CITY RESTRAINED FROM ADVERTISING TAXES

Judge Frizzelle Signed Order Tuesday To Hold Up Advertising Until Fall

Action Brought By Three Local Property Owners; Hearing To Be Held On August 28

Proposed action by the city to advertise the 1933 delinquent tax list this month to be followed by tax sale in September was forestalled today as a result of an order signed by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle yesterday restraining such action by the city until November.

In order to protect the city's rights under the existing laws the Board of Aldermen at its last meeting adopted resolutions ordering the advertising of the delinquent tax list this month. Similar action had been taken previously by the County Board of Commissioners with regard to the county taxes but last week a restraining order against the county was signed by Judge Frizzelle.

SMOKE IRS "ALFALFA" WHO RECEIVES IN SOCKS

Oklahoma City, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Governor "Alfalfa" Bill Murray, after two and one-half years in office still believes there's nothing like comfort.

He came back to his office recently, tired from a 10-hour motor trip, and a few minutes later was informed that a delegation of rural friends was calling.

The governor left his desk and walked, shoeless, into the waiting room to shake hands. Four toes on one foot were exposed as he exchanged greetings.

Kills And Cures Meat.

Arkadelphia, Ark., Aug. 9.—(AP)—A bird that kills and cures its meat before eating it is found in Clark county, Arkansas, and is called the "butcher" bird.

Most Coal In North America. Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—A study of the minerals division of the Department of Commerce says that North America has 69 per cent of the world's 7,397,000,000,000 metric tons of coal reserve.

Urges Farmers To Get Behind Movement For Better Tobacco Price

Declaring that the tillers of the soil have a right to a livelihood and urging them to join themselves together in an effort to obtain fair prices for their products the following appeal from the Pitt County Tax Relief Association has been handed out for publication:

D. G. MOORE PASSED AWAY LAST NIGHT

Funeral Services For Well Known Farmer Will Be Held This Afternoon

D. G. Moore, age 65, died last night at 9:30 at his home, the old Ward home place near Greenville, following an illness of several weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at five o'clock at the home.

Mr. Moore was well known and was engaged in farming all his life. He was the son of the late Stanley and Mrs. Susan A. Moore.

Surviving are three daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Penny Ward Moore of Greenville, and Miss Alce Moore of Atlanta, Ga., and two sons, Wesley and Rippon Moore of Greenville; one sister, Mrs. T. C. Hardison, Washington; three brothers, T. M. Moore, House Station, J. T. Moore, Pactolus, and E. S. Moore, Washington.

BUSY DAY IN COUNTY COURT YESTERDAY

Thirteen Case Given Hearing By Judge Dink James Here Yesterday

Thirteen cases were disposed of in county court here yesterday with Judge Dink James presiding. The cases included a variety of charges and most of them drew road sentences suspended upon payment of cost or fines and good behavior.

The cases disposed of were as follows:

Bob Forbes, E. G. Seglar, Cliff Maden, Curtis Clark, Taylor Coy (all white) gambling, guilty judgment suspended upon good behavior and payment of cost.

Clarence Williams, coerced, assault with deadly weapon, guilty, 60 days in jail assigned to county home.

Daniel Lee Braxton, white, liquor for sale, 90 days roads, and pay fine $50.00 cost to be deducted, balance to go as fine. Sentence not to begin if $50.00 paid. Defendant to remain of good behavior for three years.

James Jackson, colored, gambling 60 days on roads. Judgment suspended if defendant leaves county in 24 hours.

Leonidas Pugh and Alice Fenner, colored, fornication and adultery, six months sentence suspended upon condition they separate and not live together again.

Herbert Coward, colored, assault with deadly weapon adjudged not guilty.

Lonnie Mills, white, having liquor for sale, 30 days to roads and cost sentence not begin if cost paid. Defendant appealed to superior court.

Richard Jones, colored, carrying concealed weapon, adjudged not guilty.

Daniel Mills and Bennie Mills, white, liquor for sale, 30 days on roads and pay cost. Sentence not begin if cost is paid. Defendant's appeal to Superior court.

Richard Jones, colored, assault with deadly weapon, 3 months to roads. Judgment suspended for three years if defendant remains law abiding.

John Gilmore, colored, possessing liquor still, six months on roads and pay cost. Sentence not to begin if cost paid and defendant remains on good behavior for three years.

