Kidnapped Oil Millionaire Returned Home Unharmed

SEALED LIPS MARK RETURN OF URSCHEL

Oklahoma City Man Received Jubilantly At His Mansion; Spirited Away From Bridge Game July 22; Federal Government Launches Drive To Capture Abductors

Oklahoma City, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Charles S. Urschel, kidnapped oil millionaire came home today, unharmed and silent.

He streaked out of the rain across his threshold at the stroke of midnight ending nine days as the hostage of kidnapers whose swarthy machine gun man rushed him from a bridge game in his mansion the night of July 22.

Then, with but brief greetings for his jubilant family he went to bed in good health but very tired, said his spokesman.

With that word and little else the Urschels and their strategists sealed their lips. A statement was promised later today—but for the time being almost every question was turned away—the ransom if one was paid; the manner of negotiations; the plans of release.

Acting swiftly ten operators of the federal government and every available proper swung into the man hunt. For a week they had shunned the house indifference to Mrs. Urschel's plea that nothing be done to delay kidnapers' demand.

PREPARE FOR DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Here Busy As Bees For Semi-Annual Trade Event Thursday

Greenville merchants were busy as bees today getting in readiness for the semi-annual observance of Dollar Day here Thursday, August 3.

Around twenty merchants today had signified their intention of taking part in the bargain-giving event, always the greatest of the year, and indications were that hundreds of people would visit the city on that date to lay in a good supply of the offerings.

Shoppers have been urged to watch for widow display cards of participating merchants so that they may know where the values are being offered.

Dollar Day is observed twice annually as a means of splitting profits with shoppers and this year will be no exception.

People from a radius of a hundred miles or more have visited the city on Dollar Day in recent years and savings on their purchases were more than enough to pay transportation costs.

SEEK TO BRING CITY FALLING ROBBERIES HERE IN LINE WITH RECOVERY ACT

Sheriff Goes to Rocky Mount to Obtain Custody of Vanceboro Bandits

Sheriff Sam Whitehurst went to Rocky Mount today to attempt to return to his county three men who are alleged to have taken part in the filling station holdup near Vanceboro to expedite the investigation of their participation in other crimes in this section of the state.

The robbers, said to have escaped from the chain gang near Rocky Mount several weeks ago, are Clifford Thomas, Whitney Jones, and D. G. Traylor.

Thomas and Whitney were identified Sunday by Raymond Collins, operator of a filling station-store at Hanrahan's Cross Roads, Pitt county, as the men who shot him twice about two weeks ago in an unsuccessful attempt to rob his filling station. The bandits were frustrated by the screams of Mrs. Collins. Although two bullets inflicted wounds on each side of Collins' temple, his injuries were not considered necessarily serious.

The bringing of the three men here, it was believed, would expedite the investigation into crimes in other counties in this section, with which they were believed to have been connected.

Business houses that have signed the national recovery code are asked to notify the Reflector so that a list of their names may be published.

Seek Names of Firms Helping In Recovery Drive

General stories dealing with the campaign to bring a return of prosperity through adoption of the federal code for higher wages, shorter working hours and increased employment have been carried by the paper from time to time, but the only way the names of participants can be compiled is through each individual firm informing the paper of its action.

Please telephone or inform some member of the staff of what you have done, Mr. Business Man.

According to information received at the office of Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, the two men entered the home of a negro named Tyson, plundered through the house and left with the clothes and money in their possession.

The robbery took place while the family was engaged in handling tobacco and was discovered by a negro girl who ran to a tobacco barn and gave the alarm. The thieves had vanished when members of the family arrived.

Fast-Rising Boulder Dam Man's Monument

By W. B. CLAUSEN

Boulder City, Nevada.—(AP)—In the great American desert is rising a monument to man, the boulder. Every great age has produced its builders. Great works to serve the ever-expanding needs of man have marked the course of civilization.

America's newest step in this progress is the task of harnessing the Colorado river, so as to build up a great empire in the southwest. Cost Estimated $385,000,000

The Boulder canyon project is well on its way. Its completion within a few years will mark the expenditure of $385,000,000, providing electrical power energy of 1,800,000 horsepower and water for reclamation of 2,100,000 acres.

