FIVE MILLION DOLLAR LINER SINKS AT SEATTLE

President Madison Victim Of Strange Ocean Disaster While Docked At Home Port

TWO SEAMEN LOSE LIVES; MANY SAVED

Only Two of One Hundred Persons Aboard as Ship Capsizes and Sinks Meet Death; Disaster Results From Water Mysteriously Pouring Into Vessel Causing it to List; City Firemen Assist in Rescue Work

Seattle, Wash., March 25.—(AP)—A victim of a strange disaster at sea, the crack Seattle-Orient liner, the President Madison, lay deep in the waters alongside her dock here today after capsizing and sinking last night.

All but two of the more than one hundred persons aboard when the $5,000,000 ship keeled over, escaped. The missing men were believed to have been trapped and drowned in the depths of the vessel.

The disaster occurred when water poured into an opening inside the vessel made after the bottom had mysteriously shifted and caused the ship to list.

Four men were rescued by city firemen and other rescuers.

COURT TO GET BUSY MONDAY

Crowded Calendar Faces Second Week Term of Civil Superior Court Here

The civil term of Superior court which was adjourned abruptly last Tuesday following the inability of the court to set the calendar up for hearing, will resume work here Monday morning.

The second week calendar contains about forty or fifty cases and it was believed more work would be accomplished than in the first week when the slow movement of litigation caused Judge Henry A. Grady to announce his intention of adjourning for the remainder of the week.

Although only a half dozen actions were directly given hearing last week, about twenty cases were taken off the calendar. The majority resulted in compromise outside of court.

It was said the lack of money probably played an important part in the disinclination of plaintiffs to push the cases set for hearing last week, and while the same condition may exist in the forthcoming calendar greater effort will be made to dispose of as many cases of the actions as possible.

NEW SUIT FILED IN REYNOLDS WILL

Baltimore, Md., March 25.—(AP)—A suit to determine the status at law of certain heirs of the late Smith Reynolds, and especially that of his widow, Libby Holman Reynolds, was filed in the circuit court here today.

Its purpose was to prove the court's authority for disposition of the trust fund.

The suit was filed by the Safety and Fidelity and Trust Company on behalf of three heirs of the estate who asserted that portions of the will could not be completed unless the court assumed up its jurisdiction and determine a course to be followed in the distribution.

BEGIN DRAFT OF PLANS FOR CIVILIAN ARMY

Government Attempts to Meet Objections Presented By Labor Leaders

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—The drafting of President Roosevelt's plans to enroll 250,000 men in a civilian corps for forestry work, was undertaken today by chairmen of the Senate and House Labor Committees to meet objections filed by organized labor.

The meeting of the Senate Committee was called by Chairman Wash who said the process of re-amping would take several days. The House Committee will meet Monday with Chairman Collier who already has a substitute bill to offer.

Major opposition was expressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was directed at the provision for enlisting the unemployed in the conservation corps and paying workers a dollar a day.

Green assailed this as regimental action for labor in near times which would demoralize wages. He asserted standard wages should be paid.

Members of the two committees gave evidence of strong support of the plan by Collier to demand as pay scale of $50 a month for single men and $80 a month for married men. The bill also will be changed to make it contain that enlistment would be voluntary.

LEAF HOUSE IS LEASED HERE

R. V. Keel and Matt Long to Operate Dixie Warehouse Next Season

Announcement was made today that the Dixie Warehouse, formerly known as Joyner's, has been leased by R. V. Keel and Matt Long and will be operated by them during the coming season.

Associated with the two operators, who will also act as managers, will be O. L. Joyner, Jr., and Dick Rogers. The auctioneering will be done by Billy Branch.

Negotiations looking to the leasing of the building have been under way for some time, but were not finally completed until the latter part of the week.

Both Messrs. Keel and Long are well-known in the tobacco warehouse business here, each having had considerable experience in this field.

Mr. Long has also been prominently identified with the cotton manufacturing business here for a number of years, being the operator of the Greenville Cotton Mill.

The three men to be associated with them in the operation of the warehouse are experienced tobacco men, especially Mr. Joyner, who was associated with his father, the late O. L. Joyner, in the operation of the warehouse when it was first constructed.

WILL REDUCE PUBLIC WORK PROGRAM HERE

Dwindling Reconstruction Funds Cause Drop in Employment

Because Reconstruction Corporation funds assigned for relief work in this county are dwindling rapidly, a pronounced decrease in the public work program will be made the next few days, K. T. Futrell, director of the Welfare Department and distributor of government funds said today.

Persons who have been depending on relief measures for a livelihood were advised by the relief director to take advantage of all new jobs falling their way as they could not expect much from the public work program in the future.

Eighty per cent of the weekly payrolls have been going for labor in the past, Mr. Futrell said, but this will be trimmed down to 40 per cent when the reduction program actually begins.

The remainder of the money on hand will be used to complete the gardening, hospitalization, tonsil and adenoid clinic program started about a month or so ago, it was stated, and this will leave very little public work for the jobless to look forward to.

The coming of the spring planting season was expected to make employment available on hundreds of farms of the county, and it was believed many of the men as in the public work program would be able to find profitable work tilling the soil. Then also, the gardening program was expected to help poor families keep the wolf away from the door, and people who refuse to take part in this program will find it difficult to obtain the slightest consideration for mite relief agency.

Many public improvements have been made in the county with government funds and much of the suffering which would have existed had not employment been available was avoided in virtually all communities.

Both sections will resume business next Monday morning.

