ROOSEVELT OUTLINES PLAN FOR RELIEF OF JOBLESS

Hopes To Employ 200,000 Men In Huge Experiment In Tennessee Watershed

BALANCE OF POPULATION IS BIG IDEA

Vast Internal Development Embracing Reforestation, Reclamation, Water Power and Agriculture Explained to Newspapermen; Hopes to Carry Scheme Into Other Sections of Country and Relieve Unemployment

Warm Springs, Ga., Feb. 2.—A gigantic experiment designed to provide 200,000 jobs and heralded as the birth of a new America...

The rugged highland in the Tennessee watershed was chosen by the next President for this first interesting experiment of government ever undertaken.

Seated before a blazing fire in the "Little White House," the President-elect told newspapermen of his dream of a vast internal development encompassing reforestation, reclamation, water power and agricultural rehabilitation...

Mr. Roosevelt expected this huge laboratory experiment to give employment to 200,000 men in the Tennessee valley alone.

More than this, he hopes to carry the scheme into other sections of the nation from the Alleghenies to the Pacific Coast, and through it reestablish American life on a basis that will mean the end of unemployment, the decentralization of industry and the people protected by the watchful eye of the government.

The telephone pole fell across the highway, but its wires held it suspended some feet from the ground and a New York tourist driving a Cadillac car came along the highway, failed to see the suspended pole in the dark, and crashed into it.

Bunn his officially credited with dropping ten of the bandits.

SEEK RELIEF FOR FARMERS

State Governments Attempt to Halt Mortgage Foreclosures in The South

Efforts of friendly State governments and successful demonstrations to prevent mortgages foreclosures were hailed with joy today by farmers in widely scattered sections in their fight to save their homes and lands.

In the South, the Arkansas Legislature prevented foreclosure measures by passing a moratorium suspending the jurisdiction of circuit and chancery courts. The situation has been recognized by legislators in Alabama and Georgia and sympathy for the farmers has come from the governors of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

In Georgia the moratorium on all farm mortgages was declared by fifteen insurance companies operating in that State.

From other States come reports of mortgage sales that cannot succeed.

EARLY SPRING FOR CAROLINA

Groundhog Romps About After Failing To See His Shadow In This State

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The groundhog may have been basking in the limelight today, but he certainly didn't bask in the sunshine, and that means early spring breezes and showers and good-bye to red flares.

There was no need for the most learned Technocrats or men of science to set up their instruments to ascertain whether there were shadows today in the Carolinas. There was a good shadow of doubt that no shadows existed.

Experts from the North Carolina Department of Health and State Sanatorium will attend the public health meeting to be held at the courthouse here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. It is the first meeting of the kind held here in years, and was expected to be largely attended by persons interested in development of public health in this immediate section.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the public affairs committee of the Kiwanis Club, and parents, teachers and public officials have been asked to attend and obtain information on the public health question.

The principal purpose of the meeting is to discuss the tuberculosis situation prevailing in Pitt County at this time, and is the result of recent warnings sent out by the Department of Health calling on the public to be careful in the employment of young negro women as nurses or other servants.

It was said that tuberculosis was shown to be quite active among young women of this kind and the department urged that they be given complete physical examinations before being employed in homes of the community.

SALES TAX IS EXPECTED TO BE ACCEPTED

Revenue Raising Bill Proposed by The Budget Commission Set Aside; Sub-committee Ordered to Scale Down Budget Proposal For Higher Franchise - License Taxes; Concerted Drive Under Way For Sales Tax

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 2.—(AP)—A joint sub-committee to obtain new sources for State revenue was appointed today by the Finance Committee chairman of the General Assembly, and tomorrow morning will begin its work with its being generally conceded some form of sales tax will be the new source. Senator Rankin of Orange, Senate Finance Committee chairman, with Wayne, of Guilford; MacLean, of Beaufort, and Aiken, of Catawba, will comprise the upper House group.

From the lower House will be Chairman Doughton, of Alleghany; Cherry, of Johnston; Moss, of Nash; Coffey, of Lenoir; Flanagan, of Pitt, and Gattis, of Orange. The full joint committee late yesterday authorized the chairman to name a sub-committee to work up new sources of revenue and to discharge the revenue raising bill suggested by the Advisory Budget Commission.

The sub-committee group was directed to scale down the budget proposal for higher franchise and license taxes. The Associated Press today learned from a reliable source that a concerted drive was under way among leading business men to bring pressure on the General Assembly to levy a 5 per cent general sales tax.

Although clouds obscured the sun several times during the day, it made no difference to Mr. Hog, who seemed to be unconcerned by the appearance of his first shadow, promised not to take the risk again until next year when he will again be watched by the public for his weather forecast.

Despite the antics of the hog, the Weather Bureau was inclined to view the situation in a more charitable way, although the weather man's wife said he hadn't hit it right in six weeks. This guardian of the elements said regardless of what the groundhog saw fit to do, that the public would be fooled.

He predicted changeable weather for the next two months in view of the fact that February and March are considered winter months and will provide regular seasonal conditions until they have spent their time. The hog has seen his shadow for the last two or three years, and bad weather followed. This gives strength to the groundhog day theory, and people who try to scout the bad weather idea might as well renege their coal bins and get all set for the new assault of King Winter.