Lap Hicks, colored, larceny, suspended judgment upon payment of costs and good behavior.

Jack Jackson, white, reckless driving. Not guilty.

ITALIAN AIR FLEET LANDS IN PORTUGAL

Another of Intrepid Airmen Killed in Take off From Azores Early Today

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Italian Air Ministry officials in New York informed Rome today that Lieutenant Squaglia, died today after his plane had overturned in the take-off of the Italian air armada from Ponta Delgada, the Azores. The information was contained in a message to the air ministry from Commander Mario Insante.

"I regret to announce the sad news reported by Commercial Cable office at the Azores that Lieut. Squaglia is dead," Col. Insante said in his message made public by the Macky Radio Co.

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The leading seaplanes of General Balbo's Italian air armada began alighting on the Paeis river this afternoon after completing the hop from the Azores. The armada was first sighted 50 miles from Cascaes, 14 miles west of Lisbon. The planes were being led by wireless because of fog.

The first 11 flying boats had alighted at 2:45 p. m. (GMT). At that time the second body of the armada under command of General Fellegri had not been sighted.

Thousands thronged the port square here waiting to cheer Balbo when he came ashore.

GUARD MILK AGAINST STRIKERS

Late News Flashes From Over World

To Visit Roosevelt. Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Ambassador Oscar Cintas, of Cuba, today asked the State Department to arrange for an interview for him with President Roosevelt, and apparently the request has been granted. The ambassador is in New York and expected to go to Hyde Park at once. However, details of his plans could not be learned at the embassy.

Studies Cuban Situation. Hyde Park, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Imminent action by President Roosevelt in the Cuban crisis appeared in prospect today upon the arrival of a special report carried by plane from Washington. Complete mystery surrounded the airplane message. It was taken to the summer White House by secret service men and immediately given to the President. There was also an unconfirmed report that the Cuban ambassador was enroute here.

Truck His Brothers. Nashville, N. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Two brothers, Cuthrell Joyner, 13, and Register Joyner, 14, who went to sleep on the Nashville-Castalia highway last night, were struck by separate trucks and one was killed and the other injured. EFFORTS FAIL BRING PEACE AT HAVANA

Havana, Aug. 9.—(AP)—President Machado considered mediators proposed today that he leave the political upsurge and scene of bloodshed while his followers raised a cry of nationalism and independence. "I am and will continue to be president in the plenitude of all my constitutional prerogatives," said Machado in reply to a formula presented him by American Ambassador Summer Welles, acting for the commission seeking to settle the political differences. But Welles said the mediation is not ended even though the president is reported as having told his Liberal party leaders that he would not ask Congress for leave of absence which they considered necessary for the re-establishment of peace.

In the face of chaotic conditions induced by the general strike and the resulting food shortage the House of Representatives was scheduled to meet at six o'clock this evening to consider a resolution by Salvador Ramos Garcia condemning Welles consultations about peace and opposing reports prejudicial to Cuban autonomy and asking Latin American nations to support the Cuban ideals of independence.

Commander J. H. Waldrop of the local unit of the national guards received official announcement today of the transfer of Second-Lieutenant Leon A. Brock, from Washington battery to the Greenville battery. Lieut. Brock moved to this city in March and is making his home on Ninth street. He is manager of the Colonial Ice Company for Greenville and Washington.

Commander Waldrop announced this morning that the local battery was all set to leave Sunday for Fort Bragg for the annual summer encampment and the men in his company are looking forward to making another good record this year. The company will leave here Sunday with full strength of 65 men and will be officered by Commander Waldrop and Lieutenants O. W. Potts, Herbert Mason and Leon A. Brock.

Since the establishment of the artillery unit here several years ago the company has made an enviable record both at home and in summer encampments and possesses several cups won both on the field and in athletics. The boys will leave for this year's encampment determined to set new records and gain added trophies.

Says Daniels To Head State Legion

Raleigh, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Raleigh Times says today that Captain Tom Daniels, of New Bern, probably one of the oldest active members of the North Carolina Department of the American Legion, will be the next state commander of the legion. The paper says that it is likely as not that Daniels, who is believed to be in his middle sixties, will be elected by acclamation when the legionaires gather at Writingsville, August 18, for a three days convention.

