HEAT WAVE CAUSES SCORES OF DEATH IN U. S.

South And East Are Hard Hit By Record Weather

Toll of Death Nears Century Mark; Illinois Alone Reported 22 Deaths From Extended Heat Wave; Gardens and Truck Crops in North Carolina Suffering From Lack of Rain; Showers Promised

(By The Associated Press) Sizzling hot record temperatures continued to move westward from the eastern half of the nation today bringing reports of death approaching the century mark.

And while in some portions of the affected areas the heat had not abated, extreme southern and eastern parts of the Great Lakes region were enjoying moderate relief from the devastating effects of the week's intensely high readings, the east saw no prospect for lower figures until tomorrow when local showers may ease the situation.

The metropolis of the nation—New York City—suffered yesterday with a record, breaking June 8 temperature of 92 degrees with one heat death and two drownings but it was in the West where the death figures mounted.

to the extended heat wave. Eighteen of the fatalities were in Chicago where the mercury shot up to 91, a new all-time record for June 8 and then began receding with a drop of ten degrees proceeding today.

Heat weary North Carolinians eyed the skies today hoping that local showers the weather bureau said were possible would give relief.

Gardens and truck crops reported to be suffering from the extreme heat.

Curry climb to 100 in several cities yesterday. The highest reading reported this year was 102 reached at Statesville yesterday. Raleigh and Charlotte saw the temperature shoot up to 95.

GOVERNMENT BOND SALES GOING 'BIG'

Treasury Reports that Offers Have Been Oversubscribed Already

Washington, June 9.—(AP)—The Treasury's first offering of securities since the payment clause was officially canceled has been over-subscribed five times today and officials hailed this as evidence of the country's confidence in the government.

To big subscriptions the books of the $900,000,000 offerings were reported closed but for two days longer bids for securities in blocks of $10,000 or less will be received.

Secretary Woodin had announced he would accept all of the bids regardless of how much the total exceeded the actual offering and last night he said a large number of small investors had already taken advantage of the offer.

PLAN CENSUS CITY SCHOOLS

Complete Check of School District to be Made Beginning day

A census of the Greenville school district will begin next Monday morning, it was announced today by city officials, in an effort to get definite data concerning the condition of the city school district.

Eight men and women picked from the unemployed of the city will compile the census, and patrons were called upon to cooperate with them in their effort to obtain accurate check on conditions.

This will be the first time a census has been taken of the chartered district and it is being compiled so city officials may place before the public the actual situation confronting the system and whether a supplement will be necessary to take care of the condition.

ACCEPT VET COMPROMISE

House Committee Reports Agreement on Proposal From Pres. Roosevelt

Washington, June 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's compromise proposal on veterans cuts has been accepted by the special house veterans committee with clarifying modifications.

The committee approved the compromise today at an executive session.

It was subject to approval of the Democratic steering committee which was to meet later in the day to consider the proposal.

Rep. Lea of California chairman of the democratic caucus that set up the committee, said: "I believe the house will accept the compromise. It is better for the veterans than the Conally amendment to the independent officers appropriations bill. It is better thought out and worked out. It is quite an improvement over the Conally amendment."

HIT AND RUN DRIVER KILLS STOKES NEGRO

Authorities Seek Unidentified Driver Who Killed Jasper Stancill Early Today

The victim of a hit and run-driver Jasper Stancill, 30, unemployed negro of the Stokes community, was found fatally injured early today near Parker's Cross Roads, on the Greenville-Bethel highway, about two miles from Greenville.

The negro's shoulder was broken, his head crushed and chest badly broken. He died before medical aid could reach him.

Sheriff's officers today had no clue to the identity of the driver of the death car, which was believed to have been proceeding in the direction of Bethel. Stancill was walking on the left side of the road toward Greenville.

The injured man was discovered lying on the side of the highway at 4:45 by Linwood Savage of Winston, D. C., driver of a truck. He immediately reported to Sheriff Whitehurst, who summoned the coroner for an investigation. Stancill died, however, before the coroner reached the scene.

The negro was identified by a letter found in his coat pocket. The missive was from K. T. Futrell, director of the Department of Welfare to A. L. Woolard of Stokes and was in reply to a letter from Mr. Woolard asking help of the Welfare office in providing work for Stancill, married, and father of three children.

Officers who investigated the killing expressed belief the negro was on his way to Greenville to visit the Welfare office in the hope of getting further assistance in finding a job.

The possibility of obtaining a clue to the driver of the death car appeared slim today, officers said, but they were keeping their eyes open in the hope of finding something that would lead to the apprehension of the guilty party.

