Disarmament Conference Adjourns At Geneva To Meet Again In October

WORK HALTED OVER PROTEST OF GERMANY

FUNNY MAN OF SCREEN DIES IN NEW YORK

Hitler Representative Declares Adjournment Means First Class Funeral For Disarmament; United States Pledges Help in Private Negotiations Looking to Arms Reduction

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle Succumbs to Heart Attack During Celebration

Geneva, June 29—(AP)—The world disarmament conference was adjourned until October 10th today despite protest of Rudolph Nadolny, chancellor Hitler's representative that the long recess amounted to a first class funeral for disarmament.

New York, June 29—(AP)—Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, bulky comedian of the films, died early today of a heart attack that followed a celebration of the first anniversary of his third wedding. He was 45 years of age.

Hugh Wilson for the United States pledged help of the American delegation in private negotiations.

The actor who had been attempting a comeback from the plight that fell on his career as the result of the mysterious death of an actress during a gay party in 1921, died in his sleep in his suite in a midtown hotel.

INTEREST IN REVIVAL HERE

Evangelist Tyson last evening in his introduction stated that almost everywhere one goes he is confronted with the words "for sale". He maintained that every soul is for sale in the fullest sense of the word. As soon as persons reach the age of accountability, they enter the market place where bids are placed for the possession of their souls. Mr. Tyson asserted that there are to be found in this market place two bidders—Christ and Satan. Both are very interested in gaining the souls of the men for their own. Even Christ stood one day, while in the wilderness, and listened to Satan's bid for His soul.

His third wife, the former Addie McPhail, screen actress, discovered his death. After summoning the house physician, she became hysterical from grief. Physician said Arbuckle died of angina pectoris.

After the party, Arbuckle retired apparently in fairly good health. A few moments later, however, his wife called to him, and receiving no answer, discovered he was dead.

Large Crowds Continue to Hear Evangelist Tyson at F. W. B. Church

Satan bids physical satisfaction offers gratification for every passion and appetite. He agrees that all physical desires are to be satisfied. These words only prove to be false in the long run. Christ's bid for Eternal joy grants that sort of joy that no one else can give.

JURISTS SPEAK AT BAR MEET

Prominent jurists and members of the bar attended the annual meeting of the Pitt County Bar Association at the Woman's club here Tuesday night.

The session was presided over by Hon. F. C. Harding and a delightful supper was served by ladies of the club.

The distinguished visitors were Supreme Court Judge Connor, Superior Court Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, of Snow Hill and Kemp Battala, prominent Rocky Mount attorney.

Each delivered brief addresses, Mr. Battala outlining the bar incorporation act as passed by the last session of the General Assembly.

Judge Connor commented on the legislation and expressed his disapproval of it.

Judge Frizzelle, resident judge of this district, expressed his appreciation of the work of the bar and his visit to Greenville, praised the high character and ability of the membership of the Pitt County Bar and stated that after holding court in a great many counties over the state and meeting and observing the lawyers at the various bars that he was convinced that the Pitt County Bar contained some of the ablest legal talent to be found in North Carolina.

Miss Lucy James, granddaughter of the late Col. F. G. James, former president of the bar, delightfully rendered two solo numbers.

It was the first meeting of the bar in several years and credit was accorded Dink James for his work in preparing the program and making arrangements for the gathering.

Dutch Destroy Vegetables

Amsterdam—(AP)—More than 20,000 tons of 1932 vegetables remained unsold, according to statistics of the province of North Holland. Of this 18,300 tons were turned into cattle fodder and when that market became clogged 120 car loads of cauliflower, spinach and red cabbage had to be destroyed.

KUHN, LOEB WITNESS AT SENATE BANK INQUIRY

The Senate banking committee resumed its investigation of private banks with an inquiry into the affairs of Kuhn, Loeb and Company of New York, calling Otto H. Kahn, senior partner in the firm, the first witness. Kahn (center) is answering questions put by Senator Alben Barkley (left). SELECTIONS FOR REVENUE POST NAMED

Senator Reynolds Names His Choice For Internal Revenue Jobs in N. C.

Asheville, June 29—(AP)—Senator Robert R. Reynolds announced here today that he would make direct appeal for North Carolina voters to support the repeal amendment at Wilmington before the Young Democratic clubs and at the same time listed his ideal selections for internal revenue department positions in the state.

Reynolds said he would discuss the benefits of prohibition at the annual meeting of Young Democrats on July 8 at Wrightsville Beach near Wilmington and will urge voters of the state to vote for repeal in the November 7 election.

Regarding the selection of the internal revenue workers, the Senator explained he had appointed eight and that Senator J. W. Bailey would name eight.

Reynolds' choices are: J. Barber Towler, of Raleigh, as chief of the income tax division at Raleigh; Raymond Barnhardt of Lexington, as field deputy in the income tax division.

Field deputies are: S. E. Varner, of Whitakers; Joe Mallett, of Tarboro; Arthur J. Williams of Washington; Nate Parker, of Elizabeth City and Raymond Christian of Wilmington.

Reynolds said Charlie Rice of Charlotte would be chief of deputy marshalls for the western district.

LIGHT DOCKET IN COURT HERE

Minor Actions Disposed of in Regular Session of County Court Tuesday

Another light docket faced Judge Dink James in the regular weekly session of county court here Tuesday. About eight cases of minor importance were disposed of during the session as against five the previous week.

The majority of actions consisted mainly of larceny, violation of the prohibition law.

Late News Flashes

Kahan Tells of "Wash" Stock Sale
June 29—(AP)—Senate probes were told today that the government granted Otto Kahan an income tax deduction in 1930 on stock sales without knowledge that it was sold to his daughter.