Colfax, Aug. 9.—(AP)—E. E. Mandenhall, Guilford county merchant recently came in possession of a pair of shoes he believes to be at least half a century old. "They are just the style which prevailed 50 years ago," said he. The shoes, discovered in a stock of merchandise, were made in such a manner that either shoe could be worn upon either foot. The soles were attached with wooden pegs and the toes have brass guards.

MAKE ROUGH THE PATH OF NON-SIGNERS

Those Who Fail to Cooperate With Government to be Virtually Blacklisted

Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The National Recovery Administration busied itself today making rough the path of any transgressors of the program.

Although officials of the administration are holding back their fire against violators until some date two weeks hence, they did reveal, however, that they are already plotting a plan of attack upon those who break faith with or refuse to pledge to abide by the codes of fair competition designed to raise wages and provide more jobs.

While Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, frowned at the word boycott never the less, he allowed it to become known that the government would use some of the following methods:

Refusal by the government to buy any materials from any industry holding aloof from President Roosevelt's recovery move.

Publish in the newspapers the names of those who display the blue eagle but are violating it.

A nationwide combine of housewives against retail establishments refusing to accept the codes.

Already Johnson has promises from organizations to furnish the names of violators. Among these are the American Federation of Labor and the newly created Consumer's Protective Bureau, the latter linked with NRA by membership of Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson who is on the NRA advisory board and the consumers' bureau. The American Federation at the direction of the president will clear the names of the violators through its state and city organizations.

ACCIDENT FOR ONE TIME HAS BENEFICIAL RESULTS. Spencer, Aug. 9.—Drivin an automobile over a mad dog and killing it accidentally and instantly while a group of excited men attempted to shoot the rabid animal was the experience of A. W. Hicks of Spencer one night this week. The accident happened on the highway between Spence and Salisbury. The dog went mad, had a fit on the porch of a home on the highway and was chased into the middle of the street by men endeavoring to kill him. The job of dispatching the animal was thoroughly, though unintentionally done by Mr. Hicks.

FILLING STATION MAN ROBBED BY STICK-UP MEN. Burlington, Aug. 9.—Three unidentified young white men brandishing pistols, held up and robbed C. M. Terrell, Haw River filling station operator, about 9 o'clock last night and escaped in a roadster. Mr. Terrell reported that the trio drove up and ordered soft drinks offering a $20 bill in payment. When he turned to pay the change he faced three pistols and the command from one of the gunmen "stick 'em up".

According to his report to Sheriff H. J. Stockard, Mr. Terrell lost $37 from his cash register. The men also reclaimed the $20 they had offered when making the purchase.

DRY ARIZONA ADDED TO LIST OF WET STATES

Arizona has blasted another stone from the dam that holds back the flow of legal liquor in the United States. Citizens of that state voted three to one yesterday in favor of repeal of the 18th (prohibition) Amendment. Arizona by this action, thus followed the course of 20 other states which led by Michigan April 3, have decided against prohibition.

A repeal vote by 15 more states will add a 21st Amendment to the Constitution nullifying the 18th. Three more states will vote this month. They are Missouri, August 18; Texas August 26 and Washington August 29.

Meeting Of Tobacco Farmers Here Called Saturday Afternoon

Held In Kidnaping County Farm Board Seeking To Get Sentiment As To Desired Action By The Government

After conferring with a number of farmers as to the advisability of tobacco growers meeting to discuss prices for the 1933 crop and to consider co-operating with the Federal Government on some plan of acreage control for next crop it has been decided to call a meeting at the court house for this purpose Saturday 2:30 p. m., Aug. 12th, according to information coming from the Farm Department. This meeting will be held under the auspices of the Pitt County Board of Agriculture.

Every farmer in the county is being urged to attend by members of this organization.

Prices of everything the farmer buyers are going up rapidly and if the farmer does not get a good price for his crop this year he will be in worse condition than he was a year ago.

"The tobacco grower with a large crop and a much better quality has a great deal more at stake this year than last. The Federal Government is ready and anxious to cooperate with the farmers if they are ready and willing to give concerted action on crop control. If cotton acreage control is carried out and nothing done to control the acreage of tobacco prices of tobacco will remain below last year's production."

MERCHANTS PUZZLED BY JOHNSON RULING. Fayetteville, Aug. 9.—Merchants of Fayetteville are somewhat up in the air over the published announcement of General Hugh Johnson, NRA director, that community or concerted action between merchants to opening and closing hours "was in violation of the President's reemployment agreement."

Practically all of the retail merchants and grocers of Fayetteville had adopted an agreement of this nature.

