Stolen Auto Is Abandoned Here

Automobile thieves are kind to Frank Harrington, Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County—in fact, much more charitable than with most people.

Mr. Harrington's car disappeared while parked in front of the Methodist Church last night. This morning it was found parked in a ditch in a field about a quarter of a mile from his home in the western section of the city.

The thieves were not apprehended. The affable clerk of court is of the opinion that somebody wanted to do a little joy riding and took advantage of him while attending prayer-meeting.

FIX INCOME REGULATIONS

Internal Revenue Bureau Busy With Provisions for Payments Next March

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Regulations under which approximately 2,500,000 people will pay tax on March 5 on their 1932 incomes are being prepared in the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The regulations will show what taxes paid by the taxpayer can be deducted from incomes in making out returns and what taxes cannot be deducted.

Until the regulations have been approved by Secretary Mills they will not be made public.

Heretofore the bureau had ruled that taxpayers can deduct only taxes collected from them by the State and government.

Under this ruling most of the excise taxes levied under the billion dollar tax bill cannot be deducted. They are levied only on manufacturers.

In many of the States the gas tax can be deducted from gross incomes because the tax is levied on the consumer, but in those States where the tax is levied on the distribution and manufacturer the consumer cannot deduct them.

Dr. Wright, who was married during the Christmas holidays, is considered one of the most promising young physicians in this section of the State. He is of a genial nature and has a wide host of friends who will receive news of his going to another field with genuine regret.

LEGAL TILT HALTS TRIAL OF LUMBERMAN

Technicalities Cause Judge to Recess Court in Hollerand Case

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Legal technicalities halted today the completion of the hearing of John Hollerand, wealthy lumberman, on a charge that he was an accessory of the crime of murder for which Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd is under sentence to hang February 17.

Superior Court Judge J. C. Niles postponed the hearing until opposing counsel could produce authority for admission of rejection of testimony offered by Miss Maude Marshall, school teacher, who occupied an apartment in a Phoenix building adjoining that of Mrs. Judd in the fall of 1931.

Miss Marshall testified that she heard someone drive up and enter Mrs. Judd's apartment on the night of October 16, 1931, and that night Mrs. Agnes Ann Leroy and Ledwig Samuelson were slain, but she could make no identification in connection with the incident.

CONTINUE WAR ON DOGS HERE

Sixty-Five Animals Slain by Police Since Appearance of Mad Dog

The police warfare on dogs caught on the streets continued here today with undiminished vigor, and indications were that many more would be killed before the week is over.

Chief of Police George Clark reported this morning that thirty-five animals had been slain since four people were bitten by a mad animal here the first of the week. He declared all other canines caught on the streets would be killed.

Although the mad dog was slain after terrorizing the business and residential section of the city, police let it be known that the danger had not subsided because several other animals were reported bitten by the rabid animal as he ran wildly down the street biting and snapping at everything he came in contact with.

Three of the four persons attacked by the animal are receiving anti-rabies treatment, while the fourth, W. N. Norris, member of the board of aldermen, was not injured sufficiently to justify treatment. Only his trousers were torn as the rabid beast attacked him.

The appearance of the dog threw terror into parents in all sections of the city as news had just been received of the death of the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Barnhill, who succumbed to hydrophobia after being bitten by a mad dog the middle of December.

Police have warned dog owners that all animals caught on the streets in the future would be slain, and persons are urged to co-operate by keeping their dogs at home. The drastic action was taken in an effort to safeguard public life and prevent further loss of life from the rabies.

GETS VERDICT IN FIRE SUIT

W. K. Whitehurst Is Awarded $205 Against County Drainage District

W. K. Whitehurst was awarded damage for $205 by a jury in yesterday's session of civil court against Pitt County Drainage District No. 2, the action growing out of loss sustained by the plaintiff when a fire got out of control on a ditch bank and destroyed some of his woods-land.

The plaintiff sought $400, but the jury, after deliberating about an hour, held that he was entitled to little over half the amount.

Several other actions of more or less interest were disposed of yesterday, including two divorce suits.

L. E. Jones, landlord, was awarded judgment against Edmund Letchworth, tenant on the Jones farm, the suit growing out of the disposition of farm crops.

