COLOMBIA APPEALS TO LEAGUE BODY

Asks Intervention in Dispute With Peru For Territory Possession

Geneva, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Colombia appealed to the League of Nations today to intervene in the dispute with Peru for possession of the upper Amazon port of Tarapaca invoking Article 15 of the League whereby the settlement could be made. Colombia's appeal was conveyed in a brief message setting forth the situation and accusing Peru of taking action in violation of the League engagements. A special League council session will be held Monday to hear the appeal. There will be official discussions of a plan to dispatch a commission of inquiry to South America similar to the Lytton Commission which investigated the Manchurian dispute between China and Japan. Officials believed that this course would likely be recommended in case the United States Government is agreeable.

Lima, Peru, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Belated officials reports disclosed today that Colombian and Peruvian forces had engaged in another battle Thursday in the upper Amazon territory and claims that the Colombian fleet was forced to retreat to Brazilian waters. The official communication said Peruvian airplanes attacked Colombia's flotilla of five vessels in the river at Tarapaca where the first battle in the undeclared warfare was fought Tuesday.

Lenoir, N. C., Feb. 18.—Fifteen hundred pounds of Kobe Lespedeza seed were assembled last week by farmers of Caldwell County and shipped to the Fredell County Mutual Exchange for sale, reports County Agent D. H. Sutton. This was the first co-operative shipment of the year from Caldwell County. This variety of Lespedeza makes more growth and provides later pasturage in the county than other varieties grown.

Late News Flashes

Senate Passes Smith Cotton Bill
Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House the Smith bill aimed at cutting the 1933 cotton production by a novel plan involving a huge government cotton pool. The Smith bill, described by the Southern Senators as all important to the South at this time, was taken up and passed after being laid aside on the expiration of the time allotted for consideration. Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, sponsor of the bill, told the Senate the bill would probably reduce the 1933 production by three to four million bales, thus cutting the heavy surplus which is having a depressing effect.

Logan's Dislike Of Senate Grows With Barry Case

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—It didn't take the portly, black-haired Marvel Logan of Kentucky long to make up his mind about the United States Senate and its way of doing things. Shortly after he had taken his seat in that body some two years ago, what few illusions he had about the Senate were severely jolted.

"I didn't want to come here in the first place," he said in effect. "And now that I am here I am not particularly anxious about staying."

He had just left the highest court in Kentucky as chief justice to come to Washington. His friends believe that he longs for the peace and dignity that he knew in those days and would like to be back.

ITALY SCORES FRENCH ACTION IN ARMS ROW

Press Charges French With Effort to Stir Up Anti-Italian Feeling

Rome, Italy, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The entire Italian press engaged in an attack upon France today charging an alleged ultimatum to Austria concerning arms shipment from Italy was camouflaged to take attention from the anti-Italian military preparations.

Denial that the shipment was for war purposes was coupled with a counter charge that France was shipping arms in great quantities into Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia. The newspapers were outspoken in their denunciation of the so-called ultimatum that they get rid of the arms and supplies within two weeks.

Great Britain was reported to have approved France's action on the grounds that the concentration of arms was in violation of the post war treaty.

ZANGARATRIAL WILL BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

Would-be Assassin of Roosevelt to Face Charge of Attempt Murder

Miami, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The trial of Giuseppe Zangara, swarthy Italian, who wounded five persons in an attempt to assassinate President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, was set today for 10 o'clock Monday. The action was taken after Solicitor Charles Morehead in the presence of a crowded courtroom moved for postponement from today until Monday because defense attorneys had not received an official report from the sanity commission appointed to investigate Zangara's mental state.

Zangara's attorneys appointed by Judge E. C. Holland, who will hear Zangara's case on an attempted charge to murder, are Lewis Twyman, president of the Date County Bar Association; J. M. McCaskill, former president of the association, and Alfred E. Rala.

Good Pastures Make Better Stock

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 18.—Poor breeding and poor feeding are the two prime factors resulting in low grade beef animals being produced in North Carolina, yet both of these may be corrected with little money and a reputation built for growing out excellent beef animals at home, says L. I. Case, animal husbandman at State College.

To improve the breeding, purebred sires may be used to build up native cattle, and if any of the cows do not show results from the breeding program followed, such cows should be culled out, fattened and sold to the butcher. The best heifers may be kept for increasing the herd or replacing the old and profitable animals.

As for feeding, Case says nothing can take the place of a good pasture. On many farms new areas should be added to the permanent pasture land each season. Old pastures may be improved by reseeding or a light application of fertilizer or hornyard manure.

