CONCERN OVER CONDITION OF MAYOR CERMAK

Development of Pneumonia Lessens Physicians Hope For His Recovery

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Physicians became deeply concerned today over the condition of Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, who was wounded by an assassin's bullet, because of pneumonic condition in the right lung. Mayor Cermak was shot February 15 when Giuseppe Zangara fired wildly into a crowd gathered to welcome President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, at Bay Front Park here, in an attempt upon the life of Mr. Roosevelt.

Dr. Karl Meyer, Chicago specialist and one of the five doctors attending the mayor, said the hope of his physicians for recovery had been lessened by the appearance of pneumonic signs.

Provide Garden Seed For Needy

Raleigh, Feb. 27.—Contracts for 125,000 packages of garden seeds for use in planting gardens for destitute families were awarded last week by the State Department of Purchase and Contract. These seeds will be paid for by the governor's office of relief and in turn will be made available for these destitute families who have agreed to plant gardens so as to become self-supporting. The details of working out the plan are in charge of the county farm agents and the relief directors in the various counties.

Every possible assistance is being offered by the governor's office of relief in carrying out the program which is designed to enable destitute families to produce all the food they consume. A planting calendar setting forth in detail the dates for planting gardens, the amount to be planted, and instructions for cultivating have already been broadcast through the state.

The State College extension service has also published for widespread distribution a guide to community farm budgeting, a pamphlet which will be of material assistance to relief directors in starting community farms which will provide foodstuffs for those destitute families who do not live on farms.

Says School Principals Do Double Duty

Raleigh, Feb. 27.—All of the figures set up in the budget for high school principals are not changeable directly to supervision, figures compiled by the State Department of Education show. This is true because the 1931 session of the legislature made principals carry a full teaching load in every school in which there were not more than 25 teachers. Prior to that time the high school principal had devoted more of his time to supervision, but the action of the 1931 session of the legislature in putting the principal to teaching eliminated several hundred teachers, and thereby saved the taxpayers the money that would have been necessary for the payment of salaries of these teachers in the high schools.

Less than 40 principals in the state are paid by the state for work of supervision as such. These include all of the larger cities and many of the middle group of cities that do not have as many as 50 teachers in the system. All of the others which number more than 700, are paid a part of their salaries as teachers and the remainder of it for being principal of the schools in which they teach.

On this basis it is estimated from the statistics in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction that at least half of the $600,000 budgeted for high school principals is chargeable to teaching service. If there were no high school principal in the school at all $400,000 and $500,000 would have to be spent for teachers to take their places. In addition to the work of teaching, which the law requires the principal of small schools to do, so far as state pay is concerned, the principal has to do some work in supervision, has to keep the records of his school, has to look after attendance, work with his teachers, look after the maintenance of the school plant and after its operation, which includes supervision of the janitorial work, other duties and perform many other duties that fall on his shoulders as head of the school.

FOURTEEN N. Y. U. HOOPERS FORMER SCHOOL CAPTAINS

New York.—(AP)—A checkup of the New York University basketball squad revealed that 14 out of 14 players were former high school captains.

The material is so favorable that two New York City championship leaders are sitting on the bench. They are Dave Sanders, captain of Monroe High which won the Gotham title in 1929, and Aaron Liebowitz, who led Lane High's winning team in 1930.

The captain of the Violet Five is Samuel Potter, who led New Utrecht as captain when that team was runner-up for the city title in 1928.

LUMBER CO. WINS VERDICT

Given Judgment For $1,081; Judge Hands Down Decision in Size Case

The Northside Lumber Company was awarded a verdict in its suit against Mrs. Loula Fleming in civil court here late Saturday afternoon after hearing of the case had required nearly two days. The suit was a result of a contract between the lumber company and Mrs. Fleming in which the company was to repair and remodel a house belonging to Mrs. Fleming. The company was suing for payment of $1,150 for its contract plus an additional amount for extra work outside of that agreed upon while Mrs. Fleming set up a counterclaim of approximately $2000 against the company for failure to carry out the work as per its contract and for long delay in completion of the job causing her considerable rents during that time. The jury returned a verdict for $1,231 in favor of the plaintiff less $150 damages allowed Mrs. Fleming, making net judgment for $1,081.

Prior to leaving the city Saturday, Judge J. Paul Frizzelle handed down a decision in the Siz vs. Siz hearing held earlier in the week in which he ordered the payment of $15 per month by William Siz to Mrs. Ada Siz for a period from last December until the divorce hearing comes up at the March term of court. In the meantime, according to the judge's order, the custody of a small child will remain as present with the father.

Fishes For Fish Catches Small Duck

Some folks duck hunt and others fish, and there is nothing unusual in either, but when a man goes fishing and catches a duck with hook and line, then that is something else.

That's a feat that Pinky Whitehurst accomplished Friday while he and Seth Hooker were fishing in Tranter's Creek.

