PITT SCHOOLS BEGIN FINALS

Commencement Season Gets Under Way At Three Schools Today

Closing exercises of Pitt County schools got under way today and will continue until the latter part of next week.

Commencement actually got under way with exercises at Grimesland, Chisler and Bell Arthur today.

The greatest celebration probably had been planned at Grimesland today where commencement got under way with the dedication of the new stadium or athletic field erected through public subscription and R. F. C. funds.

The field is considered one of the finest in the county and will serve the needs of the community for years to come, officials of the school said recently.

A large fence surrounding the athletic field and spacious bleachers and grandstand will enable the accommodation of the thousands of people expected to be on hand.

Conley said the schools had made good progress this year in spite of shortage of appropriations announced at the beginning of the session.

Teachers and students, he said, showed a splendid spirit of co-operation throughout the school year, and this combined with support of the public, was ascribed as one of the main reasons for the success of the session.

MEANS SAYS RUM RUNNERS STOLE BABY

Former Government Agent Continues Testimony in District Columbia Court

Washington, D. C., May 12.—(AP)—Gaston B. Means testified in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals today that the Lindbergh baby was stolen by New Jersey liquor runners.

Continuing the story he began yesterday in testifying in his own behalf, Means said Max Hassell and Max Greenberg were responsible for the kidnaping.

He disclosed that Irving Penton, one of those described by him as actually responsible for the kidnaping, had told him that Colonel Lindbergh as a practical joke on some occasions had placed the baby in a closet and told the servants the baby had been stolen.

This joke, said Means, gave the kidnapers their idea how to take the baby.

Means took up the story where he left off yesterday and told of the meeting of Penton in Concord, N. C.

Late News Flashes

Today In The Legislature. Raleigh, May 12.—(AP)—Conferees on the biennial school machinery bill, the last major act of the general assembly, must agree on it before it can adjourn sine die, promised a complete measure late today as two legislative divisions worked upon odds and ends of the calendars.

The eight legislators engaged in ironing out differences between the Senate and House school bills reported at the end of a four hour meeting that it would be ready to report during the afternoon.

The major point of contention between the two houses is over length of the school terms.

This is the first legislative session which had to delay adjournment because of failure to enact a school law, in the memory of Representative Doughton, Alleghany veteran for 16 years.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler Astounds Republicans With His Suggestion

New York, May 12.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and a power of Republican strength, was on record today favoring the election of Alfred E. Smith, Tammany sachem, as mayor of New York City.

This suggestion was hurled like a verbal bomb into a gathering of Republicans and party workers here last night.

"Why not make the election unanimous?" Butler asked in provoking the name as a fusion candidate.

The audience gasped and then applauded. The Herald Tribune, Republican paper, said in an account of the meeting that the suggestion so astonished the Republican workers that they applauded in a punch drunk sort of way.

GRIMESLAND HOME-COMING DRAWS CROWD

Hundreds Attend Dedication of New Athletic Field and Commencement

Hundreds of people made pilgrimage to Grimesland today to take part in Home Coming Day and the dedication of the new athletic field recently completed through public subscription and Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds.

The day was one of the greatest in the history of the town and former citizens liberally flocked to the town during the morning hours to be ready for the opening exercises at 11 o'clock.

The exercises were being held in connection with commencement of the Grimesland public schools, diplomas having been awarded during the morning hours followed by an address by Donald Conley, director of Pitt county schools.

At the noon hour a picnic dinner was spread on the school campus and people from many miles around relieved their gastronomic cravings from the bountiful supply of food provided by thrifty housewives of the community.

The formal dedication of the stadium was scheduled to get under way at 2:30. This consisted of the raising of a flag over the grandstand and speeches by prominent men of the community who played an important part in the building of the field.

Following the dedication ceremonies, Grimesland baseball club was to take on East Carolina Teachers College in a struggle for diamond supremacy.

Grimesland, since the building of the new field, has assembled one of the strongest baseball clubs in this part of the state, and was expected to offer the collegians plenty of competition.