DROWNED MAN UNIDENTIFIED

Police Fail to Establish Identity of Man Drowned in Ontario Town

No information that would lead to establishing the identity of a man believed to be from this city, who was drowned in Pilsbrough, Ontario had been obtained in the investigation conducted here the last few days, it was made known today by Chief of Police George Clark.

A telegram to this effect was sent to the Chief of Police of the Canadian town this morning by authorities here after every effort had been made to check-up on all people who had gone to Ontario from this section.

The report from the Canadian authorities received here the first of the week said the unidentified man drowned June 5, wore a Greenville high school ring on the small finger of his left hand. School records were checked yesterday but this failed to throw any light on the situation.

The Ontario authorities were advised that if anything definite is obtained in the next few days they would be advised of it immediately.

The man was described as about 35 years of age and had the initials J on a leather belt buckle.

FIRE HAZARD SURVEY BEGINS

Definite Check to be Made of Every Place in The City During Canvass

The fire hazard survey got under way in Greenville today and will continue until a complete check has been made of every home and business house.

The survey is being made under direction of officials of the fire department. P. T. Anthony and R. Hyman are making the check-up.

The city has been divided into two districts, one man to each section, and the citizenship has been asked to cooperate with the government in this effort to obtain information on the fire situation.

Information will be imparted to the people in connection with eliminating fire hazards in the hope of cutting down the annual fire loss and thereby obtaining lower insurance rates for the city.

The survey is expected to be one of the most far-reaching ever made here. It is the result of a request sent out by the director of the Federal unemployment and will give work to the unemployed while at the same time aid in cheating the fire demon of his annual loss here.

New Bern, June 9.—Practical assurance that New Bern will be able to obtain its requested $10,000 loan for construction of a municipal auditorium and battery armory here on city property, if not from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation then certainly from the Public Works program appropriations of the Federal government, is contained in a letter to Mayor Hubert G. Tolson from Senator Robert R. Reynolds, who promises his help and cooperation along the line.

Manteo, June 9.—A move to eradicate mosquitoes and their breeding places from Dare county was started here this week with a member of the state sanitary engineering department in charge.

LAMONT GIVES FACTS ABOUT STOCK BUYING

Describes Purchases Which Wife Made From Him, Cutting Income Tax

Washington, June 9.—(AP)—Thomas S. Lamont, young Morgan partner, told the senate investigators today his wife purchased stock he sold at the end of 1930, the sale enabling him to deduct $114,808 from his 1930 taxable income.

Testifying frankly in answer to questions which had been challenged on his behalf last week, the witness said Mrs. Lamont bought the stocks on the open market and not directly from him.

He told Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the inquiry, she had paid cash for the stock and borrowed an equal amount of money from him.

Before Lamont began testifying, John W. Davis, counsel for Morgan stood behind him and announced he would not interfere with the questioning.

Davis said his clients desired to testify with the utmost frankness.

Firecrackers Catch Fire In Local Market

Fire believed to have been caused by mice in a box of firecrackers, today caused $100 damage to Ayscue's market on Dickinson Avenue. The firm handles firecrackers every Christmas, and those left over from the last festive season were stored in the back of the building. Fire of undetermined origin, but believed to have been caused by mice, got into a box of the explosives and it sounded like the market was staging a giant celebration for a time. Mice fled from the box when the flames spread.

The major part of the damage was caused by smoke, firemen said.

Florida was settled in 1569, entered the union in 1845 and has an area of 58,666 square miles.

Secrecy, Thrown About 45 Minute Confab In London

Economic Delegate

Senator James Couzens of Michigan is the republican member of the United States delegation to the London economic conference.

SEEK TO AVOID DEBT HOLIDAY

Germany Looking To World Conference For Relief From Financial Worry

Berlin, June 9.—(AP)—Germany hopes that economic burdens will be lightened by the world economic conference and financiers next week so she will not have to invoke the partial moratorium on credits July 1.

Well qualified observers in expressing this viewpoint said the suspension of foreign current payments on 80 per cent of the foreign indebtedness decreed last night meant that Germany is sparing for time in the hope a concession will be granted at the world economic conference.

Hope also was entertained, they asserted, for help from the participants in the standstill agreement who will meet in London next Tuesday, a day after the economic conference will start.

The moratorium will be on credits granted before July 1931, and involved interest and a mortization in charges on about 17,300,000,000 marks or about $4,824,000,000 which Germany admits she could not pay.

Debts owed the United States are included by the existing standstill agreement with credits abroad not affected.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichbank who announced the holiday, has long considered a moratorium necessary.