A monumental dam, nearly twice the height of any yet built, will create a reservoir holding 5,000 gallons of water for every human being on earth.

This dam, now rising rapidly, will reach a height of 750 feet above bedrock. Its power house will develop more energy than the three great American works—Niagara, Muscle Shoals and Conowingo combined.

This will consist of folk games, dancing, free playing and athletic contests for older boys. In addition, there will be classes in sewing and other things of this kind. There will also be stunts for all to take part in.

Mrs. Robeson said it would not be necessary for children to remain throughout the period but that they might attend at any hour while the playgrounds are open.

The movement will be conducted through the office of J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, and funds will be furnished through the Reconstruction corporation.

NEW NURSE FOR COUNTY

Colored Health Worker Attached to Staff of Public Health Department

Georgia King Battle, public health nurse joined the Pitt county Health Department today for general nursing in colored public schools and communities.

The nurse was formerly in the employ of the local health department having been connected with the fight launched here by various public health organizations of the nation as an experiment in the control of venereal diseases among the colored people.

The woman was described by public health officials as highly capable and energetic and did a world of good in educating negroes on health matters.

She has had wide experience and training in general nursing, and in view of the spread of tuberculosis among the colored people, health officials expressed belief she would play an important part in helping control this disease.

Dr. R. S. McGeechey, director of the Public Health Department, urged the public, and especially white people, to give the colored nurse all cooperation and encouragement possible as she attempts to improve the general health condition of her race and helps halt the spread of tuberculosis.

ROTARY HEAD SPEAKS HERE

Dr. Roscoe McMillan Makes First Official Visit To Greenville Organization

Emphasizing the need of idealism in the application of Rotary, Dr. Roscoe McMillan, of Red Springs, Governor of the 57 District of Rotary, spoke at the regular meeting of the local club last night.

Making the first official visit of his administration, Dr. McMillan and Mrs. McMillan arrived in Greenville yesterday afternoon and were the guests of K. W. Cobb, president of the Greenville club, and Mrs. Cobb, during their stay here.

At 5 o'clock Dr. McMillan conferred with department heads and officials of the club regarding the extent of the work here and advised them of the program of the international organization during the new year.

He expressed himself as highly gratified with the showing of the Greenville club, which is the first club in the world to win its own building, and said last night that if other clubs did half as good as Greenville, the year would be exceptionally successful.

Wives and sweethearts of club members attended the gathering last night and heard the new district governor make the first official address of his administration. His coming to Greenville was the fulfillment of a promise he made members of the local club prior to his election at the annual district convention a few weeks ago, and he recalled the incident as he started speaking.

K. W. Cobb presided and the program and singing was in charge of J. B. Kittrell.

Following the singing of club songs and supper, Mrs. Herbert Waldrop, sweetheart of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion, the Rotary club and every other organization that can lay claim to the title, delightfully rendered two songs. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. A. Tyson, club pianist. Mrs. Waldrop was liberally applauded at the conclusion of the program.

President Cobb presented Mrs. McMillan and then her husband.

Dr. McMillan discussed "The Privileges of Rotary" and called to the attention of his hearers many important objectives of the organization to improve the thousands of communities which it serves in many parts of the world.

He told them to forget the critic. (Continued on page five)

Sand Lugs Bringing Around 10 to 15 Cents a Pound and Primings 15 to 25 Cents; Growers Express Pleasure at Improved Prices Over Last Year; Buyers Say Crop is Better Than Last Year

Atlanta, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Telegrams protesting opening prices offered for tobacco were sent from Adele and Hahira today to federal and state officials as the crop went on sale throughout South Georgia.

A mass meeting of farmers and business men and tobacco warehousemen at Hahira, heard protest against opening prices said to be from 3 to 18 cents, per pound, depending on the grade.

Messages were sent to President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace asking for a grade scale and price adjustment.

It was said that all warehousemen in the state would be communitated with on the plan and in the meantime the farmers there agreed to sell no more tobacco until the seat of government is heard from.

