SEES FOREIGN QUESTION AS INTERESTING

Much Speculation as To What Changes in Foreign Policy Will Be Attempted

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, the Associated Press, Washington) One subject of rising speculation in Washington is whether a really basic revision of American foreign policy may not be in store after March 4.

It should be said at once that those who predict so important a change do so largely through a process of deduction rather than from positive knowledge.

Has Own Ideas

More important still, he has had for years some rather definite notions of world relationships, which he may now feel free to incorporate in the "new deal."

Set down in the one ledger, so to speak, all of the items of relationship between the United States and other individual power-say France.

The list would include the war debt; American tariffs which bar French products; French trade restrictions against Americans; the surplus in each country for which there might be a market in the other; and a hundred things besides.

Then, by negotiation—that is, by trading back and forth—strike a balance which would represent the best attainable relationship.

A Complex Problem

Such a readjustment would be, in fact, a major diplomatic operation and a most complex one if carried out with respect to all of the great powers.

Japan, for instance, if she consented to negotiate for continued admittance of her enormous silk surplus into the United States, might have to be asked in return to give up her campaign of aggression in China; and that would be a very delicate subject, indeed.

Russia owes the United States a war debt. She wants certain American machinery, and more than all else, she wants American recognition. The United States wants Russian Communist propaganda in the country ended. So far all efforts to trade one of these things for another have failed, nor does the present administration see any prospect of success.

Altogether the experiment would be beset with complications and uncertainties. If it or any modified form of it is what Mr. Roosevelt really has in mind, the next few years are sure to make interesting diplomatic history of one kind or another.

ONE DEAD, ONE HURT IN SHOOTING SCRAPE

Bamber, S. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Louie Kobetz, 45, was killed and Mrs. Ruth Mae Shires, 25, was probably fatally wounded in a shooting affair at Mrs. Shires' home here last night.

BANANA SHIPMENTS SHOW BIG INCREASE

New York, Jan. 10.—According to the latest figures released by the U. S. Department of Commerce, Colombia's leading banana port off Santa Marta, on the Atlantic, shipped 867 times as many stems of the tropical yellow fruit in August as were shipped in the same month of 1921.

TO RECOMMEND GENERAL SALES TAX MEASURE

Budget Commission Expected to Present Report to Assembly Next Monday.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Associated Press learned today on what it considered reliable authority that the report of the State Advisory Budget Commission to the General Assembly will recommend a State-wide sales tax of four-tenths of one per cent on gross sales.

Madrid, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Official reports today indicated that the simultaneous extremist uprisings in Spain against the Republican government had apparently collapsed.

Army Planes En Route Home

SEEK CHANGE MARRIAGE LAW IN THIS STATE

Legislative Bills Would do Away With Medical Examination and Notice

Faleigh, N. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Dan Cupid may be given a freer hand in North Carolina. Two new bills now are before the General Assembly which would loosen the strong bands about marriage in Tar Heel, and, their proponents claim, produce more "home-made" weddings and thereby increase revenue.

The measures, proposed by Representative Wilson of Caswell, and Thompson, of Columbus, both representing border counties, would repeal the physical examination requirement and the state's requiring five days' notice of intention from minors in lieu of parental consent.

Representatives Thompson and Wilson claim the State's present strict marriage laws are driving anxious couples into border States.

The Tax Commission, in its biennial report, bore out their contention.

It pointed out that in 1920 the number of marriage licenses issued in the State was 29,754, but in 1921, when a total revision of the matrimonial laws was made, the number dropped to 20,737.

After another revision in 1929, the number of licenses continued to drop, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, the total number of licenses was only 12,212.

In the period covered the population of the State increased by more than 20 per cent.

"We all know that the explanation is that, as a consequence of our restrictive laws many North Carolinians who marry cross State lines into South Carolina, Tennessee or Virginia, for that purpose," said the State's Tax Commission in its report.

"A much more important consideration is that our restrictive marriage laws place no restriction whatever upon marriage—any point in the State is within three hours of auto travel to the State line—and that under these laws it has become the rule rather than the exception that the legal record of marriages of our own people is being made in other States," the report declared.

The next generation of North Carolinians will have to go to Virginia, Tennessee or South Carolina to find any legal record of marriage of their parents.

NOVEL SKY-RIDING IS ENJOYED IN COLUMBIA

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 10.—(AP)—While airways, waterways and railroads are common means of travel and transport in Colombia, South America, a strange fourth mode of conveyance flourishes in this progressive republic—the aerial cableways.

