MAN EXECUTED FOR SLAYING

Hezzie Avant Electrocutated At Raleigh For Killing Mrs. Smyth Caulder

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Leaving behind two notes, one which said, "I want the people of North Carolina to know that they are doing me a favor to carry me to the chair," Hezzie Avant, thirty-year-old textile worker, was electrocuted today at State Prison for murder.

"What is life behind the bars," the letter continued. "And didn't we all know that if we are ready to meet Jesus when we walk back to the chair. I am going to a better place, and then is when I start living."

"All there is to going to the chair is the easiest way of passing out of the world. I know I won't have any more heartaches and pain."

Avant was put to death for the murder of Mrs. Smyth Evans Caulder, young Chatham County woman and mother of three of his children.

Mrs. Caulder lived several years with Avant as his wife at their home in Laurinburg.

The textile worker was convicted for murder twice in the Superior Court. The State Supreme Court gave him a new trial on technicalities, but he was convicted in the lower court a second time.

Two shots of current killed him. The first coursed through his body two minutes and eight seconds and the final one minute and thirty seconds.

He came into the death chamber smiling and talking profusely, maintaining to the end he did not fire the shot that killed the woman.

END OF ROOSEVELT FEUD SEEN

Apparently the rift between the two branches of the Roosevelt family, which has existed since 1920, is being healed. Kermit Roosevelt, second son of former President Theodore Roosevelt, will join Franklin D. Roosevelt, the President-elect, on a cruise in southern waters early in February. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Kermit are first cousins.

LEAF PLANTS APPEAR HERE

First Growth Plants For This Year's Crop Appear In Various Sections

Tobacco plants for next season's crop were beginning to make their appearance today in various sections of the county, according to reports of tobaccoists here.

First of the plants emerged from the ground the first of the week and others were expected to follow under the impetus of rain which visited the section today.

Although it was impossible to estimate the extent of plant beds this year, this will be possible later when more of the plants make their appearance.

The plant shortage last year was the most acute the section has ever experienced. Blue Mold, accompanied by unfavorable weather conditions, worked havoc with beds in all parts of this and adjoining counties, resulting in the smallest crop produced in this area in years.

Although it is impossible to say how the plants will pan out this year, farmers have been warned of the danger of over-production in the face of the glutted condition of the world market. Another normal crop, it was said, would prove disastrous to the industry.

Farmers everywhere have been advised to reduce production this year and give more attention to the kinds of crops that will enable their families to live all the year around.

While it is impossible to say how the Blue Mold will affect plants this season, farmers are on their guard and are preparing to combat it with the use of Bordeaux mixture recommended so extensively by leaders of agriculture last year.

RAPE CHARGE BEFORE JURY

Fate Of Herbert Rogers, Colored, Expected To Be Decided Late Today

The case of Herbert Rogers, colored, charged with criminal assault on Mrs. Mattie Waters at her home in the Pactolus community during the latter part of the year, went to the jury around the noon hour today.

The case was begun yesterday morning with selection of a jury from a special venire of twenty-five summoned the day before by Judge Henry A. Grady, presiding over this term of court. Yesterday was consumed in the hearing of evidence of both State and defense, and this morning attorneys started argument which was followed by the charge of Judge Grady turning the case over to the jury.

Rogers was defended by Dick Bundy and Solicitor D. M. Clark prosecuted the case.

Mrs. Waters, mother of several children and a tenant on a Pactolus district farm, gave a vivid description of the attack at her home one night during the latter part of December. She said a negro entered her room, threw her through a window and criminally attacked her in an outhouse near the home.

She said she asked the negro if he were not "Jack Rogers," brother of the accused man, and he replied "Yes." However, when Jack Rogers was brought before her the following day she said he was not the man.

Picking up footprints found around the woman's house, officers followed them to the home of Herbert Rogers and placed him under arrest. The footprints at the Waters' home were said to have corresponded precisely with those of the negro, officers testified yesterday.