While Mr. Case is an enthusiast about permanent pastures for all kinds of livestock, there is also a need for annual pastures or supplementary grazing crops. He says summer droughts in recent years have shown the necessity for putting some land into temporary crops that the animals may have plenty of green feed when the pastures fail.

Better winter feeding is also a problem. Every livestock grower should make his plans now to grow enough feed this coming summer for the animals' next winter. Those who have no silos may dig a trench six feet wide and three feet deep and fill it with a supply of the succulent feed.

Three men, a team of mules and a silt scraper built a 32-ton silo in fifteen hours this summer near Raleigh, and the silage has kept perfectly all winter, the livestock specialist says.

JAP CABINET POSTPONES DISCUSSIONS

May Summon Agent At Geneva Before Final Decision Is Made

Tokyo, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The cabinet today postponed further discussion of the League of Nations question until Monday and indicated that it may summon Matsuka, Japanese delegate at Geneva, to return here before final action to withdraw is taken. Government spokesmen said that if Matsuka were called home he would be asked to return by the way of Siberia, the shortest route, and likely would have to abandon his projected trip to the United States.

London, Eng., Feb. 18.—(AP)—An exchange Telegraph Press Association dispatch from Tokyo states a decision to withdraw Japanese membership in the League of Nations was made today by the Japanese cabinet. A Reuters dispatch, however, said the report was unfounded.

Official sources from Tokyo said that following yesterday's publication of the League's condemnation of Japan the government would certainly wait until the League assembly's action on the report is completed next week before withdrawal.

Factory Supports Use Cotton Campaign

Thomasboro, Ga., Feb. 18.—Martha Mills textile division of the B. F. Goodrich Company, Silvertown, Ga., has notified its cotton shippers that the company will again pay for seven pounds of additional cotton per bale at current cotton prices if the bales received are entirely cotton wrapped, following a precedent established by Martha Mills in 1931.

"Because of the carry-over and present prices, we feel that it is necessary to promote the increased use of cotton, particularly as applied to the cotton industry," said Albert T. Matthews, vice-president and general manager of the Goodrich mills.

The Chinese decided to ignore the ultimatum despite the Japanese threat to attack at once if it is not complied with.

THOUSANDS OF LUNCHEES DONATED TO CHILDREN

Raeford, N. C., Feb. 18.—According to report recently made, the free lunches sponsored by the Woman's Club of Raeford, the P. T. A. of the county and the Girls' Scout, amounted in the aggregate of 6,537 served to whites and 4,262 served to colored. The figures were for the month of January. Estimated value of the lunches was $893. These free lunches have aided in maintaining regular attendance at the schools and helped quite a great deal in promoting the health of the children, particularly the undernourished.

Last summer the Raeford Woman's Club and the several P. T. A.'s in the county canned surplus fruits and vegetables to the amount of 6,000 cans 2,500 of which were put up by the colored people of the county, all with a view to supplying these free lunches during this winter.

REGARDS MOTORCYCLE AS NEGLIGENCE FACTOR

Greensboro, N. C., Feb. 18.—To ride a motorcycle is itself a contributing factor of negligence in any injury the rider may sustain, in the opinion of Judge H. Clement conducting Guilford Superior Court today he instructed a non-suit in the manslaughter charges brought against Francher Watson, High Point, for the death of Clyde Dixon on October 6, 1931, when Watson's car hit Dixon's motorcycle. The State has insufficient evidence to go to a jury.

CHAPTER 12
THE LEGION MARCHES

Having sounded their call in the center of the post, the buglers marched to the gate and again sounded the "assembly," outside the post. They then marched right round the walls sounding their strident urgent calls to each of the other three points of the compass.

"Do put on a new record. That one's getting worn out," observed Sailor Harris as he stuffed a small kit into his sack.

"Wore out!" grunted William Bossum, rolling spare boots in blanket and tent-canvas that he proceeded to strap to his knapsack. "I reckon it's broke. They broke it, Yus."

"They broke the record," he chuckled. "Pay'n' it five times round five square yards to five men and a boy."

"Blime! A joke!" observed Sailor Harris in an annoying manner. "You break the record for speed, my lad, or you'll be in for it," urged Joe Mummy, as he spun round and round winding twelve feet of broad woolen belt about his middle.

In the cook-house soup is being hastily prepared and leaves of bread laid out for distribution.

The tightly packed sacks, and the rifles are brought out and, by each man, laid in the place where he will fall in.

