James Mattern Lands In Moscow

ROOSEVELT ISSUES ORDER FOR BALANCED BUDGET

American Airman Given A Rousing Greeting Abroad

WILL CATCH NAP AND HOP FOR SIBERIA

Texan Three Hours Ahead of Post-Gatty Round the World Record on Landing in Russia; Lands at Moscow After Stop in Norway; Plans 1,700 Mile Hop to Novo Sibirsk on Record Smashing Flight

Moscow, June 5—(AP)—James Mattern, United States aviator, landed in Moscow this afternoon, "dog tired but feeling fine."

He was exactly fifty hours and 37 minutes out of New York City. (This puts him almost three hours ahead of the Post-Gatty round the world flight record.)

He said he would remain in Moscow two hours and then press on toward Siberia.

After taxiing his plane to a standstill, the Texan was gathered up by a dozen Soviet fliers and tossed into the air several times in the most enthusiastic reception ever given an American here.

Greeting several old friends among the news correspondents, he grinned as he declared:

"It seems almost like being back home again."

Surrounded by perhaps two hundred airport attaches, he was escorted to the airport reception room where officials listened to his wishes concerning gasoline and oil and conveyed to him information on weather conditions and landing facilities east of Moscow.

The weather condition was not of the best but Mattern declared he would go on.

He ate hungrily of a sumptuous meal which was waiting for him. An airport doctor intervened to feel his pulse and with his fingers still on the fliers wrist said:

"He is very tired and needs rest."

When this was translated to him, Mattern grinned and remarked:

"I feel fine but I would like to have about an hour's sleep."

The airman, who came to Moscow from Norway where he completed his trans Atlantic crossing yesterday, expressed a desire for a bath. And so just as he finished his meal he was provided with a shower and put to bed in a room at the airport.

He emphasized he wished to be called promptly in that he might lose no time. Mattern said he hoped to hop non stop at least as far as Novo, Sibirsk, about 1,700 miles, on leaving Moscow.

TONSIL CLINIC DRIVE CLOSES

Nearly 450 Children Operated On In Various Clinics Held In County

Tonsil and adenoid clinics for white children of the county were completed last Tuesday with the holding of a clinic at Third Street school in this city.

Five clinics were held in Greenville during the windup of the campaign and from 20 to 21 children were operated on each day.

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Department of Health, said today plans were under way for holding a clinic for colored children sometime during the summer.

Approximately 450 children were operated on in the series of clinics held in the various schools of the county in the last three months. Dr. McGeachy said the planned to check back within the next year or so and determine the benefits which the children had received from the operations. In some instances, it was said today, children have been known to gain as much as 20 or 30 pounds after operations.

The operations were made possible through Reconstruction Corporation funds appropriated to this county and Greenville specialists did the work with the assistance of members of the Department of Health.

A clean-up will be conducted some time next winter to handle children who did not receive attention in the clinics in the recent campaign, health authorities stated today.

THREE HELD FOR SLAYING

Husband of Dead Woman Included in Indictments by Gaston Grand Jury

Gastonia, June 5.—(AP)—A. P. Whitworth, C. T. Falls and Port Falls, son of T. C. Falls, were charged with murdering Mrs. Maude B. Whitworth, 45 Gastonia dress maker in one of three bills handed the Gaston grand jury today by Solicitor John Carpenter.

Whitworth was the husband of the dead woman while the elder Falls had been acting as a deputy sheriff.

Ford Falls owned the car from which T. C. Falls and Whitworth claimed Mrs. Whitworth jumped and fatally injured herself last week.

The indictment handed the grand jury charged Whitworth and both the Falls with murdering Mrs. Whitworth. Solicitor Carpenter said the degree of murder to be decided would be based on Whitworth and the Falls conspiracy to unlawfully and falsely arrest Mrs. Whitworth on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Whitworth died in a hospital here early on the morning of May 29. Her husband and T. C. Falls told authorities she had jumped to death from their car after a suicide threat.

WARREN WILL SUPPORT VET LEGISLATION

Washington, D. C., June 5.—Representative Lindsay Warren today expressed great satisfaction with the vote of the Senate last week which provided that no World War service connected disability veteran or no Spanish American war veteran could be cut over twenty-five per cent, and said that he would support same in the house. Mr. Warren has frequently conferred with Director of the Budget Douglas and urged him to modify the regulations in reference to service connected cases and Spanish war cases, and pointed out to him some of the great hardships that would follow and the unfairness of the classifications.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. D. R. Morgan, of Farmville and a grandchild; five brothers, Adrian, J. C. and J. H. Savage, Greenville, Ed Savage, Winterville, and Charles Savage, Pollockville; one sister, Mrs. Joe Fornes, Greenville.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock by Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian church, burial will be made in Cherry Hill cemetery.

