ATLANTIC SEABOARD BATTERED BY TERRIFIC GALE

NORTH CAROLINA COAST BUFFETED BY HIGH SEAS AND STORM

Storm Roars Along At 60 Miles An Hour

BIG SCHOONER BATTLES HIGH SEA AT MANTEO

Four Masted Schooner in Distress Mile From Shore; Coast Guard Held Back by High Seas Unable to Render Aid; Heavy Seas Running Over Beach From Kitty Hawk to Cape Hatteras

Hatteras, Aug. 23--(AP)--Caught in the path of a tropical disturbance and whipped by the tail end of a northeaster making its way down from Sandy Hook, the North Carolina coast today bore the brunt of a two-edged gale that roared along at a 60 mile velocity.

Off Gull Shoals near Manteo when it anchored a mile from shore. Last night it was still making a fight although she had been forced a half mile nearer shore.

Heavy seas were running over the beach from Kitty Hawk to Cape Hatteras and rain was beating down.

GALE CAUSES DAMAGE HERE

Tropical Hurricane Flits His Tail About Viciously In This Community

The tropical hurricane which was scheduled for the North Carolina coast last night reared his ugly head as expected and flirited his tail about viciously in this community, causing considerable damage to communication and power lines, outhouses, growing crops, and blew down a number of trees in Greenville and surrounding territory.

In Greenville proper, the gale reached such force that several large trees were blown down in various sections of the city and in the business district plate glass windows were smashed. So severe was the storm after midnight that electric light and power service was discontinued and was not resumed until after daybreak.

Numbers of telephone polls were said to have been blown down in various sections and outhouses collapsed under the forces of the terrific gale.

Growing crops such as corn, were reported to have suffered considerably and in many fields the large stalks had been leveled to the ground.

Fruit and nut trees suffered keenly from the wind, it was stated in virtually all parts of the county heard from. This was especially so of pear and apple trees which were almost completely stripped of their fruit. Pecan trees suffered probably worse than all others as the nuts were scattered over the ground in a green condition, causing complete loss to growers.

Plate glass windows at Blount-Harvey Co. Frank Wilson's and the Express office and in other parts of the business district were blown

LEAF HOUSE READY HERE

Forbes and Morton Ready to Render High Type of Service This Season

A tobacco warehouse that has not only held its own, but has continued each season to add to its large list of satisfied customers from every part of Eastern North Carolina, is that of Forbes and Morton, and it is conceded by all to be one of the most popular warehouse firms of the Greenville Market.

Under the ownership and personal supervision of Gus E. Forbes and Will T. Morton, both of whom are experienced tobacco men, this firm has won the confidence of the tobacco growers of Eastern North Carolina.

Mr. Forbes is a successful farmer and is experienced in the growing of tobacco as well as the marketing of the weed an dis ever interested in helping of his patrons in the growing and handling of their crop. Mr. Morton has been identified with the tobacco industry from his boyhood. Before coming to Greenville he operated a warehouse on one of the smaller markets and has a following among the tobacco growers exceeded by no other individual of any market.

Both Mr. Forbes and Mr. Morton have for the past fourteen years been representing the farmers in the sale of their weed, and understanding both the growth and sale of tobacco, they are in a position to appreciate all sides and all phases of the tobacco business.

Much of the same office and warehouse force that has served the patrons of Forbes and Morton for the past number of years will be with the firm again this year, thus assuring the farmers that their interest will be in the hands of efficient people and the sale of their tobacco will have the personal attention of the management.

No doubt this warehouse will be one of the leaders this season and farmers can do no better than to sell their crop at the Greenville Market and with Forbes and Morton.

SHIPS LEAF TO THIS MART FROM MONROE

First Large Consignment of Bright Leaf For Sale Tuesday Made Today

With warehouses preparing here today to receive first offerings for the opening of the Greenville tobacco market next Tuesday, announcement was made of the shipment of a considerable supply of tobacco by a grower in the Monroe vicinity.

Smith and Sugg, local warehousemen, received notice today from G. V. Phillips that he was preparing to ship a considerable amount of his crop for sale here the opening day, or during the early part of the season.

Although tobacco always is received on the market here about a week prior to the opening of the market, this is the first announcement in connection with actual offering of the weed so far received, although the actual placing of tobacco on warehouse floors was expected to be reported within the next few hours.

Last season Greenville sold tobacco from scores of counties in North Carolina and from as far as Canada, but the shipment from Monroe, about 300 miles from this city, is the first far-away shipment to be made this season.

Warehouses were in fine condition today for receiving the first offerings of the thousands of growers expected to bring their leaf here for the opening Tuesday but the actual rush was not expected to begin until the night preceding the opening. With the fast system of transportation used by growers now the big push does not get under way until a day before the market swings open, and then forces have to work at top speed to keep pace with the influx of growers and their tobacco.

With the largest crop of years in prospect Greenville was expected to set a new record in the sale of bright leaf this year, and the shipment of Monroe, coming as it does from such a distance, is a good omen of what may be expected when things begin moving at full steam ahead.

MYSTERIOUS DISEASE KILLS 18 PERSONS

U. S. Public Health Service Investigates Sleeping Sickness in Mo.

St. Louis, Mo. Aug. 23--(AP)--Science rallied today to an intensified fight against sleeping sickness, mysterious disease which has killed 18 and attacked 182 others in the St. Louis vicinity.

A government expert rushed here from Washington went to work in an attempt to determine if insects spread the disease.

Meanwhile, as three deaths were reported the last 24 hours swelled the fatalities to 18, the disease broke out in five other mid-western communities.

The United States Public Health Service recognizing the outbreak is the largest ever reported in the world at any one given place, has dispatched a third scientific expert here.

FIREMEN PROTEST CUT IN COMPENSATION

Kinston, Aug. 23--(AP)--Volunteer firemen here are protesting a proposed cut in their pay. They receive 50 cents for answering an alarm and $1 an hour for fighting flames. Police and Fire Commissioner William Herbert would pay them 25 cents for answering an alarm, nothing if the alarm was false. Firemen say they would not be justified in using their automobiles and burning gasoline and oil for 25 cents. They assert the reduction would violate the spirit of the NRA.

Party Politics On Holiday; It's Every Man "On His Own"

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

An excursionist landing in Washington today after a six-month absence in Mars would find few problems harder to solve than this: "What happened to the old American institution known as party politics?"

The returning traveler would read almost nothing on that subject in the newspapers. He would hear it mentioned sidom except in specialized circles. With another national campaign session about to begin he would marvel to behold Republican and Democratic headquarters largely silent and inactive.

He would discover, if he looked carefully, that politics is by no means dead, although greatly changed. If he penetrated a great deal of surface confusion, he would see that something which might be termed "personal politics" had been substituted for the previous brand of organized party effort.

There probably is more of the "every-man-for-himself" type of politics in Washington today than at any former time since the present parties were founded.

Across Party Lines. The degree in which Mr. Roosevelt himself is "on his own" is not easily comprehended. He talked little about the parties during the 1932 campaign and scarcely has mentioned them since. It is well known that many Democratic leaders in Congress dislike to see Republicans in the cabinet, are dissatisfied with the patronage situation and have supported the Roosevelt legislative program with reservations.

