HOOVER ASKS QUICK ACTION ON BANKRUPTCY LAW

Sends Special Message To Congress Asking Revision To Prevent 'Foreclosures'

SAYS FORCED CLOSINGS ARE RUINING U. S.

If Allowed to Continue, Misery Will be Suffered by Thousands Without Substantial Gain to their Creditors, President Declares; Specifically Requests Immediate Alteration of the Law to Facilitate Relief of Debtors.

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—In a second special message to Congress in as many days, President Hoover today made a plea for emergency action in revision of bankruptcy laws in order to avoid present-day wholesale forced foreclosures.

The President asked specifically for immediate alteration of the existing law to facilitate relief of debtors who seek protection of the courts for the purpose of readjusting their affairs with their creditors.

"Present processes of forced liquidation," he said, "are proving utterly destructive to the interests of the debtors and creditors alike."

"If allowed to continue," he said, "misery will be suffered by thousands without substantial gains to their creditors insisting upon foreclosure in the hope of collecting part of the money owed them."

"Under the existing law," he said, "either where majorities of creditors desire to arrange their equitable readjustment with debtors, their plans may be consummated without prohibitive delay and expense usually attended by obstruction of a minority of creditors who oppose such settlement in the hope that the fear of ruinous liquidation will induce immediate settlement of their claims."

The President made specific reference to railroads, saying the corporate re-organization provisions could be applicable to the carriers and in such cases the plan for re-organization should not become effective until such has been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

People Without Auto Licenses Tags Today Taken Into Custody By Patrol

Members of the state highway patrol today began making arrests of motorists without state automobile license tags. It was stated at the office of Lieut. Lester Jones of the local patrol unit.

Licenses are being distributed through the local offices of the Carolina Motor Club. City auto tags are also being distributed by the same source and the same method of procedure will be used as employed in the sale of state tags.

Highway patrolmen throughout the state have been warned that the time limit has expired, and beginning today all persons who appear on the highways without licenses will be arrested and taken to court.

POLICE SOLVE LOCAL BANK ROBBERY HERE

Three Negroes Held For Robbing Carolina Cleaners Before Christmas

Police today had marked another robbery case as "solved" in the arrest of three negroes charged with the robbery of the Carolina Cleaners here shortly before the Christmas holidays and recovery of a major part of the stolen property.

Three prisoners, Romie Steward, Jerry Groom and Solomon Herring, were taken in custody in Wilson County yesterday by Chief of Police George Clark, of Greenville, assisted by members of the Wilson police department.

Given preliminary hearing this morning, Steward was bound over to the next term of court under $1,500 bond and was remanded to jail when he was unable to provide bail.

Groom and Herring were returned to the convict camp in Edgecombe County to complete a sixty-day reformation each on charges of assault. They will be returned here to face trial at the next term of court, but will complete services of the sentence in Edgecombe County before beginning any terms which may be imposed in this county.

Chief Clark obtained the temporary release of Groom and Herring from the road camp, and they showed him where the goods were distributed in various parts of Wilson and adjoining counties. They also confessed taking part in the robbery, and implicated Stewart who was taken into custody at Wilson.

Late News Flashes

Today in The Legislature. Raleigh, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Another effort to bring about reduction in salaries of all constitutional officers of the state including judges, was launched with the General Assembly today.

With the Senate debating and adopting a joint resolution of Senator McLean of Beaufort, each house got another batch of new bills including important state proposals.

Two measures to make divorces easier hit the Senate hopper, and one in the House superintendents of mental institutions and replacing them with 11 district managers.

The Senate received a bill to tax electricity one mill per kilowatt hour and another to place a gross tonnage tax on buses and trucks. Another measure would prohibit construction of state highways with state funds during the current year except in emergency.

An attack on nepotism started in the House with a joint resolution which would demand that state department heads provide the assembly with a list of married women in each department and also information as to salaries by members of families of employees.

