CITY TAX RATE IS SET AT 96 CENTS ON THE $100

ALDERMEN CONSIDER BUILDING MUNICIPAL SWIMMING POOL

Rate Lowered In Face Of Big Cut In Valuation

TENTATIVE BUDGET IS ALSO FIXED

Budget Carries Total Amount of $72,568.62 Compared With $73,961.09 For The Previous Year; Reduction of Over Two Million Dollars in Valuation; Water And Light Commission Authorized to Borrow $75,000 From Federal Works Funds

The Board of Aldermen, meeting in regular monthly session at the city hall last night, adopted a tentative budget for this year and fixed the city tax rate at 96 cents on the $100 valuation. The rate last year was $1.00.

In dropping four cents off last year's rate in the face of nearly a three million dollar reduction in valuation, Mayor Flanagan took occasion to congratulate the aldermen upon their splendid record of service which made continued reduction of expenses possible. He said that because of their loyalty and devotion to the administration, they had not only been able to end the year inside the budget, but were going into the new fiscal year with a smaller budget and less tax rate.

The budget carrying a total amount of $72,568.62 as compared with $73,961.09 last year will be open to public inspection within a few days. (Continued on Page Four)

NEW SIGNERS OF CODE HERE

Additional Stores Announce Backing Administration Recovery Plan

With discussion of the National Recovery act still under way, business houses continued to announce signing of the code providing for higher wages decreased hours and increased employment here today.

Flanagan and Meeks and Willard's Cash Grocery said they signed the code the first of the week and that it had been operative at their stores since that time.

Two dozen or more stores and business houses have announced through the columns of the Daily Reflector since the code became effective the first of the week, and still others were expected to fall in line later on.

Business men at a meeting the first of the week declared they were squarely behind the efforts of the government to bring a return of prosperity through increasing purchasing power and wired the recovery administration that they were with it.

The code as it affects business houses provides for a 48-hour work week for the time being or until the various interests can provide a code deemed more applicable.

Codes are presented at the post-office here where the signers are given "NRA" emblems showing they are co-operating with President Roosevelt in his far-flung effort to lift the nation from the pits of depression back to the high ground of prosperity.

ASKS AID IN HEALTH FIGHT

County Health Director Seeks Co-operation in Control of Diseases

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health today again called on the public to co-operate in control of contagious diseases.

With public schools opening in the near future, the health director asserted that every effort should be forwarded in throwing a safeguard around the children.

The statement follows: "The Health Department again solicits the cooperation of parents and public in general in its efforts to control contagious diseases. The personnel of the health department especially urges precaution at this time in order that our county may be as free from contagious and infectious diseases as possible by the time school opens. If there ever was a time when the school authorities and teachers needed the sympathetic cooperation of the general public, it is now, so let's rally to the support of our schools and assist the teachers in every way possible."

"Parents should report cases of whooping cough and other contagious diseases in their families just as soon as they are recognized and all children with whooping cough etc. should be kept away from other children. Parents must not bring children suffering from whooping cough to the health department to be given whooping cough serum but well children may be brought on Wednesday mornings or from 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. on Saturdays by united effort much can be accomplished without it. It is a very up hill fight. Now is the time for a 'new deal' and renewed zeal."

"The public is asked to remember that our vaccinating hours for all diseases are—Wednesday, 8:30 a. m. to 12:00 noon and Saturdays, 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m."

FOGLEMAN EXECUTED AT RALEIGH

Rockingham County Man Put to Death For Slaying Filling Station Operator

Raleigh, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Clay Fogleman, Rockingham county man was electrocuted at state prison today for the murder of W. J. Carter in an attempted filling station robbery.

Fogleman went to his death proclaiming his innocence and left a statement asserting his execution would be a "wedge to repeal capital punishment in North Carolina."

State Senator Allen Gwynn of Reidsville, one of Fogleman's lawyers, walked the "last mile" down death row with the doomed man. It was the first time in 23 years history of the use of the electric chair in this state that an attorney had accompanied his client into the death chamber. Fogleman appeared calm and spoke in a firm voice after being seated in the electric chair.

"I see around me some friends and some enemies," he said. "Some of whom are happy to get me in the chair. I have no bitterness toward any one."

He interrupted himself to greet Deputy Sheriff Jack Hopkins of Rockingham county with "How are you, Mr. Hopkins?"

"Okay!" the deputy replied. "That's fine, that all," Fogleman said and a minute later electricity was snuffing out his life.

Two shocks were given, one of two and a half minutes and the other 50 seconds.