These leaders will go along if the President's personal program is a success, and his personal popularity increases. They will try to reorganize the party according to their own ideas if he fails.

Nor is there anything dependable about Mr. Roosevelt's hold on that other wing of his supporters, the insurgent Republicans. They demonstrated that when every one of them quit him on his veterans program.

Whether he holds them in the long run depends on no Democratic party program, but on his own ability to perpetuate an "administration party" made up of both Democrats and Republicans, under his personal leadership.

So also among the more orthodox Republicans. At this stage, instead of representing a party organization, they are a group of individuals going many directions.

ALDERMEN TO ADOPT BUDGET ON THURSDAY

Tentative Budget Put On Display Twenty Days Ago to Get Final Action

A special session of the Board of Aldermen was called today for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to consider adoption of a permanent budget.

The tentative budget was placed on public display twenty days ago, according to law, and now that everybody has been given an opportunity to take a careful squint at it and note its economy features, the board proposed to adopt it to go by this year.

Because the budget is under last year's figures in the face of nearly a $3,000,000 decrease in valuations, it has attracted considerable interest from that element interested in affairs of government. The administration has been congratulated upon the reduction of the tax rate with other towns and counties raising theirs.

The rate has been cut from $1.00 on the $100 valuation to 96 cents. The rate has been reduced each year until it has fallen from $1.40 to the present figure.

The special meeting was called today by Mayor R. C. Flanagan who said that any other matter pressing for settlement would be taken up at the time.

PROBE DEATH OF PUBLISHER

Body of Ohio Newspaper Editor Found in Muskingum River Today

Coshocton, Ohio, Aug. 23--(AP)--Found and weighted with a hammer, plow points and led slugs, the body of Fred Wallace, 61-year-old missing newspaper publisher, was found in the Muskingum river two miles from here last night.

Dr. P. W. Craig, county coroner, immediately took charge of the body. He withheld his verdict while prosecutor Lyons began a study of the publisher's disappearance three days ago and the circumstances of death.

Neither Craig nor Lyons was able to advance any theory as to the nature of the victim's death or to indicate whether the publisher had any enemies who might have resorted to violence.

Wallace, publisher and editor of the Coshocton Tribune, was last seen alive when he left his newspaper office early Sunday morning apparently to walk to his home a block away.

BIG STEAMER DAMAGED OFF THIMBLE SHOAL

Reports From Along Eastern Seaboard Tell of Thousands Of Dollars Worth of Damage; Vacationists Marooned at Norfolk; Four Masted Schooner in Danger on the North Carolina Coast

Wilmington, Aug. 23--(AP)--The coast guard cutter Modoc stationed here intercepted a wireless today saying that the cutter Carabasset which was enroute to the distressed steamer Madison off Cape Charles was hove off No. 5 buoy Thimble Shoals, near Old Point Comfort, Va., with minor damage to the boat and one pilot house window smashed in by the storm.

(By Associated Press)

Caught between a raging northeaster and tropical hurricane blowing up from Bermuda, the Atlantic seaboard found no respite today from the five days of storm and gale which have brought death and destruction over a wide area.

An SOS from the Old Dominion liner Madison with more than 90 persons aboard sent coast guard cutters plowing through the high seas to her assistance off Cape Charles, Va. The faint call for help said the forward deck of the coast-wise steamer was washed away and that the craft was in immediate need of assistance. The ship left New York for Norfolk yesterday.

Reports from along the eastern seaboard told of thousands of dollars worth of damage by the hurricane and possible loss of life. Communication along the entire Maryland coast was cut off early today.

At Norfolk, winds of 70 and 80 miles velocity accompanied by heavy rains, marooned vacationists and flooded low lying sections.

The North Carolina coast was also being pounded by mountainous waves and an unknown four-masted (Continued on page three)

PROBE WRECK TRAIN-TRUCK

Haywood Smith Held In Crash That Killed Seven At Lumberton Yesterday

Lumberton, Aug. 23--(AP)--Reversing a previous decision after consultation with Solicitor T. A. McNeill, coroner G. W. Diges today called together an inquest jury to probe the death of seven persons killed yesterday when a tobacco truck they were riding in crashed into a Seaboard Air Line passenger train here.

Coroner Diges at first announced no inquest would be necessary and allowed removal of the bodies to Deep Run, a village near Kinston where all of the victims were born and reared.

Later, however, he conferred with the solicitor and then ordered the technical arrest of Haywood Smith, driver of the truck.

Pending the inquest, Smith was released on his own recognizance and remained in a hospital where he was taken after the wreck.

What the Blue Eagle means to you and how you can get it

The President's Reemployment Program is advancing to complete success. No such sweeping demonstration of the unity of a whole people against a national danger has ever been made. • In this vast surge of patriotism it is necessary to keep our common purpose always clear. When 125,000,000 people attempt to act as one man there are sure to be some misunderstandings. It is time to restate as clearly as possible the aim of the whole endeavor and the duty of each individual. • That is the purpose of this message—to state officially, briefly and clearly the simple rules for common guidance. • It is an evidence of the self-sacrificing service of the whole country that this newspaper has donated this space. In that spirit the whole country is acting. • This plan depends wholly on united action. That unity is almost complete. In the next few days let us close up every gap in the ranks and nail the flag of the Blue Eagle on the door of every man who works another man.

Wm. J. Johnson

OFFICIAL EXPLANATION OF THE PRESIDENT'S REEMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT (Sometimes mis-called "The Blanket Code")

This Agreement binds you to put its terms into effect from the time you sign the Certificate of Compliance until December 31, 1933, but when the President has approved a Code for your trade or industry, that Code takes the place of this Agreement.

Child Labor

(1) After August 31, 1933, not to employ any person under 16 years of age, except that persons between 14 and 16 may be employed (but not in manufacturing or mechanical industries) for not more than 3 hours per day and those hours between 7 A. M. and 7 P. M. in such work as will not interfere with hours of day school.

This means that after August 31, 1933, you agree not to employ any children under 16 years old in any kind of business. You may employ children between 14 and 16 years old, but only for three hours a day and those hours must be between 7 in the morning and 7 at night, and arranged so as not to interfere with school. You agree not to employ any children under 16 years old in manufacturing or mechanical industry, at any time.

Maximum Hours

(2) Not to work any accounting, clerical, banking, office, service, or sales employees (except outside salesman) in any store, office, department, establishment, or public utility, or on any auto, motor, or horse-drawn passenger, express, delivery, or freight service, or in any other place or manner, for more than 40 hours in any 1 week and not to reduce the hours of any store or service operation to below 32 hours in any 1 week, unless such hours were less than 32 hours per week before July 1, 1933, and in the latter case not to reduce such hours at all.

This means that you agree not to work any of the kinds of employees listed in this paragraph (except outside salesman) for more than 40 hours a week. This paragraph covers all employees except factory workers, mechanical workers and artisans. However, no limit on hours and no minimum wage applies to purely agricultural labor, domestic servants, or persons working for you solely on a commission basis, but, if you have persons working for you who are guaranteed a base pay in addition to their commission, then their base pay plus commissions must equal the minimum wage.

