SENATOR THOS. J. WALSH DIES SUDDENLY TODAY

FOUR MORE STATES JOIN BANKHOLIDAY

Nine States Have Business Holiday, Five Others Restricting Withdrawals

(By The Associated Press) California, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mississippi today joined the states in which limited bank withdrawals existed.

Many Tennessee banks disregarded the governor's proclamation in that state for a six days' holiday beginning yesterday and others that were closed yesterday opened for business today.

Maryland continued its banking holiday today pending proceedings by the legislature to remedy the situation.

Nine states in which holidays exist from gubernatorial proclamations or other authorities are: California, Oklahoma, Michigan, Louisiana, Tennessee and Maryland.

REVEALS HOW TO SAVE HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS

Hertford, March 2.—A plan whereby county will save hundreds of dollars, in the opinion of H. G. Winslow, clerk of Perquimans Superior Court, is advocated by Mr. Winslow in a letter to W. T. Brown, Perquimans County Representative in the General Assembly.

Mr. Winslow's proposal would apply to the selection of jurors from another county to try court cases. He proposes that the judge, solicitor, sheriff, clerk of court, prisoner and defending counsel proceed to the county where the jurors are to be selected and return with the jurors to the original county to conduct the trial.

HALF-ACRE FARM GARDEN WORTH $168 TO FAMILY

Raleigh, N. C.—(AP)—A farm garden, one-half acre in size, is worth exactly $168.33 in cash to a family of six persons and its value probably exceeds this when the better health of the family is considered, says H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist at State College.

"We usually do not think of the cash value of a garden in a system of self-sustaining farming, but records kept for us last year by 75 farm families show this plot of land to be an important asset," Niswonger said.

The average size of the family from which the records were secured was six. The garden plot averaged a half-acre in size and seeds and fertilizers cost $4.77. Returns in fresh vegetables were valued at $168.33 above the cost of seeds and fertilizer.

JAPS MAKING FURTHER GAINS AGAINST CHINA

30,000 Chinese Troops Reported to be in a Disorderly Retreat Westwardly

Tokyo, March 2.—(AP)—A Rengo News Agency dispatch from Lingyuan today said that the vanguard of the Sixteenth Infantry Brigade, commanded by Major General Tadashi Kawahara, had occupied Tanchuan and Tanchuan in Jehol province.

Chinchow, Manchuria, March 2.—(AP)—Whether the Chinese defense of Jehol had already collapsed, or had not yet begun to fight, was the question in the minds of the Japanese commanders today as their war machine checked its headlong advance from the Chihfeng-Lingyuan line with the capital, Jehol City, less than one hundred miles away.

Air scouts reported upward of 30,000 Chinese retreating raggedly westwardly on the Lingyuan-Tanchuan road like a huge snake. Japanese wondered if their morale was too shaken by defeat to permit them to reorganize and fight for Tanchuan and Jehol City, the only two important towns in the province still in their possession.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE IS DUKE TRUSTEE

University Keenly Interested in His Appointment to New Cabinet

Durham, March 2.—Word of the appointment of Daniel C. Roper as secretary of commerce in the Roosevelt cabinet was received here with keen interest owing to his intimate connections with Duke University over a period of many years.

Mr. Roper was graduated in the class of 1888 when Trinity College, around which Duke University was developed, was situated in Randolph county. Classmates recall him as a wizard at figures and organization.

