CHAMBER FOR CLEANUP WEEK

Local Organization Asks Support of Improvement Program Launched Here

The secretary is asking all members of the Chamber of Commerce cooperate with the Woman's Club making Clean-up Week, which comes the last of this month, an outstanding success.

Clean-up campaigns are in the first rank of our national defense against disease. In connection with this campaign it might be well to add the words "Paint Up." Health officials long ago enlisted in their work the co-operation of the painter. The easiest way to get rid of the germs that have nested in your store, office, or around your home is to clean up and then paint up.

The growing recognition and the use of paint for cleanliness and cheerfulness is playing an important part in the economical life of the community.

Those who may not see fit to invest money in paint and varnish and new decorations realize that one thing should be done—that is, their place of business should have a thorough cleaning from one end to another. Clean ceilings, walls, floors, shelves, back of counters, show cases, display fixtures, ledges, racks, windows and every nook and corner of every department or section of your store. Apply the soap, water and elbow grease treatment.

Sub pillars, scrape floors, slick up in behind where the dust and odds and ends collect.

The big reason why the merchant should take part in this clean-up campaign is that the season of new goods is at hand and the new must not be contaminated with last season's dust.

LEGISLATURE HOLDS BRIEF MEET TODAY

Score of Measures Passed in Brief Session of the House During the Morning

Raleigh, March 18—(AP)—The Legislature rested today as is usual on Saturday and most members of the house agreed that a week-end without debate was welcome.

The house passed one score measures with twenty of its six score members present for 14 minutes local bill session at which two new bills including the 1000th of the session were introduced and passed.

The house members had a brief respite from the appropriations battle which late yesterday developed into hurling charges and counter charges, insinuations and epithets.

The senate had sixteen of its fifty members present for 24 minutes. Two new bills were introduced and seventeen local measures were passed.

The house will resume consideration of the appropriations bill Monday afternoon with the senate taking up regular business.

CLUBMEN HEAR 'HILL' CLERIC

Rev. Albea Godbold Speaks at Regular Meeting of Kiwanis Club Last Night

Urging confidence in men in high places in American life, Rev. Albea Godbold, of Chapel Hill, who is conducting a series of revival services at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church here, spoke at the regular twice-a-month meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Woman's Club last night.

The speaker stressed the necessity of development of a personal conscience that will enable the individual to fully appreciate the condition of mankind and attempt to improve it.

He said we prided ourselves on our personal honesty, but that people did not believe in us because of the questionable things which have occurred in every phase of human life the last several years, and especially in the field of business and finance. The pressing need of the moment, he asserted, is greater confidence in individual effort so that the masses may know their best interest is being served.

Lack of confidence, the speaker declared, eventually will breed a spirit of revolution which will see those denied of the comforts of life taking them from the sources of wealth and social distinction.

Rev. E. L. Hillman presided over the session and the program was in charge of Berry Bostic, of the music committee, and was suggestive of the season set aside for honoring St. Patrick.

Mrs. E. L. Hillman gave a brief sketch of the Patron Saint of Ireland, who because of his unsurpassed snake-annihilation ability, has been enshrined in the hearts of all good Irishmen. Many of her references were in a light vein and revealed some of the pronounced characteristics which big, two-fisted sons of Ireland inherited from the beloved Saint.

Mrs. J. D. Kirkpatrick delighted the club with two solo numbers in keeping with the occasion. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. A. Tyson, Jr.

J. H. Pitts, Kiwanian, who recently moved to Greenville from Fayetteville, was welcomed into the club by J. Frank Harrington, and James Savage and Wilbur Mayor, junior Kiwanians, were recognized by the chair.

The principal speaker was introduced by Dink James.

Mortgage Relief Lansing, Mich., March 18—(AP)—A bill authorizing the courts to suspend mortgage foreclosures until May 1, 1935, was adopted by the Michigan House of Representatives today. The measure now goes to the Senate.

NEW MEASURES IN THE OFFING FOR CONGRESS

Initial Employment Program Will Be Presented When Congress Reconvenes Early Next Week; Employment For Two Hundred Thousand Men Is Sought; Broader Employment Scheme Will Follow; Seek Relief of Needy Until Conditions Become Normal

Washington, March 18—(AP)—Congress is going to keep at work on President Roosevelt's "new deal" until May 1.