Jones received verdict for $150 which he claimed the tenant owed him, and the jury held that the crops at the time they were seized by Jones in claim of delivery proceedings were worth $500, which was to be divided among the two when all bills in connection with raising of the crops had been settled.

Wealthy Owens was awarded judgment for $300 against E. F. Edwards in suit for recovery on a note.

Lyman Jones was granted a divorce from Mary Jones and Mrs. Alice Byrd from W. H. Byrd, each action being granted on statutory ground.

Several other actions were to come up for consideration today and tomorrow, and it was believed the major part of the calendar of sixty cases would be disposed of.

The session next week will be confined to the hearing of criminal actions, and the term was expected to be one of the busiest in some time.

Depression May Bring Major Banking Changes

BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

A major operation on the American banking system now seems an inevitable part of the surgical treatment in store for the body politic as a result of the ills of the depression.

It is true the prospect for any quick action is waning. Democratic differences, including the Senate filibuster, greatly belated the outlook for the pending Glass bill, and it is not certain that banking legislation will be included in the task set for the special session after March 4.

Even though time and much delicate preparation may be necessary, however, there appears in Washington a growing conviction that something must be done.

The very important relation of banking to the course of the depression in something which public officials in general have been slow to realize.

A few minor changes were proposed here and there, but for a long time the disposition was to place basic reliance on the universally recognized strength of the Federal reserve system and assume nothing really could be wrong so long as that system continued to function.

But only one-third of the banks of the country were members of the reserve system, and even some of them developed weaknesses. Entirely outside the system lay a great field of banks, including some very strong institutions and many weak ones and comprising in addition to the national banks a great host chartered under the differing local banking laws of forty-eight States. What it has come to is that thousands of American depositors are mourning their losses while no depositor in the banks of England, Canada or France has lost a dollar of those deposits since the depression began.

"Failed Banks Unsound" Writing in the Magazine of Wall Street, Theodore M. Knappen quotes a high banking authority as saying:

BOTH FLIERS MISSING FOR SEVERAL DAYS

Planes Start From Various Points to Algeria and Morocco To Seek Traces of Lady Bailey, Wife of African Millionaire; Military Planes Will Cover Alps for Hinkler, Reported Missing 12 Days

Paris, Jan. 19.—(AP)—More than a dozen French airplanes were ordered today in searching for French territory in Africa and in the Alps for Lady Mary Bailey and Capt. Bert Hinkler, two of Britain's most famous fliers.

Planes were also starting from various points to Algeria and Morocco to search for Lady Bailey, wife of a South African millionaire, who has been missing four days on an England-South American flight.

At least a dozen planes, mostly military, were engaged in the search. French officials said other planes would explore the region in the vicinity of Dijon and the French Alps for Bert Hinkler, missing twelve days since he began an attempt to recapture the England-Austria record.

Johnson After Attorneyship

Winston-Salem, Jan. 19.—(AP)—W. Reade Johnson, Winston-Salem attorney, has announced his intention of trying for appointment as United States District Attorney after President-Elect Roosevelt takes office.

Writing in the Magazine of Wall Street, Theodore M. Knappen quotes a high banking authority as saying:

"In the last four years there have been 5,500 bank failures in the United States, and 5,500 of them (the failed banks) were unsound."

Speaking for his bill in the Senate, Senator Glass referred repeatedly to the existence of that type of bank which he described as "the little pawnshop that topples over and creates a psychology that eventually topples over the larger and sturdier banks."

Whether the branch bank proposal embodied in the Glass bill would provide a remedy is a matter of wide disagreement, as the Senate debate has testified. Another step favored by others would do away entirely with the existing forty-nine varieties of bank control and consolidate all National and State banks into a single system.

Important Problem Considering the intricate relation of banking to the economic life of the nation, the problem of bank legislation may easily be one of the two or three most important with which the new administration will have to deal.

STATE SHOULD TAKE OVER ROAD BONDS

There seems to be much difficulty on the part of the legislators to decide what, if any change should be made toward a diversion of a part of the highway funds to other sources. There has always been an argument on the part of those objecting to a diversion of any part of the funds, that these funds were for highway purposes alone and that they were derived from persons using the highways. Granting that this might be true then our suggestion would be that all the surplus in the highway fund be used by the state to take over and retire the bonds issued by the different counties in the state to build hard-surfaced highways that later became state highways.