Oklahoma Children Honors Pocahontas Of State's Legend

Muskogee, Okla.—(AP)—Moved by the story of an Oklahoma Pocahontas, Muskogee children are saving their pennies to erect a granite marker to her memory.

Grant Foreman, historian who discovered the history of Milly Frances Hadjo, a Creek Indian maiden, told it to the children at the local public library, and for several weeks they would listen to no other story-hour narrative. The proposal for Milly's commemoration was largely the development of the children's own desire, Mrs. Day's Coachman, librarian, said.

HULL STRIKES OUT AGAINST MINORITIES

Scores Groups Attempting to Divert Attention From Major Problems of Economic Conference; Says His Delegation Will Not go Outside of Prescribed Lines of Discussion

London, June 9.—(AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull of the American Delegation to the World Economic Conference and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain had a private talk lasting 45 minutes after luncheon today at the home of Ray Atherton, counselor for the American embassy.

Considerable secrecy surrounded the luncheon.

Where Mr. Hull had been was not revealed until after he had returned to conference headquarters. It was stated the British Prime Minister and the American Secretary of State renewed their Washington acquaintance. Whether war debts were discussed was not disclosed.

The meeting between the British and American took place after a news paper interview in which Mr. Hull struck out vigorously at groups in various countries to divert attention from the main purpose of the conference to relatively minor issues.

Hull facing a room full of American and British reporters at his hotel in his first press conference in England, said that in view of the magnitude and difficulty of the problems facing the parley he does not consider it within the function of his delegation to go outside the well defined list of subjects outlined in the program for discussion.

Named Parole Commissioner. Raleigh, June 9.—(AP)—Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus this afternoon announced the re-appointment of Adjutant General J. Van B. Metzger and named Edwin Gill of Laurinburg, to be parole commissioner of North Carolina.

Mattern Lands At Irkutsk. Moscow, June 9.—(AP)—Jimmie Mattern, round the world flier, landed at Irkutsk, about 600 miles from Krasnovarsk, at 3:35 p. m. today (Moscow time); 7:45 a. m. (EST).

He intends to remain there until tomorrow.

No details were available here but the aviator presumably was in good health and his plane functioning well.

Late News Flashes

France To Default Debt.

Paris, June 9.—(AP)—Another French default affecting the war debt due the United States on June 15 became evident today as Premier Daladier replying in the Chamber of Deputies to interpellations on the foreign policy avoided mention of the debt.

The premier restricted himself to the government policies at the world conference opening next week in London and to the reason for the initiation of the Mpsolini four power peace pact.

He is leaving for London Sunday to head the French delegation to the conference and the chances of the discussion of debt coming up in the Chamber were fading.

Forced Way Into Jail.

Huntsville, Tenn., June 9.—(AP)—Armed with guns, several men forced their way into the Scott county jail last night and spirited away Boyett and Harvey Winchester, both held on murder charges, and Winchester's body riddled with bullets was found today on a highway near Huntsville. Boyett had not been found.

TWENTY PER CENT RAISE GIVEN BY HOSIERY MILL

Hickory, June 9.—An increase of 20 per cent in pay for toppers, knitters and loopers was announced this week by the Setzright hosiery mill. Approximately one hundred piecework employees are affected by the increase, it is said.

The plan is being run at full capacity, day and night shifts. It will require several weeks for the company to get caught up on present orders, and for that reason no new business is being booked, officials of the company said.

Washington, June 9.—(AP)—The house democratic steering committee today accepted the modification of President Roosevelt compromise proposal on veterans cut and made plans to bring it up for action tomorrow.

 A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: The one bright spot in Nicholas Boyd's tragic fall from stardom in the movies to loneliness and oblivion has been the kindly attentions young mad pretty Georgie Bancroft has forced upon him. And he has dismissed them with a shrug. Nicholas has played the hero once too often, and a scarred face, a limp and crippled contract are his rewards. Even Bernie Boyd, his wife, has left him to sail for his native England alone, and in his gloom Georgie's well-meant ministrations on the boat have made no impression. But now he has turned up at the inn in the village where Georgie lives with her dissolute and violent uncle.

Chapter 11
GEORGIE'S CALL
 In the morning Georgie took a walk down the village. She had offered to help Mrs. Lovelock about the house as she had always done before she went to America, and had been bluntly repulsed.

"I've managed without you all this time, and I can go on managing," was all the thanks she received.

"It hasn't been very long," Georgie reminded her. "Six weeks is no time at all."

"It seems like six years when you're left to do everything for an ungrateful man who's never sober," Mrs. Lovelock retorted. "No, that I'm complaining. Heaven knows."

