

AMERICAN VETOES CENTRAL BANK CO-OPERATION

Sensation in London After Board Action

SAY ATTITUDE KILLS PITTMAN RESOLUTION

American Federal Reserve Takes Steps to Halt International Bank Co-operation After Committee Acts Favorably; Delegates Declare Statement Applies to Resolution of Gold Bloc Several Days Ago.

London, July 12—(AP)—The American Federal Reserve board, it was understood in authoritative quarters today had vetoed participation by the United States delegation at the world economic conference in the discussion of the resolution calling for central bank co-operation.

This resolution was backed by European gold bloc and has been under consideration by the committee on permanent money problems.

It was stated that Senator Pittman of Nevada, told the subcommittee that the Federal Reserve board felt that the situation was premature.

This development created something of a sensation.

One member of the committee asserted that this attitude killed further consideration of the Pittman resolution calling for among other things eventual return to the gold standard, reduction of gold cover to 25 per cent and optional use of silver for one-fifth of this cover.

American quarters, however, emphatically denied that Federal Reserve veto had anything to do with the Pittman resolution, the gold

SHOPLIFTER SENT TO ROAD

Colored Man Draws Six Months For Stealing From Local Store

Ephriam Moore, colored, charged with shoplifting at Grant's store here about a week ago, was sentenced to six months on the roads in the regular session of county court here yesterday.

Moore it was alleged, obtained several articles, including wearing apparel and started out of the store. A woman employee who had been watching the negro attempted to intercept him as he neared the front door. She was shoved roughly out of the way as the negro attempted to make a safe exit.

Men standing nearby grabbed the negro and held him until the police arrived and took him into custody.

Around a dozen cases were completed in the first sitting of the court in two weeks. The majority were of a minor nature and required only slight time in disposing of.

Lee Cox, Fred O'Neil, Mary O'Neil and Jesse Mills, all white, charged with illegal possession of whiskey were released under suspended judgment on payment of cost. They were nabbed by county officers while allegedly "joy riding" on a highway near Greenville last week with a small amount of whiskey in their possession. The men were released under bond and Mary O'Neil, wife of Fred, was lodged in jail to await posting of bond.

Other cases disposed of during the sitting were:

J. F. Williams, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, 12 months on the roads. Notice of appeal to Superior court was filed under bond of $200. He was remanded to jail in default of bond.

Lawyer Bynum, colored, larceny, judgment suspended on good behavior.

Margaret Taft, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, one week in jail.

Jesse Carney, colored, assault with deadly weapon, judgment suspended on payment of cost.

Bill Harrington, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, 90 days on the roads.

Sid Jenkins, Louis Johnson and Jordan Hatem, gambling, $25 each.

Jack Griffin, non-support, ordered to pay to the court $125 a week for the support of his child.

Shelby, July 12—(AP)—Shelby city manager administration, adopted and installed July 1, came to an abrupt end last night when D. Z. Newton, just reelected as city attorney, said the form of government was illegal.

Newton pointed out that the city charter made no provision for such government and said that, if local government is to be granted, the charter must be amended and that this cannot be done until the General assembly meets again.

Mayor A. W. Murry and the new city board of aldermen in session July 1, had named W. C. Harris, member of the board, the city's first manager.

PASQUOTANK DOWNS RACES

County Votes Against Pari-Mutuel Betting In Election Yesterday

Raleigh, July 12—(AP)—The count stood one to one today in the independent county referendum on the proposal to legalize horse racing with pari-mutuel betting.

Under an act of the recent legislature the boards were authorized in six counties to vote on horse racing subject to the vote of the people.

Pasquotank, the second to vote, yesterday rejected the legislation by a margin of 23 votes in what was considered heavy balloting.

Polk county, the first to vote, approved the racing measure.

PUSH COTTON CURTAILMENT OVER COUNTY

Pitt County Continues To Rally Behind Government Effort To Cut Crop

Pitt county continued to rally today behind the government's proposal to take 3,000,000 bales of cotton out of cultivation this year as a means of boosting the price situation.