SON BORN TO LIBBY HOLMAN

Heir to $18,000,000 Tobacco Fortune Arrives at Philadelphia Hospital.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 11.—A son, potential heir to the $18,000,000 tobacco fortune left by his late father, Smith Reynolds, was born to Libby Holman Reynolds, one-time "Torch Singer" of Broadway, at the Pennsylvania Hospital last night.

Both the baby and Mrs. Reynolds, who went through the ordeal of indictment following her husband's death by shooting early last July, were reported to be in "satisfactory" condition.

According to earlier reports, the birth was not expected last night. Mrs. Reynolds was at the hospital, according to staff physicians, for a routine examination, and it had been indicated that the child would be born late in February.

Announcement of the arrival of the Reynolds' heir was made by Dr. Norris W. Vaux, Libby Holman's personal physician, who said only that "Mrs. Reynolds had a baby boy, born at 6:48 p. m., and her condition and that of the baby are satisfactory."

Three negroes, Charlie Hardie, Wade Jenkins, and Will Jenkins, charged with stealing potatoes and collards from another colored man, were sentenced to four months each on the roads.

They were not members of a band of thieves, but were charged with taking the food products from the neighbor at different intervals.

David Hyman, charged with reckless driving, was sentenced to five days in jail.

John Patrick, colored, charged with possession of whiskey, was fined $10 and cost of action.

P. L. Bullock was permitted to pay the cost of action on a charge of speeding.

The usual phrase "substitution of securities of like value" was not used, but the "substitution of par value" was used, Chairman Norbeck continued.

State Students Building Plane

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 11.—After an apprenticeship last summer in building and flying a small powerless glider, three State College students are now engaged during their spare moments in building an orthodox motor-driven plane.

A converted Ford motor, salvaged from a cracked-up plane, and instruments and parts picked up here and there at bargain prices will help to keep the cost of the plane under $100, they say. He sides of an old packing box serve to enclose the body. There will be no labor costs as the boys are doing all the work in the laboratories and shops at the college. When knotty technical problems come up they go to Prof. J. M. Foster, head of the State College aeronautical department, and to friends at the Raleigh airport.

When the ship is completed they expect it to have a speed of 75 to 85 miles per hour. It will be nearly twenty feet long and will have a wing spread of twenty-eight feet.

Although one of their number has taken a few flying lessons, and all have flown their glider, the boys hope to get some experienced pilot to try out the plane on its first flight. They expect to take to the air by Easter at the latest.

All three are students in aeronautical engineering at State College and expect to get jobs in the manufacturing branch of the industry. They are: Louis Gurry and P. O. Stahl, of Raleigh, and John Nycum, of Durham.

DeValera Program for Ireland Tested By New General Election Campaign

William T. Cosgrave (left) and Eamon de Valera again are leading their parties in an election fight for control of the Irish Free State government. De Valera asks the country to endorse his program for economic and political independence. Cosgrave says ruin must follow a continuation of these policies.

Dublin, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Throwing forward by William T. Cosgrave who down a gauntlet to his enemies, Eamon de Valera has made the game of battle at test as to whether the Free States wishes to follow his program for becoming economically and politically independent.

The answer is to be given at the general election which he has called for January 24.

Cosgrave Seeks Peace

Offered as an alternative is commercial peace with Britain, restoration of the Irish cattle trade and a shattering of the tariff walls that have sprung within a year on the opposite shores of the Irish sea. This latter is the program put forward by William T. Cosgrave who was forced out of the Presidency by de Valera's electoral victory of last February.

The British tariff barriers which have brought distress to Erin and driven de Valera to a hastening of his program for agricultural reform and industrialization, were put up when the fiery leader refused to pay the 1932 instalments of the Irish land annuities.

De Valera Buries Annuities

De Valera derides any idea of resuming the payments. He asserts they are as dead an issue as the oath of allegiance to the British crown, of which he made much a year ago.

LONG LOW BODIES WITH SLEEK LINES MARK THE 1933 MODEL AUTOMOBILE

The automobile of 1933 is a sleek-looking, stream-lined modern affair all around. Sketched above are some of the new details and devices and a model embodying some of the new principles. The sketches were made at the 1933 automobile show in New York.

New York, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Now America can look at its new automobiles.

