NAVAL PLANES HANG UP NEW FLIGHT RECORD

Set New Long Distance Formation Record in Flight to Canal Zone

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—(AP)—A proud Navy today wrote a new achievement into its crowded annals—the longest distance non-stop flight in formation in history.

Unchecked by storm winds, six planes had winged in a single hop the 2,059 miles from Norfolk, Va., to Coco Solo, in the Canal Zone, when they landed at 6:25 last night. Five of the fleet's planes time for the long jump was 24 hours and 55 minutes. The sixth dropped behind during the afternoon and soon joined the flotilla at Coco Solo. To Commander D. M. Carpenter and the ten other officers and 25 enlisted men who made the flight, Navy chiefs sent congratulations. Acting Secretary Henry Roosevelt in his message said:

"Sincerest congratulations on your splendid feat. The Navy and the nation are proud that you have accomplished the longest formation seaplane flight in history."

The six planes left Norfolk Thursday night.

TO SEEK NEW NEGOTIATIONS ON WAR DEBTS

Great Britain and France Will Ask Discount of 90 Per Cent Of Debt

Paris, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Information received in French diplomatic circles said Great Britain expects to base its future war debt discussions with America on a suggested payment of 10 per cent of the amount owed. It was learned authoritatively that France wants to negotiate on the same basis which corresponds with the reduction in reparations from Germany as agreed upon at Lausanne last year.

France formerly defaulted last June 15 of a $40,000,000 installment. It is understood the administration hopes arrangements might be completed to permit the government to pay the $19,000,000 due last December. At that time a note was said to have indicated a desire for a 90 per cent discount of the French debt. (At the same time Great Britain made a payment of $10,000,000 in silver at 50 cents an ounce, on the $75,950,000 owed, the debt being acknowledged pending final settlement and hopes are expressed for a conference for similar settlement for both nations.)

PREPARE CODE GOVERN SALE PRISON GOODS

Prison Head in Washington to Look After Interests of This State

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 9.—(AP)—George Ross Pou, executive assistant to E. B. Jeffers, chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, was in Washington today representing the interest of North Carolina in a conference of State Prison officials where a code governing prison-made goods was being discussed. Pou was superintendent of the State Prison before the consolidation with the Highway Department and is active director of the prison division of the merged agency.

North Carolina's policy on prison-made goods has been to produce for State consumption only to make the prison self-supporting. Chairman Jeffers said today, but in some of the States prison goods is sold in competition with private industry.

Pou also conferred with Federal public roads officials to try to speed approval of projects submitted for highway and public works for this State.

Make Paying Racketeer An Offense, Senator Copeland Urges

Who pays for bombs like these? Not only the owners of the St. Louis laundry wrecked (left) or the Cleveland restaurant (right), crime experts agree. These and countless others are blamed on racketeers, whose tribute exacted from business is passed on to the consumer in higher prices.

MAINE WILL VOTE ON DRY ISSUE MONDAY

Cradle of Prohibition To Express Wishes As To Prohibition Amendment

(By The Associated Press) Maine, the cradle of prohibition, the first state which went officially "bone dry" away back in 1851, votes Monday on the proposed repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Both prohibitionists and repealists were insisting today the majority sentiment in the state was on their side. Maine is the twenty sixth state to ballot on the repeal question. All the previous 25 have voted to wipe out national prohibition. A total of 36 states is necessary before prohibition is repealed.

On Tuesday three other states—Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado—will register their will on the question. By November 7 at least 39 states will have voted.

SHELBY MILL TO GIVE WORK TO MORE PEOPLE

Shelby, N. C., Sept. 9.—Within a week's time, the brick addition to the Cleveland Cloth Mill will be finished by Fisk-Carter Construction Company and the setting of new machinery will be started.

O. M. Mull, official of the mill says it is not the intention of the mill to erect any more houses in the villages, but that the employees to be added will live about over Shelby wherever houses are available. This has made a demand which has filled every vacant house in or near the city. It is expected that investors will begin erecting new houses for rent.

GANGING UP ON GANGLAND

Racketeering thrust its piratical arms into nearly every line of business in the country.

What if its cost, how can it be conquered? This is the second of three articles dealing with America's war against gangland in that and other phases.

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington.—(AP)—Every time an American citizen spends a dollar, an estimated 25 cents goes to racketeers—the estimate being Senator Royal S. Copland's.