Once again the bugles sound, and almost immediately everybody is in his place, and the roll is called. Cartridges are distributed, the quartermaster and his orderlies issue reserve rations to each man, two tins, a pound of corned beef and a pound of biscuits. Each man also receives a little bag of coffee, one of salt and one of sugar.

Major Riccoli mounts his horse.

The men stand silent and steady as a rock, buglers ten paces to the right.

The Senegalese come to attention. Their guard present arms. Forward! March!

The buglers strike up the March of the Legion and once more the Legion marches.

Always the Legion marches. . . . Some feel that Major Napoleon Riccoli is being a little excessive. They have every intention of marching—when on the way to billets in a real town, and all the boys there.

If all his men would not follow him to the Gawtes of Hell and through them, as he is fond of boasting, they will certainly follow him to the Gates of Mekazzen and through them.

But it is a weary march across the burning waterless desert that is one of the chief factors in the impracticability of Mekazzen: most powerful of the defenses that had kept the country inviolate since the days when the great Shereefian warrior ancestor of the Kaid conquered and colonized it, centuries before his descendants conquered and colonized Spain.

A weary march, needing no human enemies (in alliance with those of heat, thirst and sandstorms) to render it almost impossible.

How long ago it seemed to the over-strained, heat-stricken men, since the detachment of Senegalese infantry arrived at the post and took over charge; how long since their own bugles blew the assembly.

As usual, it was the aged and alcoholic Tani de Soif who could find breath for song and conversation.

"Do you know what we are?" he asked, as the column halted and flung itself down for its ten minutes' rest, at the sound of Major Riccoli's whistle.

Sailor Harris' reply is better unrecorded.

"Speak for yourself," rebuked Tani de Soif. "I will tell you what we are—as distinguished from yourself. We are sheep. S heep. I say—and I don't like it."

"We are being absolutely shepherded along. There are at least four scouts in touch with us. I don't like it, I say. I have lived in France and desire to go on living in France. I have no wish to die for her. And I when I have to do so, I prefer to die discreetly—and in the newspapers, if you know what I mean—like the heroes of Camaroun."

"Die in the newspapers?" rumbled Pere Poussin. "Personally I'd prefer to die in the canteen."

"Live there, you mean."

"What's this about being shepherded along?" asked Joe Mummy.

tion laws because its people were temperance minded and if they are still temperance minded there need be no fear that they will repeal the law in this state, but, law or no law, there is still need for frequent temperance sermons and temperance teachings in the churches, Sunday schools, public school—and, most important of all, in the homes,

The Senate again yesterday received a bill for abolition of the Corporation Commission favorably reported from the committee. We are wondering whether this time the body will take definite action to abolish the commission or will it continue to play baseball. This measure has been before a committee, reported to the Senate and voted down, reconsidered and voted favorably, then on third reading instead of being voted at all was re-referred to committee. Now it is back again before the Senate. If other important legislation is to be handled in a similar manner we are thinking that the legislators will have to send home for their Palm Beach suits before the session is completed.

NEED TO TEACH TEMPERANCE

The ministers of our city and county on tomorrow will launch a drive against the repeal of "prohibition," and while we do not wish to criticize these efforts, we do say that we believe that they have chosen the wrong word for the title of their messages. Prohibition, of course, at the time of its adoption, was believed to be a great aid to the temperance movement and we still believe that it is an aid to this great cause but we are frank to say that after years of preaching against intemperance, which resulted in the adoption of the prohibition laws, the ministers throughout the land apparently felt that their battle against liquor was won, and then left it up to the law to stop the people from drinking. We say this, not with any view to discrediting the efforts of any preacher in his great work, but as a constructive criticism in urging them to join together in an unceasing fight against intemperance whether or not the prohibition laws are repealed. The people of this state 25 years ago voted for prohibition by an overwhelming majority because they had been told and knew that liquor meant evil rather than good for any community, but during these years since prohibition we have heard but very few real "temperance" sermons.

During these 25 years there have come into being many children and other children have grown into manhood and womanhood without being taught the real value of temperance. So long as this condition exists we will continue to have liquor drinkers, liquor buyers and bootleggers. North Carolina voted the prohibi-mountain pass; terrible because of the incredible heat, lack of water and looseness of the soft and shifting sand.

And one morning, a day or two later, the red tired eyes of the weary marchers were gladdened by the sight, upon the far horizon, of the minarets and domes of the city of Mekazzen, rising from a sea of palms that appeared in the shimmering light to flow about the base of the mighty cliff of rkok, on the summit of which was perched the great citadel of Mekazzen, impregnable, inviolate, virgin even to that day.