To Mayor B. F. Buck went the honor of tossing the ball setting the game in motion. Other athletic events were planned during the afternoon hours.

COURT CLOSES WEEK SITTING

Three Dozen Cases Disposed of in One Week: Civil Term Here This Week

The one-week civil term of Superior Court which convened here last Monday morning was adjourned here yesterday afternoon by Judge Clayton Moore of Williamston.

Approximately three dozen cases were disposed of during the sitting, and quite a dent was made in the calendar of between fifty and seventy cases.

Court was in recess during the greater part of Tuesday because of the fact that most of the cases set for hearing during the day were disposed of through the compromise route.

The final cases disposed of was that of J. H. McLawhorn against Herman Nobles, involving suit for $600 as result of the death of McLawhorn's mule when hit by an automobile driven by Nobles. The plaintiff was awarded judgment for $160.

The suit grew out of a wreck near Greenville during the latter part of last year. McLawhorn was riding in a buggy pulled by a mule when the automobile driven by Nobles was said to have collided with the other vehicle, killing the mule and doing other damage.

The case occupied the most of the final day's session and the jury was out about an hour before returning a decision.

PRESIDENT TAKES ISSUE IN OWN HANDS

Will Attempt to Bring About Approval of British Plan Proposed by MacDonald At Geneva; French Opposition Dispelled Temporarily by U. S. Assurance of Some Form of International Peace

Washington, D. C., May 12.—(AP)—Some effort is being made here as well as abroad to dissolve German objection to the British arms reduction plan and similar diplomatic mission is expected to be employed by President Roosevelt in his talks with high Japanese officials.

The President has taken disarmament as well as war debts into his own hands and is sparing no effort to bring about acceptance of the plan proposed at Geneva by the British Prime Minister MacDonald.

Thus far Germany has been a stumbling block in the way of progress toward adoption, but officials here feel that Japan likewise will present objections in due time.

French opposition has been dispelled at least temporarily by Roosevelt's assurance that the United States will guarantee international peace by some form of consultative pact is definite arms limitation is achieved.

GRADUATES GET AWARDS

Impressive Exercises Held In Elementary Schools of City This Morning

Commencement season for public schools of the city was ushered in this morning with the holding of grade children at Thru Street and grade children at Third Street and Training Schools.

One hundred and ten children received certificates of graduation at the two schools, 45 at the Training School and 55 at Third Street. Seventy-five others were to graduate at completion of summer school, Superintendent J. H. Rose stated.

The program at both schools was of an impressive and inspirational nature, being marked by special musical programs and addresses by Rev. W. H. Lillycrop at Third Street and W. H. Ryan at the Training School.

Both speakers lauded the record of service of the children and urged them to keep ever in view the high ideals which enabled them to safely cross the hurdles of their grammar school days.

Commencement season will get in full swing tonight as far as the high school is concerned with presentation of the annual senior play. The play usually is given several weeks prior to commencement, but due to the shortened school term officials decided to make it a part of the final program.

The annual sermon to the graduating class will be delivered in the high school auditorium Sunday night at 8 o'clock by Dr. Elbert Russell at dean of the School of Religion of Duke University. Graduates will be presented diplomas in exercises in the campus building of the college Monday evening. There will be no Monday evening exercises.

A special musical program will be presented under direction of the high school music department.

Now comes a move in the legislature to reverse the action that designated the 'Tomtit' as the official state bird. After all what does it matter, and cannot the legislators find something more important to do than take up their time in this matter?

The failure of the Senate to enact the measure that would give the voters the privilege of voting an amendment for the increase in the income tax limits is another indication that those who have been of the opinion that the Senate was determined that the little man should carry the tax burden had a sound basis for their opinions. Nineteen of the same senators who voted consistently for the sales tax were among those who yesterday voted against this measure for an increase in the limits of the income taxes.

In other words, these senators displayed a willingness to vote additional taxes upon the backs of the poor through the sales tax medium whether the poor man earned an income or not, but were unwilling to increase the income taxes of those whose incomes run into the hundreds of thousands.

