Many Bills Expected this Week; Revenue Measure to Come in Next Week.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—North Carolina legislators returned to Raleigh today to launch the second week of the 1933 General Assembly with night meetings scheduled for tonight in both Houses.

With indications that the Legislature will not get the administration revenue and appropriation bills until next week, every sign indicated that this week's business will be more proposing than disposing. A number of important measures are expected to fall into the hopper while the Assembly marks time awaiting the money measures for the 1933-1935 biennium.

A bill sponsored by the Asheville Central Labor Union providing for unemployment insurance and levying a tax on labor-displacing machinery is being connected with the names of Representatives Martin and Sullivan, of Buncombe County. A liquor measure is also slated to be introduced by Representative Carver, of Cherokee, who stated that he would move for the repeal of the Turlington Act, North Carolina's prohibition law.

The committees of both branches of the Legislature will be completed tonight when Speaker R. L. Harris announces the House organization. Representative Moss, of Nash, is mentioned as the Speaker's choice to head the Finance Committee. The Senate chairman is Grady Rankin, of Gaston.

RELIEF MONEY GREAT BENEFIT TO SCHOOLS

Unemployed Given Work on School Improvement Projects In 59 Counties

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Through activities enabled by the Federal relief program in North Carolina a total of $347,638 has been spent on permanent school improvement projects in fifty-nine counties of the State since October, Dr. Fred Morrison, relief director, said today.

The school projects were created in keeping with the wishes of the government that destitute people be provided with work on public jobs rather than be made the recipients of outright gifts, Morrison said.

Federal funds amounting to $148,777 have been used to pay for labor on the projects. The other $198,861 has come from various sources with private contributions totaling $43,640, loans from the State literary fund aggregating $64,700; county aid of $41,854 and local school district aid of $27,603.

SEEK FEDERAL LOAN FOR WATER SUPPLY

Elizabeth City, Jan. 8.—The Public Utilities Commission's application for a loan of $75,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of providing a fresh water supply for Elizabeth City is expected to be acted upon in a few weeks, according to J. C. Parker of the Utilities Commission. The Finance Corporation is awaiting the report of engineers hired to investigate the feasibility of two projects which the Utilities Commission has under consideration.

The first project by which the Utilities Commission hopes to provide a fresh water supply in dry weather is the raising of the dam of the present Knobs Creek reservoir and repairing the flood gate in order that the reservoir will not drain itself during dry weather. When the water in the reservoir gets low the saline content increases until the water is unfit for drinking purposes.

The other project, in the event the Knobs Creek project is not satisfactory, will be the drilling of shallow wells. Already the commission has abandoned hopes of securing fresh water from deep wells. One such well was dug, but at about 500 feet it was found to be unfit for use.

Meat Canning
The women who have pressure cookers are busy canning meat. Several favorite meat recipes follow:
HAMBURGER—15 pounds ground beef; 1 large red pepper, chopped; 3 onions, chopped; 5-8 cup salt. Combine all the ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Shape into smooth cakes one-inch thick and a little larger in diameter than the cans. Lay cakes on a slightly greased flat pan and place in an oven to sear until slightly browned on both sides. Use a pancake lifter for turning. When seared, the cakes should just fit into the cans snugly. Add three or four tablespoons of the searing liquid from the pan. Seal and process 15 pounds pressure for one hour.

CHILI CON CARNE—15 pounds beef from shoulder cut into small cubes; 4 ground coarsely; 13-4 cups lard or suet; 21-2 tap paprika; 20 dried sweet peppers; 33.4 qt. kidney beans; 2 qt. tomato puree; 3

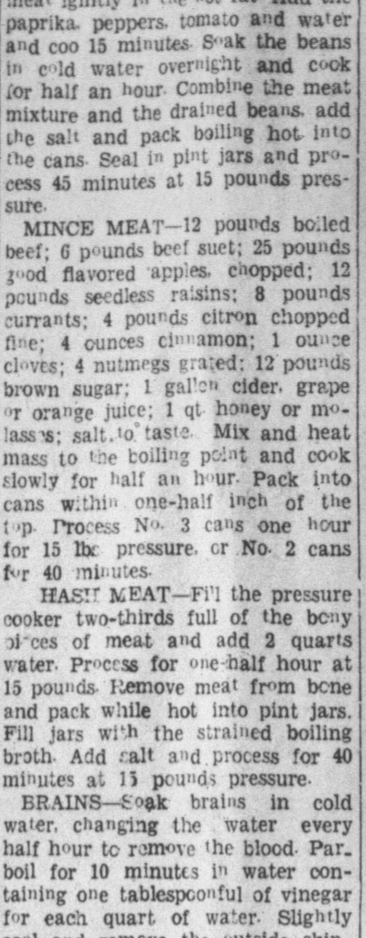

qt. water; salt to taste. Brown the meat lightly in the hot fat. Add the paprika, peppers, tomato and water and cook 15 minutes. Soak the beans in cold water overnight and cook for half an hour. Combine the meat mixture and the drained beans. Add the salt and pack boiling hot into the cans. Seal in pint jars and process 45 minutes at 15 pounds pressure.

MINCE MEAT—12 pounds boiled beef; 6 pounds beef suet; 25 pounds good flavored apples, chopped; 12 pounds seedless raisins; 6 pounds currants; 4 ounces citron, chopped; 4 ounces cinnamon; 1 ounce five; 4 nutmegs, grated; 12 pounds brown sugar; 1 gallon cider, grape or orange juice; 1 qt. honey or molasses; salt to taste. Mix and heat mass to the boiling point and cook slowly for half an hour. Pack into the cans within one-half inch of the top. Process No. 3 cans one hour for 15 lb. pressure, or No. 2 cans for 40 minutes.

