Moscow, April 13.—(AP)—Two British engineers accused of espionage and sabotage faced each other today across the court-room where they are on trial one turning State's evidence and the other denying the charge.

William McDonald, the only one of the accused employees of the Metropolitan-Vickers Company to plead guilty when the trial was begun yesterday, amplified his previous testimony to the effect that he acted under the instruction of L. C. Thornton, another defendant in governing military and economic information which subsequently was sent to England.

As today's session began, McDonald caused a stir of a sensation by declaring he had made the incriminating statement at the time of his arrest because of methods by Russian police.

He said they had shown him a statement they said had been made by Thornton in which Thornton had used McDonald's name to collect information. For the moment it looked as though he would repudiate his confession, but later he confessed this guilt of all charges.

Large Cotton Use By Beet Refiners Aid Thrift Sewing

Denver, Colo.—(AP)—Forty million square yards of cotton cloth sacking may not only go around this year's beet output, leaders of that industry say, but also may encircle the waists of American housewives as aprons and undergarments.

Twenty-six million 100-pound sacks will make up this yardage. Sugar and flour sacks have long been prized as potential underwear by beet field workers and other who even have fashioned outer garments from the burlap bags.

This year the sugar industry took advantage of low cotton prices and ordered the yardage in advance. That assures cotton for makeshift garments this year at least.

Laboratory experiments have produced for the beet sugar industry an ink which vanishes under stern scrubbing after serving its purpose of labeling the 26,000,000 sugar sacks with the brand and trademark.

Time was when heavy cotton sugar and flour sacks were regarded by the American housewife as an ideal dish towel and nothing more. But now the industry, noting the increased usage of sacks as apparel, has fashioned the containers accordingly.

Years ago the industry furnished an inside and outside covering to those who used sack clothing. Sugar was packed in cotton sacks first and then placed in heavy burlap containers. Beet sugar growers said it was common to see a Mexican child clad in cotton underwear and a burlap overcoat.

In 1931 the beet sugar industry used 27,000,000 square yards of cotton cloth sacking.

Cotton cloth used by the sugar industry this year will cost about $2,500,000.

SCHOOLS HERE TAKE EASTER

College and City Institutions Close Today For Observance Of Holidays

East Carolina Teachers college and city schools closed today for observance of the Easter holidays. Short sessions were held by all institutions during the morning hours after which students were dismissed to begin preparations for observance of the Easter season.

The college campus was almost deserted during the afternoon hours as the majority of students had left to spend the holidays with relatives in other parts of the country. The school will resume work next Thursday.

City schools closed at the noon hour and many of the teachers left for their homes in other parts of the country. They will return in time for resumption of work next Tuesday morning.

High school students turned their attention to the various activities to take part in the city during the holidays, while some visited in other parts of the state to take part in the social whirl of the younger set.

Class work at city schools began somewhat earlier this morning to permit the closing at the non hour but all teachers and students were on hand at the appointed time, eager to complete the day's schedule and then hit away for several days diversion.

The exodus of the majority of college students was made by huge busses operating in and out of the city, while others had relatives to come for them in automobiles.

It was a gala day at all schools as the happy throng commenced the annual pilgrimage home, and if bright and shining faces may be counted an index to Easter, it will be a very happy occasion.

Aberdeen, April 13.—Mrs. Kathleen Parsons, giving her address as Damascus, Va., is in Moore county Hospital at Pinehurst, recovering from the effects of permanganate of potash tablets, which she took late yesterday afternoon in an attempt to commit suicide in her room at Wiley's Hotel here. At about 6 o'clock she called for the wife of the proprietor-saying she was suffering great pain. A doctor was called. He gave her first aid and she was carried to the hospital.

A letter addressed to her husband in Damascus, stated that as she was unable to find work and her money gone she had decided this step was the best way out.

Mrs. Parsons is a young woman of attractive appearance.

MAN'S CASES FACE COURT TERM HERE

Murder Charges Expected to Consume Much Time in Two Week Session

A two-week term of criminal Superior court will convene here next Monday morning for consideration of a docket of between a hundred and two hundred cases.

Judge Henry Grady, of Clinton, who presided over a civil term here two weeks ago, will also preside over the criminal term, and it was expected the bulk of the docket would be completed.

Promising to hold more interest than all others combined is the murder charge against T. H. Barnhill, aged farmer of the Bethel district, who was arrested nearly two years ago for the alleged slaying of his ward, Jesse Barnhill, to obtain $10,000 insurance money.

The defendant is also charged with manufacturing liquor, the last charge developing during the investigation of the murder case.

The case has been set for hearing two or three times, but was postponed to permit the state to finish compiling evidence.

Jesse Barnhill was found dead on the road near Flat Swamp church. He had been shot through the head and body and killed instantly. Officers investigated the case and sometime later arrested the elder Barnhill following information he had been seen with his ward in an automobile only a short time before the murder was believed to have been committed.

Barnhill, vigorously denied the charge, saying he had no idea who killed the young man. The case is set for hearing April 25.

Perry Little, colored, will face the grand jury on a charge of slaying Lucy Sugg, negroess, while in a fit of jealousy on January 15th.

Leroy Eckard, colored, of Ayden, is being held for the slaying of a woman at Ayden, and Mary Lee

TRADE BODY HOLDS MEET

F. C. Harding of Greenville Addresses Eastern Chamber at Scotland Neck

Scotland Neck, April 13.—The eleventh annual dinner of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce which was held in the Scotland Neck Hotel Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, was attended by members of units from Kingston, Aulander, Weldon, Enfield, Greenville, Palmyra, Roxobel, Rocky Mount and Halifax.

Special features of entertainment were songs by Miss Katherine Murr, of Kingston, and group singing by Mrs. J. T. Hardy, Mrs. Joe Whitehead, Mrs. Charles Lawrence and Mrs. Robert Josey of this place. Grady-Jones Orchestra, which played for the dance later, furnished excellent music at intervals during the evening.