NEW ATTACK ON FARM BILL

John Simpson Says Measure Would Cost The Nation $600,000,000

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—A renewed attack on the administration's farm bill was launched before the Senate Agricultural Committee today by John Simpson, president of the National Farm Union, who said it would cost $600,000,000 a year exclusive of land rental.

Simpson took the stand in the opening session completing testimony begun yesterday before Secretary Wallace and was heard behind closed doors.

"It is absolutely impossible," he said of the measure. "Besides the cost," he said, "it would require a force of 200,000 to administer its provisions."

He said under the measure designed to raise the prices of farm products to pre-war levels through large grants of power to the necessary agricultural forces, that one thousand men would be necessary to regulate 50,000 major products included and that another 100,000 would be necessary to regulate processes and handlers.

FURNITURE FACTORY AT LENOIR DESTROYED

Lenoir, March 25.—(AP)—The Lenoir Manufacturing Company's plant here was destroyed by fire yesterday. Damage was estimated at between $50,000 and $100,000, partially covered by insurance.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined. The blaze swept through several warehouses and the machine room and burned 100,000 feet of dressed lumber. E. H. Killian is president of the company.

Mocksville, March 25.—(AP)—E. B. Scott, 25, of Glen Alpine, was under sentence of 10 years in the State penitentiary today following conviction yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the killing of his young wife.

Scott sat apparently unmoved throughout the trial but burst into tears when the jury returned its verdict 30 minutes after retiring. He was tried for second degree murder.

Witnesses said that Scott told them he shot his wife, an expectant mother, but from the witness stand he declared she shot herself accidentally or committed suicide.

PLANS AWAIT ARRIVAL NEW AMBASSADOR

Representative of Government to Make Complete Study of Situation Following His Arrival in The United States; Spokesman Declines To Say Exactly What View His Country Takes of The Situation

Paris, March 25.—(AP)—France intends to open debt negotiations when the new ambassador, Andre Lefevre De La Boulaye arrives in the United States April 2, it was said today.

Action on the question has been delayed until the new ambassador could become acquainted with the subject. A government spokesman declined to say whether the government was ready to pay if granted certain concessions in return for debt revision.

France defaulted last December 15 of the $19,000,000 interest payment owed the United States. The government of Premier Herriot who favored payment fell on the issue. The French government is now considering a new proposal introduced a week ago by Deputy Richards calling for payment of the defaulted interest.

QUIZ MAN IN COX'S DEATH

Negro Held at Baltimore in Connection With Dead Body Found Here

Will Edwards, colored, of Pitt County, was being held for questioning by Baltimore police today in connection with the death of Will Cox, colored whose body was found in the Chicod section of this county last Saturday after he had been absent from home about a week.

Officers here requested Baltimore authorities to question Edwards, who was reported to have been with Cox at the time of his death. Officers had not decided whether they will ask for his return here for questioning, but said they probably would wait to see how much information Baltimore authorities got out of him.

A coroner's jury investigating the death of Cox returned a decision that he came to his death through exhaustion, but Sheriff Whitehurst, who assisted in the investigation, said he believed the man had been a victim of foul play, although he was unable to obtain sufficient clues to bear out his belief at the time.

However, the arrest of Edwards at Baltimore and the fact he was seen with Cox the day he disappeared gives the case a new aspect, one which may be instrumental in throwing entirely new light on the death.

Cox was said by officers to have been engaged in the bootlegging business, and was believed to have been intoxicated at the time of death.

Late News Flashes

New Trial For Mooney. San Francisco, Calif., March 25.—(AP)—A new trial for Thomas J. Mooney was ordered today by Superior Judge Louis H. Ward on the plea of the defense attorneys that he be given a new chance to acquit himself of the bombing of a San Francisco parade here in 1916.

The action of Judge Ward was another step in the 6-year fight to clear Mooney of responsibility for the explosion that killed ten and injured 40 persons.

Mooney and his sympathizer said they were framed by capitalistic interests. The movement to free him has been of world-wide proportions for years.

Mooney will be tried on a murder indictment. He was convicted of a similar charge and sentenced to hang but sentence was commuted to life after intervention of President Wilson.

Judge Ward set April 25 as the date of the new trial. Matthew Brady, district attorney, announced his withdrawal as prosecutor of the case and Judge Ward ordered the state attorney general's office to take over the prosecution. (Continued on Page Four)

NEW AREAS TO GET CLINICS

Adenoid and Tonsil Forces to Visit Belvoir and Chicod Next Week

Tonsil and adenoid clinics will be carried into Belvoir and Chicod townships next week it was revealed at the Department of Health this morning.

Tuesday the public health forces will visit Belvoir and Friday they will go to Chicod.

There was some question about postponing the Chicod clinic until some future date on account of measles reported prevalent in that community but this had not been definitely decided upon. However, a decision was expected to be made by the first of the week.

Nineteen children underwent operations in the clinic conducted at Bell Arthur consolidated schools yesterday.

This brought the total number operated on in the seven clinics to 120 with indications that the number will be practically doubled by the time the county has been covered.

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Department of Health, was gratified with progress of the work and the spirit of cooperation shown by residents in the communities visited by the health forces the last month.

Around twenty children were expected to undergo operations in each of the two clinics planned for next week, and should the Chicod clinic be postponed some other community will probably be visited on the date set for that school.

WALK-A-THON NEW WINTER FROLIC IN FLORIDA CITY

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—Folks hereabouts grew tired of marathon dances as a form of amusement, so now they have the "walk-a-thon." Besides the dance was banned here by municipal ordinance. But crowds are still turning out to watch the "bunion derby."