Kahan said he paid foreign income tax in 1930 when he paid none here. Earlier the senior partner of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, New York Banking house said securities he sold in 1930 for a $117,000.00 were acquired from his daughter three months later but the exchange was dated the following day.

Kahan agreed to a statement by Ferdinand Pecora, senate counsel, that the field agent of the internal revenue department held the transaction was a "wash" sale without knowing it was to his daughter.

Earlier the senior partner of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, New York Banking house said securities he sold in 1930 for a $117,000.00 were acquired from his daughter three months later but the exchange was dated the following day.

DEATH CLAIMS ROBT. GREENE EARLY TODAY

Gold Bloc Threatens To Walk Out Of Conference If Issue Is Not Settled

W. L. Whichard Victim Of Accidental Gun Discharge

FUNERAL HELD HERE YESTERDAY

Tragedy stalked through this community again this week and claimed the life of one of its most popular young citizens.

Walter Linden (Crick) Whichard, 32, met death Tuesday afternoon shortly before 7 o'clock by the accidental discharge of an automatic shotgun in the hands of Mack Henderson, well known young business man, at Henderson's home in the western section of the city.

A coroner's jury viewed the body shortly after the accident and absolved Henderson of all blame. Shortly after this verdict, however, Solicitor D. M. Clark swore out a warrant for Henderson on the grounds of involuntary manslaughter. His bond was placed at $1,000.

The case will receive consideration by the grand jury at the August term of Superior court.

Young Whichard had stopped at Henderson's home for a brief visit when the tragedy occurred. Three other friends of Henderson and Whichard were in the house. During the course of a friendly and joking conversation, Henderson said to have taken his gun from a corner of the room and playfully remarked he was going to shoot "Crick". He threw back the magazine to be sure it was not loaded, and while the gun was pointed in the direction of Whichard, at close range, pulled the trigger. To the dismay of all the gun fired the entire load of birdshot struck his friend in the left side, just above the heart, producing almost instant death.

The tragedy was received with pronounced shock throughout the community and hundreds of friends of the bereaved family either went to their homes in person or dispatched messages of condolence.

Funeral services were conducted from Memorial Baptist Church, of which the deceased was a member, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock by Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, pastor, assisted by Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The final rites were largely attended and the church was packed to overflowing. The floral tribute was beautiful and expressed in a mute way the sorrow of hundreds of friends. A quartet composed of Mrs. W. Z. Morton, Mrs. E. V. Carter, W. T. Lipscomb and Spruill Spain, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. J. L. Fleming, sang "Abide With Me." "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," and "Sometime We'll Understand" during the service.

Mr. Lillycrop read passages of comfort from the Scriptures and Mr. Fleischmann spoke briefly of the hope of immortality held out to those who follow in the footsteps of Christ, and of the solace and comfort for those who believe in His teachings.

Interment was made in Cherry Hill cemetery. The quartet rendered two numbers during the service which was followed by reading of the Scriptures and words of commitment.

The active pall bearers were: John Flanagan, Tom Smoot, Gus Critcher, Will James, James Little, W. W. Lee, Robert Little and O. L. Joyner. There were no honorary pall bearers.

Young Whichard was one of the city's most popular young business men, having been connected with his brother in the operation of The Daily Reflector, publication founded by his late father, D. J. Whichard, fifty years ago. The paper suspended publication yesterday on account of his death.

He was the son of Mrs. Hennie S. Whichard and the late David S. Whichard and the late David S. Whichard.

GROUPS HOLD DISCUSSIONS ON QUESTION

American Delegates Deny That They Intend to Send Representative to Private Session to Discuss Problems; McDonald Meets With Gold Bloc Nations; Fireworks Reported at Session

London, June 29—(AP)—British delegates were authoritatively stated this afternoon to have prepared a compromise plan which they hope would overcome the monetary crisis and obviate the possibility of gold bloc countries withdrawing from the conference.

The compromise plan was reported after and ultimately had handed Prime Minister MacDonald of England in which the gold bloc countries threatened to walk out of the conference.

This plan was scheduled for discussion in a meeting this evening between representatives of the gold standard countries and Great Britain.

In gold bloc quarters it was said a representative of the American delegation also was expected to be there but United States headquarters said it had heard nothing about American attending.

Routine conference work was thrown overboard while the private bid.

The Americans held a long session at the hotel quarters.

In addition to the delegates those present included Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, Oliver M. Sprague, United States treasury assistant, and James P. Warburg one of the experts with the delegation.

In the meantime, Mr. MacDonald and gold bloc representatives were holding a session which produced fireworks.

FOUR ROBBERS GIVEN HEARING

Members of Alleged Band of Thieves Remanded to Jail After Trial Here

Four members of an alleged band of robbers were given preliminary hearing here yesterday and bound over to the next session of Superior court under bond of $2,000 each. They were unable to provide bond and were remanded to jail.

They were: Jimmie Hill, Dewey Williams, Martin Bryant and "Railroad" Ray.

They were charged with entering the Duncan-Blair wholesale house here about two months ago and taking cigarettes valued at $300, in addition to robberies in other sections of the state. Part of the stolen property was recovered.

UNION SERVICE BEGINS SUNDAY

Rev. W. A. Ryan to Deliver First Sermon On Courthouse Lawn Here

The first of a series of open air union services to be conducted by various churches of the city during the summer months will be held on the courthouse lawn next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock it was stated today by members of the committee on arrangements.

The speaker of the evening will be Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian church. Ministers representing other denominations will speak the following Sunday evening.