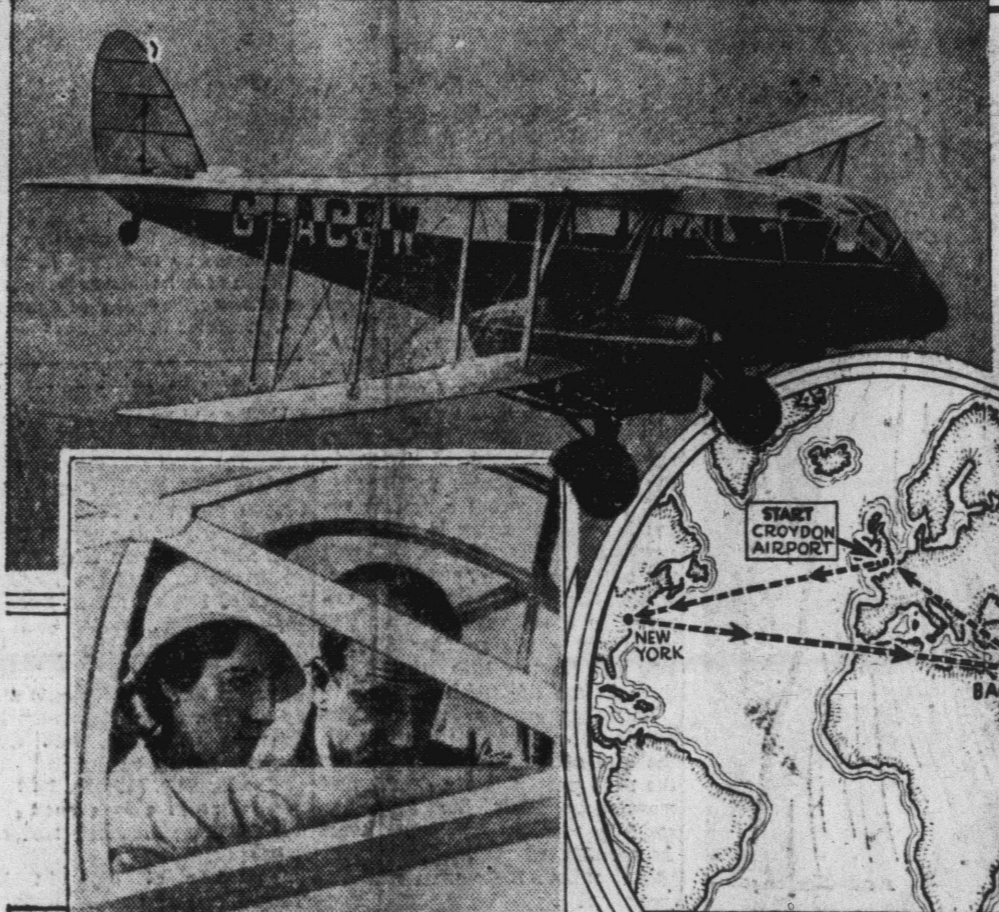

Mr. Savage was a native of this county and spent the major part of his life in Greenville and other parts of the county. Prior to taking over the duties of night watchman at the fertilizer plant several years ago, he had been engaged in farming.

He was well known and news of his death was received with shock by his many friends and acquaintances. He had been in ill health for sometime, but was able to remain at his post of duty.

FLYING MOLLISONS PLAN NEW AIR ADVENTURE

Great Britain's famous flying couple, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mollison, plan to zoom over a 12,000 mile triangular section of the world's surface in a rapid series of attempts to set three new air records. The first step in the program calls for a non-stop flight from Croydon to New York. They count on a day's rest in New York, then a flight without stop to Bagdad and thence back to England. If they accomplish their purpose it would be the first London-New York flight, the first round trip north Atlantic crossing and a new long distance record. (Associated Press Photos)

W. A. SAVAGE FOUND DEAD

Funeral Services to Be Conducted Here Tomorrow Morning At 10 O'clock

William A. Savage, 71-year-old night watchman, was found dead at the plant of the Greenville Oil and Fertilizer Company in the southwestern part of the city this morning at 6 o'clock.

After viewing the body, Coroner A. A. Elwanger declared an investigation was unnecessary as it was a plain case of suicide. Despondency over ill health was ascribed as cause of the act.

Hearing the report of a pistol in the building, a workman investigated and found Mr. Savage lying on the floor with a pistol at his side. A single bullet had been fired through his head producing instant death.

Funeral services will be conducted from the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock by Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Cherry Hill cemetery.

U. S. Goes To Parley With Five Big Aims

Washington—(AP)—American delegates to the World Monetary and Economic Conference in London have their eyes fixed on a series of definite goals.

They have also a unanimous conviction that no international gathering in history carried such vital potentialities, either for success or failure.

If this country's delegation headed by tall, brown-eyed, diffident Cordell Hull, secretary of state, has its way the conference, which opens June 12, will wind up within two months.

President Roosevelt has asserted emphatically that the conference must act and act quickly.

Here in brief are some of the things the United States representatives would have it do:

1. Stabilize the currencies of the world—or at least those of the major countries.

2. Increase in price of silver and restore it to something like its old place in the world's currency.

3. Raise the price of basic commodities especially wheat.

4. Start a resumption of the flow of international capital with a view to reviving business, relieving unemployment and helping the hard-hit countries get back on their feet.

5. Reduce tariffs and clear away (Continued on page Three)

NAVY ORDERS FIVE DAY WEEK

Action Will Become Effective at all Shore Station on June 25th

Washington, June 5—(AP)—Establishment of a five day week at shore stations was ordered today by the Navy Department to become effective June 25.

The order applied to the civil field service of marine corps as well as the navy department. The normal work day will be from Monday to Friday. Saturday will be considered a non-work day as well as Sunday.

Employees on the per annum as well as monthly basis will be furnished on Saturday.

This action has been taken because of the necessity in economy in expenditures, the department said, and to obviate discharges by seeking available work among employees as far as practical.

The order was issued by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

Greensboro Minister Delivers Sermon Before College Graduates Sunday

"Fearless Individualism was the theme of the baccalaureate sermon at East Carolina Teachers College, which was preached by Dr. Charles F. Myers, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Greensboro. His text was John, Chapter 21, verse 21: 'What is that to thee? Follow me.' He gave three stages through which we pass on the way to becoming read individuals: First, we assert our selves make way for our desires against barriers that frustrate us; second, be become sick of ourselves; and then we forget ourselves. 'Though all the world give itself to us, we are never happy until we find something big enough to command us, absorb us and ennoble us. We need something above us that we can admire, adore and revere.'"

Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, indicated that help could be expected from his party in the effort to reject the senate amendment.

Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, was told last night at the White House parley that 1,300,000 men had been put to work since March 4 and that the government must be put on a "pay as you go" basis.

Mr. Roosevelt made it emphatic that he regarded a balanced budget as the keystone to a return of prosperity.

Cincinnati, June 5.—(AP)—Search for Pansy Sneed, missing five-week old baby, may turn to North Carolina and Georgia, police said today, admitting they have not a single clue to the "woman in white" who removed the infant from her home here last Wednesday.

