About 500 men were ordered to Managua from Leon and guards were stationed at the arsenal. In the meantime the government ordered an investigation to determine whether the blast was accidental or intentional.

Early reports were that thirty guards had been killed or wounded but a subsequent official statement said there had been no fatalities and the injured totaled only four.

D. G. TRAYLOR BROUGHT HERE

Alleged Member of Hanrahan's Holdup Transferred From Rocky Mount

D. G. Traylor of Edenton, who has been held in the Rocky Mount jail the last several days in connection with the holdup of Oscar Paramore's filling station near Vaneboro last week, was brought to Pitt county yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Sam Whitehurst for alleged complicity in the holdup of Raymond Collins' gas station-store at Hanrahan's Cross Roads about two weeks ago.

The sheriff also sought to return Clifton Thomas, of Edenton, and Whitney Jones, of Lenoir county, held in the Vaneboro robbery, for alleged connection with the Collins' case, but Rocky Mount authorities refused to release him in the absence of head authorities.

The sheriff said he would probably seek a court order for the two men in an effort to obtain their custody. All three were turned over to the chancery at Rocky Mount from which they escaped about three weeks ago, after serving sometime on larceny charges, but the sheriff said he believed they should be turned over to Pitt county on account of the recent crime committed here.

BOUND OVER TO COURT ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Albemarle, Aug. 2.—Following a preliminary hearing in county court yesterday, A. L. Corriber was remanded to jail without bond to await trial in superior court for the murder of C. S. Bowers near the city of Sunday afternoon, July 16. The only witness introduced by the State was John Bowers, father of the slain man who testified that the shooting of his son was unwarranted for any reason, and was the result of a frenzied anger following a fight between the elder Bowers and Corriber earlier in the day.

GOVERNMENT WILL LAUNCH BUYING DRIVE

Supplement to Recovery Act Announced Today as Johnson Starts Hearing on New Code

Washington, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Plans for a nation-wide purchasing drive to supplement the government work spreading-wage raising program were disclosed today by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, in opening hearings on code of competition for the cotton garment and kindred industries.

"We know that unless your goods are moved off your shelves you cannot keep your part in this program," he said incisively.

"The time is approaching," he said, "and the signal will be, merely the certainty that this plan is working—that people are back at work with certainty this is no flash in the pan."

"When the moment comes—and I think it is almost here—I am going to supplement our present program by adding a request to all consumers that they bend for re-employment."

"The only reason we have delayed what we didn't want to repeat the mistakes of the past."

"It would be unfair to ask people to spend until it was safe for them to do so."

Johnson said the "buy now" movement sometime ago was unsuccessful because it asked people to spend reserves which they needed to guard carefully. He also criticized the "share the work" movement.

PEP MEETING 'FLOP' HERE

No Band, No Speaker, No Crowd Causes Abandonment of Baseball Meeting

The baseball pep meeting which was to have been held at the courthouse last night was described today by promoters as an abject "flop." In other words, not sufficient pep could be aroused among fans to get things moving toward the courthouse—consequently no meeting was held.

A band was supposed to have given a concert but when the hour for the scheduled meeting arrived, no band was on hand.

And to further handicap things, Judge Albion Dunn, who was to have made the principal speech, telephoned it would be impossible for him to do so.

So, in a nutshell, boosting of the baseball club will have to be left to some future date, when the band feels like puffing out a tune or so and when folks can muster sufficient pep to be on hand.

Even with business in its depressed state, the Leipzig Fair expects to display 9,000 of the newest industrial products of 25 countries next spring.

TAXPAYERS SEEK RELIEF UNTIL NOV. 1

Judge Frizzelle Issues Order on Behalf of Delinquent Tax Payers; Hearing in Case Set For August 12

An order restraining Pitt county officials from advertising 1933 delinquent taxes before November 1, was filed with the Clerk of Superior court here today. The commissioners had decided to begin advertising September 1.