"It sounds rather like it," Georgie said. She slipped down from the table where she had been sitting swinging her legs, and walked out of the house.

It was a dull morning, with a suspicion of mist hanging about the trees and fields which seemed to speak of heat to come later in the day. Georgie walked along slowly, her eyes very thoughtful.

Nicholas Boyd would probably still be in bed, she decided. She hated bed herself, it always seemed such a wicked waste of time; besides she was always afraid that if she overslept herself she might miss something good.

Not that anything very much ever happened in the sleepy little village, but all the same perhaps some day it might and then if she was asleep in bed, how would she be able to participate in it?

She wondered which room Mrs. Spears had given Nicholas at the Boar's Head; Georgie knew all the rooms. There was one where Queen Elizabeth was supposed to have slept; it was all old rafters and still contained a high four-poster bedstead.

Georgie's uncle said it was all rot about the Queen having ever slept there; he said that if she had occupied half the beds she was supposed to have done, she must have spent her entire life going from one inn to the other. At any rate, the Boar's Head was very old; it had a secret passage (blocked up now) and one or two old fireplaces.

Mrs. Spears had done her best to preserve its antiquity; most of the furniture was antique, and last year when increase of custom had made it necessary to build out the old dining room, she had insisted on having it done "in keeping" as she expressed it.

Georgie thought it was a pity Nicholas had not told her where he intended to stay; she might have helped him by telling him which was the best and most comfortable bedroom, and they might have traveled down together and shared the same cab up from the station which would have been cheaper. She wondered what he would say when he discovered that he had walked right into the enemy's camp, herself being the enemy.

Perhaps he would at once pack up and go somewhere else, and that again would be a pity.

She sighed and quickened her footsteps.

Trouve was lying on the flag-work at Kinston. B. B. Sugg, Jr., has graduated from Davidson as one of the honor students. Meredith Moore at Duke, Miss Zelle Foley and Eric Tucker, at E. C. T. C., and others are listed among those who have made fine records and received recognition as well as their degrees. There are still others of our high school graduates who this year have made equally fine records in the universities and colleges in this and other states.

Then among the undergraduates who are continuing their work and achieving distinction are Joe Dixon and Lawrence Dudley, at State College, and Warren Seoville and Hoover Taft, at Duke.

We reiterate we are proud of these fine records the former graduates of our high school have made and such records make us more reluctant to be willing that the standard of our schools should be so lowered that the future graduates will not gain here the foundation for equal achievement in the institutions of higher learning.

stones outside the Boar's Head when Georgie turned the corner. Mrs. Spears had told her that years ago old stage coaches had rattled up over those flagstones and had deposited be-powdered dames and be-ruffled gentlemen at the door of the Boar's Head. She declared also that Nelson had once spent the night there on his way to Portsmouth, accompanied by Lady Hamilton.

As she drew nearer, Trouve raised his head and looked up, then when she spoke his name he waved a welcoming hand and rose slowly to greet her. Georgie went down on her knees and put her arms round him. He wasn't much of a dog if one was particular about points; his head was too big and his legs too long, but Georgie loved him.

"Some day, when I have a home of my own, I shall keep a dozen dogs," was one of the things which Georgie promised herself.

When Trouve had licked her all over, they went into the Boar's Head together and straight across the low-ceilinged, black-raftered hall to Mrs. Spears's own sitting room. Georgie opened the door without knocking.

"I've come back," she said, by way of apology.

Mrs. Spears rose from a paper-strewn desk. She was certainly as Mrs. Lovelock always described her "one of the painted ones," for even at this early hour of the morning she had a complexion the like of which could not even have been rivalled in Hollywood, and her hair was of that brassy shade which the unenlightened mistake for gold.

But she was a kindly soul, as Georgie knew well enough, and if she was blunt, she was at any rate unaffected and honest.

"Well, I am glad to see you," she said, and bending from her superlative height, she gave the girl a resounding kiss.

"I heard you were back," she said. "Your uncle was in here last night. Well, and how are you?"

"Very well, thank you. I had a lovely time."

"I'll bet you did," Mrs. Spears said heartily. "You're looking fine. And have you lost your heart to anyone?"

Georgie shook her head.

"And nobody has lost theirs to me," she said quaintly.

"Which is all to the good," Mrs. Spears declared. "Time enough for you to think of a husband in another ten years. By the way, I've got a gentleman staying here who must have come over on your boat as you both arrived yesterday. Mr. Nicholas Boyd."

Georgie nodded. "Yes, he was on my boat," she said. "Is he going to stay long?"