Twenty-nine 1933 model passenger cars and seven 1933 model trucks are on display at the National Automobile show here, showing everything from minor color changes and modernistic body designs to power brakes, automatic clutches, free wheeling and lipstick oil cans.

The annual show is always the signal for the new drive for sales, and if initial preparations are an indication, the sales effort will be as strenuous as ever. The industry estimates that 60 per cent of all cars in use today are between three and ten years old, and the manufacturers hope that this year's new gadgets aid mechanical improvement will make the old car seem even older.

The new cars are characterized by many refinements in chassis design. Fenders seem to sweep farther back. They are wider in front. Headlights are placed at an increasing angle in the fenders. Radiators often are of metal work, set in horizontal or perpendicular curves. Dashboards are simplified, more artistic.

Black seems to be the most popular color, but blues, yellowish-greens and browns also are favored. There are many two-tone color designs, and the use of strips of color adds length. Bodies are longer and wider and lower. Lints are curved to permit easier air flow around the car, following aero-dynamic principles of stream-lining.

Several cars show extension of the power or vacuum booster brake principle, and automatic clutches. The brakes, it is claimed, prevent wheel-locking, reduce skidding, save tires, and permit better control. The full automatic clutch is an extension of the free-wheeling principle whereby the clutch need not be used for any forward speed.

Among accessories are a lipstick oil can which carries a new type of stainless lubricant for oiling of door latches; an extension handle on the drain plug in the bottom of the engine crankcase; and a new dry-cleaning fluid, which is not only odorless but perfumed.

Many schemes for fuel economy are utilized in the new cars. One device permits the driver to set a control lever to regulate the motor to use of carrying grades of fuel. Another fuel economizer automatically controls the temperature of the air passing to the carburetor.

New starting controls permit the driver to start his engine by merely turning on the ignition and stepping on the accelerator pedal. Another control starts the engine from a button.

Springs are longer, and automatic shock absorbers adjust themselves to the type of road. Wide use is made of rubber in engine mountings and in other places to absorb vibration.

KENTUCKY'S 'WONDER TEAM' HOPES TO BREAK TITLE JINX

Above are three mainstays of the Kentucky basketball team that for two straight seasons has been labeled by critics the greatest in the South, only to falter with the title in its grasp. Left to right, Forrest Sale, Darrell Darby, and Ellis John on.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Championships are not won on paper, but if paper strength means anything, Kentucky should win the new Southeastern Conference basketball crown in a walk.

Rival coaches shake their heads and groan when anyone mentions Adolph Rupp's Kentucky gang. They are just too good to be true. A complete varsity team from last year returned intact.

An All-Southern center of 1931 back again. A sophomore quintet that wins as many practice games as it loses with the varsity.

Five regulars who in past seasons have won either All-Southern college honors or All-American interscholastic rating.

A starting team that averages six feet three inches in height.

But the other coaches know Kentucky is an unlucky tournament team and the Southeastern title will be awarded after tournament competition.

For two years Kentucky has gone down to the old Southern Conference meet in Atlanta recognized as a wonder team, the best in the South, only to stumble against a "hot" team and lose its scoring punch in the losing minutes.

Two years ago some wild shooting in the final seconds enabled Maryland to beat the Wildcats in the titular contest. Last year North Carolina nosed them out by a single point after trailing most of the game.

If Kentucky can but shake that tournament jinx the mythical crown will rest in Lexington.

The big guns of the Wildcat quintet are Forest "Aggie" Sale, center, and Joan "Frenchy" Demossey, forward. Both are six feet four inches tall.

Darrell Darby probably is the fastest forward of the bunch and the best dribbler. Ellis Johnson is an All-Southern guard. Rupp says he's the best general he has ever seen. Bill Davis, a sophomore, is his mazy left guard.

Howard Kreuter, L. B. Davis, Jack Tucker and Dave Lawrence are ranked as first team forwards along with Darby and Demossey. They work in combination.

George Yates, the All-Southern center in 1931, now subs for Sale and plays guard in his spare time. Coach Rupp has a half dozen other good reserves.

