ATTEMPT TO FORCE U. S. TO SETTLE DEBT ISSUE

Foreign 'Bloc' Seen At London Economic Confab

SENSATIONS ORDER OF DAY IN DEBT TILT

American Delegate Leader Absent As Nations Back British Move For Debt Relief; Italy and South Africa Hold Floor During Morning; Americans Deny Hull's Delayed Speech Caused By Debt Question

Denies Romance

London, June 13—(AP)—The development of an open bloc of debtor nations to force America to settle the war debt question immediately was predicted today by close observers at the World Economic Conference as leading delegates took the floor to expound the views of their governments.

Sensation followed sensation in the morning session which met in a state of excitement as a result of the war debt crisis with which British cabinet was struggling today.

First Secretary of State Hull, who was to deliver the first speech did not appear and Premier Daladier of France took his place.

The word from the American delegation was that there had been delay in preparing Hull's speech.

It was denied that the debt crisis had anything to do with the delay, although it was understood that the Americans did discuss the debt imbroglio which Premier MacDonald of Britain, and chairman of the party, precipitated yesterday by raising the question of inter-governmental debts on the floor of the conference against the wishes of America.

The Finance Minister Jung of Italy and Jan Christiaan Smuts of the Union of South Africa took the floor and in substance reiterated MacDonald's controversy-producing remarks of yesterday. Jung, like the British minister, demanded immediate settlement of the debt question.

Jan Smuts in his straight-from-the-shoulder manner declared that the debt issue was settled at the Lansdowne conference and that should be the end of it.

While these deliberate and direct gestures were being made to America, Secretary Hull, who is head of the American delegation was still absent. Several of his colleagues remained with him. James M. Cox and Sam McReynolds were on their feet during the late addresses and other members and experts were all present listening attentively. No American answer was forthcoming, however.

YOUNG AFRICANS SALUTE IN MUSSOLINI FASHION

Bengasi, Cyrenaica—(AP)—Dusky youngsters of this Italian colony are beginning to substitute Mussolini's Roman salute for the legendary salaam of their fathers.

Italians transplanted here under the duke's scheme for colonial development formed two organizations, the Fascists of Beda and the Fascists of El Abragh.

In the can of their parades there always appear betwined native spears, imitating every move of the white men.

SUCCUMBS TO BLOW ON HEAD

Fred Stone Fatally Injured By Amos Haddock In Shelmerdine Section

A coroner's jury this afternoon exonerated Amos Haddock of the fatal shooting of Frank Stone in the Shelmerdine community last Sunday. Stone died in the hospital here last night.

Coroner A. A. Elwanger said the jury absolved Haddock of blame when it was found that he struck Stone, 37-year-old day laborer, in self defense.

Funeral services for Stone were held from his late home today and burial was made near Shelmerdine.

Fatally injured when he was alleged to have been hit over the head with a club by Amos Haddock in the Shelmerdine community Sunday, Fred Stone, died in the local hospital last night.

Stone was said to have suffered a fractured skull from the blow and was rushed to the hospital immediately for medical aid. His condition became more critical yesterday and he succumbed to the injuries last night.

The fight was alleged to have resulted from an argument between Haddock and Stone at the home of Bill Coward, Ston, who was said to have been drinking was reported to have threatened to whip Haddock and when he attempted to carry out his purpose, Haddock hit him over the head with a club.

Haddock was taken into custody and held for an investigation by Coroner A. A. Elwanger today.

Radical Vs. Conservative Tilt Over Roosevelt Hot

STRIKES IN CAROLINAS MILL CENTERS

Silk Workers Walk-out At Charlotte Adding Seriousness To Walkout

By The Associated Press) Despite quick action for settlement labor unrest spread thru the Carolinas today more rapidly than it could be quelled.

The latest addition to the strike of textile workers was the Silk Hosiery Mill in Charlotte where strike managers said a few employees refused to work after seven workers had been discharged.

Strikers claimed this dismissal came because workers had joined the union.

Managers reported that the lay-off was due to putting on an 80 hour week schedule instead of the four day and night shift in keeping with the spirit of the national industrial act.

THREE LIQUOR STILLS SEIZED

Two Men Rounded Up By County Officers in Series of Raids Over Week-end

A white man named Hardison was held by county officers today on a charge of manufacturing liquor following the capture of a still in Chicod township yesterday. He was to be given preliminary hearing sometime today.

The still, a three hundred gallon capacity affair, five hundred gallons of beer and five gallons of whiskey were captured along with the alleged distiller.

