BRITAIN AND RUSSIA IN GRIP OF TRADE WARFARE

Double Embargo Will Cost Two Nations Over $100,000,000 Annually

BRITISH BAN OPERATIVE LAST NIGHT

Eighty Percent of Russian Imports Banned From British Shores; Russia Takes More Drastic Steps Against British Trade and Commerce; Action Grows Out of Russian Court Sentences Imposed On Two British Engineers

London, April 26.—(AP)—Great Britain and Soviet Russia were at grips today in a severe trade war slated to continue at least as long as British subjects are held in prison at Moscow. Its cost to the two countries in goods alone will total $100,000,000 in a year, that being the approximate value of the trade now at a standstill because of embargoes. Britain's 80 per cent ban on Russian imports went into effect last night and Russia simultaneously retaliated with a complete embargo on British imports and other drastic restrictions on British shippings and commerce. Britain announced its embargo last Wednesday when the Soviet court imposed three and two-year sentences on L. C. Thornton and Will McDonald, British engineers, convicted of sabotage and espionage against the Soviet Union. The week of grace accorded in sufficient time for some Russian cargoes to reach British ports. There were a number of ships that raced in to escape the ban, and the steamers Volga and the Black Sea had the distinction of being the last to enter the London region before the embargo became effective. Two or three Russian ships were already discharging cargoes at London docks when Russian restrictions are more severe than those imposed here.

GOVERNMENT WILL ISSUE 'BABY' BONDS

New York, April 26.—(AP)—With government bonds maintaining a relatively firm tone despite the inflation program of the administration with interest is being focused on the Treasury offering of baby bonds. As just announced, this consists of $500,000,000 three-year 2 7/8 per cent notes, and in the opinion of Wall Street the offer provides a fairly good test of the public attitude toward the monetary situation. In accordance with Secretary Woodin's well-known philosophy that citizens should become partners in the country, the bonds are being offered in denominations as low as $100. Specialists in government issues reported today that inquiries had been received from many individuals and firms for the new issues. Technicians were quick to point out the seemingly contradictory fact that the bonds contain the gold clause, although by Presidential proclamation no gold can be paid out at present. This, however, was only of academic interest, it was said, and not significant to bond buyers who have confidence in the essential stability of the government. The important fact, according to opinion in well informed banking circles is that there is still adequate gold coverage for money. In the same time, prominent bankers point out that confidence in stability of the dollar is undiminished whatever the reason the investors will adopt a negative attitude toward the government's new offerings.

Sam T. Hannah Buried Today

Sam T. Hannah, 46, died at his home in the Pacolus community yesterday afternoon at 6:30 o'clock after several months' illness. Funeral services were conducted from his late home this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Trinity cemetery near Chocowinity by Rev. Mr. Strawbridge of Grimesland. He is survived by two brothers, Carl and Fred Hannah, of Pitt County.

LITTLETON MERCHANT INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Weldon, N. C., April 26.—W. G. Coppersmith, prominent Littleton merchant, was painfully injured Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock when the Chevrolet coupe in which he was riding crashed into a Virginia produce truck on Highway No. 40. The accident occurred directly in front of the courthouse in Halifax. Mr. Coppersmith, who is the manager of the Littleton Feed and Grocery Company, was alone in his car at the time of the accident. He received several severe lacerations about the head, face and hands. He was rushed to the Roanoke Rapids Hospital.

JAIL DELIVERY IS NIPPED IN THE BUD

Laurinburg, N. C., April 26.—A jail delivery was nipped in the bud here when officers discovered a twelve-inch hole cut in the case-hardened steel wall of the Scotland County jail and two prisoners possessed of a dozen worn and broken hacksaws. Joe Carlisle, local man, and David Tapp of Graham, alleged Fort Bragg deserters, are charged with the attempt. Both are held for Superior Court on automobile theft charges. The sawing was done near the floor and with a little more time the men would have been able to drop under the jail, among water pipes, from where they probably hoped to tunnel their way out under ground. O. K. DuBose Jailer, said they admitted to possession of a total of four dozen broken hacksaws and that they were broken and used up the pieces were dropped under the building.

