ATTENDS LEAF CONFERENCE

John T. Thorne Represents Pitt County At Washington City Meeting

John T. Thorne of Farmville, prominent business man and planter, was in Washington City today conferring with government officials regarding adoption of a plan for reducing the tobacco acreage next year.

THE PROPOSED PLAN

The proposed plan now being considered by the government as outlined by Mr. Lanier follows: Essentials of a Satisfactory Plan

Any plan looking towards the maintenance of fair prices for the cured tobacco must be based upon control of production. Any plan seeking to control production must embody benefits to farmers who agree to the plan. It must be made to appear to the individual farmer that it will be financially profitable for him to agree to a program of acreage curtailment.

He has been closely affiliated with the farming industry for many years, and his extensive knowledge of the growing and marketing of tobacco was expected to be of great value in the discussions today looking to adoption of a curtailment plan.

Upon his return, it was probable a meeting of the Board of Agriculture would be called to give him an opportunity to explain what was accomplished at the Washington meeting.

IT SHOULD GO OVER

The mass meeting Saturday was one of the best farmers meetings ever held here and the spirit of willingness to co-operate for the good of all. The reduction plan as outlined by J. Con Lanier of the Tobacco Division, appears to us as most workable and it is to be hoped that the government will look favorably upon his plan which was to be submitted to the board sometime today. Under Mr. Lanier's plan the growers throughout the belt would be asked to sign government contracts to reduce their acreage 10 or 15 per cent as the government deemed necessary, to take care of the demand and in return the government would pay the growers a figure to be decided upon between $35 and $50 per acre for every acre left out of cultivation under the contract.

The wholehearted endorsement of Mr. Lanier and his efforts by the meeting is evidence that the growers are ready and willing for such a plan and it is our prediction that more than 90 per cent of all the flue cured tobacco growers would sign such a contract if given the opportunity.

Reduction is necessary if farmers are to be assured of a living price for their tobacco and we are sure that the farmers realize this just as well as the government does. As Mr. Lanier expressed, the government cannot help the farmers unless they are willing to try to help themselves and it is for this reason that he is endeavoring to get his plan adopted by the Agriculture Administration of which he is part. It should go over big.

The HIDDEN DOOR

By Frank L. Packard

Synopsis: Colin Hewitt learns first that the St. Lawrence River "club" where he had expected to deliver a mysterious letter to Joe Lazzare is really a den of thieves, one of the enterprises of the Mask, New York killer who has threatened Colin's life. Lazzare is the Mask's tool, but also Colin's only hope of deliverance. Now he learns the "club" is to be hijacked under a gank led by one Dollaire. He must warn Lazzare and goes to Bouchard's shack to ask him to guide him overland to the club. There he hears familiar voices.

"Soon they were all at the table," said Bouchard. "It was obviously the third man seated there at the rough board table—a big man, unshaven and unkempt. And Bouchard at the moment was tilting a bottle to his lips. "Thousands, I tell you!" Bouchard asserted, and thumped the bottle on the table by way of emphasis. "Me I am telling you, I saw it. It is underneath what they call their power house where the falls come over—you see—eh? It is clever. "Hah!" observed Bolduc sapiently. "There is a trapdoor, then that is easy. "No," said Bouchard, and tilted the bottle again. "It is not so easy as all that. They are not children, those fellows there—except in the wood." He laughed suddenly, uproariously, as he once more wiped his lips. "There is a story about the children in the woods—eh?" "Shut up!" exclaimed Laroque sharply. "Don't make so much noise, and don't drink so much! How do you get down under the power house?" Bouchard scrubbed at his un-so I said to myself, 'Anatole, you will go home and get a little sleep.' Bouchard paused, wet his lips with his tongue, and looked longingly again at the bottle. Laroque, re-lecting, pushed it toward him. "The last one, you understand?" he cautioned gruffly. "There will be work to do tonight. Oo on! What next?" "Thanks said Bouchard gratefully, as he helped himself to another generous swig. "Well, I got back here, and then that fog set in. It was not gone until midnight. Then I went back to the club, and stayed there and watched all day. So you see now eh, why I was not here this afternoon?" "That's all right, now that we understand," Bolduc conceded heartily. "Well, did you find out anything more?" "No," replied Bouchard with a throaty chuckle, "except that some of them were lost for sure nearly all night, and that they do not search any more now. But what I found out before then I have not told you yet. I have stolen close to the club at night, and I have heard them talk. You bet! Listen! The big boss is a man they call the Mask." "We will see who is the boss when we meet him!" observed Laroque grimly. Bouchard shook his head. "You will not meet him," he stated with a short laugh. "He is never there. He is always in New York. I have heard them talk a lot about him and—I do not understand—but they do not seem to know who he is themselves. That's funny, eh?—but it is true. And I have heard them talk a lot about what they call W. P., that is also in New York, but I do not understand about that either." "New York is a long way off," Laroque pointed out derisively. "What do we care what it means?" "How many men have they got at the club?" "Ten," said Bouchard laconically. "Ho!" ejaculated Laroque facetiously. "Then we are too many! We ought to have refused half of those brave boys at St. Pierre and Miquelon who wanted to line their pockets to divide it. Bolduc, when we come club alive." But again Bouchard shook his head.