COMMITTEE SELECTED TO TALK MATTER

City May Seek to Obtain Federal Work Funds For Erection Of Modernly Equipped Pool Here; Mayor and Aldermen Are Named to Obtain Data and Report Back to the Board

The first definite action looking to the proposed building of a municipal swimming pool in Greenville was taken by the Board of Aldermen in regular session at the city hall last night.

Although the establishment of a public pool has been discussed here for a number of years, the action of the board last night in naming a committee to look into the question was the first direct step taken in this connection.

The swimming pool question came to the fore front while the aldermen were discussing the availability of funds from the federal public works program, and while nothing concrete regarding the building of the pool could be decided upon in the face of lack of information, the aldermen named a committee composed of Mayor R. C. Flanagan and Aldermen J. H. Boyd and H. H. Duncan to go into the matter thoroughly and report to the board in the near future.

The committee was instructed to determine the cost of a modern pool with shower baths, lockers and other necessary features in keeping with similar enterprises in other towns of the state. It was also authorized to go into the matter of a location, although it was mentioned at the time that the ravine near the high school was one of the most desirable in the city. However, there are other places in the city equally as desirable, and all will be given proper consideration before the committee reports to the board in the near future.

The government through the public works funds, has made it possible for municipalities to obtain money for public enterprises. Many towns and cities have already taken advantage of the offer and with Greenville being pressed for a swimming pool capable of taking care of the demands of the public for the next several years, the aldermen looked upon the government plan as offering the best inducement obtainable for the purpose.

The need of a public pool was stressed by members of the board during the discussion, the question having been brought forcefully to their attention from time to time by civic leaders who have been using their influence in protecting life from the treacherous currents of Tar river, where scores went swimming before the opening of Westbrook Swimming pool some time ago.

Physicians of the city declared themselves highly in favor of the public pool the first of the summer and stressed the danger of river swimming in resolutions presented before leading organizations in an effort to arouse interest in a public pool.

COAL STRIKE NEARING END PROSPERITY MOVE SPREADS

President Roosevelt Takes Part in Bituminous Walkout in Pennsylvania

Washington, Aug. 4.—(AP)—An end to the Pennsylvania bituminous coal strike is in sight.

President Roosevelt has jumped into the picture and as a basis for settlement of the walkout has nearly been reached.

One man was slain and a dozen injured in the strike before officials of the United States Steel Corporation, parent to the H. C. Frick Coke Company and United Mine Workers of America brought together by Hugh Johnson as mediator for the President reached an understanding.

The definite agreement—its terms yet held secret—was understood today to be still in the formative stage. With removal of the stalemate which blocked early settlement of the recovery administration, definite terms were believed to be only hours away.

Americans Pilot Turks For Kemal's New Deal

By PRISCILLA RING Ankara.—(AP)—Facing the heat and dust of an Anatolian summer American experts, called by Mustafa Kemal to prepare an economic rebirth for Turkey, have set out from Ankara on tours of investigation.

Two expeditions, one in search of gold, and the other in search of oil are in the field.

Gold at Ark's Haven? The gold expedition is headed by Matthew Van Sicken, of Washington, former assistant chief engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines, who is an authority on gold mining.

He is traveling with Turkish mining engineers 500 miles east of Ankara to Mount Ararat, on the Turkish Persian frontier, and to Kazizman, northwest of Ararat. Both regions are believed to be rich in gold.

The oil survey, which is heading for Mardine to the southwest, is under another Washingtonian. He is Sidney Paige, formerly of the U. S. Geological Survey. That oil is one of the chief undeveloped natural resources of Turkey, has long been known.

Hines As Surveyor General The anti-foreign complex which the old capitulatory regime under the sultans bequeathed Kemal Turkey, is wearing off. The call for foreign expert advice, particularly American, is a new development in Kemal's modernization program.

To help in giving a new economic day to Turkey, the government has called Walker D. Hines, director general of the railroad administration of the United States in the World War, to make a general survey of economic conditions. Officials expect Mr. Hines to arrive in Turkey shortly.

NOW FOR A SWIMMING POOL

Action of the Board of Aldermen last night in appointing a committee to investigate the possibilities of providing an adequate swimming pool here before another summer is certainly a step toward a long felt need.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CODE

There are many who are looking up the NRA code who are apparently of the opinion that the movement is solely for the purpose of cutting down working hours and as a result they are endeavoring to cut down the hours of business operation to conform to the working hours of the wage earners.

ARE YOU GUILTY?

This morning a man came into our office and requested that we urge radio listeners, who play their radios after bedtime, to please cut down on the volume, especially during these summer months when their neighbors are trying to sleep with their windows open.