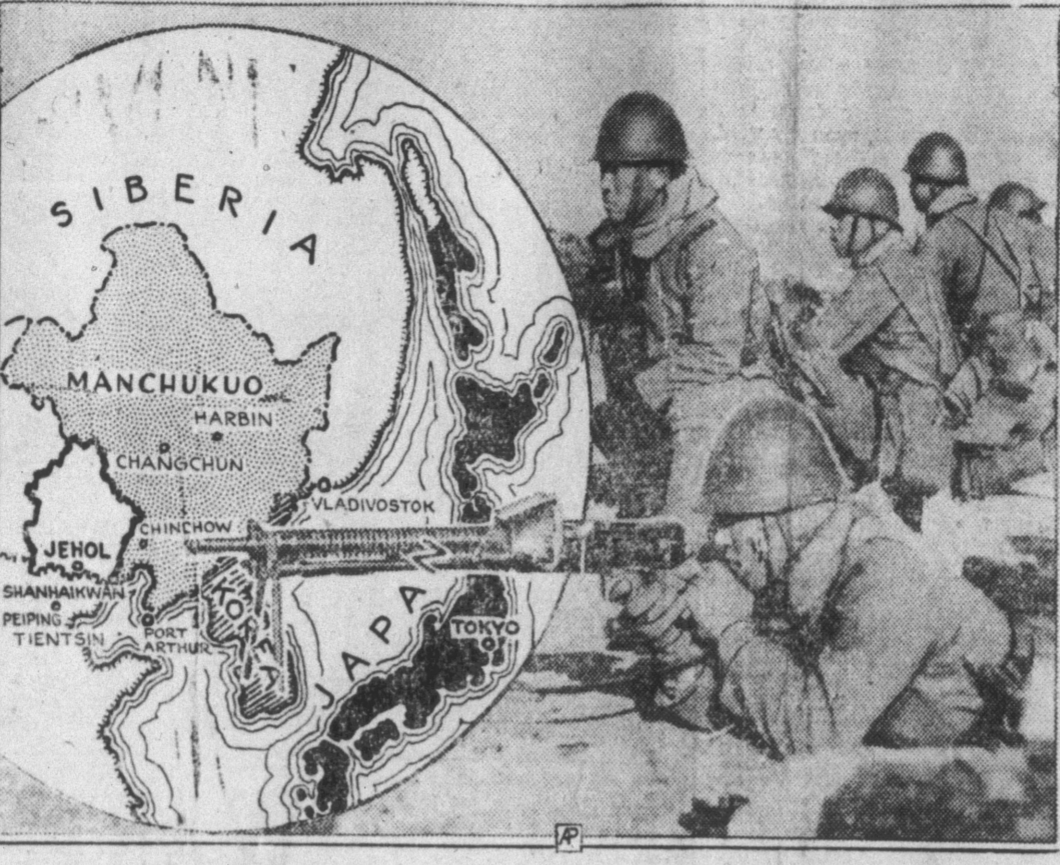

In 1928 Mr. Roper served as president of the General Alumni Association of Duke University. The following year he was elected to membership in the university board of trustees. He has on a number of occasions, spoken to student groups, and last year addressed the student assembly.

Two sons of Mr. Roper are Duke alumni, James H. Roper and Richard Fred Roper, the latter having graduated the year his father was president of the Alumni Association.

Associates of the newly appointed secretary of commerce know him as an executive and organizer, as a man whose long public service career has revealed his comprehensive knowledge of business conditions and understanding of economic legislation as they affect industrial and commercial enterprises.

Mr. Roper has been in demand as a speaker on political and governmental questions. He was frequently connected with federal commissions as special agent or investigator and served private enterprises as government consultant. In 1926 he collaborated with Howard Elliott and George Souls in investigating reclamation projects for the Department of Interior and their report was published. In 1927 he addressed the institute of public affairs at the University of Virginia on the importance of political education and also on agricultural problems. Frequently he has contributed to business journals and political science quarterlies.

WESTWARD AGAIN MOVES JAPAN'S RISING SUN

Japanese forces hurled against Chinese defenders of Jehol province are marching under the same banner of the rising sun which has spread the influence of the island empire, first, into Korea and more recently into Manchuria, there to foster the new state of Manchukuo, the security of which Tokyo says makes vital the addition of Jehol province to its territory.

Up to 1929 when for administrative purposes, China separated it from the former province of Chihli, Jehol was always regarded as a section of Inner Mongolia. Hence the Chinese fiercely resent the Japanese-Manchukuoan claim that the province is integral part of the new state.

Even Japanese maps, the Chinese say, show Jehol as a part of Inner Mongolia or as a portion of the Chinese province of Chihli.

As a productive territory, Jehol is not likely to be a rich prize. It is as large as the state of New York but it is primitive, undeveloped and wild. Some of the country is alkaline desert.

Opium culture is one of the most profitable industries. General Tang Yu-Lin, Chinese governor of the province, said to have amassed several million dollars (silver) thru control of that trade.

For the rest, the chief activities of the nomadic nomads who make up half the population of 5,000,000 are the breeding of sheep and cattle and the raising of millet.

Jehol is said also to contain extensive untapped coal fields. The country is mountainous. There are a few navigable rivers. Roads, where they exist at all, are largely goat and camel trails.

Everything is transported either by cheap human labor or on donkeys and camels. The only automobiles in the territory are owned by the army.

The capital, Jehol City, which the Japanese say they will occupy by March 10, is about 140 miles north-east of Peiping. A high brick wall, six miles in circumference, hides from view the 30-odd crumbling palaces which prior to China's revolution of 1911, formed a part of the summer palace of the Manchu emperors.

Most of the houses of Jehol province are of crude mud construction. In the spring and summer hosts of nomadic Mongols come from the west and north bringing their sheep and other products to sell or to barter for manufactured articles.

The agricultural districts of Jehol are thickly populated but the arid, alkaline lands are almost deserted. The northern part of the province is noted for its fine horses, which are exported to all parts of China and Russia.

For many years the Chinese government encouraged peasants to settle in Jehol, granting them tracts of waste land and helping them with subsidies.

In the days when the Chinese emperors made Jehol City their summer capital, the city was prosperous.

But today, with ruined temples, palaces and pagodas everywhere Jehol City is only a shadow of its former greatness.

ACREAGE CUT REQUIRED FOR CROP LOANS

Announce Regulations Under Which Funds For Farm Operations May be Obtained

Reduction of 30 per cent in the acreage planted to cash crops will be required this year of farmers who procure crop production loans, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde announced today in making public the regulations governing the 1933 loans.