No action to dissolve the signed agreement would be taken pending further information, declared Mrs. Frankie Bedingfield, secretary of the Merchants Association. Some merchants voiced the belief that General Johnson's warning applied only to grocers as he had addressed it to the Indiana Retail Grocers Association.

COLLEGE SHOWS FARMERS HIDE-TANNING METHODS. College Station, Tex., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Hide tanning was one of the demonstrations featured at the 1933 farmers' short course of Texas A. & M. College, offered with the object of helping farmers to "live at home."

Total registration for the course was 2,740 men, women, boys and girls, an increase of more than 100 over the 1932 attendance.

"Brain Trust" Job Is To Do Planning Plummer Declares

Washington, Aug. 9.—However unpleasant the Hull-Moley affair may have been to the White House, President Roosevelt and his close advisers may be strengthened in the belief credited to them at the very start of the new administration that the function of the "brain trust" should be one of planning and not of administration.

Time and again since he has been in the White House Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated that belief. It has been the professors who have done much of the planning for the "new deal," but it has been the hard-boiled and practical men who have been called in and clothed with the executive authority for getting action.

Moley's New Job. Prof. Raymond Moley's venture into the executive field at London produced results not entirely happy in the relations between the "brain trust" and his superior, Secretary Cordell Hull. But Moley's new job of surveying methods of combating crime has definitely in the planning field. It is not as super-policeman that he takes up his new duties. He does not profess to be anything of that sort. He is a specialist in outlining methods of court procedure as an aid to law enforcement, of organizing police departments, of devising new ordinances looking to more effective control of crime. It will be his job to find a way for more cooperation between the federal and state governments to prevent and control crime.

A mass meeting of farmers to discuss the tobacco price situation has been called for Saturday afternoon by the county department of agriculture. The meeting is to be held in the court house here and it is to be hoped that the farmers will attend this meeting and try to get at the facts in the matter. If after a discussion of the farm situation it is deemed necessary to seek government aid, now is the time to ask for it.

Those property holders who brought the action against the city to delay the advertising of the delinquent tax list until late enough this fall for the citizens to have an opportunity to pay have rendered the taxpayers a real service, and we believe the city a service as well. It is our belief that if given an opportunity to wait until the fall season opens so they can get the money most of the taxpayers will gladly pay their taxes to avoid being advertised, but if advertised now while the money is not available then they would not be in any great hurry to pay. When the city fathers adopted a resolution ordering the advertisement this month no doubt they were carrying out the law as they interpreted it but this action now relieves them of responsibility and we believe that the delay will work out best for all concerned.

With the opening of the tobacco markets in the border and South Carolina belt there will no doubt arise here among some of our farmers a desire to carry some of their crop to the border in order to realize on it now. Let us call attention to the fact that this is a costly practice for our farmers and in the long run they lose by it. Then too, there is at the present time much argument over the tobacco situation in the lower belts and our farmers would do well to wait until things are more settled before attempting to dispose of any of their crop. It is just a little more than two weeks before the markets in this belt open and it is to be hoped that our farmers will wait for this opening rather than go to the added expense of carrying their tobacco to the border or South Carolina markets.

The HIDDEN DOOR

By Frank L. Packard

Synopsis: Germaine Tremblay is taking Colin Hewitt, mystery writer, from Cap a l'Orange down the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to a fishing club where Colin hopes to deliver a mysterious letter to Joe Lazarre. Lazarre is in the pay of the Mask, New York killer, whom Colin fears and hates. A fog settled down and in making shore, Germaine's boat ticked a rock, and Germaine was stunned.

Chapter 15 THE LANDING

Colin leaped back to the stern of the boat.

"Germaine!" he cried out in alarm. There was no answer.

He bent over her anxiously. She must have been leaning forward and in the act of shutting off the power when the impact had flung her from her seat and her head had struck some part of the engine. She was stunned, surely no more than that, for there was no sign of any wound. His common sense told him that it could not be anything really serious—but common sense seemed sorry comfort. He was in an agony of suspense.

The boat grounded on the beach. He picked her up in his arms and carried her ashore. Her face, so close to his, resting on his shoulder, was white, bloodless. It brought fear to him. Unreasoning fear—because surely there was no real cause for fear. Her hair brushed against his cheek, somehow strangely urging him to hold her closer still. She was no weight in his arms, and yet his arms trembled.