The order bore the signature of J. Paul Frizzelle, of Snow Hill, resident Judge of the Fifth Judicial District, and a hearing in the case has been set for August 12 at 3 o'clock in the judge's chambers at Snow Hill.

The plaintiffs were required to post bond of $200 pending hearing of the case. The order was signed July 27.

The restraining order was obtained by D. S. Spain, J. H. Bell, and G. W. Venters, and Judge F. M. Wooten, one of the leaders in the Pitt County Tax Relief Association acted as legal representative.

The complaint, contained three typewritten pages, declared the action was taken "on behalf of the plaintiffs as well as other delinquent taxpayers of Pitt county who desire to make themselves parties to the action."

Designating themselves as landowners, the plaintiffs declared that they are "informed and believe and thereupon allege that if the defendant is permitted to carry out the orders included in their recent resolution that it will cause these plaintiffs irreparable loss and damage."

It was also contended that to advertise sale of real property in August, 1933, and to make sale thereon in effect to collect 1932 taxes thereon would incur an expense against the defendant that would cause unnecessary expense of several thousand dollars against the 1932 delinquent tax payers in this county.

The complaint also stated "that if the defendant is at this time temporarily restrained and enjoined from advertising said property as it now threatens to do, that a very great deal of said delinquents taxes will be paid in full prior to November 1, 1933, and thereby save thousands of dollars to the tax payers of Pitt county, including the plaintiffs, in the way of unnecessary cost and penalties."

It was further stated that if the defendant be restrained and enjoined from advertising property of 1932 delinquent tax payers as in said resolution such restraint and injunction would cause the defendants no loss in taxes levied, no embarrassment as to current operations and no interruption of any of the functions of government in any department of the county.

TOUGH TO BE ROYAL SAYS PRINCESS ALICE

London, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The silence of a long suffering British royal family has been broken by Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone who protests that its members are not robots with endurance to match for him to do so.

Substituting at a cornerstone ceremony for the Princess Royal, who was indisposed by the overstrain of numerous engagements, she said: "The public should not expect the royal family to be endowed with physical endurance they would not expect of any other class of people."

"We are not really robots. But it is our pleasure to help, when we can, all causes to promote welfare of all people suffering."

Declines Earlier Opening

Danville, Va., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Tobacco Association of the United States declined again today to open the South Carolina market earlier than August 15.

The action was taken despite a specific request of the federal department filed by George N. Peek of Washington, administrator.

Mr. Peek said that South Carolina farmers lacked necessities and that their leaf is ready for market and already is being damaged.

A. B. Carrington, president of the association, denied that the farmers were being doing an injustice and said that the time for making the change is now too short.

He wired Peek that the sales committee of the association had given careful consideration to the matter and after two meetings still felt that the change should not be made.

NEW PUBLIC WORK SCHEME IS ANNOUNCED

Proposal For Improving Large Slum Districts Receive Attention

Washington, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Several large public works schemes of a non-federal character and including a group of proposals for slum clearance may be acted upon tomorrow by the Public Works Administration.

Officials declined to make known the cities for which the housing units were being considered but said they had laid down a broad policy that the monthly rental per unit for housing units should be under $10.

The policy under which the public works administration is working is that the cost should be sufficiently low to warrant success of the unit and permit tenants to move into them from slum areas.

The public works administration has passed the billion dollar mark in its grants for public works schemes but the larger part of this has been for federal projects mainly because work on them could be begun immediately to afford re-employment and aid purchasing power.

The fund totals $3,300,000,000.

Two small emergency loans for community projects were announced today by the administration, one of $35,000 to Fort Pierce, Florida, where the electric light plant was damaged by recent storms and another of $20,000 to Morrison, Colo., to repair the municipal water works system affected by a flood.

The loans are to be repaid with interest at 4 per cent.

ARREST TWO BANK ROBBERS

Arrest Made at Tarboro After One Bandit Was Married in Pitt County

Nashville, N. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two young New Yorkers, one of them a bridegroom, today faced charges of robbing the Planters Bank of Battleboro—all on account of an early morning auto accident and the serial number on a pistol.