Detectives said it was possible that friends or relatives of Mr. and Mrs. John Sneed might have taken their sickly child to provide it a better home than that occupied by the poverty-stricken family.

Sneed an unemployed automobile mechanic, was born in Murphy, Cherokee county, North Carolina, while his wife, whose maiden name is Ledford, comes from Clay county, in the same state. They came here last October from Hiwassee, Ga.

Mrs. Sneed tonight still was at a hospital for observation, suffering from worry since the child disappeared.

Pansy was taken away by a woman representing herself to be a nurse who said she was removing the baby to a hospital for treatment of a birth injury.

An unprecedented drop in the birth rate of Illinois for the first three months of 1933 resulted in an excess of only 99 births over deaths.

Florida's state flower is the orange blossom.

DON'T MAKE A GARBAGE DUMP OF THE STREETS

Late each Sunday afternoon after the drug stores and ice cream parlors have remained open for a couple of hours, our city streets in the business section look more like a city garbage dump than anything else.

Just what plan our city adopts is immaterial to us, just so long as these containers are disposed of in some way other than being thrown into the streets.

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

Synopsis: Sour under repeated blows of fate, Nich Nicholas Boyd cannot yet quite stifle his friendly interest in his very young admirer George Bancroft.

Chapter Seven GIFT FROM NICHOLAS Nicholas finally said, "You must have been very young when he died."

"I was seven but I can remember him quite well. He'd only been dead a year when mother married again."

"So much for everlasting constancy," Nicholas said cynically. "I don't blame her," George said quickly.

"Yes. Everything my father had left for me."

"And so you're a young woman of wealth?"

"No. I've got about fifteen hundred dollars a year. It doesn't go very far."

"What do you do with it?"

"I spend most of it on theatres and things like that. I love the theater and the pictures. I've always wanted to go on the stage."

"Good God!" Nicholas sat up suddenly, a heavy frown on his face.

"Is it?" George said wistfully. "I should love to be able to make people happy. I should love to see a great big theatre full of people all laughing and applauding because they liked me."

A big sailing vessel was crossing the path of moonlight that lay across the quiet bosom of the sea.

George started up—"Oh, let's go and look at the ship."

They went out onto the open deck and leaned on the rails.

It was a warm, still night, and the great vessel seemed hardly moving as they looked down at the silent sea far below.

"And to think we've got to leave it all," George whispered.

She was standing very close beside him, their arms almost touching, and she said suddenly: "I wonder if we shall ever meet again?"

He laughed. "Some day, perhaps, the world is small."

She looked up at him, her face very fair in the moonlight.

"I suppose you won't come and see me, even if I gave you my address?"

It seemed a long time before he answered; then he said unemotionally: "When you've travelled as much as I have you will know that people you meet at sea always seem far more attractive than they do when you meet them on land."

"I know," George said. "Nelly was saying something of the same sort this evening. You know she's had quite a love affair with that man I told you about, but she says she doesn't suppose she'll ever see him again when they get to England."

She'd been crying. I expect I shall cry too, when we get to Southampton."

"You will? What for? You haven't had a love affair with anyone."

George turned her face away, one hand clutching the wooden rail with frantic fingers.

"But I shan't see you any more she almost whispered."

He must have heard—she knew quite well that he must have heard but it was a long time before he spoke.

"I'm thirty-five," he said then, very quietly. "And I'm a married man. You're twenty-one, and all your life is before you. You've been kind to me—don't spoil it all by making yourself absurdly and sentimentally miserable even for five minutes. I shan't forget you. I believe I've even grown well fond of you in a way. But when we get to England—" he broke off.

A sudden tear splashed down onto George's crimson frock.

"I will see him again. I will," she told herself passionately.

She moved suddenly to turn to him, and the old silver cigarette case she had been holding slipped from her hand and fell into the dark.

"Nelly's had a love affair."

baby, you're not crying..." "I wouldn't have lost it for the world... it was my father's. I loved it."

He touched her arm—"Let's walk along. The band has stopped and people will be coming this way."

She went with him obediently, walking slowly to keep pace with his dragging step, brushing her hands across her wet eyes.

"You're like a little girl who has broken her doll," Nicholas said, teasingly. She laughed brokenly.

"I'm not only crying—because of the cigarette case."

"If only you wouldn't be so damnably truthful!" he said ruefully.

They had reached a deserted part of the lower deck again and Nicholas stopped.

"I'd like you to have my case, if you will," he said. He took it from his pocket. "It's a presentation affair, but I don't want it. Luckily our last initials are the same. Will you have it, Robin?"

"I should love it," George said with a sob.

He put his hands on her shoulders turning her so that the moonlight fell full on her face.

"No more tears," he said. "You shan't see them anyway."

"But there mustn't be any more." "I can't promise that."

He looked at her with a strange expression in his eyes, then he said softly, "Goodbye my little friend."

George's lips moved, but no words came, then suddenly and before he could prevent her, she stood up on tiptoes and kissed him on the scarred side of his face.

Nicholas caught his breath and his hands tightened their grip on her shoulders then very deliberately he took them away.

She stood looking up at him trembling, then she said brokenly: "Nelly was right. You have to kiss a man—before you know if you really love him."

Then she ran away from him down the deserted deck, and Nicholas Boyd stood looking after her, looking after her even when she had disappeared from sight.

A Washington Daybook

Washington—(AP).—The astid remark of Senator Glass of Virginia at the investigation of the House of Morgan by a Senate committee that "we should have a tent for this circus" is illustrative of the tremendous interest the public at large is taking in happenings on capitol hill these days.

Of course, the Morgan investigation probably would have drawn a huge crowd at any time. But the fact remains that all records for attendance at Senate investigations have been broken since Mr. Morgan took the stand.

Before the committee decided to shift the scene to the large marble caucus room of the Senate the crowd made orderly progress of the hearing almost impossible. More than an hour before the hearing started every available seat in the committee room would be filled.