His figures indicate an annual tribute of 13 billions of dollars—a fourth of the annual income—levied by the underworld on business. And that tribute goes into the price of goods, paid by the consumer.

Reaches Every Home The figures have been ascertained by Senator Copland, of New York, who as chairman of the senate's committee on racketeering is investigating the underworld's hold on business.

Racketeering has reached the point, she says, "where it enters every American home in the form of increased price on goods. Take the poultry racket. New York city, because of its large Jewish and Italian population, buys $200,000,000 worth of chicken every year.

Poultry is shipped from the west and unloaded on poultry cars at Jersey City and placed in coops which are loaded onto trucks and taken to the city ferry. The shipper can use only certain poultry cars, certain trucks, certain trucks if he doesn't the chickens never reach the market.

Refusals Brings Violence "Take the case of a friend of mine who owns a business building on Fifth avenue. Recently he improved it with an elaborate front. A man called to ask him to join a protective association at $15 a week. My friend refused. The next day the windows were broken. He was insured and the windows were replaced. Again they were broken. The insurance company refused to renew, and now he has to pay the $15 weekly tribute.

Hotel operators are forced to use certain laundries or somehow their linen is ruined with acid. "Cleaners must use certain cleaning fluid or the garments are 'lost' or ruined.

Bombs Freely Used "Trucks of silk goods on the way to market are hi-jacked, and unscrupulous merchants sell the silks that were stolen.

Restaurant fight each other, and suddenly the business of one is ruined by a stink bomb thrown in among the customers. The odor remains for days and the trade goes elsewhere.

Only a partial list of businesses affected include laundries, cleaners, bakers, coal, flour, ice roofing, garages, produce, ice cream, meats, florists, window-washers and moving pictures.

"The first step in a battle against these conditions is to enlarge the force of federal investigators, and then, second, to enlarge their powers.

"Stink bombs can easily be met by prohibiting their manufacture. "Further, I am in favor of writing into every code a clause making it an offense for a merchant to pay tribute to the underworld. "We can pass laws—and we will

Growers Flock To Court House This Morning To Sign Reduction Contract

Scientists Trying For Improvement In Quality of Lard

Ames, Ia., —(AP)—Scientists in five branches of research are operating to improve the quality and use of one of Iowa's principal farm products—lard.

The five-sided study, already a year under way, seeks to develop a standard product, free from objectionable features that may have discouraged its use by housewives in the past, and useable in a variety of ways not possible heretofore.

Animal husbandry experts are studying the effects of different feeds on the fat of hogs; home economists are investigating lard's uses in the culinary art; meat men are learning to standardize and perfect the rendering process; chemists are analyzing lard's reactions in combination with other foods in cooking and economists are studying methods of marketing lard in both domestic and foreign markets.

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Keeping a sharp eye to the protection of America against possible danger in Cuba, the navy today ordered the Mississippi to steam at once from Cardenas to the Havana harbor about 75 miles distant as a part of the wholesale ship movement. The navy at the same time ordered still another destroyer, the Reuben James, to proceed immediately from Norfolk, Va., to the Cuban zone. The navy's new order placed an ever strengthening cordon of vessels around Cuba.

The Mississippi with twelve 14-inch guns prominent in its armament and carrying more than 900 Blue Jackets at 80 Marines, was directed to take the anchorage in Havana harbor vacated last night by the heavy cruiser Indianapolis.

FINE SPIRIT PREVAILED

Drive Continues at Township Meetings This Afternoon. Expect to Complete Drive Quickly

With a hundred or more volunteer workers, including warehouse workers, lawyers, bankers and interested citizens from all lines of business, assisting, more than five hundred Pitt County tobacco growers signed the government acreage reduction contracts during the first hour following this morning's brief mass meeting at the court house, and the lines of growers continued to form along the 20 singing tables up until the noon hour. At two o'clock this afternoon meetings were scheduled in every township in the county to give other growers the opportunity to sign and indications were that with the exception of a few stragglers the sign-up would be completed by tonight. With a list of every landowner in the county available to the workers, names were being checked from the lists as growers signed the contracts and following today's sign-up a whirlwind campaign will be made over the county to get the signatures of those who do not sign today.