Cotton consumed in the district in December totaled 291,212 bales, of which 100,751 bales were used by North Carolina mills, 107,260 by South Carolina mills, and 11,201 by mills in Virginia.

An investigation proved that a gas line had rusted through and the escaping gas was pouring into the dining room through the floor.

Plenty of Hitting, Mixed With Laughs —That's All Cub Fans Ask of 'Babe'

Chicago fans are getting themselves set for lots of laughs next summer at the antics of "Babe" Herman in his first season with the Cubs. Or they'll be satisfied if he just keeps up his recent hitting pace.

By F. A. RESCH
Chicago, Ill., Jan. 17.—A lot of advance laughs have broken the monotony of Chicago's hot-stove league this winter, and there's just one reason—Babe Herman.

The boys are thinking about Babe's prize plays of the past—and what a laugh he'll draw from Cub fans next summer if he has more of his laughable brainstorms.

But more seriously, the rabid Cub followers chuckle in a different vein as they build up hopes that Herman's bat will provide some of the punch so badly lacking in the never-to-be-forgotten world series of last September.

There hasn't been an outstanding circus performer in the Cub line-up since Wilson left. Although several of the club's standbys—including Cuyler, Stephenson and Manager Charley Grimm—are great favorites with north side fans, nothing can draw out their support like a slugger who plays the clown.

If Herman's mental lapses weren't forgiven in Brooklyn, and if his slugging wasn't fully appreciated with the tall-end Cincinnati Redlegs last year, Cub fans are pretty likely to make it up to him—provided he hits. North side fans always have been notably loyal to their heroes.

Babe, of course, readily admits he will be a big asset to the Bruins, and that he will be an unbeatable outfielder with Floyd Herman in one field and Cuyler and Stephenson in the other posts.

But to make good with the Cubs, Herman must overcome something of a traditional jinx at Wrigley Field. Few and far between have been the established stars who maintained the pace of their past performances in their year with the Cubs.

Introducing 'Meggie,' 'Major,' And 'Dot'; They'll Be The New White House Pets

When President-Elect and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt move to Washington, two pet dogs and a saddle horse are going along. "Meggie" a Scottish terrier, and "Major," a Police dog, will replace the Hoover dogs as White House pets, while "Dot," Mrs. Roosevelt's saddle horse, will be given a stall in the White House stable. Mrs. Roosevelt intends to take a daily horseback ride.

By LONRENA A. HICKOK
New York.—(AP)—"Weeje" and "Pat" are going to be replaced on the White House lawn March 4 by "Meggie" and "Major."

And into the White House stable will move a bay mare named "Dot." "Weeje," a friendly and playful little Norwegian elk-hound, and "Pat," a police dog, belong to President and Mrs. Hoover. They appeared with the present First Lady of the land in a photograph on her Christmas cards a few weeks ago, and the greeting in her handwriting present at 49 East 65th Street, the below the picture was from "Lo Henry Hoover, Weeje, and Pat."

Someone gave her a bright red "Meggie," a little black Scottish terrier with reproachful eyes, and "Major," a police dog, belongs to President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt. And "Dot" is Mrs. Roosevelt's saddle horse.

"Meggie" Delikes Bath: "Major" Well Trained: "Meggie" is eight years old and black German shepherd trained for very fat and, when she is taken for a police work, was presented to President-Elect Roosevelt several years ago by the troop of State police to which Sergeant Earl Miller, then his bodyguard, was attached. His present address is Krum Elbow, the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park.

There are several other police dogs there, and it's "Major's" job to keep them in order. He himself has a trick which is frequently misunderstood. He walks up to each visitor, takes the visitor's wrist gently but firmly in his teeth, and scrutinizes him before he lets him in. It makes "Major" unpopular with some visitors, but he really doesn't mean any harm. It's part of his training as an alert dog.

"Dot" lives at Hyde Park now, too. She also formerly belonged to the State troopers, the Roosevelts having traded another saddle horse for her. Mrs. Roosevelt hopes to horseback ride every morning at Rock Creek Park.

BATting CHAMPION OF 1880 HOLDOUT FOR $2,500 SALARY

LOOKIT TH' SISSY! USIN' A GLOVE!

George Gore, who broke into big league baseball under the great "Pop" Anson at Chicago in 1878, regards with disdain a "mitt" of the type worn by present-day outfielders. He was made of sterner stuff.

Nutley, N. J.—(AP)—Hale and hearty for all his eighty years George Gore, who won the batting championship of the National League in 1880 with an average of .365, lives in happy retirement here.

He recalls, among other things, when any player who thought of protecting his hands with a glove would have been branded a sissy, and when a manager thought he (Gore) had suffered a sunstroke because he demanded an annual salary of $2,500.

"When I broke in with 'Pop' Anson's Chicago team in 1878," he recounted, "the players didn't have the elaborate equipment they have today. They could 'take it,' as you say nowadays.

"I remember I asked A. G. Spalding for a salary of $2,500. He thought I was out of my head but finally met my figure. You hardly could get a couple of first-class bat boys for that price nowadays," he sighed.

Gore played outfield for Chicago for eight years, when he was sold to the New York club of the National League. He was with the Giants in 1893, when the team received that nickname, he says, because of the unusual height of the players. He retired from the game in 1894.

In addition to his hitting and speed merchants of his day. He recalled that in a game against Providence in 1880 he stole seven bases, made five hits and scored six runs.