The negro was said to have worn overalls the night of the attack. The lower part of the leg of the overalls was torn, and as he ran the end of the torn part was said to have caught under his foot. This, officers said, was plainly evident in the footprints leading from the home of the woman to that of the negro.

The defense also introduced several witnesses in an attempt to set up an alibi. It was testified that Rogers was home asleep at the time the crime was said to have been committed. Others testified that Mrs. Waters told them it was "Jack" Rogers and not the accused man who attacked her.

The negro, arrested shortly after the crime was committed, was brought to jail here where he vigorously denied responsibility. He declared he was home at the time, but admitted having been out during the early part of the night.

'FAGS' TAKEN BY ROBBERS

Cigarettes And Plug Tobacco Stolen From Home Grocery Store Last Night

Thieves last night entered the Home Grocery Store on Dickinson Avenue, obtained three cartons of cigarettes and some plug tobacco and escaped.

Although officers continued to investigate the case today, no clue as to the identity of the robbers had been obtained up to the noon hour.

Entrance was gained through a transom over the back door of the building.

That the thieves were after nothing but tobacco was evident in the fact that only cigarettes and plug tobacco was missing when a check-up of the stock was made this morning.

A twenty-four pound sack of flour was dumped in the middle of the floor as the thief or thieves provided something in which to carry off the stolen goods.

This is the second time the Home Grocery Store has been entered the last week. Thieves entered the building the latter part of last week but were scared off by policemen patrolling the district with only a small amount of candy in their possession. They were believed to have been looking for money.

Rae ford, Jan. 26.—Judge Devin is holding a term of Superior Court here this week, but no important cases are for trial. A number of civil cases in which a number of Hoke County people are interested are calendared for trial. Attorneys for the defendant in State vs. M. L. McKeithan, charged with arson, presented what they termed new evidence before the judge Tuesday morning. The defendant is seeking a new trial for the alleged burning of a tenant house in this county last March.

Rob General Store Benson, Jan. 27.—Thieves entered the general store of I. B. McLamb here Tuesday night and took a case of cigarettes and a small quantity of tobacco and snuff. Entrance to the store was made through a rear door. The robbers left no clue by which they might be traced.

Loftin was arrested by officers several weeks ago on a charge of forging checks on his father and was confined to jail here to await trial.

The checks were said to have amounted to slightly over $22.00. Although Judge Grady withheld judgment in the case, he was expected to make known his decision some time today or tomorrow.

BARNHILL TO BE TRIED APRIL

Bethel Man To Face Charge Of Slaying His Ward At Next Term Court

T. H. Barnhill, Bethel township farmer, charged with the slaying of his ward, Jesse Barnhill, will go on trial in Superior court here in April.

Solicitor D. M. Clark, who is prosecuting the case, said today.

The case was set for hearing in the last two terms of court. The first time it was delayed because the state had not completed evidence, and the first of the week it was again deferred because of the illness of one of the state's principal witnesses.

Jesse Barnhill was shot to death on the Flat Swamp road several miles from Bethel, early last year. Following an investigation by county officers, T. H. Barnhill was arrested and confined in jail here charged with committing the crime to obtain $10,000 insurance which the young man was said to have made payable to him.

Barnhill vigorously denied the charge, saying he knew nothing about the shooting.

He was later released under bond pending the hearing in court here.

BIG MEAT COMBINE TO FIGHT ARGENTINA FOR BRITISH TRADE

SYDNEY.—(AP)—An Anglo-Australian syndicate led by Sir Graham Waddell, wealthy Australian sheep breeder, wants to wrest the British meat trade from Argentina.

The syndicate is prepared to spend $75,000,000 on highways and railroads through the undeveloped ranch lands of North Australia. If the government will give a 66-year lease to 40,000 square miles of the best crown lands.

The government is interested and Sir Graham has powerful political backing.

By constructing railroads through the rich wilderness and by building huge slaughter houses and refrigeration plants at Darwin, Australia's northern gateway, the syndicate considers it can meet Argentinian competition.

The government has been told that expenditure of $15,000,000 on so vigorous a scheme would restore prosperity to Australia.