That is the agreement between congressional leaders and the President, who has decided he can draft the remainder of his suggestions for the United States legislature to have something to work on.

Originally, Mr. Roosevelt thought a short recess might be necessary after the emergency program was enacted but the continuous session was agreed upon.

By early next week he will make the laws of two more of his emergency ideas, beer revenue and economy.

Next he expects the farm bill and temporary employment relief measure. Then are to follow railroad, banking, unemployment and other legislation as the condition will permit.

With the economy and beer revenue sure to go on the statute books, the already drafted reorganization of the new administration will have been finished as the first attempt at budget balancing.

It has not been contemplated, just now what new taxes will be needed. The hope is that $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 form beer can increase receipts from the higher taxes added to the $600,000,000 reduction of expenses through economy and reorganization will enable the government to pay as it goes.

Some of the legislation he suggested is already taking form. Early next week when congress reconvenes after week-end of rest, the President will present his initial employment program which will propose reformation to give work to 200,000 men.

When that is enacted, there will follow a broader employment scheme proposing public works and provision.

REGISTRATION SHOWS DROP

Attendance at College For Spring Term Less Than During the Winter

The registration for the spring quarter at East Carolina Teachers College is slightly below that of the winter term, with 836 registered and a few whose registration cards are not yet in. Some dropped out for various reasons and a few new ones entered. Most of the students, except those doing practice teaching registered when the term opened.

An average grade of three is required before registration for practice teaching and an extra day was necessary to scan the applicant's records.

Three students completed the four-year course at the end of the winter quarter. Those were Misses Katherine Waters of Raleigh; Margaret Johnson, of Emporia, Va., and Frances Morton, of Greenville.

Two Misses Euna Miller, of Mocksville, and Catherine Brinkley, of Valdese, completed the two-year course.

Announcements of courses open to students entering the college for the special six weeks spring term beginning, Thursday April 20, have been made. This is the middle of the regular spring term. Students will be limited to one-half the total number of quarter hours credit to which they would be eligible if enrolled for the full quarter.

Each course entered for the six weeks will carry one-half of the credit for the full quarter—that is one and one-half hours for a three hour course.

The students entering in the middle of the term will have a wide range in courses because each department is offering work. In the English and History departments all courses will be open to those with the proper pre-requisites. In the others the courses selected are those that are considered to be most profitable for students entering in the middle of a quarter.

Practice teaching is not open to these special students.

Applications for this special work are already coming in. Indications are that there will be a number taking advantage of the opportunity to add six weeks of study at the end of the year of teaching.

PUNISHMENT SERMON TOPIC

Rev. Albea Godbold Delivers Forceful Sermon at Methodist Church

"Rev. Albea Godbold preached on 'Punishment' last evening. He said that preachers are seeking some dynamic force that will stir their congregation from its complacency. We cannot use the same terminology in dealing with hell that was used some years ago. How, then, shall we deal with hell? There are three 'hells'—two of them are experienced in this world.

(1) Hell of remorse. It is a state of fear and anguish and eats away the heart because of the sense of guilt. If that person who is experiencing remorse should speak he would say: "I am experiencing hell here." There are many persons who have experienced or portrayed in their writings this hell of remorse. In our own time this hell of remorse exists. Time and time again man takes his own life because he is experiencing this sense of remorse and guilt. Many people are saying: "What a mess I have made of life."

(2) Hell of the influence of our sins upon others.

(3) Hell of the hereafter. There is a moral purpose for this universe. Men are going to be held in account for the way they live. The future life is going to be determined by the way we spend this life. It is reasonable to suppose that we will live in the future as we are living here. We should be more concerned about our future life and determine to live the most fruitful life here.

It is possible to be saved from these "hells" on this earth so that we may not experience the hell of the hereafter. It is remarkable the way men can turn and redeem themselves and make themselves useful.

There will be no service this evening. There will be a service tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and one again in the evening at 7:30 o'clock. The public is invited.

TONSIL CLINIC HELD IN STOKES

Health Campaign to Be Carried to Fountain and Bell Arthur Next Week

Twenty-one school children under-nerve operations for tonsils and adenoids at the public health clinic held in the consolidated school at Stokes yesterday.