G. C. Adams, commissioner of agriculture, received protest from Adele. He said opening prices were reported ranging from 3 to 18 cents the latter for fancy grades, where as the growers had expected an extra fancy grade to bring 20 cent a pound.

The meeting at Hahira heard speeches from Mayor E. J. Webb and others and then dispatched the telegrams to President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace.

The commissioner made public a telegram bearing the signatures J. S. Jones, chairman; E. S. Bruton, saying a mass meeting of growers was held today in Adele at which it was "determined that on the opening of the market this date the prices offered are below the cost of production."

Adams said he had telephoned various persons at Adele and was informed that low grades of tobacco sand lugs were selling as low as three cents, five cents and six cents. "I was told that some of the finer grades sold at 14 cents and some extra fancy grades at 18 cents whereas the growers had reason to expect that the better grades would bring more than thirty cents a pound."

J. S. Green, director of the state bureau of markets, talked by phone with several of the tobacco market centers, Nashville, Ga., he said, reported about 150,000 pounds on the boards with prices averaging about 16 cents a pound.

A warehouse operator at Metter said there were about 100,000 pounds there and that lugs were averaging about 12 cents.

"Some dissatisfaction with prices were reported among growers," he said. A Statesboro warehouse said growers were well pleased there and that prices were running from 13 to 16 cents.

Two warehouses at Vidalia reported about 350,000 pounds against 75,000 last year with the average price for lugs 13 cents.

An average of around 11 cents mostly for lugs, was reported by one warehouse at Adele where 276,000 pounds were on the floor compared with 150,000 pounds last year.

Pelham unofficially reported two warehouses open with most good lugs averaging around 20 cents.

Tifton, Ga., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The tobacco market opened here today with heavy offerings and prices higher than last year's opening day. Sand lugs bringing 10 to 15 cents a pound and primings 15 to 25 cents. Growers expressed pleasure at the prices and early sales were taken to indicate that the leaf would sell at an average of around 15 cents. Very few sales were made today at below 10 cents and tobacco of all grades sold better than last year's (Continued on Page Two)

GREENVILLE SPANKED BY WILLIAMSTON

After a winning streak that entrenched them firmly at the top of the Coastal Plain league, the Greenville club had the wind partly knocked out of their sails yesterday when they were defeated by Williamston by the score of 9 to 3.

Praise to the guardian of ball games the licking did not figure in the standing of the league clubs, and fans and players felt some better because of this fact.

However, this doesn't detract from the glory of the visitor's victory. With basis apparently charged with dynamite or nitroglycerine, Williamston players slammed out a total of eleven hits off two Greenville hurlers and made the majority of the bingles count for actual tallies—the things that win ball games.

Taylor started off doing mound duty but was yanked in the third frame in favor of Bob Forbes who succeeded in halting the rally of the visitors.

FAST RISING BOULDER DAM MAN'S MONUMENT

 started in June, a year and half ahead of the schedule fixed in 1931. Five and a half million barrels—a year's national supply—of cement will be used.

WANT ADS PAY

SPORT SLANTS

In no other sport has the loss of American prestige been so pronounced and painful as has been the case now for six years in Davis Cup tennis.

You may point to boxing, where the highly prized heavyweight championship of the world has gone first to Germany and subsequently to Italy in recent campaigns but I have found very few indeed bemoaning the decline in American fist stock, whereas the defeats of Wilmer Allison and Ellsworth Vines by the British have been taken very much to heart by our sporting fraternity.

These setbacks are especially bitter medicine to our athletic patriots because the United States has for so many years dominated nearly all amateur competition among the leading nations.

Our polo players are superior to any others. Our golfers with a lapse here and there, have proved the best. Our track and field performers, despite some individual embarrassment, sweep the Olympic point columns. Our swimmers, even though the men yielded to Japan's rising stars in the Olympics, still hold most of the world records. Not even Jack Lovelock can alter the fact that we still boast two of the three fastest millers in the universe.

Since 1927, when the French beat back Tilden and Johnston at Germantown, our tennis campaigns have been a story of one dismal failure after another. If it didn't develop that faith had been misplaced or that our boys were affected by the pressure of international competition, it turned out that the "breaks" were against them, or that the opposition was stronger. In succession, John Hennessey, George Martin Lott, Jr., Frank Hunter, Big Bill Tilden, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., Frank Shields, Wilmer Allison and Ellsworth Vines Jr., have been tried and mostly found wanting in the singles.

