There are 700 American civilians and five hundred United States marines in the Peiping area. DON'T VIOLATE THE RIGHT OF THE PEOPLE

The Senate yesterday saw fit to pass the beer and wine bill on its second reading after defeating an amendment that would have submitted the matter to a vote of the people on May 30, which we believe was an overstepping of sound judgment on the part of the Senate even if within its rights.

Since this question of a change in our prohibition laws came to the front we have argued and still maintain that there should be no change in this state without a vote of the people in view of the fact it was by a vote of the people that the sale of all intoxicants including beer was outlawed in this state by a vote of the people. No doubt we will be told that the legislature preferred to take the action itself because of the expense attached to a special election but as we see it, the best and only way to settle this question at this time is to let the people vote on it and let the majority rule. Even if it would cost something to hold the election we do feel that even this justifies the taking away of the people's rights and if the sale of beer will bring in as much revenue as its proponents claim it will bring in, it would take only a small portion of this revenue to pay for the election in case the state voted wet. On the other hand, if the state voted dry, the cost of the election would prove to be money well spent because in that way the majority would maintain its right to rule.

Even though the Senate continues its action to disregard the right of the people to vote on this question it is to be hoped that when the matter reaches the House that body will so amend it as to make the measure subject to ratification by a vote of the people at a special election to be held at the earliest possible time.

We reiterate that through an election is the only fair way to handle this matter and we urge that such action be taken.

AMBASSADOR DANIELS

Despite the recent demonstration in Mexico City we are still of the opinion that Josephus Daniels is the man for that important post and that both this country and Mexico are fortunate that he saw fit to accept this call to duty.

We agree heartily with Labor in its editorial comment as follows:

When Josephus Daniels, new ambassador to Mexico, took the oath of office before his elder brother the other day, someone called him

VALIANT DUST

by Percival Christopher Wren

SYNOPSIS: The welter of intrigue against France in the Citadel of Meckzen suddenly ends in death for the Kaid of Meckzen, and capture for the traitorous Major Riccoli of the Foreign Legion. Raisul, son of the Kaid, flings Jules Maligni, who had betrayed him, from a high balcony to death below. Colonel Le Sage of the French Secret Service at the balcony only to find a rope dangling from it. Otho Belleme is sent down the rope to find Raisul. Meanwhile, Margaret Maligni, Jules' English wife, is awakened by a wild cry.

Chapter 47

A TERRIBLE THREAT

What was that? Margaret sprang up. No doubt of it, this time! A cry and then a crash. No, a catter, still sounding in her ears.

The cup! Someone had sent it rolling, bumping and clattering across the stone floor. Merciful Heaven, help! There was a man—standing on the coping of the balcony—clearly silhouetted against the moonlight and the luminous sky.

He was hanging on a rope—or holding to it, as he stood on the balcony ledge—and he had kicked the tin cup into the room as he sought foothold.

Had she not gone and drunk water, and left the cup there in the middle of the coping—he would have got into the room in perfect silence, and found her there asleep.

Well—now he had found her awake. Thank God for the pistol. But she couldn't shoot the man in cold blood, without a word. Yet if she waited much longer, her hand certainly would begin to shake.

Could he see her now? Why did not he move? Of course, he was listening, peering. Should she fire, or speak?

She should fire. Heavens, no! It might not be Raisul. And if it were Raisul—and she killed him—what would happen to them all, as soon as the Kaid knew? Things unthinkable.

The man stooped and stepped down into the balcony. "Well?" said Margaret quietly, and turned up the lamp.

"Good evening, my dear. One would almost have thought that you were expecting me. Well you will be expecting me after tonight, though I shan't have to come down a rope."

"Stop! Stand still," cried Margaret. "Good Heavens! A real pistol! What a desperate young woman! Now I wonder where on earth you got that thing. And I wonder whether it's loaded. And I wonder whether you can use it."

"Stop!" cried Margaret again. "Stand still. If you cross that mat, I'll shoot you."

"Well, well," he grinned, and suddenly sobered. "Love me, Margaret, have me. I will make you happy. I swear it by the Ninety and Nine sacred names of Allah. Love? What do these Christian dogs know of love?"

And Raisul deliberately stepped into the middle of the mat, just as Margaret perforce lowered her aching arm.

