LONDON CONFERENCE WILL DEAL WITH DEBT ISSUE

Silver To Also Get Attention In Near Future

MANY OTHER PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Steering Committee Decides That Question Not Involving Dissension Will Be Given Consideration; Canadian Minister Says New Agreement Will Make Smooth Progress; Think America Will Halt Fluctuations

London, July 11.—(AP)—The steering committee of the world economic conference today adopted a report providing that the parley will discuss silver and other subjects as the sub-committee agrees can be dealt with without dissension.

James M. Cox of Ohio, was a member of the steering committee which he said before the steering committee met had unanimously agreed on procedure for the future program.

Premier Bennett of Canada, who has vigorously urged the American government to make efforts to keep the dollar at a point said at the end of the meeting "This agreement will make smooth progress. The dollar will be used to include the subjects other than those indicated on which there is a difference will be scrupulously avoided," the Canadian minister said.

This Section To Have Contact Man At Capital

If plans go through as endorsed by a representative gathering of several counties in Windsor Friday afternoon, Eastern Carolina will have a "contact" man at Washington to look out after the interests of the entire east during the next twelve months or more. At this meeting a resolution was passed requesting the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce to begin now making plans for putting such a man in Washington as early as possible. During the next twelve months and more, Eastern Carolinians in every line of business will want to know how to do the things that will conform to the newly passed legislation. Committees will be sent by the various interests. Cities and towns and counties will be seeking aid for various and sundry projects. This "contact" man, Chairman Matthews said, will be the "go between" for these representatives and the department heads. Many organizations in the country have maintained such an office at the National Capital for many years. Just how this will be worked out will be determined at a meeting to be held in Greenville, July 20th when the whole section will come together under the auspices of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce to formulate plans for "going after" Eastern Carolina's share of the funds at Washington. President Guy Elliott of the organization will preside over the meeting at Greenville. Quite a line up of celebrities will very likely appear on the program.

WORKING CODE MOVES SLOWLY

Discouraging Picture Faces Government Industrial Control Program

Washington, July 11.—(AP)—The industrial control program upon which depends the outcome of the administration's whole national recovery project is at a critical stage with such discouraging events in the next few days.

The surface optimistic tone of some of the officials is maintained; industries are doing promising work and several moving to agreements for self-regulation with increased employment and better wages.

Nevertheless, in Washington there is grave concern. The situation today is that only the cotton industry with 400,000 employees has an agreement. This will go into effect Monday and will boost the minimum wages above the average and limit hours of work and production.

No other industry has such a code. Three weeks most certainly must elapse before any additional code can go into effect.

President Roosevelt had hoped to have the whole program well guarded from major industries within sixty days of June 15 when it became law. That prospect now is dim.

LEAF CURING NEARS STRIDE

Tobacco Farmers Busy Getting Crops Ready For Marketing In August

The curing of bright leaf tobacco is beginning to pick up sharply in Pitt county at this time and was expected to hit its stride in a week or so.

The curing process actually got under way during June and will be completed next month when millions of pounds of the golden leaf will be stored away in pack houses ready to deliver when the market swings open here the later part of August.

Although damaged by drought several weeks ago, the crop has exhibited marked improvement under the impetus of recent rains and production will be better than thought while the drought was in progress.

Numbers of crops have suffered severely from hail, and several farms in the Ayden community were reported to have had their tobacco crops almost completely wiped out by large hail storms.

With the prospect of improvement in the price situation based on the upward climb of other farm products, farmers were going about their housing and curing operations in better spirit than in recent years. They were looking forward to realizing a profit from their crop this year instead of sustaining a loss, and if things pan out as expected the flow of money should be much more pronounced than under ordinary conditions.

Tobacco season always rejuvenates business in this immediate section as it causes millions of dollars to be released among various business enterprises in the payment of debts and in the purchase of new goods. It is the season of jingling dollars although in recent years the average grower couldn't keep the dollars in hand long enough to enjoy the tinkle that goes with possession of money.