The sad story, mates, is that in six successive trips abroad, twice beaten by England in the inter-zone finals and four times in the Challenge Round by France, our players have a record of only five singles victories against 19 defeats. Tilden registered three of these triumphs against the French, in 1928-29-30. Shields pulled out one victory against the British in 1931 and Vines beat Cochet in 1932.

It is easy, of course, to point the well known finger of criticism. Varying factors have upset the best laid plans, but the clear fact is that the United States failed to learn the lesson taught them by the French. We have had no definite, persistent program of preparation and strategy.

Our forces have tried "spring training." They have tried overworking chosen stars and they have under-trained them. They have kept players from Wimbledon or sent them there, as policies dictated but neither procedure seemed effective in the slightest; this year. They have tried both "brains" and "brute force."

At all events, too much pressure has been put upon our boys and, if you put stock in the stories of players like Tilden and Wood, entirely too much official advice and interference has been handed them abroad. For the past two years too much confidence and ballyhoo has been developed in advance.

CITY FALLING IN LINE WITH RECOVERY PLAN

 reducing working hours and increasing employment.
 Codes for general business men were delivered last week and around fifteen had been returned to the post office today. The signers received the "NRA" emblem signifying cooperation with the federal movement to revive business along with other advertising matter in connection with the campaign.

The government will issue an honor roll containing the names of signers in the near future and this will be posted in the postoffice and carried in the columns of newspaper so that people may see who is doing their part by the administration drive to deal a death blow to Old Man Hard Times.
 While numbers of business houses had temporarily adopted the 48-hour code others were awaiting the working out of a proposed permanent code to be submitted to the recovery administration.
 The nature of this had not been determined but it will be elastic enough to permit various branches of business to deal with the question in a way most expedient to the lines of business involved.
 A and P Stores of the city announced they would adopt the recovery code and would operate in the future according to its provisions. Pender's stores here were preparing to take similar action, it was said.

Private reports received by the Daily Reflector today from Greenville tobaccoconists on Georgia markets indicated an average of between 13 and 15 cents a pound was being paid on the opening day there.
 From W. Z. Morton at Nashville came the statement that the average there would be 13 cents. He said the opening break was not very heavy but that the quality was good. Nashville growers were said to be well pleased. The crop was estimated at 60,000,000 pounds for the state.
 J. S. Morton wired from Blackshear that the average would be about 15 cents with light sales the opening day.
 The estimated average at Tifton on the opening day last year was around 10 cents a pound.

RECEPTION AND PROFESSION AT BELMONT, N. C.

Belmont, N. C., July 31.—The chapel of the Sacred Heart Convent at Belmont was the scene of a beautiful and impressive ceremony on Tuesday afternoon, July 18th, when two young ladies received the habit of the Sisters of Mercy. They were Miss Marie Sabian of Agana, the Island of Guam, and Miss Ada Jones of Greenville, N. C. In religion they will be known, respectively, as Sister Mary Mercedes and Sister Mary Josephine.

When the two postulants, dressed as brides, entered the chapel escorted by the Mother Superior and the Mistress of Novices, the sweet strains of "O Gloriosa Virginum" flooded the chapel. The procession then approached the altar which was beautifully decorated with pink gladiolas and roses and a multitude of candles, while the side chapels were heavily embanked with ferns. After the brides of Christ had received from the hands of the Right Reverend Abbot Vincent Taylor, O. S. B., the candle which is symbolic of inward light, the Reverend Abbot delivered a sermon on the Religious Life. He reminded his hearers of the young man in the Gospel, who having kept the commandments of God from his youth came to our Lord, asking what he might do to become perfect.

"In every age there are souls," he said, "who are not content to follow the broad highway that skirts the base of the mountain of perfection, and they forsake the broader way for the narrow, tortuous, and winding path which leads to the summit." These young women, he explained, had done this in entering upon the religious state.