HASI MEAT—Fill the pressure cooker two-thirds full of the boy pieces of meat and add 2 quarts water. Process for one-half hour at 15 pounds. Remove meat from bone and pack while hot into pint jars. Fill jars with the strained boiling broth. Add salt and process for 40 minutes at 15 pounds pressure.

BRAINS—Soak brains in cold water, changing the water every half hour to remove the blood. Par-boil for 10 minutes in water containing one tablespoonful of vinegar for each quart of water. HELPS for HOUSEWIVES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP) The fact inactive people need less food than active should be watched by elderly persons, the Bureau of Economics says, since excess quantities of energy food are stored as fat.

A weekly food budget for a couple in the seventies should include: Flour, six pounds; milk, 12 quarts; potatoes, five pounds; dried beans, peas, nuts, 1-2 pound; tomatoes, citrus fruits, 2 pounds; leafy green and yellow vegetables, 3 pounds; dried fruits, 12 pound; other vegetables, fruits, 2-3 pounds; butter, other fats, one pound; sugar, molasses, one pound; lean meat, poultry, fish, one pound; eggs, one dozen.

Toys Cure Baby's Bad Habits
Thumb sucking or finger sucking often begins soon after the birth of a child. It must be stopped early. One of the best ways to break the habit is to keep the child's hands occupied with some toy. Do not punish the baby, as it will only keep his attention on the habit and may strengthen it.

Beware of Cold Germs
Washington, D. C.—Clothes used by a person with a cold should not be washed with the general washing for the family. Boiling is the simplest method of sterilizing such garments. Another way the clothes may be treated is by immersion for an hour in one of the following solutions: a five per cent solution of the commercial solution of formaldehyde; a one per cent solution of phenol; or a 1-2 per cent solution of cresolis compositis.

A Washington Day Book

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—Those who sat in the Senate gallery during the last few minutes before the Senators quit for Christmas saw enacted one of the most delightful bits of comedy of the short session.

It was one of the Senate's prize showmen, Ashurst, of Arizona, who provided the fun. And it was the scholarly, dignified Bingham, of Connecticut, who was his foil.

Bingham was making a desperate effort to push through a bill turning over some cotton to the Red Cross. He occupied the floor through the courtesy of Jim Watson, of Indiana.

Through some rather skillful maneuvering Ashurst obtained the floor and began to explain his views on prohibition.

Bingham Disgusted
Bingham looked disgusted, more so perhaps because earlier in the day his beer bill had been side-tracked by Democratic votes, among them that of Ashurst. In the midst of the Arizona's speech, Bingham turned to Watson and in sotto voce said something about people always making alibis.

Ashurst wheeled on him and charged. "Mr. President," he shouted, "I didn't hear that, but by the peculiar snarl and sneer which seemed to accompany what he said, I assume that it was not complimentary. Will the Senator repeat?" Bingham would not, and Watson, a bit alarmed, tried to get back the floor, but Ashurst wouldn't hear to it. In a thundering voice, he continued: "I admire the scholarship of the Senator of Connecticut. I admire him as a man. We are friendly in the extreme. But the great fault with him, the great defect of his political career, is that he judges other men's motives by his own. The country knows his own."

LEGISLATORS BACK ON JOB AT RALEIGH

Many Bills Expected this Week; Revenue Measure to Come in Next Week.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—North Carolina legislators returned to Raleigh today to launch the second week of the 1933 General Assembly with night meetings scheduled for tonight in both Houses.

With indications that the Legislature will not get the administration revenue and appropriation bills until next week, every sign indicated that this week's business will be more proposing than disposing. A number of important measures are expected to fall into the hopper while the Assembly marks time awaiting the money measures for the 1933-1935 biennium.

A bill sponsored by the Asheville Central Labor Union providing for unemployment insurance and levying a tax on labor-displacing machinery is being connected with the names of Representatives Martin and Sullivan, of Buncombe County. A liquor measure is also slated to be introduced by Representative Carver, of Cherokee, who stated that he would move for the repeal of the Turlington Act, North Carolina's prohibition law.

The committees of both branches of the Legislature will be completed tonight when Speaker R. L. Harris announces the House organization. Representative Moss, of Nash, is mentioned as the Speaker's choice to head the Finance Committee. The Senate chairman is Grady Rankin, of Gaston.

FATE ROSS IS BADLY HURT

Driver of Unlighted Cart Run Over by Truck on Highway Near House Station.

Fate Ross, aged about 60, who resides on the north side of Tar River about five miles from Greenville, is in Pitt Community Hospital with serious injuries received Saturday night when the cart in which he was en route home was demolished by a truck driven by Cicero Taylor. Mr. Ross, who was rushed to the hospital in an unconscious condition, was said to have received a bad laceration of the scalp and bruises of the body. He was reported this morning as having regained consciousness, but the full extent of his injuries could not be determined until his condition permitted the use of his condition.

The accident occurred about six o'clock Saturday night near the railroad crossing this side of House station when the cart in which Ross was riding was run down from behind by the heavy truck being driven by Taylor. According to available information both Ross and Taylor were traveling toward House Station and the lights of an approaching express truck blinded Taylor causing him to fall to see the cart that was traveling without lights. Ross' cart was completely demolished and his horse killed.

Bootleg Hootch In Fancy Dress At The Capital

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Labeled bootleg whiskey has hit the illegal markets of Raleigh. Two brands are widely known. One, "Hidden Valley," boasts it is not bottled in bond. The label on the back of the 12-ounce pint bottle reads: "Notice—Not bottled in bond. This product is guaranteed 100 per cent pure 100 proof. We ask our representatives to stand behind our product."

