Goldboro, Aug. 31—(AP)—Tobacco sales here yesterday totaled 193,700 pounds at an official average of $11 per hundred, bringing the season's total for the first two days to 380,000 compared with 104,140 pounds for the first two days last season.

Despondent Man Takes His Own Life

Greensboro, Aug. 31—This morning the body of William J. Lindemann, 52, was found in the basement of his home here. He had hanged himself at some time during the night, being seen last, last night when he bade his wife good-night. He left a note expressing his regret at the action he was taking, but terming it "the best way out". Mr. Lindemann had been very despondent over his unemployment, obligations he was unable to meet, and funds that were tied up in the closing of a local bank. His wife, two sons and a sister are the surviving relatives. The body was taken by train to Baltimore, where the funeral will be held tomorrow.

Here's Your 'Hog Relief' Says U. S.; So Growers Rush Crop To Market

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—Of all the emergency crop-surplus relief plans, that offered hog raisers is the most simple and direct. The cotton farmer had to plow up 10,000,000 acres, enter contracts with the government and await his benefit check. The wheat farmer will have a set up county organizations and contract for his individual domestic allotment.

There is none of that for the hog producer. If he has healthy pigs weighing between 25 and 100 pounds or sows weighing more than 275 pounds which are about to farrow, he has merely to take them to his nearest livestock dealer and collect the federal premium price.

The government plan calls for 4,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 sows between now and October 1, the processed meat to be sold to the emergency relief administration for distribution to the needy. The farmer will get from $6 per hundredweight on pigs between 60 and 100 pounds and $9.50 on those ranging from 25 to 30 pounds, less specified market differentials based

COURT HEARD THREE CASES YESTERDAY

Long Drawn Out Hearings Slowed Up Work of Criminal Court

Cases heard in criminal court here, yesterday with Judge Paul Frizzelle presiding proved long drawn out affairs with the result that only three cases were disposed of. Consuming most of the day's time was the case against Elizabeth Blount, Farmville negroess, on a charge of larceny. The case was the outgrowth of the loss of a diamond brooch and other articles by Mrs. W. R. Willis of Farmville. The brooch was never recovered and the court was unable to prove theft of it by the negroess but she was found guilty on a charge of receiving stolen property with respect to the clothing found in her possession and was sentenced to jail for 60 days to be assigned to work at the county home.

James Mills charged with hit and run driving, causing injury and property damage, was found guilty and given the opportunity to pay $300 damages and the court costs or serve a term of two years on the roads. He was given until the latter part of the week to raise the money or accept the road sentence. The other case heard yesterday was one in which Van L. Johnson was found not guilty on a charge of abandonment and non-support.

The first case heard this morning was against Henry Moore and Jesse Mason, negroes, on a charge of receiving stolen property. The jury returned a verdict of guilty but pronouncement of sentence was not to be made until later in the day.

The following true bills were returned by the grand jury: Jasper Reddick, murder, a true bill. Walter Page, murder, a true bill. Roy Brewster, assault with a deadly weapon inflicting severe injury, a true bill. Thomas E. Beaman, embezzlement, a true bill.

Ask Governor To Close Up All Tobacco Markets

Raleigh, Aug. 31—(AP)—Amid shouts and the stamping of feet, 2,000 Eastern North Carolina tobacco farmers at a price protest mass-meeting here today adopted a resolution asking Governor Ehringhaus to close every tobacco warehouse in the state until an average price reaches 20 cents a pound. The warehouses would be closed until the government put into effect machinery to increase tobacco to that average or until the manufacturers themselves perfected such plans.

General sentiment at the meeting was that the governor did not have the legal authority to close the warehouses but Dr. J. Y. Joyner, of La Grange, chairman of the meeting, declared that were low price policy the sentiment is behind a plan gives the governor that power.

Earlier in the meeting the government had been asked in another resolution to take steps to force tobacco manufacturers to pay more for the 1933 crop. Dr. Joyner was authorized to name delegates to present the resolutions at Washington. The warehouse closing resolution was later amended to suggest that Governor Ehringhaus confer with

NRA MEETING BE HELD HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Women's Division to Begin House to House Canvass in This County

Mrs. J. B. Spillman, who is chairman of the Women's Committee of Pitt County is calling a meeting Monday night September, 4th at 8:00 P. M. at the court house to have the President's Re-employment Agreement explained in detail before starting the house-to-house canvass in Greenville and Pitt county. The public is invited to this meeting.