The services are sponsored by the Ministerial Association each summer in an effort to bring various church members into closer touch in their work of spreading the gospel and to attract others who do not attend regular services.

Good crowds were in attendance last year and 1932 was expressed that attendance this year would be as large if not larger.

In addition to the sermons, a special choir will render selections at each service together with splendid congregational singing.

MANY COMPLAINTS AS TO VALUATIONS

Scotland Neck, June 29—Approximately 75 complaints were made to the board of county commissioners which met in Halifax a few days ago in regard to the valuation of property. Such complaints are more numerous this year than in any recent year and every effort will be made by County Auditor C. S. Vinson with some of the commissioners and another disinterested person to adjust valuations fairly.

SEEK TO CUT BOOK PRICES

Representatives of Southern States Talk School Books at Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, June 29—(AP)—A move to lower the price of school books even if it takes a combination to prepare and print their own was announced as the objective of a conference of representatives of nine southern states assembling here today.

South Carolina delegates advanced a three point program for development of southern authors and uniform text books throughout the south and the feasibility of establishing their own printing plant or one, jointly owned by the several states which would sell text books at cost.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES The F. Clark Co., Inc., New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City.

There was a time when our people thought little or nothing of pennies but beginning Saturday they will be a most important item with most of us when we begin to pay a sales tax on everything we have to buy.

Tomorrow is the time for the committee of the United States Tobacco Association to decide on the opening date for the various markets and it is to be hoped that the request for an earlier opening of the bright leaf belt in Eastern North Carolina will be granted. The markets in this section are asking that they be permitted to open not later than two weeks after the opening of the border markets and there is good foundation for such a request. The crop in this section is much earlier than usual and the late opening here no doubt would cause many farmers to go to the extra expense of selling a portion of their crop on the border markets in order to realize some cash for their crop earlier. The farmers need some of their money as soon as they can get it and the earlier opening of the markets in this section would help them and every other kind of business. It is to be hoped that the committee will decide favorably on the earlier opening.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENTAL BOND BALLYHOO (News and Observer)

One of the principal promises of President Roosevelt in his inaugural address was that so long as he is President no department nor official of the government will put the government's prestige and approval behind securities sold by bankers and others to the American people. The importance of that promise was demonstrated yesterday before the Senate Banking Committee when it was developed that under the Coolidge administration the Department of Commerce, then headed by Herbert Hoover, gave its unqualified endorsement of the Chase National Bank before the issue of that institution's bonds upon which American investors have lost $74,000,000.

Mr. Hoover's Department of Commerce declared that the bank which is now in default, conducted its affairs with uniform safety and success. Upon the basis of that report, which it used in its prospectus without crediting it to the Department of Commerce, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. associates sold their first issue of the bonds at an immediate profit of $926,000. Other profits were made on later issues which amounted to a total investment by bond buyers of $90,000,000. The bonds are selling today at $13 to $14 per $100, and these investors have lost $74,000,000.

Under President Roosevelt the government will not give its endorsement to such securities sold by great banking houses, but legislation has already been secured requiring the strictest scrutiny of all securities issued, and placing upon those issuing them the most acceptable responsibility.

By the World FORGOT

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: Georgie Bancroft bears her mother and step-father will arrive in a few days from New York. She goes into the garden to escape her uncle's tirade on her mother, and Nicholas Boyd passes by. They talk. Boyd is leaving next day for Germany and an operation that may remove the scar from his face, and restore him to his career as a movie star. Georgie wishes him luck, although a successful operation will remove him from her life forever. Boyd's estranged wife also is coming to England, he tells Georgie.

Chapter 27

THE KISS

"Would you like me to come and see you off?" Georgie asked.

Nicholas laughed a little. "I can think of nothing that I should like less," and then feeling her hurt silence, he added: "And that is a compliment, if you know how to take it." He took off his hat once again and looked up at the moon. "Say good-bye to me, Robin, and run home."

"I don't want to say good-bye to you."

"Say good-night then."

She stood with down bent head, twisting her fingers together like a child.

"Shan't I ever see you again?"

"I don't know."

Georgie was silent for a moment then she said haltingly:

"If you ever want to see me, I'll try to come no matter where you are."

"Thank you dear."

"Even if it's Germany."

He smiled. "Or somewhere so far away that you couldn't possibly get there?" he asked with faint mockery.

"There isn't such a place," Georgie said confidently, then suddenly she laughed. "Uncle Edwards always says that where there's a will there's a way, but he says that's trouble with a will. Well, I've got lots of damned will. And then as he did not speak, she added: 'I hope you're not shocked because I said 'damn'.'"

Nicholas Boyd moved suddenly, putting out a hand and drawing her to him, so that now the moonlight fell full on her face.

"You look like an elf," he said. "Something I'm just imagining—something that's slipped off a branch. I should like to kiss you, but—" then abruptly he let her go. "Run home, Robin; you must be tired."

Georgie did not move.

"I should like you to kiss me," she said, and after a moment and then as he shook his head—

"Please!"

"No, Robin."

She drew a quick breath.

"Well then, I'll kiss you—"

He bent his head as he might have done to receive a kiss from a child, turning his injured side to his face to her. But Georgie said:

"No, the other side—and before he could prevent her, her soft lips had touched the ugly twisted scar in a tender curve."

Nicholas Boyd said hoarsely:

"I caught her by the shoulders, but she broke away and the next moment she was running away from him down the moonlit road."

During the next fortnight so many things happened to Georgie that life seemed like a perplexing kaleidoscope with its around her and showing her different pictures with every movement.