The main label announces in prominent type, "Pure Hidden Valley rye, aged in wood six months old," and that it is "manufactured by Valley Distributing Corporation, State of Virginia."

The other labeled bootleg brand is known as "East Lake Rye." The name of the manufacturing company is not printed on the label. It has merely the name of the "brand" and an Indian with hand leveled over the eyebrows peering in the distance—as if for dry agents.

RAINY SAYS GREAT OPPOSITION TO INCREASED TAXES ON INCOMES; SALES LEVY.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Asserting that he did not believe that either the proposed plans of raising the income tax or of a sales levy could be enacted at this session of Congress, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, advocated a strenuous effort to be made to balance the national budget through economy.

He made public a letter addressed to fourteen governors in which the proposed enactment at this session of a $100,000,000 Federal highway aid bill was brought to their attention and asked them to please tell him how the government was going to get the money for it.

"There is a tremendous opposition in Congress to increase either the income taxes or levy a sales tax," Rainey told newspaper men, "but personally I believe that we can balance the budget without resorting to further taxation."

BANK ROBBERY IS FRUSTRATED AT RURAL HALL

Rural Hall, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A. E. Shore, cashier of the Commercial and Farmers Bank of Rural Hall, frustrated a hold-up today when he refused to obey the command to turn over the bank's money and fired his pistol at the two hold-up men and chased them from the building.

The third robber who had waited outside was left behind when his two companions fled from the bank. Jumped into their automobile and made their escape. The third man also escaped during the excitement, but a posse was soon searching for him in this vicinity while officers were searching around Winston-Salem where the other two bandits had abandoned their auto.

Shore was alone in the bank at the time of the attempted hold-up, his assistant having stepped across the street when the two unmasked men walked into the bank. Shore said he did not remember just what the man told him to do, but that he drew his pistol and pointed it at him through the teller's window he knew what he meant.

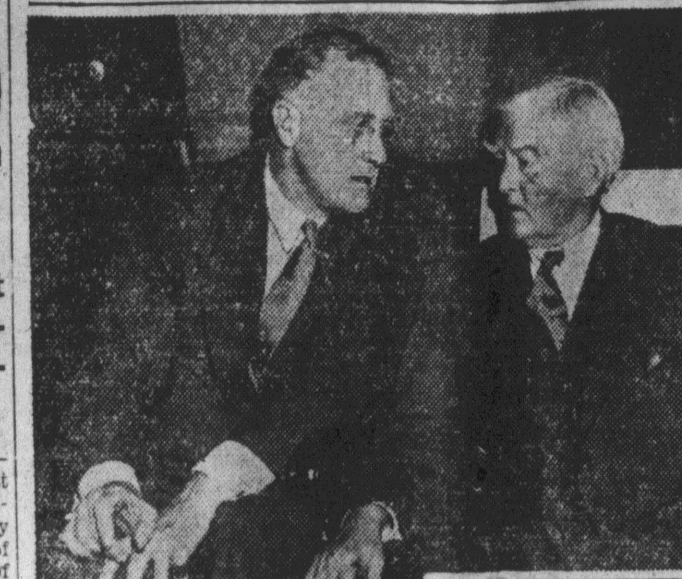

Station Operator Killed by Bandit

Morganton, N. C., Jan. 9.—David H. Shuping, filling station operator and well-known citizen of Drexel, a small town five miles east of Morganton, was the victim of a daring hold-up and attempted robbery in his own yard about midnight last night. He died in Grace Hospital here about an hour after the attack but was able to tell the neighbors who drove him to the hospital what had happened and to give a limited description of the man who committed the act.

With $500 on his person, Mr. Shuping left his filling station around 11:30 o'clock for his home, less than a quarter of a mile away. As he turned into his driveway, he saw a man crouched in the rear of the car and the next moment the two were grappling together. In the struggle the hold-up man fired three or four times and dealt Shuping a blow on the forehead. Two of the shots went through his chest and there is one bullet hole in the top of the car.

Progress Made By Air Industry Young Reports

By COL. CLARENCE M. YOUNG (Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics) (Year-End Review)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The aeronautics industry progressed in many ways during 1932 particularly in the field of scheduled air transportation.

Preliminary estimates indicate that the air lines carried more than a half million passengers and expended the total for 1931; that air express gained over the 1,150,000 pounds transported in 1931; and that air-mail has approached the total of 9,000,000 pounds carried the previous year.

In this development, the aeronautics branch was privileged to play a part, its work during the year including the following:

Air line pilots were examined for scheduled air transport ratings certifying to knowledge of meteorology and air navigation and ability to fly "blind" and utilize aeronautic radio.

The federal airways system was increased to 19,500 miles of lighted and radio-equipped air routes by the 2,000 miles authorized for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932. In view of the need for governmental economy, no new airway construction now is being undertaken.

A system for transmission of weather maps six times daily over the teleprinter circuits of the federal airways system was developed and placed in operation.

A photo-electric cell apparatus for switching beacon lights on whenever daylight falls below a predetermined intensity was adopted for a number of beacons.

New Beacon Lamp Developed

A new and more powerful type of lamp was developed for the beacons.

A new type of radio marker beacon to assist pilots in locating Department of Commerce intermediate landing fields under conditions of poor visibility was developed. Experimental work began in 1931 on the development of crash-resistant fuel tanks for aircraft was concluded.

Development work was completed on an air traffic control projector for use in directing aircraft movements with red and green flashes.

