Tobacco Warehouses On Holiday

Pledge Their Support To Governor In Effort Secure Better Prices

UNANIMOUS IN ACTION

Appoint Committee To Accompany Governor To Washington And Give All Possible Aid To Movement

Tobacco farmers and warehousemen of the markets of the two Carolinas, closed for an indefinite period, settled down today to await the result of concerted action to aid in securing government intervention in the interest of higher prices.

The clincher to the holiday, proclaimed first by Governor Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, and concurred in by Governor Blackwood, of South Carolina, came last night with word from warehousemen of both state of co-operation to the fullest extent.

Approximately 150 tobacco warehousemen, representing 13 of eastern Carolina's 16 tobacco markets, meeting in Farmville last night, adopted resolutions pledging wholehearted support and co-operation in Governor Ehringhaus' warehouse closing proclamation.

The resolutions adopted were as follows:

Whereas, the Governor of North Carolina has issued a Proclamation requesting all tobacco sales warehouses in North Carolina to suspend sales pending a conference of Governor Ehringhaus and a committee of gentlemen representing the farmers with Government officials in Washington, D. C., with a view of improving prices now being paid for tobacco.

Be it resolved, that Eastern North Carolina Warehouse Association, (Continued on Page Four)

FUNERAL FOR G. W. WOOD IS HELD TODAY

Interment Made at Family Cemetery On Farm Near Vanceboro

Ayden, Sept. 2—George Watkins Wood 59 of Providence Rhode Island who died at 7:40 A. M. August 31st at Mission Hospital, Asheville, was buried today at 3:30 P. M. in the family burying ground on the large farm near Vanceboro. The funeral services was conducted by Rev. T. E. Davis, pastor of the Vanceboro Methodist church.

Mr. Wood was President of the Finance Service Corporation of Providence Rhode Island and had business offices in that city and New York. Mrs. Wood managed their large farm at Dudley's Cross Roads near Vanceboro in Craven county. Mr. Wood was returning with his family from a visit to the Chicago Exposition and was taken sick in his automobile near Asheville and rushed to the hospital where he died of Coronary Sclerosis.

Through the issuance of funding bonds, Montana was able to go on a cash basis in May, says State Treasurer James J. Brett.

May Take Tobacco Issue To President

Raleigh, Sept. 2—(AP)—Informed that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace did not expect to be in Washington Monday, Governor Ehringhaus today was attempting to reach the cabinet officer by long distance telephone to prevail upon him to remain there to see the three state tobacco delegations to be in the capital that day.

GRAND JURY ISSUES ITS FIRST REPORT

Covers Routine Investigation Showing County Affairs in Good Order

Pitt county's new six month's grand jury sworn in by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle here Monday made its first official report to the court yesterday.

The report, which covers mostly routine matters was as follows: To His Honor, J. Paul Frizzelle, Judge Presiding at the August Term, 1933, Superior Court.

Greeting: We the Grand Jury for this Term of Court respectfully submit the following report:

We have diligently investigated all bills presented to this body and acted on same in accordance with the evidence available.

We have inspected the jail and found it in as sanitary and well kept as could be expected under the crowded condition that exist during Court week.

We found two leaks in the roof of the jail which is causing it to deteriorate very fast.

We recommend that the proper authorities have the same repaired as early as is practical.

We have made a thorough inquiry into the sanitary conditions of the schools' toilets and water systems of the Pitt County Schools, and find that all toilets were built in accordance with the plans submitted to and approved by the State Sanitary Inspector and State Board of Health.

These outdoor toilets are all painted and are in a far better condition than the average type of toilet in the county.

The only complaint as to unsanitary conditions, existed in the indoor closets on account of the failure of some of the janitors to properly perform their duty in this respect.

All schools have an adequate water supply, except Oak Ridge, a colored school, and we are advised that numerous attempts have been made to get water at this place but failed. However, water is carried from an adjoining farm home for use in this school.

There are two outdoor toilets on private property adjoining the school property at Belvoir, which is a menace to the health of the community and these have been condemned by the County Health Officer, but he has not been able to get the owners to comply with the request to remove same. We recommend that the Health Officer use his authority and have same removed at once.

We visited the school garage and (Continued on page four)

CHARLES R. ROBERTSON SLAIN AT WHISKEY STILL

Wilson, Sept. 2—During a raid on a whiskey still in the vicinity of the old rock quarry in Tolson Township Thursday afternoon Police Chief Brown of Elm City fatally wounded Charles Rufin Robertson, the bill entering the back of the head of the victim passing through his brain and coming out through his forehead.

The wounded man was brought to Mercy Hospital here and died at 11:20 o'clock Thursday night.