In the absence of the president, Guy Smith, of Greenville, C. S. Alexander, a member of the local unit, presided. Be Bracy, mayor of Scotland Neck, made the address of welcome, which was responded to by A. T. Castellio, of Aulander, who gave some suggestions for living in this time of financial stress. J. A. Jones, prominent attorney of Kingston, then made a short talk on "The Way Out."

The speaker held his audience with deep interest as he traced the development of the South, especially this section of North Carolina from years past up to the present time. He dwelt at some length on the Civil War, showing how it was really a blessing in disguise, since it severed from the nation of "dark cancer of slavery." Advancing through the years the effect of reconstruction days and past depressions was touched on until the speaker declared the crisis of the past few weeks has cleansed and purified our country.

Today in the Legislature
Raleigh, April 13.—(AP)—Selected committee taxes held the center of legislative interest today as the house continued consideration of the revenue bill while the senate worked through its calendar and prepared to take a short Easter vacation.

URGE TO JOIN CIRCUS IS STRONG IN RUSSIA

New York, April 13.—That the urge to join the circus is as strong among the rising generation in the Soviet Union as elsewhere seems indicated by the fact that last year more than 500 boys and girls living in all parts of the country applied for admission to the Technicum of Circus Art in Moscow.

Only 120 of these applications got as far as the final tryout before a jury composed of experienced circus players, Oscar G. Lindner, the director of the school, sport instructors et al. and 67 were accepted.

J. L. HASSELL PASSES AWAY AT HOME HERE

Prominent Railroad Man and Political Leader Succumbs to Months of Illness

J. L. Hassell, 68, for years prominent in railroad and political circles of this city, passed away at his home on Pitt Street this morning at 9:20 o'clock. Death followed illness of several months and was not unexpected, although it was regretted by his many friends in this and other sections of the State.

Funeral services will be conducted from his late home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. E. L. Hillman, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Interment will follow in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Hassell was a member of the Board of Aldermen at the time of his death. He had served in this capacity several times, but was elected for the last term over a year ago. In this capacity he served as mayor-pro-tem prior to the last term.

He had been connected with the Norfolk Southern Railroad for forty years prior to his illness when he was given leave of absence until his health permitted his return to service.

He moved to Greenville from Edenton twenty-six years ago and had been agent of the local Norfolk Southern Railway office since that time. He was held in high regard by railroad men throughout the division and probably was one of the oldest men from the standpoint of service at the time his health forced his retirement.

He was a member of the Masonic order a member of the Shrine, and a charter member of the Greenville Rotary Club.

John Linwood Hassell was born September 7, 1865, in Tyrrell County, being the son of J. L. and Mrs. Sarah Hassell. He entered the railroad business when a young man and was one of the first agents of the Norfolk Southern.

PREPARE FOR EASTER HERE

Musical Program and Annual Style Parade To Be Feature of Occasion

With the closing of the college and public schools, Greenville today witnessed the first activities in connection with celebration of the Easter season.

Although preparation for Easter has been underway for sometime by the churches, the closing of the schools formed the prelude for the celebration which will extend through the latter part of next week when the college resumes work.

Special musical programs are being planned by virtually all churches of the city. The most of these will be given next Sunday evening, but choir singing during the morning services will be reminiscent and in keeping with the season.

Always of interest to the feminine element is the annual showing of spring and summer clothing. While chill winds sweeping over the section today threatened to put a damper on this phase of the celebration, the weather man held out some hope of improvement through his declaration of "slowly rising temperatures" for today and tomorrow.

With bright wearing apparel the vogue for both men and women this year the annual style parade is expected to eclipse anything in recent years. The shortage of money probably will make an inroad into many of the wardrobes, but with prices down for all lines of wearing apparel it was believed most of those who take part in the annual parade will not be conspicuous for the in-paucity this year.

One of the most inspirational seasons of the year in the religious realm, churches were looking forward to tremendous crowds both morning and evening. The majority of sermons were expected to deal with the "Resurrection" one of the most important occasions celebrated by the Christian world, holding forth as it does the promise of immortality, or life beyond the grave.

FIRE DESTROYS Smokehouse And Big Meat Supply

A smokehouse containing about 5,000 pounds of meat and lard on the farm of Lee Nobles, several miles northwest of the city, was destroyed by fire about the noon hour yesterday entailing loss estimated at approximately $500. The building was partially insured but the contents were not.

The origin of the blaze was not determined, but is believed to have resulted from the smoking of hams a short time before the fire was discovered.

The flames had gained such headway when the alarm was sounded that it was impossible to save either the building or a portion of its contents.

For the first time in twenty-five years there is no organized baseball in St. Louis grade school this season, due to lack of funds.

SAYS OBJECT TO GET PEACE FOR NATIONS

Speaking of American Policy The Premier Declared He Would Not Try to Swerve America From Intention of Avoiding Foreign Alliances; Says World Not Indifferent to Threatening Influence Active in Europe

London, April 13.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, during a foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons today, outlined the object of his trip to the Washington conference as an attempt to bring nations of the world closer together, not in alliances, but in spirit, and to secure co-operative effort to secure a solution of economic and political problems.

The Prime Minister will sail Saturday.

"The American policy," the Premier said, "has always been that she will not enter into European entanglements, and I would not try to persuade America to do otherwise than carry out that policy."

"The only possible exception would be in event of world agreement clearly defined regarding an aggressor, America having been part to the agreement."

MacDonald declared the world could not be indifferent to certain threatening influences active in Europe today.

LOADED SCHOOL BUS CRASHES INTO TREE

LeXington, April 13.—None of the fourteen pupils of the Breda Consolidated school, four miles west of here, who were treated for injuries when a school bus left the highway and crashed into a tree late yesterday were reported today as being in serious condition.

The hurt of four were of a very painful nature but injuries of the others were pronounced superficial, according to information given out here today by Supt. Paul F. Evans, of the county school.

