GREENVILLE MARKET PAID $127,836.35 YESTERDAY

Million And Quarter Pounds Tobacco Sold For Average Of $10.23

WILL SELL OUT TODAY

Prices Today Apparently Somewhat Stronger Than on Opening

Disposition of 1,246,546 pounds of yesterday's offerings of nearly two million pounds, the Greenville tobacco market yesterday paid out $127,836.35, an average price of $10.23 per hundred pounds. With less than a million pounds on today's market including yesterday's run-over, sales will probably conclude around the middle of the afternoon. Prices this morning apparently were a shade higher than on yesterday's opening. While the quality of this year's crop is superior to that of last year's, a great portion of yesterday's offerings were in high order and soft as a result of recent rainstorms and wet weather in this section and tobacco warehousemen and others expressed a belief that but for this condition the opening average price would have ranged from $1.50 to $2.00 per hundred higher. They declared that tobacco in such a condition would deteriorate very quickly and that as a result the buyers were reluctant to buy.

New Bern, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Good breaks were in prospect today following yesterday's sales that finished late in the day. Official figures for the opening day showed sales of 1,273,340 pounds at an average of $10.31 per hundred.

Rocky Mount, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Official figures on tobacco sales here yesterday show total sales of $66,022 pounds at an average of $11.22.

Goldboro, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Auctioneers on the tobacco market here today began the business of attempting to clear yesterday's block sales. Official figures for yesterday show major opening day increase over the same day in 1932. John R. Morris, sales supervisor, reported yesterday's sales at 187,262 pounds for an average of $11.38 per hundred, against an opening day average a year ago of $2,192 pounds at $9.40.

Wilson—Official figures for yesterday's opening 1,264,448 pounds at an average of 10.93.

Kinston—Opening day figures 954,588 pounds at an average of 10.69.

Says Prices Lower. Washington, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Bureau of Agriculture Economics after a survey said today that opening prices on the tobacco markets on the Eastern North Carolina belt averaged somewhat lower yesterday's first day sale than on the opening day last year. It said at Farmville sales reported a heavy volume made up mostly of second and fourth quality priming lugs. Straight side lugs and cutters were scarce and prices ranged two to 21 cents.

MEMORIAL SERVICE WILL BE HELD TODAY

Goldboro, Aug. 30.—The program for the memorial services to be held for the late Col. George K. Freeman at the courthouse in Goldboro at noon Wednesday, has been announced by Col. John D. Langston. The Wayne county bar will hold the services.

Judge Frank A. Daniels of Goldboro, will preside over the services. Resolutions prepared by Colonel Langston, W. A. Does, and Paul B. Edmundson, resolutions committee of the local bar, will be read, following which several members of the bar will make brief personal tributes to the deceased.

Dr. F. J. Morrisey of St. Mary's Catholic Church, of which Colonel Freeman was a member, will offer prayer. Col. A. C. Davis will read a poem of his own composition to the memory of Colonel Freeman. Upon court order, the resolutions and probably the poem will be placed on court record.

All nations today are laboring under unprecedented economic and social difficulties and in both Germany and the United States a heroic effort is being made for general recovery," he declared.

Our New 'Spare-Time' How'll We Spend It?

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE. New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The new deal—shorter working hours—more leisure time.

Of these, the third packs the risks. It is a new mode of life for most Americans. Once we were called money-mad. But now it is said we shall learn that too much idle time is as bad as too much money, if the leisure expected to result from operation of the NRA program and other recovery measures is spent unwisely.

What are the dangers and how can time be wisely spent? The first answer to this question is from Jesse F. Williams, M. D., professor of physical education at Columbia University. The first risk, as he sees it, is commercial exploitation of amusements—"dollar fun." Another is blind belief that work is always a virtue, play always childish. A third is being the all-around dud. "The ability to play," he says, "is

As the bandit car came to a quick stop in view of the two officers and bank messengers Joseph Hamilton and Herbert Ghyne, a cloud of black smoke came from the rear of the car. Witnesses said that the smoke screen obscured the movements of the bandits. The bank messengers had been to the railroad station to