However, if all works out this year and tobacco reflects advances in proportion to other farm crops, money will be easier with everybody, much of the stringency will be done away with at least temporarily and folks of the farm will again enjoy that sensation of holding dollars that do not belong to somebody else.

SHARP CUT IN SCHOOL BUSES

Children Living Within Two Miles of School Must Walk This Year

Children living within two miles of a public school during the forthcoming session will have to walk instead of riding in one of the hundred buses operated in the county last year, it was made known today by W. S. Stafford, head of the Pitt county school transportation system.

The statement was made following Mr. Stafford's return from Raleigh where yesterday he conferred with C. F. Gaddy, superintendent of the State school transportation system, regarding problems of getting children to and from school next session.

Mr. Gaddy stated emphatically that because of decreased appropriations for transportation as provided by the last General Assembly that children living in a radius of two miles of a school would either have to walk, ride a jack or go in their own automobiles.

The State department, it was said, will restrict truck routes with a view to obtaining economy in operation, and children who used to think walking three or four blocks was a big job might as well limber up their legs and get ready for a real marathon.

The county operated one hundred school trucks last year, Mr. Stafford said, but this year there is every indication that quite a number will not be used. No plans had been made concerning the replacing of worn out trucks with new ones, it was stated, as this is entirely in the hands of the state and must be decided by those authorities before any action is taken.

MAD CAT ATTACKS BOY WHO THEN KILLS FELINE

Goldboro, July 11.—A mad cat jumped at the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lane at their home in Dudley, this county, Saturday and scratched and bit him. The little boy seized some heavy article and succeeded in killing the cat. There were several other children in the room, but according to reports, none of them was bitten.

The head of the cat was sent by health authorities to the State Health Department at Raleigh and on Monday morning a wire was received stating that the cat was affected with rabies. The child will take Pasteur treatment.

Kidnaping Menace Grows In U. S. Nation Looks For Federal Help

Government To Check On Crop Borrowers

WILL SEE IF FARMERS ARE CUTTING CROPS

Action To Be Taken Against Growers Who Borrowed Federal Money And Then Refuse To Curtail Cotton Acreage; E. F. Arnold Advised Today Of Plan To Check Growers

It will be just too bad for farmers who have borrowed government money if they do not co-operate in the federal campaign to take cotton out of cultivation this year, it was made known today in advice received from Washington City.

E. F. Arnold, director of the Pitt County Farm Department, and head of the government cotton control sign-up in this county, today received a telegram from Chas. A. Sheffield, assistant to the state director, conveying advice which he had just received from the capital city. It read:

"Washington advises that cotton growers using crop production and regional credit corporation loans refusing to sign reduction contracts will be checked after the campaign to determine the co-operation being received. It appears wise for all borrowers to cooperate."

Mr. Arnold said that when the government made crop production loans recently it required all borrowers to reduce their money crops, especially cotton. It was said at the time that the government would make a check of those who had received loans to see if they were cooperating with the campaign.

Judging from the message, it is indicated there is a lack of co-operation on the part of borrowers and that the government is determined that they shall live up to the contracts and help make the cotton production control drive a success.

Just what action the government will take in the case of those found guilty of violating the contract is not known, but it seems assured some action is contemplated and that it would be wise for growers who have not cut to get busy and do so while the campaign is in progress.

NEGRO SLAYS S. C. FARMER

Man Shot to Death as Children Look on; Officers Hunt For Slayer

Swansea, S. C., July 11.—(AP)—With three of his children eye-witnesses, G. Craft, 52, prominent grower, was shot and killed at his home near here today by an unidentified negro.

Sheriff Cromer Oswald was notified of the slaying and formed a posse to search for the negro. Officers in nearby towns and cities were notified to keep on the watch for the slayer.

SEEK TO TAKE MORE COTTON OUT OF FIELDS

Pitt County Pushes Ahead In the Government Drive To Cut Acreage

Committee of the federal cotton production control campaign in this county continued to visit farms in all sections of the county today to determine how many planters want to take advantage of the government's offer to pay them for plowing up a portion of this year's crop of the staple.

E. F. Arnold, director of the sign-up drive, accounted yesterday that the committee had been urged to push their work as rapidly as possible in view of the fact that the three-day extension granted by the government Saturday night would expire Wednesday night.