It was the fifth clinic held in this county during the last several weeks as public health authorities, backed by Reconstruction funds, went about their business of trying to improve the general health of Pitt County school children.

Clinics previously were held at Winterville, Grimesland, and Pottsville. Over one hundred children have been operated on for tonsils and adenoids in the five clinics. Operations are performed by nose and throat specialists of this city working in conjunction with members of the public health department.

Clinics will be carried to Fountain next Tuesday and Bell Arthur on Friday. Operations have been limited to twenty per school but the condition in many of the schools has been so accentuated that more than that number were given attention.

People of the various communities are giving splendid cooperation to the movement to improve the general health condition of the school children by removing the impediment of bad tonsils and adenoids and it was believed their school work would be of a much better nature in years to come.

WHERE TO GET THE MONEY

It seems that some of the forces in Raleigh are determined that the sales tax shall prove inevitable if we are to have schools and there are others who appear as determined that there shall be no form of any new taxation even if the schools and other functions of the government are cut to the point of absolute failure to accomplish their proper functions.

There are at present before the legislature measures that would repeal the present tax exemption on stocks in foreign corporations, one for a kilowatt production tax on power companies, and a production tax on tobacco companies and similar concerns making millions of dollars net profit annually.

enough revenue to maintain our state and our schools, then we are sure that there could be no kick on a sales tax. Should the legislature fail, however, to tap these available sources of revenue we reiterate our former contentions that the people of the state will have a kick coming if the sales tax is adopted.

We believe that the great majority of the people in our state want to maintain our state government and schools—economically of course—and are willing to pay to the extent of their ability, and ability to pay should be taken into consideration by the legislators when they do finally decide on the revenue bill.

VALIANT DUST

SYNOPSIS: Frightened by the amorous advances of Ralsul, son of the Kaid of Mekazzen, Margaret Mallen is forced to go for aid to a German agent in Mekazzen. He suggests that in return Margaret tell him what she learns from Major Napoleon Riccoli of the Foreign Legion, ostensibly on a mission from France to the Kaid, but actually a traitor. Margaret's husband, Jules, has become detestable to her; in Riccoli's command is Otho Belleme, Margaret's first sweetheart. Riccoli tells her of the exploits of another traitor to France.

Chapter 36 ANOTHER CROWN

"Think of it, Mademoiselle. That alone shows what a man Vaurol was and to what power he rose. "They might call the state, the kingdom that he founded, a robber-republic of which he was the worst and wickedest robber, but the fact remains, they had first to make war upon him, and then, having failed to defeat him, they sent a mission to negotiate with him.

"What became of him? Nobody knows, or rather, as I said, no European knows. But one thing is certain, neither he, nor any man of his battery, was ever seen by a white man again. "Think of it, Mademoiselle. And while he, too, thought of it, Major Riccoli, with apparent absence of mind, put his right arm about Margaret's waist and then, with obvious presence of mind, put his left hand beneath her chin, tipped up her face and drew her closely to him.

"With equal presence of mind, Margaret wriggled free. "Madame Mallen," he said reproachfully, "Margaret, I have fallen in love with you. I love you. My first love and love at first sight. Do you love me?"

"Not yet, Major Riccoli." "Margaret, could you love me?" "I don't know, Major Riccoli." "Ah, but you do not know. You call me Major Riccoli, but that I shall not be for long. Do you know my other name?"

"I'm afraid not, Major Riccoli." "Napoleon." "How terribly interesting." "Yes, it is, as you say, interesting, and as you say, it shall be terrible. Not for nothing am I Napoleon, a Corsican, a soldier. My namesake and prototype made a humble colonial wench an empress; the obscure gentleman of Mordeaux whom you mentioned tonight (made a notary's daughter a queen; Voulet, a mere captain, would have made Tammarne an Empress, had he lived; doubtless Vaurol has raised some dusky desert-girl to be a second queen of Sheba."

Again the eloquent speaker placed his arm about Margaret's waist. "Margot," he whispered, "would you be a queen?" "I don't think so, Major Riccoli." "Margot! There was a Queen Margot, as you know. Will you be my queen?"