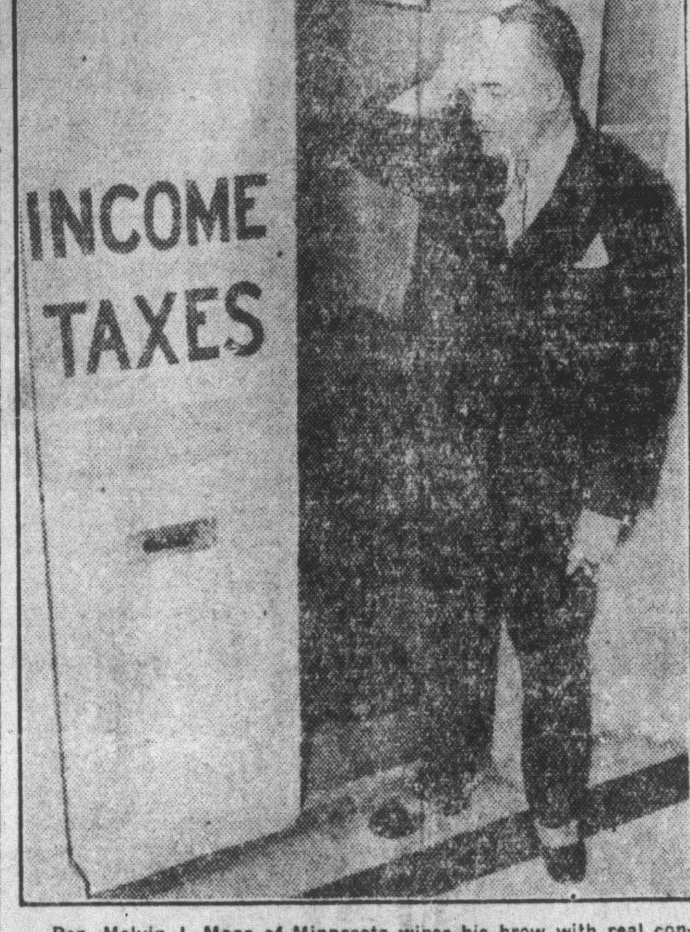

According to the story, something hit Pinky's line and away went his cork. He set to it, believing that he had a grand fish and began the process of playing it until he could get it to his boat. As the would-be fish reached the surface, instead of being a fish, it soared into the air at the end of fishing line, and to the amazement of the fishermen they learned that they had caught a small duck known in this section as a Blue Peter or dyddiper. Pinky, despite his amazement, held on to the fishing pole and in a few moments had hauled in his catch.

The strange catch was explained by those familiar with the habits of these small water fowl as due to the fact that these ducks have a habit of diving long distances under the water in search of food and this one no doubt decided that the shrimp bait with which Pinky was trying to catch fish was a choice morsel and gulped it down, hook and all.

Gives Facts As To Aid For Disabled Veterans

By J. M. CALDWELL (State Adjutant American Legion) Salisbury, Feb. 27.—The United States mobilized approximately 4,500,000 men in the World War. There were 202,614 men wounded among the American divisions sent to Europe in the World War, besides 52,942 battle deaths and those who died of wounds.

Since the war, and during the war, combined, the government expended about $5,500,000,000 on veterans and dependent widows and children of veterans. In the $5,500,000,000 the government charges up to the veterans is included more than a billion dollars insurance benefits which the veterans paid for themselves.

Four million of those 4,500,000 men who were mobilized for service have never received a penny from the government, since discharge, except their adjusted compensation (army pay) benefits.

Out of every 18 veterans, one is drawing an average compensation of $44 a month. Another of the 18, not able to prove service connection, is drawing an average disability allowance of $13 a month for disability of from 60 to 74 per cent. Recent legislation will cut this latter figure considerably.

The government records show that as pointed out to the joint congressional committee by Watson B. Miller, chairman of the National Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion, that were 4,700,000 hospital admittances between April 1, 1917 and December 31, 1919. As Mr. Miller said "There were 2,000,000 of these hospital admittances which were for infectious diseases; just under 1,000,000 for influenza; perhaps another 250,000 for infectious respiratory diseases of the upper air tract and non-tuberculous lesions of the chest."

"Now is it not reasonable to suppose that the seed of permanent disability was implanted in many of these men? This act (and he was referring to the disability allowance provisions of the World War Veterans' Act) was set up primarily, I am sure, for the purpose of awarding money compensation relatively sufficient to compensate for a loss of earning power. Remember there are only 328,000 men out of nearly 5,000,000 that went through a bloody war, on the compensation rolls, at the present time."

URGE HOOVER APPROVES SMITH COTTON PLAN

Senators From Cotton Manufacturing States Pay Visit to President

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Three Republican Senators representing cotton manufacturing centers today urged President Hoover's support of the cotton plan as set forth in the bill of Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina. Hubert and Metcalf, of Rhode Island, and Walcott, of Connecticut, called upon the President today and urged him to approve the measure.

The measure is designed to reduce cotton acreage 30 per cent and give farmers options on an equal amount to that they would have grown had they not reduced their acreage.

FOUR INJURED IN COLLISION

One Woman and Three Men Hurt in Smashup on Bethel Road Last Night

Four persons were injured, two of them seriously, when automobiles driven by Ben Sheppard of this city and Willard Whitehurst, of Bethel, collided on the Bethel highway about 10:30 o'clock last night. Both cars were badly damaged.

She was rushed to Pitt Community Hospital here for first aid treatment, later returning to her home. Several stitches were necessary.

The other injured included Willard Whitehurst, Bethel, injured knee-cap; Alva Whitley, occupant of the Whitehurst car, several lacerations and bruises on the body and lower limbs. Sheppard was reported to have received only minor injuries.

Perkins Succeeds Mitchell As Head Bank Directors

The board elected James H. Perkins, president of the City Bank and Farmers Trust Company, a National City affiliate, as chairman to succeed Mitchell.

A drama of high finance unfolds as the aftermath of Mitchell's resignation of his post made him one of the world's Titans of Money. Mitchell, even as his letter of resignation was made public here last night, was en route to Washington to appear again today as a witness before the Senate Banking Committee.

TWO NEW BANKS FOR DETROIT

Ford to Back Banks; Ohio Banks Place Restrictions on Withdrawals

(By The Associated Press) Out of the bank holiday in Michigan comes today the nucleus of two new Detroit banks, backed by the millions of Henry Ford.