County authorities were notified and Coroner V. C. Martin ordered Officer Brown be placed under a bond of $1,000 pending a thorough investigation of the tragedy.

Late News Flashes From Over World

PROCESSING TAX FOR TOBACCO

Washington, Sept. 2—(AP)—In response to requests for aid for the growers by Governors Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, and Blackwood, of South Carolina, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace informed them today that a processing tax of five-cents tobacco would be put in effect October 1 to raise money for payments to growers who reduce their production.

The five-cured tobacco markets of North and South Carolina have been closed by the governors because of unsatisfactory prices to the growers, but Secretary Wallace's telegram to the executives made no mention of this. The fact that the processing tax is to be levied on five-cured tobacco for return to the growers who slash production next year was made known yesterday. The tax is expected to be four cents per pound.

International Balloon Race Bring Test Of America's Strength

Chicago—(AP)—Mans first form of air conquest—ballooning—will vie with four-mile-a-minute planes and modern aerobatics for air fans attention when the Gordon Bennett balloon race headlines a four-day international air show here September 1-4.

Bags piloted by ace balloonists of five nations are scheduled to try for the first "leg" on the third renewal of the trophy which inaugurated world ballooning competition in 1906. This will be the 21st race of the international series, the tenth held in America, and the first to start from Chicago.

Three American Teams America, whose victories in the last six races have taken the second and third Bennett emblems out of circulation, will have three teams—navy, army and civilian—pitted against efforts of a Belgian, two German, French and Polish enteries. Belgium retired the original trophy with successive victories in 1922-23-24.

Tried and proved pilots will carry American hopes, with the 1932 international champion, Lieut.-Sommer T. G. W. Settle, in charge of the navy bag, Lieut. Wilfred Paul and Sergeant John Bishop, 1932 national winner, soaring for the army, and Ward T. Van Orman, three-time international victor and four-time national champion, piloting the civilian entry.

Secretary Wallace's message follows:

"Processing tax will be levied on five cured tobacco effective October 1. Revenue obtained will be used to pay growers who participate in the adjustment program next year. Details of the plan cannot be announced until after we have had the opportunity to consult leading growers and their representatives whose advice is necessary to make the plan equitable and whose co-operation is necessary to carry the program forward."

Ehringhaus Wires President

Raleigh, Sept. 2—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus today wired President Roosevelt aboard his yacht enroute to Washington that "his assistance to secure the fullest opportunity for hearing and immediate action" on the tobacco price situation "will be appreciated."

END SESSION OF CRIMINAL COURT HERE

Many Cases Disposed Of During Week by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle

Disposing of practically all cases set for trial, Pitt County Superior court for the hearing of criminal indictments was adjourned for the term late Friday by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle. The grand jury, of which J. P. Davenport is forman made its report to Judge Frizzelle Friday, which report is published elsewhere.

The following cases were tried Friday:

Guy Hales, young white man, breaking, entering and larceny. Guilty. Sentenced to 18 months on the roads. Hales was charged with breaking into a store at Falkland late Thursday night. He was arrested Friday morning, a true bill returned against him, tried and sentenced, all within a day.

Harvey Blount, colored, larceny. Eight months on the roads. It is alleged Blount stole a mule from J. E. Winslow.

Reddit Mizelle, white, was given four months on the roads on a charge of manufacturing liquor. Mizelle pleaded guilty.

Henry Jones, white, indicted with Mizelle, was found not guilty.

Raymond Briley, white, was given 8 months on a charge of possession of liquor.

Jim Greene, colored, breaking and entering, was adjudged not guilty.

Jimmy Lee, white, possession of liquor. Prayer for judgment continued until October term.

SEVEN KILLED SCORES HURT BY HURRICANE

Tropical Storm Swept Cuba Leaving Death And Destruction in Wake

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 2—(AP)—A swift moving hurricane visited its wrath on the western Pinar del Rio province today after causing at least seven deaths and 64 injured and great property losses in three western states. As communication lines were repaired reports came from the community of shattered houses, broken power lines and damaged crops. Havana spent a night in darkness and there was looting in many districts. Soldiers and police were under orders to shoot on sight any looters and they killed two persons caught pillaging.

The capital had been warned of the storm's approach but never the less one unidentified man was killed and more than 60 injured here as the gale tore at signs, trees, buildings and walls. The storm swept away the seawall and the huge waves inundated the waterfront six blocks back to a depth of six feet.

EASY LIFE SUITS SCOTTI WITHOUT A SONG

Miami, Fla., Sept. 2—(AP)—The passing of the storm that nicked the tip of the Florida peninsula and lashed Cuba was followed today by four ships aground, one damaged by collision and reports of another disturbance moving over the Caribbean. Florida felt gales at Key West and a 29 mile wind here as the only effects of the storm that hit Cuba reaching 98 miles an hour leaving death and destruction in the vicinity of Havana.