Although the minimum quota for this county was reached last Saturday cotton reduction committees continued their work this week following announcement that the campaign had been extended through today and last night a check of contracts showed that approximately 2,500 bales had been signed up. The total acreage involved was 4,067 and the number of growers participating was given as 956.

At the close of the original campaign date last Saturday night 2,100 bales had been signed up. This was above the maximum number of bales as required by the government although total acreage has just passed the minimum mark. The Pitt county quota was based on 1-3 of a bale to the acre but in view of the fact that the average yield of farmers who have signed is 1-2 bale to the acre, the maximum number of bales was reached much quicker than had the yield been less.

E. F. Arnold, director of the sign-up campaign, stated today the committee operating in various parts of the county had been instructed to report on all farmers refusing to sign as this will enable them to check against the government crop loan list to see who took advantage of production loans.

A report from Washington yesterday said that the campaign was being slowed down because of the failure of farmers who took advantage of government loans to sign to cut their crops. It was stated that if borrowers would be checked to see if they had complied with the contract requiring reduction of all money crops, particularly cotton.

Just what action the government would take against the recalcitrant borrowers was not made known, but it was a foregone conclusion that failure to support the government's plan to reduce the cotton crop would make it difficult for planters to obtain similar loans in the future.

AIR SQUADRON IS OFF AGAIN

Italian Air Fleet Leaves Reykjavik On Projected Trip to Chicago

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 12—(AP)—A message from General Italo Balbo, who left with his Italian air squadron for Cartwright, Labrador, early today to the Armada's base here a few hours after his departure, said: "All's well. Flew during twenty minutes through dense fog which is now clearing up."

General Balbo's armada of 24 seaplanes left on the longest leg of its cruise to Chicago at 6 a. m. 2 a. m. (EST).

Townpeople were astir early and a large throng was thrilled as one after another of the flying boats arose from the calm waters of Vatnagarðar bay and started out over the North Atlantic.

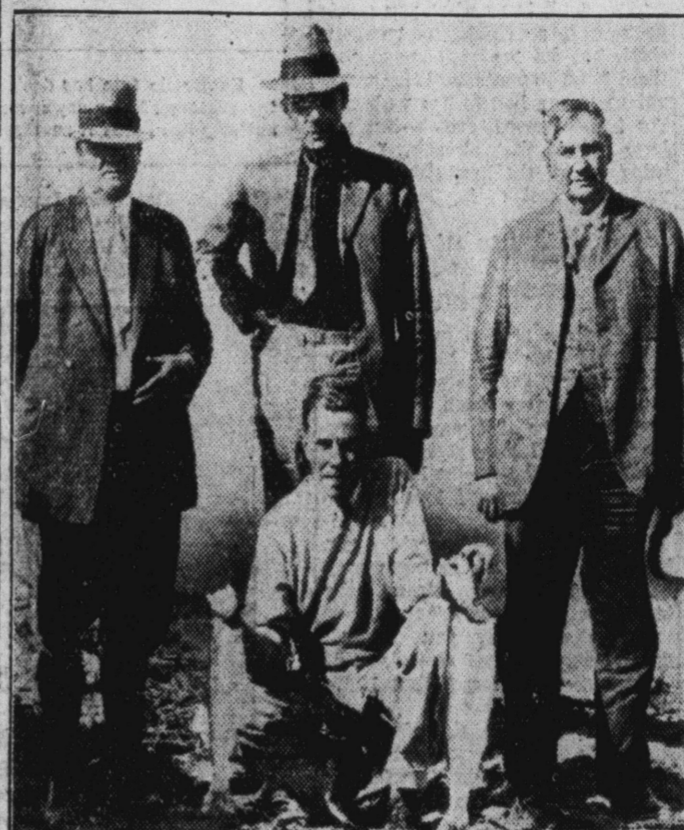

90,000 POUNDS OF TARPON FLORIDIAN'S 12-YEAR MARK

Boca Grande, Fla.—(AP)—W. Ashby Jones of Fort Myers may or may not be the champion tarpon fisherman, but he has a record for others to shoot at. He's followed closely by Dr. John A. Gains of Tampa.