PUBLIC FORUM

OUR READERS ARE INVITED TO USE THIS COLUMN FOR DISCUSSING PROBLEMS OF INTEREST TO THIS COMMUNITY. IN ALL CASES NAMES MUST ACCOMPANY ANY COMMUNICATION. Please Make Your Discussion As Short As Possible.

DISCUSSION OF N. R. A. A number of people met at the Christian Church during service hour Sunday morning to hear a discussion of Christian citizenship and the National Recovery Administration. The pastor reviewed the subject from a Christian's point of view. This seemed to be a patriotic point of view, viz: trade with and support enterprises that are trying to carry out the National program, which is to give employment to as many as possible. One of our National statesmen said we must begin our National recovery at home, in other words: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," at home, and National and foreign affairs would automatically adjust themselves, following the same rule. In the discussion, the pastor asked for questions and volunteer information. One tobaccoist discussed the employment situation as carried out by the tobacco factories here. He said the factories would take care of that type of labor in Greenville by working two shifts. Nothing was said of the warehouse employees. Perhaps the warehousemen have planned similar methods as their part of the economic adjustment. This class of workers is included in the class that Madison Cooper, a New York editor, said was the hardest hit by the depression. They do not want to lose their credit or to accept charity, so they carry on in silence until circumstances force them to let the public know of their condition. Often it is too late for the world to show what a big heart it has. The preachers and business men of Greenville have it in their power to relieve much of the present economic strain in our town, which they have already done to a great extent. The first group by directing public opinion and the second group by practical application, bringing realization to the National Recovery Program. If the business men of Greenville many of whom claim not only citizenship but Christian citizenship, try to keep the prices of food and necessities within the reach of citizens, and give employment to as many as possible, they will increase the purchasing power of the community. As soon as this happens, increased purchasing power will be reflected in the volume of their business, and National Recovery will have become a fact in our community instead of a great plan of our President. MRS. ARTHUR JONES. DANCE IS FOLLOWED BY FATAL SHOOTING. Lumberton, Aug. 14—Lucian Morrison, colored, was shot to death shortly after midnight Saturday night between Maxton and Alma, by Carl Smith, colored, as an aftermath of trouble that started at a dance at the home of Morrison's brother, Rock Morrison, when liquor got too plentiful. Kinston, Aug. 14—City taxes here will be reduced approximately 40 per cent this fiscal year. A tentative rate of $1 on the $100 worth of property was announced today following a meeting of the city council.

LANIER DECLARES GOVERNMENT READY TO HELP LEAF GROWERS

vantage over the farmer who will not agree to the acreage control program. We think that unless this fundamental principle is contained in a program for crop reduction, the program will fail because in the last analysis the farmer will be guided by what is best for him financially.

In order to initiate a production control program for the 1934 crop it is essential that the campaign be carried through before January 1 in order to get a sign-up before tenancy contracts are made for the year 1934. It is also necessary that funds be made available from which to compensate the farmer who agrees to cut his acreage in accordance with any plan proposed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Financing the Plan.
The revenues with which to finance a crop reduction program would be raised through a processing tax on domestically used flue cured tobacco. It is recommended that September 1 be defined as the beginning of the 1933 marketing year. This could easily be done, as not enough of the 1933 crop will have been sold on that date to establish an average farm price. For the district as a whole not enough of it will be sold until November or December to give a very reliable indication of the season average. Since prices for any given month are largely determined by the grades of tobacco marketed during that month, it is not believed that a processing tax could be satisfactorily determined on any basis other than the average for a full season.

Attention is called to the fact that a process tax applying to tobacco would attach only to crops produced during years previous to 1933. All of these crops were sold at prices far below parity and at an actual loss to the producer. Very little, if any tobacco of the 1933 crop will be processed within the next twelve months. Therefore, it would be fundamentally just and equitable to place a processing tax on tobacco bought at a loss than a parity price, even though the 1933 crop should bring parity prices. The funds so raised would be used to finance a crop reduction program for the 1934 crop. It is quite possible that the operation of this plan would assist in the bringing about parity prices for the 1933 crop, rather than depressing them. Only through this procedure could a crop reduction program for 1934 be successfully inaugurated.