In the first place her mother, as soon as she arrived in London went to Edward Bancroft, jeeringly deprecating it "all maternal."

She arrived at the Flollies in a hired limousine and informed her brother-in-law that she was going to take her child away.

"The kiss like an elf—"

Georgie mentioned her in the doorway after she had run breathlessly up the garden path very excited by the sight of the car at the gate. "And she's talking like a fool—she wants to take you to London to say with her."

Evelyn looked beautiful, the girl thought, and she smiled like the best department in a large store as she bent and graciously dropped a light kiss on Georgie's brown cheek.

"You're coming to London with me," she said. "If I had known that this was the sort of place you've been living in, I should have taken you away years ago."

"You did know," Georgie said.

Evelyn went on disregarding the truthful statement.

"As for Edward—he looks like a man who hangs round public houses."

Georgie smiled. "He does," she said.

Her mother shivered.

"Well, how long will it take you to pack your things?" she asked.

Georgie considered. "About five minutes I should think. I haven't got very much to pack."

Evelyn eyed her disparagingly.

"Is that your best 'rock'?"

"Second best," Georgie said.

"Well, I suppose it will do to travel in. Nobody will see you in the car. How ever you managed to live here all this time passes my comprehension."

"It was Hobson's choice," Georgie said resentfully.

She went upstairs slowly, with a regretful look at the closed study door.

Would Edward miss her? she supposed not even while she rather hoped that he would; perhaps he would be relieved by her absence.

She pulled open all the drawers in the one small chest her bedroom a kiss to his shoulders and averted head before the train rounded the bend and disappeared.

Since then the world had seemed curiously empty, as if someone had dug a big hole in it which nothing could ever fill. The days had seemed long, and the nights endless, and only that morning returning from a forlorn walk. Georgie had decided to write to Clifford Asher and ask him to take her out to another lunch. In her mind she had even composed the letter, but when she turned the corner and saw the big Dalmer at her uncle's gate, everything else had been wiped from her memory.

And now she was going to London to live in an expensive hotel and have extravagant lunches every day of her life; she wondered why she was not more thrilled at the prospect.

She put on her hat and coat, patting the hat—it always made her head ache—and dragged the suitcase after her down the stairs, bumping it at every step.

Evelyn came out into the hall to meet her.

"My dear child, couldn't the servants have brought that down for you?" she asked.

"We haven't got any," Georgie said bluntly. "Only Mrs. Drill, and she's not so strong as I am."

"Are you ready?" asked her mother.

"Yes, don't you want to say good-bye to Uncle Edward?"

Evelyn shivered.

"I think you can say all the farewells that are necessary," she murmured.

Georgie went to the study. Edward Bancroft was sitting by the fire in spite of the warm day, with his usual tumbler of whiskey.

Chapter 28 BISHOP'S WARNING

Outside the gate Georgie could hear the soft hum of the car that was waiting to take her away, and moved by an impulse she could not control she said eagerly:

"I won't go if you'd like me to stay."

Edward Bancroft did not turn his head, but his bowed shoulders jerked.

"Oh get out," he said irritably.

Georgie walked to the door turning again as she reached it. "If you want me I'll come, any time," she said, and remember that a few days ago she had spoken almost the same words to Boyd. And yet it was so unlikely that either of these men would want her, or send for her; it seemed such a pity, when she was so fond of them both.

She waited another moment. Then Edward Bancroft spoke. "Shut the door, there's a draught," he said.

And so Georgie went to London.

The car was marvelous, with soft cushions and a telephone through which you could speak to the chauffeur if the dividing window was closed. The chauffeur was young and good-looking and Georgie thought the back of his head was a little like Nicholas Boyd's. She looked at it a great deal with a queer ache at her heart.

As they passed the Bear's Head, Mrs. Spears was just coming out, resplendent in a scarlet hat.

Georgie leaned out of the window and waved to her frantically. "Good-bye," she cried at the top of her voice.

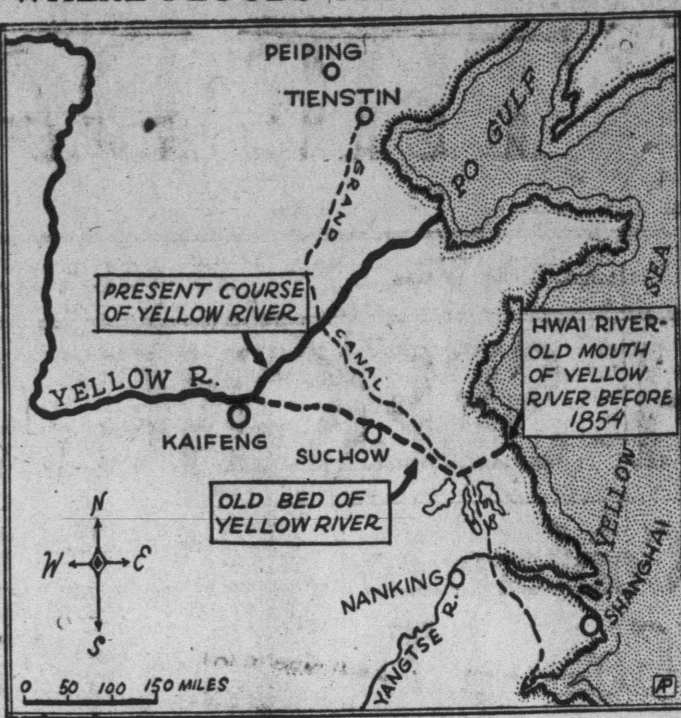

Mrs. Spears stared blankly for a moment, then recognizing the girl she waved back.