Local Tobacco Market Paid Out $382,336.66 First Four Days Sales

Warehousemen Quick To Comply With Governor's Request For Holiday

Official figures on the Greenville tobacco market issued this morning showed sales yesterday at 1,113,380 pounds for $109,565.20, averaging $9.84 per hundred pounds. Yesterday's sales brought the total for the four selling days this week to 3,307,066 pounds for $382,336.66, an average price of $10.05 per hundred pounds.

In compliance with the governor's proclamation requesting warehousemen to suspend operations until action can be taken by the federal government to raise tobacco prices, the market here will not hold further sales until the holiday is over. Upon receipt of information that the governor had issued a tobacco holiday proclamation, the local warehousemen lost in time in notifying him that they would be glad to cooperate in any movement looking to better tobacco prices for the farmer.

Shortly after nine o'clock yesterday morning M. R. Long, president of the Greenville Warehousemen's Association, sent the governor the following telegram:

Although suspension of sales will incur heavy expense, warehousemen of Greenville anxious and glad to cooperate with other markets in any action designed to secure for the farmers better prices for their tobacco.

Greenville Warehousemen's Assn. M. R. Long, President.

The following letter was received last night by Mr. Long from Charles G. Powell, secretary to Governor Ehringhaus, thanking the local association for its willingness to cooperate.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 1, 1933. Mr. M. R. Long, President, Greenville Warehousemen's Assn., Greenville, N. C.

My Dear Mr. Long: In the absence of Governor Ehringhaus I wish to acknowledge your telegram of the 1st and, on his behalf, to express to you his sincere thanks for your offer of cooperation with reference to the tobacco situation.

We knew that we could count upon this organization to stand by us in this crisis.

Again thanking you, I am, Sincerely yours, Charles G. Powell, Private Secretary.

36 MEN SAVED FROM BURNING OIL TANKER

Tanker Coldwater Is Rammed and Sunk Off North Carolina Coast Last Night

New York, Sept. 2—(AP)—Thirty six men were saved from death by fire or drowning when the tanker Coldwater burst into flames and presumably sank after a collision with the liner President Wilson, a wireless message announced early today. The coast-wise tanker and the liner, bound for the Orient, collided about 200 miles off the North Carolina coast about 11 o'clock last night. A message from the master of the latter to the Radio Marine Corporation said:

"On September 1, about 11 p. m., S. S. Coldwater caught fire after collision with S. S. President Wilson and presumably sunk." The position as given was latitude 33.51 north, longitude 75.45 west which is approximately 200 miles off Cape Fear, North Carolina.

The first message did not say what happened to the tanker's crew but shortly afterward the vessel's owners announced from the Savannah office that the men were saved and were being taken to Norfolk, Va.

General Francesco de Pinedo Dies in Attempt Take off This Morning

Brooklyn, Sept. 2—(AP)—General Francesco de Pinedo, one of Italy's most famous aviators, met a flaming death shortly after dawn today when his huge plane crashed and burned at the take off for Baddad Iraq. The tremendous load of gas 1,027 gallons, caused the giant red, green and purple plane to serve from the concrete runway and hit a fence of the Floyd Bennett airport. In a second the plane was a roaring mass of flames and the flier was burned beyond recognition.