William Anderson Died on Saturday

William Anderson, 82, died Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock at his home on Greenville road, one about seven miles from this city. Funeral services were conducted at the home Sunday afternoon by Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this city, followed by burial in the Nobles graveyard on the late Will Clark farm near Farmville.

Mr. Anderson's death was the result of pneumonia following an attack of influenza. Despite his years, Mr. Anderson was very active until his recent illness and last year tended his own crop. Sixty-two years ago he married Miss Cella Lacy of this county, and two children were born to the union. Hard work and thrift were among Mr. Anderson's traits and during his lifetime had accumulated sufficient for his old age.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, B. F. and A. L. Anderson, who reside near the home place, and Mrs. Amos Joyner, of Tarboro. Other survivors include 32 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

RESOLUTION OF REPEAL GIVEN TO THE SENATE

Judiciary Committee Favorably Reports Bill to Legalize Sale of Intoxicants.

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Acting with unexpected speed the Senate Judiciary committee today sent a prohibition repeal resolution to the Senate with a favorable report.

In a single session the committee voted almost unanimously to report the Blaine repeal resolution slightly, by modified to limit ratification to seven years.

The resolution proposing repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and prohibition of liquor and permitted Congress to legislate against the return of the saloon.

The action was taken in executive session that last but an hour and a half at which Chairman Blaine submitted the favorable report from the subcommittee that drafted the measure. There was considerable discussion over provision for submitting it to the state legislatures instead of the state conventions but they voted to retain it. Protection for the dry states and provision for Congress to legislate against the return of the saloon were also retained on a separate vote.

The action of the committee was announced by Senator King, Democrat of Utah, who was the first to emerge from the committee room after the vote was taken. The vote marks the first that a standing congressional committee has given approval to a measure for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment since it went into effect 13 years ago this month. The vote by which the resolution was favorably reported was 10 to 4.

ELIZ. CITY IS SCENE HOLDUP

Trio Bandits Slug Watchman of Feed Store and Escape with Over $300.

Elizabeth City, Jan. 9.—(AP)—J. K. Palmer, watchman for the Griffin Feed Company, was slugged and bound early today by three young white men who robbed the company's cash drawer of $337.50. The robbers escaped in a roadster taking with them two shotguns and a pistol in addition to the money. Sheriff Charles Carmine and his deputies are searching for the trio.

Palmer said he was standing beside the cash drawer when the men entered. His gun was in the cash drawer, he said, and he had no chance to get it. He told officers that he pushed the gun of one of the bandits aside and grappled with him but another onestruck him over the head and the three bound him. Palmer later free himself and summoned the watchman from a nearby store. The telephone connection to the feed store had been cut, it was found.

Palmer received a deep cut on his head, but he is not believed to be seriously injured.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY HUNTING COMPANION

Durham, N. C., Jan. 8.—Hunting accidents claimed another victim Friday when Frank Miller, 28-year-old Rougemont man, succumbed to wounds he accidentally received at the hands of a hunting companion earlier in the afternoon. The accidental shooting occurred in Orange County. Miller died at his home five minutes after he had been carried there in an automobile.

Miller, his two brothers, Milton and Lee, Roy Sykes and another friend whose name could not be learned, were on the hunting expedition. Spying a squirrel up a tree, Sykes ran forward to gain a vantage position, became excited and accidentally discharged his gun. The load took effect in Miller's back and left side of the body.

Immediately after the shooting Miller was placed in an automobile and carried to his home where he died.

The sheriff and coroner of Orange County pronounced the killing accidental after investigating the affair.

RELIEF MONEY GREAT BENEFIT TO SCHOOLS

Unemployed Given Work on School Improvement Projects in 59 Counties

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Through activities enabled by the Federal relief program in North Carolina a total of $347,826 has been spent on permanent school improvement projects in fifty-nine counties of the State since October, Dr. Fred Morrison, relief director, said today.

The school projects were created in keeping with the wishes of the government that destitute people be provided with work on public jobs rather than be made the recipients of outright gifts, Morrison said.

Federal funds amounting to $148,777 have been used to pay for labor on the projects. The other $199,051 has come from various sources with private contributions totaling $43,640, loans from the State literary fund aggregating $84,700, county aid of $41,854 and local school district aid of $27,693.

The relief director did not estimate the number of people given aid through the program, which involved various improvements on the grounds or buildings of 585 schools but said "many destitute people" had been aided.

SEEK FEDERAL LOAN FOR WATER SUPPLY

Elizabeth City, Jan. 8.—The Public Utilities Commission's application for a loan of $75,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of providing a fresh water supply for Elizabeth City is expected to be acted upon in a few weeks, according to J. C. Parker of the Utilities Commission. The Finance Corporation is awaiting the report of engineers hired to investigate the feasibility of two projects which the Utilities Commission has under consideration.

The first project by which the Utilities Commission hopes to provide a fresh water supply in dry weather is the raising of the dam of the present Knobs Creek reservoir and repairing the flood gates in order that the reservoir will not drain itself during dry weather. When the water in the reservoir gets low the saline content increases until the water is unfit for drinking purposes.

The other project, in the event the Knobs Creek project is not satisfactory, will be the drilling of shallow wells. Already the commission has abandoned hopes of securing fresh water from deep wells. One such well was dug, but at about 500 feet it was found to be unfit for use.

The Finance Corporation is awaiting the report of engineers hired to investigate the feasibility of two projects which the Utilities Commission has under consideration.