We are glad to pass on to our readers the information that Senator Arthur Corey, of this county, taking the opposite stand from the above mentioned nineteen, voted every time against the sales tax and yesterday was numbered among those who voted in favor of the measure to increase the income tax limits.

DEPRESSION WAGES LOSING FIGHT WITH 'OLD-TIME GOSPEL'

Memphis, Tenn.—(AP)—The depression has served as a step-ladder to spiritual and material success for Bellevue Baptist Church. Since the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Robert G. Lee, came to Memphis five years ago from Charleston, S. C., Bellevue church has added approximately 3,000 members to its enrollment and received offerings amounting to about $320,000.

About 800 conversions are credited to Dr. Lee's preaching, which he described as 'old-fashioned gospel.' Dr. Lee says he has revivals every Sunday at the regular services, averaging 11 new members a week.

Shortly after coming here he helped remodel and enlarge the church's building and built a modern Sunday school plant capable of accommodating 3,000 pupils.

"I do not believe in cheap salvation," Dr. Lee says. "My sermons are based on the gospel. Sometimes we insert an advertisement in the papers telling of coming services, but if the advertisement seems sensational it always relates to a sermon based on scripture."

Dr. Lee served at New Orleans before his pastorate at Charleston.

The White Cockatoo by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: A third murder in the gloomy little French hotel has at last crumbled Sue ally's resolution to stick by the ship. They are connected with an attempt to secure the token which entitles her to share a huge fortune. She agrees to leave Arsene. But, wonder Jim Sundean and David Lorn, the detective, what could a priest like Father Robart have known that would have led the killer to murder him?

Chapter 35

SUE'S PREDICAMENT

"Well," said Lorn slowly, "there are two hypotheses. Either he was an honest priest who accidentally knew too much about one of the other murders and his knowledge was so dangerous and so incriminating that he had to be silenced at once; or he was, as Mr. Sundean thinks, no priest at all."

"If not a priest, then what?" Lorn shrugged. "If not a priest, then certainly a conspirator."

"Remember his searching Miss Tally's room?"

Lorn looked at me soberly. "You are sure that he carried nothing in his hands when you saw him come from her room?"

"I saw nothing." Lorn turned to Sue. "And you are sure nothing was gone?"

"Yes," said Sue at once. Her eyes met Lorn's steadily, and her expression did not change, although it seemed to me that Lorn's gaze became sharper.

"If he had come up the object—token—whatever it is that is to prove your identity," ventured Lorn speculatively and rather guardedly, his eyes still searching Sue's face, "then that would provide a motive for his murder."

"Of course," said Sue briefly. "Although that would presuppose several different people trying to obtain the token."

"Two, at least," said Lorn. "Not counting your eventual substitute."

Sue shivered. "I think now you are both right," she said. "I will go to the police this afternoon."

There was a short silence. The lounge was empty except for us, and bare and chilly. Above us were those blank gallery railings, and all around us the secretive dark old hotel.

The Lovschlems were in the lobby. I had watched them carefully during the night.

"That is," he corrected himself somewhat hastily, as the meaning of the expression in Sue's little white face reached him, "at least to some extent your safety lies in their discovering the criminal. Our only hope is to try it, though I fear the police will make you stay, even after they know the story."

There were voices in the lobby; someone had just entered from the outside. We could hear Grethe's fluent French, then some scattered English phrases in a strange voice. It was a man's voice.

I followed Lorn's blank gaze into the lobby; a man stood there. A stranger; the light from the window was full on his face. He seemed to be explaining something in English to Grethe and Marcus, for we caught a brief English word or two.

Then, with all the effect of a curtain in a theater, Grethe appeared suddenly in the door of the lounge. She said to Sue:

"You brother has come. He—she turned toward the man who somewhat hesitatingly had followed her—"this is Miss Tally, monsieur."

from Grethe's graceful shoulder, waded along it to the door to the courtyard, and paused to examine with handsomely flared crest and a knowing and speculative eye the boot heel of policeman who stood there. He opened his curved beak dubiously, paused to scratch with vigor under one wing, and I said thoughtfully:

"If we only knew exactly where the danger lies."