"He's taken the rooms definitely for a month, bedroom and sitting room. Funny he should come here of all places," she said; her eyes searched the girl's face with sudden suspicion. "He hasn't come after you by any chance, I suppose?" she asked with a twinkle.

"Not by any chance," Georgie said firmly. "I don't think he likes girls very much and anyway he's married."

"As if that makes any difference," Mrs. Spears mocked her. "The married ones are always the worst, in my opinion."

"Well, he isn't," Georgie said. "He's been ill, you know."

"I know, and a fine mess he's made of his face, hasn't he? And him that was so handsome."

"It's the sort of scar that fades in time," Georgie said quickly. "And anyway I never mind scars myself."

"That's because you haven't got any," the landlady of the Boar's Head asserted. "If your face was all smashed up like Mr. Boyd's you wouldn't be too pleased about it, you mark my words."

To change the conversation she asked how her uncle had been behaving during her absence.

"Just the same," Mrs. Spears said comfortably. "It's a marvel to me he isn't dead. Last night he was here till we closed, and then I had to get Alf to walk home with him."

"I know, I heard them come in," Georgie said.

"It's a thousand pities," Mrs. Spears went on. "And your uncle quite the gentleman. It's hard on you too."

"Oh, I don't mind," Georgie said. "It's no use worrying—it's no use worrying about anything; it doesn't help. Which room has Mr. Boyd got?"

"The one you like—that locks over the garden," Mrs. Spears told her. "And the sitting room next door. He said he wanted to be quiet, and he'll be quiet enough there; a bit too quiet, I should say after the life he's led. Are you going to wait and see him?"

"Oh, no," Georgie said in sudden fright. "He doesn't know I live here. I don't think he'd be very pleased if he did, so I hope you won't tell him."

"Not me, I've enough to do to mind my own business, but I thought as you'd called in, perhaps you wanted to see him."

"I want to see him right enough," Georgie told her with a sigh, as she walked home again. "But that isn't the point."

Of course they would be bound to meet sooner or later, and then he could not be rude and pretend that he did not know her. Her hand went deeply into her coat pocket and closed over his cigarette case. In the meantime she could wait.

TAFT-FLEMING Brilliant Wedding in Methodist Church

On Thursday evening at eight o'clock, Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church was the scene of a brilliant wedding, when Miss Mamie Ruth Fleming was married to William Holston Taft. The church was beautifully decorated to carry out a green and white color scheme. The chancel was massed high with Cibotium and on either side of the altar tiers of cathedral candles extended the width of the chancel. Ferns and branched candelabra formed the background, with a surmount of gladioli and daisies in the center. The seats in the ribbons were marked by candles in single aisle standards.

Mrs. R. A. Tyson, Jr., at the organ, played a musical program as the vast assemblage of guests arrived. Mrs. Tyson's gown was figured chiffon and she wore a shoulderette of pink radiance roses. Mrs. J. H. Waldrop sang "Untill," by Wilfrid Sniderm, and "Day of Golden Promise" by Houbliens. She was gowned in yellow crepe made low V-neck with rhinestone trimmings and corresponding slippers. Her shoulderette was bi-riarclife roses. Miss Lucy James sang a solo from "Hiawatha's Wedding" and "Iris" by Wolf. She wore orange organza made low V-back with ruffled puffed sleeves and ruffled skirt. Her slippers were orange and silver and her shoulderette bi-riarclife roses.

The bride's mother wore a powder blue chiffon gown with rhinestone buckle, shirred sleeves and cowl neck and blue slippers. Her shoulderette was of Permet roses. The groom's mother wore blue lace with crepe sleeves made square neck finished with rhinestones. Her shoulderette was of sweetheart roses.

As Lohengrin's Wedding March sounded from the organ, the ushers entered and took their places before the altar. They were Dr. M. B. Massey, Bryce Sigmon, Frank W. Brown and David Evans. All the gentlemen in the wedding party wore conventional black with boutonniers of white roses and valley lilies.

The six bridesmaids and groomsmen entered next. The bridesmaids wore silk net dresses over taffeta in the pastel shades. The dresses were made round neckline in front and finished at the low V in the back with large taffeta bows with rhinestone buckles. The large puffed sleeves were ruffled and the toe length full skirts were trimmed with tiers of ruffles. They carried smart muffs matching their costumes to which were pinned their nosegays of painted daisies and delphinium showered with sweetheart roses.

They entered two at the time with the groomsmen and proceeded down opposite aisles and formed a tableau on the rostrum back of the altar and on the steps on either side.