Steel cables are strung from mountain peak to mountain peak in the Colombian Andes and cars suited to passenger and freight transport are suspended from the cable loops.

These traverse the often impassable mountain ranges at much greater speed and with far more convenience than would be possible on mule-back, the only other means of negotiating some of the precipitous mountain regions.

Like all improvements over the commonplace, the aerial cableway in Colombia are the outgrowth of necessity. It is in the mountainous districts that Columbia's principal crop—coffee—is grown; and it is because Colombian coffees are cultivated in the mountains 4,000 to 5,000 feet above the sea, that they are said to be superior to coffees grown in the flat sun-beaten lowlands of other countries.

ENDEAVORS TO LENGTHEN THE BURDEN OF ATLAS

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—(UP)—Pennsylvania is doing its best to lighten the burden of Atlas, who, in Greek mythology, sustains the weight of the world on his shoulders.

Annually 200,000,000 tons of coal and thousands of tons of limestone are removed from the earth in the Keystone State and are reduced to ashes of comparatively negligible weight.

It has been going on for decades, but the Pennsylvania efforts would have to continue for centuries to unload the world's shoulders of the weight of Pennsylvania's coal and limestone.

NEGRO IS SENT BACK TO JAIL

Herbert Rogers Remanded to Jail After Hearing on Criminal Assault Charge.

Herbert Rogers, negro, was remanded to jail yesterday without privilege of bond following preliminary hearing on a charge of criminal assault upon a white woman.

The attack was made upon Mrs. Mattie Walters of the Pacolus section of the county. According to the story of the crime, Mrs. Walters was at home with her children when Rogers made his way into the house through an open window and attacked her.

News of the crime reached county officers and Rogers was traced by his footprints about the house where Mrs. Walters lived. Upon being arrested he stoutly denied the charge, but his voice was identified by Mrs. Walters as that of her assailant.

The evidence at yesterday's hearing was said to have been bad for Rogers and his defense very weak.

MAY ASK EHRINGHAUS TO PARDON COL-LEA

Washington, Jan. 10.—A report that the friends of former Senator Luke Lea would ask Governor Ewing to pardon him came here from Tennessee today.

It was said that the governor of Tennessee and Senator Reynolds of North Carolina would appeal to Mr. Ewing to do that; and that Mr. Ewing had heard that such a proposal might be made. Mr. Ewing would not be surprised to know that such a drive on the North Carolina governor would be made.

Late News Flashes

Today In The Legislature Raleigh, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Important bills of a state-wide nature today were dropped into the mill in both houses of the General Assembly's short session.

Topping the measures were one for the repeal of the state prohibition law and one for the levying of a production tax on all manufacturers and most all companies operating in the state.

The repeal bill was presented by Representative Carver of Cherokee, while the production tax bill was introduced by Senator Clement of Rutherford.

These bills introduced included measures for a tax on manufacturing tobacco one twentieth of the federal tax; to regulate lobbyists; to allow consolidation of counties in line with the recommendations of Governor Ewing; to regulate the working hours for women; to repeal the law exempting foreign stocks from taxes.

HOOVER GIVES CAMP TO VA.

Makes Old Dominion Present of His Summer White House at Madison.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 10.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover have donated their camp, the summer White House, at Madison, Va., to the Commonwealth with the request that it be made a part of the Shenandoah National Park.

"At a time like this," he said, "I can state in all truthfulness, an easy lies the head that wear the crown of responsibility in government, all the way from king to coroner."

"Unless we who are charged with leadership act promptly and intelligently to put our house in order, a great wave of protest without plan or wisdom may break about our heads and destroy, rather than reform, the public service."

"We are more than blind if we do not recognize this fact." If adjustments in government are to be made, Gardner said, "We shall have to make up our minds to forget some of our most prized and beloved prejudices."

In North Carolina, he continued, "We realized that the old idea of giving no one in government any great amount of power or responsibility was a worn-out maxim that was costing the people of North Carolina millions of dollars annually."

Capital for the enterprise has been raised, it is understood. New York jobbers have agreed to take the output.

GOV. GARDNER SPEAKS BEFORE IOWA SOLONS

Declares Re-organization and Consolidation is Only Way to Lower Taxes

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Reorganization is the present "pass-word in government," former Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, told a joint session of the Iowa General Assembly here last night.

"Consolidation carries with it an almost magic meaning and re-arrangement is the open sesame to all tax issues and associations," said the man who last week relinquished the reins of government in the Tar Heel state.