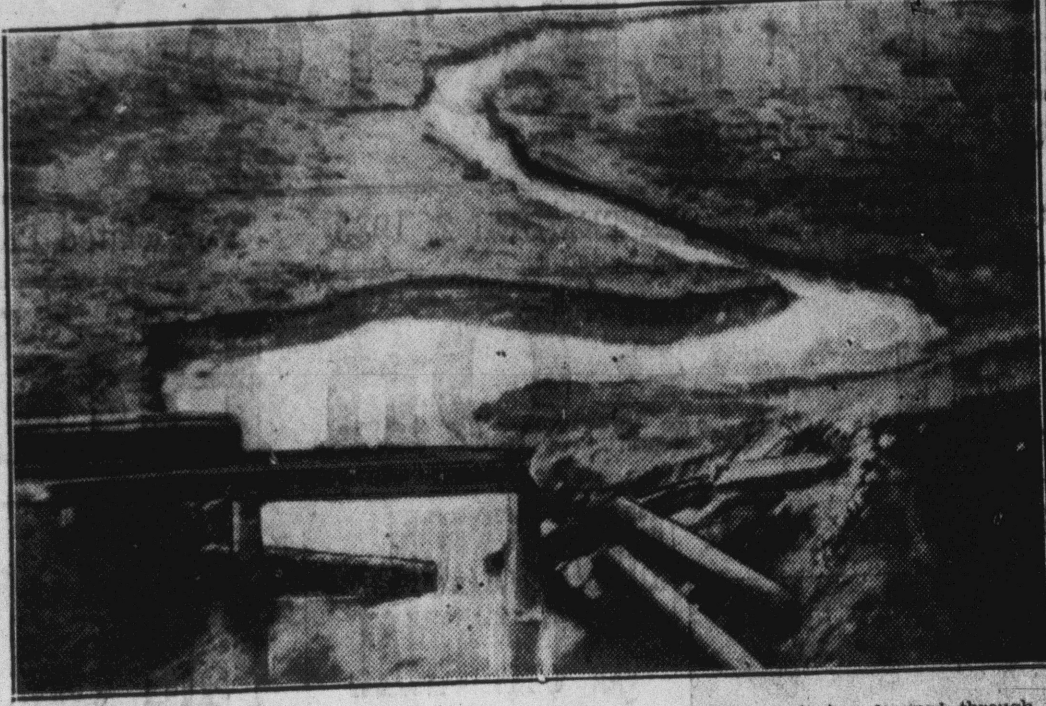

The start of what the gallant flier had hoped to be a non-stop record flight became a scene of horror. Spectators shouted and covered their eyes as they saw the flames engulf the aviator. Attendants rushed to the scene and tried to pull him out but the flames forced them back. Michael Beach, naval machinist, was badly burned about the face in trying to reach Pinedo with a fire extinguisher. The plane burned only a few minutes before it was a mass of metal wreckage. The body was found lying beside it. Field officials said the flier had jumped and tried to crawl away before the fire killed him. De Pinedo's plane was traveling about 70 miles an hour when it struck the steel wire fence.

8 KILLED, 40 INJURED IN NEW MEXICO TRAIN WRECK

In a flooded arroyo, usually dry, the Golden State Limited, crack passenger train, dropped through a washed out section of a bridge near Tucumcari, N. M., during a storm, killing eight persons and injuring more than two score. The engine and five cars of the 11-coach train toppled off the trestle and piled up in the torrent. An air view of the wreckage is shown here.—(Associated Press Photo).

We wish to congratulate our baseball team, not only for winning the series, but for the fine bunch of young men that they are. During the whole season we have heard of no cases of misconduct on the part of our players either on or off the field and such a record is most unusual for any baseball season. The local management is to be congratulated for getting together such a fine bunch of ball players.

We repeat that Judge Paul Frizzelle during the week of court just ended made a good job of meting our prison and road sentences to persons guilty of hold-ups, highway robbery and store breaking. One way to break up these kinds of crimes is for the would-be offenders to know that they will get speedy trials and their punishment will be certain and long. Judge Frizzelle set a good example along this line this week.

WAREHOUSEMEN SHOW FINE SPIRIT

Tobacco warehousemen are to be commended for their willingness and readiness to co-operate with the governor in his efforts to secure better tobacco prices for the farmers. Despite the fact that plans and contracts had already been made for the season and a good part of the overhead expenses will go right on while the markets are closed, the warehousemen unanimously agreed to take an indefinite holiday pending action by the federal government. They are interested in the farmer getting every penny possible for his tobacco and showed a fine spirit by their willingness to make the sacrifice of closing down while efforts at higher prices are being made.

At this stage no one knows just how long this tobacco holiday will last but all of us believe that ultimate and lasting good for the farmer will come from it and it is this belief that prompted the warehousemen to such quick and whole-hearted action.

NO SUCH ATTITUDE

This morning we received complaints from some farmers to the effect that they had asked the question as to how long the tobacco warehouses would be closed and the reply was that "the farmers by their action had caused them to close" and that they would remain closed until the farmers saw fit to ask them to open. In the meantime, it was up to the warehousemen to do the best they could.

Such a reply conveyed the idea of an antagonistic attitude on the part of the warehousemen, which we wish to correct here and now. The writer has talked to individual warehousemen in this city and also attended the gathering of about 150 Eastern Carolina warehousemen at Farmville last night and there was not one single utterance to indicate such an attitude on the part of any warehouseman. On the other hand, as expressed elsewhere in this column, the attitude of the warehousemen was one of cooperation in any effort that would bring benefit to the tobacco growers.

Chapter 36 PLEASANT PROSPECT

"If you saw anybody on the porch," said Benny Malone with a malicious grin, "it was old Keppelstein and nobody else, because he lies there all by his lonesome, and he's too much of a miser to let anyone else sit in one of his chairs without paying for it!"

Colin looked puzzled.

"You don't mean that he's in on—"

"Him!" ejaculated Benny. "Nix! He's as dirty a crook as there is in New York—but he ain't our kind of crook. He'd slap a court order on your false teeth if you owed him money."