Miss Annie Shields VanDyke, wearing blue, was with V. C. Fleming, Jr., brother of the bride, and Miss Frances Porter of Charlotte, wearing blue, was with Fred Forbes, Jr. Miss Florence Taft, sister of the groom, wearing pink, was with Staunton Harvey, and Miss Laura Smith Fleming, sister of the bride, wearing pink, was with James Liverman of Scotland Neck. Miss Helen Fleming, sister of the bride, wearing green, was with Hoover Taft, brother of the groom, and Miss Mary Lou White, wearing green, was with Henry Cuthrell of Rocky Mount.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Paul McRae of Rocky Mount, entered alone. Her gown was pink chiffon over taffeta made on princess lines with low V in the back finished with a sash and large bow shaded from pink to rose and large puffed sleeves. She wore pink brocade slippers and carried a nosegay of bi-riarclife roses and gypsophelia with contrasting ribbon.

Miss Frances Fleming, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, entered alone, wearing blue silk net embroidered with yellow and blue over taffeta and made drop shoulder with round ruffled neckline and a blue taffeta sash lined with pink. Her slippers were blue and she carried a nosegay similar to the matron of honor.

Next to enter opposite aisles were the dainty flower girl, little Miss Jane Tolar Massey, niece of the

Bright, Fresher After Taking Black-Draught

"Seven years ago, I was troubled with constipation," writes Mrs. L. E. Williams, of Jackson, Miss. "My mother told me she thought it would help me to take Black-Draught. She had used it herself and it had helped her. I found it relieved me of this troublesome complaint. I suffered from sick headache and biliousness which made me feel dull and lifeless. I had no ambition to do anything. I felt bright and fresh after I took Theodor's Black-Draught. It is a splendid medicine for constipation. I take it dry, at night, followed by a generous glass of water." Get a package of Theodor's Black-Draught today. Refuse substitutes.

groom, and Master Leon Fleming, Jr., cousin of the bride, ring bearer. The flower girl wore a toe-length dress of blue silk net made similar to the bridesmaids and blue slippers. She carried a basket of rose petals. The little ring bearer wore a black satin suit. He carried the ring on a white satin cushion trimmed with ruffled maline and orange blossoms.

The bride entered with her father. Her blond beauty was emphasized in her wedding gown of imported shadow lace, made on long princess lines, with cowl neck and long sleeves pointed over the hand. Most becoming was a close fitting cap of seed pearls finished at the side with a bow of sequins. A wreath of orange blossoms at the back caught in graceful folds the hand, made lace veil lined with tulle. Her only ornament was an anchor of pearls worn by her mother on her wedding day. She wore white crepe and satin sandals. Her bouquet was of Killarney roses and valley lilies clustered among graceful loops of white satin ribbon. The groom with his brother, Joseph Taft, as best man, entered from the choir and met the bride at the altar. Rev. E. L. Hillman impressively performed the ring ceremony that joined them man and wife. During the ceremony, McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" was softly played.

The wedding joins two of the city's oldest and most prominent families and is the culmination of a number of social events the past few weeks. Both the bride and groom are popular members of the younger social set. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van Calvin Fleming. She is a graduate of the city schools and the East Carolina Teachers College. For the past four years she has been a member of the high school faculty in Rocky Mount.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hoover Taft. He is also a graduate of the city schools and the North Carolina State College in Raleigh. He is a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. He takes an active part in the civic life of the city and is a leader of the Boy Scouts. He is a member of the firm Taft Furniture Co.

Reception.

Immediately following the Taft-Fleming wedding last evening, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Fleming, parents of the bride, tendered an elaborate reception in honor of the bridal party. The Fleming home on Second street was lovely with decorations of shasta daisies gladioli and delphinium. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Perkins were at the door to greet the many guests who called. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Fleming, parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Taft, parents of the groom, the bride and

GOLDEN PLY TIRE MADE BY GOODRICH

A new automobile tire, engineered to reduce to the minimum the possibility of blowouts, has been manufactured by The B. F. Goodrich Company, according to Messrs. Cozart and Mitchiner. Goodrich dealers in Greenville, N. C.

"This tire contains a ply processed by a special compound which resists internal heat, principal cause of blowouts," Messrs. Cozart and Mitchiner said.

"The new series of Goodrich Silvertown tires, containing what the engineers call the 'Life-Saver Golden Ply,' was tested for months in the 'torment chambers' of the Goodrich laboratories at Akron and then on the fastest track in the United States.

"Cars driven by impartial drivers were used for hours at high speeds equipped with the new tire running against tires of the old standard type.

"The speed trials proved without question that the latest Goodrich improvement gave three times the blow-out protection to be had in tires without the special ply.