The levying of a processing tax on flue cured tobacco of sufficient size to produce an appreciable amount of revenue would require that prices for the 1932-33 season be considered as current prices. From half to two-thirds of the production is exported, so that to raise a fund equal to as much as 1 cent per pound for the entire crop would require a processing tax of around three cents per pound on the part used domestically.

Possible Difficulties.
This program of production control can be defeated in three ways. First, the failure of a large majority of the farmers to accept the proposition will of necessity cause its failure. Second, the combination of the buying interests in unlawful restraint of trade could arbitrarily force down the price of tobacco, regardless of any of the ratios of production consumption. Third, the opening up of no tobacco territory and the planting of tobacco by new farmers could defeat the program. It is further believed that there will be no combination of the buying interests to force prices below a parity level, provided production is kept within reasonable bounds in accordance with the actual needs of the trade. By tying the program of control of flue cured tobacco in with the control of cotton and other crops it is believed that the program of the opening of new tobacco territory can be kept within bounds.

CITY WATER RUINS HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT

Elizabeth City, Aug. 14.—Because the city water, heavily laden with salt, was ruining delicate instruments at the Albermarle Hospital, a private pumping system with well water has been installed in the hospital, it was announced by Rev. George Hill, president of the board of directors, today.

The Elizabeth City water supply upon occasions is not fit to drink because of the heavy saline content. The voters of the city last spring spiked an effort of the city council to provide a better water supply by overwhelmingly voting down the proposed expenditure of $75,000 on the project.

FLAT-BOAT DWELLING ENDED BY OFFICERS

Bayboro, Aug. 14.—Sheriff Brinson and Superintendent of Welfare P. G. Gallop were called to Oriental to take custody of J. J. Townsend his two little daughters, Irene and Louise, age nine and six, and a Mrs. Daisy McFarland, who were undesirable visitors in that village. The quartet had been living for some time on a flat boat on Neuse river between New Bern and Oriental. From time to time they landed and the little girls begged for food. This was the cause for their arrest at Oriental.

The man and woman both seem to be unsound mentally, while the children appear intelligent and rather attractive, considering their plight. Townsend has been released from prison, the woman returned to the welfare department of Beaufort county where she had formerly been. The smaller girl has been placed in the home of Mrs. Amanda Hamilton, of Stonefall, and a home is being sought for the larger one.

LAWN PARTY STAYER HELD FOR MURDER

Winston-Salem, Aug. 14.—(AP)—J. M. Bray, 40 of Rural Hall, was held in jail here today charged with murder in connection with the shooting of Leslie Tuttle 14-year old high school student of King, which occurred at a lawn party near Rural Hall Saturday night.

Witnesses said Bray had been drinking heavily and started shooting promiscuously. Bray himself, officers said, told them he remembered shooting, but knew little of his actions and had nothing against the boy.

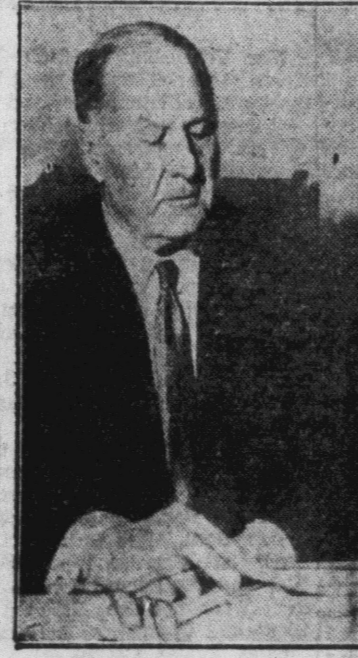

Two companions of Tuttle who were sitting beside the road when him said they heard shooting and saw Bray running toward them, firing as he came.

Tuttle jumped up they said, and then fell into the arms of a bystander, dying almost instantly from a wound near the heart.

Tuttle, son of Mrs. and Mrs. W. E. Tuttle, is also survived by four sisters and two brothers.

A coroner's inquest was held unnecessary.

DEAN BLANKS SNOW HILL IN MOUND DUEL

Pitching a spectacular brand of ball in every inning, Lefty Dean, pitching ace of the Greenville club of the Coastal Plain League, blanked Snow Hill here Saturday afternoon by the score of 4 to 0 to tighten the grip of his club on the top of the circuit standing.

Incidentally, it was the first shut-out game registered by the local club this season, and was witnessed by a crowd that cheered madly as inning after inning rolled by without the visitors being able to shove a runner over the home plate.