"The vows of religion, poverty, chastity and obedience strip the soul of the things that would keep her from mounting this steep and narrow way: Poverty, by detaching her from the goods of the world; Chastity, from all earthly affections, or rather by elevating them to the realm of the heavenly; and Obedience, by her entire renunciation of self will." The Right Reverend Abbot concluded by bestowing on the postulants his blessing, and they retired to exchange their bridal array for the beautiful habit of the Sisters of Mercy with its deep signification. The reception ceremony closed with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Many friends of the Sisters were present from Charlotte, Oxford, MI.

Underweight Children
Need More Iron in Their Blood!

Children who are thin and pale and who lack appetite are usually suffering from a deficiency of iron. When the blood lacks iron it becomes thin and poor and fails to nourish. Then a child loses appetite and becomes still thinner and weaker—and easy prey to disease!

To build up your child, give him Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It contains iron which makes for rich, red blood. It also contains tasteless quinine which tends to purify the blood. These two effects make it an exceptional medicine for young and old. A few days on Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic will work wonders in your child. It will sharpen his appetite, improve his color and build up his pep and energy and increase his resistance to disease. Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is pleasant to take. Children like it and it's absolutely safe for them. Contains nothing harmful. All stores sell Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Get a bottle today and see how your child will benefit from it.

THE FRENCH PHONE AND FAIR RATES

(News and Observer) Nothing so eloquently illustrates the helplessness of a people dependent upon an indifferent or an unpotent public utility commission...

Despite the stringency of the depression years North Carolina telephone users generally have been paying for service at the peak rate...

Tumbling incomes, tumbling costs of doing business were not reflected in telephone rentals.

Now, the Commission is in a fair way to permit the unlimited perpetration of the injustices of the past few years.

Essentially, the reasonableness of these reductions—and some of them in reason are pitifully small—is in no way dependent on the extraordinary conditions of the past few years.

The HIDDEN DOOR

By Frank L. Packard

SYNOPSIS: Before he was shot in the parlor of Collin Hewitt, the writer, Reddy Turner had exacted a promise from Collin that the latter would deliver a letter hidden in Reddy's room.

Chapter Eight THE CURTAIN POLE

He was in the hall now, and there he stood still again, this time to listen. Faintly, from upstairs somewhere, he could hear men's voices, a snatch of laughter and, unless he was far wide of the mark, the rattle of chips.

There was no light to be seen anywhere; but again the moonlight, aided him, for the front doors were glass-paneled and a streak of it, filtering in lay along the hall.

He started forward; but, as he tiptoed silently down the hall, he became all at once conscious of a sense of eeriness, coupled with a sort of panicky impulse to hurry and get it all over and done with as quickly as possible.

But somehow he did not feel at all debonair, not nearly so nonchalant as he had felt in the cab. It was easier to write about this sort of thing!

There were two doors that opened off the righthand side of the hall. He passed the first, reached the second. This was the room that had once been Reddy's and was now occupied by Gutch Connal.

A sudden disturbing suggestion occurred to him. Butch Connal was away, but any one of Butch's crowd might be bunking up in there for the night. Nonsense! His lips firm-ed. He tried the door. Locked, of course.

His keys came into play again. The first one would not work—nor the second. He was not so good, after all! He made a third attempt with a third key, and this time, after persisting for a moment, he was successful.

He pushed the door open a few inches at a time, silently, and peered into the room. There was only one window—a bay window that looked out to the rear, and the curtains that hung across the bay window forming a sort of little alcove, were not quite drawn.

Collin slipped through the doorway, closed the door quietly, and stepped swiftly across the room to the window. Behind the portieres in the window bay was a chair. He passed behind the curtains and, standing on the chair, reached up for the heavy brass curtain pole.

It came away readily enough from its supports as he lifted it, but its weight, even though the pole was of course hollow, combined with the weight of the heavy portieres, was so much more than he had expected that it nearly caused him to lose his balance.

"Thank you!" he said curtly. "Tell me how."

"Aw," sniffed the man contemptuously, "there was nothing to it! I was waiting just around the corner with a car where I could watch that dinky little alleyway of yours in case you came out. I didn't know whether I'd need a car or not, but I had it there. See?"