BETHEL VOTES FOR ALDERMEN

Citizens of Bethel, thriving Pitt County town north of Greenville, went to the polls today to cast their ballots in one of the most hotly contested municipal elections in years. Voting was being conducted at a lively pace during the early morning hours, and while the rush slackened at the noon hour, it was expected to be revived during the late afternoon. Contest was being offered in the five aldermanic districts but the seat of mayor held by J. W. Rook for the last several years was uncontested. Members of the present board are F. L. Blount, R. L. Whitley, C. M. Burton and E. L. Mayo. The fifth member of the board resigned some time ago and his seat was to be filled in the contest today. Those seeking seats are W. C. Whitehurst, P. E. Whitehurst, L. J. Whitehurst, Dr. Cecil Garretton and W. O. Grimes.

RIFLES CASE DRAWER OF SANFORD THEATER

Sanford, N. C., April 26.—Last night about 8:30 o'clock a negro man went to the ticket window of the Sanford Theater and asked Mrs. Mary Bane, who was selling tickets, if colored people were admitted. As she replied the man ran his hand under the glass and rifled the cash drawer. A check of the receipts revealed that $12.95 was missing. As the negro ran off he dropped several coins on the sidewalk. These were quickly gathered up by small boys standing in front of the theater. There are no clues as to who the thief was.

TWENTY PER CENT CUT ORDERED IN GRANVILLE

Orford, N. C., April 26.—The Board of County Commissioners, in adjourned session here Monday, ordered a horizontal reduction of 20 per cent in the valuation of property for the purpose of taxation. The board heard a number of citizens who appeared to express their opinions on the matter of revaluation. The motion for reduction of 20 per cent was passed after a compromise had been effected upon motions for 10 per cent and for 25 per cent, the chairman casting the deciding vote. The board deferred until Monday action on requests for license to sell beer in Granville County.

BARNHILL IS SET FREE IN MURDER CASE

Charge of Manufacturing Liquor Also Not Pressed in Criminal Court

In view of insufficient evidence to prosecute the case, the murder charge against T. H. Barnhill, aged Bethel Township farmer, was not pressed in the criminal term of Superior Court here yesterday. Similar action was taken in a liquor manufacturing charge brought against Barnhill during investigation of the murder charge. In giving Barnhill his freedom court reserved the right to call the defendant for trial in case sufficient evidence should be disclosed in the future. The case had been postponed twice before on account of lack of evidence and to give the State more time to continue its investigations. Barnhill was arrested nearly two years ago and charged with the slaying of his wife, Jesse Barnhill, for $10,000 insurance said to have been payable to the defendant. The charge was vigorously denied by the aged man, who later gave bond and obtained his liberty pending trial which never came.

SHIP CARRIED KITCHENER TO WATERY GRAVE

Salvage Treasure Amounts to $15,000 Pounds, Funds Were Being Taken by Earl Kitchener to Russia When Ship was Sunk By German Submarine During World War

New York, April 26.—(AP)—Recovery of a fortune in gold from the J. M. Hampshire, the British warship which carried Earl Kitchener to his death in the North Sea during the World War, was revealed today. The salvaged treasure amounted to 15,000 pounds. It was the first yellow metal to be taken from the strong boxes. Its recovery brought to the world the first authentic information that Kitchener carried treasure on his ill-fated mission to Russia to help bolster the Russian army's cause of the allies. Discovery of the gold was disclosed in authoritative advices from a laconic message that might have been taken from the salvage ship and the only information was that there was great rejoicing among the crew of the salvage ship. But behind the message lies a story that reads like a chapter of one of the sea tales of Joseph Conrad for the report is that the search resulted not from the lure of treasure but from the determination of a man to clear the name of a relative, he said, had been accused of giving information to the German government thus aiding in the sending of Kitchener to his death in one of the major tragedies of the World War seven years ago. The name of the participant in that effort of vindication had not been disclosed. As the story goes, it began four years ago when the man determined to try to locate the Hampshire to settle for himself in his own mind how the ship was sunk. He proceeded even though records show the warship struck a mine.