Gardner reviewed the record of his administration, pointing out economy and tax relief measures effected. He laid particular stress on North Carolina's road law, passed in 1932, which consolidated all county roads under one state agency; state control of all public schools; merger of the state's three institutions of higher learning; and creation of a local government commission to supervise the issuance of bonds by cities, towns and counties.

"Re-organization, we must have, and consolidation is highly desirable, and re-arrangement is the imperative need of the hour," Gardner said, "but above all things we must have ability, honesty and high courage in public office."

Earlier in his address, Gardner urged consolidation of counties, contrasting Iowa's 99 with North Carolina's 100.

"I do not believe that either Commonwealth should be continuously proud of the mere number of its counties," he declared.

"We no longer need 100 counties in North Carolina and our policy of gradual grouping of county service and administration is inevitably leading to consolidation. And, we may as well prepare for consolidation, because the demand of taxpayers of this country for a reduction in the cost of government and a simplification in the machinery of public service will not be much longer denied."

Touching upon present economic conditions, Gardner asserted never before in the history of America had there been such a period of economic and social unrest.

"I can state in all truthfulness, an easy lies the head that wear the crown of responsibility in government, all the way from king to coroner."

"Unless we who are charged with leadership act promptly and intelligently to put our house in order, a great wave of protest without plan or wisdom may break about our heads and destroy, rather than reform, the public service."

"We are more than blind if we do not recognize this fact." If adjustments in government are to be made, Gardner said, "We shall have to make up our minds to forget some of our most prized and beloved prejudices."

In North Carolina, he continued, "We realized that the old idea of giving no one in government any great amount of power or responsibility was a worn-out maxim that was costing the people of North Carolina millions of dollars annually."

Capital for the enterprise has been raised, it is understood. New York jobbers have agreed to take the output.

JAPS CONTINUE PUSH FORWARD

Military Authorities Report Occupation of Another Strategic Point.

Tokyo, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Japanese cavalry and infantry occupied Chimenkov Pass in the great wall of China today, blocking further movement of Chinese troops through the famous route. This is the second strategic position taken by the Japanese during the week to block the Chinese from the rich Mongolian provinces and frustrate Chinese attempts to defend against the impending invasion, it was announced by the Japanese military commander.

Occupation of Shanhaiwan just a week ago by the Japanese shut off the only eastern gate a short distance from where the wall comes down to the sea.

Chimenkov is twelve miles north of Shanhaiwan and here is where the 2,000 year old barrier turns westward. A communique said the Rising Sun banner was hoisted over the walled town after very little skirmishing. A Regno dispatch said there was no resistance, although one Chinese regiment expelled from Shanhaiwan was reported moving toward the position.

The tax of one-half of one per cent would apply to the gross incomes of all the businesses covered by the bill. An exemption of $1,800 on gross incomes or receipts is provided.

PLEA FOR NEW TRIAL WAITS UNTIL TODAY

Greensboro, Jan. 10.—The scheduled appearance of Mrs. W. E. French before Guilford Superior Court today to plead for a new trial of the charges of aiding Bert Owen in the nearly fatal shooting of her husband did not take place but was continued until today. COSTLY ELECTRICITY MAKES VIENNA KEROSENE MINDED

Vienna, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A return to the kerosene lamp is threatened in Vienna.

Many householders have declared their inability to pay rent on the electric meters, which in Austria is charged separately.

POLICE SEEK BABY KILLER

New York, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A black handled stiletto with a blade six inches long was the only clue today from which detectives hunted the killer who murdered a baby boy in his crib.

Frank Mitchell Cammarano, four-months-old was sleeping in a dark room in the Bronx last night. His father, Anthony, 31, was at night school learning to be a plumber. Other relatives were in an adjoining room. The stiletto was stuck up on the rear of the crib. The baby was found home. A black handled stiletto and a pair of undergarments were carried and a hand slipped into the room.

SEN. CLEMENT SPONSORS BILL

Measure Also Provides Gross Receipts Tax for Banks, Insurance Agencies, Newspapers, Truck Lines and Other Forms of Business Activity.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—A "Production Tax Act" which will tax every manufacturer of anything as well as all public utilities, including insurance salesmen, commercial banks, newspapers, mines and storage warehouses operated in North Carolina was introduced in the State Senate today.

Senator Hayden Clement of Rowan, chairman of the Appropriations Committee and one of the leaders of the anti-sales tax fight in the 1931 Senate, started his colleagues when he sent forward the measure which would levy one-half of one per cent on gross incomes and receipts. The bill's provisions does not apply to retail businesses of any kind.