Contestants walk 23 of the 24 hours a day, with 15 minutes to rest and sleep each hour. All they do is walk—there's no rush, but they must keep moving. Three meals and five lunches are served those engaged in the contest and some gain weight.

PROHIBITION IN THIS STATE

The prohibition question continues to come in for a lot of argument in both the Legislature and throughout the state at this time in view of national action toward repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the legalizing of light wines and beer. As we see it, the best course that the Legislature can take in the matter is to return the matter to the people as the first possible moment and let the people voice their wishes in the matter in order that the will of the majority might be carried out.

There are of course, those who want the Legislature to immediately repeal the prohibition laws in this state without referring the matter to the people, while there are others who desire the Legislature to leave the matter alone entirely as it now stands and not even let the people say whether or not they desire a change. Both of these courses, in our opinion, merely add to the discussion of the matter and get us nowhere at this time. It has been a quarter of a century since the people of this state at the polls have had an opportunity to vote on the matter and the best way to settle the present argument is to let the people again express their wishes in the matter.

On this prohibition question we believe that the present Legislature can best serve the people of the state by placing the matter up to the voters and let the will of the majority rule. The Legislature can do this, we believe, by passing a blanket repeal subject to ratification by the people and then if the people really want our laws repealed they will have opportunity to repeal them by their vote or if they do not want them repealed they will have equal opportunity to keep them on the statute books. After taking this action the Legislature can include in the present revenue act provision for licensing the people to legalize it and then this phase of the matter will likewise be settled by the outcome of the vote of the people on the prohibition question and should they vote to keep prohibition in force the licensing provision in the revenue bill will just be a dead issue and superfluous.

The dries in this state declare that if given an opportunity the people of the state will again vote dry, while the wets apparently are just as certain that if given an opportunity the people will vote for a change and these

VALIANT DUST by Percival Christopher Wren

MARGARET had gazed at her face, both for her own safety and that of her childhood sweetheart. Githo Belleme to the only trustworthy man she knows in the gaudy Moorish Citadel of Mekazzen. Colonel Le Sage. Margaret's husband, Jules Maligni; Ralsul, son of the Kaid of Mekazzen; Major Riccoli, commander of Otto's detachment of the Foreign Legion, all are enmeshed in a gigantic intrigue against France. Le Sage, of the French Secret Service, just has enlisted Otto's help.

Chapter 42

THE GREAT RICCOLI

Major Riccoli, at ease with dignity, leaned back among his cushions, sipped his coffee and lazily blew smoke rings in the air. Castles in the air. But smoke-rings, however beautiful, are very evanescent. Castles in the air. Castles in Spain.

An unpleasant expression, that Most inappropriate. To the devil with Castles in Spain—when one has a Castle in Mekazzen—or rather, will have one in a few hours' time.

A knock at the door. Major Riccoli glanced at his wrist-watch. That would be the excellent Vittorelli, come to report.

"How goes it?" "Saluting with tremendous smartness and punctilious respect, the Sergeant-Major intimated that everything went well.

Having concluded his report, Vittorelli accepted his superior officer's offer of a cigarette, and gracious permission to be seated, while they once again discussed the subject of the hour of arrival, and probable mental attitude, of the officer, non-commissioned officers and men of the first detachment of the reinforcements.

But after all, my dear Vittorelli, it is the accomplished fact that is the best argument, the world over. When they arrive to find me King of the Castle, the thing is done. And should there be among them an fool who is so damned a fool as to hesitate between a happy life and an unhappy death—why, let him face the firing-party, by all means.

"I suppose," mused Major Riccoli, "it is the best plan to act first as though for France, and afterwards to see if we have any such fool among us."

"Well—I think that's all," Riccoli added, yawning. "Turn the men out at 2 a. m. I shall be there at ten minutes past two."

"I doubt it," said a deep voice, in French, as the door opened, and a big man in a hooded cloak stood on the threshold. The man in the cloak stepped forward, threw back the hood and dropped the cloak from his shoulders, revealing to the astounded Riccoli and Vittorelli, a French Colonel in full uniform.

"The Sage!" whispered Riccoli. Sergeant-Major Vittorelli instinctively sprang to attention.

"You are under arrest, Sergeant-Major," said Colonel Le Sage. "Remove your belt and revolver."

"Don't! Shoot him!" cried Riccoli, with a glance of positive agony at the table whereon lay his own revolver.

"Guard!" cried Colonel Le Sage, and four soldiers tramped into the room.

"Arrest that man!" ordered Le Sage, pointing to Vittorelli whose right hand tore at the flap of the holster of his revolver.

As the weapon flashed from its case, the nearest Legionnaire seized Vittorelli's arm, while the second forces are charging the dries with being afraid of letting the people vote on the question by seeking delay through efforts to get the Legislature to let the matter alone.

As we see it, the best way to get at the real sentiment is to let the people vote. If the sentiment is still dry a show of hands on the question at this time, we believe, will greatly strengthen the efforts toward prohibition enforcement in this state, and for this reason personally we are willing for the people to have the opportunity to express their wishes in the matter. If on the other hand, the majority of our people desire to repeal the prohibition laws in this state, we must remember that we are still a democracy and the people have the right to govern themselves.

As we have many times stated, we believe that temperance is one thing and prohibition another, the former being a moral question and the latter a legislative or legal one, and while we urge increased and unceasing efforts in behalf of temperance we would give the people an opportunity to say whether or not beer or other intoxicants should be outlawed by legal action in this state.

presented his fixed bayonet at the pit of his stomach.

