President Roosevelt's Plan For Raising Prices Given Consideration

London, July 15-(AP)-The American delegation was considering today a final effort to forward President Roosevelt's plan for a world wide price-raising program as the world conference recessed for the week-end.

The tentative draft of the resolution outlining monetary and commercial policies to achieve this end was under consideration by some of the American experts and delegates.

The American thesis is that the higher price level will permit eventual monetary stabilization which is so ardently desired by gold countries. In some quarters there was hope that the price-raising resolution might be so phrased as to bring the gold group and the non-gold countries closer together.

James Warburg, one of the chief financial advisors for the delegation, left for New York today to make a complete report to President Roosevelt which he will be able to do a few days before the final session of the conference.

MISS M'GINNIS CHOSEN QUEEN

Young Woman Selected as "Miss Greenville" at Legion Beauty Pageant

Miss Helen McGinnis, daughter of Prof. Howard McGinnis, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers college, was chosen "Miss Greenville" at the American Legion beauty pageant in the high school auditorium last night.

As a result of the victory, Miss McGinnis will represent Greenville at the state-wide beauty contest to be held at Wrightsville Beach August 18-19.

Prof. A. D. Frank presented Miss McGinnis with a loving cup in recognition of her victory over thirty-four other young women representing the pulchritude of the community.

The queen was chosen by judges from Farmville and Kinston and at the last decision narrowed down to Miss McGinnis and Catherine Utley Supporters of the young women rallied to their cause but after they had made their final parade across the platform the judges decided in favor of Miss McGinnis.

A delightful musical and dance program interspersed the actual choosing of the queen and the large crowd in attendance received a treat in addition to looking with admiration upon the city's feminine beauty.

J. H. Rose, recently elected commander of the Legion post, expressed appreciation of the organization for the interest shown in the pageant and thanked the judges for their assistance in selecting the queen.

Mrs. Herbert Waldrop appeared in a delightful solo number, and Little Ann McCormick did some solo dancing that was liberally applauded.

Harold Sugg played a clarinet solo and Frances Spillman and Marjorie Sugg presented an aesthetic dance number. Irvin Gibson, accordionist, who recently located here, gave an accordion selection and a solo by W. W. Lee concluded the program with exception of the presentation of the living cup.

NEW COTTON SIGNERS JOIN LOCAL DRIVE

Contracts Received At Farm Office Swell Pitt Total to 4,825 Acres

Related contracts received here yesterday brought the Pitt county acreage in the federal cotton reduction control campaign to 4,825 acres, it was revealed today by E. F. Arnold, director of the farm department and head of the acreage reduction movement in this county.

They also swelled the number of bales to be taken out of cultivation to 2,870. The number of farmers signing the contracts was given at 1,160.

Mr. Arnold said he expected several more contracts would be turned into his office today. They will be passed on by the local committee tonight and immediately dispatched to Washington for consideration of the national committee.

Growers were advised yesterday not to begin plowing up their cotton until they had been individually advised by the federal government. Several days probably will be required to check over all contracts, it was said, but as soon as this work has been completed further instructions will be sent out from Washington.

Mr. Arnold said he was highly gratified over the fine response shown by Pitt county growers. He declared they had rallied to the plan to boost the price situation in a most noteworthy way and undoubtedly would derive great benefit from participation in the plan to relieve the glutted condition of the world cotton market.

Word received from Washington was to the effect that indications were that the national campaign was expected to exceed the goal of 3,000,000 bales and that the final total probably would reach 3,500,000 bales.

DISAPPOINTED IN LOVE YOUNG MAN KILLS SELF

Smithfield, July 15-This community was shocked to hear of the suicide of Poland Baker, which occurred at his home near Four Oaks, Wednesday night about 9 o'clock.

This young man lived in the home of his widowed mother, Mrs. Bud Baker. It is understood he was disappointed in a love affair. He fired the load from a shotgun near the heart and died instantly. It was such an evident case of suicide. Coroner James H. Kirkman did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest.

The deceased was a splendid young man, just 19 years of age. He had the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends.

GAS STATION OWNER SHOT BY BANDITS

Raymond Collins Shot Twice in Hold up At Hanrahan Cross Roads

Raymond Collins, operator of a filling station at Hanrahan's Cross Roads was shot twice by bandits in a holdup of the filling station last Thursday night, it was reported to officers here yesterday.

Two bullets fired by one of two bandits grazed Collins on each side of the head but his condition was not serious. The bandits were frightened by the arrival of neighbors before they were able to enter the filling station and escaped with a supply of gas and oil.