"I'm afraid I'm not eligible, Major Riccoli." "Eligible? You? Margaret, You? I, fancy, am worthy of you. And you are worthy of me. So beautiful, so witty, so charming, so clever—for you are a clever woman as well as a lovely one—why, you and I, Margret, are a pair. Nay, we are one. Soon I shall be Riccoli the Great. You are Margaret the Beautiful. Be my queen." Margaret rose to her feet, turned round once and set down again, free from the urgent, encircling arm.

"But however beautiful I may be, and however great you are, Major Riccoli," she protested, "I really am not eligible. I think you met my husband at dinner." "Husbands! Pah! What are husbands?" "Well—er—" began Margaret. "Husbands are rather..."

Conoco Travel Bus Visits City

Representatives of the Conoco Travel Bureau, said to be America's largest and most unique organization for the rendering of free motor travel service, rolled into this city Thursday aboard a large red green and white bus and immediately began acquainting members of civic organizations and other local residents with the bureau's program for 1933.

"We are firmly convinced that the 1933 travel season will be the most important in recent years and have made elaborate preparations for it," said Marshall Dana, who is in charge of the Conoco bus. "Improved roads in all sections of the country, better automobiles, and highway and scenic information that leaves little to be desired will all be important contributing factors. The World's Fair in Chicago, which opens during June, is likely to stimulate more long distance automobile travel this year than anything else, however."

Accompanying Mr. Dana were P. Meland, of the Continental Oil Co., J. L. Hales, of the National Oil Co., and John Richards, driver.

Some conception of Conoco Travel Bureau activities may be gained from figures released at the close of 1932. During the past year more than six million free road maps were distributed by the bureau and by the 18,000 service stations which sell Conoco products. All of these stations have been equipped to act as local branches of the bureau. They are not only charged with the responsibility of selling petroleum products, but must also be prepared to furnish the tourist, with all types of local information and show a decidedly friendly interest in his welfare. Branches of the bureau are also to be found in several thousand hotels and newspaper offices.

The number of vacation trips which the bureau planned during the past year reaches the astounding total of 143,389. Since each trip was enjoyed by a group made up of at least four people, it is estimated that approximately half a million individuals were served. Of this number 143 groups live in North Carolina and 4,573 visited this state.

According to Mr. Dana, anyone who travels by motor car is entitled to receive free assistance from the bureau. This can be done by writing to the Conoco Travel Bureau, 1000 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The opening session was held in Queen Street Methodist Church last night. The Rev. R. E. Brown led a devotional service. Miss Helen Hodges Carrow, president of the Kinston Hi-Y club, welcomed the delegates. Then Miss Frances Pittman introduced the Rev. W. A. Lillycrop of Greenville, who made the opening address of the conference. The speaker urged the young women to dream new dreams of womanhood at its best in a new day.

Ayden Opens Public Library.
Ayden, March 18.—Many people visited the new public library on Friday afternoon when it was opened for the first time from 4 to 6 o'clock. Not only the home town was represented, but the neighboring towns as well. About 100 registered during the afternoon. They were welcomed at the door by Mrs. R. F. Pittman, the president of the club. Punch was served by Mrs. E. H. Canady and Mrs. John Coward. The book for the guests to register was kept by Mrs. E. E. Hardee. Mrs. W. D. Johnson and Mrs. Helen Turnage gave any information necessary about the books, and issued them.

About 200 books were donated for the opening. Others have been promised to be placed on memorial shelves in memory of relatives and friends. A rental shelf with a dozen of the very latest books was also installed. Each Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 and each Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 the library will be open. During the summer months a children's story hour will be held on Fridays.

It is through the untiring efforts of Mrs. W. D. Johnson and Mrs. Helen Turnage that the club has been able to carry the project through. We are deeply indebted too, to Mrs. W. C. Vincent, librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville, for helping us to get started and for donations which they have made.

This being a branch of the Sheppard Memorial Library, we will have access to a greater number of books than would otherwise be possible.

Several out-of-town visitors were present at the opening, among them being Mayor Roy Flanagan of Greenville, Mrs. W. C. Vincent, Miss Ethel Nice, home demonstration agent for Pitt county, M. Swartz and others of Greenville. Mrs. Spence, florist of that town, furnished cut flowers for the occasion.