"Sit still, Riccoli," snapped Le Sage, his own hand on his revolver-butt.

"Good!" he added, turning to Vittorelli. "Three of you march him to the guard-room and hand him over to Major Langeac with my orders that he is to be confined to the punishment cell, to await court-martial. Use any necessary force."

The light of hope again illuminated the honest countenance of Sallor Harris.

"You may find that you have met Major Langeac before," added Le Sage, with a short laugh.

"Legionnaire Belleme! On guard outside this door, until your comrades return. Then report to me."

"Well, Major Riccoli! So we meet again. I wonder if you remember when we met last?"

"At El Brudja," replied Riccoli, eyeing as though it hypnotized him, the revolver on the table.

"Ah ha! A little sop to manly vanity," laughed Le Sage. "My good Riccoli, you've seen me daily, since you came to Mekazzen. You talked with me for an hour at the post from which you marched here."

"You're not the Moor who came to the post with a message from the Kaid. He had a fat face, and a great beard," expostulated Riccoli.

"He had. So had I, an hour ago. And I have a fat when I think I will."

"And you came to the post from the Kaid?"

"I certainly came from Mekazzen."

"Then you came from the Kaid. No one could go to and fro from here without his knowledge and consent."

"Or that of his trusted and all-powerful adviser and Vicer, the Senor Pedro Maligni."

"Oh, ho! You got at him that way, did you?"

"I did. As you got at him through Ralsul."

"Then the Kaid is fooling you, Le Sage."

"No. The other way about, I'm afraid, Major Riccoli. Now if you had said that Ralsul and the Kaid are fooling you..."

"Nonsense, Le Sage. It is I who am fooling them. Talk sense. I hold the Kaid in the hollow of my hand. He thinks I am here to join him, to support him, to fight for him. I and my men are to serve his ends, the fool. He and his men are to serve mine."

"And France?" inquired Le Sage softly.

"France. She will be glad and proud to make terms with me before long—when I am the invincible Sultan of Morocco, head of the vast Pan-Islamic..."

"Yes, yes. I know it all, Major Riccoli. You're still riding that horse, are you?"

Riccoli smiled.

"Join me," said he. "Join me, and have a career worth having. Have a destiny, something finer than retiring as a fat Colonel, to grow cabbages in a French village. Join me, and I will make you a General, a Field Marshal, a King. What did Napoleon make of his Murats and Bernadottes? If he could make waiters, hostlers, private soldiers, into Kings, what could not I make of you?"

"Why, a damned tailor. That is what you could make of me. Major Riccoli, if I put myself unreservedly in your clean and honest hands..."

"Still riding that horse, are you?" sneered Riccoli.

"Yes, for France."

"And what will France give you, Le Sage? A cabbage patch. Well, well, you've had your chance."

"I've got it, Major Riccoli, and I'm taking it quite soon," and again Colonel Le Sage consulted his watch.

"Well, I won't bore you for long, Major Riccoli. I shall be going in a minute."

"Might one ask where?"

"To interview the Kaid. By the kindness and courtesy of the helpful Senor Pedro Maligni, I have an interview with the Kaid in his own private audience chamber. Private and personal, secret and confidential."

"For France?" sneered Riccoli.

"Well, in point of fact, I go in my Teutonic manifestation or incarnation in the name and role of 'Herr Schlacht.'"

"But you are quite sure it is for France?" asked Riccoli with a suggestive half-sneer.

"Oh, quite. The Kaid thinks he is going to talk to me—it is curious you should have mentioned 'cabbages' once or twice, Riccoli," and Le Sage broke into English.

"The time has come," The Kaid has said, To talk of many things; Of shoes and ships and sealing-wax And cabbages and Kings."

and more particularly as to whether the time hasn't also come for the German equivalent of a quarter of a million francs to turn up, together with certain guns, rifles, ammunition and men. I hope that's how it goes, anyway."

"My men?" asked Riccoli.

"No, nobody's men. Mythical dream. The German army of a Kaid's dream."

HITLERITES TEAR DOWN REPUBLICAN FLAGS

Shortly after the edict that the black, red and gold banners of the German republic were no longer to be displayed, groups of Chancellor Hitler's nazis tore down the republican flags in the city of Kiel. They were replaced with the flag of the old empire together with the swastika flag of the nazi shock troops. (Associated Press Photo)

The WORLD OF STAMPS

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—During the years that Senator "Doc" Copeland of New York has been on Capitol Hill, he has voluntarily taken upon himself the task of safeguarding the health of members of Congress.

In the days before the Senate installed apparatus for purifying the air in the chamber where sessions are held, the good doctor was constantly warning against atmospheric conditions under which Senators were compelled to work.

He decried the lack of sunlight in the chamber. (The Senate chamber is so situated that admittance of sunlight is impossible.) He urged that something be done about it, and voiced dire warnings to the Senators that their health was being impaired by the absence of ultra-violet rays.

Nor did he confine his activities to the Senate.

Air! More Air! The story is told that one day he visited President Coolidge. Noticing that all the windows were closed, he strode across the room and opened them himself.

"There's not enough fresh air in here, Mr. President," he is said to have remarked. "Now—that's better."

Now that the Democrats are in control of the Senate, Senator Copeland has a job that suits his temperament perfectly. The chairman of the rules committee fell to him.

The chairman of the rules committee has under his immediate supervision the Senate wing of the Capitol and the Senate office building. The job of keeping the quarters of Senators and the places they frequent during the days in the Capitol clean, well-ventilated and well-appointed is up to him.