When the state took over all the roads they likewise took over all the state aid that counties were receiving to help mature these bonds but the state did not take over the bonds. The result was that while the counties received some relief by getting rid of the upkeep of its roads they had to add taxes enough to take care of that part of the road bond fund that had been coming from a share of the state money.

ABOUT TOWN

Not content with meddling with China, Japan is now charging America with supporting military operations among the Chinese.

Their slaying of hundreds of defenseless men and women in China in the last conflict was entirely uncalculated for and now she contemplates continuing her aggressions in spite of the protests of some of the most powerful nations on earth.

Germany one time thought herself powerful enough to go contrary to the views of the rest of the world and look at that nation today. The respect and esteem of the people of other nations is absolutely necessary to the welfare of any single nation and later if she finds it out sooner or later if she continues to bring charges against other countries which are wholly uninterested in her aggression in China, save from a humanitarian standpoint.

There are enough bills before the legislature to abolish nearly every government department save the office of governor and those closely allied to it.

Over a score of measures seek to abolish offices which are indispensable to the dispatch of government of business and if they were eliminated it is impossible to say how functions would be continued in a normal way.

Some of the bills are all right and probably will receive favorable consideration, but the legislators aren't going to cut where they know government will be affected and the proponents of the bills might as well resign themselves to the fact. Money can be raised from sources

"This isn't going to be a revel, really," he explained when he had introduced himself. "The intoxicant is for Lodely. His heart isn't quite the thing this afternoon."

She went up to the big chair and looked down at its occupant. Supported by Thomas, he was sipping brandy. A faint color had crept back to his face. Lella smiled, a faint, bitter smile that Poole found rather attractive.

"He's been baiting Armitage," he explained. "Swords for two, you know, and brandy for one."

"If Mark needs brandy," said Lella, "Farrell must be needing an ambulance." Her bright eyes swept the room. "Where did you put him?"

"We disagreed, fundamentally, on the subject of handling women," came from Mark before Poole could make any retort. "He has just wandered out to dig a pit for himself and, in due course, to fall into it."

"What a cad you are!" commented Lella dispassionately. She took a cigarette from the case Poole offered and lit it. "Isn't he a cad, Mr. Poole? Don't you hate having him in the house?"

other than reducing government facilities, and this the solons will try to do without resorting to anything drastic or radical.

As preparations for the placing of plants for a new tobacco crop get under way farmers should bear in mind the fact that the world market is yet glutted with offerings of this kind and that they must hold production down if they would enjoy favorable prices next season.

Prices were some better the past season with one of the shortest crops in years, but the same situation will not prevail next season if growers go ahead and plant normally.

The salvation of the industry lies in the ability of growers to curtail production for several years and during the interim turn their attention to other sources of revenue such as represented in the growing of more of the things consumed at home.

Food crops enable the farmers to live at home regardless of prices of money crops and if the plan inaugurated by Governor Gardner at the beginning of his administration is followed out there is every reason to hope for an improvement in this phase of agriculture in the next few years.

Police are continuing their warfare on dogs of the city following the spread of the mad dog scare, and over thirty animals were reported slain since Tuesday when the second mad dog visiting here the last month was reported.

Drastic enforcement of the law in connection with dogs running at large is absolutely imperative at this time, and people who do not obey the law may expect to have their dogs shot down on the streets by the police.

This is the only way direct protection can be thrown about human life. It would be much better to kill every dog in the city than to have one life lost from hydrophobia, and as one child has already proven a victim, the police have no alternative but to carry out the ultimatum of their chief to slay every dog caught on the streets.

"Have you sat for your portrait, then, Miss Cane?" "No, though he pretends I did." "Could I have painted you like that, from memory, if you think?" protested the artist. "Who would believe it, Lella?" "Only Barbara, bless her!" she told him steadily. "And she said you hadn't done me justice. And started her kitchen fire with it."

"You're going to pace, Lella, ain't you? You can't get flats in Caroline Square for a song, though I remember twenty years ago I thought nothing of—"

"I blackmailed father into trebling my allowance," said Lella lightly. "And if that doesn't cover it, well, I'm sorry, but no living woman can do more."

