Japan Declares Roosevelt Peace Proposal Dangerous

WILL REPLY TO MESSAGE COMING WEEK

Spokesman of Government Says Nation Will Accept in Principal Proposal of World Peace But With Reservations; Says Appeal Framed to Forestall Hitler Address; American Unmindful of Complexities in the Orient

Tokyo, May 19.—(AP)—A spokesman for the foreign office said today that acceptance by Japan "in principle of the world-wide peace appeal of President Roosevelt but with strong reservations" would be sent to Washington next week.

Speaking of the proposal not to send troops across another nation's frontier, the spokesman said: "Replying to his most important and dangerous proposal, Japan must call attention to the peculiar situation in the Far East."

"We learned of our cost of the danger of signing international pledges and would clarify what pledges the parties thereto really meant."

"Were Japan surrounded by normal states we could give a clear answer accepting wholeheartedly. If the world recognized the great wall boundary between Manchuria and China we could accept unreservedly."

"However, it is Japan's impression that the appeal was framed hurriedly in order to forestall Hitler's speech on May 17 and hence the speech was unmindful of the complexities of the oriental situation."

HENRY KING ALLOWED BAIL

Negro Held For Investigation in Whiskey Still Raid Released Yesterday

Henry King, colored, arrested by county officers in the raid of a still in Swift Creek township Thursday afternoon, was given liberty under bond yesterday pending further investigation of the case by county officers.

Boss McLawhorn, second negro arrested in the raid, who was shot through the arm when he advanced upon Deputy Sheriff Herbert Harris with a knife, was reported as getting along nicely at Pitt Community Hospital today.

Along with the two men the officers captured a 500-gallon steam distilling plant which was being operated at full blast, 18 gallons of contraband whiskey and considerable paraphernalia used in the distillation of the illicit beverage.

The two men at the still fled when the officers suddenly made their appearance. Deputy Harris chased McLawhorn who fell down after a two hundred yard sprint and bounded to his feet with a long knife in his hand. He advanced menacingly toward the officer who commanded him to drop the knife. When the negro failed to obey the command the officer opened fire, a single bullet taking effect in the distiller's left arm.

King was later taken into custody and was brought to Greenville and jailed for investigation in connection with operation of the still.

The plant was described as one of the largest captured by county officers in months and was capable of turning out enormous supplies of liquor each week.

And the said judges are requested to leave the arrangement of the calendar to the bar, to the end that each case may be called according to its position on the docket, and each litigant and attorney may have an equal opportunity to have his case tried in due course.

That the clerk of this court be requested to preserve a copy of this resolution and to have the same printed upon the first page of each calendar of civil cases hereafter set for trial at any term of court.

DR. CURRAN TO LECTURE HERE

Member of N. Y. Bar Will Also Appear at Ayden and Farmville This Month

Twelve lectures in four different towns in North Carolina will be given this month by the noted New York speaker, the Rev. Dr. Edward Lodge Curran a member of the New York Bar and a graduate of Columbia University. Dr. Curran will make interesting and appealing talks on questions that are of great importance. The dates on which these lectures will take place follows: At Wilson, May 15, 16, and 17; at Ayden, May 18, 19 and 20; at Greenville, May 21, 22, 23; at Farmville, May 24, 25, and 26.

Dr. Curran, some of whose relatives were born and reared in North Carolina is president of the International Catholic Truth Society. The headquarters of this world-wide organization are in Brooklyn, New York.

There is no man or woman, who at times doesn't think within himself about life after death, about his higher and better self which we call soul. The truth comes home to us in these hard times that man does not live by money and bread alone. Many who honestly labored and saved find themselves today with nothing. And when the fruit of their labor is wiped out their inner self tells them that their work is to live in God's friendship and keep His Commandments. When man lives first to serve God the less does not have a bad effect. Dr. Curran's lecture will help his listeners to understand the important things of life.

Every Protestant, every Catholic, every citizen of this community should make it his or her business to hear Dr. Curran. Everybody will be heartily welcome. Dr. Curran does not aim to make Catholics out of his non-Catholic audience, but he does hope to reawaken a religious spirit on the part of all people. Everybody should be active in the church. The present economic disaster is the result of throwing aside religion not only our own country but also in most other countries. Where God is forgotten our neighbor gets little consideration.