The Legion finds an amazing situation, Monday, in Mekazzen.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York—(AP)—One of the arm of vice-presidents of a radio company called a certain singer to three separate auditions for the same program.

The gentleman didn't show up in the studio for the try-outs, but the singer thought nothing of that—just went on warbling away in her most impressive fashion. It's the custom of some of the vice-presidents to sit in their offices and have studio auditions "pumped in" over the intrastate broadcasting hook-up.

But the V. P.'s secretary telephoned the singer for the fourth time:

"Mr. _____ wants you to have an audition for the _____ program."

"I know," explained the case-hardened secretary, "but Mr. _____ forgot to stay in his office."

Black-Eyed Pea Fiends

Chic York, one of vaudeville's nobility, came from Walnut Springs in Bosque County, Texas, and brought with him a passion for black-eyed peas. In nearly a quarter-century of married life, Mrs. York (Rose King) has become expert in preparing them, and the black-eyed peas served at Chic's home in a swanky Long Island section are famous among Southerners in show business.

Sometimes in the winter the Yorks take an apartment in town, and then, when they are going to have the dish, it means open house to any number of black-eyed pea fiends on Broadway. Chic drops the word at the Lambs' Club, or somewhere along the street, and the tidings spread far and wide.

Black-eyed peas are seldom, if ever, seen on restaurant menus here, nor do many people serve them in their homes. Not many even know what they are, and very few vegetable stands sell them.

You have no idea what excitement a simple dish of black-eyed peas can kick up along Broadway.

Gotham Glimpses

One of the bigger hotels is waking its guests at 8 o'clock with a harp reveille over the radio.

Eight is the hour when most of the guests want to be roused. They are advised not to turn off the room radios, which are silenced from a central control at midnight. Kay Cody, harpist, is at her post in the hotel broadcasting station every morning, and on the hour begins to strum a soothing tune. Waiters, elevator boys and all the other employees report that the system is resulting in cheerier "good mornings."

The Kimbell Sisters, clever harmony singers, with "Campus Cut-Up" stage attraction at the State Thursday-Friday. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in "Parachute Jumper" is the screen feature!

A Fifth Avenue jewelry house has on display an assortment of glittering yellow coins among gold trinkets. The coins are piled in corkscrew stacks, and window spotlights play upon what looks to be a fortune from some pirate's chest. But only the top coins are genuine gold, which may or may not be an economic note.

Taxi drivers are going in for odd jobs while their cabs stand idle on the corners.

One Turtle Bay matron wanted some curtains hung. She went to the door and hailed a cabman. He did the job for her and didn't seem to mind it at all when she found all the change she had was a half dollar.

New York—(AP)—It's not difficult to understand why New York might seem cramped, forbidding and altogether unfriendly to children of the spacious West.

A year or so ago a friend from a Western State came here to take a good job with a big firm. He brought on his wife and their young son, who had had what amounted to the "keys of the town" back yonder. That's why the keys of little Gramercy Park frightened him no end, I suppose.

You must have heard about Gramercy Park, rather downtown on the East Side. It is fenced in, and the gates are locked to all except those who live in the fine old residences or fairly exclusive apartments around the square.

The Western trio set themselves up in an apartment on the square. The parents thought it would be "so nice" for their pet to have the park to play in.

When the time came for him to take his romp, a flunkey from the apartment house, bearing the one key assigned for the use of all the tenants of that house, accompanied him. The flunkey unlocked the big gate, the bewildered child went inside and the gate clanged to.

There he was, imprisoned with a lot of strange people, behind that tall iron fence!

The lad immediately set himself down and raised such a wall to the high heavens that a policeman escorted him home.

After that his mother went with him to the park. But still the eight-year-old Westerner raised a great outcry—thinking, in his befuddled, childish mind, that his mother—as well as himself, was being imprisoned.

The youngster couldn't get over his fear. He cringed and whined at the strangeness of the city, wherever else his parents took him. The result of it all was that the mother had to take him back home, where

In practice, that omen has proved itself true and again. Off-hand I recall the weary meanderings, from studio to studio, of the stories that resulted, when finally purchased, in the sensational "Public Enemy" and "A Doorway to Hell"—stories that nobody could see, except the one studio that cleaned up a fortune on them.

Remember "Lightnin'?"

But Director Bacon's faith in his theory is rooted closer home. Everybody recalls the sensational run of the distinguished Frank Bacon, Liody's father, in "Lightnin'"—three years and a day in New York and two years in Chicago.