"My dear girl, what things you do say!" And then tea arrived, and Mrs. Lodely fell upon it.

Barbara received Mark's wife just as she put away her work for the night.

"Miss Quentin Way End Clipsborough. Come, Mark."

She read it with a startled indrawing of the breath. Come, Mark. He wanted her—she must go to him.

"Any answer, miss?" She darted to her work-table for a pencil. She needed only to say that she was coming at once. He would know that she would catch the next train or, if necessary, hire a car to Taunton Junction. She had begun to write the words when something tugged at her mind and stopped her.

She was remembering the letters she had written during the first week of his absence and the telegram she had sent asking for his advice about Miss Raoul's commission. He had not answered any of them, though his mother had reported that he was well and active.

Of course, Mark very rarely wrote to her during their separations, was contemptuous, in fact, of the whole idea behind a daily correspondence. Still—after that first week, she had written twice more and the only answer had been a post-card telling her to send his old sketch-books by return mail.

"Any answer, miss, please?" What was the matter with her? Again, she poised the pen. But that something that fretted at her would not be denied. It was like a whisper in her ear—and a whisper very like Lella's. Mark's lazy—Mark's cruel! An irritation, a resentment of Mark rose in her that she had not known before.

She wrote her answer, on impulse, to Judy. Is my immediate presence essential to Mark?

Glancing at her watch, as the boy ran off, she saw that there was time for Judy to reply the same evening. She went to the telephone and arranged for the answer to be transmitted to her. Then she sat down and tried to discover what had come over her.

Mark had called to her and she had not gone to him. What would he think—what would he do? She began to be frightened now, to construct a hundred ways in which Judy might reply to her. Mark III, Mark dying.

She was huddled miserably over her little oil-stove, her head and heart aching together, when her telephone rang. The message was brief. "Of course not. Stay where you are."

(Copyright, 1932, Julia Cleff-Addams) Barbara at last works herself up, tomorrow, to an important decision.

"He does so hate it when you won't let him see you're impressed," she said. "Do you think genius is always as unendurable as Mark?"

"No idea! But he quite honestly doesn't impress me, except as an evil-tempered little cuss."

"He makes people, especially women, feel that if he would let them, they could heal him of his sins."

"Well, all I know is that I'd throttle the woman who tried to heal me of mine!"

He spoke quite seriously but evidently something—perhaps his whole-hearted dismally—amused her and she began to laugh. It was a sound of it. He was quite sorry when she stopped. It had made him want to see her out on the moors in tweeds, with some of that paint washed off her face and one of those jolly little felt hats instead of this black, provocative thing.

"It's such a long time," she said, merriment still in her eyes, "since I met a man who could give me so ferocious a hint as that. Here's Mrs. Lodely. Hello, Judy darling! How be ye?"

The west-country greeting linked two chains of thought in Poole's mind. Quentin, Lodely and Cane. Lella Cane. Quentin and Lodely crashed and Cane had prospered. Hm!

"No, I'm not with Patsy Raoul any longer," Lella was announcing as and when Mrs. Lodely's laugh would allow her to make herself heard. "I'm not even at a hotel. I've just taken what Mark's lot call a 'decomposingly urgent' service flat in a Caroline Square."

They reason that a man rated strong enough to merit formation last year by his friends of "Traylor-for-President" clubs will receive consideration as a prospective member of Roosevelt's official family.

Kentucky-born 54 years ago in a log cabin, Traylor went to Texas as a young man. From school teaching and practicing law, he entered the banking field to climb high.

To associates he is a dynamic leader with a talent for cultivating intense loyalty. Acquaintances term him modest, practical, a tremendous worker, with intellectual honesty and courage.

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 14.—Although Ty Cobb has not been in Japan on a baseball barnstorming tour for a couple of years, he only needed a brief conversation with Frank "Letty" O'Doul to know the Japanese are making progress in the sport.

O'Doul and Cobb compared notes following "Letty's" return from conducting a coaching school in the Orient. "How many interpreters did you need?" asked Cobb.

"Hardly ever needed any," replied Brooklyn's 1932 National League batting leader. "Most of the Japanese players understand quite a bit of English."