Farm Relief Movement Winning New Converts

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington) Whatever its immediate legislative effect, the present farm relief discussion is demonstrating that a very important change has taken place in the nation's general attitude toward agriculture.

Until quite recently the disposition of most non-agricultural groups has been to think of the farmer as merely another victim of the depression, to advise him he must work out his own salvation, and to de-

SAFE LIMIT OF STEEL 'CREEP' IS CHARTED BY SCIENTISTS PROBING MACHINERY PERIL

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

(Associated Press Science Editor)
Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 26—(AP)—The once universal peril to man from the steady "creep" of attacking brasts has come back into the modern world in a new form, in the "creep" of steel.

Steel "creeps" when it stretches imperceptibly under weight or pressure. After its creep the metal breaks or bursts, with peril to life and property.

Steel Creep Not Unusual
All steel creeps when sufficiently hot. Recent advances in industry have required millions of added tons of steel apparatus to operate at and above the creep line. These dangerous temperatures all are "black," nearly 1,000 degrees under the point where steel begins to glow redly.

Against this growing danger University of Michigan engineers have found safe barrier. They measure the few millionths of an inch which a piece of hot steel will creep before it can "let go." They find that every kind of steel has a fixed distance through which it will creep before it breaks.

"Creep Chambers" Used
That distance is not much. Yet it is so uniform that, given a sample of the steel, the Michigan scientists can measure the creep and tell industrialists how long the steel will last on a given job.

They do this in creep chambers—small piston-shaped electrically heated furnaces. In them are hung spindle-shaped samples of the steel to be tested.

Up to 1,000 degrees and more the furnace heats this little steel strip, with temperature never varying at any spot upon it more than two degrees, except as the scientists wish the temperature to shift.

Readings Greatly Enlarged
Weights pull the steel strip, and gauges which are read with small telescopes show how much the metal elongates—the creep. A movement of three-millionths of an inch registers plainly. A change of even two degrees in the temperature changes the rate of "creep." For that imperceptible movement of the steel the magnified dial moves between a quarter and a half inch.

The distance that steel will creep varies both with the kind of steel and the temperature. It changes with the "load" the metal has to carry. All of this can be computed. So from many parts of the world samples of steel come to the Michigan creep laboratory for readings.

Steam equipment is coming into the creep class with higher and higher temperatures. The great oil industry goes to even more elevated temperatures. And high pressure, high temperature hydrogenation, which may revolutionize present chemistry, is only in its beginnings.

Mrs. Coolidge One of Six Presidents' Widows; Living Quietly, They Drop Out of Public Eye

By SIGRID ARNE
Washington, Jan. 26—(AP)—The death of Calvin Coolidge adds the sixth to the number of widows of chief executives who still survive their husbands.

The widows of former Presidents include Mrs. Benjamin Harrison and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, both now living in New York; Mrs. Thomas J. Preston Jr., (formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland) of Princeton, N. J.; Mrs. William H. Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson of Washington and Mrs. Coolidge.

As is considered befitting the dignity of their positions, these women have dropped back into civil life with a determination to avoid publicity. They have accomplished their purpose so well that it comes as somewhat of a surprise to many to learn, for instance, that Mrs. Harrison still survives her husband. She was his second wife, a niece of his first wife.

Mrs. Mary Scott Dimmick Harrison, as she calls herself to distinguish from the first Mrs. Harrison, once occupied the White House as first lady, but she lived there two years attending her aunt. She married Mr. Harrison in 1896. Three years after his term expired. After his death in 1901 she traveled extensively. Mrs. Harrison is now 74 and lives with her daughter, Mrs. James Blaine Harrison in New York.

The first marriage of a President to take place in the White House was that of Grover Cleveland to Miss Frances Folsom, a girl of 22. About five years after the death of Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Cleveland married Thomas J. Preston Jr., professor of geology at Wells College, from which she was graduated. Since then she has made her home at Princeton University and has identified herself with university activities.

The activities of her family have served to keep Mrs. Roosevelt, now 71, more constantly in the news. Her own interest in politics drew her from seclusion in the campaign just past when she introduced President Hoover for his New York address.