At His Best. Senator "H" perhaps was never in better form than on the afternoon he made his war debt speech. More than the usual number of Senators were on the floor, and the galleries were well filled.

He had cleared the space surrounding his and two other desks that he might have room. Many had moved from the back of the chamber and over from the Democratic side to be closer.

In the members' gallery, directly behind him, sat Mrs. Johnson. Dressed in black and accompanied by two companions, she followed every word of her husband. He admitted that his wife is "the boss" perhaps the only one whose role he acknowledges. Mrs. Johnson takes a keen interest in measures before the Senate and seems to spend almost as much time in the chamber as does her husband.

Most of the Senators listened to him too. Few left the chamber during his address.

Hold Interest of All. One of the reporters of debates in the Senate—a man who has been copying down in shorthand the speeches of Senators for more than twenty years—once said that he had heard Hiram Johnson perhaps speak more than a thousand times.

"But I have yet," he added, "to see him get up and say 'Mr. President that I didn't feel a sort of thrill running up and down my back.'"

That's the way he seems to affect most of those who hear him.

Senior Privileges. A revised group of senior privileges went into effect January 2, after the faculty had inserted provisions to several of those presented. The privileges in effect now are as follows:

3. That all seniors making the honor roll, and having lost not more than four merits, be given a half-holiday on some day selected by the superintendent.

4. That all seniors averaging as good as a three and not being more than six merits during a marking period be allowed to leave the school grounds during the homeroom period, provided that no extra-curricular activity, such as glee club, band, orchestra or newspaper club be skipped, also provided that no senior not qualified as above stated attempt to take advantage of this privilege; otherwise privilege is revoked.

5. That seniors be allowed to go from room to room during homeroom period without the use of the signed slip by the homeroom teacher.

SCHOOL NEWS

Critics

Among the various personalities which constitute our high school may be found persons who pride themselves on being able to criticize destructively. With their satirical criticism, they attack all attempts at improvement, and apparently think they're "quite the stuff" because of their "knocking ability."

But is it in destroying and pulling down that skill is displayed? Even the shallowest understanding, the rudest hand, is more than equal to that task.

The critic who is discerning in nothing but faults, exhibits a decided lack of equilibrium and ability to appreciate in his makeup.

Persons of great talents, whether editorialists, musicians, actors, or humorists, rarely escape the attacks of those who, without favoring the world with any production of their own, take delight in criticizing the efforts of others.

With this in mind, the students of the high school who are forever trying to do their part toward improving the functioning of their school system should not feel worried if severely criticised by certain individualistic fellow students.

A maniac may tear down that which only a genius can build up. GEORGE WILLARD

Destructive Criticism. Our solemn young contemporaries come to us and say: "If you can't criticize a thing favorably, don't criticize at all." That sentiment, we insist, is naively fatuous. An engineer is not considered a maniac because he demolishes an old dilapidated building; so why should a critic who tries to destroy a fallacy be termed a "destructive critic?"

An inconsistent, thoughtless convention is quite as great to society as a "fire trap" is to persons connected with the building. Is it not better, therefore, that both the fallacy and the edifice be condemned and destroyed, even though nothing better is erected in their places? Moreover, one is assured that only a few conventions can survive severe criticism, and they, by the law of "survival of the fittest" will be the best and strongest. So—we continue to criticize.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALONEL. And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go.

If you feel sour and snaky and the world looks blue, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 50c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DON'T OVERDO IT

With the time at hand for the preparation of tobacco beds for plants for the coming season, indications point in some sections to the fact that many farmers are contemplating increased tobacco acreage this year.

While the tobacco crop just disposed of did not bring as high a price as was desired, what increase in price there was over the former year was, we believe, due entirely to the crop shortage, and if our farmers want an even better price this year it can only be achieved through another short crop.

The shortage of the last crop has made the carry-over smaller than heretofore and if the crop is short again this year the demand will be even greater than last year with the resulting higher prices.

A small tobacco crop this year raised as economically as possible will mean higher prices and greater profits next fall while a large crop will mean lower prices and further financial disaster to our farmers.