In Ohio twenty banks in three cities, Cleveland, Dayton and Akron, clamped down on withdrawals in anticipation of emergency banking laws by the legislature to relieve the situation aggravated, according to Ohio bankers by the emergency in Michigan.

Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, where a bank holiday was declared pending action of the Legislature to protect the interests of the banks and the public sought the advice of "representative citizens" concerning legislation to be enacted.

Indianapolis banks opened today with withdrawals restricted to 5 per cent of the customer's deposits. The restriction is until further notice, and was invoked, a statement of the clearing house explained, because of unusual withdrawals for other than usual purposes and business needs.

The new Detroit banks whose capital will be $250,000 furnished by Henry Ford and his son Edsel Ford, are expected to open for business Wednesday. They will be built from the liquid assets of the Ford National and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce whose depositors will be able to receive immediately about 30 per cent of their deposits.

JAPS CONTINUE IN THEIR DRIVE AGAINST CHINA

Hope to Occupy Capital of Jehol Province By March 10 or Earlier

(By The Associated Press) Encouraged by the success of its campaign so far, Japanese officers at Chinchow, Manchuria, hoped to occupy Jehol City, capital of the Chinese province of that name, by March 10. This is the anniversary date of the battle of Mukden, in the Russo-Japanese War.

Japanese and Manchoukuo combined forces continued to drive deeper into Jehol territory with the campaign aimed at four objectives. They are Lingyan, Chihfeng, Wungkungfu and the region near Fuling, all within one hundred miles or less of Jehol City.

The advance forces met the strongest resistance at Shamsoban, one hundred miles east of the capital and fifteen miles inside the border of the province where the Fourth Infantry Brigade under Major-General Heijiro Hatori was advancing.

Hull Appointment Puts Economist In State Department

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—If there is any one characteristic of the next Secretary of State that stands out above all others it is his earnestness, his studiousness. More than anything else Cordell Hull appears a student. And his favorite study is economics.

Economics challenges his attention just as much today as it did more than twenty-five years ago when he first devoted unflinching zeal to attempting solution of economic problems. His name is synonymous with statistics—at least, to his colleagues on Capitol Hill, who long have recognized his genius in making dry figures palatable and enlightening.

Democratic party chieftains for a long time have regarded themselves as fortunate in having a man of Hull's ability to spread their economic doctrines.

Economics His World He is credited with being one of the nation's soundest economists. He is author of the Federal income tax law and the estate tax. The tall, serious-minded, scholarly Hull is modest and tolerant and almost unbelievably industrious. To these natural qualities it has been his lot to add a diversified experience.

He is a Democrat of the old school. Reared in an atmosphere of Democracy that in later years has suffered only by the Harding landslide of 1920, which swept him from his seat in the House of Representatives, he has been conspicuous in constructive services to his party since the time, shortly after obtaining his law degree, he went to the Tennessee State Legislature.

As Secretary of State Hull will find himself confronted with just the sort of problems he seems to enjoy the most. He likes to talk about tariffs, economic readjustment—anything that touches that field. Give him these as issues to be met and he is at home. He may stand, as he has so often done in the past, in the door of the Democratic cloakroom of the Senate, cigar alight, to listen to oratory on other matters, but discussion of his pet subjects brings him up in the front rows, an intent, eager auditor.

Both Work and Hobby He is constantly brushing up on the subject of economics. He seems to have no other hobby. He doesn't golf, nor does he shoot or fish or indulge in any of the usual form of recreations. Joe Byrnes, of Tennessee, probably his closest friend in Congress, says he gets his recreation in thinking, in deep thinking. Others supply the fact that he does his best thinking while shaving.

165 POUND HEAVYWEIGHT LEADS HAWKEYE GRAPPLERS Iowa City, Iowa.—(AP)—Pat Richter has again drawn the nomination to be the "little giant" of the University of Iowa wrestling squad. Weighing but 165, Richter has been delegated the Hawkeye's heavy-weight representative. In 1931 in the same sort of "spot" against a Nebraska who outweighed him 60 pounds, Richter won his match and with his clinched the meet for the Hawks.

Pass Appropriation Bill. Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—In an effort to dispose of its accumulated unfinished business before March 4, Congress today busied itself with numerous reports made by conference committees seeking to adjust Senate and House differences on legislation.

While the House acted on such measures the Senate took up the Hull mortgage moratorium bill and laid the bill aside when strong opposition indicated that it could not pass.

The WORLD OF STAMPS

By QUEENVA JAMES

Past rather than present glories are reflected in the new stamp issue for Trans-Jordan. Most of the thirty-seven values have an archeological theme—the pictures recalling Graeco-Roman civilization in what is now a British mandate.

The ruined temple of Artemis at Jerash, formerly Gerasa, is pictured on the 5 and the 100-milleme denominations. The nymphomaniac in the same town appears on the 2m.

On the 10m and 20m is shown a castle at Ajlun, probably one built by the Crusaders. El Khazneh, "the treasure house of the Pharaohs," in Petra, sometimes called "the city of ruins," is pictured on the 15m and the 500m. The 4m shows a castle at Kerak, stronghold of the Saracens.

Modern times are reflected on three of the values, the 20m showing the Allenby bridge across the Jordan; the 50m, a grazing scene; and the 1-pound, Emir Abdullah. The 1m, labeled "Mushetta," shows a group of what might be either ruins of some sort of huts, and the 2m and 90m, labeled "Kasr Kharrana," presents what appears to be a Saracen castle.

Supply Your Own
The new Nicaraguan stamps issued to commemorate the inauguration of the Rivas Railway, have a double interest for the layman—they have no gum, and they are almost as large, 2 1/2 inches by 1 3/4 inches, as coin envelopes.