She has remained a sort of dowager queen in American life. Among the visiting celebrities who have sought her out have been the Prince of Wales who saw her in 1924, and the crown prince and princess of Sweden, who visited her in 1926.

Helen Herrin Taft, now 71, who returned to Washington with her husband when he was named chief justice, established a permanent home here. It is filled with art treasures gathered on her wide travels.

Mrs. Wilson, the war president's second wife, is now 60. She often is seen at functions of artistic interest, still the handsome, gracious woman she was when her every activity was recorded in the day's news. Her interest in world politics remains keen and she continues active contact with the Democratic party.

Mrs. Coolidge, the youngest of the group, only 53, will always be remembered here for her marked graciousness. Her very striving to remain in the background, simply as her husband's partner in the home, served to thrust her forward as what many persons regarded an example of the best in American womanhood.

Tiny Waves, Harnessed By Marconi, Increase Secrecy On Air Lines

TINY WAVES
By OSCAR LEIDING

London, Jan. 17—(AP)—Guglielmo Marconi, noted Italian inventor, envisages great things to develop from his latest radio research. His experiments deal with the harnessing of tiny electrical waves—called micro-waves—less than one meter long.

Marconi has found it possible to provide radio communication free from electrical disturbances, unaffected by fog and offering a high degree of secrecy due to the sharp directional qualities.

The detailed story of his research was told here by the inventor before the Royal Institution of Great Britain.

First example of the practical use of micro-waves, he said, is furnished by a system installed for a 12-mile communication link between the Vatican City and the Pope's palace at Castel Gandolfo, near Rome.

Guglielmo Marconi, delving into the mysteries of tiny waves only centimeters in length, has found that they follow the curvature of the earth to a certain extent, as indicated by sketch. The special herringbone like reflector antenna shown above was developed for simultaneous reception and transmission.

Marconi explained that electro-magnetic waves under one meter in length are usually referred to as quasi-optical waves, the general belief being that communication with them is possible only when the two ends of the radio circuit are within the optical range, however.

ARE THEY TAXED ALIKE?

Yesterday the county tax collector was much pleased to receive a check for $32,920.65 from the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to pay its taxes to this county, and the size of the check caused us to ask the total amount of tax paid by this railroad in this county, including the various town taxes, and we were informed that the total amount was close to $40,000 annually and that the total amount paid in the state by this one railroad was more than a million dollars.

It seems to us that the truck line is a good place for the legislators to look for some of the needed revenue to help balance the budget. While we have no special brief for the railroads, we do realize that the truck lines are in direct competition to the railroads and if they are not sharing equally in the tax burdens of the state and counties then no time should be lost in bringing about this adjustment.

WHICH IS MOST NECESSARY?

Gerald Johnson raised a question in his statement published in yesterday's News and Observer which every legislator and citizen must meet. He plumped the question straight whether North Carolina thought good roads were more important than good schools, and whether its people ought to pay more for gasoline than for education.

That question cannot be evaded, dodged or sidetracked. It must be answered. Governor Aycock had the right idea, and it worked, when he told a man 30 years ago that "if you provide good schools parents will see to it that good roads are built so that their children can get to the school."

It is an indication that the people of that part of the country are awakening to the advantage of good roads and quicker transportation and communication, and if the road will give it to them they probably should have what they want.

ABOUT TOWN

President Hoover is in favor of the Republican plan to raise tariff rates against countries with depreciated currencies.

If that isn't just like a Republican. It is the same old ballyhoo that has featured the administration since it got control of government, but it will not be the policy of the Democrats when Roosevelt enters the White House.

The Democrats realize that the high tariff wall has been the cause of much of the trouble which the nation has experienced the last several years. It is the cause of the trouble of foreign nations, who disliking our high rates retaliated to get even with us.

When nations close their doors to other powers they might as well put an "out of business" sign on their portals and look around for other sources to conquer. They write their own doom by high tariff rates and nobody should realize it more than the people of this country who have seen much of the ill effects during the Republican administration.