Officers also captured two stills Saturday at Haddock's Cross Roads and the Alpine section of Belvoir township. An alleged distiller by the name of Sollie Jones was captured at Alpine along with considerable paraphernalia and five gallons of whiskey.

The still in the Haddock's Cross Roads community was not in operation but officers seized the two hundred gallon still and three barrels of beer.

"Wall street and the interests" with unexampled venom. At the same time a group of eastern millionaires and railroad presidents were saying that the nominee was as "safe" as Calvin Coolidge himself; that he could be trusted never to go off on a dangerous tangent or countenance any measure not thoroughly sound and orthodox.

This all was so confusing that many American citizens just gave it up and decided to wait and see how Mr. Roosevelt himself would settle the dispute if and when he entered the White House. Since March 4, he has expressed himself to Congress on virtually every important issue. Yet the dis-

NEW SLAYINGS REPORTED IN N. Y. GANG WAR

Triple Murder Discovered in Tenement; Each Man Stabbed in Chest

New York, June 13—(AP)—The trail of a murder mob hunted for recent homicides was freshly red today with the blood of a triple slaying.

The bodies were found last night in a six dollar a week flat of an east 56th street tenement.

Each had been stabbed in the chest.

The death weapon was an ice pick. Part of it was found broken off in the temple of one of the victims.

Identification was made by finger prints on record.

The dead men were described by police as petty racketeers. All three were exclusively and flashily dressed in contrast to the flat in which they were found. They had been dead probably since Saturday.

They must have been murdered many hours after the slaying of three other gangsters last Friday.

The means of death was similar in some respects to others of recent weeks. Each had been trussed and gagged. Adhesive tape shut their eyes and mouth and were trussed, gagged and blindfolded so that they met death unable to lift an arm in defense against the slayers.

PLAN TO TRAP BEETLES HERE

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture to Determine Presence of Pest In This City

In an effort to determine absence or presence of the Japanese beetle in Greenville, an inspector of the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Plant Quarantine, during the next month will carry on extensive trapping operations in this city. This work will be performed in cooperation with State officials.

Inspector H. T. Barrow, N. C., will place approximately 200 traps in these sections of the city in which the Japanese beetle would most likely be found if the insect has reached this locality. The inspector will visit each trap at least twice per week to see that it is functioning properly and to determine whether any Japanese beetles have been caught.

While distributing and visiting traps, it will be necessary for the inspector to enter private property and other premises. The inspector is furnished with a Federal badge and identification card. These will be exhibited upon request. Plants or property on the premises will not be molested and traps will be placed with as little inconvenience as possible to the occupant of the property. Activities of the inspector have been reported to the local police department and the cooperation of the police secured in explaining any complaints or inquiries on the part of those whose grounds may be entered by the inspector.

Some years ago entomologists of the Federal Department of Agriculture discovered that Japanese beetles are strongly attracted by the odors of geraniol and eugenol, two essential oils used in perfumery. This discovery led to the construction of traps by means of which beetles may be lured and in which they are caught. The metal trap used to ensnare the insect consists of a galvanized iron cylinder in which is placed a tray containing the bait mixture. Over the cylinder is a snug fitting funnel on which is mounted a four-winged baffle. A standard mason jar screwed into the bottom of the cylinder acts as a beetle container. The cylinder is painted a light green. The baffle and funnel assembly is painted white. Traps painted with these color combinations capture more beetles than do traps of other colors. Beetles attracted by the odor of the bait fly into the funnel or against the baffle and then drop down through the funnel into the jar, where they are trapped since they cannot fly upward through the small funnel opening or crawl up the inside of the glass jar.

REPORTS MARK ROTE MEETING

Annual Statement of Departmental Heads Marks Weekly Gathering

Annual reports of committees marked the weekly meeting of the Rotary club here last night.

The president and heads of the various committees presented detailed reports of their activities during the past year in preparation for the beginning of the new year July 1.

The reports showed that each department had done its work well and would face the future confident of accomplishing much more under the "new deal" promised by the federal administration.

The statement of Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, president, was particularly impressive. He congratulated the Rotarians in their accomplishments during a "year that challenged the minds of men everywhere" and expressed great appreciation of the spirit of co-operation which made the work of the club possible.

Practically the entire session was confined to the reading of reports. The usual supper and song program was enjoyed.

K. W. Cobb, recently elected to head the organization for the new year will be inducted into office the first of July as will other officers elected to serve with him. As soon as the officers are installed new committees will be announced.