In making available for crop production loans this year, $90,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds, Congress specified that the Secretary of Agriculture might require, as a condition of any loan, "that the borrower agree to reduce his acreage or production program on such basis, not to exceed 30 per cent, as may be determined by the Secretary." The Secretary's regulations, however, stipulate that acreage reduction will not be required of farmers who, in 1933, plant no more than eight acres of cotton; two and one-half acres of tobacco, forty acres of wheat, twenty acres of corn, two and one-half acres of truck crops, twelve acres of sugar beets, eight acres of potatoes, thirty acres of rice, and eight acres of peanuts.

Farmers seeking crop production loans this year are advised to obtain application blanks and copies of the production loans this year are advised to obtain application blanks and copies of the regulations in their home counties, rather than from Washington.

Accompanying the required 30 per cent reduction in acreage planted to cash crops, above the established minimum, the 1933 regulations limit the amount available to any farmer to $300. In 1932, crop production loans were made to 507,632 farmers, averaging $126 each. No loan in excess of $100 will be made to any applicant who is in arrears on as many as two previous loans made by the Secretary of Agriculture. As last year interest is fixed at 5 1/2 per cent, to be deducted when the advance is made. All notes are due October 31, 1933. Advances to borrowers may be made in installments, the regulations state, inasmuch as expenditures for crop production are usually made over a considerable period.

One million dollars of the $90,000,000 funds is available for livestock feed in drought or storm stricken areas.

Charging a fee for the preparation of a borrower's application is expressly forbidden this year in Section 3 of the Act of Congress authorizing the crop production loans. Congress further declared these loan funds "to be impressed with a trust to accomplish the purposes provided for by this resolution—and it shall

Suffered Heart Attack On Train Near Wilson Enroute To Washington

DIED TODAY WAS MEMBER NEW CABINET

THOMAS J. WALSH

Rocky Mount, N. C., March 2.—(AP)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, died suddenly of a heart attack aboard an Atlantic Coast Line train as it neared Wilson today while he was en route to Washington with his bride he married Saturday at Havana.

The Senator, who was named to be Attorney-General in the Cabinet of President-Elect Roosevelt only a few days ago, was stricken and died within a few minutes as he lay face downward on the berth of his drawing-room. He was 74 years old.

Sensor Walsh died at 7:10 a. m. as Conductor Herbert Weathersbee, on the train operating between Florence, S. C., and Rocky Mount, held his pulse. Only the conductor, Mrs. Walsh her Cuban maid and the Pullman car porter were present. Mrs. Walsh was described as hysterical by Conductor Weathersbee who said he reached the Senator's side at 7:02 o'clock.

Senator Walsh died while I held his hand," Weathersbee said. "Mrs. Walsh was hysterical. Dr. Costello was located on the train, but he arrived after the Senator died," he said. The physician Weathersbee referred to was Dr. Richard J. Costello, of Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Walsh, who speaks but little English, told Weathersbee that her husband awakened about 6:20. He was "doubled" in pain, she said, as she found him holding his stomach with both hands. The Senator rose from his berth in the drawing-room, crossed over to his wife's berth and then collapsed face downward. Mrs. Walsh said that the negro porter was called and he immediately raced seven cars away to find Weathersbee and told him the Senator apparently was dying. Weathersbee said he reached the Senator's side in a few minutes, felt his pulse and death came while he held his hand.

Dr. Costello reached the drawing-room at this time, and as the train rolled into Wilson Dr. A. M. Pittman was called to attend Mrs. Walsh, who was in a highly nervous state.

Dr. Pittman quoted Mrs. Walsh as saying that the Senator was ill when they left Daytona Beach, Florida, his blood pressure showing 200. He said Mrs. Walsh said her husband's trouble seemed not to be his heart but his stomach. Mrs. Walsh speaks very little English, and when I asked her if the trouble was with the Senator's heart, she shook her head and placed her hands on her stomach. She said it was his stomach that made him ill," Dr. Pittman said. Dr. Pittman said there was no way of determining the immediate cause of the death, but it was his opinion that it was a sudden attack of the heart. He said only a few of the train officials and Mrs. Walsh and her maid were present at the drawing-room when he boarded the train at Wilson after being called from a hospital there.

Dr. Pittman said he was uncertain whether he would continue on with Mrs. Walsh to Washington, and that while she had not said so, he expected she would board the same train that takes her husband's body to the national capital later today.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(AP)—Shock and surprise was the reaction of the national capital today at word of the death of Senator Thos. J. Walsh, of Montana, in the midst of preparations for a brilliant inauguration that was to have brought him into the attorneyship. The Senate adopted resolutions of regret and adjourned out of respect for the deceased Senator.

It is the expectation of informed politicians that these men will have only partial say about appointments in their States, and that no one will be named in any case who does not have the backing of the State leaders involved.

The Pot Simmers Many believe that one other basic attribute of the Roosevelt patronage policy will be a notable lack of haste in making new appointments of such local officials as district attorneys and marshals, customs and revenue collectors, and postmasters.