They show scenes along the new railroad. Values are 1, 2, 5, 10 and 15 centavos for regular postage; 15, 20, 25, 50 and 100 centavos for airmail.

Four For a Fortune
The romance of rare stamps hit a new high the past week when Emil Bruechig, New York dealer, announced he had sold a block of four of the 24-cent 1918 United States airmail price paid for a philatelic item in recent years.

Because of the tales and the prices connected with these stamps they have become almost legendary.

A dealer, buying several sheets of the first official United States airmail issue the day they came out, May 13, 1918, noticed that one of the sheets contained the airplane printed upside down. His 100 were the only ones that got into circulation.

He sold them for $15,000, and they found their way into the hands of C. E. F. Green, Rumors that Colonel Green's collection went down with his yacht cancelled the value of those he had sold in spite of the fact that the reports were proved false.

A single specimen sold in New York recently for $2,750.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—(AP)—A large sized linking of the camera's possibilities in handling fantastic narrative is revealed in the new thriller "King Kong," previewed finally after nearly two years in production.

Aside from whatever qualities it may be granted as entertainment, the film is of interest as an exposition of the screen's ability to cope with technical difficulties that would make impossible the story's staging in any other visual dramatic medium.

Briefly, it concerns a movie director's expedition to a lost island, where the natives pay human tribute to their king and god, a gigantic ape. The natives capture the actress (Fay Wray) and deliver her to the ape, who grasps her in the hollow of his enormous paw and crashes through a jungle inhabited by prehistoric beasts. These impede the white rescuing party, headed by the director (Robert Armstrong), the hero (Bruce Cabot) and the ship captain (Frank Reicher).

Miss Wray finally is rescued. King Kong is captured and brought back for exhibition on Broadway as the "eighth wonder of the world." He breaks his chains at the first performance, runs amuck on Broadway, tears down an elevated railway track, tramples pedestrians and automobiles, captures Miss Wray again and climbs to the tower of the Empire State building, where at length he is shot down by airplanes.

King Kong, of course, is an animated figure, beside which the human characters appear as midgets. Sound effects, musical score, art settings and photography assist in the colossal job of making the monster convincing as he barges around the screen. Such a story obviously requires, however, that one's sense of realities be checked with one's hat in the lobby.

The human cast all have plenty to do. The better known Miss Wray and Armstrong share honors with the comparative newcomer, Bruce Cabot.

But it is as an exhibition of technical undertakings that "King Kong" is significant.

Why Did You Buy This NEWSPAPER!

SUPPOSING that, beginning tomorrow, all the newspapers are discontinued. What a furore the public would make. "NEWS! NEWS! We must have news or we will be no better off than the ancients." All right, suppose we give them news but cut out advertisements.