A new relief measure embracing Roosevelt suggestions is before Congress at this time, and its fate will be made known in a comparatively short time.

The idea of the new bill is to reach as many people as possible and relieve suffering and hunger which have swept roughshod over the nation the last two years.

Action of this kind is very necessary in the face of so much deprivation and want, and while the present measure now in force is accomplishing the purpose to an extent the situation will be just as bad as it is now unless there is an upward trend in the industrial world.

What the nation needs is more work—work of a permanent nature, and when it gets that there will be no need for such monumental attempts to relieve unemployment.

Roosevelt suggestions for relief are being received with interest by members of the same party, and that it will get plenty of attention when he enters the White House is not to be doubted.

The United States has taken action to try to prevent bloodshed between Peru and Colombia by calling on Peru to abide by the Kellogg peace pact in its effort to seize the city of Leticia, object of the dispute between the two countries.

Simultaneously, the League of Nations also sent an appeal to the Peruvian government calling to their attention the importance of respecting the rights of Colombia.

Evidently, Peru is at fault in the argument, and if she wishes to receive the sympathetic understanding of other nations she will desist in her attempt to seize the important town.

Controversies of this kind are to be avoided at this time when the entire world is having the time of its life making ends meet, and if Peru will leave Colombia to handle her own problems she will find herself in much better contact with other nations.

Suspension of six members of the New York Stock Exchange shows members of the organization are doing their best to keep clean house. This is a wise policy in the face of the watchful eye which the government is keeping on stock operations, and as long as the exchange discourages irregular operations it will be able to regain some of the faith which the public lost in the wild orgy of operations a few years ago.

Clean dealing in the business and political world is what the nation needs at this time and if these high in the financial life of the nation cannot see the pace it is impossible to think others will keep in line with them.

Sympathetic understanding of the individual walk of life must be reached before the business world is able to gain that point it was precipitated from by the most unusual economic situation the world has ever known.

A community down in Dare county without a single automobile, is seeking a good road so that the citizens will have a better place to walk and teams a better place on which to travel.

That is a peculiar request coming from a section where speed in transportation is the last thought in the world, but it is a perfectly fair demand in view of the fact that other sections of the state have the best kind of roads.

It is an indication that the people of that part of the country are awakening to the advantage of good roads and quicker transportation and communication, and if the road will give it to them they probably should have what they want.

Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams • Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: Barbara Quentin has learned that Farrell Armitage is not trying to debauch Mark Lodely, but is living up to his agreement to launch Mark as an artist in return for Barbara's promise to postpone her marriage to Mark for a year. She and Mark quarrel, and Barbara disappears. When Farrell finds her after a month she apologizes for her suspicion. He tells her Mark has been operated upon and will no longer be lame. Barbara demands to know exactly when Mark went to the hospital.

Chapter 41

THE PACT RENEWED

"At three o'clock in the afternoon," Farrell told Barbara. "The time matters to me," she said, her beautiful voice a little roughened. "Because when I met him at eleven that morning we quarrelled about our different ideas of marriage and he was so angry with me and my ideas that he punished me by not telling me that he had a chance of a miracle!"

And, as he made no comment: "That doesn't surprise you? You would have expected him to be as indifferent as that?"

He answered her conscientiously. "You know what my theory was that he was not worthy of you and that a radical change in his circumstances would make you admit it. Well, I don't ask you to admit it yet. I asked you for a year. I'll stick to that. All I want is to report to you."

He stopped at last and let her slip to the ground. The lantern was bobbing towards them. "Is the lady there, sir? Tide's comin' in fast." "Yes, the lady is here. She is all right." The lantern preceded them to the Devallet, hesitated, bobbed and finally retreated. Armitage switched on the light in the roof of the car and turned, holding out a hand. She took it like a docile child. "Farrell?" He stopped and looked up at her. "You haven't answered me. You haven't said whether you—" Her voice failed.

"What are you offering me?" he asked her. She colored deeply. "Not what I was stupid enough to offer you before," she murmured. "I didn't mean to offer you a bribe."