The first project by which the Utilities Commission hopes to provide a fresh water supply in dry weather is the raising of the dam of the present Knobs Creek reservoir and repairing the flood gates in order that the reservoir will not drain itself during dry weather. When the water in the reservoir gets low the saline content increases until the water is unfit for drinking purposes.

The other project, in the event the Knobs Creek project is not satisfactory, will be the drilling of shallow wells. Already the commission has abandoned hopes of securing fresh water from deep wells. One such well was dug, but at about 500 feet it was found to be unfit for use.

DO YOU VALUE LIFE?

Of course everyone regrets an accident, especially when it brings injury and loss to someone, but the accident on the highway near House Station Saturday night was just another case of failure of the driver of an animal drawn vehicle to protect himself by carrying a light on his vehicle after dark. We are not talking the attitude of "I told you so," but many times in the past we have taken occasion to call attention to the fact that little attention was being paid to this vehicle light law and while this sad accident is fresh in our minds is a good time for us to urge others who are taking similar chances to mend their ways.

The law requiring every vehicle of every kind to carry a light while traveling the highway at night was not passed just to place a burden upon people, as some seem to think, but was passed simply and solely for the protection of life and property along our highways.

We reiterate that we regret the accident of Saturday night but let us hope that from it others will gain that necessary lesson to prevent future accidents of that kind on our highways.

"BIGGEST TOWN" COVERS 100 SQUARE MILE AREA

Pantego, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Pantego is without question the biggest town in North Carolina—Inara. In fact, Pantego has just discovered that it is ten times as big as it thought it was.

Pantego, which has a population of 400, contains 100 square miles of territory, taking in about one-third of Beaufort County. The area is specified in the law passed by the Legislature incorporating the town. "But somebody made a mistake," explained Alderman Jimmy Davenport, "and it has not been corrected. The area was intended to be ten square miles. The law incorporating the town reads '100 square mile'."

SELF-HELP BUREAU AT UNIVERSITY SECURES JOBS FOR 630 STUDENTS

Chapel Hill, Jan. 9.—Jobs were secured for approximately 630 students here last fall by the University Self-Help Bureau, according to a report just made by Edwin Lanier, Secretary of the Bureau.

More than 400 students held down regular jobs while the rest helped defray expenses by means of part-time jobs.

Mr. Lanier's report shows that there was no decrease in the number of jobs secured through the Self-Help Bureau, but gives credit to the townspeople of Chapel Hill for their willingness to give work to students whenever possible.

Nearly 1,000 students, the largest number ever, applied to the bureau last summer for work during the fall quarter.

Buying Barbara

SYNOPSIS: The arrogant Mark Lodely and the eccentric Patsy Raoul are in the midst of a furious quarrel in Patsy's dressing-room. Patsy scores a hit by accusing Mark of trading upon his crippled body. Mark lives with Farrell Armitage, millionaire, who has secured the promise of Barbara Quentin, Mark's fiancée, to postpone their wedding a year by agreeing to use all his resources to launch Mark as an artist in that time. Lella Cane, who is fascinated by Mark, is paying Patsy to engineer an affair with him.

Chapter 25

CRUCIFYING CONSTANTIA

Patsy's assertion that he traded on his crippled body entirely infuriated Mark. It was the first time in his life that his plea for special concessions had been brushed aside. He became smugly venofous. He said—

"Another thing that will prevent you from ever amounting to anything is the fact that you are uneducated. Such broad effects as you get, you get photographically—you don't culture them by means of a cultured or even an intelligent observation. In short, you can only mimic, you can't create—"

"You'd better go and tell that to the 'Watcher,' they printed a whole column about my art being the only cream—"

It was the harassed dresser, who, ten minutes later, managed to intervene. And even then no definite truce was called until the door was flung wide and a bunch of young men and women slithered into the dressing-room. With much flaunting of bad language and many endearments, they jostled each other upon the threshold and demanded the company of Patsy Raoul for the rest of the night.

Mark's excitement increased. He was not impressed by the enamelled coiffures of the women, nor by the over-confident bearing of the men, but he saw at last his avenues of approach to a world that must be made to take heed of him.

"Ah, madame la duchesse, I feel so sorrow," Miss Raoul was apologizing. "But no, I asleep must go; much late hours ee-nervate, not?" She pointed derisively to Mark. "But there, there is a cre-ative artist whom can rest all the days. As I cannot!"

The scented and jewelled flock turned inquiringly. Mark lifted his eyes to those of a dark-skinned, straight-backed woman whose hair was hidden under a sort of bathing cap of gold brocade.

"My passports," he murmured, offering her the sketches.

She made a great deal of noise over them and her companions, when she was persuaded to let them share her raptures, made a great deal more. A young woman whom Mark recognized as the Duchess of Northering flopped to the seat beside him. She was more heavily made up than Patsy Raoul and nearly as thin.

"But you must be most decomposingly clever!" she announced. "These things are simply decomposingly good. You must draw me next—everybody always draws me and then they draw Constantia—" she looked with malice at a short woman in a backless dress of yellow. "She'll pay a lot, but I shall be far better advertisement for you. You must see that. Isn't Patsy Raoul quite too urgent, really?"

"She doesn't like me," said Mark. "Do you, Miss Raoul? I think perhaps she's jealous of me."

"Take him away, Far," commanded Miss Raoul with every sign of disgust.

Mark allowed himself to be taken. There were more of the crew, apparently, outside in the passage.

"Hullo, Mark!" Mark looked up from prodigious labor with his crutch—for in spite of their sympathy and admiration for him, none of his friends seemed to think it necessary to wait for him or help him—and discovered Lella.

"Hullo, Lella! As one country cousin to another, where are those grand ladies and gentlemen taking us to? And who is going to pay for our drinks?"