Dean continued to uphold his strikeout record of one an inning by causing ten batters to whiff the breezes in a vain attempt to connect with the twisters, liberally intermixed with a baffling speed ball.

The former Mount Airy High school boy, who has pitched remarkably fine ball since joining the club about two months ago, was at his best in this game against the Greene county lads, and in spite of their reputation as hard hitters, held them to six hits which were so well scattered they could not convert them into markers.

To match Dean, Snow Hill placed six on the mound. He is one of the best pitchers in the league, and while hurling fine ball, he was unable to stop rallies that resulted in the locals scoring one in the sixth and three in the seventh. Three batters of his teammates also contributed to his downfall.

Meybort and Neims did the heavy hitting for the visitors, each accounting for two safeties. One by Neims went for an extra base.

For Greenville, the fleet-footed Bob Lang in left field led the race at bat, getting two safeties out of two trips to the plate. Miller, Brown, Smith, Taylor and Rogers accounted for one each, the one by Rogers going for an extra base.

Today found Greenville playing at Ayden and Kinston at Snow Hill. Tomorrow Greenville will go to Kinston and Ayden to Snow Hill.

SPORT SEANTS

By ALAN GOULD

No big league team in recent years has collected more on its player insurance (i. e. its reserve strength) than the gay and giddy Giants of Old New York.

When Manager Terry broke his wrist this spring, Sambo Leslie stepped in and played so well at first that it was an embarrassing moment for Bill when he decided to declare himself back in the game. It was like trying to cut back into a "hot seat" in apoker game. Leslie was going so strong that it was a shame to use him but others besides Terry, of course regarded Terry as the ablest first baseman in the league and that was that.

Blondy Ryan not only stepped in to replace Travis Jackson at short stop but he has made Giant routers forget the Arkansas Traveler. Everyone knows how well Terry has built up his battery department, considered the club's most glaring weakness at the outset of the season.

But what we strted out to emphasize was that the first base insurance wasn't cancelled when Terry left Leslie. The Giants have their eyes on another understudy Joe Malay, who has been burning up the New York-Penn League for the Scranton Club this season and adding fresh lustre to the family's baseball reputation.

Joe Malay's dad, Charley Malay, was an old time Brooklyn outfielder. The elder Malay once played with Elmira in the old state league that covered much of the same territory now furnishing the background for young Joe's exploits.

It isn't quite clear how the Dodgers permitted the escape of this youngster, who was born in Brooklyn nearly 24 years ago, but he caught the eye of Giant Scouts in the Eastern League.
Malay started out with Hartford but was sold to Bridgeport, his present home town, and then a Giant farm in 1931. He quickly showed he knew how to handle a bat. He was hitting .335 when the Eastern blew up in 1932, then was shifted to the Piedmont League "farm" of the Giants in Winston-Salem.

Malay moved into the New York-Penn League battling lead the end of July by collecting six hits in eight trips to the plate in a Sunday double header, showing his average up to .365. He has been leading the league in most hits and ranked third in runs batted in. His fielding too, has been conspicuously brilliant.

"I hear this Malay is a hustling young man who knows his way around the ball park," remarked Bill Terry in man festing interest in the Scranton star's development.
"We will welcome that type of player on this club at all times and I have no doubt Malay will get the chance to show us what he can do."

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Futures opened fairly steady six to 10 points decline in response to lower Liverpool cables and under liquidation.
Pressure was sufficient to sent December off to 9.39 after the call with active months showing declines of about 11 to 13 points but offerings were absorbed at these figures and the market steadied up a few points.
At the end of the first half hour December was selling around 9.24 with active months showing losses of about 6 to 19 points.

The market stiffened later in the morning, December rising from 9.45 to 9.50. A further bulge to 9.58 for that position was not maintained and after purchases of about 25,000 bales of December the demand tapered off.
Prices reacted under selling with December selling off to 9.46 but offerings weren't heavy and the market at midday was holding with prices unchanged.
Futures closed barely steady 19 or 23 lower; spots quiet.

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Most financial market were in the grip of the dog day doldrums today and with sentiment toward ultra-caution in further commitments prices generally displayed heavy tone.

Stocks were dull and floor operations accounted for what little business there was.

Leading shares were inclined to sag fractionally to a point or more although some of the gold mining issues and a few other specialties were steady to firm.

Homestate mining jumped 15 at one time and Alaska Juno was higher.

Losers of one to two or more however included Santa Fe, American Sugar, American Telephone, American Can, United Aircraft, Bethlehem Steel, Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Case, Chrysler, Westinghouse, U. S. Smelting Dupont North American, Western Union, National Tilers, and Commercial Solvnt.