Patronage is about the most powerful weapon in the hands of any (Continued on Page Four)

URGE PARENTS TO CO-OPERATE

Health Officer Says Cases of Contagious Disease Must Be Reported

Dr. R. S. McGeachy this morning urged parents in various sections of the county to co-operate in reporting contagious diseases in order that precautions can be taken by health authorities to prevent the spread of these diseases.

He called attention to the prevalence of measles in the Griffon school district and whooping cough in the Bell Arthur section. Dr. McGeachy stated that in many cases throughout the county parents had been lax in reporting contagious diseases among children, and he called attention to the fact that the new law requires that such be reported, and be asked everyone's co-operation so that there would be no legal steps taken for failure to report. The penalty to fail to report contagious diseases is $50 fine or not more than thirty days in jail or both, in the discretion of the court.

Missing Broker Returns Home

Denver, Colo., March 2.—(AP)—After nearly seven days Charles O. Bietcher II, heir to a fortune, returned home safe last night. There were conflicting reports as to whether his family has paid the $60,000 ransom demanded in a note which two men left with the young wife of the 32-year-old wealthy broker when he was kidnaped from the driveway of his home about 11:50 p. m. on February 12.

Richmond, Va., March 2.—(AP)—Riley Mercer, president of the States Marine Corporation, announced today that regular steamship service will be established between Richmond and South Atlantic ports with the first ship sailing from Houston, Texas, March 11, and leaving Richmond on March 23.

On the northbound trip, the announcement said, the steamer will stop at Galveston, Tampa, Jacksonville, Savannah, Charleston and Wilmington. On the return trip stops will be made only at Jacksonville and Galveston.

Jap Thrust At Jehol Has a Strategic Aim

By JAMES A. MILLS Chinchow, Manchuria — (AP) — Japan is trying to add Jehol province to the new state of Manchukuo because she considers it a strategic point with respect to northern China.

If she wrests this territory from China, it will be an addition to the westward movement of the Japanese upon the Asiatic mainland, a movement which began with the occupation of Korea during the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-5.

The Japanese say there can be no real security or peace in Manchukuo as long as Chinese soldiers occupy Jehol, because it furnishes an excellent base from which the Chinese can harass Japanese and Manchukuoan troops in Manchuria.

Up to 1929 when for administrative purposes, China separated it from the former province of Chihli, Jehol was always regarded as a section of Inner Mongolia. Hence the Chinese fiercely resent the Japanese-Manchukuoan claim that the province is integral part of the new state.

Late News Flashes

Today In The Legislature. Raleigh, March 2.—(AP)—A proposal that North Carolina maintain the city streets used as connecting links in the state highway system was voted down 52 to 41 in the House today as the General Assembly pluggd ahead with its crowded calendar. Although $83,000,000 appropriation bill was completed in committee yesterday the money spending bill for the 1933-1935 biennium was not reported on the floor. The bill materially increases the budget commission's recommendations and is expected to create a fight when it reaches the floor of the House where it will first be considered.

The re-organization of the Agriculture Department was sought in a bill introduced by Representatives Cox, Forsyth, Frommeberg, Gaston, and Makepeace, of Lee, who would place under it all farm experiments and all State extension work.

Despite opposition of physicians and druggists of the State, the House Judiciary Committee voted a favorable report on the Murphy bill to legalize medicinal whiskey in North Carolina. It once had been approved but was re-referred for hearing this morning.

Incorporation of the State Bar Association was passed favorably by the House and sent to the Senate. The bill would give the association power to license and disbar lawyers in the state.

The Senate refused to concur in a House amendment to its bill for consolidation of the State Highway Commission and the State Prison Department. The disagreement was over a proposal by the lower branch of the legislature to allocate $400,000 for the purchase of prison farms.

The Legislature acted wisely yesterday in turning thumbs down on the effort to retain the 15 cents ad valorem school tax. Now if it would get busy to carry out some more promises made the voters while the legislators were seeking election, maybe after all, the taxpayers would get some relief without fear of losing the schools and other needed benefits of an efficient state government.

SENATOR WALSH

News of the death of Senator Thomas J. Walsh today, brought not only a shock to the people of the nation but also the realization of the loss of one of the strongest figures in the new Roosevelt cabinet. Senator Walsh, for years one of the nation's outstanding statesmen, brought over greater attention and credit to his name in his aid in uncovering the naval oil reserve scandals and the prosecution of same. Coming at a time when men of his calibre are sorely needed in the high places of our government, Senator Walsh's sudden death is a great loss to the people of our land, and will leave a vacancy in Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet that will be hard to fill.

THE PROFITABLE POSITION

Supporting the refusal of the United States to follow the lead of Great Britain in declaring an embargo on arms and munitions to China and Japan is the statement that such an act would injure China which the League of Nations and the United States have joined in declaring the defensive party in the present war in the Far East, and help the militant and imperialistic Japan.