WASHINGTON IS ADDED TO WET COLUMN

Two Thirds of States Necessary to Repeal Dry Law Now Lined Up

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Two-thirds of the 36 states needed to erase the Eighteenth Amendment from the Constitution were lined today as Washington followed 23 others into the repeal column. None of the states which have voted on the issue favored retention of prohibition. Only one legislative district voted dry on the basis of available returns and that district will have but two out of the 99 delegates that meet October 3 at Olympia to ratify the decision of the voters. The popular vote from 1924 of the state's 2,682 precincts rolled up a total of 316,064 wet ballots to 132,358 cast for the dry candidates.

largely an attitude of mind. It is psychological rather than physiological. Those who have never experienced the satisfaction that comes through well performed motor play—the dubs or novices—fall generally to appreciate the fun others enjoy and consequently comprise in the main the critics of play and other sports.

"One reason for the tremendous lag in the use of play in schools and communities is the fact that control of educational policy has been largely in the hands of those who lack a kinesthetic appreciation of play. Plan can never be evaluated in an arm chair.

"Since play is an attitude and participation relates to proficiency, the business of education in this function is twofold. First, there must be developed the nation that play belongs in any plan for better living in the world and hence that all persons unable to play are bad." (Continued on Page Four)

ASKS JOHNSON WHY FORD NOT UNDER EAGLE

President Roosevelt Asks Industrial Recovery Administrator For Report

Hyde Park, Aug. 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has asked General Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, for a report on the failure of Henry Ford to enroll under the new working agreement for the automobile industry.

Detroit, Aug. 30.—(AP)—In the absence of both Henry and Edsel Ford comment was withheld at the Ford Motor Company office today concerning a statement in Washington by General Hugh S. Johnson that "maybe the American people would crack down on Ford if he did not obtain the blue eagle."

Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, is understood to be at Bar Harbor, Maine. The elder Ford, also absent on a vacation jaunt, is supposed to be somewhere on the Michigan upper peninsula.

Mr. Ford has been represented by associates and others close to him as feeling that the code drawn up means the handing over of all industry to Union Labor leaders. Minimum wage scales in the Ford plant at present are 50 cents an hour and operation on an eight hour five day week basis. The industrial code calls for a minimum wage of 4 cents in the larger cities and scaled down to 40 cents in the smaller cities with a 35 hour week.

Clayton about October 1.

NAME THE MAN WHO SLAPPED SEN. HUEY LONG

Brooklyn Paper Says Chief Police Weber Laid Southern Senator Low

Brooklyn, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Eagle said today it had learned from an authoritative source that the man who slapped Senator Huey P. Long at a Long Island party last Saturday night, is Chief of Police Steve Weber of Port Washington, a former boxer and army drill sergeant.

Chief Weber, when asked about it, smiled and denied that he had struck Long. Since the fight occurred almost secretly has been maintained by members of the club and guests at a charity function to which Long had been invited, as to the identity of the man who laid the southern senator low.

Chief Weber was said to have shown little surprise that the spotlight of curiosity had swung to him but he insisted that his denial be used in any story published. He grinned, however, as he made the statement.

Tucumcari, N. M., Aug. 30.—(AP)—In a flooded arroyo, usually dry, the Golden State Limited today was a mute evidence of the tragedy that took eight lives and injured more than two score persons. Repair crews waited for abatement of the current to salvage the wrecked cars and repair the bridge while a board of inquiry prepared to investigate the cause of the wreck. The board will be composed of railroad officials and members of the New Mexico Corporation Commission.

SUES REALTY CONCERN TO RECOVER ON STOCK

Greensboro, Aug. 30.—A suit to recover $10,000 in stock assessment against the Richardson Realty Company for ownership of 100 shares of stock in the First United Bank and Trust Company was filed today in Guilford Superior court by Gurney P. Hood, State Commissioner of Banks.

It is charged that the Richardson company, controlled by Smith Richardson, once a director in the United Bank, acquired the stock from J. C. Watkins in a realty trade in March, 1931, and that the stock was placed in the name of W. F. Ross declared to have been insolvent then and now, with the purpose of evading liability on account of the stock. It is contended that the arrangement for Ross to hold the stock was a pretense. The Richardson company collected a dividend on the stock it is further declared, and this was arranged by having Ross put up the stock as collateral for a $12,500 note with the Richardson company, a transaction that was made without any consideration passing whatever.