LEE COUNTY SCRIP IS FAVORABLY RECEIVED

Sanford, April 26.—The reaction of the citizens of Sanford and Lee County to the issuance of scrip by the county has been gratifying to the officials. Approximately $5,000 has been placed in circulation, since April 21, when the first was issued and it is being readily accepted by the merchants and others. Through the issuance of the scrip the county has been able to pay several outstanding bills, including the pay of the jurors and witnesses at the recent term of court, and the county's portion of the salaries of the teachers for March. It is understood that a local firm has been notified by a manufacturing company in another city to whom they are indebted, that Lee County scrip will be accepted in payment of the account, and furthermore if other goods are desired scrip will be taken in payment.

MRS. VALLEE BEING SUED

New York, April 26.—(AP)—Fay Webb Vallee, wife of Rudy Vallee, was named defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit filed in Supreme Court today by Mrs. Kathleen Leon, wife of Garfield Leon, actor. The complaint alleges that sometime during the present month Mrs. Vallee induced Leon to leave his wife. A summons in the suit was served on Mrs. Vallee April 7, and a few days earlier counsel for Vallee announced that the Vallees had finally reached the parting of the ways. Portland, Oregon, has assigned for gardening purposes more than 2,000 vacant city lots to which title was acquired due to tax delinquents.

TELLS ABOUT FIRST CHURCH

Rev. Charles Gable Continues Series of Lectures at Catholic Church

Last evening's lecture on "The First Century of Christianity," the Rev. Charles J. Gable sketched for his hearers a detailed account of the ceremonies in the early church. The speaker said in part: "What a contrast is found in the manner with which God gave the original revelation to Moses compared to the latter made by His Divine Son. In the former, not only the doctrines clearly stated but the rites and the reasonable service as well as the regulation of the priestly office were minutely described. But Jesus does no more than give the law of love in His sermon on the mount and prescribed a few specific practices. As to how they were to be administered if He left any instruction with the Twelve, there is no written record. The contrary seems more probable, in that at the very beginning the apostles and their followers observed the Jewish law and ritual in addition to the observances commanded by the Master. In Jerusalem this was particularly true of the Jewish converts who adhered to the services in the temple until the destruction of the city. Elsewhere they began their assemblies in the synagogues until they were forced to withdraw, and even then the order of the services were followed to a great extent. In time suitable hymns and prayers were substituted and the teachings and the life of Christ were accentuated. The 'breaking of bread' was first combined with a banquet, as at the Last Supper. Later on they were separated. In later centuries the services patterned after (Continued on Page Four)

FORGER SENT TO THE ROADS

Levi Tyson Given Six Months Sentence For Signing Name to Check

Levi Tyson, young white man charged with forgery, was sentenced to six months on the roads by Judge Henry A. Grady in the criminal term of Superior Court here yesterday. He was also given a five-year suspended sentence. Tyson was charged with forging his signature to a check and obtaining money therefrom. Two other cases were disposed of following the action of Judge Grady in dismissing the robbery charge against Frank Banks, alleged to have taken $147 from Niles Manning, filling station operator of the Gritton community, in a "drinking party" about two months ago in which two women and another man took part. The other defendants were set free the day before. Mat Dixon, colored, charged with breaking and entering and larceny, was sentenced to six months on the roads. The defendant was alleged to have entered a house in the Grimesland section and obtained a small amount of lard and meat. Heber Hardee was adjudged not guilty of false pretense. The grand jury which has been working on bills since court opened Monday before last continued its work this morning with indications that activities would be brought to a close this afternoon. Following completion of work, the regular report will be presented to Judge Grady setting forth any recommendations dealing with affairs of the county. Middleton, Ireland, has 2,000 inhabitants and 1,000 dogs. Ten years ago there was a dog for every inhabitant. (Continued on Page Four)

TWO NATIONS IN HARMONY ON METHODS

Representatives of Both Governments to Go to London Conference June 12 With Similarity of Ideas on Needs of the World; Today's Deliberations Aimed to Increase General Level of Commodity Prices as First Fundamental Objective

Washington, D. C., April 26.—(AP)—An understanding on the wide range of world economic problems was announced today by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

In their final joint statement the President and the British Prime Minister said their conference showed that "our two governments are looking with like purpose and similarity of methods at the main objective of the World Economic Conference. It has been agreed between them and Edouard Herriot, of France, that the world economic meeting shall be opened in London June 12. Today's joint deliberations were aimed to increase the general level of commodity prices as the first and fundamental objective. To this end, they said, simultaneous action needs to be taken in the economic and in the monetary fields.