His eyes searched around him. The beach was strewn with boulders and rocks, but beyond, perhaps a hundred yards away, were trees already beginning to look ghostly through the gray curtain of fog. He carried her across the beach, found a patch of sward under the trees just at the edge of the wooded land and laid her down.

And now she stirred, opened her eyes, stared at him blankly for a moment—and smiled.

"That's fine," he exclaimed buoyantly. "You're better. But just lie still until I tie up the boat."

Then he brought cushions—a tarpaulin to lay upon the ground.

"Now," he demanded "how's that little lady?"

"Perfect!" she answered. "It is nice of you—and so silly of me."

"Silly!" he ejaculated. "All my fault! I should have kept my eyes open."

"For something you couldn't see?"

"Oh, well," he said a little lamely, "at least—"

"Oh, well!" she interrupted.

"That expresses it exactly. It couldn't be helped, and anyway there's no real harm done. I pitched headlong against the engine when we struck, as you have already guessed, and I shall probably have a headache—which won't last." She felt gingerly over her head with her hand. "Also a goose-egg—which won't last either."

"Stout fellow!" he applauded.

The fog was still thickening. Colin could scarcely see the boat now at the water's edge. Thank God there was no cause for grave concern on her account, but what to do now? Suppose the fog lasted on through the afternoon, the night—interminably? He might get assistance from the club. If one struck across overland, it couldn't be very far away.

"Look here," he proposed, "from what you said, this club can't be more than a mile or so at most from here by land, and I think I'd better cut over there and get some of the chaps to help out. You can't stay here all night, you know."

She raised herself up on her elbow.

"You will do nothing of the sort!" she stated with finality.

"And why not?" he asked.

"For a host of reasons," she answered. "In the first place, I'm quite all right, or at least, I will be in half an hour or so; and, if it became a question of going to the club, I could go with you. In the second place, in this fog, we'd be lost in the woods before we had gone a quarter of a mile. And in the third place, we are perfectly all right as we are, no matter how long the fog lasts. We are not even going to be subjected to any hardships. There's a thermos bottle and a lunch basket in the boat, you know."

It sounded logical. Undoubtedly she was right.

"Still the skipper, I perceive?" he teased.

She tossed her head.

"You know the penalty for mutiny, don't you?"

"All right," he grinned; and then, seriously: "But if we don't get back within a reasonable time your father will be frightfully worried."

"No," she said calmly: "not about. Father was brought up on the coast. He knows exactly what we will have done. So long as we get back before he leaves for Gaspé it will be all right—and we're sure to do that, for this fog, of course, will delay the Belle Fleur too."

"Splendid!" said Colin. He spread one edge of the tarpaulin over her as a covering, and quite unnecessarily rearranged the cushion under her head. "In that case," he laughed "I shan't mind, from purely selfish reasons, if the fog lasts on a bit."

The fog did last—unduly. Darkness came. In spite of her insistence that it was "nothing at all" the blow on her head refused to be treated quite so cavalierly, and she had been content to lie where she was drowsy to a good part of the time.

She was asleep now. But now it was a wholly natural sleep. The lunch basket and the thermos bottle, just as evening had set in, had worked wonders.

What time was it? Colin, sitting on the ground beside her, fumbled for his watch, and then replaced it in his pocket. If he struck a match he might awaken her. It must be somewhere around ten o'clock.

A queer smile twisted his lips. The last sort of complication he had expected to encounter on this quest of his for one Joseph Lazarre—Germaine Tremblay. Like a story! He knew now that he had written her finally and for all time into his life.

He realized now that, from the moment he had met her on the Bonaventure, he had subconsciously known this would be so, but he had never questioned himself. And this afternoon when he had carried her from the boat, and she had lain there in his arms white and unconscious, suddenly he had known then, too, that there never would be need for questioning. He knew now that everything that the world held for him was vested in Germaine Tremblay.

And she? He shook his head. If their companionship had come to mean anything more to her than the frank and open friendship which she offered, she had shown no sign of it. But neither had he, for that matter. His hands clenched suddenly. Over their picnic supper she had asked some natural and innocent questions about his life in Boston—and he had lied glibly.

But why go on with that? It had been with him all afternoon and evening. What god did it do to tell himself again that the masquerade was not of his making, and that he was no criminal? What could he say to a girl about love, even if he dared hope that she too might care, when he himself was being hunted for his life and could only be a source of danger to her if he were discovered?