To Discontinue Air Mail Route

Washington, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Post Office Department has decided to suspend the Charlotte to Augusta air mail route. The suspension will become effective at a date next month not yet decided upon.

Officials explained that the suspension did not necessarily mean abandonment of the line but merely its non-use until more money is available. Other suspensions and reductions in service are under consideration as an economy measure made necessary by reduction of air mail appropriations, from $21,000,000 to $14,000,000.

There are approximately 99,000 motor buses in use in the United States, statistics of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce disclose.

TROUBLE FEARED ON AUSTRO-GERMAN BORDER
 Fear of armed conflict along the Austro-German border complicated Austria's political and economic plight. Reports from Austria said more than 6,000 exiles, many armed, were strung along the frontier creating the menace of guerilla warfare and even armed invasion. When the fast-growing Austrian Nazi party, agitating for union with Germany and declaring allegiance to Chancellor Hitler (right), was ordered outlawed by the government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss (left) many were exiled or fled to Germany to escape arrest. BETTER PRICES JUSTIFIED
 For sometime we have expressed a belief that the government must take a hand in the tobacco situation if the growers were to get a fair price for this year's crop and it seems that in this respect we are not alone in our opinions.
 The following comment of the News and Observer based upon figures compiled by the Winston-Salem Journal reveal clearly that even the law of supply and demand does not give the tobacco farmer an even break. The Observer says:

There is not only every necessity that the farmers of North Carolina receive adequate prices for their tobacco as an essential of the campaign for recovery in this State, there is also every economic reason why tobacco on the markets this year should be bringing high prices from the buyers of the prosperous tobacco industry.
 Simple operation of the law of supply and demand is not regarded as sufficient for other crops by the administration but even on that basis higher prices are justified than were yesterday paid in Eastern North Carolina. The Winston-Salem Journal, published in the world's greatest tobacco manufacturing town, recently gave the record since 1922 of the operation of the law of supply and demand in flue-cured tobacco. That record, giving price, production, total supply (including domestic carry-over) as consumption (or disappearance) in millions of pounds, as follows:

Year	Price	Total Supply	Domestic Carry-over	Consumption
1922	27.2	415.4	866.1	417.4
1923	20.8	580.7	1019.4	542.8
1924	21.6	437.3	933.9	451.6
1925	20.0	575.1	1036.4	582.0
1926	24.0	569.1	1015.5	549.0
1927	20.5	718.8	1185.3	620.3
1928	17.3	739.1	1304.1	714.1
1929	18.0	749.7	1339.7	740.4
1930	12.0	854.3	1463.6	786.8
1931	8.9	637.7	1334.5	589.3
1932	11.6	318.6	1063.8	516.8

That records shows that supply and demand have not operated in the neighborhood of perfection for the former in a decade. It is not unusual, therefore, that the farmer does not hope for his best operation this year with the same small number of buyers bidding for the tobacco of the totally unorganized farmers. With regard to the present season The Journal declares:
 "If there were as much inevitable change in the law of supply and demand as we have been lead to believe, the tobacco column could never forecast a fairly accurate price for the 1933 crop. The flue-cured crop is now estimated to make 530 million pounds (storage order). This, with stocks on hand July 1, will make a total supply for the 1933-34 season of 1,098,000,000 pounds. Let us suppose that the consumption will be only average (though most opinions hold that demand will be notably increased) and that demand of 1.1 million pounds will disappear in domestic and foreign trade. With that much tobacco withdrawn from storage, there will be left only 487 million pounds, which will be the lowest stock in many years and will be around 300 million pounds less than the trade will require for the 1933-34 season. If the crop doesn't fetch a good price this year, we see no hope for it ever to fetch one."
 Experience thus far this season in the earlier markets and on the opening in Eastern North Carolina yesterday seems to indicate that once again there is something wrong with the sacred law of supply and demand so far as the grower is concerned. He has little hope in its operation. From years of experience, he has less faith in the philosophy of the few big buying companies, for which Secretary Wallace has asked. His only chance of a

The HIDDEN DOOR
 By FRANK L. PACKARD

Synopsis: Colin Hewitt, disguised as Clarke Lunn, a crook, suddenly finds the trail of the Mask, New York underworld ruler who has threatened Colin's life, when two of the Mask's minions call Colin to their table in Spinelli's night club. Colin has been watching Captain Doltaire, Canadian rum runner, who is drinking with a booze baron called Helms Schwarm. Now he is invited by the two men to join them and accepts, just in time to help defend them against two unknown assailants. Colin and the two crooks, Benny Malone and Harry the Lynx escape.