"They certainly must be improving then," said Cobb. "When I was there a few years ago we had to give our instructions to a language professor from the Imperial University. The professor interpreted them for the coach and the coach passed it on to the players."

A SEAT in the CABINET

Mark had called to her and she had not gone to him. What would he think—what would he do? She began to be frightened now, to construct a hundred ways in which Judy might reply to her. Mark III, Mark dying.

She was huddled miserably over her little oil-stove, her head and heart aching together, when her telephone rang. The message was brief. "Of course not. Stay where you are."

(Copyright, 1932, Julia Cleff-Addams) Barbara at last works herself up, tomorrow, to an important decision.

"He does so hate it when you won't let him see you're impressed," she said. "Do you think genius is always as unendurable as Mark?"

"No idea! But he quite honestly doesn't impress me, except as an evil-tempered little cuss."

"He makes people, especially women, feel that if he would let them, they could heal him of his sins."

"Well, all I know is that I'd throttle the woman who tried to heal me of mine!"

He spoke quite seriously but evidently something—perhaps his whole-hearted dismally—amused her and she began to laugh. It was a sound of it. He was quite sorry when she stopped. It had made him want to see her out on the moors in tweeds, with some of that paint washed off her face and one of those jolly little felt hats instead of this black, provocative thing.

"It's such a long time," she said, merriment still in her eyes, "since I met a man who could give me so ferocious a hint as that. Here's Mrs. Lodely. Hello, Judy darling! How be ye?"

The west-country greeting linked two chains of thought in Poole's mind. Quentin, Lodely and Cane. Lella Cane. Quentin and Lodely crashed and Cane had prospered. Hm!

"No, I'm not with Patsy Raoul any longer," Lella was announcing as and when Mrs. Lodely's laugh would allow her to make herself heard. "I'm not even at a hotel. I've just taken what Mark's lot call a 'decomposingly urgent' service flat in a Caroline Square."

Probably never before in all the history of this county has any product been given such whole-hearted praise as the new scientific formula known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Men and women in all walks of life have put this remarkable Food Vitalizer to the test and proven its amazing powers. Literally thousands of people have made the now famous 10 day test and have proven that Nature's way is the right way and sweeping has been So swift and sweeping has been the success of this new compound that in a few short weeks, it has become the talk of the country. Those who have used it tell astounding stories of what it has done for them, and were the facts not known and verified, it would be hard to believe that any single treatment could prove so effective in so many different cases.

It merely goes to prove the assertion of famous Scientists that the one sure way to maintain health is to supply the body with a balanced proportion of the essential Mineral elements and necessary Vitamins.

The one and only product of its kind, LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, contains eleven essential Minerals, splendidly combined with Vitamins and valuable tonic aids. It acts as a Food Vitalizer, feeding the system those vital elements that we fail to get in modern refined foods. It stimulates the organs of digestion and assimilation, creates a keen, hearty appetite, cleans the system of dangerous impurities and waste material, soothes "ragged" nerves, enables one to sleep soundly, awakes refreshed and filled with new vigor for the daily battles of life.

No wonder that those who have tried so many other treatments, with little or no benefit, have been quick to turn to this natural method of restoring health. No wonder the sales of "patent" medicines, harsh laxatives and dangerous "pain-killers" have fallen to the lowest mark in years. People today are more intelligent than they used to be and are quick to take advantage of the new and proven scientific discoveries. That accounts for the tremendous demand for this amazing compound that builds a new health, strength and vigor in Nature's own way. If you have tried many medicines and treatments that gave you little or no relief, do not be discouraged. The chances are 10 to 1 you'll find LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND is just what your system needs to restore your health.

VOICES OF WOMEN WILL BE RAISED IN NATIONAL DEFENSE

Strong opposition to further reductions in national defense will be voiced by the women's patriotic organizations of the country at the eighth women's patriotic conference on national defense to be held in Washington, D. C., January 30, 31 and February 1, according to Mrs. R. S. McGeachy of this city, national defense chairman of the North Carolina Department of the American Legion Auxiliary. Nearly forty women's organizations will participate in the conference, under the sponsorship of the American Legion Auxiliary. Delegates from every state are expected to be present.