Collins, a brother of J. A. Collins of Greenville, and his wife were called out of bed about 10:30 by what they believed to be local citizens to deal out some gas.

Two unknown men riding in a sedan automobile were seated in the car in the front of the station and asked for gas and oil.

Collins put in the gas and was in the act of providing the oil when the man in the car fired twice. One of the men had gotten out of the car and attempted to enter the station. Collins, realizing he was the victim of a holdup, fell in the doorway and attempted to bar the way. He called to his wife who rushed to the front door, and seeing the way barred by her husband, rushed through another section of the house, screaming. The screams awakened neighbors who rushed to the filling station as the bandits drove away.

Officers were notified in Pitt and Lenoir counties but no clue leading to apprehension of the bandits had been obtained today. It was believed the bandits were two prisoners who recently escaped from the Rocky Mount jail taking an automobile in the course of their flight.

SPEED PLANS TO GET MONEY TO GROWERS

Farm Administration To Place $100,000,000 in Hands of Cotton Planters

Washington, July 15-(AP)-The farm administrators put real speed into the crop price raising plan today in an effort to get the bulk of $100,000,000 into the hands of cotton growers in the next few weeks.

Originally it was estimated that it would take six weeks or two months to get the money to the farmers in 16 states but this has been cut in half since Secretary Wallace yesterday announced formal acceptance of the program of 700,000 farmers who agreed to cut acreages 25 to 50 per cent.

These 700,000 farmers in turn for their agreement to destroy part of their growing crops will lease to the government the land on which the cotton was plowed under or cut down.

A hundred million dollars or thereabouts will be paid to them for rent on leased land. The theory is that the 3,500,000 bales of cotton kept off the market will raise prices on the remaining crop. Several new taxes are being levied effective August 1 to raise the necessary money.