This Agreement sets no maximum on the number of hours you may keep your business open. You agree not to keep your wholesale, retail, or service establishment open less than 32 hours a week unless it was open less than 32 hours a week before July 1, 1933. Even then you agree to keep it open as long as you use it to keep it open before July 1. Of course, if you have always kept your store open shorter hours in the Summer months you can continue to do so this Summer, but you should pay your employees the same amount each week that they will get when you keep your store open full time.

The stores with more than two employees which remain open the longest are contributing the most to carrying out the purpose of the Agreement. The stores with two or less employees which can be open only the minimum number of hours required, are doing the most to fulfill their part.

(3) Not to employ any factory or mechanical worker or artisan more than a maximum week of 35 hours until December 31, 1933, but with the right to work a maximum week of 40 hours for any 6 weeks within this period; and not to employ any worker more than 8 hours in any one day.

This means that if you are employing factory or mechanical workers or artisans, you agree not to work them more than 35 hours a week and not more than 8 hours in any one day.

When you have more than the usual amount of work to do and can't get additional workers, you may employ this class of employee up to 40 hours a week in any 6 weeks, but even in this case you must not work them more than 8 hours a day.

(4) The maximum hours fixed in the foregoing paragraphs (2) and (3) shall not apply to employees in establishments employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2,500 population which towns are not part of a larger trade area; nor to registered pharmacists or other professional persons employed in their profession nor to employees in a managerial or executive capacity, who now receive more than $35 per week; nor to employees on emergency maintenance and repair work; nor to very special cases where restrictions of hours of highly skilled workers on continuous processes would unavoidably reduce production but, in any such special case, at least time and one-third shall be paid for hours worked in excess of the maximum. Population for the purposes of this agreement shall be determined by reference to the 1930 Federal census.

This means that there are certain employees whom you may work longer hours than are allowed by paragraphs (2) and (3) P. R. A.

If your business is in a small town (population less than 2,500 by the 1930 census) and you do not employ more than two persons, the limit on hours does not apply to these employees. If your town is really a part of a larger business community, the limit on hours does apply to these employees.

The limit on hours does not apply to your employees who are wholly or primarily managers or executives, as long as they receive $35 a week. Professional persons, like doctors, lawyers, registered pharmacists and nurses, may be employed without any limit on hours.

Where employees are doing emergency jobs of maintenance or repair work, they may be kept on the job for longer hours, but you agree to pay them at least time and one-third for hours worked over the limits set in paragraphs (2) and (3) P. R. A.

There are a few very special cases where highly skilled workers must be allowed to work more than the limit of hours in order to keep up output on continuous processes, but, here again, you agree to pay them at least time and one-third for the hours they work over the limits set in paragraphs (2) and (3) P. R. A.

Minimum Wages

(5) Not to pay any of the classes of employees mentioned in paragraph (2) less than $15 per week in any city of over 500,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14.50 per week in any city of between 250,000 and 500,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14 per week in any city of between 2,500 and 250,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city and in towns of less than 2,500 population to increase all wages by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require wages in excess of $12 per week.

This sets out the schedule of minimum wages which you agree to pay all employees, except factory or mechanical workers or artisans. The wages are set out in terms of dollars per week, but if your employees are paid by the hour, you may use the following schedule:

Place of Business: (Population by 1930 Census)	Minimum Wage:
In cities of 500,000 or over.....	37 1/2 cents per hour
In cities of between 250,000 and 500,000	36 1/2 cents per hour
In cities of between 2,500 and 250,000	35 cents per hour

If your business is in a town of less than 2,500 population, you agree to raise all wages at least 20%. If raising all wages 20% causes you to pay over $12 per week, then you need only pay the $12 per week.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to whether your business is in the "immediate trade area" of a city, you should ask your local Chamber of Commerce or other similar organization for a decision on the matter. The general rule is that the "immediate trade area" is the area in which there is direct retail competition.

(6) Not to pay any employee of the classes mentioned in paragraph (3) less than 40 cents per hour, unless the hourly rate for the same class of work on July 15, 1929, was less than 40 cents per hour, in which latter case not to pay less than the hourly rate on July 15, 1929, and in no event less than 30 cents per hour. It is agreed that this paragraph establishes a guaranteed minimum rate of pay regardless of whether the employee is compensated on the basis of a time rate or on a piece-work performance.

This fixes the minimum wage which you agree to pay factory and mechanical workers and artisans. The following schedule may help you to find out the proper rate:

If the rate for the same kind of work in the same community on July 15, 1929, was:	The minimum rate which you agree to pay is:
More than 40c an hour.....	40c an hour
30c to 40c an hour.....	The July 15, 1929 hourly rate
Less than 30c an hour.....	30c an hour

Instead of paying by the hour, you may pay by the week at a rate which gives the same weekly earnings for a week of 35 hours. For example, instead of 40c an hour, you may pay $14 per week.

If you had a contract on or before August 1, 1933, with a learner or apprentice, you do not have to pay him the minimum wage, but no one should be classed as a learner or an apprentice who has ever been employed as a regular worker in your industry.

(7) Not to reduce the compensation for employment now in excess of the minimum wages hereby agreed to (notwithstanding that the hours worked in such employment may be hereby reduced) and to increase the pay for such employment by an equitable readjustment of all pay schedules.

Two official interpretations—No. 1 and No. 20—have been issued, explaining this paragraph. You can get copies of these at your local Chamber of Commerce or from the nearest N. R. A. representative.

Anti-Subterfuge

(8) Not to use any subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of this Agreement which is, among other things, to increase employment by a universal covenant to remove obstructions to commerce, and to shorten hours and to raise wages for the shorter week to a living basis.

This is the heart of the whole Agreement. The President's Plan is to cure this depression by increasing purchasing power. You can help him put this plan over by voluntarily signing this Agreement to shorten hours and raise wages. There is no force to compel you to sign this Agreement. It is not law. It is a personal agreement between you and the President. The President expects you to do everything in your power to carry out the spirit of the Agreement after you sign it. This means whole-hearted cooperation by really earning the Blue Eagle—not by just getting it and then not doing your part.

It would be a "subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of this Agreement" to sign it and then put all of your employees on a straight commission basis—or any other trick to avoid doing what you promise to do.

HOW TO EARN THE BLUE EAGLE

1. Sign the President's Reemployment Agreement (P. R. A.)
2. Shorten Hours of factory workers to 35 hours per week, and of all other employees to 40 hours per week. (See paragraphs 2, 3 and 4, P. R. A.)
3. Raise Wages. (See paragraphs 5, 6, and 7, P. R. A.)
4. Don't Employ Child Labor. (See paragraph 1, P. R. A.)
5. Cooperate with the President. To do this:
 - (a) Live Up to the Agreement. (See paragraph 8, P. R. A.)
 - (b) Don't Profit. (See paragraph 9, P. R. A.)
 - (c) Deal Only with Others "Under the Blue Eagle." (See paragraphs 10 and 12.)
 - (d) Get a Code in by September 1st. (See paragraphs 11 and 13, P. R. A.)

HOW TO GET THE BLUE EAGLE

1. Sign the President's Reemployment Agreement.
2. Mail the Signed Agreement to your District Office of the Department of Commerce.
3. Put the Agreement into Effect (as outlined above in "How to Earn the Blue Eagle").
4. Sign a Certificate of Compliance. This is a slip distributed with the Agreement. It says: "I/we certify that we have adjusted the hours of labor and the wages of our employees to accord with the President's Reemployment Agreement, which we have signed."
5. Deliver the Certificate of Compliance to Your Post Office. The Postmaster will give you your Blue Eagle.