"Only the catchers had any sort of protection when I began playing baseball with lumber teams near our home at Hartland, Maine," Gore said. "The catchers had a thin buckskin glove with the fingers cut off—that was all. However, he didn't stand directly behind the batter, but to one side, and if the batter missed the ball it would carom off the backstop and the catcher would retrieve it on first bounce."

Gore recalls his amazement when he was offered real money to play in the old New England League. That was in 1877, the last year of President Grant's second administration!

While they are engaged in this merry-making they learn that the Countess, Laurine Skinner, has been kidnaped by two highwaymen, D. T. Boaman and Peston Smith.

Sunday school was well attended—no preaching on fifth Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wooten of Snow Hill, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wooten one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Acle Tom Edwards of Williamston, accompanied by Miss Fandy Edwards were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Edwards.

Miss Edwards has not returned home; she is detained on account of the illness of her sister, Mrs. C. O. Edwards, who has been right sick since Sunday. We hope she will soon be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Ethyl Sugg of Greene county, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Owen Tyson Sunday.

Friends will be sorry to know that Miss Sybil Gray Allen is in Pitt Community Hospital ill with appendicitis. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Collier Peaden of Belvoir, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Peaden Sunday.

We believe Ballard's is unique in one particular at least; through the liberality and thoughtfulness of the Peoples Supply Co., we have a community telephone, which is such a great help, especially since we have had so much sickness.

We are glad to note that Mr. Moses Tyson, who has been ill for several weeks, is convalescing.

Mr. Thurman Crawford and Miss Lillian Hardee and Mandy Edwards took in the movies in Greenville Monday evening.

Mrs. James Luncheon Hostess.
Yesterday at her home on East Fifth street, Mrs. J. B. James in her usual charming manner, was hostess at a bridge luncheon honoring Mrs. E. W. Myers of New York, and Mrs. Hyman Phillips of Tarboro.

The home throughout was attractively decorated, in the sun porch yellow and purple iris was used. In the rooms where bridge tables were placed, Japanese quince and spirea were used. The table appointments were suggestive of Valentine and were marked with Valentine baskets of minis.

A tempting luncheon was served, following the bridge game.

A Valentine box of candy was won by Mrs. D. M. Clark for high score. The honor guests, Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Phillips, were presented similar gifts.

Mrs. Joyner Bridge Hostess.
Among the attractive parties of the season was yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Hubert Joyner delightfully entertained at her home on Third street.

The Valentine idea was used throughout the home. Eight attractively appointed tables were placed in a setting of japonica and spirea. Places were marked with Valentine Searts.

Concluding the bridge game, Mrs. Graham Flanagan was awarded an attractive cookie jar for high score and Mrs. Harvey Ward, a pair of vases for low score.

Mrs. Ficklen Arthur and Mrs. Archie Sugg, recent brides, were presented novelty hat brushes. Out-of-town guests, Mrs. C. E. Moore, Mrs. Edward Joyner, and Mrs. Lyman Joyner, of Wilson, and Mrs. Tom Litchfield of Aurora, were remembered with dainty handkerchiefs. Attractive table prizes, went to Mrs. A. J. Moore, Mrs. Vernon Parrish, Mrs. Ficklen Arthur, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, Mrs. T. M. Watson, Mrs. W. H. Bradsher, Mrs. Henry Hall and Miss Hennie Whitchard.

The hostess served a tempting salad course with coffee.

Another Grange Organized.
The third subordinate grange was organized at Red Oak last Monday night. This group voted to call their grange the Red Oak Grange. They will meet again at the club building to begin work on a degree team. All others interested are invited to meet with them and become charter members of the organization.

The master is Tom Manning; lecturer, Mrs. T. W. Page, and secretary, Miss Ruby Smith. Other officers will be elected in the near future.

Kiwanians To Entertain Ladies

Ladies' night will be observed by the Kiwanians at the Woman's Club building Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The program will be in charge of "Twist" Matthews and "Bill" Brown, who are planning something out of the ordinary in the way of entertainment.

Ladies' night is one of the most important occasions of the year to the Kiwanians. It not only gives club members an opportunity to bring their wives along, but gives the unmarried ones a chance of initiating their sweethearts into the mysteries of the organization and a good start toward becoming regular full-fledged Kiwanians.

MOTHER JAILED FOR CHILD SLAYING

Talks to Parents

INSTINCTIVE TENDENCIES
By Alice Judson Peale

Many of the behavior difficulties of children arise out of emotional conflicts which may be diminished either by giving the child insight into the real reasons for his behavior or by changing the influences under which he lives.

But there are other behavior difficulties which are not the result of emotional conflicts but of simple instinctive tendencies which have not yet been trained in a socially acceptable way.

An instance of this is the two-year-old's delight in smearing himself with sand, water or mud, and making himself dirty. The average mother is so annoyed by such behavior that she thinks only of prohibition and punishment.

This does not help the child to discipline his instinctive desire, but it does frequently make him naughty, contrary and bad tempered.

Wise is the mother who allows her child in this phase to play with wet sand, to work with clay and splash about with water.

Another instinctive tendency in young children is that of destructiveness.

Such a destructive child should be given blocks with which to build a tower and crash it down. He needs a hammer with which to pound the gravel of the walk, an old box, or if he is old enough broad-headed nails.

He should have scissors with which he may cut up old paper magazines.