The Roosevelt-MacDonald program also provides new commercial policies, the lessening of tariff restrictions, world suspension of credit through central banks to enable less wealthy nations to enter the trade revival and stabilization of international exchange and rehabilitation of silver. Projecting their understanding reached in conference into the World Economic Conference for fulfillment, the two statesmen expressed the hope the London conference could convene in June.

Late News Flashes

Today in The Legislature. Raleigh, April 26.—(AP)—The Senate reached the three per cent general sales tax this afternoon after adopting the franchise tax rate proposed by the finance committee in preference to the higher rate set by the House as the lower division passed the regulatory beer act on second reading. Rates for franchise taxes for telephone and telegraph and other concerns were all increased above present levels but the rate was half way between the present figure and those voted by the House. Without record vote the Everett amendment to change the basis of taxing foreign corporations for the book value of capital assets as allocated to this state to the market value was stricken from the measure passed by the House. A proposal by Senator Clement of Rowan to boost foreign rate from $1.50 per $1,000 of capital assets to $2.00 per $1,000 was defeated 27 to 15. The House passed the beer act on second reading in practically unaltered form so that it still may be enacted into law before Sunday when the sale of beer becomes legal but it had first materially amended the measure and thrown it back to where it could not have been enacted until next Wednesday. The material amendment placed regulation on transportation by boat and it was reconsidered and left out of the measure to be cared for in a separate bill. Local bank legislation occupied both houses for quite a time as the Senate tabled a bill to repeal the institution's new lease on life. (Continued on Page Four)

SCOTLAND COUNTY BANKS ON UNRESTRICTED BASIS

Laurinburg, N. C., April 26.—All Scotland banks are now operating on unrestricted basis with the recent reopening of the Bank of Laurel Hill. The bank quietly went back into operation on April 19, and, according to Edwin Pate, president, deposits have increased approximately 10 per cent in the six days of the institution's new lease on life.

LARGE CROWD HEARS GAINES

Increased Attendance Marks Revival at Memorial Baptist Church

A fine audience, evidencing increased interest, greeted Rev. Louis S. Gaines at the evening service last night at Memorial Baptist Church. The pastor led the song service. A special solo was rendered by Miss La Rue Mangum, "My Task," which was fully appreciated by the congregation. Mr. Gaines spoke on the topic, "The Face of Jesus." He used for the text 2 Corinthians 4-6. He said in part: "The study of the human countenance is most interesting for the following reasons: First, it is an index of the character of the person. Godly character can be easily discerned in the face. Second, it is a blueprint of the personality, and third, a barometer of the moods of the mind. With these three facts in mind we may look into the face of Jesus and note several inspiring facts there. "First, the radiant face of Jesus. He was anointed with the oil of joy, and can always be considered the gladdest man who ever lived among men. The radiance and joy of Heaven is to be seen in Jesus. Across His pathway lay the shadow of the cross, but it was with joy that he moved toward this goal. We too, may experience this radiance of soul, and evidence it in our countenances. Next, observe the compassionate face of Jesus, as the man of sorrows and (Continued from Page One)

THERE IS ONLY ONE RIGHT WAY

The Senate running true to expectations has declined to place the kilowatt tax on the power companies and the provision that would recapture from other corporations and utilities only a part of what they will save through the ad valorem reductions, in the revenue bill and now no doubt that body will vote for the sales tax on the plea that it was the only way out if the budget was to be balanced.

If these Senators are determined that the rich shall receive great reductions at the expense of the poor then the sales tax is the only way out, but as we have contended from the start if the Senate believed in justice and fair play they would not have turned their backs upon the masses of the people of the state and listened only to the interests that were able to keep large and powerful lobbies in Raleigh. It now appears that the forces that oppose the sales tax will be overwhelmingly defeated but even in view of this we urge Senator Corey to vote against the measure, reiterating our previous statements that in our opinion it is better to go down fighting for the masses of the people than to vote against them just to be on the winning side.