Each one's right to life liberty and the pursuit of happiness can only be safeguarded where the most of us are mindful that God created us and that we must give an account to our Maker for all of our acts. Dr. Curran is speaking in this State this month not on a religious or political platform, but to bring man back to his Creator. We need to be reminded of the things about God and ourselves and the world. We once knew but we perhaps have almost forgotten about. (Continued on Page Four)

DURHAM NEGRO DIES IN CHAIR AT N. C. PRISON

David McNair Pays Death Penalty For Slaying Of Guilford Woman

Releigh, May 19.—(AP)—David McNair, Durham county negro, convicted of the murder of Mrs. J. W. Cowan, of Guilford county was electrocuted at State prison today after he had confessed his guilt.

The 43-year old negro slimly built told Rev. T. A. Grady, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church in Durham that "I killed Mrs. Cowan after she shot, when we told her to put up her hands."

Rev. Grady said McNair also a few minutes before he was taken to the death chamber related that he claimed the other two negroes involved in the holdup had done the shooting in the hope such a statement would keep him from going to the chair.

Grady is pastor of the church of which McNair's mother is a member. The condemned man entered the death chamber in the presence of three negro ministers at 10:23 and at 10:34 was pronounced dead.

Only one shock lasting two minutes and ten seconds was necessary. McNair said nothing in the death room other than to chant, "Jesus have Mercy on my Soul," and "May I Meet You in Glory."

BAPTISTS IN CAPITAL CITY

Southern and Northern Baptists Gather For Annual Conventions

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—The Southern Baptist convention opened its annual convention here today marking the third time since it started with a split over slavery in 1845 that it has met in the capital city.

It's coming to Washington signaled the feeling that the rupture will disappear in the first all day joint session of the Southern and Northern Baptist 88 years. That will take place Tuesday.

Dr. Dodd, of Shaveport, La., the man who stamped the 1932 Southern Baptist convention floor to induce that body to choose Washington for the 1933 meeting place as the northerners were doing will preside over the convention sessions. He replaces President F. P. Brown, of Nashville, who is ill.

New Pontiac Is Enthusiastically Received Here

One of their most hopeful signs that business has definitely started the upward climb is the exceptional spring demand for new cars, says Mr. H. C. Sugg of this city. "Through out the country orders are pouring in for new cars. As the automobile industry is one of our key industries this activity is very encouraging to business leaders throughout the country. According to Mr. Sugg the new Pontiac has received a very flattering reception both nationally and locally. Although introduced here only a few weeks ago the new Pontiac has received a very favorable comment in local circles. Nationally orders are considerably ahead of production. Mr. Sugg has just returned from Charlotte where the factory branch has recently placed an order for 100 carloads of new Pontiacs. Due to the national demand it will be weeks before any deliveries can be made in the popular body styles. "The fact that there is a shortage in the supply of any product in 1933 is a very encouraging sign" said Mr. Sugg.

ARMS CONFAB MEETS AGAIN

Session at Geneva Resumed With Hope Of Reaching Definite Decision

Geneva, May 19.—(AP)—Sessions of the world disarmament conference were resumed today with delegates hopeful that conciliatory foreign policy pronouncement of Chancellor Hitler and President Roosevelt's plea of international cooperation pointed the way to an agreement on reduction of arms.

A feeling of optimism that the deadlock into which the conference had fallen could be broken was aroused by the chancellor's assertion before the German Reichstag, his statement that Germany was ready to comply with any new obligation accepted by other nations was interpreted in some quarters as referring to possible security pact.

The American president's direct appeal to the nations was heralded as setting the stage for a possible agreement on reduction of offensive weapons.

A number of the chief delegates meanwhile awaited form Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, an exact definition of the Washington stand concerning participation in an international pact against an aggressor.

PRISONERS ON 'STRIKE'

Fourteen Men in Md. Penitentiary on Fourth Day of Hunger Strike

Baltimore, May 19.—(AP)—Eighteen prisoners in the Maryland penitentiary, including two lifers and several of national notoriety, were segregated in cells today as 14 of them continued the hunger strike for the fourth day.

The strike was begun Tuesday when three prisoners declined the offer of breakfast and officials made no effort to force them to eat.

William Niemoth, 39, one of Chicago's public enemies, was one of the four men in the segregated cell who was not on the hunger strike.