EXCEPTIONAL CASES

1. Where a Code Has Been Submitted. (See paragraph 13, President's Reemployment Agreement.) If your whole Trade or Industry is unable to live up to the President's Agreement, you should get together at once, with other employers in your Trade or Industry and, in a group, submit a Code of Fair Competition to N. R. A. in Washington. Since it takes some time after a Code has been submitted for it to be finally approved, your group may petition N. R. A. to substitute the wages and hours provisions of your Code for the wages and hours provisions of the President's Reemployment Agreement. If N. R. A. finds that the Code provisions are within the spirit of the President's Reemployment Agreement, it will consent to such substitutions. If N. R. A. does not consent there will be an official notice in all the papers. You must then put the substituted provisions into effect in place of the indicated paragraphs of the President's Reemployment Agreement. In this case, you should add to your Certificate of Compliance the following clause: "To the extent of N. R. A. consent as announced, we have complied with the President's Agreement by complying with the substituted provisions of the Code submitted by the Trade/Industry." If the substitution is consented to after you have already put the President's Reemployment Agreement into full effect, and after you have already gotten your Blue Eagle, you may still put the substituted provisions into effect without signing another Certificate of Compliance.
2. Where a Code Has Been Approved. If a Code of Fair Competition for your Trade or Industry has already been finally approved by the President, you need not sign the President's Reemployment Agreement in order to get the Blue Eagle. The same is true if you are subject to a Code which has been put into effect temporarily by agreement between the President and representatives of your Trade or Industry; but in either of these cases, you must sign a Certificate of Compliance, adding to it the following statement: "We have complied with the operative provisions of the Code for the Trade/Industry."
3. Cases of Individual Hardship. (Paragraph 14, President's Reemployment Agreement.) If there are some peculiar reasons why a particular provision of the President's Agreement will cause you, individually, a great and unavoidable hardship, you may still get the Blue Eagle by taking the following steps:
 - (a) Sign the Agreement and mail it to your District Office of the Department of Commerce.
 - (b) Prepare a petition to N. R. A. setting out the reasons why you cannot comply with certain provisions, and requesting that an exception be made in your case.
 - (c) Have this petition approved by your Trade Association. If there is no Trade Association for your business, have your petition approved by your local Chamber of Commerce or other representative organization designated by N. R. A.
 - (d) If the Trade Association, or other organization, approves your petition, send it to N. R. A. in Washington with this approval.
 - (e) Comply with all the provisions of the Agreement except the one you are petitioning to have excepted.
 - (f) Sign the Certificate of Compliance, adding to it the following clause: "Except for those interim provisions regarding wages and hours which have been approved by the Trade Association, I/we certify that we have adjusted the hours of labor and the wages of our employees to accord with the President's Reemployment Agreement. In this case, you should add to your Certificate of Compliance the following clause: "To the extent of N. R. A. consent as announced, we have complied with the President's Agreement by complying with the substituted provisions of the Code submitted by the Trade/Industry." If the substitution is consented to after you have already put the President's Reemployment Agreement into full effect, and after you have already gotten your Blue Eagle, you may still put the substituted provisions into effect without signing another Certificate of Compliance.
4. Union Contracts. If you have a contract with a labor organization calling for longer hours than the President's Agreement allows, and this contract was made in good faith by collective bargaining and cannot be changed by you alone, try to get the labor organization to agree to a reduction to the maximum hours allowed by the President's Agreement. If the labor organization will not agree, you may apply to N. R. A. for permission to work your employees as many hours a week as the contract calls for. Send to N. R. A. a request for this permission, with a certified copy of the labor contract and any statement of fact you desire. This application will be handled by N. R. A. in the same manner as an application for relief in cases of individual hardship, filed under paragraph (14) P. R. A., but it will not be necessary to obtain the approval of a trade association or other organization. If N. R. A. approves your application or is able to bring about any modification of the contract, you will then be granted permission to work employees in accordance with the contract as originally written or modified, and can then sign the Certificate of Compliance adding to it the following: "Except as required to comply with the terms of the Agreement in effect between the undersigned and the (Name of Labor Organization)."

Anti-Profiteering

(9) Not to increase the price of any commodity sold after the date hereof, over the price on July 1, 1933, by more than is made necessary by actual increases in production, replacement, or by actual costs of merchandise, or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken pursuant to the Agricultural Adjustment Act, since July 1, 1933, and, in setting such price increases, to give full weight to probable increases in sales volume and to refrain from taking profiteering advantage of the consuming public.

The object of this paragraph is to prevent profiteering or speculation, so that prices will not rise faster than purchasing power, and destroy the President's plan. The danger to be avoided was pointed out by the President on June 16, 1933, in the statement which he made on signing the Recovery Act. He said, then:

"If we now inflate prices as fast and as far as we increase wages, the whole project will be set at naught. We cannot hope for the full effect of this plan unless, in these first critical months, and even at the expense of full initial profits, we defer price increases as long as possible. If we can thus start a strong, sound upward spiral of business activity, our industries will have little doubt of blacking out operations in the last quarter of this year. The pent-up demand of this people is very great, and if we can release it on so broad a front, we need not fear a lagging recovery. There is greater danger of too much feverish speed."

If you were selling your merchandise on July 1, 1933, below cost, you may take your cost price on that date as the basis for determining the allowable increase under this paragraph.

Cooperation

(10) To support and patronize establishments which have signed the Agreement and are listed as members of N. R. A. (National Recovery Administration).

The success of the President's Reemployment Agreement Program depends upon public support going to those who raise wages and shorten hours in accordance with this Agreement, in order to repay them for the extra expense which they have incurred in doing their part.

Codes

(11) To cooperate to the fullest extent in having a Code of Fair Competition submitted by his industry at the earliest possible date, and in any event before September 1, 1933.

This Agreement is a temporary measure to tide over the time from now until all employers and employees can cooperate under Codes of Fair Competition under the National Industrial Recovery Act. You agree, in this paragraph, to do all you can to have a Code submitted for your trade or industry before September 1, 1933.

Appropriate Adjustments

(12) Where, before June 16, 1933, the undersigned had contracted to purchase goods at a fixed price for delivery during the period of this Agreement, the undersigned will make an appropriate adjustment of said fixed price to meet any increase in cost caused by the seller having signed the President's Reemployment Agreement or having become bound by any Code of Fair Competition approved by the President.

(This Agreement will, usually, increase the costs of those who sign it. The purpose of this paragraph is to pass any such increased costs along from one signer to another, and so on to the consumer.)

If you have a contract made before June 16, 1933, to buy goods at a fixed price, you agree to make an arrangement with your seller so that you pay him for the extra cost to him caused by his having signed this Agreement, or having come under a Code approved by the President.

In some cases the final buyer is the Government, which, under existing law, is generally not allowed to pay more than the contract price. The President has announced that he will recommend to Congress that appropriations be made to allow the Government to play its part by paying Government contractors who have signed the Agreement for their increased costs. The President has also appealed to the States and cities to take action permitting them to do likewise.