POLITICS

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

As the Washington conferees with foreign statesmen get under way it becomes more apparent daily that American foreign policy turned a long-to-be-remembered corner on March 4, 1933.

In the international theater, as in domestic affairs, the new administration is attempting, fundamentally, to do the very things against which the old administration set its face sternly.

To understand fully what is taking place it is necessary to summarize briefly the difficulties of present world relationships:

Europe again is the acute danger point toward which all eyes are turned apprehensively. National rivalries on that continent are in a dangerous state of irritation. Economic warfare, complicated by depression and war debts, is raging furiously, and the military spirit is rising. No one knows what spark may set off a world explosion.

Up to a certain point the views of Hoover and Roosevelt about this situation agree.

Both have looked with a dread on the possibility of another general European war, with apparent conviction of the difficulty of keeping the United States out of such a conflict.

Furthermore, both have envisaged a world economic recovery as one of the surest means of easing national irritations.

But when it comes to practical methods of dealing with the problem, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt part company.

Home removing campaigns similar to that launched in the United States have been undertaken by Germany, Great Britain, Sweden, South Africa, Brazil, Canada, Mexico and Australia.

The White Cockatoo by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: Can it be that the man who murdered the Russian in the hotel corridor, the man who shot five times at Jim Sundean, and the man who tried to abduct Sue ally are the same? Sue Sundean and David Lorn, a detective, puzzle over the problem. They agree that behind it all is a plot to obtain the token by means of which Sue is to prove her identity to her brother, whom she has not seen for years, and thus to share with him an immense fortune. In any case, Sue is in danger—and Sundean aches to help her.

Chapter 21

STUBBORN SUE

I started toward Sue; it was a ghastly suggestion she'd put into words. But Lorn intercepted me. "Oh, don't think of danger, Miss Tally," he said easily. "The token protects you so long as they don't discover it."

She looked faintly less rigid under the easy assurance of his words. But I was thinking; abduction, search, threat, unspeakable torture, even. And she was like a rock in her determination not to go to her brother. "Can't you cable something to Francis to bring him here sooner?" I suggested.

"No," cried Sue, spiritedly. "I won't beg—"

"Nonsense," I said. "This is too serious for petty pride—"

"Petty pride!" She was on her feet again, her eyes flashing dangerously.

"Come, come, Miss Tally," murmured Lorn quietly. "We understand your position. But I'll cable to Mr. Tally."

"I won't have it—"

"Then I'll do it myself," I said grimly, and meant it, though I have the average man's dislike for meddling in someone's else's affairs.

"You won't," said Sue, sitting down again.

"Then you'll tell the police about it and get their permission to leave—"

"I won't," said Sue quite sweetly. "The question of cabling your brother can wait," Lorn said quietly. "It wouldn't help us now, anyway. It would take Mr. Tally some time to get here, and this business will be, probably, cleared up and done with long before he can arrive. And there is no use talking of leaving now. The police will not let any of us leave. Not under any circumstances. It is out of the question. You can call that settled."

He looked thoughtfully from Sue to me and back.

"Have you any reason at all to suspect that the Lovschiemers are at the bottom of this, Miss Tally? There is a very obvious implication of a sort of conspiracy of at least two people—possibly more. One person way you look at it."

"The Lovschiemers! No," cried Sue stubbornly. "I told you I'd been nervous about it. But nothing definite—except that abduction. And nothing at all to involve the Lovschiemers."

"But there's no one else in the hotel," said Lorn.

"No," agreed Sue at once. "Except the servants, and they couldn't be the offenders—Marcel is too loyal, Marianne too honest, and the cook has no brains at all and, besides, is a shocking coward."

"Well," said Lorn, "there's the priest and Mrs. Byng."

"And do you seriously suspect either of them?" asked Sue scornfully. "No—if there actually is a conspiracy, as you call it—against me, it comes from outside the hotel."

"But ways and means?" hinted Lorn dryly.

"Pouf! There are plenty of ways and means. People could easily get in and out of the place, and without being seen. It stands open all day. It's practically deserted in the winter. And it's a great rambling affair with a hundred hiding places."

"Do you know any of them?" asked Lorn sharply.

She looked at him in a perplexed way.

"Oh, I see," she said after a moment. "You mean really secret hiding places. Isn't that a little absurd, Mr. Lorn?"