Niemoth is doing ten years for participating in a holdup in which one was killed. Testifying before the House ways and means committee after Senator Wagner had predicted the plan would put 4,000,000 men to work, Green approved the bill. Asked which of the four methods proposed by Budget Director Douglas he would use to finance the $3,000,000, 000 bond issue for public works, Green replied while labor always has been uncompromisingly opposed to the principle of sale he would support a sales tax if necessary for the public works bill and other taxes during an emergency.

The Law is Law On City Streets

Law is law, regardless of the violator. This fact was borne out to the satisfaction of numbers of people on Evans street today.

Lester Jones, lieutenant of the division-highway patrol, parked his car at the curb to confer with a former city official. He had talked hardly more than a minute when Patrolman Wooten rounded the corner and saw the car on the wrong side of the street. He steered his motorcycle to the car and smilingly gave the patrol chief the "go" signal and needless to say he went, realizing as he did the value of preventing traffic law infractions.

DENY PLANS FOR CONFAB WITH HITLER

French Government Declares That Meeting With German Chancellor Not Contemplated; Premier Assures Senate That Nation May Have Confidence in Strength of the Army Senate Exempts Cut Of National Defense

Paris, May 19.—(AP)—Maintenance of a strong army was the French reply today to Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

Premier Edouard Daladier categorically rejecting further cut in war expenses declared that the French army is strong and must be kept strong.

"This firm stand suddenly squelched talk of a meeting between the premier and Hitler of Germany. The government also officially denied that such a meeting was contemplated.

The premier told the senate that more commissions had been made and that they had not impaired the army's strength.

"I affirm," he declared, "that we can have confidence in the army and I affirm that our national defense is assured."

Daladier said this was in accordance with judgment of the chief of the army and that set forth at a recent meeting of the superior war council presided over by the president.

The senate immediately exempted the defense from a five percent additional cut.

MILK STRIKE ENDS IN WIS.

Agreement Reached Between Governor And Members of Co-operative Pool

Madison, Wis. May 19.—(AP)—The Wisconsin Co-operative milk pool strike which lasted six days and resulted in one death and the use of half the state militia force to combat widespread disorders ended today.

However the national guardsmen continued to patrol several zones to prevent groups over which the pool has no control from interfering with marketing of dairy products.

Adjutant-General Ralph Immel said he would issue instructions for withdrawal of the troops later in the day.

A three and half hour conference in the office of Governor A. C. Schiedman ended late midnight, in an agreement whereby the pool promised to cease picketing and the government agreed to appoint a farm control committee to study problems of agriculture.

Although the conference's action has yet to be ratified, arbitration committee counsel for the pool said as he emerged from the parley that the strike was ended.

The White Cockatoo by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: Feverishly Jim Sundean works to help Sue Tally out of the tangle in which she is enmeshed. The token with which she must identify herself to her brother Francis, whom she has not seen since childhood, is stolen just as Francis arrives in the French hotel where she lives. Three murders have been committed in an effort to steal the token. Sue herself has seemed to do suspicious things. David Lorn, Francis' detective, calls Sue to talk with her brother—and Sundean, fearing the murderer may make a last desperate attempt on Sue's life, watches outside.

Chapter 41 THE THEFT

There was one faint hope. That was that whoever it was who had killed so swiftly, so mysteriously, with such ghastly silence and stealth, striking without warning there in the blackness of the old hotel and vanishing as mysteriously as he had come—whatever he was might possibly believe that without that token, Sue would not be able to convince her brother.

But the faint hope was so very faint that it was almost untenable. Sue's only assurance of safety lay in convincing Francis of her identity. And she was going to him empty-handed, without that token on which had been placed such ill-proportioned significance.

At any rate she had the birth and marriage records; if Francis were only inclined to be fair and reasonable, those written records would go a long way toward establishing her identity.

It was with taut nerves that I saw Francis appear in the doorway and heard him call to Lovschiem, and saw Lovschiem, after a moment or two, emerge from the parlor and waddle fatly toward his own rooms. He's going to his safe, I thought, and lit a cigarette and forced myself to wait quietly.

If Francis would only credit the evidence of that long-ago marriage certificate and Sue's own birth record, things might yet go well with Sue. Given time and luck we might recover the token.