Elmer Harley, 17 the driver, was quoted as saying the steering wheel apparently locked. Supt. Evans, who investigated the accident, said several children on the bus reported the driver had turned his head to speak to some of the group who were singing and the vehicle, loaded with nearly 50 children of the Yacklin College community, plunged off the road into a pine field. The vehicle did not turn over, and to this Supt. Evans attributed the escape from perhaps more serious results.

OUR LEGISLATORS ON THE RIGHT TRACK

Summing up our editorial stand on the tax situation since the legislature began to talk about the sales tax we dispatched the following telegram to each of the three Pitt County representatives Tuesday night setting forth the situation as it appears to us.

Do not consider general sales tax necessary if majority of members of legislature had moral courage to place proper tax on power companies, foreign stocks, tobacco companies that are making millions in profits and similar corporations, and selected commodity tax as last resort if above does not raise sufficient revenues. If you vote for general sales tax without these other sources having first been taxed to the limit we are compelled to consider you in the class of those legislators who are bowing to the rich interests and privileged classes of the state at the expense of the masses, many of whom are now without the necessities of life. Will welcome statement as to your stand on these matters.

Signed THE DAILY REFLECTOR David J. Whichard, Jr.

While we have received no personal statement from either Messrs. Flanagan, Edwards or Corey to pass on to our readers in this county actions speak louder than words and it is gratifying to note that in the House both Mr. Flanagan and Mr. Edwards voted for the kilowatt tax on power companies, voted against the general sales tax provision of the revenue bill, and Mr. Flanagan taking the lead was instrumental in the passage of further amendments to the revenue bill, that would recapture for state purposes from the big corporations the amounts that were to be lost through the ad valorem reduction. Among these measures was the Everett-White amendment to tax foreign corporations on the market value of their stocks thereby greatly increasing revenue from these sources. This measure likewise received the hearty support and vote of our two representatives.

Believing that these policies for which we have stood represent the wishes of the great majority of our people we take this opportunity to congratulate Messrs. Flanagan and Edwards for their stand on these matters and to thank them on behalf of our people.

We have contended from the start that a general sales tax should be avoided and this recent action by our Representatives is an indication that we are of the same mind as to where the money should come from. We urge them to continue their efforts along this line and

The White Cockatoo by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: One moment merely an engineer on a holiday, dozing in his room, Jim Sundeau next finds himself entangled in murder. It began with a plea from Sue ally for help against an unseen abductor; he goes for the key of Sue's room; and finds a body in the hall of this almost empty French hotel. Leaving a priest praying over the body, Sundeau follows the lead of Lovschien, manager of the hotel, and begins a search of his own. His flashlight is shot from his hand; he plunges down a stair into the dark court as the hotel lights wink out. He brushes against his assailant in the blackness, and three more shots are fired at him. Then the lights go on; the court is empty.

Chapter 10

SUE'S FRIGHT

Except for the witches and the wind and myself, the courtyard was empty. I crossed it again and had the good sense to find and put the discoverable piece of my flashlight into my pocket against the search the police would make, before I ascended the little iron stairway and stepped again into the corridor.

"Go bring wood," I said

The priest had gone, and the little porter wore an anxious look, and Sue Tally was standing there beside him.

She looked at me, and I closed the door and shut out some of the wind, and she said, "Oh, in a gasping way. She looked stricken. The toe of her scarlet slipper was near the dead man's hand, and I got the impression that she had been leaning over him.

I said to the porter: "Where is Father Robert?"

"I don't know. He went away. As soon as you left us he went away too."

"You were alone here?"

"Yes." His wiry little shoulders moved in a kind of shudder, and I believed him, although that left the porter and the priest each to his own devices at a time when I was pursuing and being pursued in the courtyard below.

I paused to consider whether the priest or the porter could have got by way of the corridor into the courtyard in time to discover me still on the landing with my flashlight and fired at me, and decided that neither of the two had had time to do so. Still, there it was: the priest, or the porter or Lovschien, I inclined toward Lovschien.

The porter repeated: "But yes, monsieur. Until Miss Tally arrived."

"There were things I wanted to ask Miss Tally. I said to the porter: "What was the matter with the lights?"

He shrugged and spread out his hands. "I do not know. It is very bad here without lights. There was one that moved. I think I have fear." Sue Tally caught her breath, and the little porter added quickly with an anxious glance at her: "There was only the wind. Me, I am not afraid."

"Go and—And what? I sought for an excuse. "Go and bring some wood, please. The fire in my room is down. The police will soon be here and will question us all."

He gave me a sharp and rather dubious look but went.

"Do you know this man?" I asked Sue across the thing on the floor.

"To the best of my belief," she said slowly and so gravely that at the moment I did not note the curious wording of her reply, "I have never seen him before."

"Then he wasn't the man who—abducted you?"

"I don't know," she said. "I don't know. How could I know? I didn't see him."

She was white and tired and frightened and lovely. I turned my eyes resolutely away from her and said:

"Why did you leave my room? Why didn't you wait?"

"I was afraid," she said in a small voice. "When you left, I was afraid. I followed you almost at once, thinking to meet you in the corridor. But when I reached my room the key was in the door. I can't think why I was so stupid—" likewise urge Senator Corey to do the same when the revenue bill comes up before his branch of the legislature.

It still seems that I left it on the key board.

"How long did you wait?" I asked, despising myself and staring through the shadows at the lighted lobby.

"Only a moment or two."

"Long enough for me to reach the lobby?"

"Oh, no," she said. "As a matter of fact, I was counting. I thought I would count up to three hundred, and I could begin to expect you back again. But I got to my first hundred and the wind was rattling things, and I ran out and along the corridor." Her voice broke, and she added more steadily: "Silly of me. To be so absurdly afraid. I'm not as a rule."

Terribly I wanted to believe her. But something inside me kept saying sordidly: Circumstantial. Counting and afraid. Too circumstantial by far. And, anyway, you saw her leave with your own eyes, and it had been far longer than she says. There were other things I had to ask, but I looked at her, and our eyes met, and I was silent again with all my doubts and half-certainties and fears crowding and seething inside me.