With the approval Saturday by President Roosevelt of the automobile code, more than 80 per cent of all American industry has been codified or is operating under modifications of the President's Re-employment Agreement.

As a result, within 10 weeks after the President signed the National Industrial Recovery Act, millions of workers have had their wages raised and hours of labor reduced. Hundred of thousands of new jobs have been created.

Within the next week, it is hoped the bituminous coal industry will have been added to the list of industries under codes, adding more thousands of workers to payrolls.

To date the President has approved eighteen codes providing for self-government of some of the country's greatest industries including the automobile, iron and steel, lumber, petroleum, shipbuilding, cotton textile, wool textile, legitimate theatre, electrical and others.

Twenty-four more codes which have had public hearings are being whipped into final form for the President's signature. Thirty additional codes have been scheduled by National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson for hearing within the next two weeks.

The local Chamber of Commerce has a copy of the following codes in their office and will be glad to show it to anyone interested: Retail dry goods, specialty shop, men's clothing and furnishings, furniture, hardware, shoe store, restaurants, barber shop and beauty shop, food and grocery industry, retail drug store.

SCOTLAND COUNTY MEN FACE CHARGES OF ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL

Laurinburg, Aug. 31—(AP)—Six men charged with the night time flogging on August 13 of Douglas Monroe, were bound over to Superior Court here today on charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill by Recorder J. B. McKimmon, who had had the case under advisement since the hearing Tuesday.

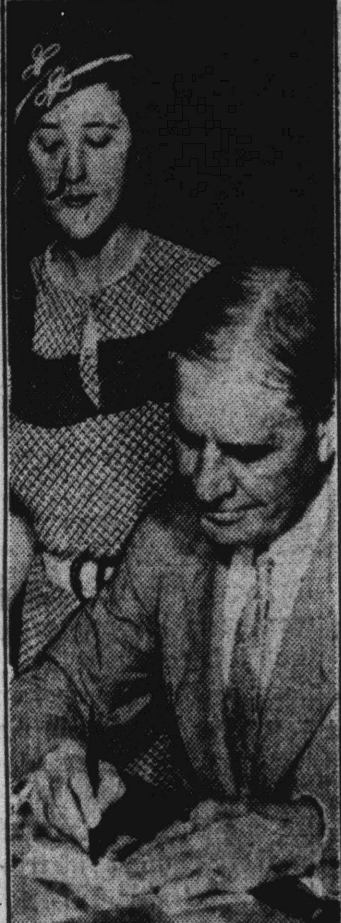

Monroe, a laborer who said he was 23 and unmarried, was routed from his home, taken to nearby wood, beaten and left by the six men who he identified as his assailants. At the hearing the defense charged that Monroe had been abusive to several women of the community.

Hunted Man Forced To Leave His Refuge

Laurinburg, Aug. 31—Accidental coalition of swamp serpent and Scotland county officers of the law caused a man now charged here with a capital crime to serve a ten-year penitentiary sentence for slaying a Negro, according to police.

Raney Quinn, 40-year-old farmer, is to face preliminary hearing today for the alleged criminal attack on his niece, Mrs. Vester Wallace, 18, high school graduate and wife of a young farm worker.

Meeting Set For Friday Night Postponed Until Next Monday Evening

The joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs for the entertainment of the tobaccoists of this city, scheduled for Friday night was postponed until next Monday evening according to an announcement made today by J. C. Gaskins, Rotary club secretary.

The meeting will be held at the Rotary club house at the regular meeting hour next Monday evening and it is expected that the guests will include about 75 members of the tobacco industry in this city. This annual affair is always an enjoyable one for both the hosts and their guests and indications are that this year's meeting will prove no exception.

Elephant's Summer At Shore. Nairobi, Aug. 31—(AP)—Elephant herds in Kenya, taking their summer excursion to the seashore, are damaging native farms, at Kilifi, near Mombasa. On their way to the shore the pachyderms raid gardens and tom-toms are beaten to rights and the animals away.

Twelve-Foot Stalk Of Tobacco Exhibited

Smithfield, Aug. 31—Jack, the Giant Killer's beanstalk had nothing on A. L. Tippett's stalk of tobacco which, by the way, is called Giant tobacco.