Hundreds stood in line in the long corridors outside with not a chance of getting in. But they waited just the same. A glimpse of Morgan arriving or leaving seemed reward enough.

With the scene shifted to the marble caucus room, there was more space but added difficulties. Loud speakers were installed after Chairman Fletcher complained that the noise was like a freight train.

Such crowds are not confined, however, to this single incident. They are to be observed every day. Those in charge of the galleries say that they can't remember when so many people sought admission to the House and Senate regularly.

It used to be that a special attraction was necessary to bring the crowds out to the galleries. If Borah was scheduled for a speech, for example, they could always be expected in the Senate. Or if an important vote was pending after a long and fiery debate, they'd be there to see the finish.

Now they come regardless. The Senate was concerned for days with the trial of a California judge. For the most part it was a dreary and monotonous affair, the same as could be seen in any county court house. Attendance in the galleries today didn't suffer. Seats were still at a premium.

DEATH CAR DRIVER RELEASED ON BOND
Greensboro, June 5—(AP)—Paul Eagle, 25, of Charlotte, held under a charge of manslaughter as the driver of an automobile which Saturday night struck and fatally injured Samuel P. Bowman, 37, as he walked along High Point road, about six miles west of Greensboro, near the Bowman home, was released here today under $5,000 bond.

J. A. Eagle, father of the young man, and Deputy Sheriff J. W. Taylor, both of Charlotte signed the bond. Eagle is to appear before Magistrate W. S. Lyon here Monday morning June 12.

Two companions of Eagle, Miss Virginia Dean, of Charlotte, and G. T. Stevens of Raleigh, who were injured at the same time, were reported today to be improving. Miss Dean was taken to Charlotte in an ambulance today, but Stevens, with a broken pelvic bone, remained in a Greensboro hospital.

Christian Science Services.
"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on June 4.

The golden text was from Revelation 15:31: "Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon was the following passage from the Bible: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

The lesson-sermon also included the following from the Christian Science textbook: "Can Deity be self-creative cause exists and sways mankind? Has the Father 'Life in Himself,' as the Scriptures say, and if so, can Life, or God, dwell in evil and create it?"

FOUR GRADUATES IN ONE FAMILY
Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Skinner left today for Sweet Briar to attend the graduating exercises of their daughter, Miss Colleen Skinner. While there they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Johnson. From Sweet Briar they will go to Asheville, where their two sons, Ed and Louis, will graduate from Asheville School for Boys. They will then go to Washington, D. C., where another daughter, Miss Elizabeth Skinner, will receive her diploma from the Temple School for Secretaries. Miss Skinner completed her course with an average grade of 96.

Innumerable things once thought essential one finds are not so. Among these are economic security, a definite income, a domestic establishment and social position.

He closed by impressing upon the graduates the length of time it takes to make character, which involved control over the imagination, the emotions, the will. His parting words were, "When God made you, he broke the mold, there is no other personality like yours, and remember it is yours and yours only."

Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Greenville led in prayer and read the Scripture lesson, which was the 73 psalm. The processional hymn was "The Heavens Resound." The academic procession was very impressive.

President Wright and the ministers led, with the faculty, the four-year graduates, coming next and the two-year graduates in the rear.

Vesper Service
The Y. M. C. A. Vesper Service at 8 o'clock in the evening on the woodland stage was very impressive. That was "A Litany of Comradeship." The girls representing the characters were chosen by secret vote of the student body and were not announced until they stepped on the stage. Miss Ethel Parker, of Woodland, retiring president of the association represented The Spirit of the Y. M. C. A. The new president, Miss Ethel Sanders, of Hubert, took the part of Love. Others in the part were: Friendliness, Melba O'Brien, of Leaksville; Cooperation, Evelyn Gilliam, of Harrellsville; Service, Margaret Murchison, of Greensboro; Sincerity, Rose Lee Lang, Farmville; Loyalty, Elizabeth Denny, of Wilson; Trust, Stella Blevins, of Grassy Creek; Courage, Marie Daniels, of Elm City; Joy, Joy Pickard, of Charlotte; Sympathy, Rebecca Curtis, of Wilson; Understanding, Ruth Parker, of Goldsboro; and Helpfulness, Hattie Lee Humphrey, of Beaufort.

'OLD HICKORY' ACRES USED FOR RELIEF PLOTS
Nashville, Tenn.—(AP)—Fields that Andrew Jackson once trod about the Hermitage here are being tilled this summer by unemployed who receive wages for their work raising garden produce that will be distributed to the needy next winter.

One hundred and fifty acres not in use by the Confederate soldiers home located on part of the original Hermitage farm has been obtained rent free by sponsors of the project.

Across the road from the church that "Old Hickory" built for his wife to attend is a ten-acre patch of onions. In the big field east of the "big house" potatoes are now planted.

SCIENTIST SAYS AUTO IS A CAUSE OF CRIME
Chicago—(AP)—Col. Calvin Goddard, head of Northwestern University's scientific crime detection laboratory, believes the pistol recieves much blame for modern crime for which the motor car should at least share responsibility.

"It is the rapid means of escape afforded by the auto that makes possible much of modern crime," he says. "A law forbidding any person convicted of a crime of violence from riding in any auto, under a heavy penalty, would solve the problem overnight."

HEALTH QUEEN

Miss Mildred Taylor of Picoletts, Pitt county, was declared health queen in the contest Washington several days ago. She won out over 500 entrants in the climatic contest in Pitt county and was crowned county health queen at the community fair here. She will go to Raleigh in August to take part in the state-wide contest.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—(AP)—In the case of Elissa Landi the skies looked the brightest just before the storm.

Miss Landi, whose career in films has been a series of great expectations, seldom realized until recently, has taken French leave of her studio and gone to points east, New York among them, to be away a month or more.

The studio, which wanted her for retakes on her latest picture, managed without her.