KIDNAPPER IDENTIFIED BY ATLANTA BANKER

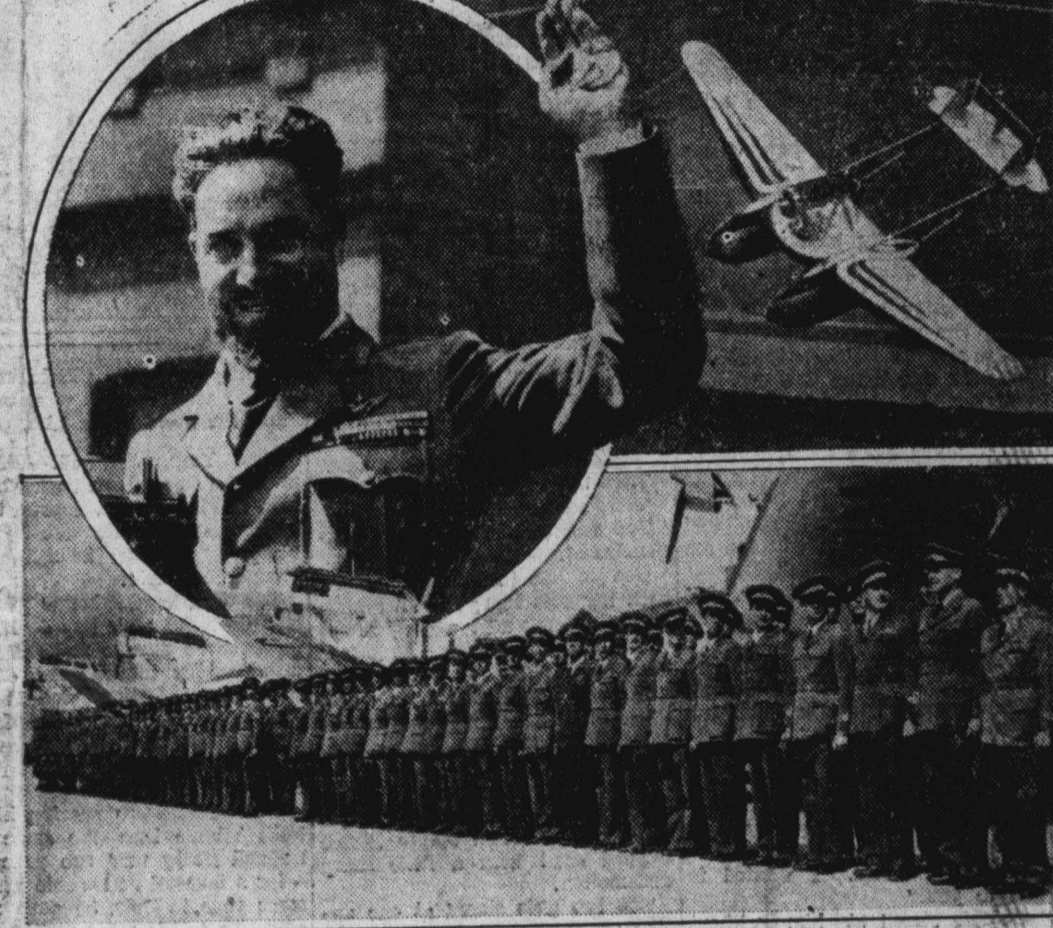

Atlanta, Ga., July 15-(AP)-John K. Oxtley, Atlanta banker, today identified a photograph of William Delenski, former sailor with a criminal record in South Carolina and New York, as the man who kidnapped him last week.

Delenski's description was furnished police throughout the Southeast. Believing there is a good chance of Belenski having been held in Atlanta by lack of funds, officers spurred the hunt for him locally.

After being kidnapped from in front of his home and driven 30 miles to a secluded woods, Oxtley was freed by 17-year-old Pryor Bowen, who had assisted in his abduction. Bowen is held in jail while police seek his fugitive companion, known to the youth under the alias of "Grover Collins".

PITT BUDGET ABOUT READY

Tentative Budget to Be Made Public Probably Next Monday Morning

The tentative budget for Pitt county will be ready for public consideration next Monday, it was known today at the office of Auditor J. C. Coward.

Employees of the auditor's office were putting finishing touches on the budget today and Mr. Coward said he felt sure it would be ready for public scrutiny by Monday. The budget was adopted in tentative form at a recent session of the commissioners, and will be finally adopted sometime in the near future.

The budget, it was stated recently by Auditor Coward, will show a reduction of $50,000 in the operation of the county government. This reduction was made in the face of a $12,000,000 cut in valuations, and will bring relief to tax payers. It was made possible through the state taking over full eight months school term and economies in administration.

Although it was impossible to say what the tax rate would be this important matter was to be definitely decided upon by the commissioners sometime in August. The law requires that the rate be set by the third Monday of the month.

A copy of the tentative budget will be placed on display at the courthouse and reproduced in the various newspapers of the county so that everyone may have the opportunity to see what has been done in the way of cutting expenses over last year's budget.

An early hearing for steel was in prospect while the lumber codes already is set by administration beginning July 20 and oil is to be studied July 24.

WILEY POST SEEKING TO SET NEW MARK

Lithonica, Piloted By Two Fliers, Seeks to Make 4,900 Mile Flight to Lithuania; Post Will Try to Break His Record of 8 Days and 16 Hours Around the World Made in 1931

(By Associated Press) Two airplanes soared over the Atlantic ocean today, one of them attempting a record flight.

One, the Winnie Mae, was piloted by Wiley Post, who seeks to break his 8 days and 16 hours round-the-world record made in 1931 with Harold Gatty.

The other was the Lithonica, jointly piloted by Captain Stephen Darius and Stanley Thomas Giraneas, was headed for Lithuania, 4,900 miles away.

Post was supplied with materials and United States Army equipment and Darius and Giraneas with only 779 gallons of gas. Their take off with the heavy load was regarded as one of the most difficult feats of aviation.

Both planes took off from the Floyd Bennett Field, the Winnie Mae at 4:10 and the Lithonica at 5:24 (EST).

BURLINGTON ANNOUNCES CANDIDATE YEAR AHEAD

Burlington, July 15-Burlington wants the State Legion commandership in 1934, believing that its record of activity in Legion work and affairs has been such as to warrant this recognition.

M. C. Terrell, well known in Legion circles throughout the State, is the Burlington candidate. There will be launched at the State Convention "Terrell for State Commander in 1934" campaign. Mr. Terrell, in an expression of thanks for the desire of his comrades to run him, promised an active campaign to bring the honor here, as much an honor to the city as to the individual.

RETIRE CERTIFICATES AHEAD OF DUE DATE

Burlington, July 15-The National Bank will retire $185,878.64 in certificates of deposits due under the reorganization on November 16, on August 1, according to decision of the board of directors at a recent meeting.

This retirement ahead of time follows the course which the favorable position of the bank has made it possible to follow since the reopening each issue of deposits due having been called in for payment in advance of the date scheduled. There remains but one more payment and this not due for a year yet.