Mr. Tippett, who lives in Oneals Township, Johnston county, on Zebulon Route 1, accompanied by L. L. Strickland, another Johnstonian from Middlesex, Route 1, paid the Herald office a visit and left there the tallest tobacco stalk ever seen in these parts. It measures from tip to root, twelve feet and one inch, and has borne 83 leaves. It had been primed for a distance of about eight feet. Strange to say, it has never bloomed, but Mr. Tippett and Mrs. Strickland are of the opinion that it would have bloomed some time in September.

Moley Affair Hints At Limit To Authority Of The Brain Trust

By BYRON PRICE
The big idea which Washington evolved from the Moley resignation was that Mr. Roosevelt does not, after all, regard any member of his staff of college-professor advisers as infallible.

Until quite recently, there had been much apprehension on that score among democratic politicians. The professors had written more than the legislature passed at the special session, and they had secured a very firm foothold in almost every government agency.

TAKE STOCK OF NRA ACTIVITY FOR AUGUST

Showdown Between Recovery Administration and Henry Ford Near

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson and his recovery administration counted the August employment gains under the Blue Eagle today in launching their new effort to open the doors of factories, mines and stores to even a greater number of the idle in September.

The immediate problem is the speedy formation of codes of fair competition for the bituminous coal operators and the retail trades—affecting more than a million workers—and the question of bringing Henry Ford's huge plants into the automobile agreement.

A recapitulation of August activities in President Roosevelt's drive to stimulate employment and purchasing power through the N. R. A., found 18 permanent codes and 240 temporary trade agreements approved bringing upward of 10,000,000 workers under shorter hours and increased wages. Simultaneously Johnson was confronted with a demand from William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, for even shorter working hours to be inserted into the codes so as to spread employment at a faster pace.

Johnson returned last night from a trip to Boston to find President Roosevelt's request for a detailed report on the failure of Henry Ford to sign the automobile manufacturing code approved last Saturday. The recovery administrator declined to comment. He has said repeatedly that he had had no word from the manufacturer. It appeared today that a showdown between the recovery administration and Ford was near. Ford has until September 3 to come under the code and obtain his blue eagle. If he fails to do this Johnson says he thinks the "American people will crack down on him with other cars are flying the blue eagle.

Moley Affair Hints At Limit To Authority Of The Brain Trust

By BYRON PRICE
The big idea which Washington evolved from the Moley resignation was that Mr. Roosevelt does not, after all, regard any member of his staff of college-professor advisers as infallible.

Until quite recently, there had been much apprehension on that score among democratic politicians. The professors had written more than the legislature passed at the special session, and they had secured a very firm foothold in almost every government agency.

The President heard a great deal of advice to the effect that he was overdoing the thing. One of the most influential democratic senators felt so outraged that he frankly began to look with suspicion on every policy promulgated by the administration.

It surprised and pleased most party wheelhorses when Professor Ogburn found his ideas rejected by the NRA and returned, protesting, to his classroom. There was more secret rejoicing when it was disclosed that the oil price-fixing program was adopted over the most vigorous kind of opposition from Dr. Sachs and Economist Pogue.

A Matter of Tact
Coincidentally, the conviction grew that Professor Moley, the recognized giant oak of the "brain trust," was himself on his way out. Confirmation in the form of Moley's actual resignation did not entirely ease the minds of the troubled ones, but it helped mightily.

WHY NOT SOMETHING FOR THE FARMER?

The newspapers are full of news about a code for this and a code for that to aid in President Roosevelt's drive for greater purchasing power throughout the nation. We agree heartily, so far, in what the President and his associates have done along this line but while this effort to increase purchasing power is going on, why can't the government give a little attention to increasing the purchasing power of the tobacco farmers of this section.

With everything the farmer has to buy going up daily, nothing has been done to assure him a fair price for his tobacco crop and prices so far this season indicate that a fair price will not be paid unless the buying companies are forced by the government to pay it.

Did you ever stop to consider the fact that everybody who touches the tobacco has a say in what they are to make out of it but the farmer who produces it.

A definite wage is set for the hired laborer who helps to house the tobacco crop and the laborer knows what wage he is to receive before he hits a lick of work.