"When we discover that, we will have the murderer," said Lorn. "It may not be as complete a mystery as you seem to think. Things have a way of breaking suddenly."

"Perhaps. But yesterday I felt sure the man pretending to be a priest—"

"You don't know yet that he was not," said Lorn softly.

"Do you want to bet that the police won't discover his papers to be forged?"

"Oh—no," said Lorn temperately. "He probably was no priest. But it's better to be quite sure of these things before resting a case on them."

"Well, in any case, I felt he was the murderer. Now—I don't know—someone certainly killed him. And there's the nicotine again, to link it with the murder of the man called Stravsky."

"Yes," said Lorn slowly. "If the priest had taken anything yesterday from Miss Tally's room we might come nearer to understanding the affair."

Sue said nothing. Presently he continued:

"But since Miss Tally assures us that he found nothing—" He shrugged again and left the obvious conclusion unspoken.

"In the meantime," I reiterated, "the thing to do is to go to the police and tell them all that we know and beg them to permit Miss Tally to leave."

"Unless," said Sue rather tremulously, "it would only be to take myself also away from protection."

"I'll go with you," said Lorn.

"Oh, I'm not changing my mind again," said Sue at once. "Surely you can intervene for me, Mr. Lorn, with Francis, if he disapproves."

"I can try," said Lorn rather dubiously. "But it's the only thing for you to do, Miss Tally. You are in a position of great danger. I'm afraid I made a grave mistake in backing you up in the first place. It hasn't been fair to the police, and your safety lies in their discovering the criminal. And they should have every facility to do so."

"That is," he corrected himself somewhat hastily, as the meaning of the expression in Sue's little white face reached him, "at least to some extent your safety lies in their discovering the criminal. Our only hope is to try it, though I fear the police will make you stay, even after they know the story."

INFLATION—AND YOUR DOLLAR

By J. R. BRACKET New York.—(AP)—Plans suggested for advancing the government attack on the depression involve partial use of every major method proposed by the various schools of inflationists.

If all plans are utilized to the limit, the amount of money and credit scheduled for the attack runs between $17,000,000,000 and $23,000,000,000, which may be used for the inflationary purpose of raising prices.

Inflation raises prices because it cheapens money, either by reducing the gold content of the dollar, as proposed legislation would permit, or by increasing the amount of money.

The supply of money may be increased either by adding to bank deposits or to the currency. In effect, these plans are the same, since both are used for money.

The total of cash (6,000,000,000) and bank deposits ($35,000,000,000) is now about $41,000,000,000. A marked increase of this supply of money is inflationary. Most money, including government funds, is deposited in the banks.

Inflation Increases Spending When an inflationary program of any kind is started, the tendency is for money to be spent rapidly because of the general knowledge that prices are likely to go higher.

Three methods of increasing the money supply are possible under present projects:

(1) The Federal Reserve Banks may buy $3,000,000,000 government bonds on the open market. The bonds are thus turned into money, which must be lent or spent. Also, if the government desires, it may issue new currency to pay on government bonds to the extent of $3,000,000,000.

(2) The government plans to spend from $2,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 on public works. To do this it would sell bonds turning its credit into bank deposits and money.

(3) The government may accept silver in payment of war debts, and may issue currency for this silver in payment of its obligations.

Other sums amounting to about $1,000,000,000 or more may be borrowed by the government and spent. All of these plans increase the total supply of money.

Another division of the inflationary proposals involves increasing the liquidity of farm and home mortgages.

gages. More than $4,000,000,000 is scheduled for this purpose.

Plans also are under way to re-open banks containing between $4,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 of bank deposits.

The specific attempt to "unfreeze" mortgages is similar in general effect to all those inflation plans in that it seeks to change frozen debts into instruments on which more money may be borrowed. An increase of money would make the payment of debts easier.