"The only thing he's in on here is his rent—and he comes around to get it from Barney before breakfast the first of every month. He owns a lot of property and is worth a lot of money, but nobody ever knew him to blow any of it—even on himself!"

"Some day, if he lives long enough somebody'll bump him off. I'd take the job on myself and enjoy it. He put a widow and three kids that lived in a tenement he owns in the next block out on the street in a hell of a storm a couple of days ago. What do you know about that? But," Benny Malone admitted grudgingly, "he makes a hot blind for us here just the same."

"I get you," laughed Colin. "Say,

to ask them to open. In the meantime, it was up to the warehousemen to do the best they could.

Such a reply conveyed the idea of an antagonistic attitude on the part of the warehousemen, which we wish to correct here and now. The writer has talked to individual warehousemen in this city and also attended the gathering of about 150 Eastern Carolina warehousemen at Farmville last night and there was not one single utterance to indicate such an attitude on the part of any warehouseman. On the other hand, as expressed elsewhere in this column, the attitude of the warehousemen was one of cooperation in any effort that would bring benefit to the tobacco growers.

Upon questioning those who made the complaint to us we learned that the remark was NOT made by a tobacco warehouseman.

We call attention to this in order to correct any erroneous rumors that may become widespread enough to cause a breach between our farmers and warehousemen.

The HIDDEN DOOR

By FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: After weeks of wandering about New York's underworld disguised as Clarke Lunn, a crook, Colin Hewitt at last has come upon the trail of the Mask, his quarry. The Mask has threatened Colin's life; now Colin suddenly finds himself a member of one of the Mask's gangs: Benny Malone, in a room behind a little East Side tobacoo shop, is instructing him in the layout. He will work under a man known as Buck, one of the Mask's lieutenants. Benny describes the "Wine Press" formerly a come-on joint for slumming parties, now being used as headquarters by the Mask, and tells of the owner of the Wine Press, Keppelstein.

I feel like a kid at school putting his hand up. What else have I got to learn?"

"How to get in and how to get out—and that you're never to come here unless you're sent for," returned Benny Malone. "And get that last good and hard, Clarkie! This ain't any clubhouse, and there ain't any loafing done around here. Mr. and Mrs. Barney are supposed to be respectable. See? Only the big shots like Buck O'Mara and Heimie Schwarm come here when they like, and sometimes when there's a job on one or two of them sleep here—being the roomers I was telling you about that the Barneys sometimes take in."

"The rest of us aren't here more'n once a week, and sometimes not for two or three weeks—only when we're wanted. And when you're wanted you'll get a card with W. P. on it and the hour, or else the same thing over the phone. Savvy?"

Colin licked his lips greedily.

"I'm sucking it in," he said.

"Well, then," said Benny Malone "listen to the last shout. If you have to show up here in daylight use the store, or else go down and see if Solly's got your shoes mended yet. Switch about, shuffle your caros—see?"

"If it's wark there's another way in. Duck into the alleyway alongside here and then around into the lane. There's a door there that opens off this lower hall. It's got a latch. Lift the latch and you'll find the head of a nail—only it's a push button. Push it once, wait a second, then push it twice—two quick ones—and one of the Barneys will let you in."

"There's another door there, a little farther away from the alleyway, but don't monkey with that. It leads to the back stairs, and the big shots are the only one that have got keys to it. There ain't anything else that—"

A form bulked suddenly in the doorway and a man came into the room. Benny Malone, as master of ceremonies, performed the introduction. The man's name was Klengell. At intervals of some few minutes two more men appeared—stock chaps like the first, with weatherbeaten faces. Again Benny Malone went through the rites. The latest comers answered respectively to the names of Smudge Kilrea and Georgie Napp.

"Heimie Schwarm's right hand-ers," Benny Malone announced for Colin's benefit. "Clarke here is a new one. Any more to come?"

No one in particular being addressed, the man who had been introduced as Smudge Kilrea answered.

"Nope!" he said. "Three of the fleet'll be all that's needed. But where's Buck?"

"Here!" said a voice curtly from the doorway.

Colin looked up. A sandy-haired man with thick, bushy, sandy eyebrows, and a tight, determined mouth, met his gaze—and the mouth suddenly relaxed into a not unpleasant smile.

"Hello, Clarkie," Buck O'Mara flung out. "I hear you've joined up. We'll get to know each other better." He looked around the room. "All set, eh?—except that I haven't heard from Heimie. Do any of you know whether he's been in?"

Benny Malone dragged from his pocket the envelope that Heimie Schwarm had given him.

"Heimie was here a little while ago," he said. "He told me he couldn't wait, but that this was the dope you wanted and I was to give it to you."

Buck O'Mara tore the envelope open, extracted a sheet of paper, and studied the latter attentively for a full minute—then he broke into a grim laugh.