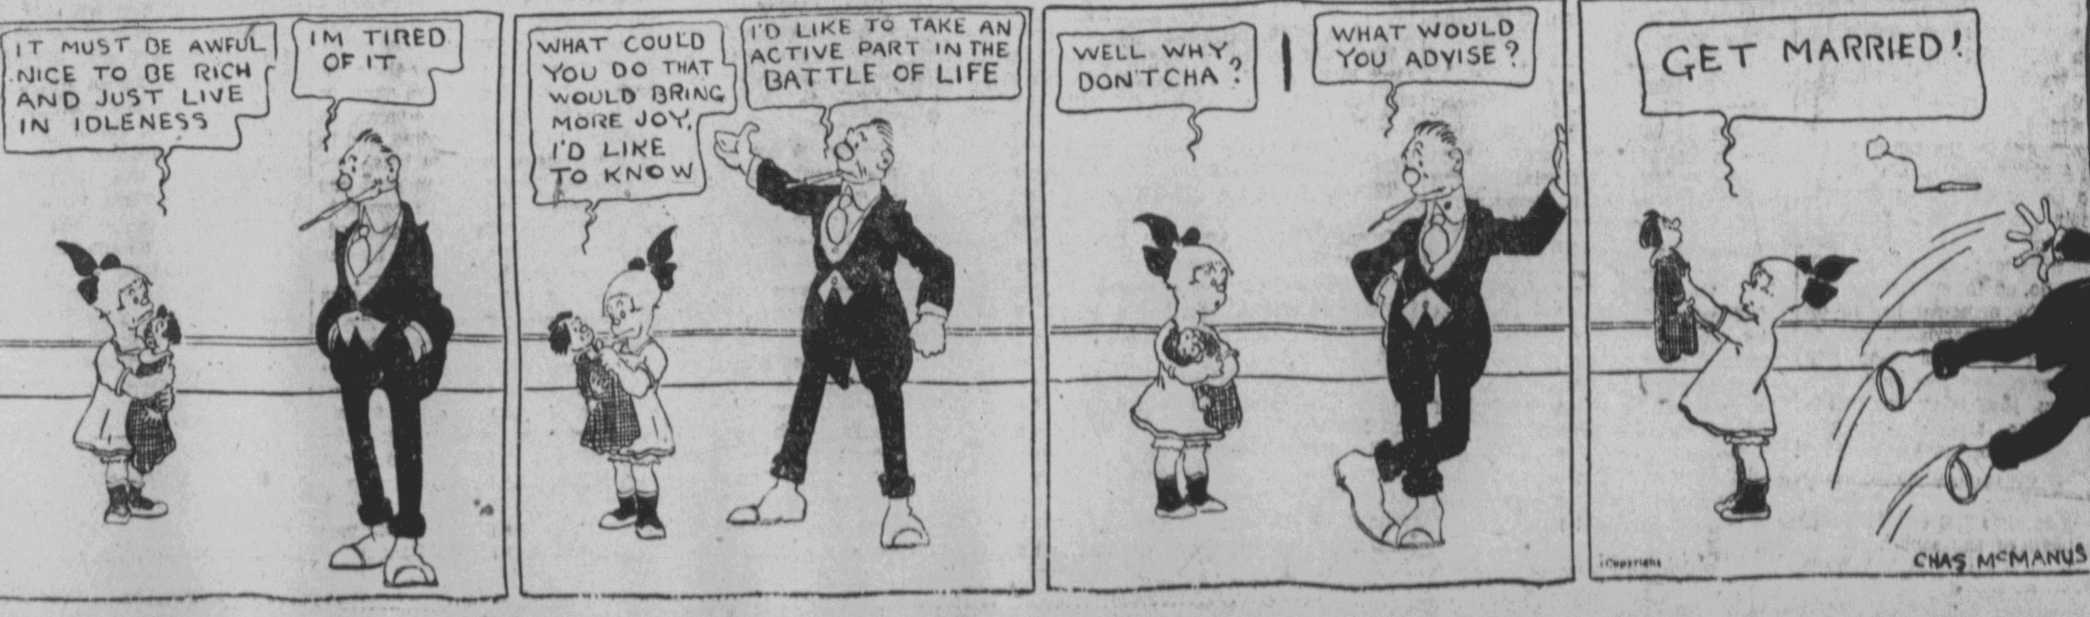

Then you would discover that politics, the doings of society, notices of fires, accidents, deaths, scandals, sports, the activities of the police and criminals add little or nothing to the real comfort and happiness of this greatest age in the world's history.

Advertising is the NEWS of the looms, of all the furnaces, of all the laboratories, of all the shops, of all stores, of all the world, AND ALL WORKING FOR YOU.

Because of advertising, luxuries and necessities that once cost a king's ransom are yours at little prices. Advertising pits merchant against merchant, artisan against artisan, producer against producer, for your benefit, forcing out the best there is in everything and telling the world about it.

Read advertising. Keep abreast of today. Advertising furnishes you with facts and opportunities that otherwise you would never know.

"FAR AWAY PRINCESS" OMITTED BY ACCIDENT. In the report of the faculty plays in Saturday's Reflector a part of the copy was accidentally dropped before it reached this office. As the typed sheet that fell out stopped in the middle of a sentence following the last word of the first play, the result was a kaleidoscopic mixture of the first and last plays. By a strange trick, it made sense enough not to disturb the proof-reader.

The fact that one of the plays was not mentioned in any way, was sufficient proof to those who saw the plays that the omission was an accident.

Below is given the exact wording of what was written Saturday morning and what would have gone into the paper that afternoon.

"In the 'Far-Away Princess,' Miss Cassidy was lovely in the title role, and J. B. Cummings as the refreshing enthusiastic young poet, Strubel, proved himself a fine actor.

The Barrere Little Symphony which will give a concert at East Carolina Teachers College on Friday evening of this week, March 8, at 8:30.

Miss Newell completely lost her individuality and was indeed the excited innkeeper. Frau Lindenmann, Miss Sammon, as the little German maid, Rosa, stepped out of a story-book. Miss Coates, as the haughty Baroness Von Cruke, and Miss Rainwater, as the pushing mother of two very natural daughters, Misses Louise Williams and Hazel Willis, Luddy and Milly, played their parts well. Mr. Flanagan was a good lackey.

"Op-o-Me-Thumb" perhaps furnished the emotional climax of the evening, judging by the way the girls breathlessly followed the affair between Amanda Afflick, the pitiful little romancer no bigger than "Op-o-Me-Thumb" and Horace Green-smith, the object of her dreams, but who was to others a rough, matter-of-fact customer trying to get in shirt out of the laundry."

Call not back the dear departed. Anchored safe where storms are o'er On the border land we left him. Soon to meet and part no more. The parade will start at the Methodist Church and up Evans street to the court house where the winners will be selected and prizes given. Some of the prizes will be on display in the Best Jewelry Co. window beginning today.

In Memory of Bruce Haddock. Just as the hands of the clock were nearing the hour of midnight on Saturday night, February 18, 1933, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Haddock near Vanceboro, N. C. and claimed for its victim their darling son, Bruce.

He was taken sick Saturday morning with acute indigestion and lived only a few hours. His death was an awful shock to his friends and relatives as there were only a few that knew of his illness.

Bruce was loved by all who knew him, and just why he was taken from us is more than we can understand, although it seems that the prettiest flowers that bloom, are the first to fade away. Still we realize that God's will must be done, not ours, and that He knoweth best and doeth all things well.

Bruce was born Oct. 8, 1913. He leaves to mourn his loss a broken-hearted mother, father, three sisters and seven brothers, besides a host of friends and relatives, who loved him dearly.

His precious body was laid to rest in the family burying ground near the home, Sunday afternoon, there to await the resurrection morn. We bidding five clubs to show his ace. Such a bid is not in Huske's repertory. He assumed North had a bid-dable club suit, so he promptly jumped to club suits. North then became alarmed over the result of his ace-showing bid and offered six hearts, the contract.

West led a diamond and North's queen was won East's ace. East was hard dressed for a good lead, but decided on a club to take out re-entry and West's nine forced the ace. On the king of diamonds, South discarded a low spade, then dummy led the ace and a low heart, Huske finessing.

He enabled him to exhaust the enemies' trumps as well as his own. After the last trump was led he put himself in the dummy with the king of spades and led a club. This time he decided the percentage was against a finesse, so up he came with the king in his own hand, the queen fell, and the clubs, with the ace of spades were good for the rest of the tricks.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," said Mrs. Quacko Duck. "Isn't that dreadful? Come, let me see it!" She shook her wings and waddled over to Willy's side as he sat down in a big easy shoe and stocking from the injured foot and I'll rub it for you. Oh! You're all muddy, and so is Jelly Bear!"