Records of anglers' clubs along the gulf coast where the silver king runs show Jones has gaffed more than 1,200 of the sea fighters, while Dr. Gains' catch of 103 this season brings his total for 12 years to 652.

Figuring the average weight of a tarpon at 75 pounds, Jones has gaffed 90,000 pounds of fish.

HUNTER DIES IN VERMONT

Former Raleigh Educator Succumbs to Heart Trouble at Manchester

Raleigh, July 12—(AP)—News was received here today of the death early this morning at Manchester, Vermont, of Dr. Aaron Curtis Hunter, retired Episcopal rector, who for half a century was a leader in the church.

Dr. Hunter, who was 79 years of age, came to Raleigh in 1888 to become vice-president of St. Augustine school which is conducted here for negroes and from 1891 until 1916 he was principal of the college. In 1918 he was elected principal for life. Following his retirement he served as rector of St. James Episcopal church in Florence, Italy, from 1920 to 1923. He had been in retirement since.

It had been known here for several days that he was critically ill of heart trouble at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. T. Nakin, of Manchester, but no other details were given.

It was announced that the body would be brought here in the fall for interment. Other funeral plans were not known in Raleigh.

Fred Rast, 25-year-old farmer. Rast was shot to death in his barnyard yesterday near Swainsboro in the sight of three of his children.

NEW BUSINESS LOCATES HERE

Carolina Shippers Association To Make Greenville Future Home

It was announced through the Chamber of Commerce today that the Carolina Shippers Association had decided to locate in Greenville. Offices will be located in the State Bank building at Five Points.

The association was formerly located in Wilson and decided to move to Greenville after considerable negotiations with local interests.

Samuel Dickerson is office manager and H. A. Marshall, field agent. Both will move here immediately to take charge of the office.

The association operates in 39 counties of this section of the state. Its object is the adjustment of freight rates for shippers to see that they get a square deal, and representatives are licensed to appear before the Federal Trade Commission and Interstate Commerce Commission with this end in view.

At meeting of shippers has been called by the association here July 19th at which time problems affecting this phase of industry will be given consideration.

WORKERS TO BE GIVEN PROTECTION BY POLICE

Greensboro, July 12—Some 200 relief workers struck yesterday at the battleground recreation park job and marched into the city compelling other relief workers to quit. SPEED WORK TO BRING BACK PROSPERITY

Government Forces Told by President Roosevelt to Push Forward Hurriedly

Washington, July 12—(AP)—Activity stimulated by word from the boss to co-operate and work fast spread through the government agencies today that are trying to restore prosperity.

The invigorated efforts centered about plans to get unemployed back to work and guarantee higher wages for those who could not get jobs, lighten the home owners' burden, help the farmers, protect the consumer, in short to make things as they should be.

President Roosevelt was making a last study of the $200,000,000 worth of job-giving projects to be constructed under the public works program; the industrial administration laid plans for hearings on work spreading; wage-fixing agreements by other industries; the relief administration prepared to care for transients in need and demanded that state help take care of unemployed at home; Attorney General Cummings was soon to guard against unjustified higher prices; the farm administration was pushing its crop reduction program.

The $200,000,000 work program already has the approval of the board charged with its responsibility. Officials said this could begin immediately thus creating jobs quickly. Likewise the bureau of public works cabinet got ready to pass on the federal construction work and agreed to advance federal money to help finance them.

By the World FORGOT
A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: George Bancroft has learned through a friend that Nicholas Boyd is returning from Germany where he has been unsuccessful in an attempt to have removed a scar that has ended his film career. Nicholas' wife, Bernie, is in London, but he does not go to her. Although she is hurt because he has not told her himself, George decides to go to Nicholas' apartment. His valet first tells her Nicholas will not see her, but Nicholas appears suddenly and asks her in.