Chapter 33
COLIN'S VICTIM
 "You remember what I told you?" Benny Malone went on.
 "That's what I've been thinking about all along," confessed Colin insinuatingly.
 "Well then listen," confided Benny. "I'll tell you in a little way on this so you'll be able to watch your step, even if your back was turned until the lights went out and he didn't get a look at you anyhow."
 "Who didn't?" Colin inquired.
 "The guy you plugged. His name's Mulvey - Detective Sergeant Tim Mulvey of the Homicide Squad."
 Tim Mulvey? A prickly sensation ran up and down Colin's spine. Tim Mulvey! Out of the night from some where a burst of ironic laughter seemed to ring in his ears.
 Tim Mulvey's gun was in his pocket - and a man wanted for murder for the Homicide Squad never wanted anyone for anything else, did he get away! He dragged deeply on the cigarette he had just lighted.
 "That's okay by me," he said, as he exhaled the smoke complacently through his nostrils. "But the Homicide Squad never show up anywhere except for one thing. It looks like Harry had made the scam all right, but what about you? This Mulvey bird isn't going to laugh about his pinch being queered and he saw you, didn't he?"
 Benny Malone laughed contemptuously.
 "Maybe yes, maybe no; but it was Harry he was after. He's got nothing on me. If he makes a crack it'll be a joke. Mistaken identity - get me?" He doesn't know me. I was over in Philly tonight - with the other boys who were at the party there to prove it, see?"
 "Sure!" agreed Colin. "That's easy."
 "It'll be in the papers tomorrow," said Benny Malone. "but I'll wise you up now. Mulvey was after the Lynx and a fellow called Conk Eagan for a little shooting up at Nigger Joey's about a year ago when a guy named French Pete was bumped off. The cops got Conk Eagan tonight, and he's down at headquarters now getting the works."
 "Outwardly calm, Colin's brain was in a riot. French Pete! Reddy had said their turn would come, but they were still useful, that it was the big noise he was after. And now Detective Sergeant Mulvey was on the track. . . . How far had Tim Mulvey got? . . . Was it still only a case of the lesser breed? . . . Or what?"
 "That's tough!" he deplored "who squealed!"
 Benny Malone's smile was unpleasant.
 "An old geezer that saw the shooting and had it on his conscience, but didn't dare make a spiel," he said. "He got run over or some-decent price in the face of rising prices of the goods he has to buy lies, he believes, in the immediate aid of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. If that great governmental agency fails him now, there will be only another winter of hardship ahead of him.

 This is the last chance of the tobacco farmer for twelve months. If "recovery" passes him by now, he will be worse off than he was before, "recovery" began.

Plans
 By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 "But," the dog catcher continued, "the license is not expensive. It only costs two dollars. Couldn't you pay it now and then you could take your dog right home with you?"
 "I haven't two dollars," sighed Willy Nilly, and Jelly Bear gave a growling sigh, as did Honey Bear. The Ducks all gave mournful quack-quacks and Top Notch cackled growlingly.
 "Not one of us has any money," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow sadly, and tears streamed from Rip's eyes. How could his friends ever raise two dollars?
 "You promised us a week?" Willy Nilly repeated, and the man nodded. "But," he added, "I'll have to charge an extra dollar for keeping and feeding your dog all that time."
 "An extra dollar!" exclaimed poor Willy Nilly. "Can't we take our dog now so we can save that dollar and bring you the two dollars in a week?"
 "I should say not," the man answered.
 "Couldn't we bring the food to our dog? We have plenty of that."
 "No," said the man, "and I'm tired of argument. In one week you must bring the three dollars. If you talk any more I'll raise the price."
 "Don't worry, Rip," Willy Nilly said as he put a finger through the grating and stroked Rip's nose. "We'll raise that money." Add as once they began to make their plans.
 Tomorrow - "Top Notch's Idea"