"What then?" And as he was silent. "A consolation prize?" "I suppose—yes, it would be that."

"But I don't need consolation, yet. My year isn't up. At the end of my year I shall claim your love. Why should I be impatient now and take you pity?"

She closed her eyes and he saw the tears slip out from under the lids and lie upon her face. "I'm not deluding myself," Armitage went on. "As long as Mark doesn't want you, you'll think you love him. Very well; he shall be made to love you."

Before she could speak, he continued. "By the way, I've an emerald of yours. Shall I give it to Mark?"

A SEAT in the CABINET?

(EDITOR'S NOTE This is the seventeenth of a series of articles picturing briefly possible members of the Roosevelt Cabinet.)

Nearly thirty years of legislative experience on both sides of the Capitol would go with Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, into a Cabinet position, should he be among those called by President Roosevelt to form his official family.

Robinson—minority leader in the Senate for nearly eight years—went to that chamber in 1913 after five terms in the House and an in-between tour of duty of a few weeks as governor of his State.

This seventy-year-old Arkansan who is rated one of the ablest lawyers in the Senate was admitted to the bar in his home State in 1895 at the age of 23, after studying at the University of Arkansas and the University of Virginia.

Hanging up his shingle was but the starting gun of his political career, as 1894 found him a member of the Arkansas General Assembly, which was followed by service as a presidential elector and his trip to the National House of Representatives in the Fifty-eighth Congress.

Robinson was the vice-presidential running mate of Democratic standard-bearer Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

"Just think of any one medicine that is so strengthening and invigorating that even my dear old mother, who will be 93 years old next August, owes her present good state of health to Sargon and Sargon Pills, and says that she hopes by their continued use to see her 100th birthday," said Mrs. J. F. Posey of No. 110 1/2 Avenue, Phenix City, Ala., in a recent statement. "In fact," continued Mrs. Posey, "our whole family are great boosters for this wonderful treatment, and I can't find words to express my deepest praise and sincere gratitude. Sargon has transferred me from suffering and despair, to health and happiness, and I have now more strength, energy and enthusiasm than I've known in years, as I at times suffered terribly with indigestion, and I would have those dizzy blind spells, and my heart would palpitate so wildly I thought I had serious heart trouble. I took all kinds of medicines and treatments without getting any benefit or results and lost all hope of ever being well again, but thanks to Sargon and Sargon Pills I now feel and look like a different person, and my bowels have been regulated perfectly by Sargon Pills, and as I said before we are all great believers and boosters for this great remedy and will never miss an opportunity to praise it wherever we go."

MASS TENNIS TILT FACES DUKE-U. N. C.

Durham Jan. 27.—Hundreds of students of Duke and North Carolina will engage in a record-making intercollegiate tennis match this morning, according to plans announced yesterday by Wallace Wade, Duke director of athletics.

From the standpoint of number it will be the biggest and longest intercollegiate match as far as is known, on record, since several hundred student tennis players are expected to enter from each institution and play will be staged simultaneously in Chapel Hill and Durham from April 1 through April 8.

The meet will be open to all students of Duke and Carolina and, according to the plans, each entry will be ranked as to his ability. Playing of the mammoth meet and other arrangements will be handled through the departments of intramural athletics at the two schools, headed at Carolina by John Kenfield and at Duke by K. C. Gerard.

An innovation in athletic relations between two institutions, the mass meet is taken as another development in the system installed at Duke by Coach Wade of "athletics for the entire student body." Since the new program has been in effect, a high per cent of Duke students have taken part in some branch of sports, either intramural or intercollegiate.

Tennis has long been a popular sport at both Duke and Carolina and the anticipated entry list of several hundred from each school is expected to come easily. Both institutions have, in the past, produced first rate tennis players and at present Carolina has a team of national ranking while Duke had a most successful season last year.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

Bill Tilden agrees with his professional tennis associate, Vincent Richards, that the U. S. will find it very difficult indeed to dislodge the Davis Cup from the French this year, but a different reason.