The two, George Dell, truck driver, and Robert Richards, a mechanic, were arrested at Tarboro yesterday after an auto accident that occurred as they were returning from Pitt county where Richards had married a Tarboro girl, Mary Green.

MORE STORES BEHIND MOVE FOR RECOVERY

Several Firms Fall in Line With President Roosevelt's Plans Today

Greenville business houses continued today to fall in step with the federal government's effort to put Old Man Depression on the run and bring a return of prosperity to the American people.

Although it was impossible to obtain the names of all firms taking part in the movement, when the Recovery Code became effective yesterday, several business houses today notified the Daily Reflector that they were backing President Roosevelt to the limit.

Previously the same sentiment was expressed at a meeting of business men at the city hall when it was decided to wire Secretary Hugh Johnson that the merchants of Greenville were with him. This action was taken while merchants turned their attention to compiling a code for presentation to the recovery administrator.

Stores signing the code and obtaining the "NRA" emblem so far reported today are: Baker-Davis, both stores; W. L. Best, C. M. Warren, J. C. Penney, Moseley Brothers, J. A. Watson, two stores, Homes Grocery Stores, Hatchelor Bros.

Probably the first to join the recovery move was the Greenville Cotton Mill which last week announced increasing pay of workmen to $12 a week as provided by the textile code and practically doubling the number of employees. This made it necessary to put on a day and night shift.

Other business houses previously mentioned joined the Recovery program the first of the week and indications pointed to Greenville backing President Roosevelt to the limit as he attempts to increase pay, shorten working hours and boost pay of employees.

Goldboro, Aug. 2.—Ray Dixon is improving at his home in Goldsboro from the effects of being almost drowned at Wrightsville Beach on Sunday. It was said that it took two or three hours to revive him. The two Goldsboro men and a life guard rescued him.

The situation was launched by strong feeling for them against Senator Huey P. Long, whose nomination supported the amendments. 'LET THE PEOPLE CHOOSE' HITLER ADVICE TO NAZIS

Berlin, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler holds "the commercial spirit" responsible for what he terms "Germany's proverbial lack of political leadership."

Such leadership, he said, addressing a Nazi meeting here, had not reached the high level of achievement attained in other fields of German endeavor, because statesmanship had been left to the commercially successful class.

He said that in general the people bring forth the greatest leaders because they instinctively put the right man on the right job.

Be sure to make your plans to visit the business houses of this city tomorrow that are participating in Dollar Day. You will find that these business houses are offering most unusual values for this special trade event and it will be to your advantage to buy at these special prices.

So far as we know there have been no plans made here toward procuring a part of the government works program fund for this city. There are several projects that our city would do well to take up while this money is available under the liberal terms offered by the government and then too a sizeable public works program here would do much to relieve the unemployment situation. It is to be hoped that no further time will be lost in getting behind this matter and getting a part of this fund for use in our city.

While official price averages on yesterday's opening of the Georgia tobacco markets have not been announced, the reports of protests from certain centers down there would indicate that all is not well with the price situation. If such is the case it was proper that protest be made to the government regarding the prices for already it is understood that the government is laying plans to control future tobacco acreage and if this is the case the government should likewise see to it that the farmers get a fair return for this year's crop. Last year's crop was a short one and much of the surplus from former crops was disposed of, making less tobacco than usual in storage, which in itself should make for a bigger demand for this year's offerings. In addition to this is the fact that this year's crop is far superior to the crops for the past few years from a quality standpoint, and then the plan for reduced crops from now on should give added incentive to the tobacco companies to pay a living price for this crop while it is available. Considering this year's quality, together with last year's shortage and the short crops that will be made in the future it is our opinion that the Eastern Carolina crop this year should bring 18 to 20 cents average, and we don't believe the growers are going to be satisfied to willingly sit still and accept lower than a fair price.