The effort to increase the number of acres to be plowed up was being made in the face of the fact that Pitt county has already reached the minimum in acreage and maximum in bales as required by the government. Pitt farmers have signed up to take 3,600 acres out of cultivation. This is the equivalent of 2,100 bales. The government estimate of 6,100 bales for this county was based on an average yield of 1-3 of a bale to the acre, but since the average here is around a half-bale the total number of bales as required was reached without eliminating so many acres.

However, the campaign will go on and it was hoped the maximum acreage would be much nearer the government total when the end of the drive comes.

The campaign has been one of the most concerted ever held in this county and the quick work done by the committee has been highly commended by agricultural leaders interested in the success of the movement.

FATE OF DRY LAW PENDING

Elections in Alabama And Arkansas to Cast Deciding Ballot Next Week

Washington, July 11.—(AP)—The real tin-tap to the probable fate of prohibition, most all the interested areas, will come a week from today in the Alabama and Arkansas referendum.

So sure is Postmaster General Farley that favorable action on repeal in the southern states would mean it's all over that he is taking the administration into the deep south.

At Memphis on July 15—Saturday—he will plea for the erasure of the eighteenth amendment.

His speech will be transmitted to Alabama and Arkansas which vote July 18, two days before Tennessee. In the next month, Oregon passes on the repeal resolution July 21 and Arizona August 8.

Twelve other states are scheduled to act later this year: Texas, August 26; Washington, August 29; Vermont, September 5; Maine, September 11; Maryland and Minnesota, September 12; Idaho and New Mexico, September 19; North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and South Carolina, November 7.

INVALID IS ABDUCTED IN ALTON, ILL.

Kidnappers Reported Busy In Albany, N. Y., Alton, Ill., Crawfordsville, Ga., and Chicago; Posses Search For Abductors of Georgia Man Dropped At Wake Forest, N. C.

(By The Associated Press) A distraught nation looked today to its government for protection against the lurking menace of kidnapers.

In four different sections yesterday persons had been reported lifted from the midst of their fellows by abductors.

In Albany, New York, police disclosed the abduction several days ago of John J. "Butch" O'Connell, 34-year-old Marlinus athlete, and nephew of Edward and Daniel O'Connell, dominant figures in the upper state Democratic circles.

A $250,000 ransom was reported demanded for his safe return. The belief that O'Connell was kidnapped in an act of revenge against his uncle was expressed in sources close to the family today as hours dragged by without word from the kidnapers.

At Alton, Ill., two men entered the home of August Luer, 78 year old banker and semi-invalid, knocked his wife down when she attempted to ward them off and drove away in a car with him. He had been ailing health and was susceptible to a marked disease.

Earlier in the day J. C. Lyle, a Crawfordsville, Ga., rural mail carrier, found himself at Wake Forest, N. C., after having been kidnapped by three escaped convicts—two white and a negro—as he was delivering mail. His captors brought him to North Carolina, he said, tied him to the rafters of a tobacco barn and made off with his car. He was unharmed.

Search for the convicts who have kidnapped four men in their flight spread over the northern section of North Carolina and into Virginia today. Lyle went to Raleigh to leave for home after his wild ride through South Carolina, and North Carolina.

Federal agents who have been operating at New Port News, Va., disclosed they were searching for John Factor, missing Chicago speculator, who disappeared nine days ago. They intimated that information had come from Great Britain that his case was brought about to avoid Factor's extradition to England where he is wanted for trial.

CABARRUS FARMERS SIGN FOR REDUCTION

Concord, July 11.—Two hundred and thirty-nine cotton curtailment contracts, signed by Cabarrus county farmers, had been checked by County Agent Roy D. Goodman through Saturday night preparatory for mailing to Washington, D. C., for final approval by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

These contracts, according to Mr. Goodman, provide for the plowing under of 1,438 acres of cotton from the 1933 crop.