even how in the waning light the pavement still seemed to shimmer. The street, typical of so many another on the lower East Side, was gasping for its breath - listening eagerly to the low, but still far distant, rumbling of thunder that promised, if the storm did not fight shy of the city, at least some measure of relief.
 Colin, as he made his way along the street, walked slowly - not wholly on account of the heat. He was looking for a tobacco store, that according to the directions Benny Malone had given him, should be somewhere in this block.
 He flicked the ash from his cigarette jauntily - to help camouflage his own emotion. Could his mind never work in any but one groove? Could he never think except in the terms of one of his own thrillers? Well, all right! Why fight against it?
 If he ever wrote again, he should if he but availed himself of it, be able to profit vastly by virtue of personal experience! Suppose he were writing this scene in which he was not only actually taking part, but in which he was even playing the leading role and holding center stage at this precise moment? Here was a situation.
 Would Clarke Lunn walk along the street steel-nerved, icy cold in determination, unmoved, immune from even a flutter of emotion, contemptuous of the risk that was sometimes run incident to thrusting one's head into the lion's mouth; or would Clarke Lunn experience a slightly hollow feeling in the pit of his stomach and a noticeably quicker tempo in his heart pound - as Colin Hewitt, none too courageously was doing now?
 Benny Malone had kept his word and had telephoned that morning. Colin had been instructed to go to a certain uptown restaurant, Martote's to be exact, take lunch there alone at a table that he would find had been reserved for him, and then return to his room.

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT

$127,836.35 Paid Out Opening Day
Comparative Opening Day Averages

Greenville had the largest opening day sales yesterday the market has ever experienced! Farmers from over 20 counties sold tobacco on the market many of them traveling over 100 miles. On account of the storm Thursday and Friday of last week a larger per cent of the tobacco in wet and soft condition much of it being damaged was found on the floors than any day in years, which caused a considerable depreciation in prices and general average. We believe if this sale had been dry and in good order prices would have been $1.50 to $2.00 higher per hundred.

The following is record of opening day sales this year compared with last year.

Last year opening day 659,5750 lbs. average	$ 8.95
This year opening day 1,248,546 lbs.	10.23

Prices were firmer after the noon hour. Keep your tobacco dry. It will bring more money. Market will sell out clean today.

We believe the coming Tobacco Season will be fairly profitable for everybody. Let us not be misled by the usual wild reports sent out by the publicity bureaus of the various markets this season of the year. Greenville market has been, and will in our opinion continue leading Eastern Carolina in prices paid for tobacco. We sold, however, last year more inferior tobacco than any year in our history owing to the drought which prevailed over our particular section.

No Market Will Excel Greenville--

We positively assert, the buyers joining in with us, that during the coming season, we are determined no market will excel Greenville in prices paid for every grade of Tobacco. This is the real secret of the Phenomenal Growth of Greenville's Tobacco Market.

Poor Grading Costs Millions--

Let us call especial attention to the fact that millions of dollars are lost annually on account of Tobacco being poorly graded and marketed in soft condition. Examine your pack barns for leaks before any of your tobacco is ruined.

If your tobacco is wet or in high order dry it out before bringing it to market.

Keep strings out of your tobacco as some of the Companies have positive instructions not to buy or bid on any pile of tobacco which contains strings.

No Floor Space Reservations--

Reserving floor space in advance is now prohibited by the Board of Trade. First come first served will be the rule. $50.00 fine will be imposed against any warehouseman violating this by-law.

Talks to parents

Graciousness

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The use of good manners has a tremendous effect on the child's approach to the world about him. The child who is gracious is naturally more popular than the child who is brusque in manner.

It is true that graciousness is in part at least a gift, at times amounting almost to a special genius, and the owner of it, whether young or old, has an open sesame to the hearts of all with whom he comes in contact.

But even native fact can be refined, and often where it seems to be absent it is to some extent existent, and needs only care and cultivation for its development.

Children learn best by imitation, and the greatest social ease is gained by those who have lived with it day by day and unconsciously absorbed it from those about them.

Parents who ask rather than demand, who consider the convenience of others, who use the little refinements of breeding in their home life and towards their children and seek other, find the training of their children in social behavior comparatively simple.