The tobacco is brought to the warehouse for sale and the laborer who aids in the unloading of the truck and places the tobacco on the floor is working under a government code and is receiving what the government has termed a fair wage. The warehouseman who is to sell the tobacco for the farmer has a certain set of fixed charges and fees he is to receive out of the sale in addition to a commission on the gross sale. Every person connected with the operation of the sale is working under a government code, certifying to a fair wage for their labors, including the buyers who place the bids for the buying companies.

Then the truckers who move the tobacco from the warehouse floors to the factories are likewise under a code of fair wages and the same is case of the laborers and others who handle the tobacco after it is received in the factories. Then when the tobacco is properly redried and turned over to be manufactured into a finished product, it is likewise handled by employees under a code that assure living wages. The manufacturing concerns fixing their own selling prices see to it that they can make a ten per cent or better dividend on all outstanding stock of the company after paying big salaries to officials, despite the fact that in most cases the stock has been so watered that it represents far more money than is actually invested in the manufacturing of tobacco.

Then the finished product goes on down the line through the wholesaler, jobber and retailer to the ultimate consumer, each making a definite profit out of the transaction.

You will note that we skipped over the farmer's end of the transaction when he placed his tobacco on the warehouse floor in order that we might continue along down the line to show definite and fair returns for each handler. Now let us return to the farmer waiting for his sale. He and his family have spent months and months of labor to produce the tobacco now on the floor. He has borrowed money to buy fertilizer and seed and other necessities in order to produce the crop. He has a definite investment in every pound of tobacco he is now offering, but does he have the opportunity to say what price he must receive for it in order to make a living wage? He does not!

On the contrary, the buyers grade it according to their own wishes, and tell what they will pay for it. Whether or not the price is sufficient to net him a profit, that's all he can get and he can take it or leave it. This is his only means of disposing of his tobacco, so of course, he has to take it and the deal is closed. After warehouse charges have been deducted he gets his check and either it is sufficient to pay him out or it is not, and in most cases for many years past it has not paid him out, despite the fact that the companies that bought the tobacco continued to make millions in profits.

This is the picture of the situation and we have tried to present the facts just as they are. In fairness to the farmer upon whom all the others who are making a profit out of tobacco depend, is he not entitled to a profit also? The government has provided for the others—

WHY NOT THE FARMER?

TOBACCO PRICES: A COMMENTARY
 Tobacco farmers of Eastern North Carolina who have been receiving bitterly disappointing prices for their tobacco will undoubtedly rejoice to learn that not all men who deal in tobacco are faced with a desperate future.

While prices on the warehouse floors are at pre-recovery levels and the prices of the things the farmers have to buy are going up with WRA, the prosperous tobacco manufacturers look forward happily to making more money than ever. At least the financial editor of the New York Times would seem to indicate as much in the following item published on Tuesday:

The recent rise in stocks of the leading tobacco companies has been accompanied by rumors that the wholesale price of leading brands of cigarettes would be increased either 50 cents or $1 a thousand around Labor Day. Many executives of tobacco companies are said to feel that the competition from the newer brands that were sold at lower prices has been lessening, and that smokers who roll their own cigarettes have been returning to the manufactured variety. If the wholesale price is raised, it is believed that retail prices will be increased correspondingly.

Tobacco prices are going up but not for the tobacco farmers. As the consumer pays more the farmer gets less, such is the miraculous operation of the law of supply and demand.—(News and Observer).

The HIDDEN DOOR
By FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: Colin Hewitt, disguised as a crook, Clarke Lunn, is told by Benny Malone that the man Colin knocked out in Svinelli's club was Sergeant Mulvey of the Homicide Squad. Colin hopes to track down the Masw, ruler of New York's underworld, because the Masw has threatened Colin's life. Benny is an agent of the Mask; in return for Colin's help at Spinelli's he promises to introduce him into the gang which he controls for the Masw. As a preliminary, Colin is sent to have lunch at a certain restaurant.

Chapter 34

A PACKAGE OF W. P.'s
 Colin had obeyed. He had been under observation at the restaurant, but that was obvious enough, but he did not know by whom or whether by one or many. Then, later on in the afternoon, Benny Malone had telephoned again and this time had given him the street and number of a tobacco store where he was to report at half past seven that evening.

If no other customer was in the store at the time, he had been instructed to ask for a package of W. P.'s—otherwise he was to make any purchase that would serve as a pretext for his presence there and wait until he was alone with the proprietor.