"Shoot, Margaret!" he said, and spread his arms wide, exposing his breast. Margaret raised the pistol.

"Shoot, Margaret!" he repeated, standing steady as a rock, smiling unflinchingly.

What should she do? He was edging nearer. Why didn't she shoot him as he stood there smiling at her? But how could she kill him—when only too well she knew the terrible consequences.

"Shoot Margaret!" invited Raisul for the third time. "Let me die here at your feet. For how can man die better?"

And Raisul took another step towards the bed. "Please don't make me kill you, Raisul," Margaret said. "Have you no decency at all? You shan't die on the praying-carpet. But I swear to God you shall die if you step off it. If you move another inch I shall be justified in firing in self-defense."

"You won't be kind?" "Go, will you?" "All right, Margaret, all right, I'll go. And when I come back, it will be with his blood on my hands—on my hands and on your head, Margaret."

"What do you mean?" whispered Margaret, and again, perforce, she lowered the pistol, that he might the "First Citizen of North Carolina." At the risk of starting an argument on state's rights, LABOR approves the title, and adds that Mr. Daniels is pretty well up in the citizenship of the United States.

He was one of the best if not the very best secretary the United States navy ever had. He kept the sea arm at a high pitch of efficiency, and in all the building and confusion of the war period, there was no hint of graft in his administration. Yet while giving naval officers the widest freedom and responsibility in war, he kept that civilian attitude which is vital in the minister of a republic. And the sheer profane eloquence with which he "cussed out" the gruffers who tried to get the naval reserves should not be forgotten.

Daniels is a Democrat, with a small "d" as well as with a large one. He is a Southern liberal; and that puts him in a mighty valuable group. He will go to Mexico as representative of the American people, not of American bankers; and if he gets a chance to help Mexico, he will do it. The United States is fortunate to have him for an envoy, and Mexico is fortunate in having him as a national guest.

Italian Press Sees Fascism Ruling World

By A. EDWIN STUNTZ

Rome.—(AP)—An exuberant Fascist press linking recent events in different nations, is predicting that within a few years the Mussolini system of government will be the rule, rather than the exception, throughout the world.

These prophets who foresee a day when the victor's rods, symbol of unbreakable Fascist unity, shall be the emblem of all well governed people, have coupled Hitler's ascendancy in Germany with President Roosevelt's idea of increased executive powers in the United States, as justifying their vision.

Duce's Own Paper Leads Il Popolo d'Italia, the Milan daily owned by Benito Mussolini, led a deluge of editorial acclamation of these two events, saying:

"The twentieth century will become the century of universal Fascism. Farcial democracy has been reduced to the miserable necessity of maintaining itself with arms, money and intrigue."

President Roosevelt's inaugural address statement that he would ask for exceptional powers if necessary to combat the economic situation, was interpreted by Il Popolo d'Italia and other Italian newspapers as the new President's definite recognition of Il Duce's superlative political system.

Deride All Explanations Interpretative articles in the north European press, direct cable reports, and any other media suggesting that President Roosevelt merely has asked for a time-honored constitutional privilege to meet a national emergency, have brought Italian press derision.

As far as this press is concerned, the United States has gone Fascist, consciously or unconsciously. Any other explanation of the American political situation is considered an effort to evade "recognition of Il Duce's undeniable political genius."

"The skeleton of rusty democracy is bending and crumbling," said Il Popolo.

Other Countries Cited "Fascism has started its march toward the redemption and liberation of all peoples" from odious, prohibitive, and worn out political systems. It has begun its universal drive toward the regeneration of all nations and the veritable peace of the world.

The press has found supporting argument for these sweeping assumptions in reports from yet other countries.

Sir Oswald Mosley's cry that England and the other great nations, must adopt Mussolini's political philosophy or go under, received the solemn commendation of Italian publications.

See All Following Duce Ex-Premier Edouard Herriot's alleged assertion that the French parliamentary system was a failure was a six-day source of specially grateful editorial comment.

The trend toward absolute dictatorship in Austria and Greece, the reported visions of a Fascist Spain by the venerable republican Alejandro Lerroux—all these things, says the Italian press, owe their inspiration to Mussolini.

Order—Finally Then the House did something that only rarely sees.