You should have no fear that, because your buyer has not signed, you will be left with the increased cost on your alone. The President expects every employer to sign this Agreement.

Substitutions

(13) This Agreement shall cease upon approval by the President of a Code to which the undersigned is subject; or, if the N. R. A. so elects, upon submission of a Code to which the undersigned is subject and substitution of any of its provisions for any of the terms of this Agreement.

As pointed out in the explanation of paragraph (11) P. R. A. above, the President plans to have all business govern itself under Codes, and therefore Codes should be promptly submitted. If N. R. A. finds that the wages and hours provisions of a Code which has been submitted are within the spirit of this Agreement, N. R. A. will authorize your industry to operate under those provisions rather than under the wages and hours provisions of this Agreement.

Exceptions

(14) It is agreed that any person who wishes to do his part in the President's Reemployment Drive by signing this Agreement, but who asserts that some particular provision hereof, because of peculiar circumstances, will create great and unavoidable hardship, may obtain relief and have the benefits hereof by signing this Agreement and putting it into effect and then, in a petition approved by a trade association of his industry, or other representative organization designated by N. R. A., may apply for a stay of such provision pending a summary investigation by N. R. A., if he agrees in such application to abide by the decision of such investigation. This Agreement is entered into pursuant to section 4 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act and subject to all the terms and conditions required by sections 7 (a) and 10 (b) of that act.

If you really want to do your part in the President's Reemployment Program, sign this Agreement. If, for some particular part of this Agreement causes you, as an individual employer, great and unavoidable hardship, you may obtain relief by taking the steps outlined under the heading "Cases of Individual Hardship."

Save this sheet as your official source of information. If there are any problems in your mind which are not cleared up by this explanation, get in touch with the official N. R. A. representative in your community.

My Beauty Hint. Excessive worry is deadly to beauty. Just try to adopt a sensible, calm attitude toward life's problems, and your face, the expression of your eyes, and your smile will reflect your good judgment. But don't try to "be hard"—a callous nature is just as damaging as sleepless nights to facial beauty.

WILMINGTON ADOPTS BUDGET OF $806,120

Wilmington, Aug. 23—The city commissioners yesterday adopted tentatively a budget for the fiscal year which began July 1, calling for operating expenditures of $856,457.88 plus deficit items which will bring the total up to $806,120.47.

During the fiscal year the budget was $724,000 but an operating deficit of $0,586.22 was incurred.

The draft has been in process of preparation for several weeks. It was presented yesterday afternoon at an adjourned meeting of the board by Finance Commissioner W. Louis Fisher, who recommended its approval. The motion was seconded by Commissioner J. E. L. Wade of the public works department, and passage was unanimous, with Mayor Walter H. Blair also voting for it.

Commissioner Fisher said yesterday he was not prepared to make an estimate of the tax rate for the next year. The rate now is $1.23. But this rate was certain to go higher, even if there had been no increase in the total amount necessary to raise, because the property values have been reduced by 10 per cent.

To Hear Code Protests

This trick of comparing the life of a hard-working or straitened youth with the easier existence of the next generation is one to which, for some reason, fathers are more prone than mothers.

It may be that hidden jealousy in such a man is a certain jealousy of his son's opportunities as compared with his own, or he may be feeling an unconscious resentment at having to keep his nose to the grindstone to supply money and luxuries which his son takes for granted. A mother who has been the bread-winner may talk the same way.

And yet the very fathers who draw these comparisons between past and present are often the most devoted. In all probability they are straining every nerve and muscle to give their sons a better chance in life than they had themselves.

The tragedy of it is that their unfortunate manner of speech builds a barrier between them and the sons they love.

The child naturally resents the suggestion that his father gives grudgingly, and little by little develops the determination to be independent of a support unwillingly given, and take care of himself.

Or he may grow callous and indifferent and go out for what he can get. The results are the same—a complete misunderstanding and a possibly a breach between father and son.

NON-SUIT IN SMITH CASE

Mistrial Marks Hearing of Account Suit Against Automobile Concern

A non-suit, mistrial and the beginning of hearing in a third case marked the second day session of the two-week term of Superior court which convened in this city Monday morning with Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill presiding.

Non-suit was ordered in the case of Preston Smith against the State Bank & Trust Company on the grounds of insufficient evidence. The suit grew out of a deposit which Smith made with the bank and which was converted to the payment of a note the plaintiff owed the institution. The amount of the note was $275 and the deposit was for $250.

Smith claimed as result of the bank's action his credit suffered impairment. He had given checks on the deposit to several concerns, it was said, and these produced considerable trouble for him. The evidence, however, was not sufficient for the case to go to the jury and mistrial was ordered.

The case of T. H. Chevrolet Co. of Farmville, against C. H. Twiddy of Winterville, involving suit for account, was completed shortly after court opened yesterday. The jury failed to agree and mistrial was ordered.

The automobile concern was suing for $120 which it claimed Twiddy owed on account. The defendant, however, contended he did not owe them but $62. The jury could not agree which was in the right and mistrial resulted.

Court continued hearing today in the case of Mrs. Will Tripp against Mrs. Lella Johnson, administrator of the estate of the late J. H. Browning.

The plaintiff asked $1,000 for services rendered Browning during infirmities preceding his death, and when the administrator of his estate failed to settle, she filed suit. The case was expected to consume the large part of today's session.

Talks to Parents

A Tiresome Story BY BROOKE PETERS CHURCH "When I was a boy I had to carry water and chop wood before I went to school every morning. I didn't have time to loaf the way you do."

out, causing damage that will reach into hundreds of dollars.

Considerable damage was done also to tobacco in packhouses. Some of the buildings were flooded by the driving rain beating through cracks in the buildings and the leaf was soaked to no little extent. The corn crop in the Stokes community was reported as damaged probably to a greater extent than any other part of the county.

The greatest damage, however, happened to the general temper of the people, numbers of whom were unable to sleep because of the howling wind and creaking buildings in which they slept. The situation was accentuated when lights were cut off and strong men had to sit up in their nightshirts, expecting to have to run for their lives at any minute.

Hurricane tails have been spoken of frequently in recent years but it is the first time in the last twenty years that Greenville people were able to fully appreciate what the wild monster is able to do with the rear end of his anatomy. September, 20 years ago, a similar storm visited this section and caused 'fright which gives those who remember it the ague even to this day.

The gale last night and today was accompanied by rain. While the velocity of the wind had abated slightly this morning, it continued to sweep across the countryside today causing people to take additional precautions against further loss.

ed to vote in the special school tax election to be held Tuesday, Aug. 29. This is a record registration in the city and indicates the keen interest on the part of the people.

Although the big registration shows the interest in the special tax to be passed upon, opinion is pretty evenly divided insofar as can be determined.

Supporters of the tax stated today that the outlook is more favorable for the tax to carry now than it was a week or so ago. This is due, it is said, to the fact that many who were opposed to the tax have changed their minds after having it explained to them.

The election was called for the purpose of passing on a special tax of 20 cents on the $100 valuation for the purpose of extending the regular State term of eight months to nine months. The tax will not be used, it was announced to supplement salaries of teachers but will go entirely to pay the operation expenses of the extra month.