Chapter 39
NICHOLAS' CROSS

"You didn't answer my letter," George said.
 "Perhaps I hadn't anything to say," Nicholas replied, and then with an effort, "It was kind of you to write; kinder of you to come here."
 That little lump in George's throat was threatening once more to choke her; she wanted so desperately to say something that would comfort him—to say that she didn't mind how he looked—that he would always be the same to her—the dashing her of the silver screen who had first captured her girl's fancy, but she was afraid of hurting him, or driving home to him more deeply the realization of all he had lost.

don't know what you are talking about. In the second place I am a married man, and even if I were not, our lives run along roads that are miles apart, roads that can never meet, and anyway I—"
 "And anyway you don't want me," George said bluntly.
 "What I want is beside the point. I'm fond of you of course. I don't know why, probably because you insist that I shall be."
 "I suppose I ought to be offended at that."
 "It was not intended offensively." She felt the tears wet on her cheeks again.
 "If what you want is beside the point, doesn't what I want matter at all?"
 "You don't know what you want; you're just a child, a romantic child, but let me tell you that there is no romance, or there would not be if you had to live with me. I'm bad-tempered, selfish—but you have proved that already. I hate being out of the limelight. I can't make the best of it. I'm bitterly resentful."
 "You wouldn't be if you had something to take its place."
 "What something?"
 "Me."
 She saw a sudden movement of his broad shoulders, but he made no comment, and she went on: "I may not be very much, not so attractive as the girls you have been used to, but I know I could make you happy." She caught her breath before she added: "I love you so much."
 "You little fool," he said again hoarsely. "There are so many men in the world, young, strong, the kind you must marry."
 "If I don't marry you I shall never marry anyone," George said.
 "You seem to forget that I am married already."
 "Well—" George struggled with her tears. "Evelyn says that divorce is very easy in America."
 "If both parties are willing, perhaps."
 "You mean—you wouldn't be willing?"
 "At the moment I am thinking of my wife."
 "That she wouldn't be willing?"
 "I'm a rich man, Robin. She might not wish to divorce me money."
 He picked up her gloves and little handbag which she had laid down on the table.
 "I'll get you a taxi, Robin." George stood her ground.
 "When shall I see you again?"
 "I hope for your own sake, you will not try to see me again."
 Something seemed to snap in George's brain. She clenched her trembling hands into tight little fists.
 "I don't believe it's I you're thinking about," she accused him passionately. "It's just yourself. I suppose you think I'm a nuisance coming here; I suppose you think no decent girl would do such a thing, and I suppose you're right. What difference does it make if you're married or not? I want you to be happy. I can't be happy myself if you're not." She was sobbing now, her eyes raised to his face appealingly. "I've never had anybody of my own, not really. If you'd just let me be with you—I she broke off, realizing her crushing defeat. "You don't want me?" she whispered.
 "No, Robin."

Congratulations to Pasquotank county in voting down the legalization of pari-mutuel betting on horse racing. It is our opinion that no community has ever gained enough through legalized gambling to offset the evils that accompany it and we feel that the voters of Pasquotank made a wise decision in turning thumbs down on the proposal.

With the kidnaping menace on the increase it seems that there must be some definite steps by the government to curb this form of crime. Kidnaping is one of the meanest of crimes and the government would do well to use a part of its army to wipe out the kidnapers if necessary.

THE RIGHT THING TO DO

With tonight designated as the closing time for the cotton reduction sign-up there is still some doubt as to whether enough acreage has been signed to justify the governments' carrying out the plan. We have said time and time again that if the farmers did not take advantage of this opportunity to help themselves they didn't deserve any help in the future. In announcing that the government would make a check of all those refusing to sign to ascertain if borrowers from government funds were co-operating is an indication that the government is to see to it that no further help will be forthcoming for such ones. Designating it as a most sound credit policy the News and Observer rightly says:

If the farmers of North Carolina cannot give their cooperation to the Government in the Government's effort to help the farmers in its cotton reduction plan then the Government may be no longer willing to aid such farmers with its credit facilities which the farmers have used in the past. This statement, made by Charles A. Sheffield, acting State director of the cotton reduction plan, and presumed to reflect the attitude of the administration, is as sound a business position as any lender could adopt toward his debtors.
 The Government has undertaken to advance credits to the farmers. Now it provides a plan whereby the farmers can help themselves. That plan was devised in the interest of the farmers and not of the government which lent them the money. Nevertheless farmers who will not be helped are deliberately making themselves worse credit risks than they are. No banker who attempted to improve the business of a man who owed money to the bank and was repudiated in his effort to help that man's business would consider that there was good grounds for a further extension of credit to him.
 What the farmers, who hold back from the reduction plan, are doing is to speculate in the cotton market against the advice of all cotton experts and at the probable expense of themselves, their neighbors and the government. Such a speculative course makes them bad credit risks and their governments would be only following the soundest credit policy in refusing them further credit out of the public treasury.

It was he who broke the silence with an attempt at lightness.
 "So you have been making friends with my wife?"
 "Not friends," George said, then very polite she hastened to amend them. "I don't think I am the sort of girl she would make friends with, but she was very nice, I went to the studio to see her making a picture."
 "And did you find it very intriguing?"
 "Not very."
 "It cured you of your ambition to be a film star?"
 "Yes."
 "And so you've been having a hectic time?" he said after a moment. "Lots of fun and dances and proposals, I suppose."
 "She did not answer, and he went on: "It's wonderful to be young and happy, Robin. Make the most of it."
 "I'm not happy," George said.
 "At least, not in the way you mean. And I wish you wouldn't talk to me as if I were a child."
 "You are a child. You looked so much of a child when I saw you standing out in the hall there just now that I felt as if I ought to have brought you back a doll."
 She made no reply, and suddenly he knew that she was weeping, quiet weeping which was so much harder to listen to unmoved than a burst of sobbing would have been. He bore it in silence for a moment, then he said almost angrily, "I don't know why you're crying. I don't cry and after all it's my funeral."
 George looked at him through her tears.
 "I'm crying because you've shut me out of your life," she said in a broken whisper.
 "Shut you out!" He laughed mirthlessly. "Don't you know that there's no room for you in my prison? I've been trying to make you understand that ever since I first met you."
 "And I've been trying to make you understand that there is," she retorted with sudden courage. "You said just now I was a child. Well, children don't take up much room."
 "Don't they?" he submitted sulkily. "I think there are some children who fill the whole world, if you care for them sufficiently well."
 She moved a hesitating step nearer to him.
 "It must be rather sweet to be cared for so much," she said breathlessly, and again her hand stole into his.
 Nicholas moved suddenly, touching a switch in the wall and flooding the room with light.
 "Now look at me," he said.
 George looked; her soft brown eyes rested on his scarred face with quiet and happy assurance.
 "Well?" she said softly. "You're just the same to me as you've always been."
 "You're a little fool, Robin," he answered almost violently, and he turned his disfigured face away.
 George said: "I wish you would put out some of the light again. I want to say lots of things to you, and it's easier when it's not so light."
 "Because you can't see what an ugly brute I am?"
 George ignored that, but she slipped past him and turned out some of the lights herself, then she asked quietly:
 "Are you going back to America?"
 "No."
 "Where then?" she persisted.
 "God alone knows."
 There was a short silence. George could feel a little pulse hammering in her temple as if it were trying to drive her to say the things that were in her heart; the things which surely no "nice" girl would ever dare to say, then she heard her own voice, a little breathless with daring.
 "Well, wherever it is, I shall go with you."
 Nicholas laughed. "You must certainly will not," he said emphatically.
 "Why not?"
 "Because I—because—" Then he broke off and walked away from her to the window. Such an ugly window George thought, hung with drab curtains which nobody had troubled to draw.
 "Why not?" she asked again as he did not speak.
 He answered her then, in a voice that was a little hard.
 "Because in the first place you that the nation least likely to object to inclusive measures of international concert was the United States.