Helping the child express his primitive desires, step by step on a higher level and a socially acceptable way, is the shortest and most wholesome way of training him to conformity while he keeps a maximum pleasure and freedom in activity.

No one can be a good mother for twenty-four hours a day, fifty-two weeks to the year.

Every mother owes it to herself and to her children to get away from them with reasonable frequency. Ideally, of course, every mother should be completely away from her child for at least a few hours each day. This is as good for the child as it is for her, especially when the child spends these hours in nursery school or kindergarten.

But where a nursery school or kindergarten is not available, or where they care for the child only during the morning hours it is a good plan for the housekeeping mother to arrange to have one afternoon free to herself, an afternoon free not only of children but of all household cares, an afternoon for shopping, reading, shows and visiting.

This can be arranged even where the budget does not permit a temporary nursemaid or where no obliging relative is within reach.

A group of mothers of children of similar ages, living not too far apart, can arrange to have one mother take care of all of the children for one afternoon a week. If mothers co-operate in this fashion each can have free hours.

The mother whose turn it is to stay at home with her own and her neighbors' children will lighten her task and make it interesting, if she plans to do nothing that afternoon, but see that the children have plenty of play opportunities and good play together.

Such an afternoon of contact with other children may help her to understand their own child better. Serving a party afternoon lunch at which the children help with simple refreshments, gives the occasion a festive spirit and provides practice in helpfulness.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York.—(AP)—Raymond M. Hood, who speaks with such pronounced views on architecture these days (he is one of the Rockefeller Center designers), was one of the most reticent and timid young men.

He had a tough financial problem at the beginning of his career, and sometimes it seemed as though his inability to speak his mind would hold him down.

One of his early jobs was to design a home for a New Yorker up in Westchester, for which he received only $200. Then, it appeared to Hood, the contractors were going to botch the building they had architectural supervision until it was completed.

A friend asked Hood why he himself didn't seek the supervisory job. "That would be worth an extra $150," was the young architect's mournful reply, "and I'm afraid to ask for any more money."

The friend told Hood right then and there that he would have to get over that timidity if he ever was going to amount to anything, and finally bolstered his courage—to a certain extent.

Hood suggested the need of supervision to his patron and meekly asked that he would take the assignment for $150.

"Of course," was the immediate response. "I'm glad you brought that up."

Without further ado, Hood marched out of the office. But once the door was slammed behind him, he began to have queer qualms as to whether he had been too abruptly business-like. There ought to be more warmth in such negotiations, he feared; yet he knew his patron only in a business way.

Vaguely decided about what he should do, he popped his head into the office again and asked "By the way, how's your wife?"

"Why, she's very well—thanks," the startled fellow replied.

"Fine," said Hood, who closed the door and beat an awkward retreat.

Sain H. Harris, the producer with a passion for horses, tells about a nag he bought at a sale for $1,000. A little while after the purchase, a man who had missed the sale came along and offered $4,000 for the horse. Harris turned him down.

The next time the pony started in a race, Harris sank his roll on him.

Now here's where the story happens to be a little different from most of those off the track.

The horse won and Harris collected $15,000!

HOLLYWOOD SINGS AND SOUNDS

ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood, (AP)—Rambles behind the reels.

The general elevation of the composite Hollywood brow since the talkies made brains popular is noticeable behind the music counter as well as in the book shops.

If ever the time was when jazz predominated in the record selection of the film famous, the era of preference for oomp-a-oompa tunes has given way now to a greater demand for the classic. And one music store lists among its customers for whole volumes of symphony, cantata and opera recordings many players such as Joan Bennett, whose screen roles would scarcely indicate a fondness for anything very heavy.

Mariene Dietrich, John Boles, Elissa Landi and Ann Harding are among the inveterate followers of the best recorded music.

Wera Engels, by the way, has one of those home recording instruments, and uses it in rehearsing her lines for the next day's shooting.

Whatever else may be said of Cecil DeMille's "Sign of the Cross" the film may take its place as the first real spectacle of the talkies. Not forgetting "Cavalcade," either, which technically is no spectacle, but a panorama, as someone has pointed out.

Nice that Maxine Cantway drew a studio contract the other day. Three years ago Maxine was "selected as the typical movie chorus girl" for publicity purposes, and after seeing her picture on many front pages, went silently back to extra-ing again. Now she has a chance to build some more enduring fame—providing the studio doesn't confine her acting to posing for more publicity stunts, which is the fate of many stock players.

BAMMA QUESTION TO BE HEARD TONIGHT

The matter of whether or not the corporate limits of Greenville should be extended to include the Bamma section, cotton mills and other plants in the vicinity is to have action of the Board of Aldermen tonight and the public should be on hand at this meeting to hear the full discussion of the matter. There are many who feel that already this outlying section of the city is receiving most of the benefits enjoyed by the property owners within the city limits and should be included in the city to share its just proportion of the tax burdens. There are others who believe that the increased revenues that annexation of the property would add to the city's funds would be more than offset by the obligations incurred by the city in taking in this property at this time. It is a debatable question worthy of full consideration and surely the Aldermen desire to carry out the wishes of the people in the matter. If you have opinions in the matter be on hand at tonight's meeting and make your wishes known.