"We must collect the revenue at its source, that of production," Senator Clement asserted. "A production tax is a tax on activity, the creation of wealth, the circulating dollar. The best illustrations are to be found in the income tax levied on production from personal activity, like the production tax on cigarettes levied at the source of production. Commodities so taxed must go into all the world and collect the tribute from all the people."

The measure lists thirty different types of manufacturing carried on in the State, and further specifies each and every other kind of manufactured product whether set forth or not in the bill is likewise included. Mr. Clement said that 3,700 manufacturing plants in this State turn out 140 different products that would be affected. The bill further lists mining, quarries, production of lumber, the manufacture of all bottled drinks and beverages, operation of packing houses, newspapers, book binderies, maintaining outdoor advertising, marble yards, operating water, electric or gas plants, telephones, airplanes, truck lines, steamship lines operated for profit, insurance, commercial banks operated for profit, operation of storage warehouses for profit or handling goods for distribution to chain stores or sub-stations, and several thousand other items.

The tax of one-half of one per cent would apply to the gross incomes of all the businesses covered by the bill. An exemption of $1,800 on gross incomes or receipts is provided.

Wisconsin Binder Prices Lowest in 78 Years

Madison, Wis., Jan. 10.—Lowest prices for tobacco since growing of the plant was started in Wisconsin 78 years ago were offered when the market opened there. Although the planting was held to nearly half the record acreage, the price is around 5 cents a pound.

Wisconsin for generations has produced a large portion of the country's cigar-binder tobacco.

Low prices in recent years pulled this year's acreage down to 28,000, the smallest of the century. In 1900 the crop brought 13 cents a pound; in 1910, 16 cents; in 1918, 22 cents; in 1920, 28 cents; and in 1921, 32 cents. This year the estimate is 37,000,000 pounds worth less than $2,000,000.—Western Tobacco Journal.

LITERATURE DEPARTMENT WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

On Saturday morning Mrs. W. H. Woolard, with Mrs. E. B. Allbrook as assistant hostess, entertained the Literary Department of the Woman's Club.

The home was tastefully decorated with greens, winter berries and early spring flowers.

Mrs. W. A. Darden, chairman of the department, conducted a short business session, then called for the literary report.

Mrs. H. H. Settle, whose subject was "Women in Religion" introduced Mrs. Dink James and Miss Agnes Fulllove who sang a hymn, words and music by a woman composer.

In her paper Mrs. Settle commented on the large place in religious life which has always been filled by women.

Beginning with Old Testament women such as Rebecca and Ruth, then a few from later Bible history, Dorcas among them, she led into a study of leaders in American life.

The work of Mary Lynn, Jane Adams and Anna Howard Shaw was given in its place. Some mention of present-day leaders in religion was made.

Mrs. Settle closed her excellent paper with the quotation from Alice Freeman Palmer: "In order to be happy, see something beautiful every day, learn something beautiful every day, do something beautiful every day."

The hostesses, assisted by Mrs. C. L. Herring, Mrs. W. C. Vincent and Miss Mary Woolard, served a delicious barbeque luncheon to club members and a number of invited guests.

Home Economics Specialist. Home Economics has expanded from a group of special subjects concerned with the provision of adequate meals, well selected clothes well planned and well furnished homes to a consideration of all these in terms of their contribution to family life.

Due to this, home economics has become a composite subject, including many phases of work that are fundamental to home making.

With increased emphasis upon home relationship, the underlying theme of the whole course is family life. The term "family life" carries or should carry a broad social significance—one that reaches out beyond the four walls of the home for the time formerly spent on foods and clothing is being materially diminished to allow time for training in the management of the home.

Home economics with its broad outlook helps to meet the seven principles of education. Namely (1) Health; (2) Command of fundamental processes; (3) Worthy of home membership; (4) Vocation; (5) Citizenship; (6) Ethical character; (7) Worthy use of leisure.

It is from these principles that the objectives for the course are obtained. The study of family relationship, child care, and home management contributes to worthy home membership.

It is agreed that the chief function of the home with children is to provide an environment in which the members of the family can live healthy, happy, useful lives. To achieve this function the home must set for itself well defined objectives for the physical, emotional and intellectual development of its members and must apply wise management in handling of the resources at its command.

The food unit makes a definite contribution to health. If speaking of health an outstanding educator has said: "I can not think of anything worth obtaining in life for man or woman that will not give more joy, satisfaction and zest to life if good physical health accompanies it."

Mrs. Mary Swartz Rose says: "We have much to learn yet about nutrition but we know enough to add at least as much to the span of human life by dietary improvement alone, as has been added in the past 15 years by all other health measures combined."