Just before the breach the star was being acclaimed as "a new Landi," entirely different from the personality she showed in her earlier performances. This was after she appeared as an Amazon leader in "The Warrior's Husband," and while she was co-starring with Warner Baxter in "I Loved You Wednesday."

During the latter production she was quoted in such cheerful statements as: "I've been all wrong and Hollywood's been all wrong about me these many months. I'm not the cold, distant girl who has placed herself upon a pedestal of ice that people in the film colony have imagined. On the other hand I've discovered that Hollywood is not cheap and tawdry as I imagined it would be when I first came here, an impression that I never took the trouble before to prove to myself was false."

The next we hear Elissa is gone—another rebel against a role in a long list which included Janet Gaynor, George Raft, Aline MacMahon, Miriam Hopkins, Marlene Dietrich and Carol Lombard. Miss Landi's dissatisfaction is attributed to an assignment for a new picture.

All of these others, incidentally, managed to patch their differences with their respective studios, and in only two cases did the companies bring legal action against the recalcitrant star.

U. S. GOES TO PARLEY WITH FIVE BIG AIMS

The figurative barbed wire and broken glass that have appeared on top of already high tariff walls in the form of quotas, embargos, exchange restrictions, clearing agreements and quarantines.

The first step toward currency stabilization would be a "de facto" arrangement preliminary to final action and based on the best possible estimate of the proper level for the pound the dollar and the franc in relation to each other.

The ultimate goal would be a return to the gold standard by the United States and the scores of other countries which have abandoned the standard because of the difficulties in many cases, few here believe this objective can be very fully achieved during the sessions of the conference. The American delegation would be well content if the conference succeeded in paving the way for such a return.

Without at least a de facto working arrangement for holding important currencies at a given level, the Washington view is that the conference could make little progress with such questions as the tariff.

On the matter of silver, one of President Roosevelt's closest advisers, a man expected to play a most prominent part in the London conference, predicts that if the metal can be restored to its one-time position in price and monetary use the conference will succeed in its other undertakings.

Friends of silver—represented notably among the American delegates by slender, active Senator Key Pittman of Nevada—believe a rise in the price of silver would vary other commodity prices upward and would greatly increase American trade with the Far East.

In solving the problem of wheat the United States will be in a position to play a leading role, thanks to the new farm relief bill designed to enable the government to limit American production.

Secretary Hells delegation will work for an agreement to restrict the output of this staple to the world's needs, thus removing burdensome surpluses which have been dumped on the world price.

The American delegates will bend their efforts to re-establishing in cooperation with the other countries the normal flow of international financing.

President Roosevelt is heartily in favor of a general expansion of credit through central bank action throughout the world, and an international program of public works, all aimed at helping the jobless by breaking the vicious circle of deflation.

Business Trends Upward in April
By J. R. BRACKETT
New York—(AP)—April improvement in business activity was more than usual for that month, according to the report just issued by the Conference of Statisticians in Industry of the National Industrial Conference.

Also, contrary to normal, employment in manufacturing industry increased slightly, while a decline in seasonal. Weekly earnings showed a measurable gain, with a rise in hours worked per week. Hourly earnings—indicating wage rates—were steady.

"The improvement of business conditions that began in the latter part of March extended through the month of April and the first half of May," the report said. "Advances in production and trade were made, however, from the low point of the depression and were confined largely to the industries not involving heavy construction."

The gradual but steady rise in bond prices in recent weeks is a heartening indicator of possible new capital enterprise. (A strong bond market would permit flotation of new issues for business and industrial use.)

Automobile output, the report states, was stepped up sharply in successive weeks after the second week in March. Building and engineering construction showed more improvement in the residential field although total activity was less than usually expected in April.

Sugar and iron production advanced sharply in April with a stepping up of activity that was decidedly more than seasonal at this time of the year. Eminent success limited during the month fell off by an amount less than expected during March and April.

Electric power output in April moved upward, although a decline is usual. Activity in the textile industries showed rapid improvement over the last six weeks.

Freight distribution of raw materials and commodities in various stages of manufacture increased in April as compared with March, while retail trade advanced by amounts larger than usual at this time of the year. Carloadings of all materials showed a total net gain, whereas a slight decline is seasonal. Department store sales increased in dollar value more than is to be expected at this time of the year.

Repealists Spurred By 8-To-0 Lead
By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington—(AP)—The craze over repeal of the eighteenth amendment goes into the June campaign with the 8 to 0 in favor of the repealists and with eight more states coming up to bat this month.

The outcome of the voting in two of these states, Indiana and Iowa, has been termed "crucial" by both prohibition and anti-prohibition leaders, while some defenders of the amendment have also looked to amendment to show a turn in a West Virginia to show a turning tide which so far has been running strong against national prohibition.

The June schedule of repeal elections is as follows: Illinois, June 5; Indiana, June 6; Massachusetts, June 13; Connecticut, New Hampshire and Iowa, June 20; California and West Virginia, June 27.

The Indiana and Iowa battles have been viewed as "decisive" for

Safety Zones Near North-South Poles

New York—(AP)—Go to the great ice wastes of the polar lands, north or south, young man, if you're seeking a region free from the after effects of old mother earth's face-lifting processes—quakes and tremors.

That may not be the actual advice a scientist would give, but Dr. Chester A. Reeds, curator of geology of the American Museum of Natural History, in a study of seismic disturbances over a 25-year period which began in 1899, found that these bitter cold regions rarely have earthquakes.

In all that time just 10 quakes were recorded above the Arctic circle, and the one farthest north was 700 miles from the pole. At the other end of the globe only five were noted within the Antarctic circle.

To visualize his study, Dr. Reeds prepared a seismic map of the world and placed thereon dots to show the epicenter of each of the major earthquakes that have occurred during the 25-year period.

Quakes, ranging from slight disturbances to major disasters, reach a yearly total of 4,000.

"These quakes," Dr. Reeds explains, "occur at about 10 a day, but only two per cent of them are potentially dangerous to life and property."