"Some boy, Heimie!" he exclaimed. "It looks like the goods to me—but you three birds ought to know. What do you say?"

He handed the sheet of paper to Smudge Kilrea, who studied it in turn, while Klengell and Georgie Napp peered over Kilrea's shoulder.

"Okay by me," stated Smudge

Kilrea tersely. "A blind man could find it."

"Some here," said Klengell.

"Me too," said Napp.

"All right then," said Buck O'Mara briskly. "Scatter! The rest is STORRY—TWOvlu?O— all fixed. We'll be right on your tails. And tomorrow night show up here around ten, you three—I'll be here and there'll be a cut for you to take to the boys no matter what happens tonight."

The three left the room. Buck O'Mara turned to Colin.

"Ever read the papers, Clarkie?" he inquired abruptly.

"Parts of 'em," Colin admitted with a grin; "but I pass up the eye-wish and the noise the mehagerie that's in politics makes."

"Ever read about a mob a few weeks ago that was doing a nice quiet little business down on the St. Lawrence turning out the queer stuff?"

Colin's face was instantly intent. "Cure!" he said. "Everybody's read about that. Somebody muscled in and put two of 'em on the spot."

Buck O'Mara barked out a laugh. "And then some!" he said thinly. "The papers don't know it all. Besides the two, there was another one that got a hide full of lead and had a tough break between trying to get well and keeping under cover at the same time. And also there ain't any nice little business down there any more."

There was only one man that Buck O'Mara could be talking about—Lazarre. Lazarre had pulled through and was alive, then! Colin rummaged for a match he hung a fresh cigarette on his lip.

He stared inquiringly, a little bewilderedly, at Buck O'Mara.

"I'm not sure I get you," he said. "What are you asking me if I'd read about that for?"

Buck O'Mara laughed but went on without answering.

"This guy that almost got the works happens to be a good friend of somebody important around here, see? He knew all about that St. Lawrence country, and a lot more as well. And that little business up there—that was important to this same somebody."

Buck borrowed a light. Colin was fascinated by Buck's cold, precise movements, and with his own knowledge of what actually happened on the St. Lawrence, had pieced together a far more complete version of the story than Buck was likely to tell him.

"So, these guys being friends, we took pains to find out who did it. I thought you'd like to know that anyone you use your rod on tonight and you'll have plenty of use for it, is only getting what he asked for. Come on, let's go."

CRACKS SAFE IN ONE STORE, LOOT ANOTHER

Kinston, Sept. 2—Robbers who cracked a safe in the store of L. P. Tyndall at Pink Hill at 3 a. m. yesterday also entered the store of Herbert Jones, authorities revealed today. Valuable papers were taken from the safe in the Tyndall store, but the owner had deposited heavy collections in a bank here the day before. Nothing was missed from the Jones store, in which there was no safe.

OBTAINS A RULING ON SPECIAL OFFICER'S FEE

Greensboro, Sept. 2—At the request of Thomas C. Hoyle, Jr., Greensboro attorney, the State's Attorney General has written an opinion interpreting Chapter 40 of the Public Law of 1933 to mean that a special officer whose compensation is not paid out of public funds has the right to prove his attendance and collect his fees as a witness in court.

Among the special employed officers there has been debate about this law ever since it was enacted by the last Legislature, according to Mr. Hoyle. But the Attorney General's ruling means that a special deputy employed by a private corporation who makes an arrest in his county has the right to collect his witness fee in the case. The ruling affects the income of several hundred special officers in North Carolina.

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT

All Markets Closed

Every Tobacco Sales Warehouse in North and South Carolina is closed and will remain closed pending conference with Government Officials in Washington, D. C., beginning Monday.

A called meeting of all Warehousemen in Eastern Carolina was held last night and resolutions were unanimously adopted offering full co-operation with the Governor in his proclamation to suspend sales, while conference is being held with the view of improving present prices.

A committee of six tobacco warehousemen from the East Carolina Belt was appointed to attend the conference at Washington, D. C., beginning on Monday.

The purpose of the warehousemen attending this conference it to use their influence in increasing the price paid the farmers.

We cannot tell how long the markets will remain closed, but we strongly advise against grading any more tobacco until we have notice that sales will be resumed.

Greenville Wins Series In Coastal Plain League

Greenville brought the Coastal Plain league championship series to a quick close by defeating Ayden 14-0 yesterday and annexing the title by virtue of four victories in as many series games.

Lefty Dean started the hurling for Greenville but was replaced in the third frame by Roger Taylor. He was not replaced because of his wildness as stated in the News and Observer, but due to the fact that he was not needed against the Ayden club. He had yielded only one hit when he was replaced by Taylor. Taylor pitched a beautiful game for the next 7 innings and allowed only four hits and most of these were fluke hits.