It is during the unconscious years of early childhood, even during babyhood that the most solid foundations are laid. The tiniest child may have implanted in him the basis of the whole social code without his ever realizing it.

For good manners are founded on consideration for others, and this principle never changes in any time or place. No matter what local usage may have to be grafted on in later years, the fundamental growth will be sound and need no changing.

And unquestionably the child's path will be smoother for the little extra effort thus entailed. He will be at home wherever he goes, his contacts will be doubled and his life immeasurably enriched.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—Action of Senator Couzens of Michigan in coming forward voluntarily and paying in full assessments against stock held in his wife's name in Detroit's two closed national banks has revived speculation in Washington as to what the future holds for the white-haired outspoken Michigander.

The senator's name has been mentioned as a possible successor to William H. Woodin should the secretary of the treasury resign from the Roosevelt cabinet.

He already has been the recipient of an important appointment at the hands of the President. When he left for London as a delegate to the economic conference, he did so with some misgivings.

An Isolationist—Almost

He was almost convinced that he would return as a confirmed isolationist. Actually, his impression of the work done at London, revealed as the conference closed, did not bear out his prediction.

Observers detected in his statement, reviewing the work of the conference, marked similarity with the conclusions of Roosevelt himself.

"While I am disappointed at the outcome of the conference," he said, "I am not willing to admit that it was a total failure."

Not 'Cut And Dried'

Many Washington observers would find it difficult to imagine Couzens in the cabinet with the portfolio of secretary of the treasury. And it's because of the personality of the man.

The senator is as fiery, outspoken and independent in thought as any man in public life today. He always has refused to stay in line for party or any other reason. And there's no indication that he would change his ways were he to become a member of the President's official family.

"Team work" plays a large part in Mr. Roosevelt's conception of Wilmington, Aug. 30—Lomile Ange, 35-year-old white man and farmer of Jamesville, was cut badly here this afternoon by Lester Williams, colored, of this place who is known to local officers under the name of "Barrel O' Trouble" in the affair, which took place on a crowded street. Williams drew his knife and slashed Ange severely in the abdominal region. He was given first aid by a local physician and then rushed to a Washington hospital where he is being operated upon tonight.

Mr. Ange is a well respected citizen of the county. Williams escaped and has not been apprehended.

Mr. Munford also announced that beginning Saturday the office would go back to its Saturday afternoon half holiday as prescribed by the postal regulations instead of observing Wednesday afternoons in co-operation with the stores during the summer months. Beginning Saturday all departments of the office will close at one o'clock, but from now on the office will observe regular working hours all day Wednesday.

As for Secretary Woodin, the situation apparently remains unchanged. Reports still persist that his resignation will be in the hands of the President before very long. But these reports are met by denial. The secretary's recent illness which has kept him from his post for many weeks, has tended to increase speculation.

It has been said often that Woodin reluctantly accepted the treasury post in the first place. It is also known that the President is deeply attached to him.

The work that he did during the turbulent first days of the administration when frantic efforts were being made to save the nation's banking structure apparently won for him a lasting place in the President's esteem.

LOCALS WIN FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Greenville defeated Ayden 4-3 here yesterday as the clubs opened a seven game series to determine the Coastal Plain League championship.

Lefty Dean limited the Ayden club to five hits and struck out a total of 10 men. Greenville made three tallies in the second inning on three safeties and an error—and that proved enough to win.

Faust Johnson, with two hits, led Ayden's attack. Poole and Smith each with two hits, led Greenville. Holland pitching for Ayden allowed the locals 9 hits and struck out five men.

Greenville will journey to Ayden this afternoon to play the second game of the series. The game is called at 4 o'clock.

TWEEDS AND CARDIGANS FAVORED FOR COUNTRY

Senlis, France, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Tweeds and wool cardigans are back as fashion's favorites for country clothes. At a recent luncheon given at a famous old chateau near here Miss Anne Hughes wore a gray tweed suit cut on severely tailored lines with a striped linen vest blouse. Mrs. Garesse Crosby wore a blue tweed suit with a blue sweater and knitted bonnet, and Madame Exner-Boyrven appeared in a dark blue sports skirt and red cardigan.

SPORT SLANTS

Elsworth Vines has been given a "clean bill" as to his amateur status for the time being but the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association apparently disliked having its national champion in a receptive mood for professional offers and intimidated as much in the official communique absolving the lanky Californian from any violation of the simon-pure code.