The HIDDEN DOOR

By Frank L. Packard

Synopsis: Colin Hewitt, writer of detective fiction has got himself in a tangle more exciting than any he ever imagined. Reddy Turner, crook has been killed in his apartment by the Mask, under world czar, whom Reddy himself was trailing to avenge his sister. Colin had promised to deliver a mysterious letter for Reddy should this happen. Although he has been warned by the Mask not to meddle, Colin has gone to Reddy's old room and has found the letter in a curtain pole. Now he stands, holding the pole over his head—trapped by one of the Mask's killers.

Chapter Nine FLIGHT

"Look here, I want to be frank with you," Colin confided earnestly. "You've got me at your mercy anyhow, so just a moment, I had a telephone call from the Mask to-night. He said he was satisfied that I knew nothing more about Reddy Turner than anybody else did, and that I was out of the picture so far as he was concerned; but in practically the same breath, I have to admit, he warned me not to meddle in the affair.

"What I don't understand is why if he thought I knew nothing that would be of any value to him, he still kept a watch over me; or why, if he thought I did know something he should warn me not to meddle, when, if I had followed his advice he would have defeated his own ends.

"God, you're a fool!" he jeered pityingly. "It's like taking candy from a kid. I'll tell you. If you were okay, you were okay, and that's all there was to it. If you weren't, that warning was a hurry-up invite to sit in and show your hand. Well you fell for—hard. That's the answer."

"I must confess that thought crossed my mind," Colin admitted; "but—"

"Never mind the rest!" the other cut in roughly. "I've had enough of your cursed jaw! You've talked a lot about the Mask. Well, I'll tell you something now. He had a hunch that Reddy left some little memento behind him. But it wasn't never found—until now. And now you're going to come across, my bucko!"

"But if I can't?" protested Colin. "If I tell you I haven't the faintest idea what you are talking about?"

"You saw Reddy put on the spot didn't you?" he rasped. "You know what happened to you once before don't you? Try any of that guff on me and I'll plug you where you stand!"

Colin shook his head judiciously. If he could badger the man a little, draw him on a bit!

"Oh!" Colin drawled insolently. "I see! Well, you wouldn't—er—plug me, I'm calling your bluff."

"Is that so?" there was a cold frown in the man's voice now.

"Yes, that's so!" mimicked Colin. "Shall I tell you why? If this absurd ringmaster of yours with the lurid name believes that I possess some coveted secret or know the whereabouts of some memento, as you call it, that Reddy has left behind, I wouldn't be much good as a source of information if I were dead—would I?"

face now, and for a moment he studied it intently. No he had never seen the other before, that was certain, and no more than he had expected; but it was equally certain now that he would not fail to recognize him anywhere if he ever saw him again.

A minute had passed. How long would it be before the other regained consciousness? He went swiftly through the man's pockets. Some money, not an inconsiderable sum; keys, some of them of the skeleton variety; cigarettes; the usual odds and ends; no letters or papers of any description—except a small card in one of the vest pockets.

Colin lighted another match and examined this. Scrawled in pencil he read: WP. 9:30 tonight! Not very informative! He replaced the card and the other articles in the pockets in which he had found them.

Anything else? His eyes searched around the room. Oh, yes! The revolver lying there on the floor where it had fallen from the man's hand! He reached over, secured the weapon, slipped it into his own pocket, rose to his feet—and a minute later was out on the street.

Here Colin hesitated for an instant, then started briskly in the direction of Sixth Avenue. Fifth Avenue was virtually deserted at this hour, whereas, falling a taxi, Sixth Avenue offered him a choice between the elevated and the surface line to take him—where? He was suddenly not at all sure. Perhaps he had better walk a bit—thrash the thing out in his mind.