A burst of applause was heard that drowned out everything. It kept up. When McFarlane attempted to resume his speech the applause was only the louder.

It looked for a while as if he would not be able to continue. But Marvin Jones, of Texas, who was presiding, pounded his gavel with such force that order was finally restored.

McFarlane resumed talking, but in a different manner. It was evident that "the applause under the seat" had had its effect.

The Record of the day's proceedings was as follows: McFarlane, of Texas, who was presiding, pounded his gavel with such force that order was finally restored.

Underhill, of Massachusetts, for example, is gone. Always jealous of the traditions of the House, he could be counted on to "dress down" one of two sessions, and in a fashion that usually was effective.

As a rule, the newcomers in the seventy-third have been permitted to go pretty much their own way. They have spoken whenever they wanted to, or rather, when they could get the time, and have been listened to rather attentively.

It Still Works But the familiar old custom of the House of "applauding under the seats"—that phrase known on Capitol Hill as denoting disapproval of something a member does—has not been discarded entirely. It was used on a freshman Representative just the other day with telling effect.

It happened during debate on the District of Columbia beer bill. A new member from Texas—McFarlane—was recognized for five minutes to speak in opposition to the bill.

McFarlane, an ardent prohibitionist who already had broken into debate on this subject several times, began to attack the bill. During the course of his remarks he charged that before prohibition some members of the House had been under the influence of alcohol and had appeared on the floor in such a condition.

O'Connor, of New York, a broad-shouldered, outspoken man, was on his feet instantly. He came back at McFarlane vigorously, declaring that the charge was an old one which had long since been disproved and that he was amazed that the Texan would bring it up again.

Liver Sufferers Amazed At Results Obtained From Remarkable New Treatment Thousands Reporting Sargon Soft Mass Pills Have Brought Them Lasting Relief From Constipation—Sour Stomach—Sick Headaches—Gas—Bad Breath—Coated Tongue—Nervousness and Dizzy Spells After Everything Else Had Failed. If Your Liver Is Not Performing Its Proper Functions—Sickness—Suffering and Ill Health Are the Inevitable Result. Science Has Proved That Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, Laxative Pills, Herb Teas or Extracts Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile. Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of the effects produced by this natural cleansing of your liver and bowels. It makes you feel years younger, stronger, healthier and happier. It brings back life and color to faded eyes and cheeks, restores the appetite and sound digestion—gives you a new outlook on life itself. Bile is nature's laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, gas and disease germs. When your liver becomes sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for germs and poisons; your food does not digest—it just ferments and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sour stomach. Sargon Soft Mass Pills remove the cause of this condition in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, thorough and natural in their action there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and most remarkable of all you gradually reduce the dose until you no longer require a laxative of any kind. Insist on genuine Sargon Soft Mass Pills. Don't be misled. There are only two generally recognized substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them. Only 50c for a full 30-day treatment. CALL OFF ELECTION ON SCHOOL PROBLEM
New Bern, N. C., March 31—Effecting an approved compromise, residents of Vanceboro have called off their election planned for Wednesday and decided to build an auditorium in the rear of the administration building of the Vanceboro farm life school with the money received from insurance for a burned dormitory at the school.

Previously it was debated as to whether the money should be used to replace the burned dormitory or to build a new building for the Vanceboro graded school.

DUKE GLEE CLUB PLEASES AUDIENCE

The Duke glee club, under the direction of J. Foster Barnes, delighted the audience at East Carolina Teachers College last night with a program varied enough to include numbers to suit all tastes. The glee club sang three groups of songs.

The guest artist, Lawrence Clarke Agar, the university organist and carillonneur, gave two groups of piano selections. Johnny Long, the other guest artist, although left-handed was by no means a freak artist but a real violinist. The soloists, John Cole and Allen Stanley, seemed to be great favorites and were called back time and again for encores. A trio and a quartet completed the program.

John Cole is a musician of some, played with remarkable poetic imagination and excellent technique. He proved that he could use the piano as a medium for artistic expression as well as the organ and the carillons.

John Cole's singing of "Sylvia" and other familiar songs brought the most vociferous applause from the college girls.