Chapter 27

A CHORE FOR POOLE

Kenneth Poole, looking as ruddy and smooth as though he had risen from eight hours' dreamless slumber helped himself largely to ham and eggs and said: "I'll yaffle this last one, if you're sure you've finished. I gather Mrs. Lodely breakfasts upstairs?" "She does," Armitage pushed back from the table and began luxuriously to fill his pipe. "So does her son. At least, he did yesterday."

"I'm not sure I understand Lodely's type enough to understand Lodely," Poole went on. "He certainly lost his wool just before he went to his bye-byes. Couldn't follow his line of temper, quite." He paused, before adding very casually—"I got the impression you could though."

"Spoken in the best Poole manner. Oh, Mr. Armitage, what a charming boy that secretary of yours is! Something so sympathetic about him." He dodged the box of matches hurled at him and sobered. "Lodely has cause, or at least, excuse to bait me," Farrell admitted. "But I'm beginning to fear he dislikes me for the wrong reasons. There's nothing more obstructive to progress."

"Mind if I ring for some more toast?" asked Poole helpfully. "Why not order yourself an omelette as well? You've got to keep your strength up—somehow."

"Now why in the world didn't you suggest that just after the fish? You've spilt what might have been an excellent breakfast." Poole turned his reproachful gaze toward Armitage to the opening door—and the reproach vanished. "Hullo! I say, Gaffen, you really are a bit of a thought-reader, aren't you? Toast—hot, thin toast—a whole rackful of fresh toast borne in upon a thought wave."

"We haven't forgotten your breakfasts, sir," said the beaming Gaffen. Armitage might get respect, liking, intelligent response from his domestic staff, but he was amusedly aware that it was Poole—distant cousin, private secretary and unofficial second-in-command—who held their hearts. "We fancied you might be glad to enjoy a good British breakfast again."

"All the same, I put on nearly 40 pounds in New York," said Poole. "Mrs. Lodely, sir, has come down," said Gaffen to Armitage. "She is in the drawing-room. She would be glad of a moment with you at your convenience."

As the door closed upon the butler, Armitage stood up. "By the way, Poole, I forgot to tell you, but Mrs. Lodely is to be your holiday-task." Poole looked horrified. "Haven't you got mining interests in Vesuvius or fishing rights round the Pole that I ought to see about instead?" he asked earnestly. "I mean, Mrs. Lodely's most interesting and all that, but the only thing we have in common is that she went out with the Belvoir hunt one day last year and I went out with the Belvoir hunt one day last year. And it wasn't even the same day."

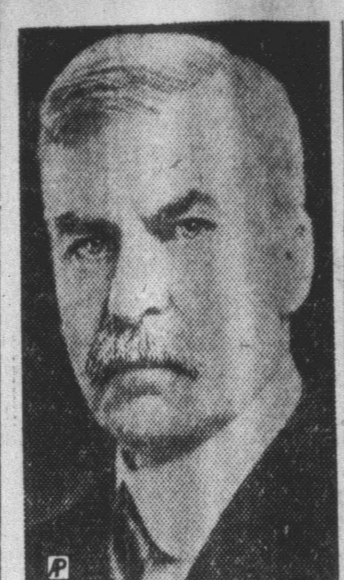

"Well, you'll have to go on discussing that lamentable mischance for at least another week," returned Armitage heartlessly. "I'll look after Mark, but I'd be grateful if you could take the lady off my hands. Do the usual shows with her and so on."

"Right you are, gov!" Armitage left the cheerful morning room and sought out Mark's mother. "I hope you got some sleep?" he asked. "Slept like a log—I always do! When she had laughed, she continued: "I hear they'll have done the elevator job by tomorrow night. You don't tell me it's your habit to cut up your house to suit everyone who comes to stay with you for a few days?"

"I'd been planning to extend the elevator shaft for a long time," evaded Armitage. "As for this talk of a few days, surely you'll give us longer than that? Poole has only just got back after a tough month in the States and he's looking forward to a little fun."