Rip told them all that had happened. Mrs. Quacko rubbed Willy's foot for awhile, and then Jelly Bear said:

"I'll give you a rubbing just as soon as I get the mud off my paws. Then I really must go back and have some more sleep. I'm beginning to get very sleepy again. Bears sometimes look around them on a warm day in the winter, but then they go back to their caves again. I'm about ready for mine."

Oh, how the mud came off Jelly Bear, and how thick it was on Willy's shoes and stockings.

But now Willy wouldn't worry. His foot pained and he was so, so tired. Was it any wonder after having his foot caught in a bog?

But on the warm, comforting joy of being black home again!

BACK HOME By Mary Graham Bonner

The Ducks, Top Notch, the Roosters, were all looking out of Willy's front door wondering what had happened to him.

They did not know Willy Nilly had hurt his foot. Nor did they expect to see Jelly Bear. So when they saw Willy Nilly riding on Jelly Bear's back and Rip running alongside they thought they were going

Took CARDUI for Pains, Cramping

"I have taken Cardui for irregular trouble, also for pains and cramping, and it helps me," writes Mrs. Maxie Crumme, of Texas.

"I gave Cardui to my daughters and it helped them very much. They had pains and cramps, and it did them good."

Cardui is given the credit for relieving so many cases of womanly suffering that it is widely and favorably known. Druggists, everywhere, sell it.

If you are weak, run-down, suffering monthly, take Cardui. Take it for a reasonable length of time and try it thoroughly. As your health improves, you will share the enthusiasm of thousands of women who have written to say: "Cardui helped me."

North, vulnerable, opened with a shaded bid of one spade, East mentioned two diamonds and Huske bid three spades. West passed and North offered three no trump. East passed.

Huske, with a singleton, disliked the idea of no trump. He overcalled with four hearts, another shaded bid. West and East kept passing after that.

VALIANT DUST
by Percival Christopher Wren
"SAU GUST" LIFE: Like a lamb among wolves, Margaret Maligni wanders about the Citadel of Mekazzen, watching Jules, her husband, grow more and more like a Moor, and entangle himself deeper and deeper in the unending intrigue of the palace. The Kaid of Mekazzen plots with a German against France; Raisul, the Kaid's son, plots with Major Napoleon Riccoli of the Foreign Legion to take over Riccoli's soldiers and make Riccoli commander of the Kaid's army. Unknown to Margaret, her girlhood sweetheart, Otto Bellemé, is in Riccoli's command.

Chapter 19
RAISUL IN LOVE
Jules!
"Is that you, Jules?" said Margaret, confused, suddenly awakened from sleep by a slight sound in the pitch-dark room—for nowadays she slept as lightly as a mouse or a bird.
"Who's there? Is that you Jules?" repeated Margaret, wondering whether she had been mistaken.
She had retired to rest in the great stone turret-room, leaving Jules smoking with his father, Raisul, the Kaid and the curious man whom Pedro Maligni addressed as Herr Schlaecht—although Jules had told her that he was a German officer, Ober-Lieutenant Vari von Mitten-gen.

There had been cognac, Algerian claret, and assorted French liqueurs on the low table in the tiled garden, and Jules had flatly refused to leave the party when she had suggested retiring.
It seemed, nowadays, that he was carrying his principle of "When in Rome, do as the Romans do," altogether too far, and enlarging it to "When in Rome, make your wife do as the Romans' wives do." But there she had drawn a very fine line. Because she was in Morocco, she was not going to behave as a Moorish woman.
There was someone in the room....
Margaret felt for the box of matches which should be on the stool beside her low uncomfortable bed.
"Would you mind answering, Jules?" she said, with some asper-ity.
"Fraid he can't answer," said a voice, "he's—er—speechless."

"D'you mean he's ill? Have you come for me? What's happened?"
cried Margaret, sitting up. "Where are the matches?"
"No, I wouldn't say he's ill," replied Raisul. "At the moment he's very drunk indeed. Speechless, as I said. As to whether I've come for you.... Well, I've certainly come for a talk with you, my dear. A conclusive one—with no interruptions.
I'm going to finish what I began saying in England, and what you've contrived to prevent my saying, on numerous occasions, here. And finally, as to the matches, I've got them."
"Go out of my room, instantly.
I'll.... I'll...."
"Indeed, my dear, monster,
said the village maiden to the villain," continued the cool and mocking voice. "Or you'll do—what? Just what will you do?"
"My husband will...."
"He won't. Don't you think it my dear. In point of fact, your husband will do exactly as I tell him, for our good Jules knows on which side his bread is buttered. He also knows that some quite funny and amusing things happen in this place.
"Indeed, my dear, monster,
said the village maiden to the villain," continued the cool and mocking voice. "Or you'll do—what? Just what will you do?"

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?
With reference to the power rate situation in this state the Greensboro News quotes some recent statistics regarding the industrial employment situation in this state and asks some pertinent questions as to the whys and wherefores of the power companies.
The News says:

Amidst employment statistics compiled by Prof. J. P. Troxell, of the Duke University economics department, there is a bit of information which is not only enlightening but in addition quite relevant to discussion of existing power rate structures in North Carolina.
Professor Troxell's figures, based on data collected by the United States Bureau of Labor and applying to the state as a whole, show that for Tar Heel industry generally approximately the same number of workers were employed in December, 1932 as in December, 1931, but that factory payrolls declined during the same period, presumably on account of wage reductions, nine per cent. Employment reached its lowest ebb in July, with 14 per cent fewer employes than at the beginning of the year. The graph rose steadily from that time on, however, until in November there were two per cent more workers on North Carolina factory payrolls than in January.