The conference will open Monday night, Jan. 30, with a large mass meeting in the Mayflower Hotel, and February 1, with prominent authorities on national defense subjects presenting the various phases of the national defense question to the women. Mrs. S. Alford Blackburn of Versailles, Ky., national president of the Auxiliary, will preside, and Louis A. Johnson, Clarksburg, W. Va., national commander of the American Legion, will be a speaker at the opening session.

Discussion at the conference is expected to center on proposals now before Congress to reduce national defense expenditures by drastic curtailment of civilian training activities. These proposals, which were outlined in President Hoover's budget message and which call for sharp reductions in the officers reserve corps, naval reserve, citizens military training camp and reserve officers training camp activities, are opposed by the women of the Auxiliary as dangerous to national security.

The attitude of the conference on national defense questions will be expressed in a series of resolutions, which will be presented to Congress and the President following close of the conference. Recommendations for a continuous, nation-wide effort by the members of the participating organizations to create effective public support for an adequate national defense program are also expected to be adopted.

Because of the danger of drastic reductions being made in America's defensive preparations in the face of disturbed world conditions, the conference is considered of great importance by the advocates of adequate national defense. With a large cross-section of the women of the country represented, it is expected to refute the claims of disarmament advocates to the support of American women, and to give forceful expression to the demands of the women's patriotic organizations for adequate defensive measures.

West Greenville P. T. A. Meets.

The West Greenville Parent-Teacher Association held a very interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. H. H. Duncan, in charge.

Reports were given from the various committees. Reports from Mrs. T. I. Moore, welfare chairman, and Mrs. George Gardner, school principal, who reported in figures, service and aid rendered to underprivileged children were especially gratifying. Following the business meeting, Miss Coates of the Training School, very interestingly talked on "Some of the Things We are Trying to Teach Our Children in School." Miss Coates' talk was very helpful and will long remain a source of encouragement to mothers of primary school children.

The attendance prizes were won by Miss Agnes Pulliover's and Mrs. Laura Foley's rooms.—Reported.

Davy Crockett Play Here

"Davy Crockett" the first play to be presented by the Carolina Playmakers when they appear at East Carolina Teachers College on Thursday evening January 26, is a colorful drama of the Tennessee. Davy Crockett, "Half Horse, Half Alligator", pioneer settler, Indian fighter, adventurer, statesman, extraordinary congressman, candidate for the presidency of the United States, furnished the theme which Mr. Milbous has developed in his one-act play.

The parents of the playwright were born in Lincoln and Giles Counties, Tennessee. As a child he hunted rabbits, quail and other small game over the hills and in the cane brakes where Davy Crockett once chased the buffalo and the deer—where he killed three bears in a halfhour, sixteen in a week, forty in a month, and one hundred in and five in a season!

The name of David Crockett has become little more than an obscure legend. Our young playwright, of the Tennessee mountains does well to recall this man who died at the Alamo in Texas. With his little band he held the Alamo eleven days against 2500 trained soldiers, the fowler of the Mexican Army on the sixth of March 1836 they were brutally massacred.

Such an interesting character is "Davy Crockett" as described in stone on the State Capitol of Texas. The other two are equally promising, being "Three on a Heath" and "Stumbling in Dreams."

SMALL-TOWN CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

"Small-Town Chambers of Commerce" is the subject of a radio talk to be given Sunday, January 22, from 7:00 to 7:15 p. m., by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce of the United States. He will speak from Washington over the coast to coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Dr. Klein will uphold the view that students of business matters should not concentrate unduly upon the big industrial centers and money markets of the country, but should also scrutinize with utmost care the conditions, sentiments and efforts in the smaller communities. From the well-spring of small-town vigor and intelligence, the assistant secretary believes, potent forces for our business recovery are flowing, and are destined to gain in strength.

Dr. Klein will show how such forces find expression through the local newspapers, whether daily or weekly, and through active chambers of commerce in these smaller cities and towns. He will cite numerous instances in which such agencies have rendered remarkable service to their communities in combating unusual perplexities of the depression—overcoming grave local difficulties through energetic concerted effort. Urging that the small town chambers of commerce be loyally supported, Dr. Klein will discuss their principles, problems and possibilities for even broader usefulness in the future.