Colin's brows puckered. Not so good! As between himself and the Mask now, the issue was irrevocably joined. Pursuit! What did immunity from immediate pursuit matter if he now went back home? Long before daylight he would be under surveillance again. As well offer himself meekly for the slaughter to begin with! But to be driven out of his own diggings by this accursed Mask, or anybody else, for that matter! His gorge rose defiantly. The red flushed his cheeks, and his hands clenched.

His one thought while in there had been to make his escape if possible from that room—what the aftermath might be had not entered his mind then. But he was faced with it now.

"I'm in a bit of a jam all right!" A mirthless smile pulled down the corners of his lips. Times without number when at work on a story he had racked his brains for a situation involving a deliberate case of homicide which was at one and the same time so wholly and obviously justifiable that no reader could have any grounds for quibbling with it.

Well, here was one ready to hand. His own life being in the balance, he had only to go back to that room bump off the Mask's tool before the man had a chance to communicate with his chief and so far as he, Colin, was concerned, it would then be as though he had never left his home that night.

Absurd! He wasn't a murderer, no matter how thick the whitewash. He was merely an ass. Damn his imagination! This wasn't fiction! He was up against stark reality this time!

He reached the corner of Sixth Avenue. A taxi cruising by passed unheeded; so did a surface car. Colin started along the avenue in a downtown direction. "He who fights and runs away will live to fight another day."

To Be Continued.

"Love" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 30.

The Golden Text was from Isaiah 49:13: "Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and brake forth into singing, O mountains; for the Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following passage from the Bible: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."—I John :16.

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The starting point of divine Science is that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, and that there is no other might nor Mind—that God is Love, and therefore He is divine Principle."

Farmerettes Grow
Giant Cantaloupe

A church organist and choir singer who turned "farmerettes" during the early summer, today had crashed the cantaloupe raising game with the production of what they believe to be one of the largest products raised in this section of the country.

Misses Elizabeth Andrews and Bessie Brown pulled from the "garden-farm" this week a cantaloupe measuring 10 inches in diameter and 34 inches in circumference. They were so concerned about how the farm product looked on the inside that they cut it before having it weighed. However, from the description given by both young women it is almost certain the thing would have given the scales a fit.

Miss Andrews is organist at St. Paul's Episcopal Church and Miss Brown is a choir singer of the same church. They are inseparable companions and when one decides to do a thing they are both strong for it.

It was not determined which had the conception of a "farm-garden" in Highland Pines, new residential development in the eastern part of the city, but when the idea actually gained definite shape it was applied in a way that caused friends to sit up and take notice. Some said they wouldn't stick to the farm, that as soon as the novelty wore off they would be through.

But not so, for the coming of the early summer crops found the "farm-garden" with tomatoes, cucumbers, other kinds of vegetables and a mass of beautiful flowers. The fall crop is now coming on, and take it from us, Gentlemen of the Farm, these girls know their onions, if parlance is permissible in this description.

The young women worked their farm just like any farmer. Rising at 6 o'clock every morning they took time off for dinner and while it is doubtful if they worked to sun down, they were on the job in the late afternoon.

In addition to growing plenty of fine vegetables and flowers, the "farmerettes" are able to carry a wonderful coat of brown to church every Sunday, and saying the least "Lib" is stunning in the new attire. And the color brown goes delightfully with Miss Brown.

Tips on CONTRACT

CARE WITH A VOID
(By Tom O'Neil)
Lack of one suit is often an advantage in high contracts. At times it has perils, the likelihood being that another hand also has a void and may contain a first round ruff.

There was much aftermath of a hand of a game in which Norris A. Huse, Charles E. Honce, Eugene F. Nixon and myself took part. This was it:

(DEALER) NORTH
AKQJ5
NONE
AQ862
WEST 10852
1063
AKQ764
AJ976
964
J10
K107
EAST
72
Q8532
J9543

Huse dealt to himself the "terrible" assortment of cards North and to me the "dazzling" array East. Honce sat South and Nixon West.

The bidding went: North, one heart; East pass; South, onespade; West pass; North two clubs; East pass; South three clubs; West pass; North three hearts; East pass; South four hearts; West pass; North six spades; East pass; South pass; West double; North redouble.