Long before the hour set for the mass meeting growers began to gather outside the court house to discuss the contract with warehousemen and other interested citizens and when County Farm Agent E. F. Arnold faced the large audience in the court room at 10 o'clock it took but a few minutes explaining before the cry came from the audience that the growers wanted to get to the contracts. From then on it was just a matter of letting a grower get close enough to one of the working tables in the court room or corridors to put his name on the dotted line. A feeling of optimism seemed to prevail throughout and there was no holding back on the part of the growers.

From surrounding counties where the sign-up campaign got under way yesterday immediately following receipt of contract forms from this city, came reports of most satisfactory results and requests for additional blanks. The 15,000 additional blanks that should have reached this city late yesterday failed to arrive on schedule and it appeared for a while that the final clean-up of the campaign would be delayed for lack of blanks but word was received later in the morning that a truck bearing 50,000 more blanks had reached Wilson and immediately agents from every county centered their attention on that point. Local warehouse representatives from this city went immediately to Wilson for 10,000 of the blanks for delivery to counties below here in order that there might be no delay in putting the campaign over.

While no definite date for the reopening of the warehouses has yet been set it is the belief of many here that if the drive is completed in other sections as quickly as indications point to its completion in counties in this immediate territory the warehouses may be permitted to open by the latter part of next week or surely by Monday September 18.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Farmers of the great tobacco growing sections of the Carolinas stampeded today to sign the government acreage contracts with the promise of higher prices. An hour after a mass meeting at Greenville opening the sign-up campaign there 500 farmers had put their name on the dotted line awaiting their turn arashr shr ahrd ahrdalyahrdah to sign.

Farmers west of the Pee Dee River in South Carolina rallied at Florence and 1,500 strong shouted approval of the government program, and signing of the contracts was begun immediately. A similar rally at Mullins for farmers east of the Pee Dee River was scheduled for this afternoon.

Reports reaching here from Beaufort, Martin and Greene counties in North Carolina, said contracts were signed so freely the supply of blanks was soon exhausted. Others were being rushed into the sections.

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT

Sign-up Mass Meeting TODAY

We feel confident that Pitt County, largest tobacco growing county in the world, will be able tonight to wire President Roosevelt...

The government, after mature deliberation has stepped in to assure reasonable prices. We believe they will never step out so long as the growers welcome their support.

Growers in foreign countries are constantly increasing their own production. Exports of flue cured tobacco from the United States to foreign countries have been steadily declining.

All markets will reopen simultaneously through contact by Governor Ehringhaus with officials at Washington, D. C., and ample notice will be given.

County Agent now has name of every land owner in the county. As you sign, your name will be checked off. Let's make it a 100 per cent sign up in Pitt County.

We beg you, in this emergency, not to let your name appear on the list with those who do not sign the Government Contract for acreage reduction.

We feel certain that the 4 acre man will be taken care of. Let us not argue and delay. This is the only plan suggested for our salvation.

Let us urge the growers living out of Pitt County, many of whom are receiving the Daily Reflector, to get busy at once in their respective counties.

Three resolutions were drawn to be submitted at the State Grange meeting in Lexington this month. The first resolution urges the setting aside of one school day each year for the study of fire prevention. The second, pledges support to the National Recovery act and the third, confirms the stand previously taken to prevent the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The meeting was then closed, the time and place of the next meeting to be decided by the executive committee. A salad course was served by the host Grange.

Drying Fruits and Vegetables. As most of the left over fruit jars are about filled at this season a great many housekeepers are drying all surplus fruits and vegetables. Nothing should go to waste. Dried products are easy to keep and go much further than canned ones.

Most women of this section use improvised dehydrators. Several types of home driers are inexpensive and easily made. Reaction To Discipline

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH In the nature of things there cannot be found any fixed form of punishment suited to every child.

Each child requires different handling according to his individual temperament, and parents have to use the utmost insight and care in discriminating between the treatment required by the varying personalities entrusted to their charge.

Some children respond to very gentle handling, others thrive under sharper methods, some must be led, a few driven. Not to adjust the management to the child's peculiar needs, even at the risk of apparent favoritism may make discipline, in some of the cases at least, worse than useless.

There are children who deeply resent spanking, and turn into wild things at the least suggestion of corporal punishment. To them it is an indignity, and far from being a corrective, incites them to rebellion or sullenness.