"It's my party," vociferated the short woman in yellow whom the others called Constantia and treated with a sort of contemptuous tolerance. "I wish Miss Raoul could have come but I've got Fan Rin and her dancing partner and that sweet boy out of 'Here's Hoping!' and Mr. Lodely is a find. Bring your friend along, Mr. Lodely, she looks a sweet girl."

The lovely young duchess hooked an arm round Mark. His crutch slipped perilously. He looked into her fair face that had not in it one glint of character or courage, and swore at her bitterly for her clumsiness. She squealed her delight.

"Oh, I simply tingle for you! How urgent it feels to be sworn at in the first five minutes—generally that doesn't come till so much later on! Mr. Lodely, when my divorce is through, will you marry me? I shan't have a cent, of course, because Northering is going bankrupt directly afterwards, but you'll be making thousands and really I can dress on very little."

A blond youth with red-rimmed eyes interposed a witticism which temporarily incapacitated the entire company with the exception of the hostess; she was trying to rope in two slim, sequin-covered acrobats who were just emerging from their dressing-room.

"Now do come to my party, it's at the Da Capo, just ask for Mrs. Lewis Jacobson's table—there'll be a whole bunch of the loveliest folks—"

The acrobats, who were Russians, made exquisite gestures of non-understanding, threw their white dust-cloaks round them and ran off in the direction of the wings. "Coming, Lella?" smiled Mark. "Coming, sweet girl?" "I may come on later, but I must see Patsy Raoul. I want Barbara to fix her house for her but—"

Mark did not trouble to listen. A man known as Freddy was pulling impatiently at him and he set himself to traverse the space before him. The blond Freddy was as inadequate a support as one might have expected from his appearance and Mark was relieved when he hastened on in front and opened and shut doors instead. Mark's brow was wet by the time he had dragged himself out of the theater and into the car which awaited them.

Nevertheless, he was still smiling as they drove off at the tail of the festive procession. He was not going to lose his temper except when he could do it to dramatic advantage. While Freddy and the duchess continued to besmear the name and fame of Mrs. Lewis Jacobson with mud—the very car that held them was, he gathered, hers—he tried to fix his mind upon the next few hours. Irrigatingly, Lella's scarlet and gold floated before his vision.

"I loathe the Da Capo, absolutely loathe it," announced the duchess, getting briskly out as the car drew up before a portico outlined in small blue lights. "You'll see to Mr. Lodely, Freddy darling? 'Cos I have to try and find Biggles."

Freddy held the door of the car and looked vaguely after her.

"If you hate staying with me as much as I hate having you stay," said Mark, "we've got a lot in common. Suppose we meet inside?"

Freddy, released, bolted after the duchess and Mark took his time. By inside porter, cloakroom attendant and page, he was eventually "seen" into the club. The atmosphere of Mrs. Jacobson's party had grown more quarrelsome but more tolerable.

The gold-capped woman was whispering to a beautiful young boy; she had dropped the sketches of Patsy Raoul under her chair. With care Mark retrieved them and sitting down outside the circle began to draw upon their backs. He drew his hostess, Constantia J. Jackson; drew her wrangling, drew her eating, and finally, from memory, drew her blanching the Russian acrobats. He had so far gone unobserved and when he had touched in her thickness of lips and nose he signalled to a waiter and had a chair placed just behind his victim. When he was settled upon it, he touched her obese shoulder.

"I do wish you'd buy these studies of Miss Raoul," he said as she turned. "They're forty pounds each."

She laughed the half-bitter, half-simmering laugh of the grossly rich. "You certainly have a nerve! And anyway, they were only twenty back in the theater."

"Ah!" smiled Mark. "But they've doubled their value since then."

He lifted one a little so that she could see what was upon its back. He saw a purplish red mount under her powder, mount to the roots of her hair; her black eyes squinted for a second.

"Is that how I look to you?" she muttered.

"Not really, no," Mark admitted. "But you see, I happen to want money and you happen to have it. And who are either of us to struggle against, our fate?"

Tomorrow, Mark meets a person of great importance.

A SEAT in the CABINET?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of daily articles picturing briefly men and women mentioned for posts in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

JAMES A. FARLEY

If James A. (Big Jim) Farley, of New York, does not become Postmaster General in the Roosevelt Cabinet that fact will be more surprising to political onlookers than any other the Roosevelt Cabinet slate perhaps could produce.

From the hour when his victory was conceded, it has been tacitly accepted on all sides that Mr. Roosevelt would turn to Farley to fill that portfolio.

A newcomer to national politics, this big, buoyant director of the Roosevelt nomination and election campaigns seems to have found a job of work to his liking as contact-man-in-chief throughout forty-eight States for Mr. Roosevelt.

He has youth, a temperament that takes the tumult and shouting of national political life easily, abundant energy and a likable for meeting folks of all sorts that stood him in good stead as State Democratic Chairman first, then as National Chairman, both of which jobs he still holds.

And it was to Farley and Louis MCH. Howe that Mr. Roosevelt promptly ascribed chief credit for his election.

"Chesterfields taste Better"

WE HAVE been telling the public for a good many years that Chesterfields taste better. They satisfy!

That wouldn't mean a thing if smokers found out that it wasn't so. Nobody can fool the people very long.

But a great many smokers have smoked Chesterfields for a long time, and they know that they taste right. And so they say to their friends, "If you want a cigarette that really tastes better, try Chesterfields!"

Chesterfields taste better because they are made of mild tobaccos that have been aged for two years. And there is just enough Turkish in them... but not too much.