Greensboro, June 13—A sentence of 12 to 16 years in State's prison was meted out to E. H. Hayes, young High Point man, by Judge T. J. The defense presented no evidence, but relied on character witnesses. An appeal to the sentence was noted and appeal bond was fixed at $12,000 by Judge Shaw.

4-H GIRLS GO TO CAMP

Pitt County Club Members To Spend Several Days In Neuse Forest

Forty-five 4-H club girls of Pitt county left this morning for their annual encampment at Neuse Forest, five miles below New Bern.

The trip was made by automobile which were loaded to capacity with camp paraphernalia and all kinds of foods to be consumed by the youngsters during their three-day stay at the river camp.

They were headed by Miss Ethel Nice, home demonstration agent of this county, assisted by women of the various communities which the clubs serve.

Miss Nice said the time at camp will be confined to sewing, bathing, fishing, hiking, cooking and listening to lectures by leaders of the 4-H club movement.

They were to join similar contingents from Martin and Beaufort counties, and indications were that attendance would be as large if not larger than previous years.

Bad Weather Believed To Have Caused American Flier To Change His Course

Nome, Alaska, June 13—(AP)—A dripping barometer heralded the coming of a storm here today as Nomeites watched the western sky for a glimpse of Jimmie Mattern, American globe-girdling flier.

Foggy weather and low temperatures over the ice-choked Bearing Sea were believed to have caused Mattern to detour from the straight course between Khabarovsk, Siberia and Nome.

SENATE WILL NOT ACCEPT COMPROMISE

President Roosevelt Also Adamant As Conferees Visit Him; Substitute Will Cost Nation $100,000,000 More and Will Require New Taxes, Budget Director Says

Washington, June 13—(AP)—Quick adjournment plans were almost aside today for congress faced a struggle over the senate's insistence that veterans pay be liberalized further.

As little as there was remaining for the extra session to do the jan over this one issue was such that the leadership had given up hope of getting through by nightfall and were less sanguine about the closing date than they had been for a week.

A complete deadlock was imminent as result of a conference which lasted late last night. The senate had sent the office appropriations bill to conference after refusal to accept the House-Roosevelt compromise which increased veteran's funds considerably but fell far short of the sum the senate had voted.

The conference ran into a stone wall when the house members refused to budge from their stand.

The conferees quickly fled down to the White House and there found President Roosevelt just as definitely against yielding.

Senator Byrnes, democrat of South Carolina, chief senate conferee and administration pilot, came out to say he would support the conference disagreement up to the senate today.

Prediction was free that the senate would vote a sizable margin in favor of the Cutting-Stewer substitute for the administration compromise clause.

The Cutting-Stewer amendment, said Lewis W. Douglas, budget director would cost $100,000,000 more and if adopted will require new taxes to keep the budget in line.

The president has already threatened to keep congress in session indefinitely to vote new taxes if it increases expenses any more.

GIVES WARNING ON DIPHTHERIA

Health Department Reports Five Cases Of Disease Since the First of June

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, today urged mothers to have their children vaccinated against diphtheria.

The statement came after five cases of the disease had been reported to the health department since June 1, as against nine from January to June 1.

Dr. McGeachy also urged people who did not take typhoid fever treatment last year to get busy and do so this year.

Typhoid clinics are being held in various parts of the county at this time and health workers are in the office two days a week to give inoculations.

Pitt county last year outshone all other counties of the state from the standpoint of the number of persons receiving treatment for typhoid.

All communities desiring clinics this year have been requested to inform the health office of the desire and workers will arrange for vaccinations immediately, the health director stated.

FOR SAFER SCHOOL BUSES

The Carolina Motor Club is working on a plan for the annual honorable recognition of all school bus drivers in the state who operate their buses during the school year without accident. Along with the fact that every driver should exercise extreme caution at all times when the lives of others are in his hands, we believe this plan of public recognition for services will be an added incentive to the drivers. The transportation of school children in this state is certainly a major problem and not only should the best possible drivers available be placed upon these buses but the school officials responsible for the buses should see to it that the buses are kept in perfect mechanical condition as an added safety measure. The toll of lives from school bus accidents has been to great in this state.

EARLIER OPENING NECESSARY

With some tobacco already being cured in this section and probably more to begin in a very short time, it is to be hoped that the efforts to get an earlier opening of the tobacco markets in this section will be successful. With tobacco ready for market two or three weeks earlier than usual, the farmers in this section will not be satisfied to wait for the opening in this section very long after the border markets open and if the opening here is delayed it means that a large quantity of our tobacco will go to the border markets, greatly increasing the selling cost to the farmer. An earlier opening in this belt would be a great benefit to our farmers as well as to every line of business. Every business organization in this section should add its influence to the efforts of the tobacco warehousemen's association to get an earlier opening of the market this season.