But I was not exactly easy. It was somehow not really a shock to witness Lovschiem's hasty return hit fat hurried hands, his agitation and his cries that he'd been robbed. The safe had been opened, he cried gasping and wheezing for breath. Miss Tally's envelope was gone. Nothing else. Only the envelope.

The strange thing about it was that his agitation was not affected. It looked to me to be real. My opinion of the Lovschiem was going up and up.

I felt sure, while I watched the resultant commotion that brought them all—Francis and Sue and Lorn and, Grethe—into the lounge. I felt sure that neither Grethe nor Marcus had known of the theft of the envelope Sue had entrusted to them.

I was at last convinced that they had actually wanted Sue to have that envelope and to go away with her brother. Which conviction completely reversed my whole train of speculation regarding the Lovschiem.

At the same time, I was interested in discovering from the resultant conversation with its implications that they undoubtedly had known more than Sue believed they had known about her inheritance and the conditions of it. For Francis was not guarded in his remarks even before my ears, and the Lovschiem were obviously not puzzled by his allusions.

"However," said Francis crisply at last, interrupting Lovschiem's perspiring expostulations. "The papers in the envelope were not of first importance. It's true that my sister—" He checked himself, glanced at me, and made his first allusion to the secrecy of the affair. "I conclude that you've taken your friends—" he gestured, toward me and the Lovschiem, an inclusion which, despite my rising regard for the Lovschiem, I did not relish—"into your confidence regarding this affair."

"Only Mr. Sundean," said Sue. "Who has—"

was a delicate matter and one that invited danger.

Fine and fair and careful. At once my growing opinion of the precious two gave one feeble flicker and collapsed. It was far too fine and fair and careful. Grethe's eyes were too cautious, and they held too brooding a flame as they met Francis Tally's. I felt that her claws were unheating themselves her white muscled gathering tense.

And a look at Marcus's face confirmed my feeling, for it bore a silly look of combined dismay, fright, and ludicrous relief as his quicker-witted mate spoke.

"Oh, of course. Of course," said Francis Tally, carelessly, as if it didn't in the least matter. "The point is we don't need the papers that were in the envelope. There is a perfectly simple way for my sister to prove her identity. And I suppose she is willing to do so at once and end this uncertainty."

"I'll match your own token," Francis said Sue pleasantly. Francis whirled sharply to look at her. Even Lorn, who had, as usual, mysteriously turned up at a crisis, seemed to sense something under her voice, and I caught his speculative, thoughtful look and wondered about it.

There had been something queer about Lorn—some impalpable difference. It had come with Francis Tally's unheralded arrival, but it was nothing to which I had a clue. What had he been doing—what, perhaps, had he discovered? There was certainly something very strange back of his guarded dark eyes as he watched Francis Tally.

"What do you mean?" Francis' voice went upward a note or two. "Only that," said Sue still pleasantly.

Francis' face slowly darkened. "But, my dear girl," he said, "it is you who must prove your identity to me. Don't you think you are reversing matters a little?"

"No," said Sue quietly. There was firmness under her voice, but it was still quiet and curious, there was a spark of gaiety in the glance she flung toward me. I was interested to note that Francis' face was less bland. What would he say? What would he do? He shot a glance at Madame Grethe, who watched with her feline look of secret, guarded waiting. He said:

"You forget that I am sole arbiter of the matter. And in any case, sister, I think it might be better to continue our conversation in a less public place. Shall we?" He motioned toward the parlor, and Sue preceded him, meekly enough, but with another glance at me.

Grethe, with a sharp word to Lovschiem, vanished. Lovschiem followed her, and Lorn, looking un-decidedly after Francis, as if waiting for some indication of Francis' wishes sat down beside me. Neither of us spoke for a time; I was lost in my thoughts, and Lorn was equally engrossed in some mysterious speculation of his own.

"Well," I remarked at last, having reached a cu-de-sac in my reasoning from which there was no easy exit, and that too incredible to take.

"Well enough, I suppose," he replied with a bit grudgingly. He was watching the door to the parlor carefully. "Well enough."

I said bluntly: "See here, Lorn. I've got a feeling that you know more about this affair than you are willing to admit. Is that true?"

His chin sank a little into the collar of the dark topcoat he still wore, owing to the barn-like chill in the hotel. He had slouched down in his chair, and looked flabby and baggy-trousered and altogether ineffective.