 Indeed, President Roosevelt himself had gone a long way in asking for strong international action. In his famous peace note of May 16 he urged that lesser consideration be put aside and that nothing be spared to make the conference successful.
 What happened between May 16 and July 6?
 As early as May 25 Associated Press dispatches from Washington recorded that expectations of success at London was sinking and that the United States was "arming itself for economic war if the economic conference fails."
 The conference began June 12 with a speech by Premier MacDonald, stirring the delicate issue of war debts, not on the program.
 On his vacation cruise the President then began receiving reports of pressure for temporary currency stabilization, the very thing he did not want because he feared it would halt rising American prices.
 Norman H. Davis came home from the recessed Geneva disarmament conference and made a report which indicated no substantial progress. Both at London and Geneva, it appeared, the peace note of May 16 had gone into the wastebasket.
Another Cycle?
 Probably every President since the world war has passed through a cycle beginning with a hope of leading the world to higher ground and ending with more or less dejected return to nationalism.
 Has Mr. Roosevelt, in keeping with the pace he has traveled, in domestic administration, already passed through that cycle?

STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

—neither strong enough, nor safe enough, nor quiet enough for the body of a quality car like CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET Why is it that every 12-cylinder and 16-cylinder car in America has bodies of steel reinforced by hardwood? Why is it that every make of car selling for over $4000 uses bodies of exactly the same type? Why? For the same reason that Chevrolet uses it exclusively, and refuses to resort to anything else: Because every test and every experiment has definitely proved: STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH! Neither as strong, nor as safe, nor as quiet as a body of steel plus hardwood.

and vice versa! The two work together. And the result: the strongest, safest type of body, such as Fisher builds for Chevrolet.

Don't expect to find a steel plus hardwood body in any other low-priced car. Only Chevrolet has it! And don't expect to find, in any other low-priced car, sturdy, safe bow and slat roof construction, such as Chevrolet gives you. Or that greatest body improvement in the last ten years: Fisher No Draft Ventilation. Or a Cushion-Balanced Engine Mounting (that kills annoying vibration). Or also, don't expect to find, in any other low-priced car, such Chevrolet features as a Starterator! Or a six-cylinder engine as dependable—or as economical—as Chevrolet's! No other car has them—and that's why twice as many people choose Chevrolet as any other make of motor car.

The trouble with steel alone is that it stands just so much shock and punishment. Steel alone is also inclined to rumble and rattle. Steel simply can't do a job all by itself, any more than wood alone can! BUT—when you put the two together—a heavy, staunch steel body over tough, solid hardwood—then the hardwood reinforces the steel—

FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR FAISON BEING PROBED. Goldsboro, July 12.—Duplin county authorities are making a full investigation of the accident near Faison Saturday night in which Mrs. Sue B. Willis of Kansas City, Mo., was injured fatally, and Mrs. Beulah Thomas of Washington, D. C., was injured.

Mrs. Willis, who traveled out of Washington, D. C., sustained a crushed right thigh and internal injuries. She died at the Goldsboro hospital Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Thomas received severe shock and numerous contusions. Her condition is not thought to be serious. A sister, Mrs. J. A. McDougal of Wilmington, arrived in Goldsboro Sunday to be with her.

The heavy coupe, driven by Mrs. Willis, was in collision with a loaded produce truck about two miles south of Faison. The dual rear wheels of the truck smashed the driver's side of the coupe.

A negro was driving the truck, owned by Arthur Strickland of Kenansville. The name of the driver could not be obtained. Goldsboro reports Monday said that he was in jail at Kenansville pending outcome of the investigation.

Officers investigating found the automobile on the right side of the highway headed south, and the truck on the left side headed north.

'See The Balloon Chase Cosmic Rays' —Here's A Stunt For Chicago's Fair

Lieut.-Com. T. G. W. Settle here looks out of the gondola of the stratosphere balloon in which he will try to beat Prof. Auguste Piccard's record of 53,153 feet. Prof. Jean Piccard (inset) twin of Auguste, will go along to study cosmic rays. The ascent is scheduled for July 15 from Chicago's Century of Progress exposition (below).