The whole home economics course contributes to vocational efficiency because it is for the profession of home making in which, as statistics show, about 85 per cent of the women of the country are engaged.

Civic and social value are stressed in a number of units.

The test of success of home economics is now in terms of human relations and adjustments, human experiences and developments.

The second year home economics class, as a part of their related art and history of costume design course designed the costumes for the opera, "The Marriage of Figaro" which is to be given at a later date under the direction of Miss Shindler, Mrs. Picklesimer and Miss Powell. The costumes are an exact reproduction of the eighteenth century.

Junior Class Rings Arrive. Even though many juniors were disappointed because the class rings were not here by Christmas, they were delighted with them when they came on December 27.

The ring is a beautiful design in yellow gold with the date 1934 on the sides of the shank. The ring is set with black onyx on which is mounted a fancy seal with a torch.

On the seal in raised letters is "G. H. S." and across the center the word "Greenville" is carried in black enamel letters.

Those who were so unfortunate as to be unable to get in their order in time for the first shipment may if they wish, send in their order now.

Junior Rotarian. At a recent meeting of the Rotary Club Harold Sugg was presented as the Junior Rotarian to succeed Charles Cobb who has served for the last month. The basis for the decision was Sugg's outstanding scholastic standing. Harold will wear the Junior Rotarian pin and attend all club meetings for the next month.

The plan of having a junior representative was submitted at the beginning of the school year by the local Rotary Club. For quite a number of years this plan has been successfully executed in other towns.

Besides rating well in his studies Sugg is an outstanding member of the band, orchestra and glee club and is active in all his class activities. During the football season he was co-manager with Jim Slay. And in the newspaper club his work is decidedly superior.

George Willard is the other Junior Rotarian chosen on such a basis. The next representative will be selected because of his athletic qualifications.

Boxing Candidates. This year seems to be the turning point in athletics in Greenville High School. Many new things have been added to the fields and dressing rooms for the athletes. To the many sports already in the high school, boxing has been added to the list.

About a dozen boys have reported for practice and under the supervision of Coach C. W. Porter much is expected to be accomplished. The boys are doing a little road work, skipping the rope and shadow boxing.

Gloves and other materials have been ordered and will arrive shortly. Manager Carl Joyner is at present trying to arrange some bouts with nearby schools.

SOUNDS FISHY—INDIAN GIRL KNOCKS THEM SILLY

Karl P. Schmidt of Field Museum's zoological staff writes that fish in the Santa Ana River in Honduras escaped capture because they were so wily they hid under rocks at the slightest sound.

But a native Indian girl, Schmidt wrote, outsmarted the fish. She dropped large rocks on top of those under which the fish hid, and the fish, always resting at the top of the caverns with their heads next to the rocky roofs, were stunned.

Then the fishermen merely reached under the rocks and pulled out the unconscious fish!

Those who were so unfortunate as to be unable to get in their order in time for the first shipment may if they wish, send in their order now.

SAVE THE LIVES TOO

While the legislature is considering economy here and economy there for the benefit of the taxpayers of the state to all of which we say a loud "Amen" let them also give a little thought to preserving the lives of our people on the highways by enacting legislation that will end the highways of incompetent or wilfully reckless drivers. At the last session of the General Assembly Senator Marvin Blount of this county made a fight for a state-wide driver's license and it is to be hoped that during the present term the fight will be renewed and pushed to a successful conclusion.

When we say that we want a driver's license law enacted we do not mean that we want just another measure that would permit the state to collect some more revenue without benefit by merely charging a fee and granting a license to anybody who could pay for same. What the state needs is a driver's license law that will carry with it a strict examination as to ability of every person who is to drive an automobile, the license to cost a minimum fee and to remain in force until the state sees fit to revoke same either on the ground of loss of competency on the part of the driver or on the ground of willful or habitual violation of the traffic laws.

North Carolina, like most of the other states, has enacted laws to protect its fish and game, laws to protect its forests against fires, laws to protect its citizens against crime, but out of the entire 48 states only nine states have exercised the wisdom to endeavor to protect their people against the ever growing menace of the incompetent and reckless automobile drivers on the highways and North Carolina is not one of these nine states.

In addition to balancing the budget and reducing taxes the present General Assembly can render a real service to the people of the state by the passage of the much needed automobile driver's license law.

PEAK CHARITY CAUSES RECIPIENTS TO SHIRK

Raeford, Jan. 10.—The local welfare work has grown to such proportions these carrying on the work are within sight of a shortage in the necessary stock and local storekeepers say "the give-away store" is affecting business. It is plain, both colored and white tenants are not locating for the new year, and it is thought many who are supplied with food by the charity board will not make much effort to get it otherwise.