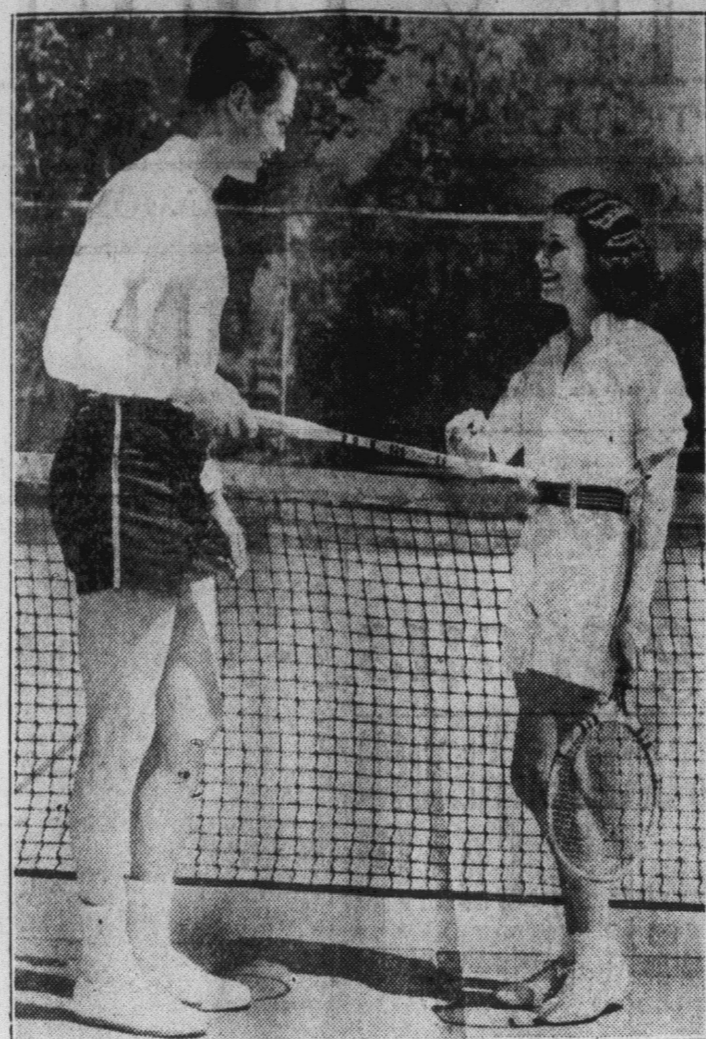

"Yes and no," he said. "If I do know something, the time isn't ripe for it yet."

He flicked a look at me. I could read nothing at all in his clouded dark eyes.

"You're not telling me to mind my own business, are you?"

"Not precisely," said Lorn, with rather startling candor, "but it might be better for you if you did." (Copyright, 1933, M. G. Eberhart) (To Be Continued)

Wallace Power In Farm World

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE Washington.—(AP)—The spotlight of interest following the farm bill's course through Congress has cast into bolder outline the 44-year-old secretary of agriculture to whom it delegates powers almost dictatorial.

"Young Henry" Wallace, as he is called by the Iowa farmers who write him in Washington, is a curious combination of a "scientific" dirt farmer and the intellectual economist, possessing the manners of a shy country youth.

Withal, he has a keen relish for his job along with a distaste for the trappings of office.

The "Mr. Secretary" deference, the blandishments of favor-seekers among them some who formerly rallied at his "radicalism" and the swank of the crest on his governmental limousine, are sources of embarrassment to him.

He walks the four miles from his apartment to his office every day, leaving home at 7:15. He works late at night unless compelled to accept a dinner or speaking engagement.

He submits rather sheepishly to the ministrations of Edward, the veteran negro valet attached to the secretary's office who cared for the sartorial needs of "Young Henry's" father.

Wallace revels in statistical analysis. He gets as much kick out of a production chart as a golf enthusiast does out of shooting a birdie.

He is rated one of the least "political" members of the Roosevelt official family; yet his friends say he has a keen understanding of the farm pass psychology developed through years of close contact with the farmer and of intensive study of his problems.

He appears equally at home at a round-table conference with scientists and professional economists or at a barnyard chat with a farmer.

Horthy Enters Business Field

turn cargoes of this country's agricultural machinery and farm products. Budapest a "Home Port" As a matter of fact, this capital of a land-locked kingdom is already the "home port" of more than a dozen tramp steamers which ply the seven seas.