"Most tremors start at the bottom of the sea and seem to be confined for the most part to two great belts, one running from west to east through the Mediterranean and the other covering both sides of the Pacific."

In the 25 years Dr. Reeds estimated that quakes of various types have totaled about 100,000 of which only 1,783 were major shocks. Of this number only 14 were reported in the United States, with about a dozen occurring along the Pacific coast line. The Atlantic seaboard of this country is free of any indications of earth disturbances in the map.

The map shows that numerous quakes have occurred in Latin America, the Caribbean sea and along the west coast of South America, while Europe, except for Italy and the Balkans, has been remarkably free from quakes.

Stop Chills and Fever!
Rid Your System of Malaria!
Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.
Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any store.

LEAGUERS IN EXHIBITION GAME TODAY

Paving the way to the opening of the Coastal Plain League next Wednesday, Greenville leaguers meet Grimesland at the Third Street athletic field this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This was the first exhibition game since the local club started practice here last Monday and promised to provide fans with a pretty good idea of what the local club will look like when it engages Ayden here in the opening game of the circuit.

Grimesland is rated as one of the fastest amateur aggregations in this part of the state and they were expected to furnish the local fans with plenty of competition.

After a week of grueling workouts, the leaguers took last Saturday for a rest day and were in fine trim to meet the Grimesland squad today.

Although only one of the nineteen men who have reported for duty here has been released, Manager Milton Harrington said the "weeding out" process probably would get under way immediately after the game this afternoon. He expected the contest to provide him an opportunity to make his selections for the team to take the field in the opening game Wednesday, and those who fail to make the grade will be given their "walking papers."

Seating accommodations at the new athletic field are the best the city has ever had, and Harrington expressed the hope that hundreds of people would be on hand Wednesday to help give his club a rousing send-off. The majority of players are local boys, liberally intermingled with college and semi-pro players from various parts of the state, and it was believed the Greenville entry would be able to stack up formidably against the other three entries to the new circuit.

ROBERSONVILLE TO PLAY 7TH GRADERS TUESDAY

All members of Seventh Grade team were asked today by J. H. Rose to meet at High School building tomorrow, Tuesday at two o'clock ready to go to Robersonville for a game. Robersonville will return this game Thursday at 3:30.

SPORT SLANTS BY ALAN GOULD

The two players whose play and progress we will have the most interest in charting over the difficult North Shore course, outside Chicago, in the forthcoming National Open Golf Championship are Billie Burke and Johnny Farrell. This interest will be sentimental as well as artistic.

Not only are Bill and John two of the most popular professionals who have shot their way to the top in Open competition during the past five years but a feeling is somewhat widespread that they got none the best of it when the balloting failed to support either for a place on the 1933 American Ryder Cup team.

Neither has felt that this was sufficient justification for a protest yet both will move into the thick of the battle of Chicago with at least a brisk hope that fortune will favor them again. If either Farrell or Burke tops the field, the extra berth available on the Ryder Cup squad will be filled to the accompaniment of a widespread approval.

That's the only way either John or Bill can make the trip to England at the expense of the P. G. A. and the odds, of course, are at least 10 to 1 against either of them winning the crown worn by Gene Sarazen.