'BAKHEESH' CRY STILLED BY EGYPTIAN LAW

Cairo, Egypt—(AP)—No more will cries of "bakheesh" be heard in Egypt, for the government has banned one of the most famous aspects of the ancient land. Following the lead of Turkey, begging is to be broken up by a law passed by the council of ministers. Egyptian beggars have earned for their country the unenviable reputation of being one of the most embarrassing countries in the world for tourists. Many of the wretched creatures, authorities say, have been exploited by organized gangs.

By the World FORGOT
A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: Georgie Bancroft is discovered by Nicholas Boyd hanging over a gate in her English village home, weeping bitterly. Boyd has been discarded by the movie world, where a couple of months before he had been a star, because in rescuing an extra girl, his face had been marred and his leg injured. Even Bernie Boyd, his wife, has deserted him. On the boat returning from America Georgie has tried to comfort Boyd and been repulsed. Now he calms her tears, but sends her away again.

Chapter 14

GEORGIE'S TRIP

At the end of two days Georgie still felt restless and unable to settle to anything. Mrs. Lovelock had not really recovered from her attack of what she called her "chronic indigestion" and was not helpful. She and Georgie had always been friendly, perhaps drawn together by their mutual loneliness, but since the girl's return from America there had been a sort of armed neutrality between them which Georgie found it impossible to bridge. "Spotted, that's what you are," Mrs. Lovelock asserted. "Young people seem to think of nothing but gadding about nowadays."

"Well, I haven't done much gadding," Georgie said. "Once to America, and that's all. I wish I'd never gone." "Not more than I do," was the reply. "You're an altered creature since you went to that heathenish place. Always moaning about, staring at nothing. Why don't you make yourself useful?"

"I try, and you won't let me. If I begin to do anything you come and take it away from me." "Because you do it as if you were in a dream, and there's no time for dreaming in this world if you want to get on. We should never be done at all if the work was left to people like you. I pity the man who takes you for a wife." Georgie looked at her meditatively. "You're a stupid old woman," she said. "Then get out of my kitchen and let me get on with the work," was the angry answer. "But Georgie stayed where she was. "I suppose," she said, after a moment, "I suppose it's never occurred to you that I'm not in exactly an enviable position here, has it?" "I don't know what you mean, and I can't bother my head answering silly questions. You're free to do just as you like. You've got your own money, and nobody asks what you do or where you go; what more do you want?" They looked at one another with disapproving eyes. "Why don't you go up to London and look at the shops or something? There's theaters to go to and heaps of places." Georgie thought for a moment, then she said, "All right, I'll go this afternoon. "And good riddance." Georgie went up to her room with a lighter heart than she had carried for some time. She would go and see Nelly Foster; she would call at the shop and buy some gloves.

When she was ready she peeped into her uncle's study. He was not there, though the inevitable whiskey bottle and used tumbler stood on the table. Georgie sighed; he would not miss her, that was certain. She walked to the station, passing the Boar's Head with quickened pulses and averted head. She had not seen Nicholas Boyd since that meeting in the lane, although she had gone down each day since and leaned over the gate. At the station she bought a film magazine and settled herself happily in a corner of the railway carriage. She so seldom went to London or anywhere else that this visit seemed quite an adventure, and she felt grateful to Mrs. Lovelock for suggesting it.

She turned a page of the paper on her lap, and the first picture that met her eyes was one of Nicholas Boyd's wife, very pretty and smiling and scantily dressed, sitting astride a crescent moon. "Bernie Boyd, the film star who will play opposite Roy Francis in his next picture, 'Moonlight'." Georgie stared down at the smiling face. Yes, she was certainly pretty enough, if one liked that blonde type of beauty, and she supposed that most men did. Georgie was not fond of golden hair, but she sighed as she stared down at Bernie Boyd's rather fixed smile and wondered if Nicholas loved her very much. Anyway Bernie could not have cared for him, or she would never have let him come home alone, ill as he was. Bernie didn't look as if she had much heart; Georgie wondered if she would write to him. She looked out of the window. It was a grey, rather depressing sort of day, and as the country was gradually left behind the rows of small, crowded houses looked depressing, too, all with the same backyards and things hanging out of the windows. Funny that so many people who lived in mean streets would keep birds in cages; it made Georgie's heart ache to see the small prisoners, fluttering behind bars, hanging perilously outside high-up windows.