His Duties Varied He has supervision over the galleries. The much-publicized-of-late Senate barber shop and bath-rooms; fall under his jurisdiction. He has charge of the Senate restaurant. The delicate and difficult tasks of assigning office space to Senators is also his.

The doctor's job is one which carries with it some times a lot of grief. Some Senators are temperamental, highly so.

"Doc" Copeland knows this and already is on guard. The other weekend it became necessary to adjust the electric power facilities in the Senate office building. He took the floor of the Senate to warn:

"There'll be no elevator service on Sunday, Senators. I just wanted to tell you so that there'll be no misunderstanding on the part of those of you who are in the habit of working on Sundays."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—(AP)—Producers, and others of the movie industry are interested right now in the question of a code of practice for the agents whose business it is to get players their jobs.

It has been a live one in movie ranks for years. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences recognized it recently with appointment of a committee to formulate a code governing relations between artists, agents and the production companies.

The average fan perhaps doesn't know that agents make much difference in Hollywood. But around here they're seemingly indispensable.

"On what charge?" "Aiding and abetting. Also murder of French soldiers and subjects."

ble figures. They're in the business of selling talent to studios, collecting a commission on what that talent earns.

So it is that we find only unknowns knocking at studio doors and trying to bedazzle gatekeepers to letting them in. The custom among players of standing is to go to a recognized agent, and put them selves in his hands for "selling" to the studios. Some agents are more particular than others as to whom they will handle. In fact, of some agencies it is said that their acceptance of an applicant is equivalent to success.

Once under an agent's supervision, the player lets the agent do the job-hunting, the salary talking, the other details of a business nature, in which the agent, naturally, is almost as much interested as the player. The system works smoothly in the majority of cases, but from time to time grievances have been aired by either agents, artists or producers.

For one thing, agencies sometimes sue actors for commissions allegedly unpaid them; for another, agents occasionally contend that rivals have raided or attempted to raid their talent lists.

Again, certain agents have been barred from certain studios, having incurred executive displeasure which makes it impossible for them to plead the cause of their clients; not infrequently two or more agents claiming commissions from the same artist for the same job.

It is complications like these that the proposed code would seek to eliminate, aided by a standard form of contract for agency representation.

Winterville, March 24.—This afternoon about two o'clock the famous bucket brigade was called into action to extinguish a fire on the premises occupied by J. R. Heath. A small barn, situated about twenty feet from the corner of the house, was blazing in full force when first discovered and the corner of the house had appeared a hopeless task to save the house, but when the bucket brigade swung into action it was not long before the fire was under control. The corner which caught fire but otherwise the damage was confined to the water which was thrown to extinguish the blaze. The barn was completely destroyed.

SOFT CRAB SEASON IS GETTING UNDER WAY

Beaufort, N. C., March 24.—Some soft crabs have been caught and shipped by the various catchers at Marshallberg since the first of this month, and the season will begin in earnest about the first of April. Present indications point to the supposition that there will be more soft crabs this spring than during any of the past several seasons. Although it is said to be too early now to even approximate what the price will be, Captain John A. Nelson, State Fisheries Commissioner, says that evidently there will be a good supply of these crustaceans this spring.

At one time, soft-shell crabs brought approximately a hundred thousand dollars a year to Carteret County—but that was during boom times. Of course, the industry will not bring to the county this much money this year, but it is expected that the price will be sufficient for the crabs to earn a living. This will be helped by the fact that there are more crabs than usual in the bays, sound and rivers in the eastern part of Carteret.

HOOVER 'AT CALIFORNIA' HOME

Herbert Hoover returned to his Palo Alto, Cal., home as a private citizen after nearly 20 years of public service. He is shown in front of his house on the Stanford university campus with Mrs. Hoover and his son, Allan. Two of the former White House pets, Pat and Weegie, are demanding the attention of Mrs. Hoover. (Associated Press Photo) first hand in a book by Arthur Fowler Neil—who should know Scotland Yard if anyone does. For years he was superintendent of the criminal investigations department, and naturally his "Man Hunters of Scotland Yard" deals with that phase of the organization's work.

Those who like to exhume ancient sensibilities will be interested to know that Mr. Neil has a new solution for the "Jack the Ripper" murders in England and the United States.

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York—(AP)—It was news to me—

That the telephone books for some of the city's busiest "nests" of phone booths are replaced with new ones several times each week.

Hordes of impatient number-seekers thump them with such vigor that they are torn asunder in no time, and so fresh directories have to be rushed in. In some of the Times Square places fighting their way to a telephone booth is little easier than taking Manchuria with a pop-gun would be.

The news, to me, is that the books ever are replaced. It must be that I always get to them between the times some frantic fellow has grabbed out a handful of pages and the arrival of the replacements.

Speaking of telephone books—as you may have heard, there are different tomes listing the numbers in the several boroughs of New York. It used to be that a subscriber in Manhattan would be supplied with all the borough books. Now the idea is to give him only the directories the telephone company thinks he needs.

They have just tossed a new red book (classifying the trades) on my desk, and a cursory glance through it reveals that five establishments still deal in lightning rods, two are listed under "Bibles" and three under "Bars," that one of the makers of pants to match your coat and vest offers "999,000 different patterns to select from" and that there are 71 stables while the garages take up three pages.

By the way, I dropped into P. Keenan's lively stable on Second avenue at Sixty-fourth to ask for a saddle horse in a hurry (no—if you must know—I wasn't trying to flee the town; I wanted it for a friend who bet me he can stay on one), but there was none.