DON'T DO AWAY WITH THE PRIMARY

There are still some of those in the legislature who are determined to do away with the state-wide primary system if possible, but it is to be hoped that this is one right that has been given the people that will not now be taken away from them. Of course we realize in the past there have been many features that have accompanied our primaries that have driven some of our people to express preference for the old convention system but when all is said and done we do not honestly believe that anyone but the real old time politicians want to return to the old system. If our state will do away with the absentee ballot or so restrict it as to cut out some present abuses of this phase of the election law, give us a full Australian ballot and then have county election boards see to it that new registrations are held at intervals frequent enough to keep the books up-to-date and in proper shape and provide sufficient polling places, then we will find that the primary system is by far the best for the people of our state.

ABOUT TOWN

The plan to launch a city-wide dollar day here in the near future most assuredly will receive the attention of business men. Dollar Days have become quite popular in recent years and persons have learned that they can always depend upon Greenville stores to give them the very best to be had on such occasions. Times like these thrifty shoppers are looking about for goods at below usual prices and hundreds of people no doubt will flock to Greenville to partake of the bargain festival.

Shoppers will do well to watch for the date of the new dollar day and then be in readiness to take advantage of the innumerable offerings to be presented on that day. Tariff will be one of the things which President-elect Roosevelt will stress at his conference with foreign countries following his entrance to the White House. It is generally conceded the New Yorker will seek to open the channels of trade with other nations with the assistance of Great Britain and the only way this can be done with any success will be through lowering of the tariff wall. High tariff is one of the things troubling all nations at this time, and convince them that this is so and the wall will totter much quicker than it was erected. Roosevelt probably will make certain overtures to Great Britain to accomplish this purpose. Britain is in a mood for doing something and much good is looked for from the series of conferences.

Greenville high school basketball team succeeded in vanquishing Wilson Tuesday night and if nothing happens they will make others bow before them before the season is closed. The school has had a difficult time carrying out its sports program this year because of the lack of finances, and it completes the year without curtailing activities it will be a splendid feat. The athletic department has appealed to the public for support the last several years but little has been done to help them realize the ambition. The only way the department has to raise money is through revenue from games such as that played against Wilson, and patrons should make an effort to attend more frequently and show the boys and girls they are in sympathy with the movement to build themselves up physically and mentally.

Henry Ford doesn't think conditions are so bad at this time, but evidently Mr. Ford doesn't see things as the rest of the people see them. However, his reference to a bright period ahead is not amiss. Everybody with the spirit of Americanism burning in their hearts firmly believe conditions will change in the future and that some of the prosperity lost in the wild cry of spending will return to bring joy and happiness to hearts of people in every field of human endeavor. Expressions of confidence from men like Mr. Ford have a psychological effect upon the public and others would do no harm to join him in trying to dissipate the nightmare that has held the majority of people in grip the last several years.

Robert R. Reynolds, senator from North Carolina, is planning to set a new record for Congress by going through the short term without introducing a single bill. If some of the other members of the body who are so prolific in writing new laws would do the same thing the county might be better off. The trouble now is that we have too many laws on our statute books with only a few of them being enforced. Congress has a tremendous task ahead of it in providing for relief of the nation in an economic way and if they do that the people don't care whether they pass any more laws or not.

Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: The truth of how Sir James Cane's fortune began comes out. He had bought shares from Barbara Quentin's mother, knowing that although she thought them worthless, they really were worth par. The Lodleys and Quintins were impoverished. Farrell Armitage, in love with Barbara, just has brought out that Mrs. Lodely has known for years of the deceit. Farrell is in love with Barbara Quentin, who has broken her engagement to Mark Lodely, gifted but unprincipled son of Mrs. Lodely.

Chapter 46 LEILA CANE EXPLAINS

"I did not tell anybody," shouted Mrs. Lodely. "But you made it your business to get a copy of the wire, in the firm's name, I suppose?" demanded Farrell.

"Yes I did, Mr. Farrell Armitage, and I'd do it again. And moreover, I said to myself 'It's clear Babs and Mark'll marry one day. They're cut out for each other. And if poor old Sylvia gets this money she'll move right away and those two poor kids'll be parted.' So I kept it and I waited. And what business it has all been of yours, I shall never understand!"

"And father goes to jail or hands Barbara forty-five thousand odd or perhaps he goes to jail, anyway?" put in Leila. "That the idea, Farrell?"

"It was Mark's thin voice that answered her while Farrell was choosing his words. "I've been pining to hear why you've been brought up for trial, at all, Leila. Now that Judy has been let off with a caution, I don't doubt your case will come on next. Are you, by any chance, your father's keeper?"

"Leila," snapped Armitage, "made it clear to me from the first that she disassociated herself from what she suspected to be her father's attitude. I think it was an extremely difficult thing for her to convey but she conveyed it. I don't know why she should have had any suspicions to start with."

"I heard Mrs. Quentin asking father about the shares; and I think that, like Judy, I must have remembered that telegram and father reading it. And then, four or five years ago, I met a man at a dance here in Town. He asked me about Kings Mallard; did I know the Quintins? He said they'd bought some worthless shares from a pal of his once, out of sheer decency, and then suddenly gold was found, after the pal was dead. That, Leila's cool tones became even cooler—"was, as I say, quite five years ago."

"The reason I asked you to be present," put in Armitage with slight impatience, "was this. It's obviously going to be the best to dodge publicity. If you'll put the whole business before your father he'll be able to make restitution over a convenient period; there's no doubt Barbara will let him have time."