Budget gets its standing as a seaport because the Danube is an international river.

Horthy, Jr. got his idea for the Egyptian line from Ladislav Polnauer, Hungarian consul in Alexandria. The latter's brother is assisting in the management of the project.

"When the post-war treaties cut Hungary off from her former outlets on the Adriatic, her export trade began to suffer," said Horthy. "Goods which can be shipped from London to Egypt for 30 shillings a ton, cost 120 when transported by rail and boat from here. We hope to reduce this handicap by sending freight down the Danube."

POLITICS

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Of all the problems centering about the White House since March 4, not one has presented a graver test of executive tact than mobilization of the second bonus army in Washington.

The situation would have been explosive enough had it meant merely the necessity of dealing with so many thousands of ordinary unemployed, denying them the things they came to seek and inducing them to leave the capital.

But a great deal more than that was involved. The invaders were not a helter-skelter mob, but an organized group of American citizens. The dominating complaint was not merely against society in general, but specifically against the government of the United States.

Most important of all, resentment over the inglorious retreat of last year's invaders stirred a spirit of desperation difficult to reason with.

There was no doubt from the start, however, that President Roosevelt intended to stake everything on a policy of conciliation.

Even that wing of the bonus army accused of communistic domination assembled with the full knowledge and consent of the administration.

In preliminary discussions between administration officials and veterans' committees it appeared to be taken for granted that payment of the bonus was not in prospect, but that peaceful assembly to ask for its payment was a right, not to be denied.

Furthermore, the President made an affirmative gesture of good will when he announced, just as the vanguard was arriving, that certain cuts in soldier allowances made under the economy bill might be reconsidered.

That announcement touched on a very tender spot. Even before the army arrived Washington had been deluged with complaints that the economy measures were adding measurably to suffering and distress.

Those who mapped out the veterans' re-entrenchments had two danger signals always before them. They did not want to cut so deeply that they would be throwing a tremendous new burden on charity. They did not want to add to unrest.

Mr. Roosevelt did not disclose whether he feared that one or the other of these results, or both, had been threatened by the severe measures adopted.

He did demonstrate by the time and manner of his announcement that he recognized the intricacy of the problem facing him and was considering its various elements.

Nor did anyone on the inside in Washington doubt from the outset that Mr. Roosevelt had still other important cards in his hand or that he would hesitate to play them at the propitious moment.

A New Deal For Liver Sufferers

Don't be misled any longer. Calomel, salts, oils, mineral waters, laxative pills, herb teas, powders, etc., have no effect whatever on the liver. There are only two generally recognized substances which actually cause a sluggish liver to increase its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of them.

You can't feel well and strong unless your liver furnishes plenty of fresh bile every day. Without bile food doesn't digest properly—it just ferments and decays—Constipation, nervous stomach, headaches and nervousness follow.

Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of their effect—You feel stronger, healthier, happier—bile and color return to faded eyes and cheeks—appetite and digestion improve rapidly.

Only one for a full 30-day treatment. At your druggist, or write G. F. Willis, Inc., Atlanta, Georgia.—(adv.)

"Swimming" of the Head From Constipation

"I used to suffer from spells of swimming in the head," writes Mrs. Carrie Brown, of Meridian, Miss. "Everything would go round and round. When I stood upon my feet, I would be almost blind with dizziness. My stomach was upset. These spells, I believe, came from constipation. I suffered torture from the effects. My mother had taken Theodore's Black-Draught for a long time, and she suggested to me that I try it. While I was feeling so bad, I took half a teaspoonful, put it in some water and took it. I found it was just the thing to relieve the suffering from constipation. Now I always keep it in my house. I take it whenever I need a laxative. I take it whenever I have used Black-Draught in my home now for twelve years, and feel it is a great help in keeping my family in a healthy condition."

providing a safe place to swim. Now is the time for action if we would protect the lives of the children.

Following the news story in this paper a few days ago of a woman candidate for State Senate from this county in the next primary, several rumors of candidacies for this and other offices have been heard, there being, according to the rumors, as many as five aspirants for some of the offices. The next primary is still a year away but if only a part of the rumored candidacies materialize the lack of interest manifest in the recent city election here will be more than made up for in the next campaign for county and state offices.