He shrugged his shoulders in vicious dismissal of the subject. He thought of the boat—and wished he could at least glimpse it. But between the fog and the darkness he could not see more than two or three yards in front of him. Perhaps he couldn't have seen the boat anyway from where he sat even if there were no fog.

He turned his head sharply—listening. His ear had caught the sound of movement somewhere in the woods near at hand. It came nearer—the crackle of twigs and underbrush. An animal of some sort, probably. His lips tightened a little.

Germaine was still asleep, and he did not waken her. Why should he—yet? His hands went into his pocket and came out with the revolver for which he had bought a reserve supply of ammunition in Quebec, and which had never left his person since the night he had picked it up in Butch Connal's room.

And now the sounds died away for an instant—then came again. But this time it was the crunching of sand. Whatever it was, it was moving along the beach now. Not far away. But he could see nothing.

And then suddenly there came what seemed like the thud of a heavy body falling on the sand, then a yell of pain followed instantly by a torrent of vile oaths in English.

"BRAIN TRUST" JOB IS TO DO PLANNING PLUMMER DECLARES

improvement in conditions there. The New York crime commission heard of him and sought his services. Roosevelt was then governor of New York.

That the President's idea was to keep his "brain trust" strictly in the planning field is evidenced by the fact that of the dozens of professors at work for the administration none has been entrusted with the job of carrying out the plans they have devised.

Of course Dr. Morgan of Antioch college in Ohio was placed at the head of the Tennessee valley project, but Morgan's reputation as an executive was taken into account.

For Example—
Some have pointed to the state department for an example of the weight given executive ability.

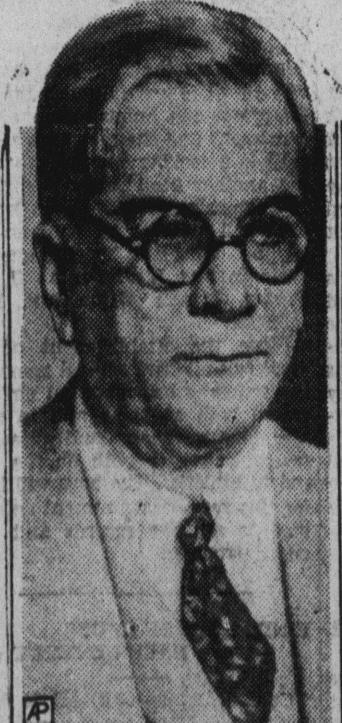

When Cordell Hull was decided upon as secretary of state, some of the President's advisers were reported a bit skeptical as to his ability as an executive. Hull had been in congress long and had become known as a deep student of economics.

The President therefore placed William Phillips, a close friend and a career diplomat, in the department as Hull's executive assistant. It is Phillips, rather than the Secretary of State, who looks after the actual job of running the routine of the department.

MUCH INTEREST SEEN IN RECOVERY DRIVE

Goldsboro, Aug. 9.—The Goldsboro Chamber of Commerce is busy from morning till night making explanations to merchants of different groups, who go in to ask for information about the NRA code applying to their specific line of work. Not a single Goldsboro merchant has been found who is unwilling to comply with the code. W. C. Denmark, secretary, stated yesterday, but they want to be told how to do it. Mr. Denmark stated that the different bulletins coming daily to his office from NRA headquarters make it much easier for him to give the desired information.

Machado May Resign

As a result of the strike crisis in Cuba it was believed that President Gerardo Machado would resign. Political leaders leaving a conference with the United States ambassador said all parties had agreed on Machado's resignation.

ARE THE DAIRYMEN OF GREENVILLE JUSTIFIED?

The following letter was sent in reply to letters of July 24th sent to customers by the dairymen of Greenville:

Greenville, N. C. July 27, 1933.
Blount's Dairy,
Greenville, N. C.
Dear Sirs:

A copy of your letter of 24th inst. announcing increase in dairy products on and after August 1, 1933, was received today.

An increase in price was expected but a 50 per cent increase in a commodity as necessary as milk is startling. If the cost of operation for dairymen of Greenville has increased 50 per cent then perhaps this increased cost to the customers is warranted. Otherwise, it is unjust and increasing the cost of commodities far in excess of any increase in wages.