One must go to the riding academies up near Central Park for saddle horses, it seems, unless one wishes to ride the delivery-wagon nags and coaches in Mr. Keenan's grim old quarters.

Mr. Keenan's stable has a front office which is just about like most of the littered and dingy front offices in stables I remember from my boyhood back home, and it entertains types of the old stable stove leaguer.

Upstairs you will find some dust-covered victorias and other turn-outs for sale—cheap. Or, if you want to, he can hitch up a horse for you to go "buggy-riding" some fine afternoon, at a modest rental.

Outside, the Second avenue "L" thunders by—and unbroken lines of motors roar in smug forgetfulness that horses once pulled their forbears home from most every venture onto the streets.

Melon Fare For Stowaways.

Honolulu—(AP)—When Human Koropoff, 24, of Chicago and Clarence Short, 24, of Farmington, Ill., stowed away in the hold of the Mariposa at Los Angeles they found themselves locked in and no escape. Five days later the liner docked here and the hatches were open. Unshaven and hungry, they crawled out. On the way over they had broken open a crate of melons and ate five.

Talks To Parents

ABOUT RULES

By Alice Judson Peal

It is parents who are not very sure of their authority who tend to make a great many rules for their children. They call their demands rules, in the hope of making them more effective.

Before they realize it such parents have succeeded in hedging their children about with so many rules with attached penalties for breaking them, that they can scarcely move without doing something forbidden.

So, of course, they disobey, and the more they disobey the more the parents try to bind them with more rules and more penalties, each less effective than the last.

The wise parent, who knows what he is about, makes the fewest rules with which it is possible for the child to get along in reasonable harmony with school and home. These few rules have to do with really essential matters.

Even these are not laid down in the spirit of coercion, they are rather accepted by the child as a matter-of-fact part of his world. But the child knows that he must obey under penalty of suffering parental disapproval.

With a well brought-up child this usually is enough. Occasionally an especially headstrong child requires definite punishment to teach him that he may not do certain things.

This he accepts as just because he understands clearly that he has failed to meet an unvarying routine of his living.

The few rules which need to be made, need to be strictly adhered to. If ever there is occasion to make an exception the child must be helped clearly to understand that it is an exception and not likely soon to be repeated.

It costs over $400 to clean Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square, London. It was last cleaned in 1921.

My Beauty Hint

By MARY PHILLIPS (Stage Actress)

There are beauty experts who hold that a woman should discover the style of coiffure best suited to her individuality and then retain that one. I disagree. I think a woman should change her style of haircut, just as she changes the style of her clothes, from season to season. After all, a woman's personality and beauty are supposed to develop from season to season, and the haircut that may have suited her last year may not today.

WANTS DEPOSITORS TO BE REPRESENTED

Wilmington, N. C., March 25.—Representatives of depositors, as well as stockholders and directors, should be permitted to attend the conferences now being held in North Carolina relative to the re-opening and re-organization of closed banks.

Cyrus D. Hogue, Wilmington attorney, suggests in a letter to Banking Commissioner Gurney P. Hood.

Pointing out that news stories concerning the conferences have emphasized the desire for relief for stockholders, Mr. Hogue said:

"I suggest that with the extensive powers now vested in you it would be a very wise and eminently fitting thing if under your supervision meetings of depositors in closed banks were called in which representatives might be selected who might have a part in the discussions respecting proposed radical changes in the institutions in which their money is held. I realize that under the present corporate set-up the legal effect of their action would be of no consequence, but I am convinced the moral effect would be very persuasive."

During 1932 the number of telephone calls originating in the London area was 745,000,000.

FOUR GAMES FOR CAROLINA COMING WEEK

Chapel Hill, March 25.—The Carolina baseball team will open its season with a bang next week, playing Washington and Lee here Tuesday afternoon, Michigan State here Thursday and Friday afternoons, and Elon in Burlington on Saturday.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

The rent collector, fighting in the 147-pound class final, took the decision from the milkman with a few earnest, well-directed wallops to the chin.

A little black boy named Greene, his shock of kinky hair standing on end and his double-jointed arms reaching freely from all angles, won the flyweight open final from an aviation mechanic, two-time previous winner, in the "hit bout" of the evening.

A musician by trade took the count of ten in short order from a subway worker in the middleweight division, apparently much to the enjoyment of the appreciative galleries.

Fight For "Keeps"

No doubt there is a commercial side to the picture. Many of the boys are thinking of building themselves up for professional engagements, spurred on by busy managers in the background.

Boxing, in other words, is still a sport as it is put on by the Daily News A. A. and as it can be conducted in amateur ranks generally, if not harassed by the professional elements or subjected to control by professional commissions.

There appears no good reason in New York for example, to take amateur boxing away from the A. A. U. or the colleges and put it under the jurisdiction of the State athletic authorities.