Where Richards believes the present policy of furnishing year-round activity for Vines, Allison, Van Ryn and other American aces will take the edge off their game by summer, Tilden sticks to an old guardsman's belief that the real obstacle to our success at Paris will be Henri Cochet.

Notwithstanding Cochet's two defeats by Vines, at Auteuil and Forest Hills, and the Frenchman's subsequent displacement as world No. 1 player by the American champion, Tilden thinks it will be a different story when they meet again this year. Big Bill says Cochet underestimated Vines on both occasions he was beaten last year, but will not repeat this mistake.

There were, of course, extenuating circumstances both times Vines licked the little French stylist. The America's Davis Cup victory came after Jean Borotra had beaten William Allison in the singles for the deciding point. At Forest Hills, Cochet was obligated to battle Vines shortly after finishing the fifth set of his semi-final with Allison. He was tired and a bit disgruntled.

On that afternoon, however, Cochet hardly would have been a match for Bines under any circumstances. Henri admitted this, even though he felt he was entitled to "squawk" about the arrangements.

Our boys have now missed at least two good chances to recover the Davis Cup. Even with the French dynasty slipping, they have no reason to be over-confident. They will do well to concentrate their resources for the big campaign and pay no attention to the ballyhoo.

They Suspected It "Professional baseball" writes Dr. Jesse P. Steiner of the University of Washington, one of the investigators of the President's Research Committee on Social Trends, "is already showing the effect of growing competition with other sports and amusements."

This, of course, is not news to the magnates struggling to find ways and means of keeping out of the red in these times.

Dr. Steiner's conclusions are based on the decade up to and including 1930, at which time he says "the curve of attendance is still mounting upward." It has dipped downward for the major leagues since then, while the minor leagues have continued to show a falling off which began in 1928.

Didn't Keep Pace Dr. Steiner makes the point that even during the boom decade professional baseball's attendance gains did not keep pace with the growth of population.

Thus the major league attendance for 1930, amounting to 10,000,000, was an increase of only 1,000,000 over the figures for 1920, or 11.6 per cent. Population in the eleven major league cities increased 30.5 per cent during the same period.

JOB AS BASKETBALL COACH KEEPS HEALY IN CONDITION

Holyoke, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Francis Healy, the young man who will fight it out with Gus Mancuso for the first string backstopping job with the New York Giants next spring, is spending the off-season coaching the basketball team of St. Jerome high school here.

Healy was an all-around athletic star for St. Jerome on the recommendation of "Smiling Mickey" Welch, an old-time Giant hero. His present quintet has bright prospects in the Parochial League. One of Healy's pupils is his brother, Bernie, a crack forward. Coaching and playing with the boys in putting Healy into top shape for the approaching baseball season, assuring him a head start over all rivals for the No. 1 catching berth with the Giants. Prospects are he will divide duty with Mancuso, obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals.

Washington High Girls Play Here Tonight At 7:30

The girls' basketball team of the local high school will play Washington in the high school auditorium tonight at 7:30 o'clock. This game promises to be one of the most exciting of the season in view of the long rivalry existing between the two towns, and a big crowd was expected to be on hand to see the local young women step out to annex another victory.

State Techlets Here Saturday

Saturday night local sports followers will have the opportunity of seeing what is probably the best freshman basketball team in the state and the best had by N. C. State in several years. The Techlets have so far been undefeated, scoring victories over E. C. T. C. Carolina frosh and Mt. Pleasant Institute.

The Teachers, although badly defeated by the freshman quint at Raleigh, have been working hard for the last few days and expect to put up a much better show than in Raleigh. In fact, it will probably appear to be an entirely different team for the additional experience had since the disastrous Raleigh game, should greatly improve the local collegians.

SCHOOL QUITS FOOTBALL; NOW GAME SHOWS PROFIT

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—Financially, Loyola University made football pay for the first time in years last season—without a varsity team of its own! Receipts from rental to other teams—professional, college and prep school—made the school's stadium show a profit for the first time since it was built.

But Loyola had abandoned football as an intercollegiate sport.