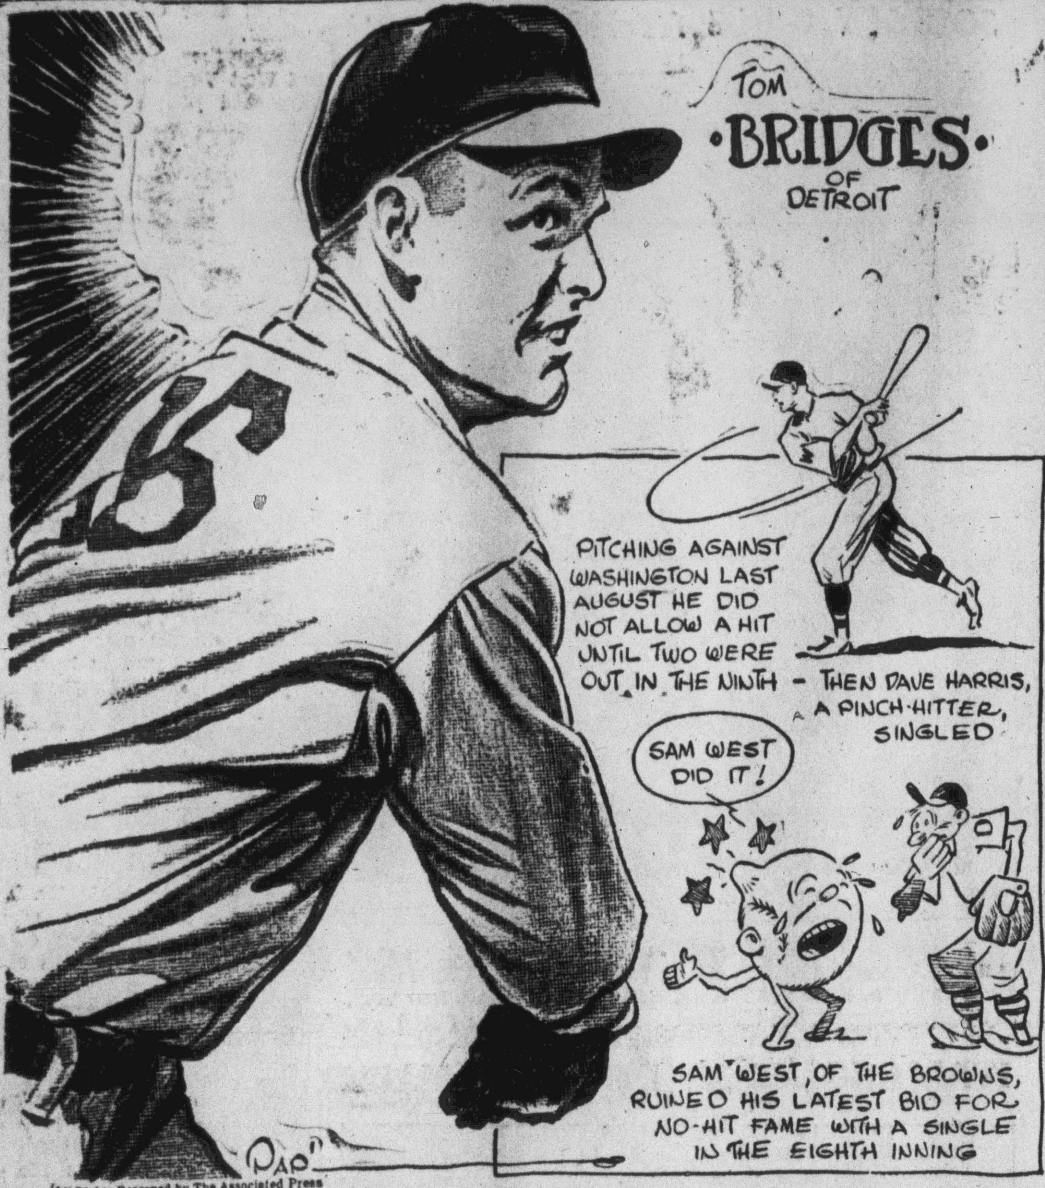

This year's Open championship will be strictly a family squabble between the homebreds, led by Sarazen and Hagen, and the transplanted British-born professionals, featuring Bobby Cruickshank, Phil Perkins, Tom Armour and Harry Cooper.

The international angle is missing for the first time in several years, since there is no occasion for a visiting British delegation to be on hand this season and business conditions have prevented another invasion by the sensational little Argentine, Jose Jurado.

Only a remarkable 66 by Sarazen on the last round at Fresh Meadow saved the 1932 championship for the homebreds, who otherwise were routed on the final day by Perkins and Cruickshank. Gene negotiated the last 28 holes in exactly 100 strokes, eight under par, in the greatest finish of Open championship history.

Sarazen has been getting into shape to defend the first of his two Open titles by touring the east and south with Joe Kirkwood. Perkins is attached to a Cleveland club now and Cruickshank will enter the tournament from Richmond.

Oliver Dutra came east to tune up his game around New York, meanwhile defending the Metropolitan Open championship, before moving on to Chicago with the rest of the Ryder Cup forces. If he picks up where he left off, the Californian will be the man to beat in most any tournament he enters.

NEPHEW OF FAMOUS JACK COOMBS READY FOR FLING IN THE MAJORS

By W. J. DAVIS

Durham, N. C.—(AP)—Another Coombs will make his major league debut shortly with the Athletics.

He is young Bobby Coombs, the nephew of Jack Coombs, former pitcher for the A's and now baseball coach at Duke University. Like his uncle, Bobby—whose full name is Raymond Frank Coombs—is a right handed hurler.

He has that same change of pace—the slow one and then the bullet-like fast one—that made his uncle one of the great big league pitchers, and one of the two who have won five world series contests—three in one series—and never lost a world series game.

Young Coombs finishes his scholastic career with a record seldom equaled by a college pitcher. He has won 19 of the 23 games he has pitched for his uncle's Duke nine, two of the four losses being sustained this year while with a losing ball club. The scores of the four losses were 5-3, 3-2, 3-2, 2-1.

He has turned in six shutout victories among his 19 college wins, and two of these were two-hit performances. For three games in a row this season he shut out Maryland, North Carolina State and Fordham, turning back the Rams in New York, Maryland got two hits, State and Fordham three each.

He has worked a total of 291-3 innings, allowing 135 hits, striking out 253 men and walking 46. Of the 49 runs scored off him, only 27 were earned.

He has been taught by his "Uncle Jack" from the start and for that reason resembles him closely on the mound. He has won many other honors at Duke, including recognition as the outstanding student of his freshman year.

The World Currency Stabilization France's Main Conference Aim

By M. K. WHITELEATHER Paris—(AP)—Two main problems will occupy the French at the world economic conference which meets in London on June 12.

They are in brief: 1. Stabilization of the dollar and sterling. 2. General use of gold as a monetary standard.

On these two questions the French delegation is expected to center its activities. On other subjects a more passive role appears likely.

France would gain by stabilization and by return to the gold standard, for wide fluctuations affect the franc when it fights for world markets in the same ring as dollar and the pound.

Heretofore the franc was a ban-tamweight in the commercial prize ring, while the dollar and sterling were heavyweights.

But since the dollar on April 19 followed sterling off gold the franc spurred to the front as a world medium of exchange. This sudden prestige, however, did not help the French, since American and British goods were better able to compete with French products in and outside France.

This disadvantage the French would like to overcome by getting England and the United States back on gold.

On almost all other questions the French are expected to sit and listen while delegates from other countries talk, for official quarters foresee that on most of them much will be asked of France.

Experts have figured that three chief concessions will be suggested to the French:

- 1. A more liberal lending of money abroad. 2. Abolition of the quota system of regulating imports. 3. Lowering of tariff rates.

Caution will be observed on these subjects, government quarters say. The government has been seeking a freer hand in commercial matters so as to have stronger negotiating powers at London.

In spite of this official reserve, a strong body of opinion is demanding that the delegation, headed in the initial stages by Edouard Daladier, premier and later by Georges Bonnet, finance minister, join the representatives of other countries in an active attempt to pull down barriers to commerce.

Stock Market

New York, June 5—(AP)—The stock market absorbed profit taking in large doses today and after a varied period of uncertainty leading issues again turned upward.

Strength was displayed by numbers of specialties with sugar and alcohol in demand at gains of one to three points.

Allied chemical again was a star performer with gains of around four points. Western Union gained as much. Wet issues that drew renewed attention including Crown cork, National Distillers, Industrial Alcohol.