Some evidence can be presented to support this view. Japan, it is stated, has munitions factories, while China has few. Therefore, it is contended, China is the nation which needs the arms and munitions which the United States will continue to sell.

There can be no question, however, that Great Britain has taken, if the wrong attitude, at least the unselfish one. By declaring the embargo, England attempted to bring pressure to bear to end the war in the Far East, though the act will cost her sales of the munitions of war.

An idea of the sacrifice that England is making to take the position which that country believes to be righteous can be gained from only a few munitions orders which were placed with Vickers, Ltd., and the Imperial Chemical Industries. On December 6 there was an order for 1,000,000 7.9 millimeter cartridges, and on December 14 another order for the same amount. On December 21 there was an order for 20,000,000 cartridges, and on January 10 one for 15,000,000. Both Japan and China were buying.

From similar orders America and American munitions makers will continue to profit by the American attitude, and may also pick up orders which England refuses to accept.

No one can charge that Britain is moved by selfish considerations, while the United States, despite its protestations, stands to profit in money out of blood. (News and Observer).

VALIANT DUST by Percival Christopher Wren

SYNOPSIS: When Margaret Maligni tells her mother-in-law, El Isa Beth el Ain, that Raisul, son of the Kaid of Mekazen, has entered her room at night the older woman attempts to call the occurrence a joke. But Raisul had first gotten Jules drunk; now Jules is ill, and El Isa Beth el Ain will not allow Margaret to see him. Behind it all is a series of intrigues against France involving Raisul, the Kaid, the Malignis, and Major Napoleon Riccoli of the Foreign Legion, whose post is not far away.

THE SECRET SPRING

"And what would you have done?" asked Margaret in angry bewilderment. "Well, what do you suppose I've done a thousand times in this Castle," returned El Isa Beth el Ain, "with my husband hundreds of miles away, and Zalmub devoting the whole of her time plotting my ruin?" "I don't know."

"I won't leave until I see Jules."

thing. And Jules was a fool to bring you here. "I was a fool to come, but I'm going back at the very earliest possible moment, and I'll take good care I don't return." "You won't take Jules away at the earliest possible moment," replied El Isa Beth el Ain quickly, "and if you are going to live in England—if you ever get there—you will live a widow, for this is Jules' country and his home. His work is here, and henceforth he will live here."

"I'll discuss that with Jules, thank you," replied Margaret coldly. "And while we are here, he will stay with me. After last night, I will not be left alone again." "And I intend to see him now," added Margaret. "He is ill—he is sleeping." "Then I'll wait until he wakes."

"Yes? Where will you wait? Shall Hassan take you back to your room?" "I'll wait here," replied Margaret. "I'm sorry to intrude, but I won't leave this room until I see Jules." "I used to talk like that when I was a girl," smiled El Isa Beth el Ain. "I tell you I insist," cried Margaret angrily, and encouraging hot anger that it might fight chill fear. "I insist on..."

"I used to insist, at first," said El Isa Beth el Ain conversationally, as she rose from her cushions and crossed to the door that had first foiled Margaret. "You were going to say you insist on remaining in this room? Well, I'll leave it."

And, almost without pausing, she opened the door and went out. With a heavy clang and a click, the door closed behind her. Rushing across the room and throwing herself against it, Margaret again found it immovable.

Obviously there was some secret device by which it could be opened or—disturbing thought—someone waited, watched and listened on the other side. Someone not as deaf as Hassan el Miskeen who kept the outer door.

Traversing a tunnel-like corridor, the Lady El Isa Beth el Ain entered a lift whitewashed room, bare and unfurnished save for rugs, cushions, and a broad bed, or divan, upon which the place of mattress was taken by a mass of colored pillows, partly covered, uncomfortably and untidily, by a stained sheet of purple silk.

Upon this unattractive bed reclined Jules Maligni, and beside it, on a cushion, sat the girl Sara, welding in one hand an incongruous painted fan edged with dirty swansdown, and holding in the other a brass vessel containing a dubious-looking mixture of fruit-juice, sherbet and water, with which she ministered to her patient's thirst.

Smiling fondly upon her son, and approvingly upon the ministering angel whose attentions presumably alleviated the pain and anguish that wrung his brow, El Isa Beth el Ain advanced to the bedside, bestowed a warm lingering loving kiss upon the patient and bade his nurse clear out.

Algerian wine is a bit sweet and heavy and sticky, but believe me, it's great stuff. D'you know, Light of the Harem, there were three 'dead men' under my chair before I was vanquished?" "Dead men?" interrupted the Lady El Isa Beth el Ain. "Yes, and a half-dead one, of cognac, on the table, and three or four badly wounded ones, of assorted liqueurs."