"Perhaps," he said. "Still—it's a very old place, you know."

"You are sure it was a man who shot at you in the courtyard, Mr. Sundean?" asked the detective.

"Why, yes, of course. That is, well—no. I didn't actually see him, and I suppose a woman can fire a revolver as easily as a man. But I felt that it was a man."

Sue said quickly: "You've forgotten, Mr. Sundean. I told you there is a way into the hotel after the doors and gates have been locked for the night. I know it. Lovschiem and his wife know it. Marcel knows it. But otherwise it is supposed to be kept a secret."

I remembered her words at once. "And you said the man who followed you last night knew the way into the hotel? That limits it further, then, if that way is supposed to be kept a secret. If we can discover just who knows of that way—providing of course it has actually been kept a secret—"

Sue nodded vigorously, though I thought it unlikely—"then among those people must be—"

I checked myself, as I saw I was getting nowhere, and Lorn said a little maliciously: "Must be whom, Mr. Sundean? The murderer or the murdered man?"

"That depends on the identity of the murdered man," I said rather glumly. "At any rate, it proves that the man who tried to abduct Miss Tally had some connection with the hotel—or with the Lovschiemers. The fact that, after driving about for so long a time, he finally brought her back to the immediate vicinity of the hotel indicates that, too." Lorn nodded. "Possibly," he said. "Then," I said, "there's the car she was carried off in. If the murdered man was her abductor, then the car must be standing about near the hotel."

"True," said Lorn, giving me a faintly respectful look. "I'll see what I can find out about that. Fortunately, as I said, the police here are inclined to be friendly to me. I wonder how soon we'll know the exact poison; we can't consider its hypothetical relation to the few facts we have until we know what the poison was, how it might be administered, and when. However, the abductor may have had accomplices."

"There was only one man," said Sue with a small shudder. I glanced at her white face and said quickly: "Well, there seems to be several things that will bear investigation. I want to know, first, about this business of the dagger; who took it off the dead man and washed it and then put it back on the clock?"

"Then I want to know why the lights went out just as they did while I was in the court. It was a most opportune accident—if accident it was—for the man in the court with me; otherwise I should certainly have caught a glimpse of him."

"My only surmise about that is that, if it was Lovschiem in the court then, Madame Lovschiem could easily have pulled the main switch. She might have been watching the affair and have come to her husband's assistance, in that way. Where were you, Miss Tally, when the lights in the hotel went out?"

"I was still in my room," she said at once.

"What was," I asked hating myself but remembering too vividly the face in the third-floor window, "your own room—nineteen? On this floor?"

"Why, yes, of course," she said. "Do you mind if I ask how you knew of the murder?"

"Not at all. I was opening my window; I could not see through the shutters, and I unlatched one in order to glance out into the court. I saw light streaming from your room and several figures—yours, I thought, and Marcel's—and I could see Father Robart bending as if he were kneeling."

"It was clear, of course, that something unusual had happened, and I was—curious, I suppose. I felt apprehensive and alarmed and could not possibly have gone to sleep without knowing. Finally I closed the shutter and started to dress again. While I was dressing the lights in my room went out."

"That has happened before so I just waited till it came on again and thought nothing of it. As soon as I got my coat on I came out into the corridor and hurried along it and into the north corridor and saw Marcel. You and the priest weren't there any more. Marcel told me what had happened, and then you came."

"You met no one in the corridors?"

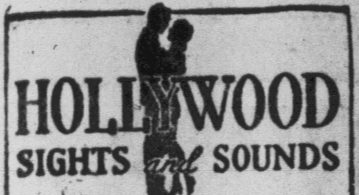

"No," she said promptly. "No one."

I couldn't say: But I saw you looking from a third-floor window and you looked white and terrible. I couldn't say: Why was your story about the key so strangely apt? I couldn't say: Why did you replace the dagger? I couldn't say: Why, oh, why didn't you tell me the truth about the time when you left my room?

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—(AP) — Unemotional and impersonal business is the selection of girls for a Hollywood chorus.

The girls, hundreds of them, blonds, brunets, red-heads, large, small and middling, slender and sizable, assemble in bathing suits on a rehearsal stage.