The HIDDEN DOOR

By Frank L. Packard

Synopsis: Colin Hewitt, writer of detective fiction, has plunged himself into one of his own plots. Before Reddy Turner was killed by the Mask, underworld czar, in Colin's apartment, Colin promised Reddy to deliver a mysterious letter for him.

Chapter 11 UNDER COVER

The wine clattered. A boxed radio came up from the Bonaventure's hold and was swung out into the snub-nosed, broad-beamed power boat that thumped against the steamer's hull, and that was already loaded, one might imagine, beyond the capacity of even two of her kind.

Colin, leaned over the coastal steamer's rail watched the scene as he had watched a similar one many times before, always with unflagging interest.

His mind harked back over the four days and a half since he had left Quebec, of that great distance in actual mileage had been covered, as the time consumed might imply, but there had been innumerable stops like this one, for the Bonaventure was the liaison between the lone villages on the coast and the source of supplies and necessities which came from Montreal and Quebec.

He nodded thoughtfully to himself. He had gone ashore frequently, walked through the villages talked with the people, and had come to admire them for their courage, their faith, and their simple philosophy of life, under conditions that were so often those of obvious hardship—and in his heart to pity them for what seemed to him, their profound loneliness and isolation.

The boat alongside, fair down to her gunwales, cast off. A figure in the bow, nondescript in dress, one arm wrapped around the plunging mast, waved his cap and shouted in farewell; another figure in the stern, nursing his sputtering engine and half hidden by the heterogeneous pile of cargo that surrounded him, did the same. There came a short, barking order from the bridge. The Bonaventure was on her way again.

And the next port of call was Cap a l'Orage. A few hours from now—this afternoon, Colin swung away from the rail and began to pace up and down the deck. Cap a l'Orage—Storm Cape. He had wondered often enough if there were anything significant in the name—for him?

On the face of it, it all looked simple enough—to deliver a letter to one known as Joe Lazare at Cap a l'Orage, that was all. But it wasn't all. Granting the delivery of the letter—what then? What was he, Colin, to do? Go back to New York, take up his normal life again?

It wouldn't last very long! The Mask, as witness Reddy's end, did not delay attention of that sort unduly. As it stood now, Colin Hewitt so far as the Mask was concerned, had—well, vanished. He had left no trace behind him, no trail to follow; he was confident of that. And to make assurance doubly sure, he was no longer even the "Rough" of the hotel register. His name now was Howard—Donald Howard. He smiled wryly. How many names had the Mask? He was running the Mask a close second!

All very well! But to resume his life as Colin Hewitt in New York as matters now stood? Merely suicide! What to do, then? So much depended on Lazare—on Lazare's attitude. What was in that letter? Why had Reddy laid so much stress upon it? What would Lazare do? Reddy had stated that Lazare was working for the Mask—and believed that the Mask had "interests" of some sort on the coast here. Had there been something between Reddy and Lazare that would cause the latter to swerve in his allegiance to the Mask due to Reddy's murder? If so that seemed to indicate the way out for him, Colin—a clue to the Mask's identity through Lazare, though at the same time being careful to protect Lazare. That latter, as a rider, was tacitly embodied in his, Colin's promise to Reddy.

But if, through Lazare, he could get a clue to the Mask's identity! A savage lust welled up in Colin's soul. There was a heavy score to settle. He had seen Reddy shot down as casually as one might swat a fly on a window pane, and his own world was shattered, his own life dependent now on matching his wits to win against the Mask. What a story it would have made! He would have gloried in it. But, damn it, this was no story—it was stark actuality!

Well, his solution, so far as that end of the problem was involved, seemed to have worked out satisfactorily up to now. He was here on a bid of holiday, that was all—wanted to see something of the north coast, and later, Labrador, and later still, Newfoundland perhaps. Where the spirit led. Some salmon-fishing, too, though he understood that most of the rivers were privately owned—but that could be had anyway in Newfoundland.

He had merely elected to make Cap a l'Orage his first stop because he had been informed that was one of the few places well down on the coast where anything in the way of boarding-house or hotel accommodation was to be obtained. A good reason!

And, from what he had seen in his jaunt ashore, he mentally congratulated himself that Reddy had indicated Cap a l'Orage as a starting point—no matter how primitive the accommodation there might prove to be!

All this was perfectly logical, perfectly natural. He alone at moments had thrown aside glances at his own story—simply because, of course, he alone knew that he had something to conceal. As a matter of fact no one had dreamed of questioning his story. He had unhesitatingly been accepted as his own face value.