"That was Mrs. Spears," she told her mother, with as much pride as if she had said "That was the Queen."

"And who is Mrs. Spears?" Evelyn asked in a martyred voice.

"She keeps the Bear's Head," Georgie said. "She's a great friend

WHERE FLOODS THREATEN CHINA

While the Yangtze river threatens serious floods within its vast valley the danger of a still greater flood menace north China where it is reported the Yellow river is on the verge of leaving its present course and returning to its old channel to the south. Should such an eventuality occur it would mean a disaster of the greatest magnitude for the old Yellow river valley is now inhabited by tens of millions of persons and encompasses thousands of square miles.

of mine. All the men like her too. Didn't you think her hat was smart?"

Evelyn shivered, and Georgie gave another glance at the back of the chauffeur's head and sighed.

"They drove for some little way in silence, then Georgie said politely:

"I hope Bishop is better."

"I don't believe there is anything the matter with him," Evelyn said indifferently. "He looks well enough and he eats well. However he insists on going to Germany."

Georgie's eyes gleamed.

"And shall we go too?" she asked eagerly.

Germany only meant one thing to her.

"Certainly not," Evelyn answered. "I have told him he must go alone."

"Oh," Georgie said.

Another mile was covered in complete silence, then remembering her manners Georgie asked politely:

"Did you have a nice voyage?"

"Not too bad," Evelyn said more graciously. "There were some interesting people on board."

"Any film stars?" Georgie asked.

Evelyn frowned.

"I object to the word 'stars' being applied to film people," she said. "They are really no better than circus riders. They all caper and grimace for the amusement of the public."

"I love them," Georgie said fervently. "If I had the money I would buy a season ticket for all the movies."

Evelyn produced a small and very expensive looking cigarette case from her handbag, and Georgie plucked an eager hand into her own coat pocket.

"Have one of mine," she said proudly exhibiting the case which she had given her on the way back from America.

"Where did you get that case?" she asked disapprovingly.

"It was given to me," Georgie said in a small voice; she slipped it back into her pocket.

"Talking of people who make about what he said."

BOWEN'S

Reach for a Lucky

-for always Luckies Please!

To my brothers... I owe the pleasure of smoking Luckies

When I first had a desire to smoke, I knew exactly where to start. You see, for years I had heard all the men in the family saying "Luckies Please". They said it was "Toasting" that made Luckies so good. I've never questioned the reason—because I have always found Luckies so fragrant, so mild—and (perhaps a man will smile at this) so pure to my lips! I can smoke lots and lots of them and still find them refreshing to the taste. Now I'm telling my brothers "Luckies Please", and each of them says, "You're telling me?"

SUMMER WORK FOR CHILDREN AT LIBRARY
The book committee of Sheppard Memorial Library could buy only a few new books for children, not enough for regular summer reading clubs, but the library staff is finding other ways of holding the children's interest in the library, and providing something worthwhile during the long vacation period. Each Thursday morning from 9:30 to 10:30, a group of interested children may be found in the children's room. The first part of the hour is taken up with some amusing bit of work such as making booklets of pictures clipped from discarded magazines. The amusement for the meetings is varied. At one hour Mrs. E. T. Robeson told bear stories and displayed pictures of bears. One morning William Miller Brooks gave a program of violin music. Miss Mary Robeson accompanied him on the piano. The perfect order and attention during the time showed that the children enjoyed the music.

Last week the children were told to bring pictures of dogs to use as tickets if they wished to take part in the library hour. Each child had a dog picture, some brought whole dog families. Belle and Cora Reddit were the first children to reach the library that morning so they were asked to take up the tickets at the door. Miss Catherine Gross gave a program of dog stories.

Next week each child will bring a doll with her. The dolls names will be placed on the roll and the whole hour will be a kind of doll party. If boys come who do not care to bring dolls special plans will be made for them. All the regular members will be back and others are invited to come.

William Vincent and Theone James were visitors this morning.

Birthday Luncheon.
Miss Alice Hicks Smith entertained at a bridge luncheon yesterday honoring her seventeenth birthday. Place cards were set for four tables and the guests were received at eleven o'clock into the beautifully decorated living room. Daisies and ferns carried out the yellow and green color scheme very effectively. Lemonade and peanuts were enjoyed throughout the game.

At one-thirty a delicious two-course luncheon was served consisting of barbecue and an ice cream. Again the yellow and green color scheme was used to a very pleasing effect. A basket of mints bearing the date was given as a favor on the dessert plates.

Those enjoying bridge were as follows: Misses Martha Scoville, Naomi Oakins, Verona Lee Joyner, of Farmville, Laurine Skinner, Mildred Herring, Caroline Hamric, Mary Shaw Robeson, Gladys Gaston, Mattie Moye Gaylord, Isabelle Whitehurst, Virginia Pierce, Imogene Ricks, Ada Hearne, Julia Foley Louise Curran, Mary Thomas Smith and Laura Smith Fleming.

Beautiful linen handkerchiefs and novelty bracelets were awarded for high and low scores, respectively. Miss Verona Lee Joyner, our-oftown guest, was awarded bracelets for guest prize.

The hostess received many beautiful gifts.