Drainage System Powerful

New Orleans, Jan. 17.—(AP)—If all the pumps in the New Orleans drainage system were operated to capacity at one time, they would handle three billion gallons, or 13,000,000 tons of water, in four hours. That is enough water, say experts, to float 260 ships the size of the Leviathan.

SCHOOL NEWS

Chemistry Class Visits.
Tuesday morning at the regular class period, the second period chemistry class went to the local gas plant to observe the calibration of the gas used in Greenville. To calibrate means to determine the percentage of the gas. Mr. Stokes, head chemist of the plant, and Mr. Uzzie his assistant, conducted the test.

A hundred cc of gas was driven through a solution of pyrogalic acid which absorbed the oxygen. After this amount was recorded, the gas was driven through a solution of sodium hydroxide which absorbed all the carbon dioxide present. This process was repeated, using the correct absorbent, until the percent of all the gases contained in a mixture was determined. The test was very instructive and the class enjoyed the lesson immensely.

Good Judgment.
Good judgment—It means the pronouncing of our opinion or decision. Do you have good judgment? Every day one is allowed many chances to test himself. After your decision is made, fairly and squarely, you know what kind of judgment you have.

How do you judge a person? by his intellectual knowledge, achievements, or by social standing, or wealth?

How do you judge a story? by its genuine facts, moral support or entertaining features?

How do you judge a picture? by its mere beauty, its vividness or its colors? Or is there something more?

Can you measure up to the standard of good judgment? If you know that you do, then well and good—if you know that you don't—try to that the flu epidemic in this city is very light, still it is important that we make a special effort to keep the so-called epidemic from spreading in our school system. The school authorities have already accomplished much in working toward this end, particularly in cautioning students at school and in sending letters of precaution to all parents, and with the sincere cooperation of the students, the epidemic should soon be a thing of the past.

We think the following simple rules should be observed at this time: Wash the hands as many times as possible each day. Do not put various objects into the mouth. Doctor a cold. Cover the mouth with a handkerchief before coughing. Remain at home if you have symptoms of the flu.

CANCELS RESTRAINT ON FERTILIZER FACTORY

Kinston, Jan. 19.—A temporary restraining order enjoining the Smith-Douglas Fertilizer Company, Inc., fertilizer manufacturers, from processing fish scrap in their factory here except at certain hours of the night has been dissolved by Judge W. C. Harris, presiding over Superior Court at Kenansville.

The order, secured by Mrs. Ada M. Evans, wife of a police detective, was issued by Judge P. Paul Frizelle, of Snow Hill. The Evanses live a few hundred yards from the plant. The management of the plant admitted a shipment of acidulated fish scrap had "gone bad" during a spell of warm weather, causing odors to which Mrs. Evans objected.

The company, which has headquarters at Norfolk, Va., was ordered by Judge Harris to post a $7,500 bond to secure Mrs. Evans in a damage suit pending.

IT'S SIMPLY INEXCUSABLE

You cannot expect to make friends socially or in business if you have halitosis (bad breath). Since you cannot detect it yourself, the one way of making sure you do not offend is to gargle often with Listerine. It instantly destroys odors, improves mouth hygiene and checks infection. U.N.C. TEAMS ARE SET FOR PLAY ON SAT.

Chapel Hill, Jan. 19.—The second Carolina-Wake Forest basketball game which is to be played in the Raleigh auditorium Saturday night is expected to be a feature of the first order as the result of Carolina's 36-33 victory of last Saturday, but it will still have to share the limelight with a home sports program which looks like the best Chapel Hill has yet had this winter.

Reference is to a combination mat and ring program which will throw Carolina's varsity and freshman wrestling teams against V. P. I. in the afternoon and its varsity and freshman boxing teams against N. C. State this night. The freshman wrestling meet will start at 3 and the varsity meet at 4:15 o'clock, while the freshman boxing bouts will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

V. P. I. took the Carolina wrestling team in its last year 21-11 and the Tar Heels will be out for revenge. The Tar Heels have a fairly experienced and well balanced team all along the line headed by two brightly shining stars, Captain Percy Idol, 175 pounder and undefeated last year, and Don Conklin, 165-pounder and undefeated the year before.