Doug Johnson started the game for Ayden and was relieved by Holland in the 7th inning after yielding 9 hits. Holland yielded 8 hits.

Greenville went wild in the 8th inning of the game and collected a total of 8 hits for a total of 6 runs. Every man went to the bat and Smith who went to bat twice in this inning made two hits. Smith with a double and two singles and Brown with a homer and two singles led the battin attack for Greenville.

Homers were also hit by Rogers and Dean. Rogers hit his homer in the eighth inning with two on base while Dean hit his homer with none on.

Bradley, who replaced Patist Johnson in the fifth inning led the batting honors for Ayden getting two singles to lead his teammates.

This was the first time this season that Ayden had been blocked but they were completely in a whirl yesterday and errored quite frequently.

NRA EFFECT ON DIXIE SCHOOLS

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Compulsory school laws and co-operation of industrial plants over a period of several years have reduced to a minimum any problems of increased enrollment that might be caused by adoption of the national recovery program in the south.

School officials in states where textile mills and other industrial communities abound say they anticipate no difficulty in caring for those additional children who will enter or return to school this year because, under provisions of the NRA, they will not be allowed to work.

State laws make it compulsory that all children attend school until they have reached the age of 14, and those between the ages of 14 and 16 are not allowed to work except by permit, issued upon approval of local school superintendents.

A check of records of the Georgia department of industrial relations shows that between January 1, 1933, and July 17, 1933, when the textile code became effective, only 502 permits to work were issued to children between the ages of 14 and 16. These are scattered over more than a dozen communities and will be absorbed by their respective schools without increasing the burden of attendance.

North Carolina authorities report that only 950 children in that state were affected by the code and that no problem in caring for them is anticipated. Ample school facilities are provided in all industrial communities and cooperation of employers with school authorities in enforcement of the compulsory attendance law has reduced child labor to a low figure.

While elementary and high school revenues in the several states will be somewhat lower than last year, educational officers say they do not expect a lessening of school efficiency as a result of the code.

In Tennessee, where it is estimated 2,000 children will be thrown out of work under the codes, a decline of 25 per cent in school revenues is anticipated.

"This will not lessen school efficiency as much as it might appear at first glance," said James A. Roberts, assistant state commissioner of education, "because reduction in costs will offset a part of the loss." Labor Commissioner W. E. Jacobs of Tennessee says there are no children under 14 working in the state.

"We are enforcing strictly the labor laws of this state with reference to children and women," he said. He pointed out that before a child under 16 can obtain a permit to work he must establish that his earnings are necessary to maintain either himself or his family.

Fewer than 4,000 children are employed in industry in Alabama and since the state's total school enrollment is well over 600,000 they will have little effect on the schools should they enter.

In the eastern and central parts of the south, where the cotton crops usually are tended by the small farmer and his family, there is a prospect that child cotton pickers will have more schooling as the result of the cotton acreage reduction program. Often in the past many of them have been kept out of school a month or so to finish the harvest. That's the view of Cully A. Cobb, cotton production administrator for the agricultural adjustment administration.

Late News Flashes

Washington Monday when delegations representing North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia will seek federal intervention to raise the 1933 tobacco prices. A telegram was also sent to Secretary Wallace asking the secretary to "personally endeavor to postpone conflicting engagements and arrange to see us Monday." The telegram to Mr. Wallace further said, "the very economic life of the people of three states is involved and we are counting on full cooperation from Washington."

Held for Attack

Henderson, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Florida Bullock and Rufus Kelly, negroes, were held today for Superior Court on charges of kidnapping and attacking Mary Lena Vandyk, 16, who said the two negroes beat and held her near her home when she refused to tell them where her father had hidden money. Since the girl was attacked August 23rd she had viewed more than 30 suspects held at Wake Forest, Durham, Raleigh and Oxford, but failed to identify any until confronted by Bullock and Kelly. Then she said, "there two are guilty."

Your Gadget Has A Patent From U. S.

Washington, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The man who, for example, gets a patent on his invention of a new expandable, chamber-type motor receives his government "OK" for the bright, brown eyes of a young woman have gone over his plans. Elizabeth Jane Newton might inspire jealousy in her famous ancestor, Sir Isaac Newton, discoverer of the laws of gravity, if he could see her at work.

All day she pores over intricate charts and engineers' drawings at the patent examiner's office in the Commerce Department. Each week she passes on from 20 to 40 applications for patents on inventions in the motor world.

"They are complicated," Miss Newton admits, "but engines, especially the internal combustion type, are the most fascinating things I know."

She began her training at Duke University and then taught mathematics in a North Carolina high school.