My hand went out toward her and with a kind of quiet directness that made the gesture the most natural thing in the world, she slipped her own in, and I loathed myself for doubting her, and then the courtyard was alive with short-caped figures and stiff little caps, all so active that there seemed many more there than actually were, and the policemen were tumbling up the winding stairs.

Their examination of the body was brief, and I could not see it for the blue caps. It was only a few moments before the Lovschien and two of the police followed us into the light and comparative warmth of my room where we stood in an agitated group.

From the first I was at a disadvantage owing to my inability to recall any but a word or two in the French language. It was a disadvantage of which Madame Grethe took the fullest opportunity; or at least, so I've always suspected.

That night the police let me almost alone beyond a few painstaking questions as to how and when I had found the murdered man.

The queries were made by a slender young man whose eyes were remarkably bright and quick, and who spoke very slow and distinct and remarkably idiomatic English to me and then relayed my replies to an older man with a gray imperial and mustache, who was the commissaire de police and in charge of the affair, and who, was unnecessarily pompous about it.

Will the police believe Sundeau's story, tomorrow?

Mac Donald Favors Roosevelt Plan Of Friendly Approach

By HEABERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will have much in common when they sit down in the quiet and easy informality of a White House study and begin their economic conversations.

It is a belief shared by both that in such a manner—in the free and open co-operation of friends—are the problems of nations best worked out.

They are friends. Roosevelt met MacDonald back in the days of the World War when when he went abroad on a mission as Assistant Secretary of the Navy. And it has been apparent ever since he became President that in the working out of his foreign policy he was eager to talk things over "with my friend Ramsay MacDonald."

Eye-To-Eye

The British Prime Minister entertains the same feelings. One who sat in the Senate chamber that historic October day of 1929 when MacDonald was here for his conversations with President Hoover, need only recall what he said in that forum to realize this. "Ah, Senators!" he exclaimed, "as long as you conduct your negotiations by correspondence over thousands of miles of sea you will never understand each other at all.

"In these democratic days, when heart speaks to heart, as deep speaks to deep and silence talks to silence, personality, personal contact, exchange of views by the lip sitting at two sides of a fireplace, as it was my great privilege to do this week-end with your President—these things are to be as important as anything else in laying the foundation of an enduring peace all over the world."

A Risk of Prestige

It's important also that the British Prime Minister, probably the most traveled of present-day statesmen, has escaped the lot of many of his contemporaries. When the head of a government goes on a mission he runs two risks. He is expected to bring back more than he possibly can, and his enemies have a chance to manipulate things behind his back.

Woodrow Wilson, in the opinion of many observers, suffered by his trip to the Paris Peace Conference. Premier Laval's visit to this country did him little good at home in France. But as for Ramsay MacDonald—his long absence from London apparently not only have improved his health, but benefited him politically as well.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Word that J. Ruben Clark, ambassador to Mexico in the Hoover administration, had turned from politics to accept a high post in the Mormon church was received with more than casual interest by Washington political observers.

It may possibly mean a clarification of the senatorial situation in Utah at the next election. Utah's senior senator, William H. King, serving his third term, faces an election next year. Clark ran against King the last time, coming up from Mexico City, incidentally.

Whether Clark has removed himself definitely from the political scene in Utah remains to be seen. His new position, next to the presidency of the Mormon church, is one of the highest ranking offices in it.

However, former Senator Smoot of Utah was the ranking member of the "quorum of 12" of the same church while he was in the senate—in line for the church presidency itself.

Where the complexion of politics to change in Utah before next year Clark might stand in a good position to run against King.

His record as ambassador to Mexico, where he went as successor to the late Dwight Morrow, was rated highly successful. Not a great deal was heard about him in Mexico City, but that, according to the diplomatic way of judging things, might be regarded just another way of saying that he was doing a good job all the while.

At any rate, when he left his post at the close of the Hoover administration the President said of him: "Never have our relations (with Mexico) been lifted to such a high point of confidence and co-operation, and there is no more important service in the whole foreign relations of the United States than this."

Clark carried on at Mexico City the remarkable work that Dwight Morrow had done. Actually there are those at the state department in Washington, who will tell you that Clark had much to do with the success of Morrow's policy in Mexico.

He had an important part in shaping Morrow's policy at any rate. And until Morrow left Mexico City to enter the senate Clark was the ambassador's right hand man in much of the most difficult negotiations over counter claims growing out of the long Mexican revolutionary cycle.

REALTY REVALUATION ORDERED IN SCOTLAND

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks punk, don't realize a lot of salt, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." About NEW YORK

By WILLIAM GAINES. New York—Al Smith is the most interesting subject in town for a newsreel cameraman, says Al Gold, veteran celebrity "shooter."

Gold became a full-fledged cameraman with the Gaumont News (remember?) when it was owned by General Gaumont of France. When William Fox started his news reel, Gold joined the organization. He has been with it through shifts and changes for fifteen years.

"Al Smith has been my assignment ever since he became governor of New York," Gold told me. "The reason I find him interesting is because, no matter what comes, he never takes time off from being Al Smith, human being. He never assumes an attitude for the camera. Most of the time in rare good humor, when he is gruff he's gruff, and take it or leave it.

"The only time he actually insisted on being photographed in a particular way was when he had a boil on his cheek and asked us to be satisfied with a profile."

Studios "Shipwreck"

It seems that "Shipwreck" Kelly, the flag-pole sitter, is a very serious student of his art. Gold rates him high among his interesting subjects and calls Kelly "the latter-day St. Simeon Stylites."

This is because "Shipwreck" is as fanatical about being the best flag-pole sitter as his predecessor in pole-sitting was in doing his penance.

"And the fact that he is the best and will not fake as some of his imitators do makes him something, although I don't know what.

"He studies and reads about the activities of his rivals with as much concern as some big business men study their rivals and markets. And there's no partnership for him.