Confidence in the new bank has been such that thousands of dollars subject to withdrawal under the "advance payment" plan retiring certificates have remained uncalled.

CUMBERLAND ATTAINS 56 PER CENT OF QUOTA

Fayetteville, July 15-Cumberland county farmers have signed cotton reduction contracts affecting 56 per cent of the county's quota of 6,300 acres. Upward of 7,000 farmers have signed to take 4,620 acres out of production. The reduction will be compensated on a basis of a yield of nearly 300 pounds to the acre, as against 265 for past crops in this county. Directors of the campaign say that investigation bears out the growers' claim for this high figure. A bumper crop was indicated, they state.

County Agent N. B. Stevens has been requested by the federal government to obtain the name of every farmer who refuses to sign the reduction agreement, and the reason given by each grower. It has been intimated that such planters will find it hard to obtain financial aid from the government.

The campaign here against stray dogs some months past did much to rid our city of the menace of mad dogs, but now it seems that again plenty of dogs are seen prowling the city, especially at night, paying visits to the accessible garbage cans.

Someone has suggested a campaign here to get rid of cockroaches and judging from appearances and complaints we have heard we believe that such a campaign on a city-wide scale would be most beneficial.

Whether or not it is within the power of the County Commissioners and City Aldermen to put off the advertising of the delinquent tax lists until the first of September instead of publishing the first of August, as now planned, we do not know, but if it is within their power to delay this action for a month we believe that it will mean better tax collections for the county and city and a great help to the taxpayers who cannot pay now but who can arrange to do so after the tobacco market opens.

ITALIAN SCHOOLS EXPANDED UNDER EDUCATIONAL DRIVE

Naples, Italy.—(AP)—An advance of 15 per cent in elementary school attendance within 12 years in south east Italy and the islands off this coast has been reported. The figures show school attendance increased from 236,000 in 1921 to 1,500,000 in 1931-32. Figures for last year are not yet available. This increase is largely attributed to a fascist drive for more schools. Some 3,000 schools have been built of which 900 were built in Sicily, 300 in Sardinia, 750 in Campania, 400 in Puglia, 100 in Molise, 350 in Calabria, and 200 in Basilicata.

By the World FORGOT

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: Apparently George Bancroft's step-father is being added to Bernie Boyd's string of admirers. He hints to Bernie that it might be well to divorce Nicholas Boyd, and his wealth makes the suggestion palatable. George is in love with Nicholas, who cares for her but wishes to save her from becoming involved in a scandal. He has promised to keep in touch with her, but Nelly Taylor, Bernie's maid tells George that Nicholas is leaving London that night.

Chapter 42 UNLUCKY MEETING

The two girls stared at one another, and it was Nelly who looked away. "I thought you'd be sure to know," she muttered. With an effort George recovered herself. "Going away? Where?" Her lips felt as if they were cut in ice. "I don't know—abroad, somewhere. Miss Boyd saw him last night, and from what I can make out there was no end of a row. Can't think why she doesn't divorce him."

"Are you sure?" George asked faintly. Nelly nodded, and then with a rush of sympathy she added, "Here don't you worry about him. They're all the same, these film stars." George hardly heard; she was struggling desperately to drag herself out of the mist that seemed to be closing around her on all sides; she wanted to say "I don't believe you," but she could not, because in her heart she knew it was true.

Nicholas had broken his word to her. He was going away. "Well, I must be off," Nelly said briskly. She touched George's shoulder. "Cheer up," she said. "There are as good fish in the sea as any that are caught." The door shut behind her, and George stood up, wondering why she suddenly felt so cold. Going away after he had told her that she was very dear to him. After she had promised that he would not go away without telling her. And Bishop too! Was there nobody in the world who was really sincere and honest?