The king of diamonds was ruffed in the North hand, and the king and queen of trumps were led. The lead of the queen showed East had only one spade, so North led a club to the king in order to exhaust West of trumps, but West trumped promptly setting the contract by leading the ace of diamonds.

The declarer bemoaned his luck, asserting his method was the natural way to play the hand and that it would succeed most of the time. And because of this and that argument we planted the hand in a duplicate game in which several outstanding players were competing.

At one table North bid seven hearts after South had offered spades and then shown help for clubs and hearts. Especially because of South's assistance to a lub bid and his own length in that suit East was moved to open a club and there came a welcome ruff West.

At the table where Louis H. Watson sat South the bidding was the same as in our game, North electing the spade instead of the heart contract because of the possibility of discards on the hearts. West doubled here also, to his sorrow. He probably would have set the hand if he had just passed.

West opened the king of diamonds and South reflected as to what caused West to double. Obviously one reason was possession of the ace-king of diamonds. The void in the North hand suggested the possibility of a void West, presumably in clubs. Perhaps too, all the adverse trumps were bunched West.

After ruffing the diamond king with the spade queen, the declarer led the spade king and received the welcome news that East held at least one trump. A way to make the contract was apparent. The top hearts were led from the North hand, and on the knave the last losing diamond was discarded. West ruffed the heart knave, but could not take another trick. Had he not ruffed, South could have been put into the lead with a club or spade and West could have been made to take his trump.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Hollywood, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Nina Moise has learned that a movie director's telephone is a busy instrument.

As soon as it was announced that she had been appointed a director, her phone, at home and office, began to ring—people wanting jobs.

"I hope I never get hard-boiled," she said, after answering politely her umpteenth call of the day, and expaining to the lady on the wire that he first assignment, "Cradle Song" was laid in a convent and would need no underworld types.

"I don't want to be hard-boiled but it would be convenient right now if I could be. This phone has been ringing so constantly I hardly had time to think!"

Miss Moise, first woman to be made a director since pictures became talkies, and third in the history of films—the others are Lois Weber, now retired from the field, and Dorothy Arzner, still active—had her assignment presented to her, she says. With Mitchell Leisen she will co-direct Dorothea Wieck's first Hollywood talkie, "Cradle Song."

Born in San Francisco, Miss Moise gained theatrical experience with the Provincetown players in New York, directed in the Santa Barbara, Cal., Community Theatre for five years, was associated with the Jessie Bonstelle Stock Company of Detroit.

Three years ago she came to Hollywood and opened her own studio of voice culture. For the past two years she has been on the Paramount payroll as teacher and to her went all the studio's young hopefuls to "learn how to talk."

Among these was Dorothea Wieck, who needed a German accent erased.

It wasn't long before Miss Moise was directing dialogue at the studio and then came her current assignment.

"I'm not trying to demonstrate that another woman can direct," she says. "I think ability to direct depends on the individual, not on sex. Directing calls for keen dramatic instinct, great understanding of people, infinite tact, real executive ability. A woman as well as a man can have all these and besides there's 'woman's intuition'."

Miss Moise—you pronounce it Mo-see—was first interested in the theatre as an actress, but found herself "thrust into directing."

Why

Chesterfields are as good as Science and Money can make them

Every pound of Domestic tobacco used in Chesterfield cigarettes is aged for thirty months—2½ years. Science knows there is no other way to make cigarette tobaccos mild and mellow.

Every process used in the manufacture of Chesterfield cigarettes is modern, scientific and clean—visitors are always impressed with the cleanliness of the Chesterfield factories.

Every ingredient, including the paper, is pure—nothing that you eat or drink is tested more carefully.

And Chesterfields are made right; the right length, the right diameter, and filled right—a detail perhaps, but if a cigarette is "to satisfy" it must be made right.

Everything about Chesterfield is as good as money can buy or Science knows about—you have our word for this.