Mrs. Lovelock said she was soft about animals. "It isn't natural," she asserted when once Georgie had wept over a rabbit caught in a trap. "Perhaps I'm funny," Georgie thought, even while she knew that her feeling towards Nicholas Boyd was all part and parcel of the same thing. In his way, he was helpless, too, caught in the trap of life, hiding away from a world that would have hounded him to death. The train stopped with a great screeching of brakes, and she roused herself and got out. She hardly knew anything of London, so she took a taxicab and drove straight to the shop where Nelly spent her life serving "nasty old women." It wasn't a very first-class shop; Georgie often saw its advertisements in the newspapers; they always seemed to be having "remnant sales" and "clearances regardless of cost." Georgie was not very interested in clothes; she never had occasion to wear anything very smart; the red frock which had made Nicholas call her Robin would probably never be required to see the light of day again until it was hopelessly out of fashion, or until the moths had eaten most of it. The taxicab stopped and Georgie found herself outside a big shop with enormous plate glass windows, screening such a crowd of jumpers and gloves and hats and scarves and odds and ends that it left one dazed. It looked as if the person who had dressed the window had been determined that the public should know every single article that could be purchased on the premises. Georgie pushed open the swing doors and walked in. A floorwalker who rather answered Nelly's description of the man who would always carry his business stamped all over him no matter where he went came towards her and asked if he could be of any assistance. He had kind eyes in a thin, rather tired looking face, and Georgie smiled and said, "Gloves, please," in her most friendly fashion before she followed him down the crowded, rather stuffy shop to a small counter at the far end. And there was Nelly, looking a little pale and older, shorn of her lip-stick and powder, mechanically sorting through a box of not very beautiful gloves. And Georgie said, "Nelly, it's I." Nelly looked up, the color rushing to her face and her eyes brightening. "You! Somehow I thought I should never see you again." Georgie laughed. "Well, I haven't lost much time," she said. "It's only three days since we came home. Can you come out to tea with me when the shop's closed?" "It won't be till six." "That's all right." A small, thin-lipped, tightly-dressed woman approached. "Are you serving, Miss Foster?" she asked icily, and Nelly said in a hurried undertone, "I can't talk to you now, I'll meet you outside at six." Georgie went away, realizing disconsolately that as yet it was only four and wondering what in the world she was to do with herself for two hours. Finally she turned into a picture house. There was a murder picture on, and Georgie did not like murders, so she closed her eyes until it was over. Then the lights went up, and she saw that a young man sitting beside her was looking at her with a smile of amusement. Georgie smiled in reply. (To Be Continued)

EX-SOCIALIST TO SPEAK HERE

David Goldstein "converted from Marx to Christ" will lecture here on Thursday and Friday of this week under the auspicious of the Catholic church. Traveling in a special constructed motor car he covered 35,000 miles last year through Oklahoma, Texas, California, Washington, Idaho and other western states. The second lap began in Florida the first month of this year, since then he has visited practically all the southern states.

The purpose of his visit is to set forth the doctrines, history and practices of the Catholic church with charity and not in a controversial or belligerent spirit. The mission is one of good-will and there fore not anti-Protestant, anti-Jewish nor anti anything else. It is an effort to enlighten the uninformed to try and transform misunderstanding, which manifests itself in a spirit of intolerance, into a sympathetic understanding of what twenty million of Americans who are Catholics really believe. A quiz period is announced to follow the address when any person in the audience is welcome to ask questions related to the subject discussed with the assurance that they will be answered to the best of the speaker's ability in a frank and courteous manner. This is considered to be one of the striking features of this campaign for Christ. It is intended to give those seeking further information, as well as those who may disagree with the contentions of the speaker, an opportunity to sound a Catholic personality as to the reasons of his belief. The meeting will be held on the Court House lawn on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week at 8 o'clock.

Mildness...fragrance...purity how real they are in Luckies!

Have you ever been to wonder why "Toasting" is so important to Lucky Strikes? It's really on account of you. For "Toasting" plays a bigger part than you might think in making Luckies so mild and fragrant and pure. Remember, your cigarette comes in rather close personal contact with you, and if it weren't for "Toasting's" purifying heat, even Lucky Strike's choice tobaccos could scarcely be as mild, so pure. So you see what a big part "Toasting" has in making "Luckies Please!"