"Drunken House" Of Foggia Doomed By Plans For Beautifying Italian City

Foggia, Italy.—(AP)—The "drunken house" of Foggia, one of the world's strangest buildings, is to disappear in its 82d year as part of a city beautification program. Eleven intoxicated youths erected the house in a single night. They mixed the cement for its main walls with wine.

Don Francesco warned the citizens of Foggia against helping to construct the building. But Giovanni Raho, a non-resident, volunteered with his eleven sons to put up the house between sunset and sunrise. But when the youths started the stunt, they found that the wily Don Francesco had placed guards at all the city walls, having no water available for plaster.

FARM RELIEF MOVEMENT GAINING NEW CONVERTS

(Continued From Page One) No one will dispute that the domestic allotment plan proposes to do something about it in a most emphatic way.

When a tangle of technical details are cleared away, you find at the heart of the plan a proposal to pay over to the farmer a direct cash reimbursement, in addition to the sale price of certain of his products; and to raise the money through the operation of a tax collected eventually from the ultimate consumer.

That would have been regarded as quite revolutionary a short time ago. Something toward the same end, but regarded by many as less drastic, was proposed under the equalization fee and the debenture, and neither of those proposals ever attained anything like the vogue which now attaches to the allotment plan.

They originated with the farm organizations, and were looked upon widely as the rankest kind of class legislation.

Observe, in contrast, the paternity and backing of the allotment plan. A college professor, M. L. Wilson, of Montana State College, is credited with having first brought it into general legislative notice.

It should be said, too, that acceptance of the principle involved is far from universal. President Hoover will veto it if it comes before him.

But taking the long view the remarkable and inescapable conclusion is that when you consider American public opinion by and large a long advance has been made toward a real recognition of agriculture as a basic industry, deserving of something more tangible than fine words and meaningless promises.

A Washington Day Book

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C.—(AP)—As Huey Long's filibuster on the Glass banking bill dragged on and on each hour it became more apparent that a wedge was being driven between the Louisiana "Kingfish" and the Virginia Senator that may never be withdrawn.

There have been filibusters before in the Senate, but probably never one just like this. All the rules—even for filibusters—seem to have been broken.

One had only to watch the facial expressions of Glass as he sat at his desk listening to Senator Huey to realize something of what was going on beneath the surface.

When he was not absolutely ignoring Long, which he did most of the time, he had an expression on his face that eloquently bespoke his feelings.

Not So Friendly Senators have a habit of tearing into each other on the floor in debate in such fashion that even the most initiated sometimes wonder what will happen when they meet each other outside the chamber. But almost invariably nothing happens.

There was nothing like that between Long and Glass. In the cloakroom, out in the corridor their enmity persisted.

Long Remains Calm The "kingfish" has shown that he has an asset invaluable to a filibuster. He refuses to get angry enough to lose his head. Time after time he was subjected to taunts which, hurled at almost any other Senator, would have made him fighting mad. But not so with Long.

The nastier the digs at him the more jovial he seemed, the better his wisecracking. His antagonists soon

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady one point higher to two points lower on trade buying of near months and Southern selling. Offering was absorbed by trade buyers and some buying through houses with Liverpool connections and prices at the end of the first half hour were about one to three points lower.

March was selling at 6.08 and July at 6.34. More liquidation and selling appeared later. At midday March was selling around 6.07 and July 6.33. Active months showed losses of two to four points.

Stock Market

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A quiet sinking spell developed in the stock market today. Prices fell fairly well but traders were discouraged at their inability to attract following issues in the past two sessions.

The list recovered soon after midday. Selling was in light volume and some offerings to be for accounts. Borden and American Tobacco sold in volume, each losing a couple of points.

Paramount broke below one point American Telephone and Case went down two points and miscellaneous issues fell off a point or more included Allied Chemical, American Can, United Aircraft, and Union Pacific.

A spirited rally by rails in the trading recovered the earlier decline by the general market. Numerous losses ranging from one to two points were recovered. Sales were 900,000 shares.