"Competition is the life of his business, and let any man outsize him 'on this level' and he'll find a pole somewhere to start out to surpass him."

Democratic Wales

Gold has covered the Prince of Wales on all his visits to this country and Canada.

"He never seems to grow old," said Gold. "Although some day he'll be top man of the great British empire, he's more democratic and pleasant about posing than some momentary news midget.

"When he's not officially being the Prince of Wales he's a good guy with a boyish interest in everything. One day I had to tell him everything about myself and my camera."

Gold says he never will get tired of making pictures of Babe Ruth. "His freshness and health are contagious. But you have to watch him every minute or he'll play some practical joke on you.

"Once while I was making a picture of him in a gymnasium he did all my equipment in a steam box." Jimmy Walker is one of Gold's great favorites. The wise-cracking ex-mayor had a peculiar gift of putting a whole crowd of people at ease before a battery of cameras.

Shooting former Representative La Guardia is a delight.

"The way he becomes fervent when he talks reminds one of a volcano trembling into action.

Two scientists from Central Europe are planning a balloon ascent to a height of twelve miles in order to test new apparatus for registering altitude records.

POLITICS

By BRYON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

President Roosevelt's first steps in foreign policy have one new and important characteristic: they put all or nearly all, of the emphasis on economic recovery.

Ever since the World War, when statesmen have met in conference like those now invoked in Washington, they have talked on peace, comports, of arms reduction, of those "spiritual" relationships of nations in which the present generation has been taught to set such store.

Today the talk is of the hard realities of every-day international trade and finance. Tariffs, embargoes, stability of currencies, stimulation of world markets and of world prices—these are the themes to which the American State Department now addresses itself.

This need not mean that Mr. Roosevelt is any less zealous for peace and world unity than were his immediate predecessors.

In adopting other methods of approach to an old problem, the new President may merely be reflecting that while successive administrations have been talking friendship, scrapping navies and formulating rules to outlaw war, the world has been slipping nearer and nearer the precipice.

There is an old saying that all wars are, in the last analysis, trade wars; that whatever may be written into peace treaties, trouble will come when economic conditions begin to pinch. It would seem the new administration agrees with that.

No Pacifism Here

Nor has the world forgotten that another Roosevelt once made it a rule to "Speak softly, and carry a big stick."

Whatever the present Roosevelt may think about that as a tenet on foreign policy—and he has not said there certainly are no indications that the "new deal" means anything approaching pacifism.

Afloat, the prospect is that while the government is negotiating for new trade channels, it will be building some $200,000,000 worth of warships to protect its trade.

Ashore, the prospect is that economy cuts in the army will be directed at deadwood at the top of the staff bureaucracy, not at the combat units.

And, as a second line of national preparedness, what finer raw material could be conceived than the young, unmarried men now assembling by thousands to undergo the strict physical and disciplinary training of the forest conservation corps?

Milestones

This all presents a most interesting field for speculation, in view of what has gone immediately before. The milestones of recent American foreign policy have been promulgation of the League of Nations by Wilson; the Washington Arms Conference, convened by Harding; the anti-war treaty, sponsored by the administration of Coolidge; and a persistent whittling at big armaments under Hoover.

Can the present administration, without uttering the word "peace," accomplish by oblique attack what a dozen years of frontal assault have failed to achieve?

FOUR-YEAR FIGHT OVER GAS LOCATION IS ENDED

Elizabeth City, N. C., April 13.—A four-year fight between A. L. Aydtlett and the city of Elizabeth City over the operation of a filling station at the corner of Main and North Broad Streets, erected by Aydtlett over the protest of the city and in opposition to the city zoning act, came to an end Tuesday when the Senate passed a bill amending the zoning act, which will allow the station to be operated.

The bill previously had been passed by the House.

In the long drawn-out legal battle the case had been appealed to the Supreme Court.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED FOR EASTER SERVICES

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 13.—(AP)—Three hundred musicians will Sunday morning around the thousands of natives and visitors who will attend the sunrise Easter services at old Home Moravian Church.

Conductor B. J. Pfohl of the Moravian Easter band is now completing arrangements for the annual musical service.

With 300 bandmen playing instruments value at about $16,000 in this year's program, Pfohl can look back fifty-three years to his first year in an Easter band in 1880 when only eighteen persons were in the organization.

The music coming as a prelude to the sunrise service at Home Moravian Church and at God's Acre will start at 1:30 o'clock Easter Sunday morning. The antiphonal will be heard in every part of the city as the band groups sound the Easter music.

At 4 o'clock the bandmen will assemble at Home Church for breakfast and will then take their positions for the sunrise service.

For the brief litaney at the church the band plays in six groups, uniting then into one body for the impressive service at the graveyard.

Good Health Depends On Mineral Balance

Lee's Mineral Compound With Vitamins Builds Bodily Strength and Vigor by Supplying Needed Minerals and Vitamins

AMAZING NEW FORMULA Fortunately for humanity, science has found a way to prevent most of these conditions. After years of careful research and experimentation, a new and remarkable formula has been perfected. This preparation, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND is a scientific combination of the eleven most essential Mineral Elements of the human body combined with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense, a patent medicine. It is more in the nature of a FOOD CAL-LIZER. By supplying the system with the necessary Minerals and Vitamins, it aids nature in quickly balancing the Mineral content of the body so that good health naturally follows.

DEFICIENCY OF MINERALS The process of refining modern foods; bleaching of flour, rice, sugar, etc.; together with improper cooking takes out of our foods the very things that God intended we should have.

ACIDITY DESTROYS HEALTH As the Mineral content of the body is lowered, slowly but surely the acid content of the system is increased until it finally reaches the point where the organs of assimilation and elimination cannot perform their natural functions. Our powers of resistance are lowered. Disease germs creep into the blood. The system becomes clogged with impurities. Various aches and pains appear, and before we realize what is taking place, we are on the very verge of a physical breakdown.