But, with that general situation, there is the revelation that employment declined sharply throughout the year in the public utility group.
It is shown that in December, 1932 employment in this classification was 14 per cent lower and payrolls were 22 per cent lower than in December, 1931.
These figures, coming with an increase in industrial employment which would indicate increased consumption of power, leave any number of questions in their wake. Did the utilities, meaning largely the power companies, slash personnel and payrolls before or after their agreements with the corporation commission? Are the rate concessions which they are supposed to have given the consuming public taken substantially out of society which must, in the final analysis, take care of discharged employes?
Are the reductions below the figures which the commission allowed for operating costs and thus accepted as the basis for rate fixing and fair returns to the companies? Is this the utilities way of increasing or maintaining dividends which the commission held unjustifiable? Or are the power companies up against it as their mourners before government bodies would have the public representatives believe?

Somebody, in all the prodding which is going on at Raleigh, might try to determine just what the figures do mean and then pass that information on to a citizenry which, needless to say, has more than passing interest.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

It is strictly the business of the United States Lawn Tennis Association if it chooses to sustain a policy of not ranking American stars—Helen Wills Moody for example—because of their absence from our national tournaments.

No sensible observer is deceived thereby into thinking that Mrs. Moody is not the world's No. 1 woman player, even though her name may not be found on the American list, but it seems somewhat foolish, almost childishly so, to have the U. S. L. T. A. formally declare that the Californians among others is "not ranked on account of insufficient data."

Why not be frank about it? Why can't the association simply say "unranked nationally because of absence from home tournaments?" At least, then, the record would be clear enough to the average observer, otherwise somewhat confused by an ostrich-like proceeding.

What constitutes sufficient data anyway? All Mrs. Moody did last year to demonstrate her superiority on the courts was to sweep every match in which she played abroad and at home, outside the championship and other Eastern fixtures in which she did not appear.

She won the French tournament, captured her two matches in the successful American defense of the Wightman Cup and romped through the Wimbledon championships, easily disposing of Helen Jacobs in the final. These are not secrets.

United States championship at Forest Hills and is recommended, therefore, for the No. 1 national ranking for 1933.

Neither she nor anyone else has the slightest illusion, however, that she is anything but our No. 2 woman player. She will be in the same position Mrs. Anna Harper occupied two years ago, and for the same reason.

Needs No Baloney All of which may be unimportant, since there is no real argument over the actual position Mrs. Moody holds in world tennis.

She needs no baloney, no defense and hasn't the slightest idea of asking for any. Her record of not having lost so much as a single set over a period of something like five years requires no answer.

She stands alone; yet it will seem a trifle mystifying to the student of the tennis records, say twenty-five or thirty years from now, to find Mrs. Moody undefeated and supreme in every list except her own national ranking compilation.

The California contingent may muster its forces and allies for a battle on this policy, at the annual meeting of the U. S. L. T. A. in February, but I doubt if the policy or the recommendations of the ranking committee will be altered. It might make things a bit complicated, and that would be very disastrous indeed.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY New York.—The books of at least two distinguished Englishmen and a considerable number of others, distinguishable and otherwise: are discernible on the surface of the week's stream of titles. Which is worth remark, for the season is at its height, and many a good book will be buried in the flood.

The Englishmen are George Bernard Shaw, and John Galsworthy; perhaps Mr. Shaw would prefer being called Irish. He has to offer "The Adventures of the Black Girl in Her Search for God," a long title for a very slender book.

The black girl is taught Christianity by a frustrated missionary, who then makes the mistake of giving her pupil a Bible. Fired by her present, the girl goes afield in search of God. She finds several gods, He of thunder, He of revenge, God the Father, Spirit, and the definition that "God is Love."

Mr. Shaw scotches most of the gods) all of whom, as he creates them, bear a quite astonishing resemblance to G. B. Shaw!). In the end the girl settles to cultivate her garden, and then Mr. Shaw steps back into character, and writes a nice little explanatory essay about it all.

Posthumous Galsworthy The first of at least two posthumous Galsworthy publications is "Candelabra," a collection of eighteen addresses and essays covering a number of subjects from the drama to a "Meditation on Finality."

They have the easy flow and early of the author's associates with Galsworthy; later there is to be published a novel which was left complete by the latest winner of the Nobel prize for literature.

Aside from these, there is an embarrassment of riches. There is John Cowper Powys, for one, crying a more or less Wordsworthian philosophy in "A Philosophy of Solitude," offering "the art of creating for ourselves a continuity of secret happiness, in defiance of the world."

There is the erratic and lusty Jan Weal, Czech locksmith and wanderer-extraordinary, who tells (with the help of a pair of brother Czechs) another group of polar incredibilities in "The Quest for Polar Treasure."

Deep South From Louisiana came Pierre Gustav Toutant Beaugard, and from the south also comes his biographer, Hamilton Basso. Mr. Hamilton does not nominate his candidate for Olympus, but he does suggest in "Beaugard, the Great Creole" that history has been a little scaly in its treatment of this elegant man, and gives cogent reasons in excellent prose.

There are likewise three unusually effective light novels, that by Robert Nathan being closest home. "Mr. Nathan's 'One More Spring'" is a delicately ironic tale of an antique dealer, a Jewish violinist, and a woman, depression victims, who spend the winter in Central Park. A lot of genuine wit comes up through the froth.

E. H. Young, she of "Miss Mole," returns with a brightly malicious and penetrating study of a number of stock English characters in "Jenny Wren." And Helen Eliot tells in "She Would and She Wouldn't" of the dilemma of a young German wife in Paris, trembling between husband and lover. It is an adroit and intelligent novel.