SEEK TO STABILIZE PRICES OF PEANUTS

A committee from the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce representing the peanut growers, returned from Washington early this morning where they had a conference with the secretary of agriculture Monday relative to stabilizing the price of peanuts in the same manner that cotton, tobacco and other commodities mentioned in the bill are to be handled. Peanuts were finally left out of the bill when it finally passed after it had been in there three times all told.

The secretary of agriculture and his assistants assured the committee that peanuts will be given attention and that an administrator of the non-basic commodities will be on the job the first of next week. Chester Davis, who is the director of production, was very enthusiastic over the plans submitted for the job, and organization of plans is being speeded up as rapidly as possible. It is rumored, though not authentic, that the price of tobacco from 1918 to 1923 are being considered as the basis for the new prices. The committee going was made up of Judge Guy Elliott, president of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce; Secretary N. G. Bartlett; Judge J. H. Matthews and ex-Senator E. S. Askew of Windy.

The committee and gave every assurance that this part of the program will be looked after immediately.

Although no tobacco administrator has been officially announced, the committee was assured by the secretary that the man who is to handle the tobacco is already on his way.

CAMP LEACH OPENS FOR THE SEASON

Ayden, June 13.—It was a gay crowd that wended its way to camp down on the Pamlico Monday afternoon, when Camp Leach, the recreation center of the Diocese of East Carolina, was officially opened for the season.

The senior camp comprising boys and girls between the ages of 18 and 24, is about evenly divided between the two. This fact is worth noting as the girls usually outnumber the boys by a big majority.

Rev. W. A. Lillycrop of Greenville, is camp director, and Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, Bishop of the Diocese, will be present for the two weeks to give inspiration and help with the programs. It is a rare treat to the boys and girls and the camp leaders to have their beloved bishop with them for two weeks each year. They are very fortunate this year in having as one of their leaders the Rev. John W. Irwin of the publicity department of the National Council, who will give lectures on the church's program.

Others on the staff are Rev. W. R. Noe, executive secretary of the diocese, of Wilmington; Rev. E. F. Moseley of Williamston; Capt. F. Estabrook of the Church Army; Miss Cornelia Harris, director of young people's work in the diocese; Mrs. Jennie Howard, social worker at St. Paul's Church, Greenville; Rev. George S. Gresham, Goldsboro, chaplain; Mrs. Lizzie Windy, home dietitian; Misses Bessie Brown, Elizabeth Andrews and Nancy Lee Sumrell of Greenville, and Eleanor Jones of New Bern, Iola Tankard and Catherine Harding of Washington; John Beckwith of Peterburg, Va.; James Beckwith of Lumberton; J. Weston Hodges of Greenville, counselors.

Athletic director for girls, Nancy Lee Sumrell and Iola Tankard; for boys, James Beckwith and Kenneth Harley of Fayetteville; Directors of Dramatics, Rowe and Mrs. J. Q. Beckwith of Farmville; Nurse Miss Frances Melton of Lumberton; Scores, Miss Estelle Greene, Greenville, and Jack Noe of Ayden.

The camp is the largest in its history and filled to capacity, having 130 present. Many improvements have been made during the year and everything seems in fine shape for a good season.

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, Greenville, gave a shower of household articles to the Women's Auxiliary Hostess House on Monday afternoon, so it is now well furnished for the staff of women workers.

The Y. P. S. of St. John's Church, Fayetteville, gave the camp a lovely communion service. Monday night a play was given as a welcoming feature and the same fire was lighted as a symbol of light.

Walpole And Others. It would not be fair to Hugh Walpole to pretend that "All Souls' Night" contains much of his best work; equally unfair would be the impression that there is not a great deal of interest in the book.

It is not a novel, but a collection of 16 short stories, the one to which may be found in the motto poem by W. B. Yeats from which one gathers that "All Souls' Night" is a favorite time for ghostly walkings. But the general complexion of the tales in Mr. Walpole's latest is rather (Signed): THE KIWANIS CLUB, E. L. Hillman, President, June 9, 1933.

THE ROTARY CLUB, A. W. Fleischmann, President, June 12, 1933.

The point at issue is whether we want Tar river with its sewage connections from towns up the river, smaller hamlets, farm sewage and its dangerous currents or the Westbrook pool under city supervision.

We believe that the pool with all its undeniabilities in location and environment is vastly preferable.