"For eight years," recalled Lloyd, "my father carried it around, and nobody could see it. Every so often father would rewrite a scene, and we at home would hear it all again and again, until even we got sick of hearing it."

"Producers all told him nobody would be interested in a romance of old people, and that was that. It finally was produced because Smith and Golden needed a production to follow 'Turn to the Right,' and there wasn't any other available.

"You know what happened. After the opening night the speculators bought up tickets for 25 weeks, assuring its success."

Old Story Dressed Up

Director Bacon recently completed directing "Forty-Second Street," elaborate musical drama which he admits will depend for its appeal on its "manner of approach" to one of the oldest stories ever.

"We just can't predict what will go over and what won't," says Bacon.

Hollywood, (AP)—It looks now as if Jessie Ralph's "rampole" will develop happily for her.

Jessie Ralph is a middle-aged character comedienne, well known on the stage, whose previous picture experience was limited to one benefit performance in a silent film during the war. She was made an offer of four weeks in Hollywood when she already had an engagement with the Theater Guild for "The Good Earth."

"I knew the woods were full of good character women, many of whom are my friends, like Louise Closser Hale, Aliso Skipworth and May Rogson, and I didn't see how there could be room for one more," she says. "But I came—just on the chance."

She played her original role in "Child of Manhattan" and drew so many cheers at the preview that Columbia signed her on contract. A buxom, broad-gandy type, she is due to be substituted with "Madam La Galup" her probable next assignment.

From a long career on the stage she brings varied reminiscences to Hollywood, including rapturous accounts of the beauty of Lillian Russell, the idol of another day.

"There has never been another to equal her beauty," she maintains.

Straws break the domestic camel's back in Hollywood, too.

There was the screen writer who after a little tiff at home went to live at a hotel to let the air clear. Sometime later he learned to his astonishment that his library was on sale at a second-hand store.

Investigating, he found his wife had disposed of certain treasured books of his. Divorce, instead of the intended brief separation, followed.

Allen Jenkins, the gangster Lee Tracey buffaloes so effectively in "Blessed Event," was like many unother Broadway actor who came to Hollywood sea-minded, with no more experience on the rolling waves than Allen's—having been on a run rummer worked by rollers on a stage.

One yachting cruise with James Cagney almost changed both their minds about the charms of marine life. Still the two are plotting to acquire a boat of their own.

'HILE'S WORKERS OBJECT TO HIGH LIVING BY IDLE
Antofagasta, Chile — (AP) — So acute is unemployment in the northern provinces, that it is estimated that three-fourths of the population of this city lives off the government.

Correspondents of Santiago newspapers found, however, that virtually none of the unemployed would accept jobs and that some ill-feeling was present among employed workers who felt the "cessantes" or idlers, were living better than they who earned their keep.

Robot Phone Girl Tells London "Line's Busy"
London — (AP) — A robot telephone girl is being tried here as a replacement for expatriating buzzers.

Sound film is used to say sweetly "number engaged" or "number unobtainable." The British equivalents of "line's busy" or "they don't answer."

The device is operated by a photo electric cell and switches automatically to the two words appropriate for each case.

Fell Australian Counterfeiters.
Canberra — (AP) — Ernest C. Biddle, governor of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, announced that his experts after two years effort, have evolved a fraud-proof bank-note. The bills will be placed in circulation this year but whatever cunning is in their manufacture will be kept secret.

Lion Chews Up "Store Teeth"
Chateauroux, France — (AP) — Prince, a big lion in the local zoo, has no use for "store teeth." He broke three of his own and a dentist fitted him with gold crowns but Prince promptly chewed them up.

Danes Cut Bible Pages Into Cigarette Papers
Copenhagen — (AP) — English Bibles are best sellers here because Danes are cutting up the thin leaved editions to use for cigarette papers. They get four to a page.

No irreverence is intended, investigators report.

The Danish government helps the "hullor made" cigarette industry by levying a tax of 50 cents on each package of 100 cigarette papers.

This makes "rollings" so costly that a Bible printed on India paper is cheaper, even when imported from England.

Greek Memorial For American Athens — (AP) — Stephen Deltas, Greek philanthropist, has founded at Athens College an annual prize for student essays in honor of the late Charles P. Howland, a distinguished American lawyer who served with Deltas on the refugees settlement commission.

Brussels — (AP) — A local paper is making a census of surviving war dogs and asks readers to supply stories of canine heroism. A monument is planned to commemorate their deeds.