He broke off. Sounds were coming from Mrs. Lodely that were almost coherent. "Four or five years ago, did you say, Leila? Did you say it was as long ago as that that you first had an inkling of what your father had been up to? All I can say is, you don't seem to have bestirred yourself in spite of being considered so splendid!"

"I'm not in the least splendid, I assure you. On the contrary, when I was in Kings Barn the other day I got hold of Judy's copy of the telegram to Quentin, Lodely and Cane and I—discussed it with father. Keep quite one minute, Judy, do you mind? Father saw the force of my argument when I said that on a capital of forty-five thousand odd he could allow me at least five hundred a year more. I think he rather admired me."

A rising shriek of laughter came from where Mark's face glinted narrowly white against rugs and cushions. "I've never in my life been as amused as I am tonight. I adore you, Leila, that, with absolute proof in your hand, you enjoyed money that is indisputably Barbara's?" demanded Farrell harshly. "Guiltily, my lord."

"I adore you for amusing me so," gasped Mark. "Yes, I really am laughing, Armitage, not just doing what I can to add to the general discomfiture. Leila, the little provincial rate-crasher, getting her fingers into the till! And now she and her dear papa will have to economize."

"Supposing Miss Cane is allowed to give us her point of view?" broke in Poole, his face still to the fire. Armitage saw Leila's hard face quiver. "I can't at all a heroic one," she said slowly. "I thought I'd see if I could squeeze just a few months' fun even if it meant being as miserable a little cheat as father. I meant to own up at the end of your year, Farrell."

"I'm sure I don't know what year you're talkin' about!" sobbed Mrs. Lodely. "She means," choked Mark, "the year which Farrell has set aside for the buying of Barbara. I don't suggest with his money, naturally, but rather with his sterling worth, his gentility and so on."

THE MOST SENSATIONAL ANNOUNCEMENT ANY FERTILIZER COMPANY HAS EVER MADE

WE GUARANTEE ORANGE TOBACCO FERTILIZER

OUR GUARANTEE

Ever since we introduced ORANGE Tobacco Fertilizer to tobacco growers, we have charged a premium for it. We have said: "It costs more to make—it is worth more—it will make more money for you than any other tobacco goods you can buy."

The growers who have used it have almost to a man agreed with us. They have found, by every test they could make, that ORANGE was better for their tobacco, and their pocketbooks. They made more money with it.

Now, we want every tobacco grower to use ORANGE, because we know it will help every one who uses it to get more tobacco money than he would get any other way. So we make a sensational offer—one which no other fertilizer company has dared to make. We will guarantee you satisfaction with ORANGE. We say: "If you use ORANGE and, after marketing your crop are convinced that it is not worth the difference, we will refund to you in cash, the premium you paid for ORANGE."

Our faith in ORANGE is unbounded. The experience of years makes us feel that way. In addition, a series of six scientific tests by prominent growers last year against 10 other well known brands showed conclusively that ORANGE brought an average of $46.27 per acre more than the other fertilizers used. Therefore, on the basis of 1000 packed in cotton bags Smith Orange and Jamaica Tobacco Fertilizers and Smith 4-11-4 Money Maker for cotton, corn and general grain crops, now come packed in cotton bags. An extra value for users of these S-D goods.

BLUE DEVILS WILL PLAY IN LYNCHBURG

Durham, Feb. 2.—Duke University's cagers left here today for Lynchburg, Va., where tonight they open a three-game invasion of the Old Dominion by meeting the Washington and Lee Generals.

The Blue Devils will also meet V. M. I. on this trip, returning the visit the Cadets paid Durham recently, and clashing with the Gobblers for the first time. V. M. I. will be met in Lexington Friday night and the Gobblers in their stronghold Saturday night.

This week-end's three games will go a long way in determining the rating the Duke team will carry to Raleigh at tournament time and the Blue Devils are anxious to make a good showing on the trip although they realize that they are faced with three hard games.

The trip will bring four of the high scorers of the conference together, each game giving Jim Thompson, Duke's ten point a minute center, a chance to show his wares, being scheduled to have individual scoring battles with Joe Sawyers of Washington and Lee, Hancock of V. M. I. and Hall of V. P. I. on successive nights.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The major league baseball magnates have not yet quite convinced themselves just how it happened that Commissioner Landis' salary dropped from $65,000 to $40,000 per year. The grey-haired, silent judge hasn't taken time out to give them the details either.

As a matter of fact Landis made his own decision about turning back a big percentage of his salary to the depleted baseball treasury and did it after the joint meeting of the club owners in New York. Baseball men didn't find out about it until well into January. Landis made part of the "cut" retroactive on the basis of $15,000 for 1932 and $25,000 for 1933.

Thus the aggregate saving is $40,000 for the two years and it is obvious Landis hopes to have the magnates, on this basis, reconsider their decision not to support the junior baseball program of the American Legion this year.

The two leagues have been putting something like $50,000 into this development project. Landis thinks it should be continued, as an insurance measure for baseball youth, even in these hard times. But the club owners didn't agree with him in December and wiped out the item.

At the time Landis offered to make a salary adjustment to meet the contribution to junior baseball, but this was not accepted nor did the commissioner then give a hint he was going to slice his salary anyway.