Ayden Rotary Club Meets.
Ayden, March 17.—At the Rotary meeting held on Friday night at Hotel Ayden, Rev. W. H. Beunson had charge of the meeting. He presented as special speaker J. R. Turnage who talked on "The Benefit of a Public Library to a Community." He stressed the fact that it created a more intellectual atmosphere in the town, was an ideal place for young and old to spend idle hours, and with good reference books it would be of inestimable value to students.

Mr. Brunson made a brief talk on "What Constitutes a Library." He gave illustrations of some of the world's largest libraries and the work they are doing, and assured the listeners that a library is not just a collection of books but something to be carefully selected.

The subject for the evening was very timely, as the Woman's Club had on the same day opened a public library in the town and invited the Rotarians to attend in a body, after their meeting at the hotel, where they would be served refreshments.

The first junior Rotarian, Wayland McGlohon, was presented at the club meeting last week by J. R. Turnage, and given the Rotary button by the president, J. B. Pierce. Wayland expressed his gratitude for being given the privilege of attending during the month of March.

LOCAL GIRLS LICK TARBORO IN LAST TILT

CONGRESS TO WORK ON 'NEW DEAL' UNTIL MAY 1

Opponents of relief of the needy until conditions get back normal. The basis for the proposed legislation was seen by some to be the bill introduced yesterday by Chairman Rayburn of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

SPORT SLANTS

Those two famous foot-racing rivals of the Olympic war of 1932, Bill Carr and Ben Eastman, may get a chance to renew their middle distance duel abroad this summer.

Carr is prepared to journey to Europe with a picked squad assembled by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Hallahan, who has watched them all since the days of Long Tom Burke, considers Douglas Lowe of England the greatest half-mile of all time, but points out the Briton never attempted to break records unless he was forced to in order to win.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—(AP)—Of all the new crop of representatives in Capitol Hill—and there are so many that it will require weeks to be able to recognize them off the floor—probably few are being watched more keenly than Marland of Oklahoma.

He hasn't done or said anything in the House as yet, but nothing is known of him and his history to attract the attention of those who frequent the galleries.

The son of a Pennsylvania oil man, Marland decided to go to his own after graduating in law, and struck out for Oklahoma about 1907 just when oil was opening up. He bought corduroys and a cow pony and rode his own pipe lines as they were laid into one of the first big pools.

He grew to be one of the few outstanding millionaires in Oklahoma. He developed Ponca City, a millionaire's town, and considered one of the most beautiful small towns in the country.

A descendant of a feudal English family he has a strong sense of noblesse oblige.

He used this philosophy in building up his oil company. He built a model club house for his men where an institute of geology, club rooms and living quarters were housed under the same roof.

Then he started wondering what else he could do and finally determined to build a home fine enough to be turned into an artists' haven when he was through with it.

He had both Hampton Court and Versailles gardens copied, running at fan-wise angles from one side of his home. It was his idea to bring traditional beauty to that spot with the hope of inculcating a love of beauty in all who came to see.

Even the garages and servant quarters were in the same beautiful Spanish style and could be turned into studios whenever some artist friend dropped in and wanted quiet and a place to work.

Any of his employees who had the time and desire could leave their jobs any day at 4 o'clock to play golf or polo. He had a string of 40 polo ponies his men could use at any time and he held the first large polo tournament in the state on his private field.

Now he has lost practically everything. His home is closed and when at Ponca City he lives in one of his own studios.

He is a close personal friend of Patrick Hurley, former secretary of war, and the two are such cronies that it is said last fall prior to the elections Hurley canceled his speaking engagements within Marland's district because he didn't wish to work against his friend, who was running on the Democratic ticket.

These studio mass meetings were deceptive. Mass action, mass loyalty concealed individual disagreements. These came to light as various groups—branches of the academy—held conclaves.

The office workers, the stenographers, the publicity staffs, didn't hold meetings. They accepted meekly the proposed 50 per cent salary cut, hoping they'd keep their little jobs.

But the writers, the directors, the actors, the technicians, the producers—these held meetings. There were words exchanged, many words.

The actors' branch met the night of the recent earthquake. A radio outside the meeting hall was detailing stories of death and damage. Many listened before filing into the hall.

The meeting was scarcely opened before another tremor came. As one the crowd, including many stars, settled back, laughing.