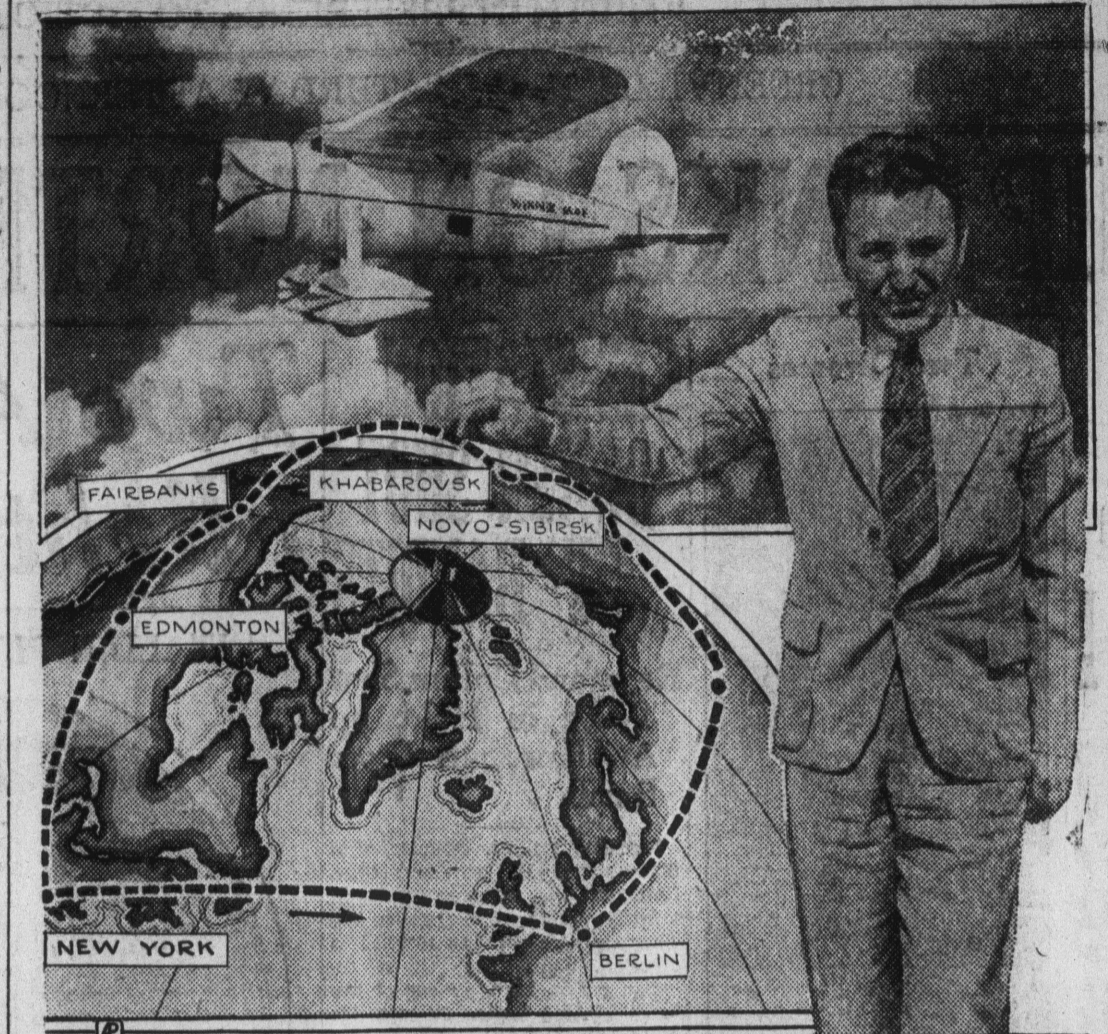

The door opened quietly and Bishop walked in. "Hello," he said. "I wanted to talk to you." George stared at him without answering. She remembered that she had told him about her love for Nicholas; that he was the one person in whom she had dared to confide, and all the time he was sending presents to Bernie. "Running after her," Nelly had expressed it. She shivered and Bishop said, "What's the matter?" George shook her head helplessly. She realized suddenly that she had thought a great deal of this man, had set him up on an absurd pedestal. Life was horrible. Love was a lie. Bishop said quietly, "I am not going to Germany after all." George said nothing, and he went on, "Of course you know that your friend is in London."

She nodded then; there was a hard, constricted feeling in her throat that allowed no words. "What's the matter?" Bishop asked again; he put out his hand as if to lay it on her shoulder, and hardly knowing what she did, George struck it down. "Don't touch me. Leave me alone," she said passionately, and before he could speak or move to prevent her, she had fled past him and out of the room. "Eight—nine—ten." George looked up at the clock on the shelf which was striking out the hours with maddening cheerfulness, and shifted her position a little. She felt cold and stiff. The fire had died down, and she had not once moved to replenish it during the two long hours during which she had sat in Nicholas Boyd's deserted room waiting for him to return. Ten o'clock! There was a little sound at the door behind her, and she turned her head as Boyd's man entered. He looked at her apologetically. "Shall I make up the fire, Miss?" "Thank you."