Colin's lips compressed on the butt of his cigarette. A package of W. P.'s! The Wine Press! Cap a l'Orange had taught him that! This was more than the thin edge of the wedge—it looked like a wide-flung door with "Welcome" blazoned on the doormat. Or was it the old, old story of the spider and the fly?

It was nearly half-past seven now. He glanced around him. He was approaching an old, elongated, two-story frame building with dormer windows, a relic of New York's early days, that flanked a modern six-story tenement.

It looked as though it had been made over into two houses—at least there were two entrances, one at either end—but while the one nearer him boasted a narrow porch before its door, the one at the far end seemed to be that of a store, and judging from the way the house and tenement numbers had been running, it obviously must be the tobacco store he was looking for.

His glance, apparently casual, was suddenly critical, absorbing details. He was abreast of the porch now. An old, white-haired man, the only person in the neighborhood who, it would seem, did not feel the heat, for he wore a rusty black, shabby Prince Albert coat buttoned tightly around him, sat there on the porch in a rocking chair, a cane across his knees, intent upon a newspaper which he was reading through steel-rimmed spectacles that straggled for down on his nose.

The man did not look up as Colin passed by. Colin did not alter his pace. A curious pace, this! Besides the two entrances he had already noted, there was also a third one he now saw, in about the center of the building—a basement entrance from the sidewalk.

This was wide open, and over the head of the doorway at the bottom of the steps there was a "Shoes to Mend" sign. The obvious questions flashed into his mind. If this was the Wine Press, was the cobler down there a factor—also the old man on the porch?

He halted now in front of the store. The window display had a cheap appearance. White-painted lettering on the panes, the paint scarcely discernible on many a letter, proclaimed the fact that one Michael Barney dealt in cigars, cigarettes, pipes, and tobacco.

It was the store he was looking for undoubtedly—and through the window Colin could see that there was no one inside at the moment except a wizened little man with red hair who stood behind one of the counters.

Colin mounted the three steps from the sidewalk, opened the door entered, and shut the door behind him. It was a small place. Prosperity did not seem to lurk in the seedy showcases or on the none too generously stocked shelves. There was a public telephone booth in one corner at the rear. Colin nodded pleasantly. The man with the red hair was looking at him inquiringly from across the counter.

"I'd like a package of W. P.'s," Colin requested.

The man nodded in return. "You're Clarke Lunn, ain't you?"

"Yes," said Colin.

"I'm Barney," announced the other. "It's all right. I've been looking for you." He jerked his head in the direction of a door at the rear of the store beside the telephone booth. "Go on in there. First room you come to."

"Thanks," said Colin.

He crossed the store, opened the door indicated, and found himself in a narrow passageway. On his left was a closed-in staircase; just a few paces ahead, on his right, was an open door. He reached the latter and paused for an instant on the threshold.

It was quite a sizeable room—evidently Mr. Michael Barney's "parlor." Shabby genteel, knickknacks and china ornaments in profusion, a worn carpet, chairs of the long ago, plush-upholstered, the plush faded and colorless, a horsehair sofa—and on the sofa, sprawled at full length, was Benny Malone.

"Hello, Clarke!" Benny Malone called out with a grin. "We meet again. How d'ye like your lunch?" Colin grinned back.

"You're all to the good, Benny. I was getting the once-over, eh?"

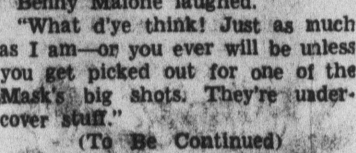

"Sure, I'll say you were! But the gate's wide open for you now. Sit down but leave the door open. Some of the boys are blowing in by and by—Sorry I can't flash a drink," he drooped an eyelid—"but this dump is on the level. Booze, cards, and skirts is ruled out."

"Mr. and Mrs. Barney are just a quiet old pair—got a bedroom where they sleep, and a kitchen where they cook and eat, just behind here along the hall, and a couple of rooms upstairs just because they're there, that they rent sometimes to roomers. There ain't much dough in running a tobacco emporium in these parts. Poor but honest, get me? The pastor of their church comes around regular to see 'em—the cops gave that up long ago!"

Colin slumped down in a chair. "You mean they're in the know?" he inquired.

Benny Malone laughed. "What d'ye think! Just as much as I am—on you ever will be unless you get picked out for one of the Masw's big shots. They're undercover stuff."