His glance traveled up and down the deck—a composite picture—the tourists making a holiday cruise to Newfoundland and back; pulp men and timber cruisers bound for various points; the casual passengers local inhabitants mostly, and whole families of these sometimes, that kept getting on and off, paying visits or perhaps migrating from one place to another.

A queer potpourri! The rough-and-ready rubbing shoulders with the more immaculately groomed in hearty camaraderie. He knew almost everyone on board. The lack of restraint had been delightful. There were always tales of the early days on the coast by the oldtimers. Sometimes in English, sometimes in French.

And always there were eager listeners. Excursions ashore when the Bonaventure was discharging for an hour or more; a laughing, drenched party often enough when there was no wharf and there was a bit of sea on. A jolly, carefree crowd. A vague smile crossed his lips. He was the only one on board bent on tracking down a murderer!

Oh, yes! He had fitted into his own little niche perfectly. He had no doubt of that. In one particular perhaps too perfectly! He was Mr. Howard—Mr. Donald Howard, a broker from Boston. There were moments when he infinitely preferred his own name—not for any euhonious reason!

Her deck chair was unoccupied. Had been for the last hour. Perhaps she had gone below to pack. Perhaps he would better do the same. In a few hours the Bonaventure would dock at Cap a l'Orage. The purser had told him they were the only two leaving the ship there. She like everyone else, had accepted him at face value. Well, did he wish she hadn't? Damn!

Seeing Through My Windshield

(By ETHEL NICE, H. D. A.)

The following are some recipes for canning tomatoes which you will find satisfactory and timely. Tomatoes are useful in the diet, both as a fruit and as a vegetable and should be canned in large amounts.

Canned Tomatoes. Select only ripe tomatoes for canning. One green or light colored tomato will ruin the grade of the pack.

Blanch for one minute. The skin may then be removed easily. Do not peel any more than may be immediately canned, as tomatoes ferment quickly.

Be careful to remove with sharp knife the hard part of tomato at stem.

Pack into cans as many whole tomatoes as possible, cutting them only when they are too large to slip in. Fill can to within 1-4 inch of top, press gently and shake down fruit to fill crevices.

A level teaspoonful of sugar and a level teaspoonful of salt added to a No. 3 can or a quart jar of tomatoes improves the flavor of the product.

Use no water with tomatoes. If the can is properly filled the juice will be sufficient. A No. 3 can of tomatoes when filled should weigh 35 ounces.

Process No. 3 tin cans 22 minutes.

Tomato Ketchup. Select only ripe tomatoes for ketchup; wash, but do not peel; cut out green cores and bad places; quarter, measure, and place on the stove in open-top porcelain-lined or agate vessel. For every gallon of tomatoes add 1 level cup of fine chopped onions. Boil until both tomatoes and onions are soft. Strain juice and pulp through a coarse wire sieve, mashing through all the pulp possible. Measure this strained pulp and juice and proceed as in the following recipe:

2 gal. strained mixture tomatoes and onions.
21-2 level teaspoonfuls ground cloves.
3 level teaspoonfuls ground ginger.
2 level teaspoonfuls ground red pepper.

3 level tablespoons ground all-spice.
1 level tablespoon ground black pepper.
14-2 level cup (11-2 pint cup) sugar.

3-4 level cup (1-2 pint cup) salt.
1 quart vinegar.
Place strained tomatoes in agate vessel; add spices, sugar, and salt; boil until thick; then add hot vinegar slowly and let boil 30 minutes before beginning to bottle mixture.

Use clear flint 10 ounce grape juice bottles. Wash well with soda and place in vessel of hot water until ready for use. It is best to put netting in the bottom of the vessel, place the bottles filled with water thereon, and let come to a boil, thus sterilizing. Pour out water. Fill bottles with boiling ketchup. Cork tightly.

The measures for all recipes must be level. These measures have been taken accurately, and one should get good results if directions are followed to the letter. A good ketchup may be made in winter by using 5 cans of 4-H tomatoes, 1 cup of chopped onions, and half the quantity of all other ingredients mentioned above.

Chili Sauce. Tomatoes for chili sauce are mashed through a colander instead of a sieve, thus allowing the seed to remain in the finished product. Use the same recipe as for tomato ketchup, adding 2 level cups chopped green sweet bell peppers (leaving out seed), another level teaspoonful of ground red pepper and 1 level teaspoonful salt. Boil until quite thick—much thicker than ketchup. Put in pint or half-pint glass jars, sealing as in canned products.

Tomato Juice. Wash and remove blossom end of

AYDEN PLAYS LOCAL CLUB HERE TODAY

Greenville was scheduled to take on Ayden here this afternoon in an effort to get a tighter hold on the standing of the Coastal Plain League.