He moved forward quietly and stirred the dying embers into a weak blaze, adding more coal. "Mr. Boyd is late, Miss," he said. "Yes." George put up a hand and dragged off her hat; her head ached unbearably. She wondered what this man was thinking; he had seemed almost unwilling to admit her when she arrived. "I suppose he is coming back?" "Oh, yes, Miss." The man rose from his knees and looked at her. "Can I get you some coffee, or something warming?" he asked. "No, thank you." He turned to the door again and George asked: "Is it tonight Mr. Boyd is going away?" "By the midnight train, Miss." "Thank you."

She did not like to ask to what destination Nicholas was going. Where did midnight trains go? The door closed softly and she leaned her head on her hand. After Nelly left her that afternoon, she had felt that she did not care; she had had wild ideas of ringing Clifford Asher and of telling him that she had changed her

'Bet I Could Stay Awake The Whole Trip', Says Wiley Post As World Flight Nears

Wiley Post, the Oklahoma flier who two years ago circled the world with Harold Gatty and shared a record with him as a result, set his next mark at a solo. Here he is, with his plane Winnie Mae above and the world before him, with his projected route indicated.

New York, July 15.—(AP)—It would be hard to find anywhere a man more eager and hopeful before a dangerous adventure than Wiley Post, preparing for a solo flight around the world. The chunky Oklahoma pilot all along has put aside any doubt that he would be able to make a 15,400 mile trip by himself, and in less than 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes—the time record he holds with Harold Gatty, made in their epochal flight of the summer of 1931 over the same route. When Post was preparing his rebuilt Winnie Mae—the same ship he and Gatty used two years ago—for a take-off on his solo attempt some time in July, he gave much attention to his robot "relief pilot" which, upon the simple twisting of a few knobs on an instrument board is designed to hold the plane to a certain direction and altitude without the constant necessity of a nerve-racking, muscle-tiring grappling with the "stick." But even a nerveless robot needs fairly constant attention, says Post, thereby blowing up a fanciful dream that some mechanical master mind will direct his ship across the wastes while he peacefully sleeps. As for danger possible through any slight deviation from the course while the ship is under the robot's control— Well, says Post: "I'd be willing to bet anybody I could stay awake for the whole trip under pressure, without a single stop for rest."

"The best way to keep awake is to keep yourself hungry." And another interesting revelation: He will carry in one hand—all the way around the world, he said—a marble-sized lead ball. A string attached to the ball will be looped about one finger. Should he doze, the ball will fall from his hand, the string will yank his finger, and presto! he will be aroused and back on the job. It is a little stunt he learned from an old man in the oil fields of Oklahoma, when he was on a boiler firing job. That task required a steady vigil—a brief sleep might have brought disaster. And won't that simple hand contraction be a contrast to all the intricate gadgets which science has produced to make Mr. Post's flight simpler and safer!

How's Your Health

NASAL OBSTRUCTION

One should normally breathe through the nose. When this becomes difficult or impossible, we must suspect that it is due to nasal obstruction.

In children of school age the great majority of cases of nasal obstruction are due to an overgrowth of the adenoids.

In nursing infants nasal obstruction may be due to an enlargement of what is called the inferior turbinate, that is, the lower of the shell-like structures that extend into the nasal space.

Infants so affected experience great difficulty in nursing, because they are obliged to interrupt feeding in order to take a breath through the mouth. This condition in infants can be treated effectively by medicinal applications in the nose, which causes a shrinkage of the soft tissues of the turbinates.

After puberty, and as the individual reaches early adult life, adenoids become less and less important as a cause of nasal obstruction.

At this time enlargement of the turbinates, irregularities of the middle wall of the nose, projecting growths in the nose space called mucous polypi and infections of the head sinuses are the most common causes of nasal obstruction interfering with proper breathing.

Nasal obstruction when chronic leads to mouth breathing. The habit of breathing through the mouth may become fixed and may persist even when the adenoids or other obstructions have been removed. Hence it becomes necessary, particularly with children, to re-educate them in their breathing habits.

The child should be taught to keep the mouth closed, except when eating or speaking. When in bed the child should be encouraged to lie on the side.

Breathing exercises are also of value. The child immediately after getting up in the morning should be encouraged to clear its nose gently, and then, with the mouth tightly closed, to take ten or more breaths.

Scald them in vinegar and water one morning (1-2 vinegar and 1-2 water. Next day pack in glass jars and fill the jars with cold sweetened vinegar. (Equal parts vinegar and sugar). though at times they thought he was great.