Buying Barbara

SYNOPSIS: At a hilarious party in a London night club Mark Lodely, gifted and arrogant young artist, draws libelous caricatures of his hostess and demands that she buy them. He is the guest in London of Farrell Armitage, whose love for Barbara Quentin has led him to promise to launch Mark as an artist in return for a year's grace extended by Barbara. For Barbara is engaged to marry Mark; in the year Farrell hopes to win her love for himself. Lella Cane helps Farrell because she also loves Mark.

Chapter 26 BLACKMAIL

Constantia J. Jacobson did not struggle. She produced a check and a fountain pen and wrote in silence. Meanwhile Mark had wrapped the sketches in a napkin and tied them with the string from one of the silver balloons tethered to the table. By the time the duchess had come round to see what was going on, there was nothing to see. So Mark drew her instead, on the back of the menu.

He drew her as he thought she would like to be drawn—a smile over a bare shoulder, excessive length of eyelashes, excessive transparency of skirt. But he was getting exhausted. He calculated that he could only do another couple of impressions before his exhaustion became apparent in his work.

"May I borrow that sketch?" asked McLoughlin.

In the event he did three and after a glass of champagne—a fourth. This was of the enormous and frenzied negro conductor of the Da Capo Band.

Then he made the mistake of drinking a good deal of everything that was pressed upon him; and gradually the flattery and the laughter and the music and the chatter all merged into an irregular drumming rhythm that was not unpleasant but had a tendency to beat its way right into his head and interfere with his conversation. There was, however, a curiously lucid interval when a gaunt, gray-haired man stood by his chair and said—

"I like that study of the conductor. Would you let me borrow it? Name's McLoughlin."

The confusion fell from Mark's mind. The two women who had their arms round his neck screamed together as he wrenched himself to his feet.

"It isn't what I'd planned you should look at first. These people—just a lot of—What a pity I'm too drunk to explain!"

"It is, rather. . . Didn't Farrell Armitage speak to me about you?"

"He promised to, sir."

"Well, when you've slept this off, come around and see me. Or no—His eyes had found the crutch—I'll come round to you. He flicked a nod towards the tableful and went.

The next clear interval showed Mark his own face in a long mirror in which the dawn was faintly reflected. He was sitting on a blue sofa in the outer lounge; the party, the porter informed him, had left him completely stranded. But Armitage's car was outside—Mark, quite clear-headed now, recognized the chauffeur.

The man who descended from it and bore down upon him was not, however, Armitage, but a man nearly as tall, nearly as heavy and nearly as brown of hair and eyes and skin. "Damn nearly Armitage," marvelled Mark, whose head was clearing with most opportune speed.

The young man smiled and his likeness to Armitage proved to be that of type only. The set of Armitage's mouth had always something hard about it; whereas this cheerful grin radiated a puppy-like complacency.

"Oh, I wonder if you're thinking of coming along yet? Armitage thought perhaps you might be. I'm his secretary—Kenneth Poole—he left me behind in New York, y'know—I only got back today. Can I find your coat?"

It was quite evident to Mark that someone, probably McLoughlin, had reported him at Brandish Place as being incapable of speech or movement and he took pleasure in removing this impression.

"Thanks. I wish you would. I was

A SEAT in the CABINET

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of daily articles picturing briefly men and women mentioned for posts in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

NEWTON D. BAKER

Placed high on virtually every list of Roosevelt Cabinet possibilities is the name of Newton D. Baker, the "little giant" of the Wilson wartime Cabinet.

This ranking of the 61-year-old Cleveland lawyer is based on indication of preference by President-Elect Roosevelt nor announced aspiration on the part of Mr. Baker, but rather on his status as a Democratic leader and an outstanding citizen.

Baker for years has been a widely-favored "dark horse" for the Presidential nomination. With the first return of his party to national ascendancy since the Wilson administration, he became immediately a prominent prospect for Roosevelt's official family.

He has been listed by political deponents as a possible Attorney-General, Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury and Secretary of War. A staunch supporter of Wilson doctrines, Baker has long advocated international co-operation and the removal of trade barriers between the United States and other countries as essential not only to world progress, but sustained American prosperity.

It pays to read advertisements— It will pay you to read this one

THE other day a friend gave my wife a receipt for a new Frozen Orange Pudding. We had it last night for desert.

"This is something new," I said. "Where did you get it?"

"Mae gave me the recipe yesterday. She clipped it from an advertisement."