SUES FOR $25,000 AND NOTIFIES POLICE

Washington, Aug. 22—In response to a telephone call sent in by Mrs. Carl Richardson at 5 o'clock Monday morning, police officers arriving at the Meridenen Filling Station on North Market street, preventing what otherwise might have been a "successful" robbery.

Mrs. Richardson, from the upstairs window of her residence located on the corner across the way, saw a colored man walking around inside the building. She watched him get through the front window, a large piece of glass having been removed from the sash, and take a battery around on Third street placing it beside a tree in front of Mrs. Jackson's residence.

Being convinced that the man was endeavoring to rob the station she phoned the local police station and in response to the call Officers Traylor and Wooten hurried to the scene, however, the Negro saw them approaching and succeeded in staging a successful getaway.

The officers found the cash drawer had been broken open and according to Mr. Marsiender only a small amount of cash was missing.

SUES OR $25,000 BECAUSE OF ATTACK

Burlington, Aug. 2—S. I. Levin, junk proprietor here, is named defendant in a $25,000 civil action filed with the clerk of the court in Graham today in which J. L. Floyd is plaintiff.

Complaint avers that Levin attacked him with a knife and axe handle while he was in his Worth street store engaged in the purchase of caps for cans or jars.

The trouble arose, according to the complaint, when a boy entered the place with fruit bars to sell, for which Levin offered one cent each, which the boy refused. Floyd then agreed to buy the jars "on the outside of the building". He claims that Levin then became enraged cursed and abused him and drew his knife.

The storm that swept this city and section last night and this morning brought to a number of our residents the memory of the September 3 storm just 20 years ago. While last night's storm did considerable damage in this section most of us are grateful that the damage was not near so great as that of the above mentioned September storm.

Attention is called to a page appearing in this issue giving in detail all the possible information on President Roosevelt's National Recovery Program. We urge each and every one of our readers, especially our business men, to study the facts in this page carefully for their guidance in helping to bring prosperity back to our nation.

During such weather as this the farmers will have to exercise unusual care of their tobacco now in the pack house lest it suffer great damage. No doubt last night's storm did considerable damage but we urge farmers to use every means possible to keep their crop dry. This is one of the finest tobacco crops we have raised in years and we certainly want to do everything possible to take care of it now.

Mr. Merchant! Beginning with the opening of the tobacco market next Tuesday there will be hundreds of visitors to this city daily. A large number of these visitors from the surrounding section are now receiving The Reflector regularly and your invitation through the columns of this paper to these people will mean increased business for you. The tide has turned and we are heading for better times but the business that gets ahead is the one that is wide awake and lets no opportunity pass to present his sales message to the buyers of his trade territory.

We are so carried away with the possibilities of a swimming pool for Greenville that we cannot refrain from mentioning it again. The plans will be presented to the Board of Aldermen tomorrow and application for the government loan will be made at once. All of us sincerely hope that the request will be granted and the pool built before another summer rolls around.

The HIDDEN DOOR
By Frank L. Packard

Synopsis: Colin Hewit, tied to a tree, watching the flames that swiftly advanced toward Joe Lazarre, who lies wounded on the porch of a St. Lawrence river "fishing club" which really is a base for a gang of New York crooks under the notorious Mask. Colin had hoped to secure Lazarre's help against the Mask. Germaine Trimblay, supposedly left guarding Colin's launch, steals up to Colin, and releases him. The gang of hi-jackers which set fire, under one Dollre, is looting the power house nearby Colin steals into the club and drags Lazarre to safety.

Chapter 27
COLIN ESCAPES
Figures came running round to side of the clubhouse—and, halting abruptly, gathered around Lazarre. There came then a medley of voices raised in execration and blasphemy. They all talked at once. The words reached Colin in disjointed sentences:
"Kenniston's croaked out there... The cover's blown off the works... Ten spaces, many twenty, if we're caught... We got to beat it out of here before anyone comes nosing around... Get Lazarre down to the boat... Better save some of our clothes in there if we can... Wise up W. P... There'll be a glass wagon and no flowers coming to Dollre for this... If we work fast enough we can get Lazarre across the border before the cops get their ear muffers off... Maybe he won't live... Aw, he ain't so bad... We got to give him a break anyhow... Moby Dollre and his schooner are still in the river... He didn't come that way, he went off through the woods toward Cap a l'Orange... That sneaking rat of a spy... Colin edged deeper in among the trees; then, moving cautiously, began to make his way back around the clearing. A hundred yards away, satisfied that between the crackling of the flames and the constant roar of the falls no sound he would then make could be heard, he quickened his pace, breaking into a run wherever it was possible to do so. His one object now was to reach Germaine and get away before the power boat started down the river—for dark as the shadow were, close in there against the bank, there was always the risk of the launch being seen. He did not want to be seen now; and above all he did not want Germaine to be seen. It would take fifteen minutes at the very least, he was certain for the "members" to salvage what they could of their personal belongings, carry Lazarre down to the power boat, and get the power boat under way. Surely he could make the launch in much less time than that. He made it in five. Germaine had evidently heard him coming. She was standing up in the launch. The engine was running. "Let's go!" He spoke nonchalantly—or thought he did—as he jumped in beside her. She leaned forward and peered for an instant into his face. "Sit down!" she commanded. "You look like a ghost. I'll handle the boat." He did not protest. He had forgotten about his head. Rather queer that it should suddenly start throbbing again! He felt almost giddy. "All right," he said. "But step on it. The power boat will be along shortly—and it's moonlight." "We'll keep out of the moon path," she answered. "If they haven't started yet, we'll be so far away they'll never see us." The launch sprang out from the bank. Colin draped his hand in the water, and at moments surreptitiously bathed his head. There was no sign of the power boat. She had nursed the engine to top speed. The launch was cleaving the smooth water like an arrow. Supposed Lazarre lived? Suppose Lazarre died? In either case Lazarre would no longer be here—on the north shore. What was he to do? A thought flashed through his mind—startling him. He pondered it a moment. The germ of it grew—flourished. Like the next chapter! That ubiquitous analogy! "Colin" she questioned anxiously "are you really all right?" "Absolutely!" he lied convincingly. "My wrist were a bit numb at first, of course, but they're as good as ever now. I'm perfectly fit, dear—but just lazy, willing to let you do the work." "Did"—she hesitated—"Lazarre—did you—?" "Yes," he answered. "I got him out without much difficulty. But I'm afraid he's in rather bad shape—which isn't so good." "Tell me about it," she said; "tell me everything—when you feel like talking." "I'll tell you now," he said. He told her—in detail—except that he made no mention of a gun butt that had crashed against his skull. It took a long time. They had rounded the point, and were heading for Cape a l'Orange when he had made an end of it. "We needn't worry about the power boat any more, no matter where it is," she said irrelevantly. "They'll head straight across for the Caspe shore." Then, pertinently: "But what was that has been going on down there underneath the power house? What was in those little bundles you saw Dollre's men carrying away?" He shook his head. "I don't know," he said. "I wish I did; but, after all, no matter what it was it doesn't alter things one iota so far as you and I are concerned." His lips drew into a straight line. "The Mask still forbids our banners." "What are you going to do now, Colin? What are we going to do?" He sat motionless for a moment, then he struck a match and looked at his watch. "You'll be back home and in bed by half-past three—not later anyway than four. No one will know, no one is to know, that you've been near the club. That's the first thing. If you get pulled into this, so do I—in which case if I know the Mask at all you'll mourn a husband to be." "Colin!" she cried out poignantly. "Don't say that!" "It's absolutely true," he said;