The first group of songs sung by the glee club, composed of four classics, tested the musicianship of the singers, and they showed by their singing their fine appreciation of the best music. The second group was the most popular. The favorite glee club number of the evening was perhaps "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho." The college songs at the close inspired all to a feeling of loyalty, no matter what the college.

All of the singers seemed to enjoy the evening as much as the audience did. The accompanist was Carlos Moseley. The business manager

SPORT SLANTS

"Babe Ruth" notes a sporting commentator, "from various sources has received perhaps twelve million dollars since he separated himself from a Baltimore parochial school to become the technical ward of the late Jack Dunn, owner of the Orioles."

Maybe this was the proof-reader's fault or a bit of mathematical miscalculation. The Babe has done some amazing things in the course of his career, financially and artistically, but he never collected twelve million in rufes, yen or pesos, much less dollars.

Without trying too deeply into the great man's personal affairs, I should say a fair estimate would be that the Babe, from all sources of revenue, has taken in somewhere in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 in the last twenty years; certainly no more than $2,000,000. If it was over that, Ruth would like to know it.

Of course this dwarfs the earnings of any other two ball players combined. Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby included. It seems fantastic, even so, but the fact is that Ruth's salary checks alone for nineteen years run to around $900,000, and that he nearly doubled this with his "cut" of receipts from advertising stunts, sundry endorsements of everything from candy to underwear, ghost-writing, motion pictures and barnstorming.

Was a Free-Spender The truth is that Ruth's days of slashing into the big outside money, while the boom was on, were limited in several ways. He got his biggest slice out of the motion pictures but his manager and other associates took a fair portion of most of the profits from by-product activities.

Of course the Babe was a free-spender in the "old" days. Never having been used to handling important money, it simply meant something to get rid of in exchange for a good time. He cannot say now just how much he frittered away on bright lights and dark nights, elusive friends and unruly horses. Anyway, it ran well up into six figures.

The interesting contrast here is that the Ruth of today knows just what happens to all his money. Just how much income tax he has to pay and what the income is on every investment. If he doesn't, his wife does. They have a family budget. Ruth doesn't keep the books but he signs the checks. The Yankees no longer have to counsel the Babe to be thrifty and put something away for the rainy day of his old age.

$1,000 Per Homer Barring injury or some unexpected setback Ruth should come close to hitting a home run for each $1,000 of his salary for 1933, which of course will not prove anything or be of much interest to anyone outside the statistical department.

The Babe's homers were cheapest for the Yankees in 1920, when he hit 54 on a $30,000 salary and 1921, when he bumped the total up to 59 for $30,000.

Thereafter Ruth never was paid less than $52,200 per season, until he signed his latest contract, and he did not pass the 50-mark again until he clubbed 60 in 1927, his first year under a three-year $70,000 per year contract.

Gas Mask Drill Fits French To Meet Air Raids Paris—(AP)—Gas mask training is preparing French Red Cross nurses to protect the civil population in case of war.

Hitler's rise to power and French fears that Germany intends to re-arm have stimulated a program to save the people from the terrors of a war in the air and the possibilities of gas attacks behind the lines.

Part of the Red Cross army of 20,000 nurses, active and reserve, is being trained in the use of gas masks. Red Cross officials confirm.

Nurses equipped with the unwieldy harness which is part of even the lightest masks, have been sent into gas filled rooms here for increasingly longer periods to accustom them to working while wearing masks.

Filtering gas masks of a model which department stores say have been approved by the army, are now on sale in three sizes in several of the largest establishments at $4 each and experiments are being conducted for the manufacture of little masks for children.

The office of Marshal Petain, inspector general of aerial defense for France, and the League of Aerial Defense, founded two years ago, are among other forces working for the protection of French citizens in case of aerial attacks.

aims has been increasingly voiced in parliament and the press since Hitler's Nazis began their march to power two years ago. The elevation of the Nazi leader to the chancellery, the recent visit of Princess Hermine, wife of the former kaiser, to Berlin, and Germany's reoccupation of the royal colors have contributed to French nightmares.

New York Cotton

New York, March 31.—(AP)—The stock market looked a little stronger today, but was still listless. Indications of part progress in throwing off the recent retardative influence on general business were shown in week-end surveys, although the improvement had not gone far enough to restore profits to levels sufficient to induce general enthusiasm.