The upshot is that both the magnates and Landis now would appear a trifle embarrassed, the commissioner for the reason he had some of his pet ideas knocked over at the winter meetings; the club owners for the reason Landis has now virtually forced action on the junior baseball program.

These Thoughtless Yankees

Most of the trouble can be laid to the doorsteps of the richest club in baseball, the New York Yankees.

If they had not been so brutal as to knock over the Cubs four straight, in fact, to do this stunt three times within a few years, the funds would not be so depleted in baseball's Advisory Council. The club owners for years ran their administrative affairs very nicely on the excess profits of world series games, over and above the first four contests in which the players collect over 50 per cent of the profits.

There has been only one seven-game world series in the last six years. The average has been only five games per series in that period or exactly one "profit-taking" game per year. As the magnates see it, it is a tough price for honesty.

Must Have Been Good

"The Pacific Coast champions of 1930, Washington State, must have been a pretty good team, if we can judge by subsequent performances," writes Mark Searr. "Four members of that team went into professional football—Captain Elmer (the great) Schwartz, fullback; Mel Hein (center); Hurley, guard; and Glenn Edwards, tackle. In this year's Associated Press all-professional selections, Edwards, Hein and Hurley made first or second string.

"Alabama beat them—and how!—in the Rose Bowl play-off, but they really outsmarted them. The Cougars were a little over-confident. But then the 'Bama boys were never anybody's set-up. Ask St. Mary's!"

It seems quite all right, in principle, to conduct a war against doping in the matter of star swimmers or athletes in general, but it smacks of poor sportsmanship at this date for any American, much less a college coach, to belittle the magnificent victory of Japan's young swimmers in the 1932 Olympic, on the basis that oxygen was used by them as a stimulant or restorative.

So far as Japan is concerned or any of its performers, it is not the business of our National Collegiate A. A. to do any investigating anyway. Specific charges, if any when made, might be taken before the International Swimming Federation, but I doubt that any will be drawn up.

Meanwhile, such references to the Japanese as have been credited to Matt Mann, Michigan's swimming coach, on the subject of 'doping' seem altogether inopportune and out of order.

Our swimmers and coaches at Los Angeles last summer knew just how good the Japanese were, beforehand. It was simply a question of whether the youngsters from the Orient could duplicate their performances at home. They did and they won the men's Olympic championships for the first time from the U. S. A. They also proved themselves grand sportsmen.

It's An Old Story

The use of stimulants by athletes undergoing the stress or strain of major competition is nothing new, anyway, nor in many cases is it necessarily illegitimate.

Old-timers can tell of many an instance where it was necessary to "pep up" the boys by one means or another, by methods usually harmless or sometimes otherwise. The use of sugar or candy is, of course, common. Veterans often prefer something with alcoholic content for fortification of body energy and determination.

I have heard it told, seemingly on good evidence, that hypodermic injections were used to sustain some of the competitors in a famous Olympic marathon, also that an over-indulgence of spirits was costly to one of the favorites in this event.

It may also be recalled that the administration of sherry and egg-nog helped stimulate one of our great Olympic champions, his sources of energy having been pretty well tapped by a heavy campaign. Alleged "doping" of Olympic athletes was investigated in 1928.

Why, therefore, all the clamor, even if the Japanese did use liquid oxygen to stimulate or revive their swimmers? It was done upon medical advice after a study of the effects.

Would Have Won Anyway

In the furtherance of that well-known desire to win, certain of our college football coaches have been known to use some methods of stimulation, but it has mostly been confined to vocal or emotional exhortation.

Rarely have there been such cases as those where a coach administered caffeine tablets to his team in the final game against a leading rival or another used strychnine pills. Generally the dietary variations have been something like the "milk diet" adopted at Brown University, noted for its "iron men."

As for the use of the "Japanese pulmotor," it seems very rare indeed and hardly worth all this disturbance. The Japanese would have won the Olympics swims, anyway, with or without it.

GEORGIA TECH GRID STARS NOW SHINE IN BASKETBALL

Roy McArthur and Johnny Poole, who played brilliantly on Georgia Tech's football eleven, are busy carrying on for Coach Roy Mundorf on the hardwood. Cage practice held up until they could report.

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—Roy Mundorf, Georgia Tech's basketball coach, waited until the football team returned from its post-season game with California's Golden Bears before starting his cage practice.

The reason was that Coach Alexander had four of his hardwood regulars with the football team.

Now that 1932 football is history, the basketball team is gathering momentum as the season gets under way, and there are no brighter lights on the team that Roy McArthur, quarterback, and Johnny Poole, center, who have distinguished themselves as guards.

This sale is made by reason of the failure of Lillie R. Tucker, unmarried, to pay off and discharge the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust.

A deposit of 10 per cent will be required from the purchaser at the sale.

Fertilizer Plan Shifts Risk From Tobacco Growers

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 2.—Announcement was made today by Oscar F. Smith, president of the Smith-Douglass Company, Norfolk, Va., that henceforth his company will guarantee their brand of Orange tobacco fertilizer to tobacco growers, causing a sensation in local tobacco raising and fertilizer circles.

OSCAR F. SMITH, President, Smith-Douglass Co.

"If, after using Orange tobacco fertilizer and marketing your crop, you are satisfied that Orange is not worth the premium we charged you for it above the cost of other fertilizers, we will cheerfully refund that premium to you in cash."