"but it isn't as cowardly as it sounds. If the Mask doesn't get a look at my cards, I think I've got more than a fair chance of winning the last hand—and that means our happiness, dear. "Ethically, perhaps, we may be momentarily compounding a felony by not speaking right out in meeting but that does not mean that Dollre will not get his desserts in due course—or the others either. I promised you that the other night But the Mask is at the bottom of all his, and he comes first. Do you agree?" Her hand closed over his. "Yes," she said; "but what are you going to do Colin?" "I'm going back by the Bonaventure tomorrow." "Colin!" "If Lazarre lives, he'll eventually land up in New York. And meanwhile there's the Wine Press." "But you do not know what that is, or where it is, or anything about it." "I know it's in New York; and that, if it isn't actually the Mask's headquarters, it's at least where his orders come from. I'll find it." "But, Colin—her voice was breaking—"he knows you. You said so yourself. You'll be recognized, and—" "Not this time," said Colin quietly. "I'll see to that." "But how?" "I don't know yet. But don't worry, dear—there are four days in which to figure that out before I ever reach Quebec." She made no immediate reply. She devoted herself to the engine. Later she opened the locker beneath their seat. "Coffee and sandwiches" she said with a little catch in her voice. "We must keep a lookout for Dollre's schooner at the cape, mustn't we?" "He'll be away long before we get there," Colin answered. "Germaine, dear it'll all come out right!" She nestled close to him. "Oh, Colin!" she whispered, "I'm terribly, terribly afraid. Isn't—Isn't there some other way?" His arms were around her. "It's the one chance—for both of us," he answered buoyantly. "We'll win. You'll see." It was four o'clock in the morning when they reached Cap a l'Orange. There were no lights in the village. No one was astir.

BEST TOBACCO MARKET IN THE STATE

Opens Tues. Aug. 29th

A Word Of Appreciation--

We desire to thank everyone for their patronage enabling Greenville to achieve the distinction of being, not only the Best Tobacco Market in the State, but excelling all other tobacco markets in number of pounds sold.

No Market Will Excel Greenville--

We positively assert, the buyers joining in with us, that during the coming season, we are determined no market will excel Greenville in prices paid for every grade of Tobacco. This is the real secret of the Phenomenal Growth of Greenville's Tobacco Market.

Poor Grading Costs Millions--

Let us call especial attention to the fact that millions of dollars are lost annually on account of Tobacco being poorly graded and marketed in soft condition. Examine your pack barns for leaks before any of your tobacco is ruined.

Better Times This Fall--

The tide has turned and better times will be experienced this Fall for those who sell their Tobacco in Greenville.

Prisoners, In Batches Flee Devil's Island

(By The Associated Press)

Wholesale escape from Devil's Island and other penal colonies in French Guiana have focused the attention of the world again on the "dry guillotine," so famed in tales of fact and fiction.

Ever since Major Alfred Dreyfus languished through long, lonely years a victim of the amazing Count Esterhazy plot, on Devil's Island, fantastic tales have been woven around this tiny spot, 27 miles off the French Guiana coast.

It's Verdant, Not Bleak

Many of them have been mislead. Devil's Island is not an arid, sun-scathed rock nor is it an impenetrable jungle area. It is a verdant spot on the map dominated by groves of lofty coconut trees.

It is one of the three islands that make up the penal stations in French Guiana. The group is known as the "Isles of Salvation" and include, besides Devil's Island, the island of St. Joseph, with its prison hospital and the Isle Royale, with tiers of tiny stone cells for incorrigibles.

Devil's Island is reserved for political prisoners who have been sentenced to life imprisonment. Life there is far less rigorous than at the other convict stations.

Colony of Prisoners

There are no dungeons, barred windows or high walls. The "liberes" live in small cabins, wear their own clothing and are allowed their own books and newspapers. Although only about 400 miles north of the equator, sea breezes cool the atmosphere, making it more healthful than many settlements along the swamp-fringed, jungle-clad mainland.

Virtually the entire foreign population of French Guiana is made up of men and women who have been convicted of crimes in the French courts. They are known as "liberes" and may be found in the coast towns and farming and mining regions of the interior.

This is because culprits sent to French Guiana for more than eight years must remain for life. A man sentenced for a lesser period must spend one year in the colony for each year of his sentence before he can return to France. Then he or his family or friends must pay his way home or he, too ends his days in the colony.

Devil's Island itself is not overpopulated. In recent years there have at times been fewer than a dozen prisoners there. They are mostly spies. Three are aviators.

All Classes Represented

All professions and trades are represented among the "liberes." On the streets of Cayenne, site of one of the colony's largest prisons, stroll former lawyers, doctors, engineers, artists and peasants, as well as former habitués of the slums of Paris and Marseille. Many are Senegalese, Arabs, Hindus and Indo-Chinese.

The "liberes" are free to work for wages. Some of them are in partnership with the natives; some operate small shops. Still others spend their time carving figures of animals, women and birds out of hardwood.

All eke out a bare existence until death or judgment of the French courts has satisfied.

Syndicate Aids Escape

Escape often has been pictured as almost impossible, because the colony is hemmed in by jungles infested with snakes and wild animals. However, within a year, more than 100 of the prisoners have fled, presumably through the connivance of a secret syndicate which has aided criminals to make their way through jungles or across the caribbean to the West Indies.

It is known, however, that a number of escaped men have perished in the dangerous jungles.

Moley affair may have been

to the White House, President Roosevelt and his close advisers may be strengthened in the belief credited to them at the very start of the new administration that the function of the "brain trust" should be one of planning and not of administration.

Time and again since he has been in the White House Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated that belief. It has been the professors who have done much of the planning for the "new deal," but it has been the hard-boiled and practical men who have been called in and clothed with the executive authority for getting action.

Moley's New Job

PROF. RAYMOND MOLEY'S venture into the executive field at London produced results not entirely happy in the relations between the "brain trust" and his superior, Secretary Cordell Hull.

But Moley's new job of surveying methods of combating crime lies definitely in the planning field.

He is a specialist in outlining methods of court procedure as an aid to law enforcement, of organizing police departments, of devising new ordinances looking to more effective control of crime.

Interesting F. D. R.

IT WAS in this particular field that he first attracted President Roosevelt's attention. Moley had conducted a survey of crime in the city of Cleveland that was generally credited with bringing about a decided improvement in conditions there. The New York crime commission heard of him and sought his services. Roosevelt was then governor of New York.

That the President's idea was to keep his "brain trust" strictly in the planning field is evidenced by the fact that of the dozens of professors at work for the administration none has been entrusted with the job of carrying out the plans they have devised.

For Example—

SOME have pointed to the state department as an example of the weight given executive ability. When Cordell Hull was decided upon as secretary of state, some of the President's advisers were reported a bit skeptical as to his ability as an executive.

The President therefore placed William Phillips, a close friend and a career diplomat, in the department as Hull's executive assistant. It is Phillips, rather than the secretary of state, who looks after the actual job of running the routine of the department.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD — Hugh Herbert, who is comedian, writer or director as fancy and opportunity dictate, makes the pertinent observation that Hollywood is the only place where a motion picture is truly all things to all men.