Chicago—(AP)—An old American institution, the county fair balloon ascension, will be amplified and modernized at the Century of Progress Exposition along about July 15th.

This time it will be a stratosphere flight important to scientists all over the world.

Lieut.-Com. T. G. W. Settle of the United States Navy will pilot the latest development in Piccard-type balloons in an attempt to break the world altitude record of 53,153 feet, set last year by the Belgian, Auguste Piccard.

The start will be made at midnight from Soldier Field stadium, with the objective something over 10 miles up and a possible 24-hour flight ahead.

In the airtight metal gondola of the world's largest free balloon will be Auguste Piccard's twin brother, Jean, as scientific observer, particularly of apparatus designed to measure and count cosmic rays, science's intriguing new plaything.

Separate cosmic ray measuring machines built by Professors Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago and Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology will be carried aloft in an effort to gain new knowledge of the rays over whose source and nature these men, Nobel prize physicists, have carried on a friendly scientific controversy.

NEW HANOVER WEIGHS SUPPLEMENT ISSUE. Wilmington, July 12.—The question of supplementing the State-supported eight-month school term was laid before the board of county commissioners yesterday by Chairman H. A. Lynch of the school board, with the statement the election will be requested.

Under law, the county commissioners must call a special election upon demand of the board of education. The board agreed to meet with the board of education Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock to go over the 1933 school budget and to discuss questions arising out of the proposal to supplement.

No Extension of Term. Mr. Lynch revealed that the board of education is not considering extending the length of the term and declared the board was "considering asking a supplemental appropriation that members of the county board estimated would mean an increase

SEEK TO LEVY TAX FOR SCHOOL SUPPLEMENT. Asheville, July 12.—(AP)—Decision to request the board of financial control to levy a maximum tax of 18 cents with which to supplement state funds for Asheville schools was reached at a meeting of the city school board here yesterday. Based on reduced valuation the tax should raise approximately $90,000 school officials said.

Last year city schools received approximately $218,570 from supplemental taxes and $164,553.38 from the state. Although city school officials do not know the amount that will be received from state sources this year, they hope it will approximate the total given last year. It cannot be more, they said.

Therefore, should the supplemental levy be voted, all taxes collected and the maximum amount received from the state, Asheville's schools must be operated for approximately $128,570 less during the next year than they cost last year. School expenditures already have been reduced approximately 80 per cent from the 1929 figures.

The WORLD of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES

Although scarcely a week passes without Italy or one of her colonies issuing a stamp, the rapid rate of production does not seem to impair the quality.

The stamps issued by Cyrenaica in connection with the flight of the Italian squadron across the north Atlantic are novel in that they picture two constellations, the "big dipper" and the "little dipper".

So far as is known only two other countries, Uruguay and Brazil, have carried constellations on their stamps. The constellation of Pegasus appears on the airmail stamps issued by Uruguay in 1929 and the Southern Cross is pictured on several Brazilian issues, beginning with that of 1887.

In the foreground of the most recent stamps from Cyrenaica is a group of airplanes in flight formation. The values are 19 lire, 75 centesimi, green and blue; 441, 75c red and deep blue. They were for use on mail sent to Rome for the Balbo flight.

For the same purpose Tripilitania issued two stamps having the same value but of different designs. They show an airplane in flight, a winged lion and an eagle. The lower value is black and brown; the higher, blue and light green.

Short, Short Story. About seven months ago Peru placed a portrait of its president on the 10-centavo value of a new issue. A few days later, as heretofore noted, it discovered a law forbidding the use of a living person's picture on a stamp.

The unsold stamps showing the chief executive, Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, were ordered burned.

Recently President Cerro was assassinated. Still more recently, a dealer reported, the 10-centavo value not burned at all, was placed on sale.

Counterfits. Among the most interesting exhibits at the International Philatelic exhibition held last month in Vienna, was a display of counterfeit stamps, some of them valued higher than the genuine.