Reedy Branch News
Sunday the crowd at Sunday school was some larger and we hope to very soon reach 100. We can't be working. The boys and girls senior classes had the pleasure of having as its teacher one of Greenville's lawyers, Mr. Richard Bundy. He explained the work for the last quarter in a very interesting way, beginning with the life of Mark as one of the disciples being sent forth to teach all nations, also that while supporting the missionary work.

which we should all carefully consider, should by no means forget the home work. And in his last remarks that only one professing to be living right, should live it every day not to just be a christian Sunday. That causes people to have no confidence in us. We greatly enjoyed his talk, leaving with us many worthy thoughts. We will be very glad for him to visit us again. He also spoke to the entire Sunday school which was very much enjoyed.

The boys and girls are getting busy, putting down to their credit several points, and we hope to increase our attendance from time to time, some of our girls were away teaching having returned. Among them were Alma Lee Braxton and Juanita Worthington. We are glad to welcome them back again.

The class had an interesting meeting just after the Sunday school hour. The two classes decided to consolidate throughout the contest, using the church room for a study room. The classrooms are becoming crowded. This will enable us to take care of the new ones in the future. We want to thank the many parents and all who are helping to enlarge our Sunday school work. Our speaker for next Sunday will be Mrs. Spilman of Greenville. Now be sure to come and hear what she has to say.

Mr. Harold Norman of Norfolk, Va., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Frank Little.

Miss Emmie Moore of Clinton, N. C., is spending part of the summer with her sister, Mrs. Edith Tripp.

Mr. Charlie Davenport and family, also his sister, Miss Mae Davenport, spent the week-end in Petersburg, Va.

Mr. Frank Little was among the number of Red Men in Winterville who attended the state meeting in Winterville. He reported a very pleasant trip.

Mr. Yates James attended a ball game in Oak City Saturday.

Miss Stella Vincent was among the sick list last week. Also Mrs. D. C. Davenport. Both are much better.

Nannie Lou Little spent part of last week with her little cousin, Dorothy Little of near Ayden.

Mrs. Sally Avery has returned from Pitt Community Hospital and is feeling much improved.

Little Grace Tripp is spending some time with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Tripp.

Miss Hazel Hardy, who has been teaching at Richlands, is visiting her brother, Mr. A. H. Hardy.

Miss Beulah Kittrell of near Ayden, visited Miss Louise Little a few days last week.

Farmers are getting busy through our community curing tobacco again.

Mr. William Worthington visited Charlie Hagan Little and Ward James Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank James went to Winterville Monday night to attend the party at Mrs. R. L. Abbott's, given in honor of Mrs. Woodrow Worthington, formerly Miss Inez Rollins, a recent bride. A number of her friends presented her many useful gifts.

Run down in Health Means Run down in Blood!
Blood is life. Blood is everything. When blood gets thin or poor you feel it in a dozen different ways. Appetite fails, strength ebbs and you become weak and depressed.

To build up your blood, take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It contains iron which makes for rich, red blood. It also contains tasteless quinine which tends to purify the blood. Thus you get two effects of great value in any run down condition. Taken regularly for a few days, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic will soon have you back on your feet. It will improve your appetite, increase your strength and vitality and put color in your cheeks. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been a source of strength and energy for young and old. It is pleasant to take and contains nothing harmful. IN MEMORY OF HAZEL RUTH MILLS
On Wednesday morning, April 12, 1933, God in His infinite wisdom sent the death angel unto the home of Brother Jesse Mills and gently took the spirit of their only-darling child, little Hazel Ruth, into the great beyond. She was only confined to her bed about 24 hours. She fell into a tub of hot soap. All was done for her that a loving father and mother, friends and relatives and physicians could do. She was born Feb. 20, 1929, making her stay on earth 4 years and 2 months. She was so bright and her little smiles were so sweet to know her was to love her. It was so hard to have to part from her. We loved her, but God loved her best and had a better place for her. The home is so sad and lonely without her presence.

She leaves to mourn the loss, a broken-hearted father and mother and a host of relatives and friends. Her funeral was conducted at her home by her pastor, Rev. J. W. Norris, in the presence of a large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends.

She was laid to rest in the family burying ground beneath a large mound of flowers to await the resurrection morning when the dead in Christ shall rise first. We weep not, as those without hope for we feel sure that little Hazel is safely in the arms of Jesus.

We are pressing hard to meet you, Sleep on, take your rest. We miss you most who loved you. But God had a better place. But in our hearts your memory still lingers.

While with the angels you are singing. The flowers that we placed upon her grave may wither and decay. But the love for you, dear Hazel Ruth, shall never fade away. (By Her Aunt, Mrs. N. A. Clark)

SNOW HILL WINS FROM LOCALS 8-5

Greenville and Ayden today were tied for first place in the standing clubs column of the Coastal Plain League as result of Snow Hill's victory over Greenville at Snow Hill yesterday. The score was 8-5.

The game between Kinston and Ayden was postponed on account of rain, hence Ayden was not given an opportunity to try to increase her chances of capturing the top again.

Greenville went to Snow Hill intent on getting revenge for the licking administered by the Snow Hill lads last Saturday, but the bats of the Shirley crowd were too active and refused to be silenced with runners on the paths.

Murley Shirley, former big leaguer, played a prominent part in the victory of his teammates. Out of five trips to the plate he obtained three hits, two of which counted for three runs. His lengthy drives were responsible for three of the Snow Hill tallies.

The barrage drove Bob Forbes, Greenville hurler, to the showers in the third inning when he was relieved by Dean. While Dean checked the rally for a time, Snow Hill put two runners over the rubber in the fourth and eighth innings and two in the seventh.

Brown and Poole led with the bat for Greenville, getting two safeties each.

Greenville will appear at Ayden tomorrow and with the two clubs running neck and neck, fans can rest assured of seeing a battle well worth their money.