Late News Flashes

Warns Crop Borrowers. Raleigh, July 11.—(AP)—Charles Sheffield, acting director of the cotton reduction campaign, today warned some 74,000 North Carolina farmers who have secured financial aid from the government that they may find it hard to use such sources of credit in the future if they are cotton farmers and do not cooperate in the cotton retirement plan.

MAN WHO ESCAPED FROM CAMP CAPTURED

Rocky Mount, July 11.—Floyd Smith, who escaped while he was serving a sentence of a year and a half for an attempted forgery in Whiteville prison camp, is in the hands of local authorities awaiting transfer to the camp to complete his term.

check of borrowers who failed to co-operate.

"Cotton growers who have borrowed money from the government through the cotton loan office or regional credit corporation, may find it hard to borrow in the future," the statement said.

check of borrowers who failed to co-operate.

Sheffield said a hasty check indicated that about 70,000 state farmers had used crop production loans to finance crops having used $6,049,407 in cash up to June 7 in addition some 4,000 other growers had secured loans from the regional bank.

MR. COTTON FARMER, DO IT NOW

There is just one more day left in which the cotton farmers have an opportunity to sign their acreage reduction contracts and we urge all those farmers who have not signed to get in touch with the county farm agent's office at once.

As we have said many times since the campaign got under way, we believe that this movement is one of the best opportunities the farmer has ever had if he will but take advantage of it and we cannot see why all the growers would not jump at a chance like this to help themselves.

We believe that the farmers are too sensible to let an opportunity like this one slip and we are confident that when the campaign closes tomorrow night it will be found that more than enough signatures have been received to warrant the carrying of the plan to completion.

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: George Bancroft just has been told by Bishop, her stepfather, that she may go to Germany with him if he goes, and she is overjoyed, because Nicholas Boyd is there recovering from an operation to remove a scar that has cost him his screen career.

Chapter 38

GEORGIE'S CALL

The first thought in Georgie's heart was one of exceeding bitterness that Nicholas had not told her himself. Then with an effort she recovered herself.

After all, he owed her nothing; he had never pretended to return her love for him, had never even asked for it, and by the strength of her own sorrow for him, she guessed what he must be feeling—the bitter disappointment, and even something of shame.

Germany had seemed close at hand in comparison with the gulf made by Bernie's presence. Nelly said quietly: "Sorry if I gave you a shock; I thought you'd know." She touched Georgie's unresponsive hand.

Georgie said faintly, after a moment, "Do you know—I suppose you don't know—when he will arrive?" "I tried to hear," Nelly admitted.

"But they seemed to guess I was listening, so they lowered their voices, but it's my opinion that he's due tonight."

"Then he won't stay with her?" Nelly laughed. "I should say not," she said. She hesitated, then added: "Look here, I may as well own up. I knew you'd be interested, so when she'd gone to the studio I had a look at the letter."

"Oh, Nelly!" "Don't 'oh' Nelly me," Nelly said stoutly. "And there wasn't anything so private about it when all's said and done—just the sort of letter he might have written to anybody."

"And it said?" Georgie breathed. "It said she was not to bother about him; that he was going to stay in a furnished flat for a few days before he left for abroad."

"She fumbled in a pocket and produced a crumpled envelope. "Here's the address. I copied it down for you. I never can remember names and things."

"Ch, you are kind," Georgie said. Nelly made a little grimace. "Thought you'd soon get over being shocked," she said bluntly.

"I think you're wasting your time running after him, but that's your business. Here, take the address, I must be off," but she lingered yet another moment to say with pardonable curiosity, "I say, what are you going to do?"

"I don't know," Georgie said, but in her heart she knew well enough. If Bernie was content to let him creep back into London, unwanted and unheralded, she was not content; she remembered with a sigh of relief that her mother and Bishop were both dining out that night.

It was an official dinner which Evelyn had been loathe to attend. "Dull women, uninteresting food, and dull speeches," she had said. "Bishop will say the same things he has said at dinners ever since I married him, and I shall have to smile and look proud while all the time I feel more like screaming."

Poor Bishop, Georgie thought; it had been almost on the tip of her tongue to suggest that she go to the dinner also; she was glad now that she had suppressed the impulse for it left her with a free evening.