And here the speaker paused to permit a deep heaving groan. "A bottle off the ice, instead of this appalling bilge—sherbet-and-warm-water. Oh, Allah, I ask You! Sherbet and warm water, with a squeeze of rotten orange in it!" "Peace, my son," interrupted Lady El Isa Beth el Ain, laying a hand upon her son's hot forehead. "Peace; and listen. I know you are a great man now, and that men must be men, and enjoy themselves, with wine and women and music and banquets. All that is well enough in its way, and right and proper in due season, but it is the mark of the wise man to know the season. And I say that it is not now." "You don't see any chance of changing this foul drink for some cold black beer, darling, I suppose?" "Listen to your old mother, Heart of my Heart, and heed her advice. I foresee great changes here, and at an early day. This young Raisul who..." "Good boy, young Raisul," yawned Jules. "Drank me under the table." "Set by—and led you on. Filled your glass as fast as you emptied it, and saw you drink yourself into a sleep like the sleep of Death, while he drank nothing. And when he had made you drunk as a sodden servant, he went off as sober as a judge and got into mischief."

Jules only laughed. "Raisul has come back to rub Mekazen through his father, the Kaid, that he may the more strongly rule it with his own hand after the Kaid's death. And when will that be?" "Don't know, Mother," murmured Jules. "No you don't know. No one knows. But I could tell them. He'll die just as soon as Raisul has done with him."

El Isa Beth el Ain tells her son more or the terrible Raisul, tomorrow.

About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York.—If there are more gapers anywhere than clutter up the sidewalks of New York, I have not discovered it.

A day or so ago I went to pay a light bill on Forty-second Street. The entrance to the electric company was blocked by a crowd seeking to push its way up to a window display—and what do you suppose it was?

A small electrical mixing device, of the sort housewives use in their kitchens, was airing dough in a bowl. That was all, upon my word, and you would have thought the shooting of "King" Solomon was being re-enacted in that window.

Was the mob principally composed of women shoppers? It was not. For every woman held by this simple mechanical exhibition, there were seven men. Men of all shapes, sizes, complexions, and, apparently, of all walks of life.

Most of them were the typical gawky gapers that stand by the hour, watching anything from a steam shovel to a curb magician selling what-nots.

What did they expect—some Frankenstein's monster to hatch out of the dough? Probably they expected nothing, not even biscuits.

Long practice at sidewalk gaping reconciles the mob to nothing ever happening. It's just an old New York custom.

Anybody who stops on the corner long enough to tie his shoelaces will find a crowd around him. Those Potato Junction rubbernecks haven't a thing on these New York sidewalk gapers.

Gadflies of Gotham In this caviling mood, I might as well keep on. For instance, I don't like:

Those picaunish pseudo-intellectuals encountered at literary teas and other such dismal events, who loudly aim their scramble-brained criticism at any clear-headed author who writes so he can be understood, or artist whose technique permits you to know what he is trying to paint.

And monetaries who rip a somebody's work to pieces while he's not listening, but become his sycophants as soon as they catch his ear.

Also those who invent defamatory stories about all celebrities.

This microcephalic brotherhood finds a large audience here—more's the pity!

LITERATURE DEPT. STUDIES OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN

Miss Frances Wahl was hostess to the members of the Literature Department at the club house on Tuesday afternoon. The Cotten parlor was most attractive with a glowing fire in the grate and bowls of jonquils and other spring flowers used for decorations.

Mrs. Darden quickly dispensed with business and presented Mrs. E. L. Hillman, guest speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. Hillman talked on "Occupations For Women." According to the last census of the United States, there were about ten million women gainfully employed. In the past women have been working in four fields: teaching, nursing, stenography and library work. All of these professions are now crowded and women are becoming quite active in many other phases of work in our country. As caterers, women serve well and many are successful as operators of tea rooms, hotels, and apartment houses. Retail merchandising in all of its forms is appealing to hundreds of women. Women do nearly all of the buying and it is quite natural they should make good sellers. Politics and affairs of the government, professional house keeping, banking, insurance and real estate, journalism and advertising were named as professions in which women are now giving excellent service and Mrs. Hillman thinks that in the future many more women will prepare to enter these professions.

At the close of this most interesting and instructive talk the hostess served tempting refreshments. She was assisted by Misses Hyman and McGee.—Reported.

RIPE COMFORT

By Mary Graham Bonner
Willy Nilly was crying when Rip, the Dog, came back from his romp.
"What in the world is Puddle Muddle in the matter?" Rip asked.
"Nothing," said Willy Nilly, and began to sob again.
"Something must be the matter," Rip said.
"Nothing is really the matter," Willy Nilly answered again.
"But we have had accidents and all sorts of troubles and I've never seen you like this."
"I'm just blue," admitted Willy Nilly.
"It's all my fault for giving in to everyone. But it does seem as though no one loved me and as though I were merely useful to everyone. Oh, I am so blue."
Rip edged closer to Willy Nilly to give him all the Dog comfort he could, and put his front paws in Willy Nilly's lap.
"You know we all adore you. You should be firmer with us, that's all. Oh, Willy Nilly, how can you say we don't love you? I'll never forget how you took me in and gave me a home, and said I was the company part of WILLY NILLY AND COMPANY."
"Oh, I'll never forget that as long as I live. We may seem thoughtless at times, but, Willy Nilly, you're the one who has made Puddle Muddle the loveliest, grandest, most perfect place in all the world."
Willy Nilly was smiling again and stroking the dear head of Rip, the Dog.
"You feel better now, don't you?" Rip asked, as he licked Willy Nilly's hands.
He wagged his tail and continued, "I'll run out and bring in a few sticks of good. We'll feel much more cheerful with a good fire." Willy Nilly felt happy once more.