The box score follows:

Greenville	Ab	R	H	O	A	E

tuted a real ball game. They could point out that most of the crises are reached in the seventh, eight or ninth innings and the records probably would bear them out. Those are the innings when a pitcher is most likely to crack.

Would Pep Up Game

This season has produced many examples of extraordinary comebacks in games apparently lost beyond control. The Yankees pulled out one game with a 12-run rally while trailing the White Sox 11 to 3, in the eighth. The champions yielded 11 runs to the Athletics in another, but came back with 10 in one frame themselves and won the battle 17 to 11. The Pirates beat the Cards recently by tallying 10 markers in the ninth.

But, on the average, two abbreviated or six-inning games certainly would furnish more excitement and add more life to the sport than the ordinary nine-inning affair.

'Nothing Like It' Says Sabath Of Recent Congress

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington — The titular leader of the house—Speaker Rainey, Floor Leader Byrns et al—have issued no statements as to what they think of the way their democratic brethren acted during the special session of congress just concluded.

Aside from a few unpleasant moments, their leadership has had pretty smooth sailing, notwithstanding the fact that the lash was applied with force at times.

To a man who has served 14 consecutive terms in the house; whose service dates back to March 4, 1907, the manner in which the house conducted itself during the three most crucial months perhaps in the history of the country, appears astounding.

Adolph Sabath of the fifth Illinois district has had opportunity to make comparisons.

An Inside View

Sabath says that he has never seen anything to compare with the performance of the house during the special session. To use his own words:

"When it is considered that approximately one-third of the house is composed of new members, many of them quite young men, with set views and a determination to force through legislation that they have advocated it is remarkable how many of them submerged their honest convictions and aspirations and joined hands and manfully aided in enacting speedily the important legislation of this special session."

But while paeans of joy are being sung at the present and congratulations are being handed around freely the very interesting question of what's going to happen in January when the regular session of the seventy-third congress is convened comes to the fore.

The Driving Force

One must not lose sight of the fact that the peace and harmony which prevailed in the house during the special session rested on an extraordinary foundation.

Chickens may be coming home to roost in January.

Then, too, by the time January rolls around Postmaster General Farley will have passed a lot of pie over his patronage counter—perhaps all that is of any worth.

The stage will be all set for a battle of individualism in the house.

DOUGHBOY'S LAMENT

SILENCED BY MUSSOLINI

Rome—(AP)—The doughboy's chant "you're in the army now, you're not behind the plow," no longer described Mussolini's army.

The war ministry recently reported that 32,000 soldiers took a course in practical farming in 1932 and liked it.

The prospective farmers are given instructions by squads of tutors working under the ministry of agriculture and forestry. In 1932 about 2,000 blackboard drills, 500 film projections and 400 visits to model farms relieved the monotony of practical lessons in muck, grain, fruit, orchard and livestock.

SPORT SLANTS
By ALAN GOULD

With a few conspicuous exceptions, major league baseball has been marking a comeback at the turnstiles so far this season but the same "still needs a tonic" in the opinion of Cleveland's veteran observer, Ed Bang, who out lins his proposal thus in the Cleveland News:

"Do away with the present regulation nine-inning game. Substitute for this a bargain-day attraction each day, a double-header every day of the playing season. Do not increase the present price of admission. Let them remain as they are. Instead of the regular nine-inning game, two six-inning games could be played each afternoon instead of the championship season schedule calling for 154 games. The total could be increased to 308 games.

"This plan of all-day features. First of all, it would attract far keener interest in the game and draw a larger attendance. Second, it would save money by reducing the number of games. The season would scarcely be considered over and there would be no championship game. It would be a relief to have been the case on occasions in the past.

"Games with but number ball scores are decided in the first or second inning when the Yankees or some other team score five or six runs in a few innings of the game. The fans are interested in the proceedings.

"It would not be working a hardship on the players to ask them to participate in 12 innings each day. They are not overworked physically and a half hour to 45 minutes of work should not result in any falling off in their general play."

Nothing New To Cards: It sounds like a radical proposal and no doubt most major league club owners would shrink away from it, at first thought.

Yet the idea already has been developed, to some extent, by the step taken to increase the number of "bargain" double-headers. St. Louis club have been permitted to combine regularly scheduled Monday games in Sunday double bills, as an added attraction as well as an acknowledgment of the fact that fans want all they can get for their money nowadays.

I would take considerable argument to convince the old-timers, especially, that six innings consti-

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You will find Camels rich in flavor and delightfully mild.

A MATCHLESS BLEND
CAMEL
TENNIS CHAMPION

WHEN THE WHOLE GALLERY is tense, excited... have a Camel, for the sake of your nerves... for the added pleasure of smoking Camel's finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos.

Bill Tilden says: "Tournament play in tennis imposes a terrific strain upon the nervous system. Healthy nerves are essential if a player is going to be successful in maintaining his speed, endurance, and the psychology of victory. As a steady smoker, I find that cigarettes vary a lot in their effect upon the nerves. I have tried all the other popular brands, but for years I have smoked Camels. Because of their extraordinary mildness I know that I can smoke Camels as freely as I wish and still have healthy nerves."

Steady smokers turn to Camels because the costlier tobaccos in Camels never tire the taste—never get on the nerves.
Your taste and your nerves will confirm this. Start smoking Camels today and prove it for yourself. It is more fun to know.

Claims of 7 Nations At Stake In the Sale Of Chinese Eastern

Harbin, Manchuria—(AP)—Long-drawn out complicated negotiations are predicted at Chinese Eastern railway headquarters here over the proposed sale of Russian rights in the road to Japan.