DOOMED TO DEATH FOR KIDNAPING

For example, the French telephone, so called! For the use of this little gadget over which the movies have cast an aura of sophistication, the telephone companies have been charging a rental of fifty cents.

Under the existing rate, the telephone user must pay the entire capital cost of his instrument within a few months, but he never acquires title to it.

The proposed reduction of the charge from fifty to twenty-five cents is welcome but it goes a short, a very short way toward establishing the telephone service on a basis of reasonableness.

Essentially, the reasonableness of these reductions—and some of them in reason are pitifully small—is in no way dependent on the extraordinary conditions of the past few years.

He probed, with his fingers into the hollow of the pole. The envelope, twisted into a roll, was there. He pulled it out, flattened it into shape, and thrust it into his pocket.

The door from the hall was being stealthily opened. The blood for an instant whipped through Collin's veins, pounding at his eardrums, and then a cold, unnatural calm settled upon him.

Collin's lips tightened into a straight line. It seemed as though there had endured an eternity of time since he had first seen that door begin to open, though in reality he knew it could have been but scarcely more than the passing of a second.

"Don't move!" snarled the man. "You've got your hands above your head—keep 'em there!"

Collin's mind was delving, probing swiftly. What was he to do? Not a nice situation. Not likely, but there was always the possibility that one of Butch Connal's crowd, or one of the gangsters who lodged in the house had seen him come in here, if not, then the Mask, both by telephone and physical contact through proxy—for, disguised or not, it was a certainty that this was not the Mask in person—was becoming ubiquitous tonight.

"All right, but this thing's heavy," Collin complained; then coolly, "And may I ask what you are doing here, and who you are?"

"You're kind of fresh, ain't you?" snapped the other. "Hell, you won't be so fresh when I'm through with you! See? It don't matter who I am. What matters is that you are a guy named Collin Hewitt."

"I am," Collin admitted. "But how do you know?"

"You're some talker, ain't you?" sneered the man. "I don't need to see you map. I followed you here from your dump, that's how I know."

"Oh, no you didn't!" Collin retorted confidently. "I'm quite sure of that."

"Sure, you're sure!" the man chuckled evilly. "Gummed up your trail and kept your eyes open, didn't you? You're a hot detective writer, you are! Maybe if you get out of this alive, which the chances are you won't, you'll be able to hand out some of the real goods for a change. You were a laugh with your head going around like it was on a swivel trying to make sure no one was lamping you."

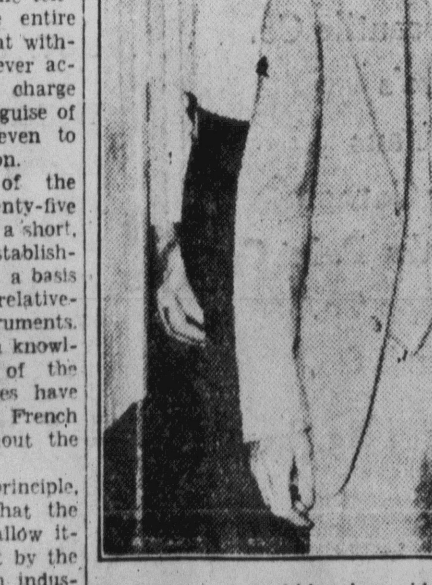

Collin's ire rose. All doubt that he was dealing with one of the Mask's tools was gone now, and it was obviously true that he had been outwitted, but this arraignment was a bit stiff.

"Thank you!" he said curtly. "Tell me how."

"Aw," sniffed the man contemptuously, "there was nothing to it! I was waiting just around the corner with a car where I could watch that dinky little alleyway of yours in case you came out. I didn't know whether I'd need a car or not, but I had it there. See?"

WHITE HOUSE MOVES TO HYDE PARK FOR AUGUST

To escape the heat in Washington during most of the sultry month of August, President Roosevelt has moved the seat of government to a cooler site on the banks of the Hudson river. Intent upon his recovery drive, the President took with him an office staff to maintain full command of governmental affairs from the family residence at Hyde Park, N. Y. (Associated Press Photos) half a block. I passed your taxi and after that I kept you in sight behind. When you got uptown a bit where there was more traffic, you passed me. Get it? And when your taxi stopped on Fifth Avenue I was going by you at about sixty per.