My wife didn't read that advertisement. If her friend hadn't read it what a treat we would have missed.

Do you read the advertisements? It will pay you many times over to do so. From them you may learn about all sorts of new things. New foods, new ways to use them, new recipes that will add variety to the daily menu.

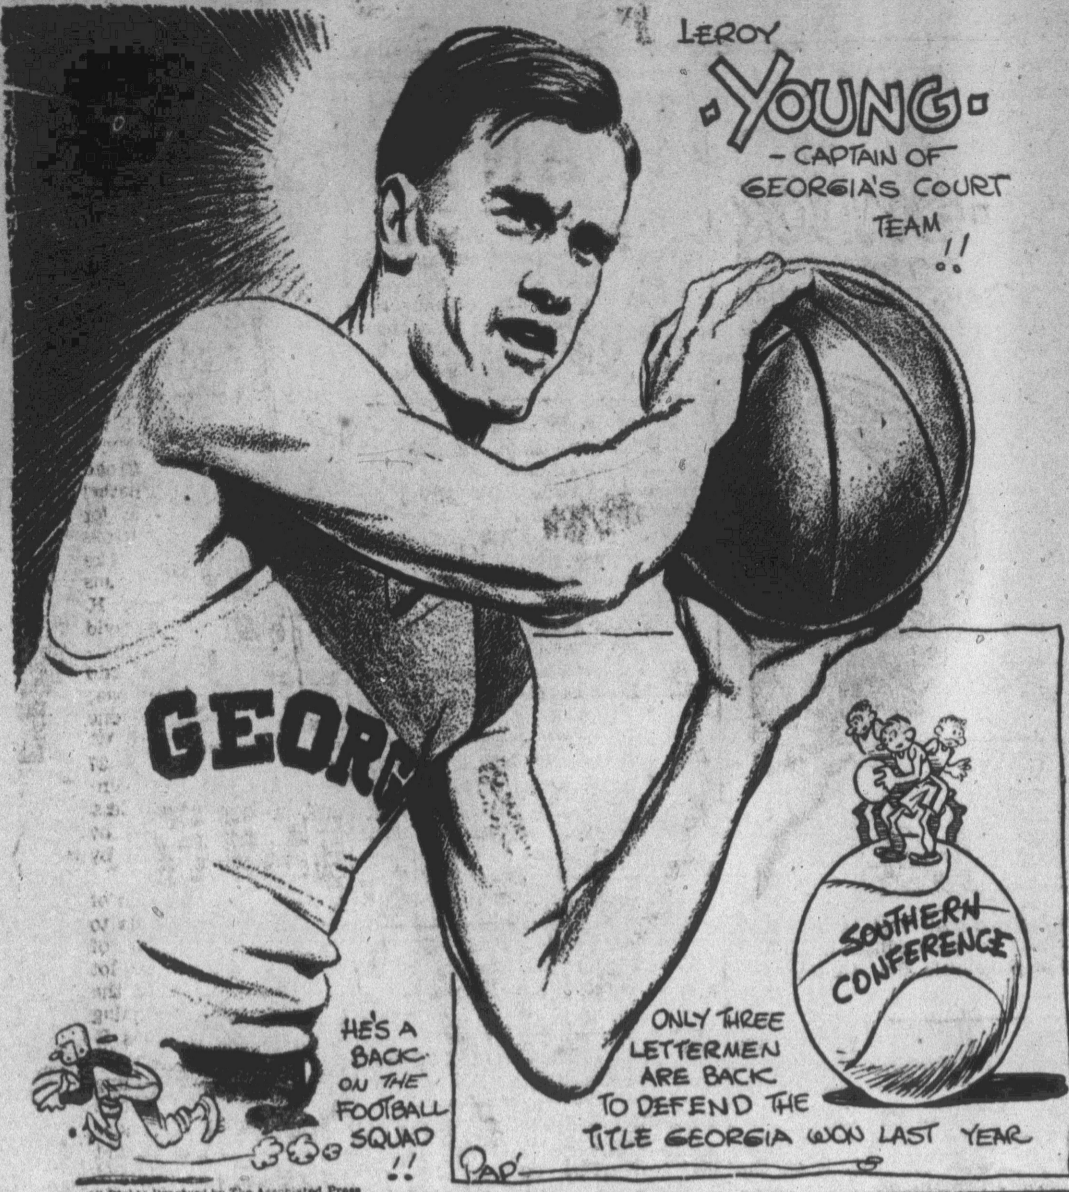

Right in the advertisements in this paper there are countless things to interest you, to save you money, to bring you the most value for what you spend. And now as a reward for reading this advertisement that inspired it.

