions on the agencies of justice by the American framework of government."

As for criminal laws, the number of them will continue to increase, the report asserts, but with a tendency toward a decreased rate, perhaps because of "a growing public sentiment against regulations, which seems to be an off-shoot of the prohibition issue, and to the substitution of flexible administrative regulations for rigid criminal laws."

It says the increase in criminal laws between 1900 and 1930 was at the average annual rate of from one to two per cent, which it does not consider startling.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

State Gets $1,650,000

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Four States today were loaned a total of $3,078,593 by the Emergency Relief Reconstruction, North Carolina getting $1,650,000; West Virginia, $138,990; Arizona, $341,550, and Alabama $950,103.

The North Carolina loan is to take care of the relief needs of the entire State.

Supporting data, the announcement said, that during January and February $2,573,887 was needed, of which $677,000 is available from local sources and $261,817 remained of funds heretofore supplied by the Corporation.

The allotment of loans today are for January and February.

Ask Corporation Report
Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The House today requested the Reconstruction Corporation to make public details of loans made by the Corporation between February and June last year.

Action followed only a few minutes after the Banking Committee had favorably reported the resolution by Representative Howard asking agency to state to whom money went in 1932.

The report of the Reconstruction Corporation replies would go to the House clerk and contents would be open to the public.

Approve Government Survey
Raleigh, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Both houses of the General Assembly today approved a joint resolution calling for a survey of the state government with the idea of reducing expenses and also intended to speed up legislative work but it cannot be ratified until the senate considers the house amendment.

Introduced by Senator Moore of Craven, the bill called for a balanced budget, reduction of government expense, and reporting of revenue and appropriations bills by 6th of February.

The House amendment increases the membership of the government survey to five representatives and three senators, increasing the house representation by one member.

A resolution expressing regret at the death of former President Calvin Coolidge was passed by the House.

The Senate treasury committee continued consideration of the economy measure when it voted to recommend abolition of the senate engraving department.

House members sent forward a flock of new bills, mostly local, but among the stack were measures to have the state remove the 15 cent ad valorem tax now levied for school support and to provide for revaluation of real property.

Another batch of senate committees were announced but no house committees were given out.

The house debated taking up the measure to abolish 1932 tax penalties under suspension of rules but voted to defer the matter to the committee on finance.

Both divisions will consider only local bills tomorrow, and will take up general business Monday night.

Republicans Report Expenses
Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Republican National committee reported to Congress today that it had spent $2,670,652 from June 1st, 1932 to the end of the campaign year.

This compared with $1,708,000 reported early in the week by the Democratic committee, and $6,256,101 by the Republican committee in the 1928 election.

The report, filed with South Trimble, clerk of the House, showed the committee ended the year with a deficit of $195,400.

This however, did not include broadcasting of $19,000 that it approved or radio bills radio bills of $3,308 made by President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson.

Coolidge to Lie in State
Northampton, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The body of Calvin Coolidge, 30th president of the United States, will lie in state for an hour tomorrow morning in Edwards Congregational church, in which he had worshipped.

This was decided today when it became apparent the church could not accommodate the throng anxious to attend the services.

One of the early visitors to the Coolidge home today was James Lucy, aged cobbler, who first set Calvin Coolidge on the path to the presidency. While in the White House Mr. Coolidge wrote Lucy if it were not for him he would not be there.