BRINGS QUICK RELIEF Stomach disorders, such as indigestion, hyperacidity, "heart-burn," gas, and bloating soon yield to this amazing natural compound. Constipation and attendant ills, such as nervousness, headaches, biliousness, bad breath and sallow skin, soon give way to a feeling of renewed strength and vigor.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST Convince Yourself! Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Warren Drug Store, Greenville, and other good dealers everywhere or, send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 167 Forsyth St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga., for large bottle postage paid.

When You Buy FERTILIZER Remember - Chilean is the natural nitrate, doubly valuable for its vital "impurities." Non-acid. Immediate action. Entirely available. Insist upon Chilean when you buy. EASTER CANTATA AT METHODIST CHURCH

"Life Everlasting"

The choir of Jarvis M. E. Church South, will present on Easter Sunday evening, April 16, the beautiful cantata, "Life Everlasting," written by Rene Bronner and set to music by H. W. Petrie. The choir will be assisted by Mrs. T. W. Watson, alto, and Spruill Spain, tenor. The cantata is under the direction of Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, organist.

Those taking part are as follows: Sopranos: Madames J. H. Waldrop, J. E. Kirkpatrick, J. A. Karsnak, B. D. Johnston, R. A. Tyson, Jr., Miss Laura Foley

Altos: Madames T. M. Watson, H. A. Thomson, Miss Helen Sawyer.

Tenors: Spruill Spain, Charlie James, J. H. Blount.

Basses: J. H. Rose, Buster Starkey, and C. F. Bland.

The cantata, "Life Everlasting," begins with the scene of the Crucifixion.

Darkness reigns over the earth and in the hearts of those who loved; they awaited some token from Him who in the tomb was laid. Soldiers guarded the place of rest, fearless and brave their tread, guarding the place of the dead.

The duet, "Come Only Salvation" pours forth His love, filling our heart with consolation and the knowledge we shall receive "Life Everlasting" by faith in Jesus Christ.

Then comes Easter morning—the morning of victory—brings joy and gladness that Christ is the deserving power, and though all friends may fall, he is our Saviour and Friend. The women gathered about the tomb with their hearts full of despair and to the joy not to find Him sleeping but the fulfilled promise, "I am the Resurrection and the Life."

They hastened to carry glad tidings, "Christ the Lord is risen from the dead."

Tenor solo, "Ye Slow Heart to Believe" that Christ died and rose again on the third day. They who journeyed with Him did not know; after tarrying for the night, He then vanished from their midst. Let the world sing of love that hath conquered the grave.

Then the full chorus with their triumphant voices shout, "Life Everlasting," for they are ready to crown Him the "Risen King." They ask to be taught to love Him and to follow

His example. "The great example for all."

The finale, "Joy to the world, Lord is King." Let the redeemed shout Christ is risen from the dead. Let the world, with thanksgiving praise Him and with the angels crown Him victor and King.

Everyone is invited to attend.

RED OAK NEWS

"The Wild Oats Boy," a three-act play, will be presented at Arthur School the 28th of April. This play is being given by a group of young men and young women of Red Oak community for the benefit of our club. We will have further announcements about it in the paper from time to time.

We had a fine number present at our club meeting last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. W. T. Page and Miss Martha Jolly were hostesses, and after the demonstration by Miss Nico, they served delicious sandwiches and punch.

The contest which has been going on for the last several Sundays in the Sunshine Class at Red Oak will close next Sunday. There has been a very close race every Sunday, but the Loyal Workers who have been a little behind the Willing Workers every Sunday, forged ahead 125 points last Sunday. The interest has been keen, and we can hardly wait until next Sunday to see which will be the winning side. There were sixty-seven boys and girls present Sunday. We were glad to include among our visitors Miss Myrtle Melton, teacher at Arthur. Mrs. C. K. Holmes, organizer of the Grange; Miss Oldam, of the Pactolus faculty, and Miss Willard Allen, our assistant. Miss Oldam, of the Pactolus faculty. We invite any boy and girl who is not affiliated with some other Sunday school to meet with us next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and we will assure you a warm-hearted welcome. We will have with us Mr. Browne Mayo, principal of Arthur School, as guest-teacher. We have been fortunate enough to hear him before, so we know that we will enjoy his discourse.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Hazard May is able to be out after having been confined to her home for the past several months.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dickerson visited Mrs. Dickerson's sister, Mrs. Adie Forlines Sunday. Mrs. Forlines has been very ill for the past four weeks. We hope she will soon be well.

Mr. and Mrs. James Allen and family visited Mrs. J. J. Jenkins Sunday.

The Red Oak Deacons won a ball game from the Winterville High School boys and lost one to the Highway Devils last week. Several hundred people witnessed the game between the Red Oak club and the Highway boys. There will be another game between the Winterville High School boys and the Red Oak Deacons next Saturday afternoon.

We were glad to have with us last Thursday afternoon Mrs. Travis Hooker, of Greenville. Mrs. Hooker came out to our church to help us transform the old hole that was left by the highway force on the highway near the church which was filled with rubbish, tin cans, etc., into a place of beauty. We planted clumps of sweet violets, water iris, wood-ferns, yellow jasmine and rambler roses. Mrs. Hooker brought us some pink and white water lilies, anacharis, water poppies and several other water plants. We hope they will all live, and we are very appreciative of Mrs. Hooker's generosity and interest.

Mrs. Lennie Beard, of New York, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. R. S. Allen. Ben Causey and Mrs. Wayne were also visitors at her home Sunday. Mrs. Allen and daughter, Edith Glynn and Mrs. Beard, spent the latter part of last week with relatives in Craven County.

MAUNDY THURSDAY COMMUNION SERVICE IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Tonight at eight o'clock the congregation of the Eighth Street Christian church will observe one of the most solemn and impressive services of the church year when the sacrament of Holy Communion will be administered. This is the annual service at which the institution of the Lord's Supper by Jesus Christ, the evening before His death, is commemorated. It is definitely a service preparatory to participation in the services of Good Friday and Easter Day, and as such should be attended by all communicants of the church, where at all possible.