At one of these selections the appointed hour is 3 o'clock; long before that time rows of chairs on three sides of the hall are filled with chattering girls, and more are coming, faster than the checkers at the door can handle them. On the fourth side of the hall, commanding a view of the whole scene, is the desk where sits Sammy Lee, dance director.

The buzz and babble—it sounds hilarious—is halted by diminutive Sammy's call for quiet. His announcement is matter-of-fact; "We can use only a few of you, and we don't want you to feel bad if you're not chosen. It won't be your fault, and it isn't mine if you're not. We can't tell you why, so don't ask me."

He turns to an assistant, who calls off 25 names from a list, with orders to form a line.

"I'm going to tell some of you to stay, others to leave," continues Sammy Lee. "Those to leave go out this side and go home. The others go to that corner and turn in your names."

Lee walks down the line rapidly.

Theford's Black-Draught "Good for Constipation"

"We have used Theford's Black-Draught in our home for about 20 years and have found it to be a reliable medicine," writes Mrs. Joe G. Roberts, of Porterville, Ala. "A friend recommended it to me a long time ago and it has proved its worth to me. Black-Draught is good for constipation and to rid the system of bodily poison. I find that taking Black-Draught prevents the bilious headache which I used to have. I take a dose of Black-Draught, dry, as I need it."

Thousands of men and women have found how well Black-Draught works in the relief of many little common disorders due to constipation. Costs only 1 cent or less a dose.

as the girls turn around, walks up again, surveys them from both sides, has them "count off" as he passes.

Then he starts at the beginning again, telling them off. "You go, you go, you go, you stay, you go, you go, you stay, you stay, you go, you go, you stay, you go..." Line after line comes up, and faces the same inspection.

The rejected take it philosophically, many leave smiling, and there are no melodramatic pleas for "just a chance" or demonstrations of joy from the favored ones.

Such emotional exhibitions, it seems, are reserved for screen stories of backstage life.

Casserole Seen Best Method Washington, D. C. — From the standpoint of cooking value baking a vegetable in its skin or in a casserole is the best method, say Federal food experts. The baking should be slow with moderate oven heat. Potatoes, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes and onions, for example, contain enough water to form steam and keep them moist. The skin holds in the steam.

Christian Science Services.
"Probation After Death" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 23.

The Golden Text was from Matthew 24:13: "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 23, was the following passage from the Bible: "The righteous shall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands shall be stronger and stronger"—Job, 17:9.

The lesson-sermon also included the following from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man should renew his energies and endeavors, and see the follow of hypocrisy, while also learning the necessity of working out his own salvation. When it is learned that disease cannot destroy life, and that mortals are not saved from sin or sickness by death, this understanding will quicken into newness of life. It will master either a desire to die or a dread of the grave, and thus destroy the great fear that besets mortal existence."—Christian Science Committee on Publication.

Wesley Philathea Class Meets.
On Monday evening Mrs. Harry Joyner entertained the Wesley Philathea Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in her lovely new home on Eastern street. Misses Addie Johnston and Lill Wilson were assisting hostesses. Spring flowers were used in decorations.

Besides the large number of members present we were delighted to have Miss Bessie Harding of Washington, guest for the evening. Mrs. Milton White, president of the class, called the meeting to order and Mrs. Wiley Brown led the devotional. Her subject, "Prayer," was followed by a reading on "Prayer" by Mrs. Burks which was inspiring and enjoyable.

The birthday of one of our members occurring on this day, we greeted her with an appropriate song. This was quite a surprise to Mrs. Parker and greatly appreciated by her.

Mrs. White gave a resume of her Easter visit to Washington City to view the cherry blooms and also the many points of interest in our capital. This was most interesting.

This was followed by a test on Biblical questions. Miss Bessie Harding winning the prize. Mrs. Burks gave a humorous reading which was thoroughly enjoyed.

The hostesses served strawberry shortcake.—Reported.

Tips on CONTRACT

OPENING THE LEAD (By Tom O'Neill)

Many a difficult contract is made through the cleverness of the declarer when the correct choice of an opening lead would have defeated it.

The leader often is in difficulties, especially if partner has not bid and a terse auction by the declarer's side has given little information.