"Skipper" Harrington said yesterday afternoon he planned to pitch Lefty Dean this afternoon, and if the former Mount Airy high star is going in old time form, then too bad for the men that face him.

Dean has had marked success with his speed ball during his stay here of about two months, and has established a record of 54 strikeouts for that many innings. In addition he has been a powerful influence at bat, cracking out numbers of hits that resulted in Greenville chalk up additional counts.

The Ayden club which the first of the season offered Greenville considerable competition for the top position, was in third place when it came here today to tackle the leaders. Considered one of the best clubs in the league, Ayden was expected to comeback strong during the final month of play, and the concluding games probably will find the club perched in close proximity to the top.

Because of the winning streak of the local club of the last two weeks one of the largest crowds of the season was expected to be on hand this afternoon to see the two Pitt county clubs meet. Fans are expected to see something of a pitcher's duel with Dean on the mound, and with Ayden planning to put their best man on the firing line, it is probable they will have their wishes gratified.

Williamston To Play Leaguers Here on Monday

Instead of Greenville going to Williamston next Monday, that town will play here on that date, it was announced today by Milton Harrington, captain of the local league club.

Harrington said the game was expected to be close and exciting and while not counting in the league standing, it will afford pastime for lovers of the sport.

the full 8 months' school term, contribution of $10,000 by the Water and Light Commission, and economies effected in various departments of government.

Mayor Flanagan called attention of the board to the fact that the Greenville tax rate was being dropped while practically every other municipality and county in the state was moving the rate up to take care of decreased valuations. He asserted they should be proud of their record and that the public generally should be elated by the spirit of thrift demonstrated by the men charged with responsibility of running the government.

Working almost to 12 o'clock the aldermen touched upon many matters vitally concerning the operation of the government. Among the most important of these was the granting of requests from the Water and Light Commission that it be permitted to make application for $75,000 of federal public works funds to make needed improvements to the water and light plant here. The improvements mentioned would involve a new turbine room, 1,000,000 gallon reservoir capable of providing the city with a day's supply of water to take the place of the 250,000 gallon tank now in use, lengthening of water and sewer mains, and other things found necessary to keep the plant abreast of the rapid growth of the city and community.

It was also proposed that the loan be increased to $85,000 to permit street improvements but this was abandoned after Mayor Flanagan informed the board that he had been in conference with district road commission regarding improvement of streets by the State Highway commission through federal aid funds allotted to North Carolina. He reported that each street needing such work had been mentioned and that the commissioners promised early action on the request.

A new schedule of licenses tax was adopted with a few obsolete sections being omitted and others added in keeping with the State Revenue act.

Two vacancies on the board of trustees of city schools were filled when J. E. Winslow and B. B. Sugg were re-elected for terms of four years each.

Discussing the budget, the aldermen made it plain that appropriations to general relief activity next winter would be reduced. With employment easier than it had been in years, it was said demands would not be as great and that the city hall was not expected to be the gathering place of dependents.

At the suggestion of Alderman L. B. Fleming, the board instructed Alderman Boyd to look into widening of Third street near the A. C. L. railroad track to increase the safety of children attending school in that district.

The usual vacation of one week was allowed city employees.

Colored firemen were appropriated $60 to defray their expenses to the annual convention of colored firemen at Elizabeth City in the near future.

Mrs. J. D. Simpson was continued as the city's official hostess. She was given permission to have new welcome cards printed for this work.

The committee on sanitation was instructed to look into the sanitary condition of the city and Dr. Alex Viola, sanitary inspector was continued for the remainder of the month.

Billy Brown appeared before the board in connection with the erection of a public tennis court on Third Street school grounds, asking that the city appropriate sufficient money to make completion of the court possible. The matter was referred to Alderman J. H. Boyd with power to act.

The board expressed appreciation of resolutions from both fire departments asking that annual compensation of $1,200 to the firemen be held up by the city and devoted to improving equipment of the fire fighters.

A report of activities of Sheppard Memorial Library showing a general increase in readers, was read by Mayor Flanagan. The report, bearing the signature of J. S. Picklen, chairman of the Library commission, was approved.

After discussing briefly the fine service of the Salvation Army here, the board voted to continue an appropriation of $10 monthly to the organization.

The board heard read with pride a note of thanks from citizens for the spraying of unpaved street with tar oil. It is a long time since they had been commended for efforts of this kind and the boys smiled with satisfaction as the letter of commendation was read to them.

The American Legion was given permission to conduct a boxing match here in the near future.