Recipe for Frozen Orange Pudding

Ingredients. 2 egg yolks (beaten); 1 cup orange juice; 1 cup cream (light cream or top milk will do); 4 teaspoonfuls flour; 1-8 teaspoonful salt; 1-3 cup sugar; 1 teaspoonful grated orange rind. Blend thoroughly egg yolks, sugar, flour, salt and add orange juice and cream. Put in double boiler until thick. Add orange rind, cool and pour into freezing tray of refrigerator—or three or four hours on ice. When ready to serve, top each dish with meringue made by beating two egg whites stiff and adding 1-4 cup sugar. Garnish with orange segments.

It pays to read all the advertisements in this paper!

L.C.T.C. MEETS A.C.C. COLLEGE HERE TONIGHT

Entirely recovered from the disastrous defeat handed them by the N. C. State frosh, the E. C. T. C. basketball team will probably be able to take on the Atlantic Christian College outfit in good style tonight.

The visiting team will be one of the strongest from the Wilson institute in years. It will include Traylor, giant center, who is considered by many coaches one of the best pivot men in the State. Bass, forward, and Rogers, guard, also play bang up games, both offensively and defensively.

The Teachers, however, will have the double advantage of being at home and on their own court. The starting line-up will probably include Bostic, Bennett or Willard forwards; Tucker, center, and Burnette, Eason or Lominax, guards.

Tar Heels Have 2 Games Slated For This Week

Chapel Hill, Jan. 10.—The Carolina basketball team, which looked good against Guilford and Davidson last week, is now drilling hard in preparation for home games with V. P. I. on Friday night and with Wake Forest on Saturday night.

SPORT SLANTS

By one means or another, the Amateur Athletic Union's attempt to select the year's outstanding amateur performer has been complicated.

The list of ten "finalists" in the contest, which carries the Sullivan Memorial Award with it, failed in the first place to include H. Ellsworth Vines, Jr., the world tennis champion for 1932 and by all odds one of the two or three outstanding American amateurs.

The only clue I have to this strange proceeding is that A. A. U. itself regarded somewhat suspiciously the fact that Vines left other pursuits to run tennis campaign carrying him halfway around the world, from early spring to winter. Apparently it was felt this subjected the Californian's amateur status to some question, yet it seems hardly possible this gratuitous attitude could have been sufficiently widespread to keep Vines out of a list of ten leading amateur performers in any open halling. It is a dangerous precedent.

Babe Didrikson was, of course, among the ten finalists announced by the A. A. U., but it now seems the Texas wonder girl has automatically been eliminated from the decisive ballot by reason of her suspension, for the time being, on evidence arising from the publication of an automobile advertisement carrying her picture and endorsement.

Wood? Metcalf? At least two other sources of eye-brow-lifting in this proceeding are the inclusion of William Barry Wood, Harvard's former all-around athlete, and Ralph Metcalf, Marquette negro sprinter, in the favored list.

Wood's literary efforts for 1932 hardly would qualify him for distinction as an outstanding athlete. True, he did not finish his college career until last June, but his major athletic exploits for Harvard reached their peak in 1931, when he was selected All-America quarterback and subsequently nominated for the Sullivan Award. Barry Wood, in short, will not be recalled as a conspicuous figure in the 1932 picture of sporting activity.

Metcalf, of course, has a better claim to distinction. Up to and including the final Olympic tryouts and national championships, the Marquette flier was the best all-around sprinter in the country. But he was trimmed twice by Eddie Tolman in the Olympic and the only way he can be given the preference is on the basis that Tolman since has removed himself from consideration by turning professional.

Very Strange, Indeed There have to be some rules and regulations, of course, for the Sullivan Award or any other contest of this kind, but it does not seem that a subsequent change in vocation or avocation can alter the performances which originally qualify a candidate.

The case would be different, of course, if Tolman or Didrikson or even Vines had been demonstrated to have violated amateur rules BEFORE they turned in the achievements that put them in the spotlight. That was what cost Jim Thorpe his 1912 Olympic medals. But no such accusations concern the athletes considered here, nor is there any suggestion that the medals or trophies won by Didrikson, Tolman and Vines be returned.

MY SISTER BAKED A CAKE AND PUT IT ON THE PORCH TO COOL OFF.

OH DON'T FRET, I'LL GO TO THE BAKERY AND BUY ANOTHER CAKE FOR YOU

SHUCKS—I DON'T WANT ANOTHER CAKE, I WANT ANOTHER DOG!