Especially against slam contracts some players are prone to lead a trump on the theory that all the adversaries' trumps will be lost anyhow and a course of action can be planned after the dummy is on view.

The trump lead will defeat some contracts, especially when the auction has indicated that the contracting partnership has decided on a suit bid secondarily. This is due to the fact that the declarer's side may not have all the trumps it needs for ruffing.

When the bidding has shown bountiful trumps in possession of the declarer the trump opening is likely to help him. Some players prefer a short suit lead in that case.

Study the hand below, first to see how a spade slam can be made by South and second to see how it could be defeated:

At first glance it might seem that South must lose a diamond and a club.

A little slam was made, however, by Mrs. Florence Fitch Osborn through a squeeze play. She opened the auction with a spade, West offered two diamonds, North said three spades, East passed and the dealer bid six spades.

West opened his singleton trump. After another round of trumps the declarer led the ace of diamonds and then a low diamond.

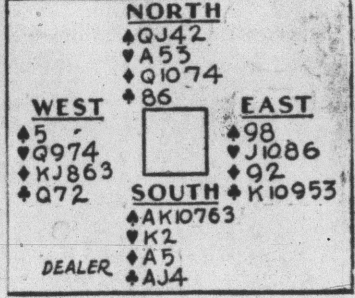

West naturally took a trick with his king of diamonds. Then he led the club queen. South took the trick with the ace. Dummy was entered with a trump and on the queen of diamonds South discarded the club four. All the trumps were then played. Just before South led the last trump the situation was:

NORTH: H—A 5 3; D—10.
WEST: H—Q 9 7; D—J.
SOUTH: S—7; H—K 2; C—J.
EAST: H—J 10 8; C—K.
When South leads the last spade, if West discards the diamond knave the declarer takes the last three tricks with two hearts and the diamond ten.

If West discards a heart, North throws the diamond ten and the squeeze affects East. If he sheds a heart, the declarer takes the last three tricks with hearts. If East parts with the club king, the club knave in the South hand makes.

There is one way to beat the hand. It is not the lead of the singleton trump, or the lead of fourth best from the heart or diamond holdings in the West hand, but the lead of the deuce from the club tripleton. South would take the trick with the ace and then when West

My Beauty Hint

By NATALIE SCHAFER (Screen Actress)
A lemon skin-rinse is my favorite beauty treatment. Lemons are astringent when the juice is rubbed into the skin. Cut a lemon in half. Press the juice into a small dish. Rub the juice directly on the skin and massage it into the pores. Repeat this process at intervals, and after the final treatment remove excess juice with cleansing cream.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

Contrary to expectations Boston did not turn out to be a profitable stop-over in the barnstorming tour of Jack Dempsey, old-time fight idol actor and promoter, and Max Schmeling, who in 1921-1922 held the world championship toga that Dempsey wore with flaming brilliancy back in 1919-1926.

Drew Less Than $5,000 "It may have been that the rain, which has fallen steadily to rover a week, dampened the ador of Boston's Dempsey worshippers, or it may have been that just a block away one of the most famous dance orchestras blared forth for the first time in this city or that several blocks away the acrobatic wrestlers cavorted.

Father's house one of merchandise for their own profit. Against that he inveighed with no uncertainty. Once more, the blood-covered face of Jesus, telling of His sacrifice, His suffering. Marred more than any other human countenance. Finally the triumphant face of Jesus, through the resurrection, and the fact of His return. To Mary he brought new joy and deepened love. So we expect Him, and will rejoice in His coming, and sharing in this blessed character building to be evidenced in our countenance.

Morning Message Praise service led by Berry-Bostic Mr. Gaines spoke on the subject, "The Demon Worry." His text was Luke 12:25: "Which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?"

Present conditions are especially conducive to the experience of worry. It is a sin. Someone said: "Jesus gives more room in H is Sermon on the Mount for a discussion of the sin of worry than He gives to the sins of theft, adultery, or murder." In this discussion the following points were made: First, worry is the very antithesis of belief or trust. Jesus does not place a premium upon carelessness or imprudence, but He does condemn anxiety. Some people have their worries or troubles three times. First, in anticipation; second, in actual realization; and third, in living them over again.