As a utility man of the films, Herbert has had occasion to view them from many angles, and he says: "Just listen to the comments of a studio crowd coming out of a preview, and you can tell pretty well what each individual has had to do with that picture."

"The star has seen in the film, nine times out of ten, a star surrounded by a few other actors. He hasn't seen the backgrounds, the direction, the props.

Depends Who's Seeing

"The writer has heard dialog, but hasn't noticed much about the acting or anything else—that is, his chief concern has been with his own job. The script girl, too, has been on the alert for the things she has had to do with the picture. She watches to see that the hero is wearing the same tie in those two sequences made on different days on the same set. If he is, she's happy, the reward of duty well done, you know.

"I once had a fellow on one of my own pictures," Hugh recalls, "whose only job was to take care of the flames in a fireplace. After the preview he came up and said, 'Say, those were mighty fine flames, weren't they?'"

It's the director, of course, who has to see the picture as a whole, although Herbert admits that it's entirely likely that the director is thinking what a nice job he did, too.

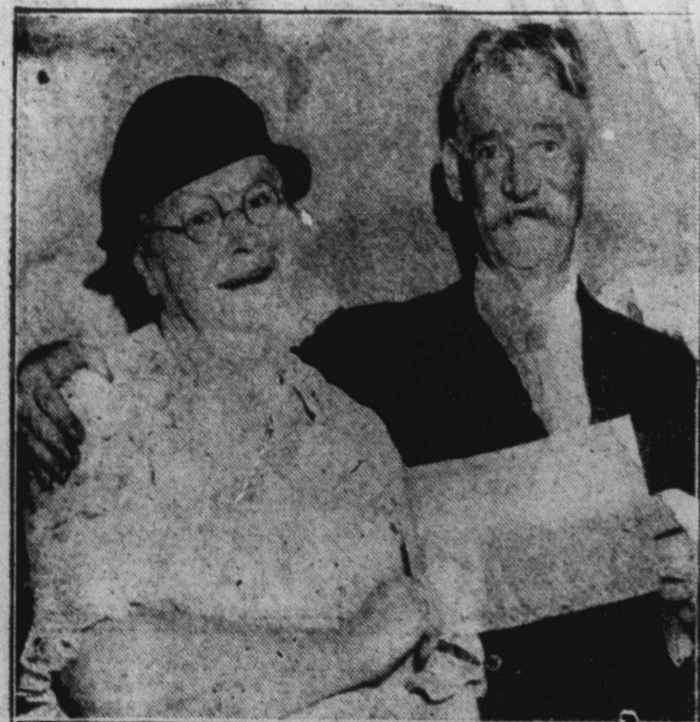

And Hugh, given his choice among acting, writing, or directing, says he'll take acting every time.

Success Recipe

However, that fondness for acting may be due to the fact that Herbert's latest success was as a performer. In "Goodbye Again" it is Herbert who catches most of the critical bouquets, and as a result he recently signed a term contract with Warner Bros.

He explains it—that success—this way: "The picture is paced so fast, and to see that the hero is wearing the same tie in those two sequences made on different days on the same

Steel alone is not enough to make you as safe and secure as we want you to be in a Chevrolet. NO CHANCE TO PLAY RAINED OUT CONTESTS

The Greenville-Snow Hill game scheduled for this city yesterday was rained out and indications were that the contest set for here today with Kinston would suffer the same fate.

Usually rained out contests are played on some other date but the closing of the league Saturday will make a pay-off of the games impossible. It was stated today, unless the season is extended.

Greenville is scheduled to play out of town during the remaining three games, and the fact that this club is still leading the league does not make it essential that the two postponed games be played.

Then, also, the season cannot be extended because the opening of the tobacco market here next Tuesday will turn thoughts of the public from pleasure to business and the players will desire to return to their homes and prepare for their annual pilgrimage back to school.

With Greenville leading the race and Ayden following closely behind in second place, indications today were that the post-series would be played between these two towns. Ayden has displayed an entire reversal of form during the last several days, and the winning streak threatens to rout the leaders from the top position unless they do some mighty close playing during the remaining three games.

The race has been tight all season with Greenville and Ayden taking turns about for first and second position with Snow Hill at one time offering considerable competition for the top, but the fight now has narrowed down to the two Pitt county towns and from now on—unless he hurricane of yesterday and today continues to shake his ugly tail about so furiously, fans will be treated to some of the best thrillers of the season.

AYDEN TRIMS KINSTON TO TUNE 4 TO 1

With Stankus pitching one-hit ball, Ayden defeated Kinston 4-1 yesterday afternoon to push nearer the league leading Greenville club. Stankus caused nine Kinston batters to whiff the air in a vain attempt to connect with his offerings as his teammates pounded out three hits to put the game on ice. Mann and Physioc did the hurrying for Kinston.

Wall, Lambeth and Stephenson accounted for Ayden's three bingles.

Storm Moves On Washington.
(By The Associated Press)
A raging hurricane leaving in its wake distress at sea swept inland from the Virginia capes today toward the national capital but promised to lose most of its fury en route.

Weather men in Washington estimated that if the disturbance continued its snake-like course up from the south it would pass over the national center of government shortly before night.

Behind it left the stern steamship liner Madison sending out an SOS call from its position 20 miles off Chesapeake lightship, off the coast of Virginia. Calls shortly after 8 a. m., today said the vessel's forward deckhouse had been washed away; another shortly before noon said the housing was breaking.

The craft, enroute from New York to Norfolk, was caught between a hurricane roaring in from Bermuda and a northeaster headed down the Atlantic seaboard.

Coast guard craft headed for the Madison but one, the cutter Carabasset, moved toward Old Point Comfort, Va., after the high winds smashed her pilot house window and damaged the deck.

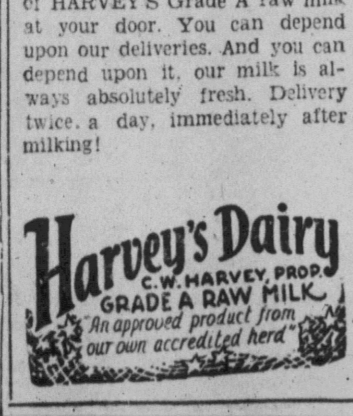

Later she again got under way. Other small craft in the area were reported in danger and lack of communication facilities hindered officials attempting to keep tabs.

Many trees were uprooted in the residential and downtown sections of Washington as the storm began roaring in.

Three trees fell on 16th street, one block from the White House. Streets were flooded and the Potomac river was rising rapidly. The weather men said it was the first tropical hurricane to reach Washington since 1896.

Harried residents checking upon the damage in other places along the coast found telephone and electric lines down, trees swept away and lowlands flooded.

At Wilmington, Delaware, summer cottages were flooded and the eastern shore of Maryland was virtually isolated.

At Willoughby, Virginia coast guardsmen sent out to rescue 100 persons who had taken refuge in the ferry Terminal. Water was five feet deep in the streets at Virginia Beach. Hundreds had to flee at Hampton Roads as high tides threatened those on shore.

Plate glass windows were smashed by high winds of 56 miles an hour. Craft along the New England coast were warned of northeast gales expected this afternoon and tonight.