SCHOOL NEWS

Failure Slips

Last Wednesday 111 failure slips were distributed to students in the high school. These notices passed out at the end of the first three weeks of each grading period serve as warnings to students and parents that the work of the period is thus far unsatisfactory. The reason, according to the teachers' opinion, for failure is given in each case. Usually these warnings aid in bringing students, particularly seniors, to the realization that better work is required during the next three weeks to pass.

Some improvement over the number of last month's failure slips was noticed this month.

Washington—(AP)—Once again, on the first time in more than 20 years, the United States Senate may hear that cry of the sergeant-at-arms:
"Hear ye! Hear ye! All persons are commanded to keep silence, on pain of imprisonment, while the House of Representatives is exhibiting to the Senate of the United States articles of impeachment against—"

For the House of Representatives has voted to bring impeachment proceedings against Harold Louderback, a Federal district judge of California.

Not since July 13, 1912, when similar proceedings were brought against Robert W. Archibald, an associate judge of the U. S. Commerce Court has "the hill" witnessed an impeachment trial. Judge Archibald was removed from office.

In 1926 the House voted to impeach Judge George W. English of Illinois, but before the Senate acted English tendered his resignation. Of the nine actual impeachments trials to be heard by the Senate, including that of a President of the United States, only three men have been removed from office.

When and if Judge Louderback's case reaches the Senate he will have as his principal prosecutor before the bar of that body one of the recognized legal experts of Congress.

He is Hatton W. Summers of Texas, chairman of the judiciary committee of the House. It was Summers, in the opinion of many, whose argument in the House against Judge Louderback had a lot to do with the impeachment proceedings being voted.

In the fact of a report signed by the majority of his committee, the pleasant, mild-mannered and scholarly Texan took the floor, and in a speech whose delivery left him with a voice scarcely audible for its huskiness demanded that for the sake of the dignity of the judiciary his colleagues bring the judge to an accounting.

Summers, who is finishing up his 20th year as a member of the House keeps in the background as a rule. Constitutional law is perhaps the chief subject in his thoughts. He

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—(AP)—Humble among screen truants is George Raft. His truancy, in a sense, is forced upon him. His humility is not the craven kind, willing to beg for favors at any cost, but springs from a belief that even though his fan following has mounted to his own surprise, he still is just "a lucky guy" and not indispensable to the studio which suspended his salary when he refused to play a suggested role.

Raft is liked around here. As he himself insists, he hasn't changed from the "George" Broadway and Hollywood knew before he came into the limelight in "Scarface" and then amazingly found himself with a contract and a growing reputation as a screen romantic.

Decidedly he hasn't changed his manner of speaking, no veneer of affected Hollywood English is spread over his honest double negatives.

"I don't know nothing about acting," he says, "I just do what they tell me to do. But I can't do it the way they tell me, I gotta do it my way."

The director tells me to say something and I say it, just the way I'm talking now. When I try to say it any other way, I'm sunk.

like I always did." Raft's comment came with matters still at odds between him and his studio.

George doesn't understand, he indicates, how studios go about disciplinary action. He had finished a part in "Pick-Up," and reported the next morning, he says, to be told he was off salary. George drew the line at the suggested part—"loathesome" and "suicidal" he termed it—because he thought it would ruin him and he hasn't made enough money to afford that.

91% of All Human Ills Originate In Stomach

Failure to Supply Body With Essential Minerals Allows Excessive Acids to Destroy Health and Vitality.

Medical science, constantly searching for ways to prolong life, frequently come forward with startling statements of their findings, but no more astounding announcement has been made in recent years than the statement of an eminent Chemist who now declares that "There is no natural death. All deaths from so-called natural causes are merely the end point of progressive acid saturation."

TIMELY WARNING

An amazing statement indeed but a warning, that if heeded, should improve the health and well being, increase the joy of living, and prolong the lives of millions of men, women and children who might otherwise drag through a weary life to an untimely end.

ACIDITY KILLS MILLIONS

Health authorities now agree that 91% of all diseases originate in the stomach and are caused by poor cooking, improper diet, and the eating of highly refined foods. Your doctor knows that the 11 essential Minerals and all Vitamins are contained in foods in their natural state and could be live with you constantly, carefully select and prepare everything you eat, you would never need medicines of any kind. This being impossible, science has been searching for years, trying to compound a formula that would make up for the deficiencies of these vital elements—and at last their efforts have been rewarded.

AID TO NATURE

LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, a new and revolutionary formula, actually supplies the system with these vital elements so necessary to health and happiness. It contains the eleven essential Minerals in well balanced proportion, together with Vitamins, and is an invaluable aid to nature in the building of blood, bone, nerve and tissue.