Top Notch's Idea

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

They were all back in Puddle Muddle making their plans to raise the money to pay for Rip's license and for the extra week he would have to stay in the pound.

"We haven't had any money since the exhibition," said Willy Nilly. "I don't know how to raise any. We can't sell the food we raise as all the people around here all they need and wouldn't pay us anything for ours."

"Every little repair job I've done of late for any one who has happened around I've said was so trifling that I didn't want any money for it, and now no one expects to pay. We hardly ever need any money in Puddle Muddle, but oh dear, oh dear, now we do."

"If you hadn't wasted all that money having your picture taken every few minutes at the exhibition," Jelly Bear said to Top Notch, "you could be of some help. But you're so vain you had to see yourself photographed. That was such a waste!"

"If you hadn't spent all your money which you, too, got at a reward for flagging the train, you'd be of some help yourself," returned Top Notch. "And how did you waste that money? By eating chocolate taffy until you were sick, you greedy thing."

"There, there," said Willy Nilly. "No quarreling. We've all got to help Rip."

"I've got an idea," said Top Notch. "There is an exhibition of splendid roosters and fine hens and beautiful chickens in the village beyond ours. I'll go to it and win the first prize and save Rip."

DUTCH CHECK GAMBLING AT OCEANSIDE CASINOS

The Hague, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Gambling casinos at Dutch seaside resorts are increasing to such an extent that the government has taken steps to check them.

A new form of roulette which had been introduced to evade the law, has been banned and the home minister has warned local burgomasters not to grant licenses for any more casinos.

Recently 200 croppers who had lost their jobs in Monte Carlo and Belgium found work at Scheveningen, Zandvoort and Noordwijk where the casinos have been crowded every day.

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT

SALES LIGHTER TODAY Comparative Opening Day Averages

Greenville had the largest opening day sales Tuesday the market has ever experienced. Farmers from over 20 counties sold tobacco on the market many of them travelling over 100 miles. On account of the storm Thursday and Friday of last week a larger per cent of the tobacco in wet and soft condition much of it being damaged was found on the floors than any day in years, which caused a considerable depreciation in prices and general average. We believe if this sale had been dry and in good order prices would have been $1.50 to $2.00 higher per hundred.

The following is record of opening day sales this year compared with last year.

Last year opening day 659,750 lbs. average	$ 8.95
This year opening day 1,248,546 lbs.	10.23

Prices were firmer after the noon hour. Keep your tobacco dry. It will bring more money. Market will sell out clean today.

We believe the coming Tobacco Season will be fairly profitable for everybody. Let us not be misled by the usual wild reports sent out by the publicity bureaus of the various markets this season of the year. Greenville market has been, and will in our opinion continue leading Eastern Carolina in prices paid for tobacco. We sold, however, last year more inferior tobacco than any year in our history owing to the drought which prevailed over our particular section.

No Market Will Excel Greenville--

We positively assert, the buyers joining in with us, that during the coming season, we are determined no market will excel Greenville in prices paid for every grade of Tobacco. This is the real secret of the Phenomenal Growth of Greenville's Tobacco Market.

Poor Grading Costs Millions--

Let us call especial attention to the fact that millions of dollars are lost annually on account of Tobacco being poorly graded and marketed in soft condition. Examine your pack barns for leaks before any of your tobacco is ruined.

If your tobacco is wet or in high order dry it out before bringing it to market.

Keep strings out of your tobacco as some of the Companies have positive instructions not to buy or bid on any pile of tobacco which contains strings.

No Floor Space Reservations--

Reserving floor space in advance is now prohibited by the Board of Trade. First come first served will be the rule. $50.00 fine will be imposed against any warehouseman violating this by-law.

HERE'S YOUR 'HOG RELIEF' SAYS U. S.; SO GROWERS RUSH CROP TO MARKET. (Continued from page one) which at a minimum of 50 cents a bushel would make the feed bill $8.

When the extra feed cost is subtracted from the probable gross return of $13.50 on the finished hog, less than $1 would accrue to the owner for market risks and work in the longer feeding period.

It is the purpose of the program eventually to take one out of every six hogs out of corn belt feed lots the number equivalent to the decrease in annual export of hog products since 1923. The difference between export in 1932 and the peacetime peak in 1923 was approximately 8,000,000 hogs.