The market bulged up in the morning under leadership of sugar and tobacco, but advances were lost by the early afternoon. American Tobacco and Liggett and Myers rose one to two points and sugar advanced fractions.

Rails encountered some selling. Northern Pacific lost a point on an early rise of one and a half in Union Pacifics was canceled. Wet stocks eased under profit-taking. Allied Chemical and U. S. Steel advanced fractions but Utilities sagged.

Stock Market

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, three to seven points lower under liquidation and selling overnight on reports of Farm Board liquidation.

At the end of the first half hour the market was up a point or two from the low. The market was quiet later in the morning. There was little trade buying or covering. At midday May was holding around 6.27 and October 6.53, or two to three points net lower.

MEEKINS CRITICISES FEDERAL DRY AGENTS Elizabeth City, N. C., March 31.—After severely criticizing Federal dry agents for their tactics in arresting Alton and Wilce Forbes, Camden youths, on a charge of obstructing Federal officers in performance of their duties, Federal Judge J. M. Meekins freed the two in Federal Court here Tuesday.

The case grew out of a phase in Camden County last Friday, during which Dry Agent R. E. Walton attempted to drive around the Forbes car to get a car suspected of hauling liquor. The Forbes car side-swiped the car of the dry agent and turned it over, inflicting minor injuries to Walton's legs.

TWO ROCKY MOUNT MEN IN JAIL AT FAYETTEVILLE

Rocky Mount, March 31.—Two Rocky Mount men were in jail at Fayetteville last night in connection with an attempted robbery earlier this week in which a third man, A. W. Bradford, a former resident of Rocky Mount, was fatally shot by officers.

The two held at Fayetteville are Fritz Brinkley and Lewis (Conn) Taylor. Local police learned of the arrests when Fayetteville authorities telephoned them to determine what police records, if any, either man had here.

Local officers found no record against Taylor but found two entries against Brinkley. In one he was bound over from local recorder's court to Edgecombe county Superior court to a term on the roads. In the other he was charged with larceny of an automobile but no probable cause was found.

GETS TWO-YEAR TERM FOR OPERATION OF STILL

Snow Hill, March 31.—In the recorder's court here Tuesday Charlie Cherry, a white tenant on the farm owned by the two Ormond brothers, who slew each other last week and who was charged with operation of the still, which was the cause of the double homicide, was tried and found guilty, the sentence being two years on the county roads. Cherry confessed the operation of the still but charged that Ed Ormond, one of the brother, furnished the material for making the liquor.

SCHOOL TO ESTABLISH COURSE ON MARRIAGE

Asheville, March 31.—The Asheville Normal and Teachers College, widely known institution for the education of young women, will offer a course in courtship and marriage to its students for the first time during the 1933-34 academic year. Announcement of this effect has been made by John E. Calfee, president of the college.

SHORTEN THE TERM AT KINSTON SCHOOL

Kinston, March 31.—The school department at the Caswell Training School will be continued, Dr. W. Harvey Dixon, superintendent, announced today. The term will be shortened by a month. Recently it was reported that the school would be closed and the institution would become a "place of segregation for mentally defective children," of whom between 600 and 700 are housed in the state institution.

The number of employees has been reduced to 56, and their salaries will be cut 10 per cent next month. Expenditures at the school for the nine months ending March 31 were estimated at $72,681.86. The per capita cost for the period was placed at $113.38. Dr. Dixon estimated expenditures for the fourth quarter of the fiscal year at $17,000. According to his figures, it cost $12.59 a month to keep a child during the first nine months and will cost $8.88 a month during the last quarter.

It has cost 41 cents a day for each child since the beginning of the fiscal year, the superintendent said, but the per diem cost will be cut to 29 cents beginning April 1.

UNDERGROUND "GOODSWAY" TO SAVE LONDON BIG SUM

London.—(AP)—A scheme for an 80-mile underground "goodsway" for London was outlined at a luncheon here of the Industrial Transport Association. It would cost $15,000,000.

By this plan the great bulk of London's freight would be carried in fast electric vans running in 16-foot tunnels through the blue clay far below the existing passenger tubes.

Proponents of the scheme said it would save from 60 to 80 per cent of the time now required to move goods about London and would reduce costs of distribution by $200,000,000 a year.

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