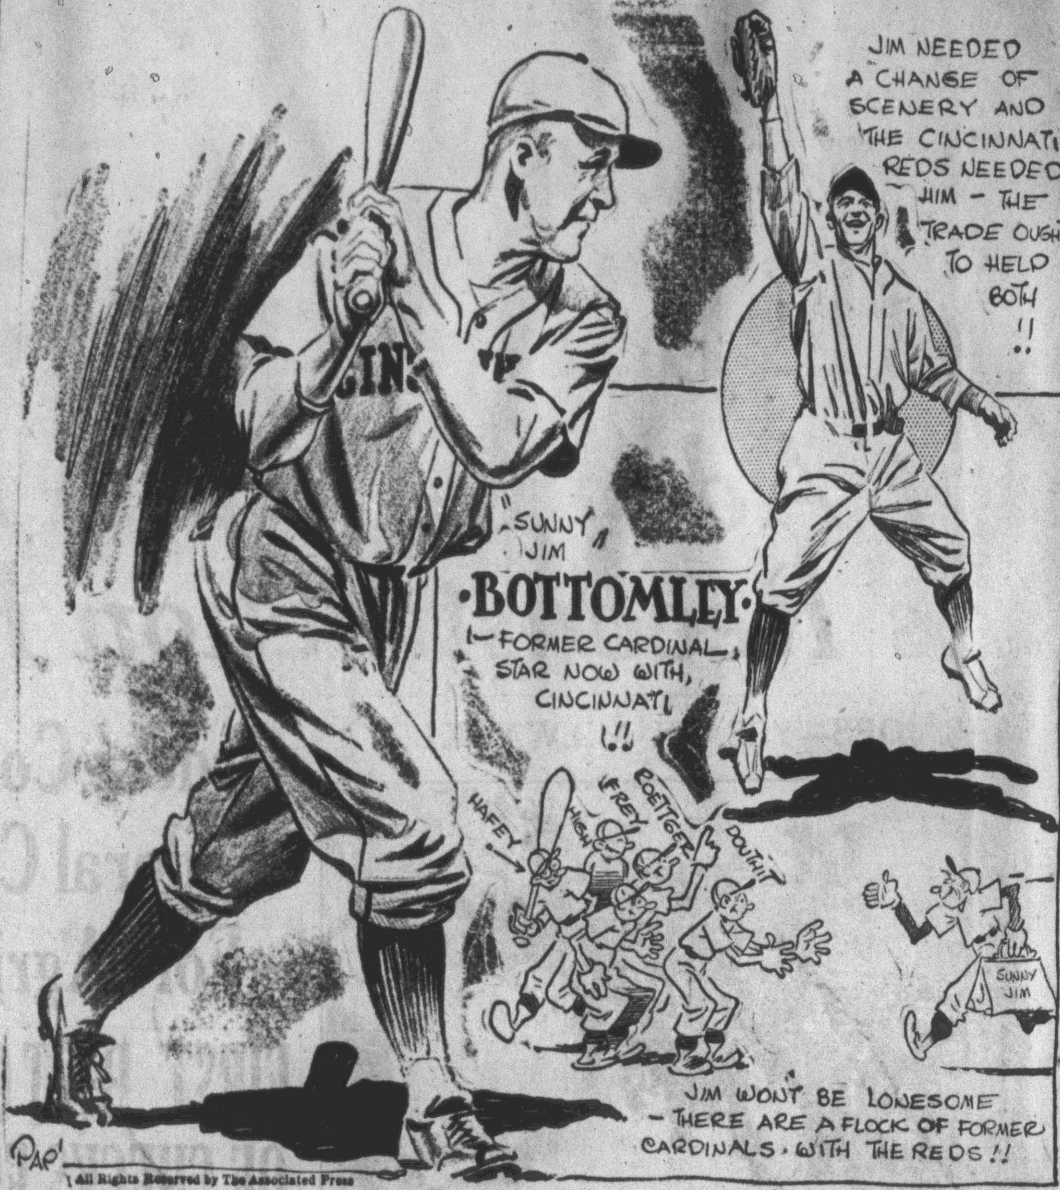

A number of names still are being mentioned for the head football coaching job at Holy Cross, the only outstanding 1932 vacancy still unfilled, but Harry Stuchdler of Villanova seems to be one of the leading candidates.

The "Four Horsemen" seem to be on the gallop again. Jimmy Crowley, who has just taken over the Fordham job, and Stuhldreher played together for nearly three full seasons at Notre Dame.

NEW BERN TO VOTE ON ARMORY BOND ISSUE

New Bern, N. C., March 25.—In special session at the city hall Wednesday night aldermen voted unanimously to call a special registration and election for authorization of a $10,000 self-liquidating loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for erection of a municipal auditorium and armory building on city property.

To carry out regulations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Local Government Commission, the $10,000 bond issue, to cover the proposed loan from the Federal organization, would have to be submitted to popular vote, so the aldermen set the election for Tuesday, May 2, the time for the regular biennial city election.

Talks to Parents

Barney, you may or may not know, is one of the big shots of New York's night life. His piece is a generous one for wealth, wit and fashion.

The visitor came out of the west with a letter of credit for $100,000 to close a big deal. He carried three certified checks for $33,333 each, for personal expenses.

When he presented one of his $300 checks at the window, he was told, "Sorry, we can't cash it for you. This is a bank holiday."

"Why, certainly I can't cash it now yet," protested the out-of-towner. "And it was the surprise of his life to learn what had happened; he had counted on some fun over the week-end before attending to business on Monday."

He reached into his change pocket. Sure enough, he had just a few cents in cash. "It happens that he comes to New York frequently; is well-known in the hotel where he stays. But the management apologetically turned him down when he asked for cash."

He wished cash, for one thing. So he succeeded in borrowing $25 from the dining-room capta'n. "But everywhere he went, on his week-end rounds, people urged him to take what he wanted, and charge it. They wouldn't cash his checks. They weren't interested in his paltry $25, either."

The business deal set for Monday was postponed, of course. Barney saw the visitor in his place Monday night. "Cay, Barney," he grinned, "I'm having the time of my life. It's the first genuine holiday I've had that I can remember. And here it is Monday, and I've got $17!"