Those who expect to attend this service are urged to prepare themselves by self-examination, meditation and prayer, that they may be the better fitted to enter into it with appreciation and benefit. Since this, like all services of this congregation, is open to all Christians, members of other Christian groups whose churches may not observe this memorial service at this time may feel perfectly free to attend and participate in the service, being assured of a Christian welcome.

The request of Jesus, "This do in remembrance of me," takes on a deeper significance tonight, and the hour of worship should find every member of the Church in his appointed place, facing the Holy Altar waiting for the manifestation of the Presence of God.

A service of consecration and sacrificial giving will be held by the women of Eighth Street Christian church on Good Friday afternoon at 3:30.

The women are asked to come to this service prepared for a service of spiritual enrichment.

Tomorrow, Good Friday, night, the choir will render Dudois' "Seven Last Words." This is one of the most beautiful of the many sacred compositions written to commemorate the death and suffering of our Lord. A long period of preparation has been used by the members of the choir that this night might be a worth while re-rendering of this composition. The public is cordially invited to attend.

IF A HEN AND A HALF—BUT HERE'S A NEW ONE

St. Paul—(AP)—Here is a problem in farm arithmetic, with the answer written in profits:

A hen laying 150 eggs a year, say prof. A. C. Smith, chief in poultry husbandry at the University of Minnesota farm, is worth three times as much as a hen whose yearly production is only ninety eggs.

At present prices, he says, it takes about the equivalent of sixty eggs a year to feed a hen—regardless of her production. Therefore, a ninety-egg hen returns only thirty eggs' profit, while the 150-egg hen brings ninety eggs' profit.

ASKS FOR PERMISSION TO ADOPT FOUNDLING

Kinston, N. C., April 13.—Galar Brinson, elderly farmer living near Richards, has applied to Onslow County authorities for permission to adopt a baby girl found in a cesspool on his farm. The infant, apparently only a few hours old, was found by a son of Brinson early in the week. Its cries attracted his attention. It was immersed with filth. It was rescued with some difficulty.

Authorities are trying to identify the baby's parents. Tracks of a man and woman leading from the spot where it was found have been measured.

Brinson and his wife bathed the infant and cared for it until officers could be summoned. Then they announced they had become attached to it and would like to keep it.

CASEY TO BEGIN LONG SENTENCE THIS WEEK

Kinston, N. C., April 13.—"Finis" will be written to the famous Casey case when Herman Casey, 46, goes to the penitentiary at Raleigh at the end of this week to serve 25 to 30 years for the murder of James C. Causey, lumber executive. His commitment has been ordered by Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh, presiding over the April term of Superior Court here.

Causey, whose home was at Suffolk, Va., but who was connected with a lumber company at Goldsboro, was slain July 3, 1930. His body was found in his burned automobile in a side road seven miles from here.

The story of young Milton Wood, farmer, and circumstantial evidence supporting it, resulted in the conviction of Casey in September, 1930.

FIRE-DAMAGED CHURCH NOW FULLY RESTORED

Smithfield, N. C., April 13.—The work of repairing the Smithfield Methodist Church, which was badly damaged by fire on New Year's Day, is completed. Services have been held in the church the last two Sundays and the members of the church were entertained at a barbecue supper in the basement of the church.

The church was glad to show these men the appreciation of the people for the valiant services rendered when this building was burned.

V. P. I. TO MEET CAROLINA AT HILL FRIDAY

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 13—Coach Bunn Hearst said today that either Joe Griffith or Nate Andrews get the call to pitch the V. P. I. game here Friday at 4 o'clock.

Carolina has won all four starts in the Conference. In the two teams' previous meeting, Griffith, who is the veteran ace of the Carolina mound corps, only yielded five hits and put the Indian sign on V. P. I. 9 to 1. In his last start, Andrews won a 2 to 1 pitchers' duel from Lefty Sauerbraun of Washington and Lee.

The regularly hard-hitting Gobblers will be out for Tar Heel scalps, and partially for Griffith's, if he is named to pitch giving prospects of a fast, interesting game.

Hobart Porter, veteran right-hander, will likely be on the mound for V. P. I. again. He pitched fine ball until the last inning of the other Carolina game and had two men out before the Tar Heels got to him for a barrage of blows that netted six runs.

The invaders' batting order will likely be Bell, left field; Pickup, short; Casey, center; Cottle, right; Sutton, first; Fless, catcher; Weede, third; Stephenson, second; and Porter.

Carolina will likely use Peacock, center field; Wink right; Weathers, short; Casey, center; Cottle, right; Sutton, first; Fless, catcher; Weede, third; Stephenson, second; and Porter.

Coach Ho Shepard is holding spring practice for a small and select group of men he expects to use as the nucleus for next year's basketball team at Carolina.

Those taking part include Captain Dave McCaughen and Stuart Aitken, regular guards this year, and Vergil Weathers, regular forward.

Three other lettermen out are Earle Beale, center; Morris Long, forward, and Dan Jones guard.

The freshman stars, Jim McCaughen and Mervin Nelson, and the reserves, Thompson and Blood, round out the group.

George Brandt, center on last year's team, is not participating due to a sprained ankle, but will be available next fall, as will Jack Glace, another letter center, who has been sick this spring.

The Carolina Freshman nine, with its new pitching "find" Left Hutchinson, will meet the strong Oak Ridge team in the first game of a home and home series here Thursday afternoon at 8 o'clock.

Coach Bill Cerney has considerable new material available since the conclusion of winter football practice, so that several new faces may appear in the Tar Baby line-up. Among the freshman-gridders-sluggers who have been looking best are Harry Montgomery, Olin Yeager, Melvin Nelson, Sam Hobgood, and Bill Moore.

Western Crews In First Meet At Long Beach

Long Beach, Calif.—(AP)—Southern Californians who were dished up their first taste of crew races in the Olympic games last summer will get a second helping here April 15, with the prospect it may become a steady sports diet.