It has been proven that a concrete pool can be kept sanitary. Chemicals such as bluestone or chlorine can be used; information being easily obtained from the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., or the State Health Department. This was done last year. The pool was emptied every two days, the walls and floor scrubbed with steel brushes and repeatedly rinsed before being filled with city water.

Furthermore, this pool's operation would serve to make Greenville "water-conscious" and more willing to support the movement for a larger and more desirable pool, located in the center of the city, when funds become available. Even though funds were at hand now, it would be after August before a pool could be opened and it is not only possible but probable that someone else would drown in Tar river before that time.

If the law of averages means anything, if experience teaches us anything, somebody else will drown in Tar river if the pool is not opened immediately. In such a case the boy's father will not be to blame nor the boy himself. The blame will rest upon the city authorities, the city business men for failure to provide a safe and available place to swim.

Further, the infation project and the gold clause repeal shocked some of the conservatives even more.

But the industry control bill, drafted largely by big industrialists stirred up just as great a tempest among the radicals, who prophesied an industrial order completely dominated by trusts.

And the keystone policy of them all—absolute administration insistence on a balanced budget—was as much applauded by the financial giants as it was berated by those who wanted to go on spending in response to what they felt was to voice the will of "the common people."

It may not clarify the situation a great deal, but it is interesting to recall that when the new administration came in, the extremes of Democratic opinion were popularly believed to be personified by Senator Carter Glass, on the one hand, and Senator Huey Long, on the other.

Day after day, these two glared at one another across a great gulf and each was insisting that Mr. Roosevelt was on his side.

Toward the end of the special session both Glass and Long openly broke with the White House on specific measures. Some of the President's ideas, it appeared, were too radical for Glass, some too conservative for Long.

But these same ideas, of both sorts, went right on commanding overwhelming majorities in Congress; which provides food for thought, since it raises a very interesting question.

Is it, perhaps, the Roosevelt purpose to disprove the old supposition that the parties must be realigned so that all the liberals are on one side and all the conservatives on the other; and to base the new Democratic party on principles which will run squarely between these two extremes, attaching only the middle-ground, middle class elements of American politics?

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

This week Friday the Ford Motor Company completes 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

WINSTON FANS 18 AS LOCALS TRIM WELDON

Weldon fell before the mighty arm of "Big Boy" Winston hurling for the Greenville club of the Coastal Plain league in an exhibition game at Third Street school grounds here yesterday afternoon. The score was 8 to 2.

Pitching invincibly throughout the game, Winston led the visitors down with only three hits and had a total of eighteen strikeouts to his credit of the thirty-two men who faced him.

Hitting timely with men on bases Greenville amassed a total of nine hits of Burnet, Weldon hurler. Bostic and Lang walked off with batting honors for the leaguers each accounting for three hits. One of Bostic's licks was for the circuit, and one of Langs for two bases.

The game was witnessed by a fair crowd of spectators in spite of clouds which gave threat of a torrential downpour at any time. The rain however failed to come and the bleachers were permitted to hold their seats and watch "Big Boy" Winston stage one of the finest pitching exhibitions ever witnessed here.

Winston was so invincible the latter part of the game that outfielders had the audacity to sit down on the job. They were permitted to loaf all the afternoon, as the three hits obtained by the visitors were of the Duke variety and hardly got out of the infield, although two counted for doubles.

Greenville will go to Ayden tomorrow to play the fourth game of the Coastal Plain league club. Snow Hill will appear here Friday and fans will have the pleasure of seeing in action the team that forced Greenville to a tie in an extra-inning game last Friday at Snow Hill.

AYDEN SLUGS 15-1 WIN OVER PINE LEVEL TEAM

Ayden, June 13—Ayden defeated Pine Level 15-1 here today. The local Coastal Plain league club collected 11 hits against the pitching of Brown and Flythe. Three Ayden hurlers—Dunn, Croker and Tucker—let the Johnston County League visitors down with six hits. Gardner caught for Pine Level; Mumford caught for Ayden.

Patton, Rogerson and Autry hit homers for Ayden. Patton got three hits and Rogerson got two. Gardner and Oliver, each with two hits, led the losers.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Since 1930 no locker room gab-fests in connection with the National Open golf championship have been complete without a revival of discussion over a comeback by Bob Jones.

It should be made clear in the first place that Jones takes no part in the debate, confines himself to a plain straightforward "no" on the subject and goes about the business of being an Atlanta barrister, motion picture golf instructor to old John Duffer and par-shooter for the fun of it.