The sensation is caused by the fact that a guarantee of any kind of results with fertilizer has been carefully avoided by fertilizer mixers. Guarantees have been limited to chemical analysis, and a guarantee of results was heretofore unheard of in the history of the fertilizer business.

"There has been lots of talk about helping the farmer, but not enough action. We want to help the farmers and we want the farmers helped, and we have found that one way we can be of real help to them is by making this guarantee."

"The reason for this is, that the tobacco grower will prosper only with high yield and high quality leaf. There is no doubt that the need for economy has influenced many growers to economize on fertilizer, without proper consideration of results to be obtained, resulting in low yields, poor quality and lack of profit, when they otherwise might have obtained a fair return for their labors."

"For a long time all the gamble in growing tobacco has been on the farmer's side. Now we are going to take some of the gamble off his shoulders, by enabling him to use a better fertilizer without any extra risk to himself."

"We have sufficient confidence in our Orange fertilizer to do this, and it means that the grower can buy it, use it, harvest and sell his crop, and if he feels it is not worth the difference in price, we will cheerfully refund to him the premium he paid for it, one and above the cost of other fertilizers."

"We are especially proud of being able to do this, because we know we are making history in this further step in our policy of working more closely with the farmer. We were the first to sell direct to the farmer, we were the first to guarantee him against price decline, and now we are the first to make it possible for him to use a premium quality fertilizer without risking any extra cost or expense to himself."

PONCA CITY MEANS JOBS, NOT WAR, TO PONCA TRIBE NOW. Ponca City, Okla.—(AP)—Tom-toms now means jobs, not a call to the warpath, for the Ponca Indians. They're making toy ones for Col. Zack Miller, of 101 Ranch fame, who has sold more than 10,000 of the tom-toms to the top markets.

Possesses Lincoln Telegram. Porterville, Calif.—(AP)—S. V. Sedwick, mail carrier, possesses two original telegrams bearing the name of Abraham Lincoln. Both were sent from Springfield, Ill. They were given Sedwick by his uncle, former telegraph company messenger in Lincoln's home city. They are dated July 11, 1859, and April 4 of the same year.

Poles Get Dance Dictator. Warsaw.—(AP)—The governor of Poland's federal district has appointed a "dance dictator" to supervise dancing academies. Many parents had complained that their children did so badly after taking lessons from advertised teachers that they became objects of ridicule. The "dance dictator" must decide whether poor teaching or lack of talent was the cause.

Robinson was the man who engaged the move seeking to shut off Hays Long, Thomas et al. But what is more important perhaps he has started something which might possibly bring about the very thing which "Hell in Maria" advocated in 1925.

Stock Market

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A further backwash of selling today followed yesterday's wave of liquidation in the stock market, but pressure subsided after first hour. By early afternoon the list was able to recover a little in spots, but rallies were limited to fractions.

Losses of one to two points appeared in such issues as American Telephone, American Can, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Case, Norfolk and Western, Eastman, and others. Goodyear lost a major fraction.

U. S. Steel sagged more than a point and then recovered partially. Standard Oil and Consolidated Gas sold in volume, making substantial fractions.

Selling again dried up in the stock market on the resumption on a decline in late trading. Morning losses of fractions to two points occurred in some issues. Sales were 1,200,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

(Continued from Page One) Feb. 5. The Senate also voted to recall the Burgin billy to make members of the board of conservation also serve as the state park commission.

A House education sub-committee was slated to start to work on the school legislation bill for an eight months school term in seven months by extending an hour a day and having a six day week. The House will take up the Sullivan baseball bill tomorrow.

Leas Fight Extradition. Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Governor Hill McAllister listened for three hours today to argument against extradition of Colonel Luke Leau and his son, Luke Lea, Jr., to North Carolina, and then recessed the hearing until 2 o'clock when the other side will be heard.

The Leas counsel contended defendants were not fugitives from justice because they were in the State at the time the law violation was alleged and that their conviction in that State had no bearing on the matter.

Affidavits by the Leas said they were not in North Carolina on that date. "This is not a personal matter," said L. G. Gwynn, chief counsel for the Leas. "Not a personal matter, not a question of punishing somebody that somebody thinks ought to be punished."

Fuller Amendment. Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Fuller amendment to the independent offices supply bill to kill the $500,000 appropriation for Farm Board for the first six months of the fiscal year was defeated today in the House.

In discussing the proposal, Fuller said he saw no reason why we should give money for a board that would be abolished by the next administration. The appropriation would cover expenses of the board until December 1, 1933.

Ask New Relief Funds. Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Appropriation of an additional $150,000,000 for direct relief loans to the states was recommended to the Senate committee today by Charles Miller, president of the Reconstruction Fund.

The Reconstruction president endorsed in general terms the Wagner bill to liberalize the law under which his organization administers relief, testifying the demand for aid is increasing. He opposed, however, the provision proposing to throw wide open the entire resources of the body for relief loans to states, saying it would handicap efforts to stimulate local relief works.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady unchanged to three points lower on March liquidation and Southern selling off by good trade demand.

Some further selling through houses with continental connections and active months showed losses of three to four points. March sold down to 5.7 and July to 6.0.

The market at the beginning of the first half hour was steady at net losses of two to three points. At midday May was selling around 5.90 with the general market showing a decline of three to four points. (Courtesy Slight & Co.)