We hear about the successes who have conquered the disheartening months of waiting; about Guy Kibbee, who spent a year going around to studios but had to go to New York to be signed for pictures; about Rita Johnson, who had a contract but never made a picture until she returned to New York; about Helen Mack, whose talent wasn't recognized by the studio that signed her until another studio rediscovered her; about Sylvia Sydney, Dorothy Jordan, Paul Muni—each of whom had somewhat similar experiences.

On The Other Hand

But we don't hear about the actors whom Hollywood beats—the ones for instance, who stuck it out two years, getting practically nowhere, until in disgust he went away to try his luck in the beer business.

This boy had "ins" pleading for him, too.

There is another side, of course, to such pleading. An actor recommended a friend to his director for a part, and the friend won it. After two days work he disappeared, and they found his blissfully drunk.

"He never recommended anybody since" says the actor. "Can you blame me?"

DEAN PITCHES LOCAL CLUB TO 3 TO 1 VICTORY

Greenville retaliated for the licking they received at the hands of Kinston here last Wednesday by trimming the Lenoir county lads yesterday afternoon at Kinston by the score of 3-1.

The victory enabled the locals to shove Ayden out of second place but it gave them no advantage for the top honors by reason of the fact that Snow Hill defeated Ayden and retained the precarious lead at the top of the standing of clubs column.

Greenville went to Ayden today and Kinston appeared in Snow Hill as the clubs attempted to gain an advantage over one another.

The Kinston-Greenville game yesterday developed into a pitchers' battle at the outset between "Lefty" Dean, youthful hurler of the Greenville club, and Douglass, Kinston ace.

Dean was in probably the finest form of the season and held Kinston at his mercy until the sixth frame when they succeeded in getting a lone tally over the rubber. He yielded only three hits and caused seven batsmen to whiff the air in a vain attempt to connect with his speed ball liberally interspersed with baffling curves.

It looked as if Douglass was going to let the visitors down with only goose eggs until the seventh frame when the visiting artillery cut loose and shoved three runners over the plate to put the game on ice. Douglass yielded nine hits and was credited with three strikeouts.

"Tick" Poole, Greenville outfielder and Smith, new second sacker, walked off with batting honors for the Greenville club, each accounting for two safeties which figured prominently in the scoring.

"Bing" Miller, Greenville third baseman, chalked up the longest drive of the day and when he quit running he rested at the third corner.

Surrett, Brinser and Roach for Kinston got in a safe lick apiece, the one by Roach going for an extra base.

The game was equally as exciting as that here Wednesday when a home run by Kinston with one man on base enabled them to trim the local club 2 to 1.

The only difference in the games was that the first game featured errorless ball whereas Greenville was credited with two bobbles yesterday as against Kinston three.

The box score.

WESTERN OPEN AT MEMPHIS REVIVES MEMORIES OF 1920

The veteran Chick Evans (right), who won the Western Open at Memphis 13 years ago, will be back giving the youngsters another battle July 24. Two of the younger crop who stand in Evans' path are Don Moe (left, above), the two-time champion, and Gus Moreland, defending titleholder.

By DILLON GRAHAM
Memphis, Tenn.—(AP)—For the second time in its history the Western Amateur Golf championship will be played in Dixie this year, over the Memphis country club course starting July 24.

Back in 1920, Memphis was host to the tournament in its first visit to the South. Then Bobby Jones was medalist and Chick Evans won the title.

The same Charles (Chick) Evans of Chicago, past his prime but still a very respected contender, likely will be among the fast field that lines up for the 36-hole qualifying round. Jones' competitive days are over, but just for old time's sake Bobby may be asked to play an exhibition round with Evans prior to the tourney.

Gus Moreland of Dallas, the young Walker cup star who won the crown a year ago, will be ready to defend his honors while there is a possibility that Ira Couch his final round opponent of last summer also will enter.

Goodman Invited
Don Moe of Portland, Ore., twice-champion, will be seeking another title. John Lehman of Chicago, medalist last year and champion in 1930 also may be a contender. Two threats from the Pacific coast are Charles Seaver and Hary Eichelberger of Los Angeles.

Johnny Goodman, national open king from Omaha, has been asked to enter. The south will send its best players. Sam Perry of Birmingham and Emmet Spicer of Memphis, both past Southern champions, have netered.

Others likely to participate are Charley Yates, Georgia champion of 1932; Eugene Vinson, Mississippi's best; Edwin McClure of Shavensport, La.; Billy Howell of Richmond, Va.; and Ralph Redmond of St. Petersburg, Fla., who recently won the Southern championship.