ELIMINATES POISONS

It will rid your system of excess acid, sweep away the dangerous poisons, supply the body with the needed minerals, stimulate the organs of digestion and assimilation, build rich, red blood, clear the skin, give you a keen, hearty appetite, help you to get sound, refreshing sleep, restore health, strength and vitality and enable you to enjoy life to the fullest.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST

Convince Yourself!
Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Drugist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Warren Drug Store, Greenville, and other good dealers everywhere or, send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 167 Forsyth St., S. W. Atlanta, Ga., for large bottle postage paid.

SPORT SLANTS

In a number of fist centers, the chief feature of Young Corbett's Third's victory over Jackie Fields for the world's welterweight championship was not the title shift, which was well forecast in advance, but the opportunity it gave to demonstrate the advantage of the system by which the referee, Lieut. Jack Kennedy, U. S. N., publicly gives his verdict at the end of each round.

Young Corbett got the referee's nod after each of the first five rounds and, quickly sewed up the title for everyone to see and realize; barring an accident or knock-out, the Fresno fighter's knowledge of his advantage did not deter him from finishing briskly or discouraging Fields from attempting to put over a decisive wallop.

It is not a system that would work out successfully everywhere, especially where the votes of two judges and a referee (as in New York) have equal weight in the final decision. Nevertheless it has been a distinct boon for the boxing writers and fans on the Pacific Coast.

Kennedy's position and reputation in the west contribute no little to the success of his methods. I have seen him in action. He is absolutely fearless and so decisive that you can't quarrel with his judgment even if you have to disagree with it. At the end of each round he indicates the winner on points or by another motion declares it even. The principals and spectators thus know the score, whether they like it or not, and the chance for a "queer" verdict is pretty well eliminated.

It should be quite possible and practical to expand Kennedy's system so that boxing can be eliminated from the few sports which do not have the tally up on the scoreboard until after the event is all over.

Since the score is kept by officials, anyway, whether solely by a referee or also by a pair of judges, it would seem a method of quick tabulation could be worked out for announcement during the rest periods.

Loans will be made, the regulators further declare, "to farmers who are unable to obtain loans for crop production during the year 1933 from other sources. These loans may be made to such individuals as are found by the Secretary of Agriculture to have acreage fit for seeding and who are without means to purchase the supplies necessary for crop production during the year 1933. No loans will be made to any applicant who has a means of livelihood other than farming."

An application for a loan, accompanied by the necessary crop lien, will be passed on first by county advisory committees. If this county committee and the field inspector certify the application, it will be forwarded to one of the several regional field offices for final approval and disbursement. The location of the regional office or North Carolina is Washington, D. C.

QUESTION OF PATRONAGE IS INTERESTING

The opportunity for Mr. Roosevelt to take a similar advantage is exceptionally good, in view of the unusual pressure just now for places on the payroll, and the urgency of his own desire to get almost unprecedented grants from the new Congress.

This aspect of the case, particularly, lends color to predictions that the patronage pot is not likely to come simmering to a boil, but will continue to simmer for many weeks.

Talks To Parents

GIFTS FOR OTHERS (By Alice Judson Peale) Generosity and thoughtfulness for others is a charming trait of character which we can foster but not force in our children. Children only learn to be generous and considerate if they are generously loved and considerably treated themselves. But even under such circumstances they may grow up to be selfish and heedless unless the adults whom they love make it plain that they value unselfishness and thoughtfulness and give opportunities for the exercise of these virtues.

Children naturally love to make things, and this pleasure a mother may use to teach pleasure in making things for others as well as for oneself. On rainy "bunny" afternoons the children will enjoy busy-ing themselves with scissors and paste and making scrap books which they may either plan to give them to some little friend or to sick children in a hospital.

When mother bakes the children will love to cut out cookies into special fancy shapes which later they can pack in a pretty box and take as a present to someone. They will enjoy "planting" bulbs in pebbles, crinix for them and proudly bring them as a gift when they are ready to bloom.

Such little acts of thoughtfulness give the child that feeling of self-approval for good deeds which is a part of his social education, and these good deeds have the more significance for him since they represent genuine effort on his part.

THIEVES CAUSE HALT IN RESEARCH WORK IN U. N. C.

Chapel Hill, March 2.—Theft of a reflecting prism from a microphotometer, an eye piece for a traveling microscope, and two dozen photographic plates from the physics laboratory in Phillips Hall, has forced Dr. Otto H. Stuhlman, head of the University Physics Department, to discontinue important research work and has left work on two master theses hanging in the air.

A two-weeks' delay will be caused by the theft of the reflecting prism, for a new one will have to be imported from Holland. The microphotometer was not the property of the University, but had been presented Dr. Stuhlman for research work through an appropriation from the National Research Council, the Smith Fund, and the Rockefeller Fund.

No trace has been found of the missing articles, but a reward promising $10 and no questions has been offered for the return of the equipment.