The Vienna police department contributed about 5,000 counterfeit, including a number of those foisted on collectors 25 years ago by Dimitri Miladenovich, a Bulgarian student who specialized in forging the rarest issues.

Put Your Liver To Work--Make This Test

You can't feel well and strong unless your liver furnishes your stomach and bowels plenty of fresh bile every day. Without bile food doesn't digest properly—it just ferments and decays—constipation, gas, sour stomach, headaches and nervousness follow. Don't be misled. Calomel, salts, pills, mineral waters, laxative pills, etc. have no effect whatever on the liver. There are only two generally recognized substances which actually cause a sluggish liver to increase its production of bile. Sargol Soft Mass Pills contain both of them. Unless you have tried Sargol Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of their effect—you feel stronger, healthier, happier—life and color return to faded eyes and cheeks—appetite and digestion improve rapidly. Only one for a full 2-day treatment. Ask your druggist, or write G. F. Willis, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

LOCALS WILL CROSS WILLOW WITH KINSTON

J. Pivius stepped in and grabbed honors from Greenville and Plymouth here yesterday and the scheduled ball game between the two towns was abandoned because of his activities.

Although cloudy weather was the order of the day, local fans were looking forward expectantly to the scheduled game with Kinston. The Lenoir county lads were defeated on their last visit to the Pitt capital last week but were hopeful of turning in a different account in this contest.

Manager Milton Harrington announced today the arrival of two new players. One is a second baseman and the other an outfielder. The second base position has been vacant since Dean had to give it up about two weeks ago, but Lang has been filling it with credit to himself. However, the Farmville boy had rather be in his regular position in the outfield to relieve Lefty Dean, pitcher, who has been doing mound duty at the outpost while Lang was cavorting around on the infield.

It was possible the new players would be seen in action today when the local club crosses willow with the Kinston outfit.

With all clubs of the league just a matter of a few points apart the race is as tight as it was the beginning of the season with no single club being able to gain a decided advantage.

Ayden and Greenville which have been leading the league all season are fighting for their lives with Snow Hill threatening to run away with the top position if something is not done about the matter. Snow Hill was to play at Ayden this afternoon and another spectacular battle was in the offing as the Ayden lads attempt to knock the Greenville county club for a row of cocked hats.

New York Cotton

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady six to 13 lower under liquidation due to uncertainty over success of cotton acreage reduction in Texas and isapouting Liverpool cables.

October sold off to 10.72 and December to 10.87, marking a loss of about 11 to 15 points under the initial pressure but offerings were fairly well absorbed by the trade and commission house buying.

The weekly weather report was construed as unfavorable and probably brought in a little buying. Offerings were light after early selling and prices advanced. October sold up to 10.96 and March to 11.37 within two or three of yesterday best prices on active positions.

The market at midday was within a point or two at the best at advance of 6 to 14 points. The market advanced further late in the day on active buying and higher foreign exchange, futures closing strong 83 to 89 higher, middling 11.55.

New York, July 12.—(P)—The stock market slipped gingerly today despite continued firmness of the grain and rally in foreign exchange and indication of industrial improvement.

Western Union shares responded to optimistic statement on earnings with a spurt of 6 points and national distillers U. S. Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol moved up about four each.

International silver and Postal Telegraph gained four each while U. S. Leather improved two or three points.

Some of the utilities including Consolidated Gas, North American Public Service of N. J. and American Power and Light advanced fractionally to a point or more.

Union Pacific dropped four points and most of other rails were soft. Transfers were 4,800,000 shares.

Cotton Goes Higher.
New York, July 12.—(AP)—Cotton climbed to new highs in active rally this afternoon, closing with gains of 15 to 45 cents a bale—h gains of $4.15 to $4.45 a bale.

The rise was one of the steepest in the course of the market's rapid climb since April. Shorts trapped by the onrush in prices were scrambling to cover contracts thus giving force to the wave of buying from professional and trade sources.