Due to increased European hog production, principally in Germany and Denmark, American exports of pork and lard last year were the smallest in half century.

MOLEY AFFAIR HINTS LIMIT TO AUTHORITY OF HE BRAIN TRUST. (Continued from Page One) that Tugwell might become as much a storm center in the agriculture department as Moley was in the state department. But eventually he will over the opposition, and comparative peace followed.

Some Fit, Some Don't. Some others—particularly those assigned to think up new ideas for the treasury—have not made their place so readily. One professor was ejected summarily from a confidential conference of hostile treasury officials.

When Professor Warren and Rogers were dethroned by the White House to study the currency situation, a high treasury officer told inquirers:

"One of them I never heard of, and the other is really quite an authority on dairy matters."

The officer devoted the better part of two days to finding out who these professors were and what they were up to.

But unlike Moley and Tugwell, Warren and Rogers never projected themselves into administrative matters. They and varied others of the lesser professorial lights have been gravitating to the statistical and research end of the government, leaving public policy to the non-professors. Perhaps this may forecast the final solution of the problem.

Buick Sedan—a car you will appreciate.

There's no law against believing that "two can live as cheaply as one." Neither is there any law against thinking that eight cylinders can be as economical as six. Use your own judgment—but if you want the most economical car, just ask a few people who own the new Chevrolet Six. Their cost figures will be a revelation, particularly if you are struggling to support a few extra cylinders for the cost of six. You can save with a Chevrolet, and if you want to find out why, go straight to your nearest dealer. Look at the car and drive it yourself. The Chevrolet valve-in-head 6-cylinder engine works wonders with a gallon of gas, and it doesn't burden your pocketbook with extra cylinders, extra rings and pistons, or extra valves. Chevrolet has earned the reputation of being the world's most economical car, but after all, it was Chevrolet's owners who first spread the good word.

LOCALS TAKE SECOND GAME OF THE SERIES

The locals made it two wins in as many games in the Coastal Plain league championship series by defeating Ayden 16-3, yesterday afternoon at Ayden before a large crowd.

Greenville made 16 hits and their scoring came almost with monotonous steadiness. They made 16 hits off Stankus—over twice as many safeties as Ayden was able to garner against the hurling of Sigmon.

And speaking of that fellow Sigmon he held the Ayden boys at bay yesterday and did not let them get away with but seven hits. These were mostly scattered and in addition received splendid support from his teammates. In addition Sigmon struck out four men and allowed four base on balls. It was a great day for Sigmon and he also, in addition to his fine hurling hit two safeties.

Smith with three hits, was the chief safety maker for Greenville, while Brown, Poole, Rogers and Sigmon each made two safeties.

Faust Johnson and Bob McQuage each with two hits, paced Ayden.

Box score follows:

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady; 1 to 4 lower under liquidity and foreign selling. There was some selling here through houses with continental and Bombay connections and also a little pressure from the south but offerings were moderate and the market was a shade steadier after the call and coverings.

Futures closed barely steady six to 11 lower. Spots quiet. Middling 84.5.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A pre-holiday apathy brought trading in the securities market almost to a standstill today and prices generally shifted about lazily over an extremely narrow range. Stocks started out on a mild rally led by alcohol but the flurry was of brief duration and most quotations drifted back to yesterday's levels. Many operators had already left town for the protracted week-end and those remaining found little to inspire them.

Shares of National Distillers went up about four points at one time and those of U. S. Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol up two. Homestake Mining gained five points. Small gains were noted in Case, U. S. Smelting, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Western Union, Chrysler and U. S. Steel. Liggett Myers B was somewhat heavy and DuPont, New York Central, General Motors and others eased off. Sales 1,441,420 shares.

New Water Supply Found Satisfactory

Hertford, Aug. 31.—The new water supply for the town of Hertford has proved highly satisfactory. Hertford now has good water.

For a number of years the town water was pumped from the water of upper Perquimans river. Since salt became so prevalent in the river of eastern North Carolina, during the recent dry years, the water situation in Hertford has been most unsatisfactory. The water was brackish in taste, hard and at times highly discolored.

Twenty-one wells have been driven to supply water to the town, with a pumping capacity of more than a hundred thousand gallons a day which is more than adequate, and the water is very palatable and is also soft and clear.