The Carolina boxing team is expected to put up a fine series of matches with State, which it will be meeting in the ring for the first time and which has Charlie Garner, the conference 145-pound champion and several other very able men.

The Tar Heels opened their season last Saturday, beating V. P. I. 6-3 and this despite the fact that three of their regulars were left home due to sickness or inability to make the proper weight.

Captain Marty Levinson in the 125 and Platt Laidie in the unlimited are probably the most outstanding stars, while other capable and experienced men are Nat Lumpkin, rugged 145 pounder who is due to meet Garner in the feature scrap; Jimmy Williams 115; Furches Ray, 135; and Peyton Brown 175.

Teachers Are In Shape For Tonight's Tilt

With a light practice yesterday consisting of running through plays and shooting fouls, the E. C. T. C. basketballers finished up their third play of practice for the game with the High Point Panthers tonight. The entire team is in good shape with no injuries or flu in their ranks. The High Point team won a close game from Atlantic Christian College, 40 to 38, last night in Wilson. Of the 40 points, Culler, their star forward, accounted for 27 of them. The game will begin at 8 o'clock in the Campus Building.

High Faces Double Bill Friday Night

A basketball double-header is on the card for tomorrow night when the basketball teams of Greenville High will take on the boys' and girls' team from Goldsboro. The first game is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock. The boys' team of the local school have won three out of the five games played so far this season and hope to add one more to the won column tomorrow night. The starting lineup will probably be Hardee and Gibbs at forwards; Taylor, center, and Windham and Madrin. The girls' team has won its first start of the conference season by defeating Kinston 29 to 25, and will endeavor to keep its slate clean by taking Goldsboro into camp. The girls will play the first game of the double bill tomorrow.

New Rules Alter Cage Games Little, Cappon Believes

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(AP)—Changes in basketball rules are like football revision—there is a lot of talk about them during the off-season, but when it comes to actual contests the spectators see little difference.

This is the opinion of coach Franklin C. Cappon, of the University of Michigan, who believes that the new basketball rules have speeded up the game and are causing more interceptions, but in general are not causing much difference to the fans who play at the game.

"Cappon" points out that the center line has eliminated stalling in the back court, but that the ball can be passed back and forth in front of the line almost as efficiently if a team wishes to stall.

On the other end, attempts at stalling in early games sometimes have resulted in "interceptions" by the defender's team and resulted in some added thrills to the game. "Occasions when the offensive team loses the ball for stepping back across the center line will be rare," Cappon says, "and the rule which prohibits the pivot man from holding the sphere more than three seconds will not be evoked often."

"There has been little appreciable change in guarding rules. The rule which gives the ball to a player who has been crowded out of bounds has been used in the Western Conference several years.

Break Senate Filibuster
Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Bolshevik actions succeeded where force failed in the Senate today and the protracted filibuster against the Glass banking bill gave way.

By a lone vote the attempt of the Democratic leaders to impose the cloture limiting debate sharply lost out. The count was 58 to 30 against, meaning defeat as the margin fell short of the required two-thirds.

There followed turbulent exchanges between Robinson and his foe, Huey Long, and another filibusterer, Thomas, of Oklahoma.

Once quite settled, Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, proposed unanimous consent agreement to restrict each Senator to one hour on the bill and a half hour on amendments.

It went through amid applause. Both parties were divided on the cloture vote, many having claimed in advance that they opposed the rule in principle, but were anxious the Senate not be held to ridicule.

Thirty-four Democrats and twenty-four Republicans voted for the cloture.

The nine Democrats who bolted the party included Reynolds of North Carolina.

"Lost That Tired and Weary Feeling" "I was tired all the time; had misery in back and sides that kept me feeling bad; was in a nervous and weakening condition," writes Mrs. H. H. Penn, of Portsmouth, Ohio. "I lost in weight until I was very thin. During girlhood, mother had given me Cardui and it helped me so much then that I decided to take it again. I took several bottles and my strength began to return, and I gained in weight. Soon I lost that tired and weary feeling. Cardui did me a great deal of good."

Take Cardui to improve the system in cases of run-down health and "tired nerves." Women have found, in such cases, that Cardui helps them to overcome pain and make the monthly periods easier.