Talks To Parents REPORT WAYS By Alice Judson Peale A mother tells with satisfaction of the "party" celebrated at her house on the day of each month when the children bring home their report cards.

On that day she makes it a point to decorate the dinner table in a festive manner and to have the dishes that the children particularly enjoy.

The child who has the best report card is given some special treat. This plan, says the mother, makes her children all eager to bring home good marks and makes a pleasant event of what is in many homes a dreaded day.

Undoubtedly this mother has hit upon her plan in the most kindly spirit and probably is success if it is as successful as she thinks it is due to this kindness more than to the merit of the idea itself. For there is a good deal to be said against making any sort of fuss about report day.

In the first place great emphasis on grades causes the child to feel that marks are more important than the things he learns.

In the second it leaves no room for the recognition of improvement over past records. The "fair" of one child may represent more effort and therefore deserves more recognition than the row of "excellents" brought by another.

But worst of all, report day celebrations encourage intense competition between brothers and sisters and bring about cruel, hurting comparisons. The encouragement that the child who came off best on report day receives is at the expense of the discouragement of those who did not come off so well.

About NEW YORK By WILLIAM GAINES

New York.—Personalities on parade: Local Czechs have made a great fuss over Francis Lederer, Czech-Slovakian matinee idol who caused a flutter on Broadway. They've kept him on the hop with invitations to their parties, benefits and so on—he being willing enough to favor his countrymen.

In his boyhood, George Raft, one of the current movie sensations was a mascot for the New York Yankees. Later on Raft became a professional ball player—but you've probably heard about that.

Margaret Fishback, the professed and Sarah Hardt (Mrs. H. L. Mecklen) were chums at Goucher College.

Jose Iturbi, one of the town's favorite pianists, has all his shoes hand-made in his native Spain.

Few people boast of more friendships among celebrities of the arts, sports and social sciences than Ward Lewis Edward Lawes of Sing Sing. Some of the funnies at the Big House refer to the warden's office as the rouble's gallery—it is so full of autographed pictures of famous folk. (And he didn't meet them all at Ossining.)

Fannie Hurst is always dieting and usually, she admits, she's hungry. But her will power prevails. She has a dread of weighing more than 135 pounds.

Flashy Fisticuffer Max E. Rosenbaum, the flashy pugilist who is known as something of a Broadway play-boy, has one of the fanciest wardrobes in town. He always keeps himself supplied with more than half a hundred suits.

Mrs. Norman Thomas (you'll remember her husband was after your vote in the Presidential campaign) raises cooker spaniels on a commercial scale. Fine spaniels they are, too.

Why do so many well-known lawyers go in for horticulture as a hobby? Another one who gets much of his joy in life out of his flowers is the 6-foot, 4-inch Paul D. Cravath—who also happens to be boss of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and every time anybody mentions Samuel Untermyer's name, we recall his passion for gardening.

Sidney R. Kent, who is cutting such a figure in the movie industry, is a Nebraska.

Most of the bridge experts prefer to put up stakes when they go in for serious play. But not Winfield Liggett, Jr. who is in the game for the love of it, he says.

Blue For Eva Eva Le Gellienne's favorite color for dress and decoration is blue. A pair who did important work in the Roosevelt campaign are preparing a new biography of the President-Elect.

Ethel Barymore Colt's nickname is Chichi.

Russ Colombo, the rumbling radio crooner, dances a mean tango.

The Fred Allen plan is a good one for men who forget the things they are supposed to attend to during the day. The comic prepares a daily schedule on a card, which he carries around in his pocket and refers to often. He says he never forgets the card.

"Oh, yes, and January 31 is Tallulah Bankhead's birthday.

My Beauty Hint

By MAROT GRAHAME (British Screen Actress) A beautiful woman can never lose her best unless she has cultivated poise.

I walk back and forth in my dressing room, taking care to hold up the chin, and placing the feet carefully so that the body weight is thrown forward at the last second of each step.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady one to five points higher on steady Liverpool cables and trade buying. There was little Southern selling, and after opening May advanced from 5.94 to 6.03, making a net advance of five to ten points in the general list. At the end of the first half hour the market was holding fairly steady.

At midday the market showed gains of about six to twelve points on the more active months or within about three to four points of the best.

Futures closed steady. (Courtesy Speight & Co.)

Table with 2 columns: Month, Open, Close, Prev. Cl. Includes rows for Mar., May, July, Oct., Dec., Jan., and Spots.

Stock Market

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Pressure was again lifted from the securities market today and prices were inclined to recover. On quieter trading stocks rallied from fractions to two or more points on a rather jerky market. Traders were inclined to take their cue from the bond market, although there was a little selling they acted much better than on Saturday.

Commodities acted well and although there was some pressure on the dollar in foreign exchange markets it was regarded as relatively unimportant.

Tobacco acted particularly well. Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific advanced around a point. Louisville and Nashville about two points and Delaware and Hudson more than three.

Miscellaneous issues rising a point or two included American Telephone, U. S. Steel preferred, Public Service of N. J., National Biscuit, American Tobacco B and Liggett & Myers B.

General Electric, U. S. Steel common, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Western Union and United Aircraft rose fractionally.

Transactions were approximately 1,100,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

(Continued from Page One) pass at this session. Meanwhile the Senate banking committee inquired into the stock selling activities of the National City Bank of New York and its affiliate, the National City Company.

The House refused to recede in its position in giving President-elect Roosevelt broader powers on reorganizing the government and sent the $960,000,000 treasury-past office appropriations bill to conference in the Senate.