The situation seems to have been handled effectively but I wonder just how much furor and investigation there would have been if the story of Vines' achievements abroad this year was different; in other words, if he had retained the Wimbledon crown or played a winning role in the Davis Cup matches?

If Vines and a number of other tennis stars have not been "professional amateurs" within the past year, I do not know by what designation they can be labeled. They have played the game constantly, at home and abroad, engaging in a great deal more international competition than an of the outright professionals, including Bill Tilden. If a star of Vines' calibre thinks and plays tennis so steadily, with all expenses paid, what is more natural than his own thought of how eventually to make a definite livelihood out of the sport?

In short, as any tennis observer well may ask, isn't the over-emphasis on amateur tennis at home and abroad more to blame for commercially-minded participants than the players themselves.

I doubt if the U. S. L. T. A. has any idea of "selling Vines short," simply because he was a big disappointment in the 1933 European campaign.

The champion's downfall abroad simply was a combination of a lack of experience, high-pressure and his own disturbed mental condition.

There is no more reason for discarding Vines as a Davis Cup ace for 1934 than there is for identifying Frank Shields as the next No. 1. Both have world championship potentialities when "on" their games. But Vines even with his lapse this season, still has the more consistent record as a single player.

Tilden had to absorb the lessons of a number of trouncings from his main rivals before he lifted his game to the peak.

Meanwhile Vines will be well-advised to play less competitive tennis during the "off" season, stick to the amateur side of the fence and aim to redeem himself on the courts.

OUR NEW SPARE TIME—HOW'LL WE SPEND IT?

(Continued from Page One) ly or partly educated. "Secondly, every boy and girl must be educated in at least several forms of motor play beyond the novice or doubt class and hence the the enjoyment level.

"The essence of good play is its neglect of ulterior ends. Its purpose arises and matures within itself. Thus, playing golf for one's health—a horrible use for such a noble game—is about on a par with winking for health.

"With the growth of leisure time we will be the victims of commercial exploitation through various forms of amusement if we allow a generation to grow up quite uneducated in wholesome leisure time practices.

"Too much time badly used is bad for both the individual and society. People have always spent their leisure time in the oldest forms of play—gambling, drinking and sex. All are socially undesirable. Therefore education must teach children, young people and adults how to engage in games, festivals, outdoor sports, camping, musical organizations, amateur dramatics and the like.

"Schools must promote actively the idea that play belongs in a good life. Education must combat the notion that work is a great virtue. The average person's notion of work is thoroughly degenerate. The doctrines of modern business lead not to happiness but to more factories, not to beauty but to more wheat and cotton.

"The achievements of business are lauded as signs of progress and the success of financial enterprise set up as a goal for youth to aim at, while all the time the increase in nervous and mental diseases cries aloud that ability to live as an organism is an essential in education."

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady 7 to 12 points lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and under liquidation. December contracts after selling at 9.72 at the start rallied to 9.78 on some trade buying and covering, later eased to 9.71 with active months showing net losses of 10 to 13 at the end of the first half hour. The market eased later in the morning after further liquidation and scattered selling influenced by action of the grain and stock markets. December sold off to 9.65, May to 10.10, making net declines of 14 to 18 points on active months but these figures brought in more buying and covering and the market at midday was quiet at rallies of four or five, from the lowest. The market eased later in the day under increased liquidation and southern selling closing barely steady 13 to 19 points lower. Spots quiet; middling 9.55.

CROWD AT OPENING OF NRA CAMPAIGN

Fayetteville, Aug. 30.—The second largest indoor gathering seen here in many years marked the opening of the NRA drive last night. Major L. P. McLendon of Durham, was the principal speaker to address the mass meeting. Congressman J. Bayard Clark of this city, also spoke briefly. Major McLendon was introduced by Col. Terry A. Lyon. He urged united support of the President's recovery program and predicted complete success.

The county courthouse was unable to hold the crowd which attended the mass meeting. The attendance was exceeded only by the crowd which heard Bob Reynolds here last summer. A. E. Dixon, NRA director here, presided. The consumers' drive started today under direction of Mrs. W. T. Brock.