Others prefer it to any other form of punishment, because, while unpleasant, it is soon over.

Still another type of child glories in a good thrashing from Dad, and may be heard bragging of it at school, much as if he were a battle-scarred hero.

For some children a spanking is a physical, for others an emotional corrective. One will take it stoically as his due, another will kick and scream; one will feel repentant after the punishment, another will consider the account balanced and the books closed.

There are countless variations of these types, and the number which may occur in one family is only limited by its size. But to make a punishment of any use the wise parent will adjust the dose to the patient and what is one child's cure is another one's poison.

NO CANDIDATES YET FOR CONVENTION POSTS

Elizabeth City, N. C., Sept. 9.—One month from hence is the deadline for the entry of wet and dry candidates for North Carolina's referendum November 7 on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, said C. E. Bailey, chairman of the County Board of Elections. To date no one has filed notice of candidacy on each side. No county in the Albemarle will have more than one wet and one dry delegate in the convention.

Under the law each side, wet and dry, is allowed the same number of candidates in each county as the county has representatives in the lower House of the Legislature. This gives Mecklenburg, Wake, Forsyth and Guilford three candidates on each side on the official ballots with other candidates on each side.

In order to become a candidate to sit in the State Convention to be held in December, the petition of the person seeking to become a delegate must be signed at least two per cent of the total vote in the county for governor in 1932. If more persons seek the places than are allowed on the ballots under the law, the legal number shall be filed for each side by the persons having the most signatures to their petitions.

NEAR-CRISIS IN COAL CONTROVERSY BRIDGSD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—(AP)—A near-crisis in the administration's effort to fasten an NRA code upon the bituminous coal industry that both Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator, and spokesmen for the mine owners had made concessions in a new step toward agreement.

Angrily, Johnson faced four of the operators in a three-hour conference after receiving a biting letter of condemnation of the code which he handed down yesterday with the ultimatum that it would be promulgated early next week with few changes.

At the end, the quartet emerged, smiling, and the administrator said he hoped still for a charter next week with a general agreement from the industry. He added, however, that the public hearing he had set for Monday afternoon might be postponed 24 hours to give the mine owners more time to study to most comprehensive code yet written at the Recovery Administration.

the race for public attention is a young woman who is touted by a rival daily because she has won their beauty contest. The fact that the two will fall in love with each other is too obvious for comment; the gyrations of the boy and girl and the press are amusing in the best light Priestley style.

But Mr. Priestley takes his hero back to the country again, where he comes face to face with the economic degeneration of England and especially of some relatives of his. And that is where a certain amount of confusion enters. Most readers will feel that the economic lessons drawn and the satiric virtuosity already displayed scarcely "hitch," a circumstance that somewhat tangles the social implications involved, but does not affect materially the enjoyment of the casual reader.

The Jalna saga has again been taken up by Mazo de la Roche, who deserted her charming Canadians long enough to produce a very pleasant light novel in quite another genre a season back.

This is the book of Renny, and of course Jalna as well. It is difficult to determine whether the extraordinary sense of the influence exerted by such an estate as Jalna, or Renny's own impassioned, and impetuous, defense of the place affects the reader more. And although "The Master of Jalna" deals with the present, Miss de la Roche has every skillfully connected her latest brain child with its predecessors.

Jalna has fallen on evil days and is saved by what the dime novel men used to call "a hair." The reader, toward the end, begins to sense another book to come. Many will hope they have not long to wait.

There is a wealth of material for the bookworm this week—books as diverse as Van Wyck Brooks' editing of Gamaliel Bradford's long and gentle Journal, and Robert W. Chambers' "Whatever Love Is," another of the Chambers studies of life among the more or less elite.

Dorothy Bobbe has exhumed a great amount of information about a man whose fame has faded, in her "DeWitt Clinton," and Beverley Nichols has prepared a statement of the case for pacifism and against war in "Cry Havoc" that will set a good many tongues wagging, pro and con.

Warwick Deeping likewise is represented in the list, this time with "Two Black Sheep" which is a study of the effect of prison on two very pleasant characters; two other novels of interest are Ethel Bolle's "A Gay Family" and A. E. Fisher's "Requiem."

There are countless variations of these types, and the number which may occur in one family is only limited by its size. But to make a punishment of any use the wise parent will adjust the dose to the patient and what is one child's cure is another one's poison.