Accuracy will count heavily over the championship layout, where par is 70. The player who is hitting his

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

In a year that it witnessing a tremendous upheaval in sports and getting together all the time for those on top, it may be just as well that Primo Carnera has ousted Jack Sharkey as the heavyweight boxing champion.

The premium on monstrosities, after all, seems no worse from either the financial or artistic angles of the pugilistic industry than the pay-off on one of the most erratic careers in fighting history.

A majority of boxing critics long have felt that Sharkey naturally possessed the ability to be ranked among the greatest of modern heavyweights, but he disappointed them more often than he sustained their forecasts and he reached the end of the trail, knocked out, by a giant he had once pasted all over the Brooklyn baseball park.

Fumbled Biggest Chance
Sharkey never did the expected. He fumbled his biggest chance for fame against Jack Dempsey, who knocked him out while the sailor was about to complain of a low punch. Against a second-rater like Phil Scott, whom he figured to stow away in a few well-directed punches Sharkey was as wild as a rookie southpaw, flew into one of his tantrums and nearly lost the fight to a foul. He was disqualified against Max Schmeling in their first title fight and won the next time on a highly questionable decision.

Sharkey knocked out Maloney and Delaney, stopped McTigue and whipped Harry Wills, but he was outtauled by Risko, held to a draw by Heeney and also by Mickey Walker, an over-grown middleweight. Early in his career he was knocked out by a wild Chilean clubber, Romero Rojas. He looked to be the master of Carnera in their second fight until a right uppercut added one more and perhaps the final touch to baffling career.

Never a popular ring figure with the masses, as champion or challenger, Sharkey, himself realized it. If crowds didn't boo his introduction he thought something was wrong. His remarks after leaving the ring following his last knockout, was characteristic.

"Well, I suppose a lot of people are happy I was knocked out."

Some Time, Maybe
The knockout victories of Max Bear and Primo Carnera clearly pointed the way to decisive match between them for the heavyweight title this year, but the days are gone when the development of such a "natural" automatically guaranteed the match within reasonable time.

If Tex Rickard were alive it would be safe to wager they would be brought together in the ring while public interest and demand existed. Tex was too much of a showman to let any first-class attraction escape or be put in storage. As it is, Bear and Carnera are unlikely to fight before 1934 if then.

Jack Dempsey, with something of the old Rickard flair, would be quite willing to send his protégé, Bear, into title action this year, but Carnera will be in no hurry to risk his newly-won laurels.

He will have to be lionized at home in Italy, among other things, first. Moreover, the vast Venetian is cut up into so many financial "pieces" that it will take time to sort them out and achieve a majority agreement on procedure.

SUNDAY BASEBALL LAW REPEALED IN CHARLOTTE

Charlotte, July 15.—(AP)—Charlotte's city council instructed its attorney to draft an ordinance repealing one which bans Sunday baseball today but pointed out it could not legalize Sunday baseball because of a state law prohibiting it.

Council members declined after the special meeting to give definite statement of their policy on the Sunday sport but officials of the Charlotte club in the Piedmont League immediately announced that Winston-Salem would play here Sunday.

MAYOR Arthur Wearn when questioned what position the city administration would take if a Sunday game is played said police are sworn to enforce State laws as well as local ones.

A State statute of 1919, city attorney said, under a strict enforcement would prevent Sunday baseball. Durham is the only Piedmont club which has been playing on that day.

New York Cotton

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Cotton opened irregular but to sixteen higher on reports of success of the average reduction plan which was fully offset by disappointing Liverpool cables and reports of rain in Texas.

The opening advance met a great deal of profit taking by recent buyers who had evidently anticipated acreage cut action but it was absorbed on reaction of 17 to 20 points and the market steadied upon road ending of commission house buying.

December contracts after selling up to 12 even with previous high level at the start reacted to 11.79 but was holding around 11.91 at the end of the first half hour however with active months showing gains of 3 to 5 points. Futures closed easy 12 to 19 lower midnight 11.40.

MULE KICKS IN WIN

Snow Hill, July 14.—Mule Shireley's single, after Nems and Fulghum had walked, gave Snow Hill a 7-6 victory over Ayden here today.

The locals had to come from behind in the ninth with a run to tie. Nate Andrews, ace of the Interstate League hurlers, started for Snow Hill but was relieved by Cecil Longest in the eighth. Both Andrews and Longest have pitched at Carolina.

Each team got 14 hits. Walj and Stephenson, with three each, led Ayden. Catcher Ogden got four hits to top Snow Hill. Johnson, Allen and Flythe pitched and Stephenson caught for Ayden.