The money which inflationary projects would pump into the banks by government borrowing would be spent in the channels of trade, and stimulated trade would need to borrow more money, which the banks would have as a result of the sale of other government bonds to the Federal Reserve System.

Liquidity Result Sought The various items mentioned total between $17,000,000,000 and $23,000,000,000.

This does not mean an expansion of the money in circulation and of bank deposits by that amount. It means that money and credit may be increased by an unpredictable amount, and that similar unpredictable amounts of private credit would be made more liquid through the use of government credit.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR POPPY DAY

America's flower of patriotic remembrance will be carried to the people of Greenville on Saturday, May 27, by corps of women volunteers organized for the work with army efficiency. Completion of the organization for the poppy sale was announced today by Mrs. L. H. Bowling, poppy chairman of the Pitt county post of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Each of the volunteer workers has been assigned to a team which will distribute the poppies in a specified location in the city. Each team is in charge of a district captain, working under the Auxiliary's general poppy committee.

The local poppy corps will be part of an army of 100,000 women who will go into action on a nation-wide front on Poppy Day to recall to America the services of the World War dead and to raise funds to aid the war's living victims. Before the close of the day these women hope to place the flower of remembrance on ten million coats, and to receive contributions which will enable the American Legion Auxiliary to carry on its relief and rehabilitation work for disabled veterans and needy families during the coming year.

Making poppies for the sale has given hundreds of disabled veterans employment through the winter and spring months. These disabled men are the only workers in the Auxiliary's poppy program receiving pay, all others donating their services. All contributions received above the cost of making the poppies is used in the Auxiliary's welfare work.

Sans Souci Book Club Meets.

On Tuesday afternoon, May 9th, fourteen members of the Sans Souci Book Club and one visitor, enjoyed a delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Forbes. Spring was brought into the living room from the rose bushes and the poppy beds.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Judson Blount, and after a short business session, the club was entertained with an interesting paper given by the hostess on the "Legends of North Carolina." Five legends were presented: "The White Doe," "Black beard," "The Old Drain Tree," "The Mystery of the Fate of Theodosia Burr," and "The Castle of the Ghingouls." These legends were particularly interesting because they originated in North Carolina.

After the presentation of the legends, each member was called upon for a current event, all of which were interesting, as well as educational.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, little Miss Jane Forbes, served a delicious frozen salad course, after which the club adjourned to hold its final meeting with Mrs. Charles Forbes.

Rectifying Errors.

When boiled frosting becomes too hard after being removed from the fire, add a little cream or hot water and it will be smooth again. When mixing a recipe that calls for sour milk or cream and you have neither, put a tablespoonful of vinegar to each cup of milk and you'll get astonishingly similar results.

Hollywood—(AP)—Shakespeare said it first, but Mervyn Leroy repeated it the other day. "The play's the thing."

The diminutive director who looks like a boy and smokes big cigars was talking about this and that in pictures, and I don't recall how Shakespeare got into the discussion, but there he was.

"You can have all the million-dollar set-ups, the gorgeous displays and the rest of the trimmings, but give me a fine play, a good troupe of actors and four bare walls," said Mervyn, "and I'll turn out paying entertainment for the screen."

This all began with a little conversation about "dirt" in pictures, and the notion of some producers that the public is crying for it. Mervyn doesn't think so—and he called again on Shakespeare. "The play's the thing," but how the play is presented makes the difference between "dirt" and fine entertainment, he argues. "Some people," he elucidated, "think everything pertaining to sex must be dirt. That's wrong, of course. It's not clever to direct dirty plays. The great things is to direct a play concerning sex in such a way that any suggestion of offensiveness is deleted and the picture still holds a wallop."

"Tonight or Never," starring Gloria Swanson, was one of Leroy's pictures, risque but not "dirty" in the usual sense of that term. Mervyn hasn't yet had to make a picture with four bare walls for a set—Hollywood is still affording realistic backgrounds—and he has not always had good plays. He prefers actors to "faces."