"I didn't have to worry any more. I knew where you were going then, and I didn't mind giving you a few minutes to get your work in so's I could get the goods on you—like I have."

The curtain pole was heavy. But it was only in a sort of subconscious way that Collin was aware his arms were beginning to ache with the strain. He was trapped. He had meddled—and been caught in the act. And Reddy's letter was in his pocket.

"Thanks," he said again curtly. "You have refused to introduce yourself, but I suppose, after all, that would be superfluous. As I take it, you are representing a certain personage known to both of us as the Mask, and—"

"Cut it out!" interrupted the man savagely. "You've gassed plenty. We'll get down to cases."

A sudden inspiration dawned in Collin's mind. Grim, swift humor, an ironic laugh at himself was in his soul. It was what he would have had his "daring and resourceful" hero do, of course, if he had been writing the scene. Well, if it was plausible, there was a chance, an even chance—if he could bait the trap. This thing weighed a ton.

How much longer could he stand here balanced on the chair like some trick performer on a stage? (To Be Continued)

(Continued from page one) clam of those who sit around forever on the alert to complain and belittle the efforts of the men who really are striving to make the world just a little better than they found it when they burst in upon the game without their consent and will make their exit the same way.

The speaker said it was impossible to define Rotary. He described it as combining some of the features of all great organizations of the country, in that it is trying to build character and improve citizenship.

He pointed to the splendid opportunity for service of the club with fellowship the world over, and declared that the progress of all nations goes back to the individual.

Challenging the club to build character for the security of future generations, the Red Springs physician declared the success of the world depended upon the building of a higher type of life.

He urged members to become idealists and to carry the spirit of their organization into all phases of business, permitting it to count for all it is worth. He said this was an opportune time to extend club activities, and asked that the whole territory be covered in an effort to enlist more in the effort to improve public life.

ASKS $23,750 DAMAGES BECAUSE OF ACCIDENT

New Bern, Aug. 1.—Suit for $23,000 has been filed here in superior court by W. Henry Henderson against William B. Blades, alleging that as result of an automobile accident last October 15 near Garner he had hospital bills of $1,250 and suffered permanent and total disability for which he asks $23,750. D. L. Ward is attorney for Mr. Henderson.

In the complaint, the plaintiff states that on October 14, 1932, he rode toward Raleigh with the defendant in the latter's Chrysler sedan, as a passenger and invited guest. He said that he was convalescing from a prolonged illness, and was not supposed to have any excitement. In spite of his pleadings, Mr. Blades drove in an "unlawful, reckless, negligent and careless manner at a speed of approximately 65 miles an hour."

UNTIL WE LEARNED BETTER

Until we learned better, we used to mix wood and steel in our car bodies and wheels. It was the best way to make bodies—then. But the state of the art has advanced. Of course, it is more expensive to make an all-steel body than to make a wooden frame and nail steel panels on to it. The better way involves an initial expenditure of several millions of dollars for new dies, which renders a change very costly. Cars, especially large expensive cars which are produced in small volume, cannot afford this, because the dies cost as much for one car as for a million. That alone explains why all-steel bodies are not used in all cars. But our basic policy from the beginning is to make a good car better, regardless of cost. For example, when we discarded wood-steel body construction, it was not because we lacked wood. We still have some thousands of acres of the best hard wood in America. Economy would urge us to use up the wood first, and then adopt the better all-steel body. But we decided that quality was more important than expense. We weighed the reasons, for and against, before we made the change. We could see only one reason for retaining a mixed wood-and-steel body—nailing the metal on, instead of welding an all-steel body into a strong one-piece whole. That reason was, it would be cheaper—for us. Our reasons for adopting an all-steel body were these: A wood-steel body is not much stronger structurally than its wooden frame. In all American climates, wood construction weakens with age. Every used car lot gives evidence of this. Rain seeps in between joints and the wood decays. A car may have a metal surface, and yet not be of steel construction. Under extreme shock or stress the steel body remains intact—dented perhaps, but not crushed. Steel does not need wood for strength or protection. Wood is fine for furniture, but not for the high speed vehicles of 1933. In the Ford body there are no joints to squeak, no seams to crack or leak. The all-steel body is more expensive—to us, but not to you. By all odds, then, steel bodies seem preferable. Wheels also have become all-steel. No one argues that an electrically welded one-piece steel wheel, such as the Ford wheel, needs to be "strengthened" by adding wood to it. The one-piece all-steel body is the strongest, safest, quietest, most durable body made. That is our only reason for making them.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady two to nine higher on active trade and New Orleans buying.