Besides, in view of an action taken recently in one of our large cities in the United States, I can not grasp the validity of a 50 per cent increase in the cost of milk in Greenville. Dairymen of Baltimore, Maryland, were compelled to reimburse customers for an increase dating from July 1st, which was far below the rate of increase asked here. While I'm certain an increase will come in Baltimore as elsewhere yet I'm citing this instance to show that even an increase of 1c on milk at 10 a quart was considered unjustifiable during July.

Will you kindly send an early reply to this letter justifying the abnormal increase asked in Greenville on and after August 1, 1933? If desired, this letter may be shared with the other dairymen of the town.

It is possible for me to make a personal adjustment between the amount of milk consumed and increase in price but I am interested in the many citizens here already struggling to purchase this most necessary commodity at its present price.

Respectfully yours,
Miriam B. Ryan.
(Mrs. Wm. A. Ryan.)
This 50 per cent increase in the cost of milk and now a 100 per cent increase in the cost of cream raises some pertinent questions. Have the dairies of Greenville increased wages in proportion to increase in price; are feed for cattle and operating expenses costing them 50 per cent more; is it costing them twice as much to deliver a quart of cream? Is this in keeping with the hoped-for justice, fairness and unselfishness of the NRA? If all other necessary commodities such as bread, meat, etc., were increased accordingly, how could the mass of people live? So far no answer has been received from this communication, which affects nearly every family in Greenville.

MRS. W. A. RYAN.

couragement by considering trials this association has gone through and is now maintaining with some, even satisfactory degree of success. Tax values in Pitt county have been reduced one-third, amounting to more than $11,000,000 and the tax rate will remain about .83 cents on the $100. One of the strongest arguments made against the efforts of this association was that if values were reduced the tax rate would have to be advanced, and the advanced rate would offset the intended benefits expected by reducing values. It is now plain to every thinking person that such argument was made by self-deserving interest or by persons under mistaken advice. This association begs every taxpayer to think for himself; to refuse to be guided by advice of selfish interest and spokesmen of self-serving persons whose interest do not put the greatest good to the greatest number first.

If you believe in democracy think on these things and others for the good of democracy.

Attorney General's Aid First Southern Woman In This Dept

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The one time crinolined ladies of the south now have a very modern representative at the austere department of justice.

Stella Akin, one of the newly sworn in special assistants to the attorney general, is the first southern woman to gain admittance to this branch of the federal government.

She is a young Savannah, Ga., lawyer with curly, red hair, sparkling brown eyes and a low voice softly southern in its accent.

Miss Akin went to the attorney general's office to take her oath of office just as a titan-haired lady might—with a jade green hat, to set off her bright colored locks, a matching green purse and wearing a smart black and white figured crepe dress.

There she found not only Attorney-General Cummings waiting to see this new member of the department, but Postmaster General "Jim" Farley as well.

Farley, no doubt, remembered the way Miss Allen tramped up and down Ohio, Michigan and West Virginia during the last campaign and the long hot days and nights at the Chicago convention which Miss Akin worked around the clock.

Miss Akin was just 17 years old during the war when she obtained a stenographer's position in a lawyer's office. The big, brown law books interested her so much that in three years she was admitted to the bar, youngest woman to gain that honor in her state at that time.

Since then she has been secretary for her state's Democratic committee and vice-president of the National Business and Professional Women's Association, all the while keeping a general law office going full tilt.

"Just a general practice," she explains, "divorces, claims, even four murder trials. It was so fascinating I had time for nothing else. Don't ask me if I play golf. I just don't have time."

Her activity explains that lack of time. The day she was sworn in she chatted a few moments and then began looking around rather vaguely. Her new chief, the attorney general, asked her if she was looking for anything.

"Why, yes, my desk," she said.

"I just thought I'd go to work." So she did, in the claims department.

ROSSEAU EXHIBITING AT OLD LYME, CONN.

Old Lyme, Conn., Aug. 9.—The 32nd annual exhibition of the Lyme Art Association opened July 29 in the gallery on the village street of Old Lyme, Conn., and will remain open through September 10.

About 100 arger canvases are hung and twice that number of sketches. As is usually the case at the Lyme shows, landscapes are in the majority but the competition with portraits, still lifes and other motifs is keener this year than ever before.