"Holiday" in Night Life While I was sitting with Barney in one of the rooms of his pleasure mansion—very much like a movie set—a waiter brought him a check on a major bank for $100 signed by a prominent New Yorker.

"Just ask him to sign the tab," Barney instructed. "I'll send him a statement." This was on Tuesday night of the bank holiday. "We were supplying our good customers with cash," Herr Gallant explained, "but we had to stop yesterday. Now we take checks for the amount of the bill, or we'll send them statements later. We're not turning away anybody, however."

Four members of South Carolina's Southern Conference championship basketball team will play baseball this spring—the Tompkins brothers, Henderson and Wolf.

I was talking to a Hollywood producer who has under contract one of the famous film comedians. The comic wanted to come to New York with him, but just didn't dare. Why? Because, the actor fears, as soon as he arrives here, one of his former wives will have him put in jail for not keeping his alimony paid up.

One hears more and more about this State's severe alimony law, now that once wealthy playboys can't so laughingly toss off fat checks very monthly for their ex-spouses.

Jack Denny carries gold keys for his office, his home and his automobile. That's a sort of a fad around here, you know.

New York—You've heard so much about the "bank holiday" that the very thought of it may give you the wiggles. But perhaps you'll find something droll in this story Barney Gallant told me.

THE UNFAIR SEX

Women sometimes are accused by men of being poor sports, of taking advantages, of pleading unfairly for special exemption and favors.

This deep-running current of feeling is intensified through the fact that the girl so frequently finds her freedom hampered, her choice of friends censored, her work and play interfered with on the ground that her preference are "not nice—for a girl!"

Or again she is taught that she, more than her brother, must be unselfish, modest, reserved, tidy and polite because girls simply must be these things, they are expected of them, while boys—real boys—the kind that seem to be especially valued, are expected to be noisy, self-assertive, dirty and more or less lacking in manners.

If the mother is a meek and clinging woman, who would not think of settling any but the most trivial matters without her husband's advice and permission, this often adds to the girl's rebellious feeling that she has one more score to settle with the world of men.

The present tendency to cut out invidious distinctions between boys and girls, to treat them scrupulously alike as to discipline, freedom and responsibility, is a healthy one.

ABOUT NEW YORK

New York—Right off the bat I asked Mae West: "Will you promise you'll never try to go sweet and simple in the movies?"

"I'll promise you that, I know what I can do in the movies, and the movie men must have known when they asked for me."

"A lot of people have told me I ought to try something different now. But just like I told one woman when she says to me: 'You ought to show 'em you're versatile.'"

"Oh, I've seen 'em go out to Hollywood from the stage here, do one picture of the sort they're fitted for and then get the idea that they ought to be little tin god heroes or heroines. And what happened to 'em—most of 'em?"

"Yes, I'll promise you that—I'll never try to go sweet and simple in the movies."

With that out of the way, it seems fitting to bring up the subject of Mae West's charities. No sugar-coated hokum, this; it's a fact that she has helped a good many girls she met on Welfare Island when she served ten days there several years ago for offending the censors of the drama in this most free and liberal New York.

Stock Market

New York, March 25.—(AP)—The stock market again spent a session of idle listening today working lower for a time but recovering in the late trading to close irregularly.

The volume for the session approximated 400,000 shares. A number of soft spots appeared in the earlier dealing when such issues as American Telephone, Dupont and Case lost two to two and a half points.

Some of the wet issues and New York custom reflected latest unification steps and finished higher. The day's business statistics included car loading and indicated final comeback.

The total gains were 11,399 cars over the previous week, reaching 445,712 cars. This was a decrease of 23 per cent from last week of 1932 comparing with drop of a nearly 24 points in the previous week.

Coal shipments declined again in keeping with seasonable output but merchandise were higher.

Late News Flashes

Discuss State Bank Raleigh, N. C., March 25.—(AP)—Louis V. Sutton, who for the past several months had been vice-president of the Carolina Power and Light Company, was elected to the presidency of the corporation this week.

He will become president and general manager to succeed Paul Tilley who died recently.

It is proposed to form the new central bank by a merger of the State banks which have not been allowed to receive unrestricted business since the bank holiday.

To Hear Negro's Petition Durham, March 25.—(AP)—A hearing on a mandamus action brought by Thomas Hocutt, Durham negro, in an effort to have him self enrolled as a student at the University of North Carolina was continued here today after Hocutt exhibited qualifications of his record at Hillside high school.

Thomas J. Wilson, register of the University, testified before Judge M. V. Barnhill that Hocutt had offered no record of work at North Carolina College for Negroes, and Hocutt admitted that point. Hocutt took the stand to read his application for admittance to the university school of pharmacy and listed his high school record as qualification.

Counsel for the university intimated that the court may be asked to throw out the action on grounds that the phraseology of the action is irregular. Judge Barnhill reset the hearing for Tuesday.

GRIFTON BUS DRIVERS PLACE SAFETY FIRST

Kinston, N. C., March 24.—Grifton school bus drivers "cross cautiously." Their safety-mindedness has been called to the attention of C. M. Cobb, Norfolk district superintendent of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

In a safety conference here, attended by transportation and roadway men, Engineer Charles Ellington said the Grifton bus drivers always stop at the tracks, alight and look up and down the tracks. Others had praise for the drivers. The Grifton station agent said they had been at it a long time.

Incidentally, when the conference ended, George Hawk, aged conductor, uttered a fervent prayer that God make all of the "Coast Line's" employees safety-minded.