We are sure that you, too, will enjoy their Mildness and Better Taste.

Commodities Stage Sharpest Rise Since 1929 But Fail to Hold Gains

By BERNARD S. O'HARA (Associated Press Financial Editor) New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Commodity prices marked 1932 by the sharpest recovery since the trend turned downward, but under the crushing weight of huge warehouse stocks, and impaired world purchasing power, resulting in part from depreciation of currencies, prices were unable to hold their gains.

Reaction Follows Rise A sharp summer upturn, reaching its peak in September, coincided with a general improvement in the security markets, and seemed to indicate that markets generally were sold out—that necessitous selling had been completed. Steadiness of the British pound sterling during the summer also undoubtedly had a bolstering effect on world prices, but the pound later gave way, under influence of seasonal pressure, and international debt uncertainties.

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 8.

The Golden Text was from Heb. 13:16: "To do good and to communicate forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (Luke 22:16).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our baptism is a purification from all error. Our church is built on the divine principle, love. We can unite with this church only as we are newborn of Spirit, as we reach the Life which is Truth and the Truth which is Life by bringing forth the fruits of love—casting out error and healing the sick. Our Eucharist is spiritual communion with the one God. Our bread 'which cometh down from heaven' is Truth. Our cup is the cross. Our wine the inspiration of love, the draught our Master drank and commended to His followers."—(Christian Science Committee on Publication).

Divorce Rate to Continue Up, Family Life Decline Further, Social Trends Group Asserts

By HERBERT YAHRAES, Jr. New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—That the divorce rate will continue to increase, the size of the family continue to decrease, and still more of the family's functions be taken over by outside agencies, are among the conclusions presented in the report of the President's Research Committee on Social Trends.

However, the report finds little evidence that the family will disappear. It has "declined in social significance," the report says, "although not in human values."

The factory, the school, the store and the State have taken over activities that once tended to keep the family together, the report declares, leaving its stability dependent on "the strength of the tie of affection, correlated sentiments and spiritual values, the joys and responsibilities of rearing children."

How to strengthen this tie is a major problem, it says. "The stability of the future family is not clearly seen," writes Dr. William F. Ogburn, of the University of Chicago. "It rests a good deal on what research will discover, and the wide dissemination of the results."

Cities Need For Harmony "The problems of husbands and wives," he says, "reach their crisis in separation or divorces and maintenance of strict divorce laws represents society's major effort to deal with them. Yet the more fundamental problem for the future stability of the family is to ward off the disharmony which leads to separation."

He finds "a growing need not only for more knowledge in the field of 'inherited variability, habit and the relationship of physiological and psychological behavior' but also for agencies to disseminate such knowledge. And he declares, 'some sort of preparation for family life is needed for the unmarried, for most of them will marry.'"

The report says that "many people have had higher rates of separation and remarriage" than ours, but that few cultures "have or ever have had families which perform as few economic functions as do American families today dwelling in city apartments.

"These facts suggest," it says, "as does a projection of the divorce curve, that our culture may be conducive to further increases in divorce unless programs are instituted to counteract this tendency."

Homes Losing Out "It may be that electricity is slowing up the migration of work from the home," Dr. Ogburn declares, "but most of the evidence points to the further transfer of functions from the home."

For the near future he expects that the family "will bear the major responsibility in developing the personality of its children."

"But the task being an increasingly difficult one, 'society may be expected to give more attention to this vital question, particularly because of a diminishing supply of children.'"

The report finds that in spite of the growing divorce rate, the married population fifteen years old and older increased from 55.3 per cent in 1890 to 60.5 per cent in 1930, though the rate of increase in 1930 and 1931 was less, "as is usually the case during a business depression."

By sections, the divorce rates per 10,000 married persons in 1930 were: New England States, 24; Middle Atlantic States, 14; South Atlantic States, 24; Pacific Coast States, 60; adjoining mountain States, 70; Central States, rates intermediate between those of the coastal regions.

A slight decrease during 1920-1930 in the proportion of married people between the ages of 15 and 24 "suggests that the movement toward earlier marriage which has been going on at least since 1890 may have stopped and a reverse trend set in."

The report finds that the size of the family probably will continue to decrease, though the decline has been "neither great nor rapid," a sample study showing that the average size of the unbroken family living at home was 3.67 in 1900 and 3.57 in 1930, a decline of 2.7 per cent.

THAT TECHNOCRACY QUESTION

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of six articles giving a new insight into Technocracy whose predictions of possible economic collapse started a farflung controversy.

By J. R. BRACKETT (Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Imagine having at your command the labor of five times the population of the earth.

That, says Technocracy, is what the United States does have—in the form of one billion installed horsepower if it were fully used. But it is not fully used, and so far as Technocracy is concerned, there's the rub.

Technocracy, a group of research engineers working at Columbia University under direction of Howard Scott, dramatizes in this statement what it calls the outstanding by physical science of social science. The nation has increased its physical efficiency in the production of goods without preparing at the same time a social mechanism capable of accommodating that production.

Ten Men Equal One Horsepower What is a billion horsepower? A man is able to do one-tenth horsepower in work. Ten men would equal one horsepower. Ten billion men would equal a billion horsepower. World population today is about 1,800,000,000.

Critics of Technocracy, however, hold the statement of "one billion installed horsepower" misleading. W. W. Hayan, engineer, says that there are 70,000,000 horsepower in stationary engines in the United States, that the other 930,000,000 are in mobile horsepower—locomotives, automobiles, motorcycles and so on. The 70,000,000 figure is the one, he says, that has chiefly to do with the increase in industrial efficiency.