Among other stocks up one to two were Woolworth, American Telephone, DuPont, U. S. Steel, Case International Harvester, American Can American Sugar Refining, Dome Mines and Louisville and Nashville.

Rails were inclined to go at a slow pace although Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Delaware and Hudson were fractionally firm.

Transfers were 500,000,000 shares.

SHIPMENTS OF TRUCK SHOWING AN INCREASE Rose Hill, June 5—Truck shipments from the local market are up in variety and quantity. The first pepper delivered on June 1 which is 13 days earlier than its arrival last year, was brought by Kit Teachey. In addition to strawberries, which are still coming in, are daily increasing quantities of beans, buckberries, Irish potatoes and squash. Cucumbers and green corn offerings are just around the corner.

New York Cotton

New York, June 5—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady four to eight higher on trade and commission house buying and expectations of favorable Washington developments.

Selling was absorbed on set backs and the market was steady at the end of the first half hour with July ruling around 9.04 and December 9.47, or about 4 to 6 net higher.

After the early demand had been supplied at opening prices the market turned easier under liquidation and selling.

July broke to 8.87 and December to 8.28, making losses of 12 to 14 points but offerings tapered off. The market was steadier late in the morning and at midday July was around 8.93 and December 9.35, or five to eight net lower.

The market rallied late in the day on active rebuying and early sellers with contracts closed firm 20 to 25 higher.

House Approves Rail Bill

Washington, June 5—(AP)—The administration's railroad reorganization bill was approved by the house today while the Senate started debate on another of President Roosevelt's bi-generancy measure legislation to refinance mortgages on small homes.

The railroad bill creating a federal coordinator to aid carriers in getting back to sound working basis will be sent back to the Senate for adjustment of differences on minor amendments before going to the White House.

A dominating question in Congress today was what to do about slashes in veterans compensation and new taxes in view of Roosevelt's ultimatum that the budget must be balanced.

WILL DURANT IS SPEAKER AT COLLEGE HERE

Scholarships awarded to the 1933-34 session and the recipients were the A. B. Andrews, to Ethlyn Sanders of Onslow county; the Addie Fulford Rodman, to Florence Sinclair of Wilson and Hazel Woodford of Stenwall. The Addie Fulford Rodman scholarship which is awarded to a girl from Hyde county goes to Edna Patrow of Middletown. Other scholarships are to be awarded and announced later by persons and organizations providing the funds.

The enrollment during the past twelve months has been 1,290. If counted by terms enrolled, the number comes to 3,325. At the meeting of the board of trustees in June tuition was fixed at $12.50 per quarter. At the same time the expenses were reduced from $80 to $65. When the tuition is added to this the total amount paid to the college per term will be $4.50 less than at present.

The audience was one of the largest ever assembled here.

Dr. Will Durant, noted author, orator and philosopher, and school teacher, delivered a great commencement address at the college this morning on the question "Is Progress Real?" He answered the question by reviewing the stages of progress throughout the ages, the achievements of mankind that have never been lost. He enumerated ten of these placing education as the tenth and last, and for the present the most important of all.

If one generation neglects civilization and lets it die, he believes civilization will be lost, but he has a profound faith that progress will continue. Education he defined as the technique of the transmission of the artistic and moral heritage of mankind, a transmission that has brought man from a savage to a citizen.

He faced squarely the evil, the apparent loss and recognized fully the conditions at the present time, but he thinks against all these, man, on the whole, will continue to progress. He believes the severe punishment the world has had will be a lesson and benefit will follow.

He is no shallow optimist, but a great thinker who has gone to the depths of the problems and knows how every age in history has had to face serious problems that seemed to be stopping progress.

In reviewing history he showed that progress was not considered by the generations of the past 300 years as all was looked on as mere change, he said, and the difference was only new ways of doing old things. Things were done on a larger scale and even now if they could judge the civilization of today they might think it merely a larger scale. Some think everything has progressed except man.

He reviewed the awakening of the mind during the Renaissance.

In the marvelous optimism of the 18th century he finds the beginning of the idea of progress that dominated the world until now, and he referred to the prophecies then that seemed to come true until the world was shattered thereafter. Then it seemed as if all progress had been only enlarge the scale, and people were merely children who with bigger guns could do bigger killing.

Then it was, that, in showing that progress had been made, in man as well as in things, he enumerated the ten distinctive achievements that are proofs of this. The first of these he gave as speech, the slow development of articulate expressions through centuries of effort from mate-calls of animals to lyric poetry. Without words generalizations would have stopped in the beginning and thought would have stayed where we find the brute. Fire, the second, made man independent of climate and offered edible foods, and by giving light drove out the terror of darkness. In the third the conquest of animals, he showed how man asserts his mastery over the other animals. Agriculture, he gave as the fourth and as one of the most important. Through this man settled and was thoroughly domesticated, making a home which is the foundation of all human nature. In his praise of woman, saying that man was the last animal which she had domesticated, he indulged in the most telling witticisms of his address. Through the fifth, social organization, man gained law and order and security. He proved that man is certainly wealthier and healthier if not happier than his ancestors were. Morally he gave as the seventh and showed that the emancipation of woman was one of the greatest evidences of progress and he gave the highest proof of this, the change in ideas about love. He also showed that in studying the decision of courts throughout the ages in its punishment of criminals progress showed advance. In tools or machinery he gave as seventh and took the flying machine as an example of 300 year-old dream of mankind has been realized in this century. He passed rapidly over the progress made in the eight sciences and ninth, writing or print, because he thought progress in these was obvious to all. He reached his climax in the tenth, education.

Never in the history of the world has any nation educated its children as America has done in this generation, he said. In that he believes we find our chief call for hope for the future.

His closing words to the graduates were "While others are created wealth and things, you are creating souls."

In the beginning he said he thought his subject hardly a fit one when the need of courage was so great as now, but perhaps, he concluded, it was a wise choice as youth should face doubt at the moment when it is strong and at the commencement of life ask the question whether or not life goes in vicious circles or makes a definite advance.