At last they went. Georgie had done her little best to speed their departure; she had told Evelyn that she looked lovely—that she would be the prettiest woman there.

"Which is saying very little if you only knew," her mother retorted. "The wives of men who go to official dinners never have a decent frock between them."

"Well, you have," Georgie said. Bishop's slow smile lit his sombre eyes. "Some people might call it indecent," he said.

Evelyn turned on him sharply. "If that is your idea of a joke, it's a very poor one," she said. "Fortunately, I have given up hoping for admiration from you."

St. James' Street; there was no time to collect her thoughts, or to decide what she would say before they stopped at the door of a block of flats and she found herself on the path, fumbling with nervous fingers for the fare.

Suppose Nicholas had not arrived? For a moment her courage deserted her; she looked up the street and down the street, then with a defiant toss of her pretty head she plunged through the big door and found herself face to face with a uniformed porter.

"Mr. Boyd?" she asked. "Mr. Boyd!" The man repeated the name as if he had never heard it before, and then said with a flash of illumination: "Oh, yes, Miss, the gentleman who arrived from Germany this evening. No. 2 Flat; I'll take you up."

Georgie would have preferred to walk; it would have given her a little time to regain her breath, but it was obviously not the time for argument, and a moment later she found herself on a little dark landing feeling as if she were on her way to robe the Bank of England.

"Door right opposite, Miss," the porter said. Georgie rang the bell. Almost at once the door opened and a man whom she had never seen before was looking at her questioningly.

Georgie moistened her hot lips. "I thought—Mr. Boyd?" she faltered. "The man looked doubtful, but as usual Georgie's eyes won."

"Mr. Boyd is not seeing visitors," he said. "But if you will step inside I will ask him. Your name, please?" "Miss Bancroft."

She stepped inside obediently, and the man closed the door behind her. It was quite a small flat, with four doors all close to her, and with rather a musty, uninvited-in sort of atmosphere about it that seemed to cry aloud for open windows and bright fires.

It seemed an eternity until the strange man returned; he looked sympathetic. Georgie thought, and there was a regretful note in his voice as he said: "Mr. Boyd is very sorry, but—" He broke off as the door of the room which he had closed with great care behind him opened suddenly and Nicholas himself stood there.

"Come in, Robin," he said, and then to the man: "It's all right, Archer, I've changed my mind." The room was so dimly lit that for a moment Georgie could see nothing as she moved blindly forward, then slowly her eyes grew accustomed to the gloom.

Nicholas was standing by the fireplace his face averted, and even when he spoke he did not turn his head. "How did you find out where I was?" Georgie swallowed a little lump in her throat that threatened to choke her before she answered: "It's rather a long story—" and then with a little cry, "Oh, it's wonderful to see you again."

She heard his short laugh. "Can you see me? I purposely put most of the lights out," and then as she did not speak, he added: "I am no more beautiful than I was, Robin." She gave a little dive forward and caught his hand. "It's you, anyway," she said. (To Be Continued)

Sweden prefers "brannvin aquavit and (usp)" while Poland would have "kummel Laczawski from Lemberg." Turkey favored spirit is "raki" made from figs.

Persia indented for "aragh," described as similar to gin—but very strong. Bulgaria voted for "some grape or plum brandy," while Egyptians chose "arak" which is extracted from dates.

Kansas City—(AP)—The department of justice's order for the arrest of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd in connection with the union station slaying here has spurred afresh the hunt for the notorious bandit, never yet handcuffed on a murder charge.

The sensational machine gun "massacre" of four officers and their prisoner at the station plaza in what was believed to be an attempt to free the prisoner is the most recent on the trail of crimes that authorities have laid to him.

Served One Prison Term

But so far he has served only one prison term—four years in the Missouri penitentiary on a highway robbery conviction. In 1929, after his release, Kansas City police arrested him half a dozen times, and other arrests elsewhere marked his trail.

He was arrested at Akron, Ohio, March 8, 1930, for questioning in connection with the slaying of a policeman, and again at Toledo, O., May 20, 1930. That was his last trip to the lockup.