Of this 70,000,000, Hays says, 9,000,000 is lost in transmission and another large proportion is used for illumination, so that only about 35,000,000 is available for manufacturing production that Technocracy has found most of its evidences of mechanical advance.

Social Changes Cited Technocracy, in holding that the nation's increased ability to use power has developed far ahead of social ability to put it to good use, also finds disagreement. Critics hold that the social mechanism has, in fact, been radically changed in the past hundred years, that it had to change to permit the remarkable development so far seen.

As examples of important social change there are cited: the concentration of industrial plants, mergers of big business, new power in the hands of government, and new population groupings. As further evidence that there has been great change is seen in the forthcoming publication of thirteen volumes by the Committee on Recent Social Trends.

Summing Up Technocracy Here is a synopsis of Technocracy's basic opinions, contrasted with what other thinkers on the machine age believe:

Technocracy Says: Machine increasing unemployment; maximum industrial employment reached in 1918; declined since despite greater production. Machine more necessary than man.

Debt proving too burdensome for industrial mechanism. Total debt now $218,000,000,000, increasing faster than production.

Present money system not accurate measure; energy units instead of gold or other commodity needed as exchange medium.

Present social system too slow for speed advance of machine and science.

Its Critics Say: Technocracy's figures on this point include only manufacturing industry, not transportation and other service industries which have increased employment.

Impossible to say how much debt industry can carry; debt can be reduced; total debt now about $165,000,000,000.

Energy units also inaccurate. Technocracy's statistics on amount of energy production differ from other sources.

Society always lags; it is matter of opinion that lag is extremely dangerous.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

The attempt to deflate Didrikson since she turned professional is not confined altogether to her erstwhile comrades of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Taking the results of our poll, holding the Texas Babe, as a text, the Ryan of the Pacific Northwest is quick through L. H. Gregory of the Portland Oregonian just what it is that has made Didrikson so remarkable an athlete.

"What," he writes, "is so very thrilling about seeing even Babe tear down the track at a speed about equal to the average football player in his full football equipment? Or heaving a javelin of high jumping or taking the hurdles with performances which would give just fair competition to the average high school youth? If Babe would take up wrestling and boxing, she could probably win new championships—no many women go in for these sports, either."

"On the other hand there is this to be said for swimming, golf and tennis, as women's sports. First, women can do them well, giving men real competition; second, they can do them gracefully. Third, compared with track, the competitive field is tremendous.

"Funny no 'sport expert' ever considered this angle. 'Babe Didrikson is the greatest all-around athlete her sex has ever known,' according to Mr. Gould—double Olympic champion," he reminds us.

"Not a word about our own north-west swimmer, Helene Madison, who not only was a double Olympic champion, but also was one of a championship relay team in the same Olympics. And perhaps it is because Helen Willis has been so outstanding for so long and so shuns publicity, or Virginia Van Winkle to boast like a grade school bully that they are rated far below the Babe in the vote."

Give Babe Her Due I agree with the theory that the feminine track athlete's place is in the home or the tennis courts, perhaps, by now, the motion pictures, but Didrikson's all-around achievements scarcely can be belittled on that old-fashioned account.

Any girl who can capture a national track meet all by herself, winning six events, needs no rebuttal. The only reason she didn't win three Olympic crowns was because (1) she was abruptly ruled out for "diving" in the high jump and (2) she was barred from competing in more than three contests.

The Babe's basketball ability is celebrated in the Southwest and here, again, she is a star in the rougher sphere of sport. She has played football. Some of our better known sporting writers, who have played golf with Didrikson, say she could be a champion at that sport. She can throw a baseball further than most men. She might, with proper training, give the top flight of women tennis and swimming stars a brisk contest.

"What of it?" we may agree, but give the Babe her due; she is now doing only what Madison, Bausch, Holm, Tolan and most of our other Olympic or college athletic stars are doing to capitalize their name and fame.

WARNER DEPARTURE MAKES SCHISSLER COACH DEAN

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 9.—(AP)—With the departure of Pop Warner from Stanford, Paul Schissler of Oregon State College steps in as undisputed dean of Pacific Coast Conference football coaches in point of continuous service.

Schissler and Warner joined the coast coaching ranks at the same time nine years ago. Howard Jones, of Southern California is second to Schissler in years of service with eight. Jones recently signed a new five-year contract with U. S. C. and with a year yet to run on his old one, he is set for at least a total of fourteen years in the West.

DIVORCE SEEN ENDING FIFTH OF 1933 MARRIAGES

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The prediction that "one of every five or six married couples of the present year will ultimately have their marriage broken in the divorce court" if present trends continue is made in the report of the President's Research Committee on Social Trends.

In 1900, the report says, there were 20 divorces for 10,000 married persons; in 1930 there were 36, the figures being based on the total number of married persons and not on the marriages for any one year. With the possible exception of Soviet Russia, the United States has the highest divorce rate of the countries for which statistics are available.

Homes broken by death decreased from 7.6 per cent in 1900 to 4.9 per cent in 1930, but homes broken by divorce, annulment or separation increased from 6.7 per cent to 9.8 per cent.

I've been told that Crisco won't get rancid and indigestible.

Whoever told you that knows what she's talking about.

Say, I've eaten like a pig. But those biscuits are too good to cause trouble, hon!

Eat all you like. They're made with Crisco, so they're digestible!

"My liver was all out of order and I became so constipated that I had to take some kind of a purgative nearly every night. I suffered with bilious headaches—my appetite was poor, and everything I ate disagreed with me. Sargon Soft Mass Pills have made me feel like a new man. They regulated me perfectly."—Myron F.