One of the exhibitors is Percival Rosseau. His dog portraits are known the world over and the visitor to the Lyme Exhibition would be disappointed if he did not see two or three of this man's hunting dogs. As delightful as the picture is, the sight of the artist among his dogs at his home on Grassy Hill in Lyme. The affection the animals show him proves that one reason he paints dogs so well is because he loves them. He and his dogs divide the year between Lyme and North Carolina, going south when the weather turns frosty.

AYDEN TRIMS LOCALS IN A CLOSE GAME

By R. O. Moyer
(Official Scorekeeper)

Greenville lost its second league game for the past two weeks here yesterday afternoon to Ayden by the score of 4-2.

The locals did all of their scoring in the third frame. Singles by Miller and Smith, with the aid of an error and a sacrifice by Brown, led to the scoring of the two runs.

Ayden also bunched their hits together in the sixth frame and triples by McQuage and Wall, and a single by Stankus with an error, led to their four runs.

Stankus who pitched for Ayden, allowed the locals six hits, struck out four men, and walked one man.

Andreoli pitching for the locals allowed 7 hits, struck out one man and allowed two passes to first.

Both sides made some costly errors which more or less were the cause of the runs. Ayden was credited with four errors and Greenville two.

Fielding honors go to Taylor, right fielder, and Harrington center fielder, for the locals. Both made some beautiful catches in their respective positions and more than once went out of their way to catch what seemed impossible balls.

A double play by Ayden in the first frame, Marble to McQuage, was the only outstanding play made by the visitors.

Smith with two singles led the locals attack and Wall with a triple and single led the visitors attack.

The box score follows:

Ayden	Ab	E	H	O	A	E
Lambeth	4	1	1	1	5	2
Marble	3	1	0	2	2	1
McQuage	1	1	1	1	1	0

SNOW HILL BEATEN BY KINSTON'S BIG INNING

Kinston, Aug. 9.—Kinston scored all its runs in the second inning and defeated Snow Hill 9-1 here yesterday. The big innings saw the locals pound the offerings of Longest and Molsinger but Nelms, an outfielder, then took over the mound duties for Snow Hill and checked the home guard. Physic held the visitors to one hit in six innings and Cooper pitched hitless ball the rest of the way.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady unchanged to four lower under liquidation and favorable weather and crop advices. Houses with continental and Liverpool connections were among the early buyers while there was some scattered selling on southern accounts and through brokers with Japanese connections.

The market at the end of the first half hour was steady and about 7 to 8 net higher. Offerings were relatively light during the morning and the market held very steady with a scattered demand that appeared to be coming from trade and commission house sources. At mid-day December was holding around 10.19 or 51 points above yesterday's low with the price range of the general active list showing net advances of 26 to 29 points. Futures closed steady, 25 to 27 up.

Stock Market

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Financial markets heartened by the apparent steadiness of business and industrial progress moved upward in a generally quiet but orderly trading in the early hours. Transactions were at a much faster pace than on Monday and yesterday and gains of one to three points were well distributed over a broad front.

Alcohol shares and several specialties were again in demand. Most of the tops quoted, however, were shaded later by profit taking.

Cotton got back some of its previous losses and grains firmed on the eve of the government crop report. Bonds registered improvement. The dollar was somewhat easier in terms of leading foreign exchanges. Wet shares reflected optimism over Arizona's repeal vote. National Distillers shot up three points and other issues in the group up one to about two points included U. S. Commercial Alcohol, Commercial Solvent, Owens Illinois, Standard Brands, and American Commercial Alcohol. National Steel advanced more than three and Industrial Rayon gained about four.

Mr. Tobacco Grower Do You Need Help?

The Federal Department of Agriculture promises a plan for payment to tobacco growers in return for acreage reductions provided the flue-cured tobacco growers feel that they need such a plan and mass sentiment therefor. If such a plan is to be put into effect there must be quick action on your part and below we are offering you an opportunity to make your wishes in this matter known to us at once. If there is need for such aid and sentiment enough among the growers for same the government is ready to extend a helping hand. If you favor this plan please sign and return the blank below at once, as there is no time to lose.

Secretary of Agriculture,
Washington, D. C.

I understand the government wants tobacco farmers to receive money enough to buy as much as they could with the average of tobacco prices from 1919 to 1929 (parity prices).

In consideration of payment to me of money to be raised from a processing tax on tobacco manufacturing—so that my buying power as a tobacco grower may be increased—I am willing to agree to cut my tobacco acreage the next three years (same as cigar tobacco growers).

I have acres in tobacco this year.