TIME FOR ACTION

Since we have been discussing the need of some suitable place in which the children may swim this summer we have received suggestions as to several sites available for such a purpose, that could be converted into a recreational center at a most reasonable cost, but so far we have heard of no definite movement toward the beginning of such a project. During the past two years a small swimming pool has been operated here with a small group of interested citizens shouldering the responsibility for same, and while we are sure that these men felt well repaid for the time and money they gave to the project the needs of our community call for a much larger proposition than the former one, and as we see it the matter is one for the city itself to handle with the co-operation of all its interested citizens.

Other cities in this and other sections have provided municipally owned and operated swimming pools and it seems that our city could do likewise. Should our city officials undertake such a project we are sure they would have the co-operation of every civic organization as well as that of other interested citizens, and in this way the thing could be put over as it should be.

As the matter now stands the children of our community have no place to go but the river and with hot weather at hand they are going to the river unless some other place is provided for them to swim. Realizing the dangers that accompany swimming at isolated spots along the river we again bring this matter to the attention of our city authorities and urge that they take some action to get a swimming pool project under way here. After some child has lost his or her life in the river, it will be too late to bring them back to life by

WEDDING CHIMES MARK GOLD BOOM IN WEST AUSTRALIA

Perth—(AP)—After a couple of years in which marriages were at lowest ebb, there is a matrimonial boom in Western Australia. Jewelers report splendid business in diamond engagement and wedding rings.

Increase in weddings is believed due to several factors, one being the revival of gold mining in Kalgoorlie and Boulder City which has caused wide economic improvement. Many single men get married to save taxation. Also it pays unemployed couples to get married because the dole for married couples is higher than for single persons. And if there are children the dole is increased very liberally.

One Australian State, New South Wales, provides a dollar per child per week in addition to the dole.

BLAMES PUBLIC OPINION FOR CRIME PREVALENCE

Suffolk, May 19.—"America is the most lawless nation on earth today," declared Douglas Gordon, editor of the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch, in an address delivered before the Suffolk Lions Club at their dinner meeting at the Hotel Elliott. A number of guests attended.

Mr. Gordon in analyzing the crime situation in this country, laid the blame on the bench, the bar, the press and most of all on public opinion. Laxity of mind regarding dastardly crimes, "sob sister" stuff, maudlin sympathy, leaning more toward the murderer's family than that of the victim, were declared by the speaker to be the underlying cause of the crime situation.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—(AP)—That big voice heard so often in the Senate some years back—Magnus Johnson of Minnesota—has been heard again on Capitol Hill, this time in the House.

Johnson back in politics as a Farmer-Laborite and a representative-at-large, has been singularly quiet since he took the oath of office at the beginning of the present session. For the most part he has been content to sit quietly in his seat about half-way back on the Republican side and listen.

The House was debating whether it would accept the cost of production plan as a part of the farm bill. Perhaps it struck Johnson as a bit strange when Clarke of New York, controlling the time for the Republicans, announced that he would yield just two minutes to him. During the old days in the Senate he could have as much time as he desired.

But no man ever inside more of those two minutes, perhaps than he did. In a voice that reverberated through every part of the chamber and which silenced the incessant noise so much a part of the House, Johnson began.

It might have been the fact that he could get only two minutes that so aroused him. Glaring across the aisle at the Democratic leaders, he reminded them that he hadn't taken up much of their time in talking and then he proceeded to fly into them.

"It would have been better for you by far," he shouted. "If you did not come in here with this great majority. By the use of the floor whip you have been rough-shod in your tactics. You have applied the pressure of the conqueror—you have in a determined machine-like process applied the 'rag rule,' and in so doing you have invited the same criticism upon your shoulders for which you burned on the stump the party that was in power before you."

This statement, at the conclusion of his speech, was a signal for a mingled outburst of cheers and jeers.

But above the confusion and before the chair silenced him, Johnson made a statement that may prove to be significant.

"What your party does here," he cried, "can only serve to strengthen the only progressive party in Minnesota, and that party is the one of which I am a member."

There's a question in that perhaps of the future for Johnson. A seat in the Senate must be contested in Minnesota next year. Johnson led the ticket last November in the election of that state's representatives-at-large, polling a total of 388,616 votes.

Maybe he has his heart set on a return to the body in which the once served.