Trading was active at the start. Offerings were readily absorbed by covering and trade and commission house buying.

While fluctuations were somewhat irregular the market at the end of the first half hour was 6 to 16 net higher.

Buying was stimulated later in the morning by the firmness of the grain market while offerings were comparatively light after the heavy liquidation of yesterday.

December sold up to 10.77 and May 11.07 with active months showing gains of about 39 to 44 points at midday.

Futures closed steady, 30 to 39 higher. Spots quiet; middling 10.40. (Courtesy Speight & Co.)

Stock Market

New York, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Wall street slumped under the rays of a tropical sun today and securities trading wilted perceptibly in the humidity.

After an early feeble rally the stock market lapsed into slumber, and at times the ticker tape scarcely moved.

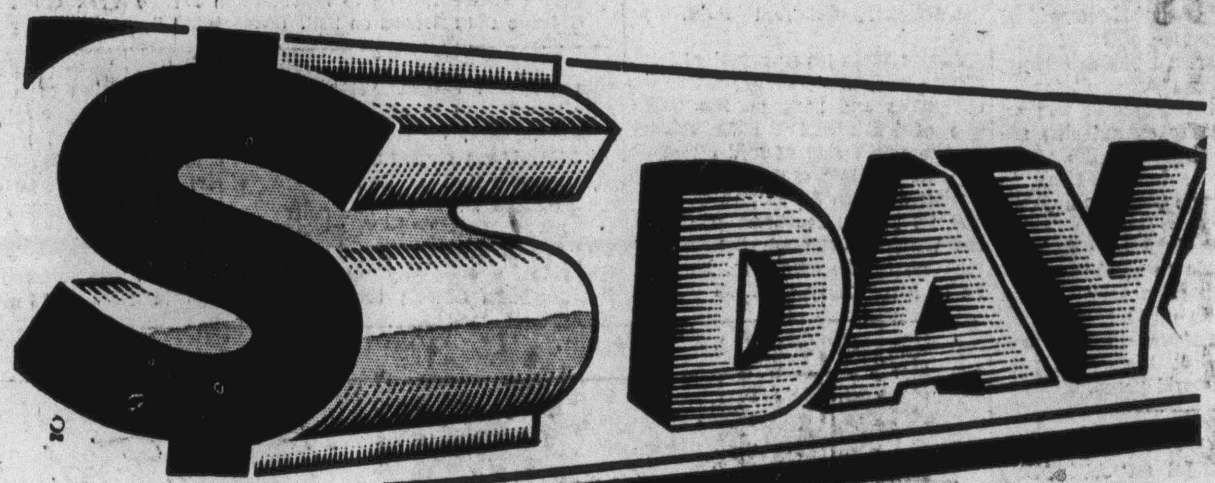

It was one of the duller sessions of the 1933 bull market.

While most stocks appeared only infrequently indifferent a number of moderate price gains were maintained.

Even the newly encouraged bears were quiet.

Shares of Case got up around 5 points in response to the comeback in staples. Alcohol issues up one to about two included U. S. Reach for a Lucky

I feel closer to my cigarette each time I smoke

I really can't help it. After all, one does develop a personal regard for a thing that comes in such intimate contact with one's lips. And since I am a woman, I do appreciate the fact that my Lucky Strike never offends my fastidious sense of daintiness. Men smile at my feminine reasoning. To them the character of Luckies' fine tobaccos seems more important. But my woman's intuition tells me that the purity of "Toasting" is never to be forgotten. And so, the more I smoke, the closer I feel to my cigarette.