She appears anything but the type of person who understands just why an engine performs its mysterious functions. She speaks with a soft southern accent. Her auburn hair curls softly about her face. But her desk is a business-like affair, where she presides over blue-prints.

"Just what is my job? Why, I interview applicants and attorneys," she says. "Then I examine and report on their claims."

FARMER MAKES A CIRCUS FROM OLD FAMILY CLOCK

Lewis, Minn.—(AP)—Forced to quit active farming, 82-year-old George Rice has kept busy tinkering with an old family clock—and what he's done to it is plenty. Every half hour a mechanical monkey is projected out of a little coop atop a tiny merry-go-round for a gymnastic exhibition.

Then a dainty clog-dancer swings into action while a miniature reproduction of two comic page figures presents an act.

Vocal numbers to round out the fantastic variety show are supplied by a wiggly cuckoo which concludes the five-minute performance by announcing the time.

STATE OFFICIAL, 88 NOW, MAY RUN FOR JOB AGAIN

Oklahoma City — (AP) — The "garnd old man" of Oklahoma demoracy—Col. R. A. Sneed, 88 years old—is looking to the future. Still hale and hearty, the secretary of state said he would let his health during the next year determine his course.

"I think I'll drop out. I don't know yet," he said "I intended to, but in the last few weeks my friends have been after me to run again."

"There is only one office I'd have—state treasurer."

If Sneed should run and be elected, his term would expire in

Presiding Judge and Pitt County Bar.

A committee of this body visited the convict camp in this county, which is a State institution, and report same neat and in good sanitary condition.

We are informed that the Camp is inspected by State Penal Inspector, at regular intervals, also by representatives of the State Welfare Department and by the County Health Officer.

County Home
We visited and inspected the County Home and found general conditions very satisfactory, new quarters for colored under construction and nearing completion, and repairs to walls of main building, are being made, a new sewerage system is in process of construction, and the inmates, thirty-four (34) in number, seem to be contented.

Some complaint is made about some of the inmates' conduct, in willful neglect of personal cleanliness, also willfully spitting on the floors.

We recommend that the proper authorities make some rules and regulations governing the inmates, and have same printed in card form and posted in each room, said rules to be read and explained to each inmate, already living at the home and to each one on entering, and that the superintendent be required to enforce the rules and regulations as posted. In this way we think it will be for the benefit of the inmates as well as those in charge.

We have investigated the operation of Slot Machines of the county and we do not find any in operation that would warrant our making presentment.

Offices.
Committee of this body visited the various offices of the county and found same well kept and efficiently managed.

We found in the Register of Deeds office all records were cross-indexed except the records of Vital Statistics, which has a card system. If Vital Statistic records were cross-indexed that would complete the office.

We wish to extend our thanks to the Presiding Judge (Hon. J. Paul Frizzelle) and to the Solicitor and other officers of the court for courtesies and cooperation at this term of Court.

This report is respectfully submitted by the Grand Jury for August, 1933 Term of Court.

J. P. Davenport, Chairman.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—The statement of Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate, that the Monroe doctrine is "outworn" and a "constant thorn in the flesh of South American countries" has caused new speculation as to our future foreign policy with our neighbors to the south.

President Roosevelt advanced the HERBERT PLUMMER "good neighbor" idea in his inaugural address. Also he had something to say about how a "good neighbor" should regard not only the sanctity of treaties, but the rights of others as well.

This was interpreted as bringing directly into the open the administration's future policy and attitude toward the Latin-American countries.

The press of domestic affairs has kept the President from elaborating much on what principles will govern his foreign policy. The Cuban flare-up threatened for a time, but skill and patience averted what might have proved to be a disastrous situation.

Interpreting Monroe
BUT Mr. Roosevelt has found time to give his interpretation of the Monroe doctrine and outline his conception of its true meaning as it affects our policy toward Latin American countries.

It was at a meeting of the board of governors of the Pan American Union, that organization in Washington which has for its purpose the fostering of good will between the United States and Latin America.

His view is that the sign post, set up in 1823 by President Monroe warning against European aggression on the western hemisphere, is "directed at the maintenance of independence by the peoples of this continent." He believes it is a Pan-American doctrine.

A Fear-Quiever

THE President voiced this interpretation at a time when no expansion of military preparedness is in prospect which would arouse possible concern in countries to the south.

He has said, in effect, that growth of the members of the American family of nations must rest on internal economic and social advancement and not on "acquisition of territory at the expense of any neighbor."

As chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, Pittman's criticism of the Monroe doctrine carries weight. Should a proposal ever be formally presented to the senate for its abandonment, a prolonged and lively fight is assured.

Senators, close students of Pan-American relations, have their own ideas on this moot question and would be prepared to defend them to the bitter end.