SPRING FASHIONS FOR STREET AND OFFICE

From Paris comes the inspiration for the wide brimmed polka dot hat with gloves to match. For business hours a Marie Merkel (center), of Hollywood, models a spring-like printed frock. at home, not wishing to leave for long lest in her absence the telephone might ring. She cherished there a book of faded clippings, telling of past glories in the theater and on the screen. The telephone call she expected never came—until the other day.

Rosa Rosanova is working again. John Ford had a bit for her in "Pilgrimage." Rosa is old, no longer beautiful. She played mother roles in Rudolph Valentino's films, a decade ago.

Her faded clippings tell about triumphs in the Moscow Art Theater on Broadway, on stage and screen—all memories now. She is happy with her bit, and philosophical.

"What is life but a series of ups for the old must give in to the young. There is no alternative, for the immutable law of the theater orders it so."

Foot Note Observed Groucho Marx, as the four brothers planted their eight feet in the wet cement of the theater forecourt where like mementos of other screen immortals are preserved for posterity and publicity.

"Well, I'm not the only heel to go down in history."

He was one of a mob of extras who seemed planted in the casting office. He was seen resplendent in his best outfit, crowned by a silk top hat.

The casting director appeared. "Nothing today," he said automatically.

"Nothing for a man about town?" the extra persisted.

"No, nothing—wait. Go to Stage 2. Seventy-fifty."

"How much?" incredulously.

"Seventy-fifty, I said," and the c. d.'s voice had finally in it.

Oh, Well, It's Work The extra sighed. It was plainly a choice between dignity and doughnuts. He chose the latter.

"I'll take it," he said. Then he straightened his shoulders, suddenly fired by professional pride. "But not with the hat, sir, not with the hat!"

Rebuke To Gallery Shows Lewis Busy As Democratic Whip

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C.—Senator "Jim Ham" Lewis, of Illinois, apparently has his own ideas about the job to which the Democratic caucus recently elected him.

He is party whip, succeeding Shepard, of Texas. It's up to the whip to see that the Democratic Senators are on the floor for important roll calls. In the House the job is perhaps more arduous than in the Senate.

Both the Democrats and Republicans in the Senate have secretaries who operate on the floor, seeing that their Senators are present when needed or to make sure that they are paired on important votes.

A Quick Kick Apparently Senator Lewis means to put action into the job. He indicated that in the very first minutes.

There was a lot of confusion in the galleries. They were filled to capacity, perhaps accustomed to the turmoil in the House, had been a little slow in demanding order.

Suddenly the booming and resonant voice of "Jim Ham" was heard. "Mr. President," he said, "I hesitate to make any complaint against anyone anywhere, but I think it is timely in the position with which I am honored by the majority to take the liberty of calling attention to the fact that the occupants of the galleries are received in this body as a courtesy."

"It is not intended that merriment should be indulged in to the extent that the voice of our leader (Joe Robinson) or of the eminent Senator from Oregon (McNary, Republican leader) should be drowned out."

requested. Garner it is said, has been requested by Senators not to be as strict as was Charlie Curtis, his immediate predecessor.

Dear Me! How Can We Bear It? Two Harbors, Minn.—(AP)—Conrad Floathe, in search of deer, shot what is claimed to be the biggest bear ever killed in the north woods of Minnesota. The bear, weighing between 600 and 700 pounds, was felled with one shot in the head. Floathe firing from a distance of only about three feet.

Appeals From Ruling In Transfer of Case Winston-Salem, March 18.—(AP)—The Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company yesterday filed notice of an appeal to the State Supreme Court from the decision of Superior Court Judge H. Hoyle Sink refusing to transfer to Federal Court the $769,000 suit brought against the company and Mrs. Maud Trotman in connection with the Eshannon estate.

Teachers Take Chance On Collecting Salaries Salisbury, March 18.—Salisbury school teachers having decided to take a chance the city council today agreed to let them continue the city schools for the eighth month and collect their salaries when and if the taxes come in later with which to pay them.

Conservator Named For Salisbury Bank Salisbury, March 18.—H. P. Brandis, for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of this city, was today appointed conservator for that institution. The appointment came from the office of the comptroller of the currency with the information that instructions as to how to proceed with his new job would be sent later. The First National has been considered one of the most conservative banks in this section. So far only one country bank, the Wachovia, has been opened and it has done an increased volume of business.