Nevertheless, the topic keeps alive, for at least three main reasons: (1) That Jones still is a young man, ten years younger than a perennial star like Walter Hagen; (2) that the Georgian still is the greatest drawing card in golf, as witness the fact more folks scramble after his occasional exhibition rounds than follow the serious competitors these days and (3) he still is able to match stroke for stroke with any pro in the world, under any conditions on little or no notice.

It isn't any secret that clubs who are willing to hold championships and the United States Golf Association, which has been holding the financial bag since Jones retired, would welcome the Georgian's return to competition and the consequent rush of the cash customers.

Mercenary, you say? Not a bit of it! It takes money to run any organization, sports or otherwise. It takes about $100,000 every few years to finance a Walker Cup trip to Britain. The U. S. G. A. maintains a costly greens section, too from the national tournament gate receipts.

Hard To Resist

One of the reasons for the revival of the Jones rumor, of course, was the fact that the Augusta National Club made a bid for one of the 1934 national championships, preferably the open, only to be side-tracked by the Merion Cricket Club's offer.

The Augusta layout was built under Jones' supervision and to his specifications, but Bod did not press the tournament bid personally, nor so far as it is known did he make any promise that, if awarded to the Georgia course, he would participate in the open, next year or the year afterward.

Still the pressure would be difficult for Jones to resist, if the big championship went south for a change. He may have no regrets, but, like a good fire-horse, he must feel the urge to get going when they ring the bell for a tournament such as Chicago's North Shore entertained this year.

Portland In Line

Portland, Oregon, may be the scene of a national championship possibly the amateur tourney, within the next year or two. This conspicuous golfing center of the west coast, producer of a steady line of champions, like Doctor Oscar Willing, the Moes and the Dolps, is anxious to play the host. There is every reason to believe a bid may be favorably considered for 1934 or 1935.

All but the National Open tournament have been held on the Pacific coast in the last few years. The amateur went beyond the Rockies for the first time when it was held at Pebble Beach in 1929.

EXPANSION PROGRAM VOTED FOR COLLEGE

Banner Elk, June 13.—(AP)—Plans for a $1,500,000 expansion program voted by the Edgar Tufts Memorial Association, trustees for Lees-McRae College, Grace Hospital and Grandfather Orphans Home here—were in shape today, and Edgar Tufts, president of the association, said a drive for the money is to start immediately.

The trustees voted the program at their annual meeting here last week, resolving "that after reviewing the achievements of the past of the institution and its needs for the future, a program of expansion is adopted."

Plans call for raising $1,000,000 for an endowment and $500,000 for additional buildings and equipment for the institution.

MILLION DOLLAR RAIN VISITS KINSTON AREA

Kinston, June 13.—One of those million-dollar rains to save the tobacco crop from severe damage. Another 84 hours of hot dry weather that had prevailed for weeks would have resulted in disaster.

Showers that soaked the ground to a normal depth came at day-break. Theskiens remained overcast which added to farmers pleasure. Hot sunshine following the rain would have wilted the plants.

Tobaccoists here said the precipitation was literally worth a million dollars. The crop is promising.

A moderate temperature came with the rain. The mercury had soared to 98 an 89 degrees day after day during the past fortnight.

New York Cotton

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady four to nine points decline under lower Liverpool cables and liquidation. Active months later sold 9 to 13 points net lower.

At the end of the first half hour July was ruling around 9.26 and October 9.66.

After early offerings had been absorbed by covering and trade buying prices firmed and demands became more active following rallies in wheat and the stock market.

July contracts sold from 9.27 to 9.39 and December from 9.65 to 9.79 with the market at midday about unchanged to three higher.

The market eased later in the day under increased commission house liquidation.

Oil Monopoly Plan In France Hits Americans

Paris.—(AP)—A state oil monopoly which would drive American and other foreign companies from the French market is being studied by a committee of the Chamber of Deputies, to which it was referred after a stiff debate culminating in a vote of confidence in the Daladier government.

The monopoly, proposed by the Socialist party, would place all importation and refining of oil and distribution of gasoline in the hands of the government.

Until 1931 a half dozen American companies furnished France with more than half of all the petroleum products she imported. This business amounted to about $62,680,000 in 1930—a large slice of the total American trade with France.

Since then France has been buying greater quantities from Russia and Rumania and America's share diminished from 53 per cent in 1930 to 36 per cent in 1932.

Oil is not produced in France and since the war successive governments have sought to free the country from complete dependence on foreign sources.

Foreign companies do business under licenses granted in 1923 for 20-year periods. On the basis of these long term permits, costly establishments have been built.