On that date the Olympic championship California eight meets Washington's Huskies and the inexperienced University of California at Los Angeles Bruins in a triangular race over the 2,000-meter Olympic Marine Stadium course.

If the idea takes on a scale of reasonable comparison with the naval events of the games, then it will become an annual affair; rowing will become a permanent part of the Ucan schedule of sports, and the chances are strong that the University of Southern California and Stanford will dip an oar into the venture.

Every step has been taken to make it a big affair. Not only will races between the varsity eights be held, but all three schools will be represented by freshman and junior varsity boat loads.

A whale boat race for the championship of the combined United States fleet also will be held and a number of other preliminary events are in the making.

Plans are near completion to make the day of the race a legal holiday in the city, which will be thrown open to the public officially to show the world that Long Beach already has taken long strides out of the debris of its recent earthquake.

No damage resulted to the grandstand, boathouse and sundry equipment, with the result that the same capacity crowds which saw the Olympic events can be handled if need be.

Coach Major Goodsell of the Bruins, who are in their first year of rowing, naturally does not expect his team to win the varsity race against such veteran crews as those of the world's champions and Washington.

He does see possibility of his freshman boatload holding its own against the invaders, for the yearling eight has consistently defeated his varsity and Jayvee crews, and promises in two more years the Bruins will be a contender for highest honors.

The Bruin mentor is the former world's professional single sculls champion from Australia, and has been connected with rowing almost constantly since he won the title in 1925.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

The revenge of John Ross Roach, the goalie with a fixation, was one of big league hockey's best ballyhooed dramas of the 1932-1933 season until the playoffs leading up to the battle for the classic Stanley Cup.

Roach, as most everyone knows, was the star net-tender of the New York Ranger until he lost favor with Manager Lester Patrick a year ago, for alleged infractions of the rules during the cup contest. Forthwith John was traded to the Detroit Red Wings, returned to form and won recognition by being selected for the all-star National League team.

Particularly was Roach poison to his old pals, the Rangers. During the regular season his goal-minding was responsible for two shutout victories by Detroit over the New Yorkers. Roach's revenge was the topic of the circuit until the two teams came together in the play-offs, for the right to play Toronto in the finals.

Whereupon the whole show turned into a last-act blow-up for our hero. The Rangers let loose a scoring blast, featuring Cecil Dillon and the Cook brothers, that offset all previous indignities suffered at Roach's hands, gave them two straight over the Red Wings and put them on the road to the world championship.

Young Hillman Shines The star of this new winter sport proved to be Harold Hillman, 17-year-old son of Dartmouth's famous track coach and ex-Olympic hurdler, Harry L. Hillman.

Late News Flashes

The house at least temporarily refused to reconsider the vote by which it last night eliminated the three per cent sales tax from the money bill when it voted to go into committee of the whole to study the commodity tax.

Five representatives introduced a new proposal. It places taxes and higher rates of interest on tobacco, wearing apparel, gas, automobiles, cosmetics, candies, chewing gum, admissions to shows, soft drinks, coffee, kerosene, electricity sold at retail, telephones and other things.

Debate was limited to three hours but after representative Newman, had taken an hour explaining the amendment the chair ruled his time was not included in the allotment for debate. This indicated a vote would not be reached before late afternoon or tonight.

House Passes Farm Relief Washington, D. C., April 13.—(AP)—The administration farm relief financing bill was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate which is considering it as an amendment to the general farm relief measure.

The bill was approved after three days of debate in which opponents unsuccessfully sought to have the Frazier inflation bill passed as a substitute. While the House was pouring in over the important mortgage legislation, the Senate approved a vote on an amendment to the relief bill under which farms would be promised high enough prices to cover their cost of production. This the administration has opposed.

Meas Faces New Charge Washington, April 13.—(AP)—An indictment charging Gaston B. Means and Norman T. Whitaker with conspiracy to commit larceny of $35,000 from Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean estrange wife of the former Washington publisher was returned today by the district of Columbia grand jury.

Means, a one time department of Justice agent, already has been convicted of larceny of $104,000 from Mrs. McLean in connection with the attempt with Whitaker to ransom the infant son of Co. Charles Lindbergh.

Home Bill Re-heard in Congress Washington, D. C., April 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt added to his emergency program on Capitol Hill today the proposal to refinance the mortgages on small homes.

In another special message to Congress he asked for legislation to permit readjustment of existing mortgage debts with postponement of interest and principal payments in case of extreme needs.

He suggested action along the same line as the refinancing of agriculture mortgage bill now before Congress with a bond issue to meet the needs.

He told Congress the plan of settlement will provide a standard which would be an end to present chaotic conditions that create fear and despair among both home owners and investors.

A bill was introduced in the Senate an hour later to carry out the recommendations. Speedy action was in prospect to lift the burden of debt from owners of homes of $10,000 and less in value.

Creation of a permanent system of Federal savings and loan associations as well as emergency of $2,000,000,000 corporation to refinance home mortgages would be authorized under the bill by the President.

MANY CASES FACE TERM COURT HERE (Continued from page one) Smith, colored, is being held as an accessory.

Thomas Beaman, former U. S. Commissioner here, will face charges of arson and embezzlement on the 19th and 24th. He was recently tried in Federal court in Washington on a charge of bribery and conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, but the jury failed to agree and mistrial was ordered.

The arson charge grew out of the burning of a house occupied by Beaman here several months ago. Firemen alleged they found burlap bags saturated with kerosene in the roof of the building. Beaman denied implication.

The embezzlement case grew out of his alleged failure to make settlement with an insurance company which he was said to have represented at the time he was arrested by city authorities on the bribery charge.

David Dudley and Luther Dunn, local young men, will face trial on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny of goods from J. L. Watson's store here about two months ago. Dudley will also face the grand jury on a charge of attempting to manipulate the escape of prisoners from the county jail.

Numbers of other charges involving violation of the prohibition law, and larceny will come up for consideration during the term, and indications at this time point to a mighty busy week.