"Better automobiles and faster roads make possible increased driving speeds, and for these reasons tires must be designed to meet these new conditions which build up destructive internal friction and create high temperatures.

"Cross-sections of the new tires are now available for inspection and demonstration here, showing the new ply construction." Messrs. Cozart and Mitchiner said.

Our Idea Of The Proper Business Of A Bank

Our idea of the proper business of a bank is to keep money safe and to keep it circulating.

Therefore, when we lend money, we lend it for short periods and only on safe, legitimate transactions which are of a self-liquidating character. It is not the proper business of this bank to furnish permanent capital for any enterprise.

It is because we have strictly adhered to this principle during the past, that we have been able to keep this bank in a strong position with ready assets to meet every obligation and every requirement of our depositors.

Now It's Different

"But this time," he said, "I couldn't ask for greater consideration. When they think something is wrong, they say so and state their reasons intelligently. They argue objectively, not in personalities. If they haven't something to say, they keep their mouths shut and let us do our work."

Along with this change he views a decided improvement in talking studio picture quality. The fact that a studio bought "Cradle Song" for production he holds to be in itself a proof that the talkie future is bright. "Cradle Song" isn't what the movies usually regard as box office, but Connelly thinks it will make a good picture.

"The important thing in any drama," he said, "is to how to the line in telling the story. The audience will follow you and it's ready to surrender. The fallacy of inserting extraneous matter because someone thinks 'They eat up a scene like this' is demonstrated on the stage too."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Playwright Marc Connelly of the "The Green Pasture" and other dramatic fame is finding Hollywood today different from the place that greeted him several years ago.

It was in 1926 that he had his first experience with the screen, then silent.

"All I did was to outline a story to a supervisor," he reminisced the other day. "Within 24 hours, before I'd written a line, I learned that my 'story' was already in production. Someone explained that they were making 'a few changes'."

"I sat around bewildered, drew my check regularly, and never found out what I was there for. The story was for Beatrice Lillie. Later in New York, she and I saw it together. Well, for us at least, it was a howling success!" he chuckled.

Marce Wouldn't Budge

The experience made Connelly deaf to movie offers for years. He determined he wouldn't be interested unless he knew in advance what would be expected of him. The chance to adopt Serra's play, "Cradle Song" was the lure that brought him out this time.

"Hollywood has changed remarkably," he commented; "when I was here before it stuck me as a place filled with nonentities, all trying to become identities, the favored process to that end being the development of blustering vocal cords.

COTTON... New York, June 9—(AP)—Futures opened steady seven to thirteen lower under commission house liquidation and selling.

Some selling was reported against red cross cotton but after selling off to 3.88 for July and 9.31 for December prices steadied.

Offerings were light after the early selling had been absorbed and there was sufficient buying to sent July to 9.97 or within four points of yesterday while later months were firm with December going to 9.39 or 3 points higher.

Trading was quiet with the market steady at the end of the first half hour.

The market was quiet later in the morning but prices had advanced July sold up to 9.15 and December to 9.54 with the market showing gains of 12 to 18 points at midday.

New York, June 9—(AP)—Financial markets muddled about in another narrow range and the recent feverish trading closed down appreciably as traders and investors paused to consider the outlook at home and abroad.

Many shares leaders were off one to more than two points at one time although some recovered in intermittent rallies.

The tobacco stocks which have been quiet showed considerable strength.

Gains of one to around two were registered by American Tobacco, Liggett Myers Lorillard and Reynolds.

Improvements were shown by some oils including Standard of N. J. Consolidated and Atlantic Refining.

Postal Telegraph lost 8 points Western Union dropped around three following rejection of the amendment to the railroad bill which would have permitted the companies to merge.

Homebased mining sagged about five and the decline of one to two or more was suffered by DuPont, Allied Chemical and Dome.

FARM PRICES TAKE LEAD IN UPSWING (Continued from page one) as justification of their stands. Inflationists argue that prices were forced up by fear that money was going to be worthless and that there fore money should be turned into goods.

Deflationists Credit Fear Deflationists, admitting that this fear was partly responsible for the gain, insist that the gains would not have held, and will not hold, unless justified by other factors, such as business improvement and governmental plans for the future.

All prices are still low on the average, and the disparity between farm products and other groups has not yet been evened.

The government's announced plan provides for efforts to bring further increases by processes ranging from currency inflation, restriction of production, to the more indirect methods of encouraging business recovery and thus increasing the demand for goods.

SPORT SEANTS By ALAN GOULD

As most everyone knows, the New York Yankees came north this spring with a roster including three shortstops, any one of them capable of holding down a regular major league job.