"He seems a nice, cheerful sort of boy," nodded Mrs. Lodely. "Bit callow, I should say, what?" "Hardly," murmured Armitage, struggling with recollections of his secretary's peculiarly sophisticated encounters with life. "At any rate, if you'll let Poole amuse you while Mark is busy, you'll be doing a favor all round. McLoughlin, the Watcher cartoonist, is interested in Mark already; he rang up last night and he'll come round and see him this evening."

A SEAT in the CABINET?

THOMAS J. WALSH

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles picturing briefly men and women mentioned for posts in the Roosevelt cabinet). Small of stature, but sturdy in his fighting raiment, Thomas J. Walsh of Montana—mentioned as one of President Roosevelt's cabinet possibilities—is among the oldest members of the Senate, in years and service.

Ordinarily an observant but quiet onlooker in the Senate's many wrangles, Walsh steps in with furious vigor clothed in a smooth voice when the debate revolves around national or party issues.

Born in Two Rivers, Wis., June 12, 1859, Walsh first engaged in educational activities as a teacher and high school principal, exhibiting there the keen mind with which he often perplexes opponents in legislative maneuvering.

After practicing law in Helena, Mont., from 1890, he turned toward politics, lost a race for Congress in 1906 and 1910, but was elected in 1912 to the Senate seat he has held since.

His staunch adherence to the Democratic precepts to which he subscribes has helped bring him many party honors.

TEACHERS WIN OVER A. C. C. IN CAGE CONTEST

Showing a complete reversal of form from Saturday's game with the State frosh, the E. C. T. C. basketballers won from A. C. C. one of the fiercest games ever played on local courts, by a score of 25 to 21.

The Wilson collegians started the game with a quick goal in the first ten seconds of play; the Teachers then jumped into the lead with a foul shot, and a field goal, and from then on were never headed off, although the score was knotted soon after the opening of the second half, 10 to 10. The score at the half was 13 to 10.

The local cagers deserve due praise in winning from a team that scored 29 points on State College and beat Catawba, which is one of the strongest aspirations in the ranks of the smaller schools.

Traylor, visiting pivot man, was high scorer of the game, with 12 points. Burnett was high for the locals, with 7. He was closely followed by his teammates, Barrett and Tucker, who garnered six each.

Bostic, Eason and Lomaine all displayed fine floor work, keeping the visitors closely guarded the entire game.

Summary showing field goals, foul shots and total points follows:

E. C. T. C.	G.	FP.	TP.
Bostic, J.	1	2	4
Traylor, G.	3	0	6
Burnett, J.	3	1	7
Barrett, C.	3	0	6

announced his first retirement, he was thrown from a horse at Saratoga and for weeks wavered between life and death. The racing world said he would never ride again, but even while still bed-ridden, the Earl said he would be back in the saddle booting 'em home to the cheers of the crowds.

In 1928, Sande said he was tired, was getting old, was beginning to take on weight and that he was going to retire from the saddle, buy a string of horses and try his luck at training.

Won On Own Horse

He bought a half-dozen horses and for a few months was content to get them in condition for the races. Then he was seized with an obsession to ride again, and in the spring of 1929 he mounted Hermitage and rode his own horse to victory—the first on record at Havre de Grace where an owner, trainer and jockey were the same.

Another year on the ground and again the racing public was saying that Sande would never ride again. Even Earl agreed with them.

A year later, 1930, Earl was talking a different story. He wanted to ride and wanted a good horse. The answer was found in William Woodward's Gallant Fox. Aboard the big red horse, the Earl thrilled to the cheer of the multitudes as he booted the famous colt to the three-year-old championship, winning more than $300,000 and losing only one race.

Tried the Movies

With Gallant Fox's retirement, Sande again dropped out. He tried his hand at the movies and radio singing, but the call of the saddle was too strong and with the start of last season, Sande was again accepting mounts.

After a few months he accepted an offer to organize and train a stable for Colonel Maxwell Howard, of Dayton, O., and handed in his ring license.

An appendicitis operation halted his plans for campaigning his new charges on the winter tracks. At present, however, he is in fine health, weighing around 120 pounds.