And Chesterfields are milder and taste better—this much you can prove for yourself.

CELLARITES PLAY LEADERS HERE TODAY

Leaders and cellarites of the Coastal Plain League crossed bats here today, the former trying to tighten their grip on the standing of clubs and the latter seeking to evacuate the cellar in favor of some other club.

Snow Hill, which dropped into the cellar after a stiff race with Greenville for the top, came here this afternoon for the first game of the week's schedule. The visitors were promising a stiff bid for victory and the local boys were preparing to give them the fight of their lives.

Snow Hill lost a heart-breaking game on their last visit here when their left fielder dropped a fly ball and let in sufficient runs for Greenville to win the game. The incident occurred in the ninth inning with two men down and enabled Greenville to capture a game that had long before been mentally conceded to the visiting club.

Since that time Greenville has snatched two other games from the fire in the ninth frame. Although the last inning seems to be a lucky one for the boys, they aren't going to take any chances on it in the future, and today were determined to bring every force into play for scoring in early parts of the game.

It was probable that Andreola will do the mound work for the locals today. Although a new member of the pitching staff, the former Grimesand ace has already displayed his ability both on the mound and at bat and if he breezes along today as he did in previous games, then Snow Hill is as good as beaten.

With a half holiday coming to the city today, a large crowd was expected to be on hand this afternoon to watch the league leaders attempt to increase their lead for higher honors. Attendance has been mighty good all season, but with the club on the red side of the ledger, officials were trying to impress people with the importance of larger attendance so the club may steer clear of the financial jinx.

SNOW HILL GIVEN GAME

Snow Hill today was given a game and Kinston lost one as result of Kinston's refusal to replay a protested game of June 7, it was announced here today.

Snow Hill filed the protest when they were not allowed to score on a ball thrown out of the park in the June 7 game. The decision would have given them the game.

The directors of the league ruled that the game should be replayed but Kinston refused to play, and credit automatically went to Snow Hill.

The change gives Snow Hill 11 games won and lost 18, and Kinston 12 won and 13 lost.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady one to six low in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and under scattered selling.

The buying was stimulated by the steadier tone of the stock market and the firm opening of wheat.

December contracts sold up to 10.48 by the end of the first half hour or about 13 higher. Offerings increased following a decline from the opening advance in the grain market and prices eased later in the morning.

December sold of to 10.46 and the general list showed losses of about 19 to 26 points at midday.

The market was steadier late in the day on renewed talk of inflation and in sympathy with the wheat and stock market.

Futures closed firm 6 to 10 higher spots quiet, middling 10.45.

Stock Market

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Security markets moped in apathetic indifference today and stocks' efforts of the more optimistic professional operators were unable to attract followings.

There was mild continuation of yesterday's late rallies in stocks with some of the distillery issues and a few of the agricultural shares improving.

The upswing was comparatively brief and prices soon began to slip back to lower levels. There was no vitality to the rise neither was there any pressure in most of the early rallies.

Wet shares up one to around three at one time included National Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Western Union advanced more than a point on the substantial improvement shown by the company in the second quarter.

Homestake Mining got up 10 points on a few sales. Case up three in the early flurry reacted for a loss.

Union Pacific advanced a point but U. S. Steel, American Telephone Dupon, General Motors, New York Central, Beer and Allied Chemical were slightly lower.

Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares.

Atlanta, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Tobacco auctions were running full blast at Adel today with improved grades offered, the State Department of Agriculture reported, and 200,000 pounds of the leaf was expected to be sold during the day.

Yesterday growers at Adel and Hahira sent messages of protest to state and federal officials over low prices prevailing. Adel protested to State Commissioner of Agriculture T. C. Adams, while Tahira complained to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at Washington.

H. K. Ramsey, statistician in the State Department of Agriculture, sent to Adel by Commissioner Adams, telephoned that he had held a meeting with both growers and buyers and said prices would be better at that market today.