U. S. Interests Involved While the principal points involve conflicting claims as between the soviet union on one side and ownership disputed between China and Manchukuo on the other, there are questions involving French, American and English interests also.

The 1,100-mile line running across Manchuria from west to east with a branch from this city south to Changchun, was built by the czarist Russian government in 1903 under an agreement with the Chinese empire providing a system of dual management.

Chinese Enter Protest China has protested the proposed sale at both Moscow and Tokyo arguing that the fact that she is unable to function in Manchuria due to the force majeure which set up the Japanese-protected state of Manchukuo, does not affect her judicial rights to the road.

Manchukuo maintain that its de facto status as successor to China in Manchuria gives her the right to acquire the Russian shares.

France's interest arises from claims that French citizens subscribed the greater part of the capital of the Russo-Asiatic bank which financed the railway in its early stages.

English and American claims involve equipment and improvements. There were, for example $4,000,000 worth of improvements made when John W. Stevens, American engineer, was chairman of the international railroad commission during and immediately after the Kerensky regime in Moscow.

American Locomotives Figure Both Anglo-Saxon elements are interested too in the disposal of 80 locomotives and other rolling stock which Manchukuo claims Russia wrongfully took into soviet territory last year. The locomotives, records indicate, were purchased from American manufacturers by the United States government for the czarist regime in world war days, payment being guaranteed by Great Britain under the terms of a war loan.

Since England has paid part of that loan, lawyers assert she has a claim on the locomotives, subject to the balance due the United States.

Tired-looking man proves to be thug Statesville, June 29—Chester York was held up and robbed last night by a tired-looking, footsore pedestrian whom he picked up on the highway.

Soon after Mr. York gave the hitch-hiker a lift, the man stuck a pistol in Mr. York's ribs and ordered him to drive over cross-country roads for several miles, then ordered him to stop and turn over his money. Mr. York had $49.88 in his pocket and turned over the full amount to the armed stranger whom he had befriended.

After the kindly motorist had been relieved of his cash, the stranger ordered him to "drive like hell and don't look back," and the final order was obeyed cheerfully. Mr. York feeling relieved that his diabolical assailant had left him his life and car.

The hitch-hiker whom Mr. York befriended was about 35 or 40 years of age, and wore a blue shirt and blue serge pants. The robbery was reported immediately to Sheriff Kimball's office but no clues have been secured in the case.

Jordan Whichard. He was born and reared in Greenville and endeared himself to everybody he came into contact with because of his affability, liberality and sunny disposition. Always cheerful and ready to help those in need of aid, he found admirers in virtually every walk of life.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Miss Ruth Andrews; two children, Hennie Ruth and Mary Andrews Whichard; his mother, Mrs. Hennie S. Whichard; two sisters, Miss Hennie Whichard, Mrs. S. L. Bridges, and his brother, D. J. Whichard, Jr.

SPLIT OVER TEXTILE MILL WORK HOURS

Several circumstances. He added: "The textile mills are at nearly full capacity and there is some question as to whether they can find sufficient skilled employees on a full 40 hour week. It ought to be obvious to anybody that an industry's low rate would have a shorter week to absorb its own workmen.

New York Cotton

New York, June 29—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady five high to two lower on steadier Liverpool cables than expected which was offset by liquidation.

The July position, selling at 10.15 eased to 10.07 but rallied to 10.12. After ruling quiet and steady prices dipped late in the morning. July sold off to 9.95 and December to 10.38 to lose 10 to 15 points.

However domestic and foreign trade interests were fair buyers and the market was about steady at midday with prices in the more active positions up 6 to 7 from the low.

Futures closed steady four to 9 lower, spots quiet millfin 10.15. (Courtesy Speight & Co.)

Although the alcoholic shares failed to emulate their spurring action of the past few sessions there was a heavy run on Standard Brands in the first hour or so on the basis of the companies yeast and grain making potentials.

Trading in these issues was in blocks of several thousands shares and it got up around 4 1/2 points at one time before relapsing.

Deere and Company transfers from the curb today also drew a following from an advance of about three points.

Other stocks up to around two included Case, American Can, Warner Brothers, Armour and Commercial Investment Trust.

The rails and oils did little. American Tobacco and Leggett Myers were off a point or more.

London Looks to Washington for Aid London, June 29—(AP)—An eagerly awaited British compromise plan for solution of the stabilization crisis of the world conference was chucked overboard in a meeting this evening with European gold bloc countries, and responsibility for a way out was laid on the Washington door steps.

The British and the representatives of the gold bloc decided to appeal to Washington for assistance in overcoming the stabilization problem.

The British compromise had been offered to meet ultimatum of the gold standard nations leader by France which demanded currency stabilization as the price of their remaining in the conference.

Prior to the meeting between the British and the gold bloc nations there was a conference of British leaders to discuss the compromise plan offered by Ramsay MacDonald the details of which were not published.

The British conference was visited by Raymond Moley American Assistant Secretary of State and James O. Warburg financial advisor to the American delegation. What part, if any, they played was a secret. It was understood that during discussion of the compromise by the French and British the representatives of the London government stated they could not commit themselves to any stabilization arrangement which left America on the outside.

Cotton Confab Hits Snag. Washington, June 29—(AP)—The cotton textile industrial conference today grappled with problems of contract adjustment to meet costs increased by the proposed trade code, leaving behind differences between employers and laborers over wages and working hours.

W. I. Allen, deputy administrator, in announcing the next step in the recovery administration effort for a business betterment program for textiles, said the hearings at the commerce department will not be closed tomorrow. All who want will be heard.