ALL SPORTS RETAINED AT UNIVERSITY

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 11.—The widespread manner in which Southern colleges and universities have been curtailing athletic programs and lopping off minor sports in this year of depreciated football games calls attention to and serves to emphasize the University of North Carolina's liberal attitude in these matters.

The coaching staff has done without several student assistants to be sure. Likewise traveling budgets have been curtailed, equipment bills watched carefully, and schedules pared slightly.

But the University has not dropped any sport from its program, and from the liberality with which the stock room is still issuing equipment, reconditioned equipment though it may be sometimes, the Athletic Department is standing as steadfastly as ever by its ideal of the widest possible student participation in athletics.

Carolina's record in this respect in the fall was perhaps the best ever made here. Including intramural sports and the preliminary training and practice periods in other than autumn sports, Carolina's program drew a participation of 1,500 in a student body of approximately 2,300 boys.

Two or three intersectional contests were dropped from this winter's schedules, but otherwise the cards have not been cut noticeably and the winter sports teams of 1933 will have the benefit of practically the same competition as Carolina teams have had for the past several years.

To considerable degree, however, this has been made possible, despite the shrunken football revenues, by the co-operation of coaches and squads, in arranging their trips so as to travel, sleep and eat at the minimum expense.

As to prospects for the spring, Graduate Manager Charles T. Woolen has already said that schedules would be curtailed slightly, but the University would still try to "maintain its contacts" while giving its teams good competition. It is not contemplated to drop any sports or any coaches, but the Athletic Association will, of course, go ahead in its practice of "sane economy."

Athletic Director R. A. Fetzer's only comment today was that he was intent on getting the most results from coaching staff and from equipment issued. Said he: "Heretofore I am glad to say we have not had to place any limit on the number of men on a squad, but we must require that every man having equipment practice regularly and train his honest best, and we are asking the co-operation of students in this matter."

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Earl Sande who came out of the West to catch the fancy of the racing public, is preparing to stage his comeback—his third in the past five years.

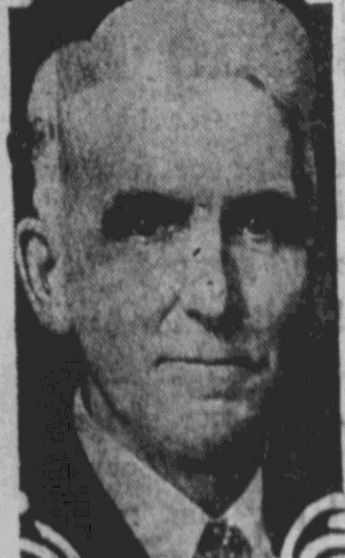

Apparently the quiet little Westerner, America's premier jockey from 1918 to 1928, is still haunted by the same desire to ride that resulted in many a parental reprimand in his boyhood days on the plains of Idaho.

Twenty years ago the Earl, then a sandy-haired, freckled face lad, wanted to become a jockey. The idea did not meet with the approval of his mother. But Earl insisted and one day jumped out a window of his school and ran away with the cowboys so he could ride his horses.

Today he is a licensed trainer in charge of eight promising thoroughbreds quartered at Belmont Park. But still he wants to ride. And ride he will if the Maryland racing commission will grant him a license next spring.

Four years before Sande an-

ROCHESTER MAN

"My liver was all out of order and I became so constipated that I had to take some kind of a purgative nearly every night. I suffered with bilious headaches, my appetite was poor, and everything I ate disagreed with me. Sargol Soft Mass Pills have made me feel like a new man. They regulated me perfectly."—Myron P. Harwood, 70 Lenox St., Rochester, N. Y.

"During the last fifty-three months, 143,000,000 Sargol Soft Mass Pills have been sold. This phenomenal record has been accomplished because Sargol Soft Mass Pills are a new and revolutionary product in the field of laxative medication. They are not like any laxative you have ever taken. They are so gentle and thorough in their action that there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and that recall for a gradual reduction of the dose until the point is reached where you no longer require a laxative of any kind."