Charged with bank robbery at Sylvania, O., he escaped from jail, was recaptured, convicted and sentenced, but again escaped by leaping from a train on his way to state's prison.

KINSTON TO PLAY LOCALS WEDNESDAY

The Greenville club crossed bats with Plymouth here today in another of the exhibition games scheduled by the club to keep players in trim between regular circuit contests.

Although Plymouth has fallen consistently before recent attacks of the Greenville club, they were expected to give a much better account of themselves this afternoon after strengthening weak positions.

Tomorrow Kinston will come here to attempt to shove Greenville a step lower in the standing of clubs column, but the locals were ready to offer stout resistance and hold their place in the top region as long as possible.

While Kinston is providing entertainment here, Snow Hill will appear in Ayden. Much interest is attached to this game as Ayden, like Greenville, is trying to hold on to her lead near the top which was usurped by the rising Snow Hill club last Saturday.

The race for top honors has been the most interesting probably ever witnessed in this section in years, in view of the fact that neither Greenville, Ayden or Snow Hill has been able to get over a one game lead at the top, although Greenville and Ayden have been playing a game of nip and tuck at the top the most of the season.

Stock Market

New York, July 11.—(AP)—Grains again pursued the spotlight from financial markets today leaving most stocks and bonds to flutter aimlessly in the shadow of uncertainty.

Little attention was paid to the usually spot dollar factors.

Gains of one to three were recorded by National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial, Owens Illinois, U. S. Steel, Republic Steel and American Rolling Mills.

Case got up about a point but farm issues were indifferent to bowling grains. Rails and motors did little.

Rails firmed in late trading. Transfers were 5,200,000 shares.

The body was sent to Roper for funeral and burial tomorrow.

Approve Public Construction

Burning The Links
The golfing woods have been full of astonishing low scores this spring and summer at home and abroad, including a 64 for Fred Bannerot, Jr., of Charleston, West Virginia amateur champion, in the qualifying play at White Sulphur Springs.

Bannerot set a new qualifying record for the West Virginia tournament with 138 for his two rounds, and Bill Hart, the Morgantown sports observer, thinks the 64 sets a new low for any major amateur competition. White Sulphur measures 6,300 yards and par is 70.

As he pointed out recently, Aubrey Boomer's 61 in the French Open several years ago is the best professional mark on a standard course. I can't locate any amateur who ever shot below 64 over a full-length standard course, including Bob Jones, but there have been some astounding nine-hole tallies.

One was a 27 by an English amateur, Corbett, in 1916. Jones had a 31 for one blazing stretch and Frap Cis Quiet, in the national amateur at Five Farms last year, shot a 30, five under par, on the outgoing nine against George Voigt.

Outmet had 44 for 13 holes, six under par, and needed to do the last five holes in par for a 64, but the match was over and he chose the clubhouse instead.

SIX LITTLE CHILDREN ABANDONED BY MOTHER

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE A CHAMPION FENCER!

● ABOVE—THERE IS NOTHING LIKE FENCING for bringing out the condition of a man's nerves. The quick reflexes and perfect coordination of healthy nerves helped George Santelli, former Olympic fencer, win the Open Saber Championship of the United States.

● LEFT—GEORGE SANTELLI, who says: "I can enjoy as many Camels as I want and still know that my nerves are fit."

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

"A man can't fence his best unless his nerves are healthy," says George Santelli. "Fencing is one of the fastest sports there is—you've got to keep your reflexes and nerves in perfect condition. As a coach, I have fencing appointments from seven-thirty in the morning until ten or eleven at night. I can enjoy as many Camels as I want and still know that my nerves are ready and fit when fast action is needed."

Camels, with their costlier tobaccos, give a pleasure that never fades. Steady smokers find them always mild... cool... pleasing. They do not fray the nerves or leave a "cigarette" aftertaste. Start smoking Camels today—for the new enjoyment you will find in a milder cigarette—for the sake of your nerves.

● WHEN THE THRILL of a brilliant saber bout brings the crowd to its feet, and you know that you are excited, tense—light up a Camel and learn for yourself how true it is that Camels are the cigarette for steady smoking.