"Good looks are secondary now," he said. "Look at Edward G. Robinson, Paul Muni—I could make a list of them. And Aline McMahon. She's no beauty, but she's great!"

Goings-on among the Amazons and the Greeks in 800 B. C. are the basis of "The Warrior's Husband," a new film which is satirical if not always polite, contains broad comedy with Marjorie Rameau and Ernest Tuess, and offers Elissa Landi in a buoyantly youthful mood

Alabama Farmers - O. K. 'Live-At-Home' Plan

Auburn, Ala.—(AP)—Alabama farmers, numbering more than 15,000, have enlisted this year under the "live-at-home" banner and pledged to raise their own food and feed for their livestock.

A campaign was carried into 56 of the 67 counties in the State under the direction of Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, to educate farmers to the value of "living at home."

County home and farm demonstration agents, with the aid of district leaders, have held meetings to discuss farm plans and farmers have joined in the program.

They constitute the "high command" and formulate a program of plantings for gardens canning and raising of meat for home use. The program is then passed on to county agents who, with district leaders, carry it to the farmers.

"Our live-at-home program," said Dr. Duncan, "is based upon the necessity for and also the desire of people generally to feed themselves; and of farm people to feed their livestock, thus releasing their cash income for other things—clothing, home improvement, machinery, automobiles, education—and other necessities and luxuries."

At the farmers' meeting, leaders discuss conditions on the farm, outline programs and ask for volunteers. Farmers have joined, not with formal pledges, but by voluntary assent.

During 1932 pantries of many farm homes were laden with canned fruits and vegetables, smoke-houses contained meat killed and cured at home, and milk and butter were supplied from a small herd and eggs from a growing flock of poultry.

No figures were available for the State as a whole for last year, but Miss Johnson compiled data on the work of 33,009 women and girls who conserved 2,368,876 quarts of food.

This at market price represented $473,775, Miss Helen Johnson, State Home Agent, says.

F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician at Montgomery, says that during the depression the numbers of hogs, dairy and beef cattle, chickens and turkeys in Alabama have increased materially.

Paavo Nurmi may have been the most resourceful and methodical foot-racer of our times.

Sitting around the big table the other night, a group of America's most famous track coaches, including Jack Moakley of Cornell, Emil Von Eling, of New York University, and Harry Hillman of Dartmouth, agreed with little "Jake" Weber, Fordham's coach, that when greater persistence and more winning spirit is developed, the McCluskeys probably will be responsible for it.

Weber, without the slightest hesitation, names black-haired Joe as the greatest runner he has ever known or trained.

"I have seen plenty of 'em come and go," remarked Weber, warming kinks out of more muscles than the Greeks ever heard about.

Keller King of Hurdles With George Saling, of Iowa, out of the picture, track coaches have little hesitation in naming Jack Keller, the lanky Ohio State senior, as the world's greatest high hurdler.

In making this estimate they include Percy Beard, former national champion, who is the holder of the world record of 14.2 seconds for the 120-yard high hurdles.

Public Spanking Stirs Parents Winston-Salem, N. C., May 12.—(AP)—The spanking of two Clemmons school boys in a number of different classrooms last Thursday for defacing property was admitted by the principal, Theodore Rindthaler, as being done not in anger, but because he was inexperienced in inflicting corporal punishment.

Edgar Lashmit, 13, was spanked before thirteen different classes and Lawrence Logan, ten, was spanked in five different classes for writing or scratching initials on a school bus and defacing paneling in a corridor in the school building.

Professor Rindthaler gave each student four or five licks in each class in an effort to impress on the school children the necessity of protecting public property and of punishing those who damaged it.

Put Your Liver To Work--Make This Test

Take Sargon Soft Mass Pills and watch constipation, gas, sour stomach, headaches and nervousness vanish. Don't be misled. Calomel, salts, oils, mineral waters, laxative pills, etc., have no effect on the liver. There are only two generally recognized substances which actually stimulate a sluggish liver to increase its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of them.

Only 60c for a full 30-day treatment. At your druggist, or write G. F. Willis, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.