Frankie Crosetti, the slim San Francisco Italian youth, won Joe McCarthy's nod for the Yankee assignment. Bill Werber product of Duke University, is now employed regularly by the Boston Red Sox, to whom he was sold along with George Pipgras for a sum reported to be $30,000.

The third shortstop, Lin Lary, languishes on the Yankee bench for two reasons. The first is that the Yankees put to high a price on his services, $50,000, for any other club in the league to consider paying, including the Detroit Tigers. The other is that Lary may yet win back a steady job with the champions, either because Crosetti slumps or because it may be necessary to replace Jole Sewell at third base and recast the left side of the infield.

It is safe to say, meanwhile that Lary is the only $5,000 ball-player in any league riding the boards and that the Yankees are the only outfit willing or able to hold such assets in reserve.

He'd Rather Understudy Columbia Lou Gehrig may jolt the theory loose with his mighty bat, but I have heard a number of critics make the observation this spring that the Yankee first baseman will not be so good when he finally is convinced it is up to him to take over the slugging burden from Babe Ruth.

It is of course just so much speculation, just as it is still debatable whether Jimmie Foxx's hitting decline can be traced in any way to the passing of Al Simmons to another lineup.

The point about Gehrig concerns his temperament. He has always been satisfied to be the understudy or follow-up man for the Big Bam. Naturally somewhat shy, Gehrig is not a good showman. He is a difficult subject to interview and he has none of the Babe's flair for doing the unusual. Consequently he might feel the pressure, and his batting might reflect it one way or another, if and when it devolved on Gehrig to pick up the main job.

On the other hand, close camp followers of the Yanks are convinced right now that Gehrig has already passed Ruth in value to the club in every department except box office appeal.

Praise For The 'Schoolboy' 'Schoolboy' Rowe, the young Detroit Tiger picture, had the misfortune to develop a sore arm after scoring a shutout victory in his major league debut, but there are many observers, including Al Simmons, who think the youngster is destined for great things.

"He showed me more poise and control than any young pitcher I have faced in a long time," Simmons admitted after falling to dent Rowe's confidence. "He is cooler in the box now than a veteran like Rube Walberg, who is still a nervous pitcher after a dozen years in the big leagues."

The Greenville "Seventh Graders" won another game yesterday when they defeated the Robersonville Seventh Graders by the score of 14 to 5. Hodges won his second game of the week against this same team. Simpson was the catcher for Greenville. Harold Forbes and Robert Earl Clark hit triples for Greenville. Dillon Forbes at shortstop and M. S. Smith at first base turned in fine performances.

This team will play the other Seventh Grade team shortly and will also play games with like teams from other towns. Efforts will be made also to organize a team in the East part of the city from the boys of the Training school.

LOCALS PLAY AT SNOW HILL; KINSTON SAT.

After opening the season here last Wednesday with an 8-1 victory over Ayden, the Greenville club of the Coastal Plain league left for Snow Hill where they will tackle that club in the first home game Snow Hill has had since the league opened.

While the Snow Hill game is in progress Kinston will be playing at Ayden in an effort to add another game to the victory grabbed from the Green county town in the Kinston curtain-raiser.

As the records stand today, Greenville and Kinston have a perfect record and the other two clubs blanks, therefore, the outcome of the two games were being watched with considerable interest from all towns involved.

The Greenville club rested yesterday in preparation for today's game. Last night they were guests of State Theatre and Lautare's Candy Palace, and reported this morning they were in prime condition for the fray today.

Nine Snow Hill players took part in the Grimesland game here last week. Greenville won, and it was believed if they go up against the same players today they will bring home their second game of the season.

The hundreds of fans who witnessed the game with Snow Hill were convinced Greenville players are as fast if not faster than any other team of the league. They went through the contest without a single bobble and their throwing from base to base was superb. The outfield is also fast and accurate and was expected to render fine service to mound artists during the long schedule ahead.

Indications were that Bob Forbes, the Greenville hurler, who turned Ayden back with only four hits in the opening game, will be on the mound in Snow Hill this afternoon. Roger Taylor will do the chunking against Kinston tomorrow.

These are the only pitchers the club has at this time owing to the fact that "Big Boy" Winston, of Raleigh, was declared ineligible because of his alleged league record. However it was said he probably would be retained to pitch exhibition games which will be arranged between scheduled games during the remainder of the summer.

The club is looking about for a new hurler and it was expected one would be in camp within the next few days to help ease the burden on the shoulders of the two youngsters now doing duty on the firing line.
